"Without father, without mother, without decent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but be made like unto the Son of God, abideth a priest continually." Melchizedek Priesthood holds the right from the eternal God, and not by descent from father and mother; and that priesthood is as eternal as God Himself, having neither beginning of days nor end of life.

The 2nd Priesthood is Patriarchal authority. Go to an d finish the temple, and God will fill it with power, and you will then receive more knowledge concerning this priesthood. (Finish our temples today. Place Holy of Holies in them where men and women can become kings and priests, and queens and priestesses, sealed up by the priesthood and the holy seal of promise, to their Most High God...)(Dave.)

The 3rd is what is called the Levitical Priesthood, consisting of priests to administer in outward ordinances, made without an oath; but the Priesthood of Melchizedek is by an oath and covenant.

The Holy Ghost is God's messenger to administer in all those priesthoods.

Jesus Christ is the heir of this Kingdom-the Only Begotten of the Father according to the flesh, and holds the keys over all this world.

Men have to suffer that they may come upon Mount Zion and be exalted above the heavens.

I know a man that has been caught up to the third heavens, and can say, with Paul, that we have seen and heard things that are not lawful to utter. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:554-555; Teachings, p. 323.)

"What was the power of Melchizedek?" Joseph Smith asked in his 27 August 1843 discourse. 'Twas not P. of Aaron &c. [but the power of] a king & Priest to the most high God. [That priesthood was] a perfect law of Theocracy, holding keys of power & blessings, [and] stood as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam." [The 3rd order of the Priesthood:] That of Melchisedec who had still greater power even power of an endless life of which was our Lord Jesus Christ which also Abraham obtained by the offering of his son Isaac which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & Law of endless Life to man & No man can attain to Joint heirship with Jesus Christ with out being administered to by one having the same power & Authority of Melchisedec [which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & Law of endless Life to man] (TWOJS, p. 245.)

1. The third level of the Priesthood is to "pour out the peace & Law of endless Life to man".

2. Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God (3 Nephi 12:9). In this context a peacemaker is a person who holds the keys to bestow the ordinances of the Priesthood upon another even that of "the peace and & law of endless Life". Thus, they are called the Children of God because they are such and because they are endowing their fellows with the same.

2a. One will notice while reading the Beatitudes in 3 Nephi Chapter 12, that it is talking about the endowment process of becoming the Children of God and like Christ and our Heavenly Parents.

1. The Beatitudes are joined into one great beatitude and build upon a foundation which is built upon, to build the whole house. And it came to pass is a conjunction, which means that it is added to the foundation of the previous law...

2. Jesus called and numbered the twelve and gave them the endowment and power of the priesthood and to bind and seal on earth and in heaven (3 Nephi 12:1).

3. He commissioned them as his servants to give the laws and ordinances of the priesthood (3 Nephi 12:1), the capstone of the endowment to "pour out the peace & Law of endless Life to man" and make them sons and daughters of God, kings and priests, queens and priestesses to the most high God and Joint heirs with Jesus Christ.

4. Baptized and receive the holy Ghost by ones with authority (3 Nephi 12:1-2.) This is the Gate that leads to eternal life (scripture.)

5. Blessed are the poor in spirit, [those who have not been baptized, received the Holy Ghost and been fully endowed] who come unto me, [who come unto me or those who I have commissioned and receive the Fulness of the ordinances of the Priesthood, Baptism, the Holy Ghost, the Endowment, the New and everlasting covenant of marriage, the Capstone of the Endowment "the peace & Law of endless Life" which is to be children of God-Kings and priests and queens and priestesses to the most High God and Joint-Heirs with Christ], for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

6. And blessed are all the pure in heart, for they shall see God (3 Nephi 12:8).

Finally by building the Life that Christ and the Father Live receiving the Ordinances of the Gospel by those who are commissioned we arrive at the point where we pure in heart and we can see God (3 Nephi 12:1-8.)

We are washed through Baptism and the Holy Ghost and our hearts are clean, we are washed and endowed and pronounced clean every whit and are pure before the Lord and are like him so we begin to see him as he really is for we are like him.

7. Speaking of those who have been given the power to seal on earth and in heaven and have the power to give the Fulness of the priesthood and to "pour out the peace & Law of endless Life to man" the Lord says:

And blessed are all the peacemakers [those who bestow the greatest peace even the peace of endless life to man], for they shall be called the children of God.

It is the ordinances that make us the children of God and one of the reasons that the Lord is telling this to those who hold this authority is in other words:

"Happy are all those who are peacemakers, because we are joint-heirs with Christ and is all the heirs aren't their to receive the final blessing none can receive it-thus the Lord is saying those who have eyes to see let him understand that I am no respecter of persons all are my children and in order to be the sons and daughters of god all have to receive these ordinances.
So the bestower even though he has received all the ordinances of the gospel unless he bestows this on his fellow brothers and sisters he cannot be a true child of god -thus the Lord say they shall be call the children of God Because they are doing the same work that God is "this is my work and glory to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man. 8. Speaking of the priesthood and the power to "pour out the peace & Law of endless Life to man" the Lord says: Verily, verily, I say unto you, I give unto you to be the salt of the earth; but if the salt shall lose its savor wherewith shall the earth be salted? The salt shall be thenceforth good for nothing, [because we are Joint-heirs and either we all get the blessing or none get it. ie, the 99 were left without a leader, not progressing but left upon a plateau until the one was found then all could receive the blessings together] but to be cast out and to be trodden under foot of men.

Verily, verily, I say unto you, I give unto you to be the light of this people. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid.
Then speaking of the blessings of the priesthood the Lord expounds: Behold, do men light a candle [the priesthood and all its ordinances and blessings] and put it under a bushel? Nay, but on a candlestick, and it giveth light to all that are in the house; (3 Nephi 12 13-15) The blessing of the priesthood need to go to all the house both the living and the dead from the least to the greatest.]

Therefore let your light so shine [the priesthood and its ordinances and blessings] before this people , that they may see [receive] your good works [the fulness of the priesthood, eternal life the ordinances from the least to the greatest even to the capstone] and glorify your Father who is in heaven (3 Nephi 12:16). And what is the glory of the Father which we are to make brighter - This is my work and glory [and all those who have the authority of the Priesthood] to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man.

And so final the Lord builds the complete temple, he sends Elias and Elijah which holds the keys to bind on earth and in heaven and explains to us that we can't be perfected without them and they with out us- in other words we are joint-heirs and need to receive the blessings of the Father jointly.

Then the Lord concludes his great sermon by talking about the capstone of the Gospel.

Therefore I would that ye should be perfect [receive all the ordinances of the gospel to be made a king and priest unto the most high god that when I come ye shall see me and know me for you shall be like me] even as I [I have receive all the ordinances of the gospel and you are joint-heirs with me so we must enter the fathers presence together] or you Father who is in heaven is perfect [I will present you to the father and he will bestow upon us all things and we shall be equal with him] (3 Nephi 12:48).

3. No man can attain to Joint heirship with Jesus Christ with out being administered to by one having the same power & Authority of Melchisedec [which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & Law of endless Life to man] 27 August 1843 because Elijah had not come to confer the fulness of the priesthood upon the Prophet before he administered the Kirtland Temple ordinances. Obviously the Prophet could only administer temple ordinances as he then understood them. (TWOJS, p. 302.)

21. The Prophet here teaches that though Abraham had not yet received the fulness of the priesthood, he had received from the Lord the promise of an innumerable posterity both for this world and in the world to come (D&C 132:28-31). Joseph Smith, however, clarifies that Abraham's endowment (Abraham Facsimile Number 2, figures 3 and 7) was greater than that which his descendants Aaron and Levi would be allowed; and thus "Abraham's" Patriarchal Priesthood (the ordinances of the endowment and patriarchal marriage for time and eternity) comprehended the Aaronic portion of the endowment. Additionally, the Prophet here clarifies that the Patriarchal Priesthood was not the same as the crowning ordinances of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood. Elias returned the authority of promising innumerable posterity, but Elijah restored the authority of the fulness of the priesthood (D&C 110:12-16).

Aside from this theological commentary, it is important to point out that the Prophet's teachings fit perfectly within a historical context. Joseph Smith administered the first ordinances of the Patriarchal Priesthood on 4 May 1842 when he gave both the Aaronic and Melchizedek portions of the endowment to nine men in his store in Nauvoo (see History of the Church, 5:1-2, or Teachings, p. 137; and H. W. Mills, "De Tal Palo Tal Astilla," Annual Publications--Historical Society of Southern California 10 [Los Angeles: McBride Printing Company, 1917]:120-21). By a year later, most of the nine received the ordinances of marriage for time and eternity. In particular, the Prophet and his wife, Emma, and James and Harriet Adams were sealed on 28 May 1843 (Joseph Smith Diary, Church Archives). Similarly, Hyrum Smith and his wife, Mary Fielding, Brigham Young and his wife, a Mary Ann, and Willard Richard and his wife, Jennetta, were all sealed the next day. But the higher ordinances that confer the fulness of the priesthood had not as yet been administered. However one month and a day after this 27 August 1843 discourse, Joseph and Emma received the anointing and ordination "of the highest and holiest order of the priesthood" (Joseph Smith Diary, 28 September 1843, Church Archives). Hence by 27 August 1843, "Abrahams patriarchal power...[was] the greatest yet experienced in [the] church." [Here we see that women are also anointed and ordained to this "highest and holiest order of the priesthood" (Joseph Smith Diary, 28 September 1843, Church archives)].

...Brigham Young demonstrates that the Prophet made clear to those who had received the endowment and patriarchal marriage ordinances, that they had not as yet received the fulness of the priesthood. On 6 August 1843, Brigham Young said, "If any in the church [have] the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood [I do] not know it. For any person to have the fulness of that priesthood, he must be a king and priest." Since he had received, with eight others, an anointing in 1842 promising him he would, if faithful, eventually receive another anointing actually ordaining him a king and a priest, Brigham Young therefore added, "A person may be anointed a king and a priest long before he receives his kingdom (History of the Chruch, 5:527,...). Based on his understanding from Joseph the Prophet, Brigham Young said of this third order of priesthood blessings, "Those who...come in here [the Nauvoo Temple] and have received their washings & anointing will...be ordained Kings & Priests, and will then have received the fulness of the Priesthood, all that can be given on earth" (Heber C. Kimball Journal, kept by william Clayton, 26 December 1845, Church Archives...). This is the theological and historical context for the Prophet's comments on the three orders of the temple blessings outlined in this extremely important discourse. (TWOJS, p. 303-304.)

27 August 1843 Footnote

22. As high and important to the Church as the office of prophet, apostle and patriarch are, nevertheless, these highest ecclesiastical ordinations do not confer the authority of Elijah, the sealing power of the priesthood, or the power of a king and priest. As President Joseph Fielding Smith expressed it best in our own century,

> I do not care what office you hold in the Church--you may be an apostle, you may be a patriarch, a high priest, or anything else--but you cannot receive the fullness of the priesthood and the fulness of eternal reward unless you receive the ordinances of the house of the lord... Then [the door is] open so you can obtain all the blessings which any man can gain.... You can have ["the fullness of the Lord's blessings"] sealed upon your as an elder, if you are faithful; and when you receive them, and live faithfully and keep these covenants, you then all that any man can get. There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God without the fulness of the priesthood" (Joseph Fielding Smith, first address to the Priesthood as President of the Church, 4 April 1970, The Improvement Era 73 [June 1970]: 65-66). (TWOJS, p. 304-305).

29. [All acts within the priesthood must be sealed by the priesthood, which is Christ, and a ratifying seal by the Holy Ghost] ...Abraham received the "anointing and sealing" (the priesthood ordination of king and priest) under the hands of Melchizedek (Genesis 14:17-24 and JST Genesis 14:25-40), but the "election sure"--the absolute assurance of power in the priesthood--came directly from God only after Abraham indicated his willingness to sacrifice Isaac (Genesis 22:1-14). (TWOJS, p. 305.) [Again here we see that:

1. a person is called, elected, and this calling and election is made sure by priesthood ordiance, anointing, sealing, confirmation etc. Then

2. These callings, elections, ordinations, anointings, sealings, confirmations and etc. are ratified by the Holy Ghost....]

 Heirship and Priesthood: By P. P. Pratt: Now the Lord did not predicate His principle of election or nobility upon such an unequal, unjust, and useless order of things. When He speaks of nobility, He simply means an election made, and an office or a title conferred, on the principle of superiority of intellect, or nobleness of action, or of capacity to act. And when this election, with its titles, dignities, and estates, includes the unborn posterity of a chosen man, as in the case of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, it is with a view of the noble spirits of the eternal world coming through their lineage, and being taught in the commandments of God. Hence the Prophets, Kings, Priests, Patriarchs, Apostles, and ever jesus Christ, were included in the election of Abraham, and of his seed, as manifested to him in an eternal covenant.

***

And when he had been sufficiently proved according to the flesh, the Lord manifested to him the election before exercised towards him in the eternal world. He then renewed that election and covenant, and blessed him, and his seed after him. He said--In multiplying, I will multiply thee; and in blessing I will bless thee.

***

Now, Abraham, by his former superiority of intelligence and nobility, by his former election before the world was, and by conducting himself in this world so as to obtain the renewal of the same according to the flesh, brought upon his posterity, as well as upon himself, that which will influence them more or less to the remotest generations of time, and in eternity. (Journal of Discourses, p. 256-263; P. P. Pratt, 10 April 1853.)

27 August 1843 Footnote

30. One of the major milestones, if not the major milestone, of the Latter-day work was to be the restoration of the fulness of the priesthood (D&C 124:28). The Prophet's "mission... [was to] firmly [establish] the dispensation of the fulness of the priesthood in the last days, that all the powers of earth and hell [could] never prevail against it" (History of the church, 5:140, or Teachings, p. 258). What was this fulness of the priesthood? The most concise but inclusive definition of the authority of the fulness of the priesthood was given by Joseph Smith in his 10 March 1844 discourse when he said, "Now for Elijah; the spirit, power and calling of Elijah is that ye have power to hold the keys of revelations, ordinances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and of the Kingdom of God on the Earth and to receive, obtain and perform all belonging to the kingdom of God...[to] have power to seal on ear and in heaven." However, the Prophet had not as yet administered the ordinances that made men kings and priests. Brigham Young said three weeks before this discourse that no one yet in the Church had the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood, "For any person to have the fulness of that priesthood, he must be a king and priest" (History of the Chruch 5:527, which was quoted verbatim from the original source kept by Wilford Woodruff, Church Archives). These ordinances were instituted on 28 Sept 1843 and in the next five months were conferred on twenty men and their wives, except for those whose names are asterisked): Hyrum Smith, Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Willard Richards, Newell K. Whitney, William Marks, John Taylor, John Smith, Reynolds Cahoon, Alpheus Cutler, Orson Spencer, Orson Hyde*, Parley P. Pratt*, Wilford Woodruff, George A. Smith, Levi Richards*, Cornelius P. Lott, William W. Phelps, Issac Morley, and Orson Pratt* As George Q. Cannon later said,

> Previous to his death, the Prophet Joseph manifested great anxiety to see the temple completed, as most of you who were with the Church during his day, well know. "Hurry up the work, brethren," he used to say, "let us finish the temple; the Lord has a great endowment in store for you, and I am anxious that the brethren should have their endowments and receive the fullness of the Priesthood...Then, "said he, "the Kingdom will be established, and I do not care what shall become of me."
> Prior to the completion of the Temple, [Joseph Smith] took the Twelve and certain other men, who were chosen, and bestowed upon them a holy anointing, similar to that which was received on the day of Pentecost by the Twelve, who had been told to tarry at Jerusalem. This endowment was bestowed upon the chosen few whom Joseph anointed and ordained, given unto them the keys of the holy Priesthood, the power and authority which he himself held, to build up the Kingdom of God in all the earth and accomplish the great purposes of our Heavenly Father."
> Knowing that Sidney Rigdon was the only member of the First Presidency to survive the martyrdom but knowing too that he had not received the ordinances of the fulness of the priesthood, George Q. Cannon added this significant comment: "It was by virtue of this authority, on the death of Joseph, that President Young, as President of the quorum of the Twelve, presided over the Church: (Journal of Discourses, 13:49) Joseph Smith's followers did believe he "firmly established the dispensation of the fullness of the priesthood...that all...earth and hell [could] never prevail against it." (TWOJS p. 305-306.)

38. This is the only known record of when, according to Joseph Smith the Savior received the fulness of the priesthood. Wilford Woodruff's report of the Prophet's 11 June 1843 discourse recorded a significant comment by Joseph Smith regarding this subject" "If a man gets the fulness of God ["priesthood" as in the published version], he has to get [it] in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, by keeping all the ordinances of the house of the Lord".... Joseph Smith distinguished between the ordination of the twelve disciples and apostles (in Matthew 10) and the bestowal of the sealing power of Elijah upon three of the twelve (in Matthew 17), for he himself received the authority of the apostleship in 1829 (Joseph Smith-History, 1:72; D&C 27:12), but did not receive the sealing power of the fulness of the priesthood until 3 April 1836 (D&C 110:13-16;... "This is my work and my glory-to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man." (Moses 1:39.) Dave.)

sealing powers and principles, and spoke of the doctrine of election with the seed of Abraham, and the sealing of children, according to the declarations of the prophets. He then spoke of Judge Higbee in the world of spirits, and the blessings which he would obtain, and of the kind of spirit and disposition of Judge Higbee while living; none of which was reported. (D. ...In May 1842 Joseph Smith introduced the "temple endowment" and anointed nine men to become kings and priests. (H.C. 5:1-2). Consistent with John the revelator, Joseph Smith anointed them "Kings and priests...[who] shall reign on the earth [during the Millennium]" (Rev. 20:5-6). However, in September of 1843, a year later, Joseph Smith did attend to the temple ordinances that actually made mortals "kings and priests." Joseph Smith on 27 August 1843, a month before first administering these ordinances, taught that this ordination as a "king and priest" conferred the ultimate, legitimate power of government.

> Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. In fact, that Priesthood is a perfect law of theocracy and stands as God to give laws to the people.

> Joseph Smith in this discourse also indicated that he had not as yet conferred on any man in the Church the fulness of the priesthood ordinances whereby they were made kings and priests. On 28 September 1843 Joseph Smith inaugurated these higher ordinances in which he ordained men kings and priests (Joseph Smith Diary, dept by Willard Richards, 28 September 1843, Church Archives).

And in the ensuing five months he conferred them on twenty other men. For it was the "dispensation of the fulness of the priesthood" that Joseph Smith felt was the mission he was to accomplish. (H. C. 5:140, or Teachings, p. 258.)

These ordinances he claimed conferred ultimate priesthood authority upon men. When men were ordained kings and priests and thereby received the fulness of the priesthood, they were "given...all that could be given to man on the earth." Joseph Smith Washed & Anointed His Wife Emma--She would later Wash and Anoint the other women of the Quorum:

It was during this period of calm that Joseph [Smith] administered to Emma the washing and anointing ordinances making her the first woman member of the Quorum. The exact date of this event is at present unknown; however, it was on or before 28 September 1843. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 94.) [Note: in the Patriarchal priesthood, it is possible, the father, being the King and Priest, would wash his sons, and the mother would wash her daughters or someone in authority of the same sex. Since the priesthood had been lost and there was no one present to represent the opposite sex in Emma's Case, Emma's husband and Prophet, Priest and King, Washed her. Later Other Women would be given the keys to wash women in the place of Mothers. Other examples would be obvious--that is Adam would have most likely received his ordinances from God or his messengers-then he like Joseph Smith in all virtue would have washed his wife Eve as the Father would not have overstepped His bounds--My house is a house of Order saith God. God named his son Adam, then told Adam to name his wife. The Lord or his servant administers the ordinances and Keys to Adam and takes him through the Veil, and Adam administers these same keys and ordinances to his wife and takes her through the Veil--Likewise, in this order Father Adam would wash and anoint his sons and Eve her daughters and then the Daughter's would be given away by the father to the Sons at the Veil of the Temple. Lehi and Sarah would have done the same to their children.]

28 September 1843

On this day two meetings of the Quorum were held. At the morning meeting, John Taylor, John M. Bernhisel, Lucien Woodworth, John Smith, and Amasa Lyman received their washings and anointings form under the hands of Hyrum Smith, Newell K. Whitney and George Miller. (Joseph Smith Diary, under date given.) These five men were the first male initiates into the Quorum since its May 1842 organization. After their initiatory ordinances, Joseph in the upper room of the Brick Store conducted them through the remainder of the endowment. That evening all the above men, plus Emma Smith, Willard Richards, William Law and William Marks met in the front upper room of the Mansion House at 7 p.m. First, Joseph was "by common consent, and unanimous voice [was] chosen president of the quorum." (Joseph Smith, Diary 28 September 1843.) His appointment to be head of the Quorum, while voted upon, was, as he said, by command of God. The Prophet led the group in the true order of prayer [this being a prerequisite, the husband always leads in the prayer circle giving all the signs and tokens of the priesthood--See the Second anointings given in the Nauvoo temple] after which, Hyrum smith and william Marks at his dictation "anointed and ord[ained Joseph] to the highest and holiest order of the priesthood, viz., a king and priest unto [the Most High] God [and His Father]. After this, Emma was anointed and ordained a queen and priestess unto her husband. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 94-95.)

Two Seals in the Priesthood [or that grow out of the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage]:

Friday 20th [October 1843]. At B.F. Johnsons...Evening J[oseph]. gave us much instruction, showing the advantages of the E[verlasting]. C[ovenant]. He said there was two seals in the Priesthood. The first was that which was placed on the man and women when they made the covenant & the other was the seal which allotted to them their particular mansion [or kingdom]-- After his discourse B.F. Johnson & his wife were united in an everlasting covenant. (William Clayton Journal, Church Archives, 20 October 1843.)

Newel K. Whitney and Elizabeth Whitney receive their Second Anointings:

--27-- I attended prayer-meeting in the evening at President Joseph Smith's. Bishop N. K. Whitney and wife [Elizabeth] were anointed [Second Anointings] . (Manuscript History of Brigham young by Watson p. 154-159; See also, Andrew F. Ehat, "Ehat Endowment Data Summary," cited in his "Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, M.A. thesis, Brigham Young University, 1982.)

October 1843

Quorum [of Anointed] Meetings:

One of the key meetings of the Quorum that would establish the role the Quorum would have in succession after Joseph Smith's death was the 1 October 1843 meeting. At this meeting, all who participated in the Quorum meeting the previous Thursday met in the Mansion. In addition, Jane Law, Rosannah Marks, Elizabeth Durfee and Mary Fielding Smith (who received their washings and anointings from Emma before the start of the meeting) were added to the Quorum. Joseph Smith then proceeded to anoint as counselors in the First Presidency, William Law and Amasa Lyman. While Law's anointing was in accordance with a revelation (D&C 124:91), the reason for Lyman's anointing was not made clear in the brief Joseph Smith Diary entry. But in light of the division existing between Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon, first counselor in the First Presidency, this anointing of Lyman takes on great importance. On Sunday, 13 August 1843, Joseph Smith during his public sermon "showed that Sidney Rigdon had bound himself by an oath...to deliver J[oseph] into the hands of the Missourians." (Ehat and Coo, Words of Joseph Smith, p. 243.) Joseph then "in the name of the Lord withdrew the hand of fellowship for [Sidney Rigdon] and put it to the vote of the people. He was cut off by an unanimous vote and orders [were given] to demand his [ministerial] licence." (Ehat and Cook, Words of Joseph, p. 243.) The following Sunday, Sidney denied these charges. But on the Sunday after that, Joseph produced a letter for Thomas Carlin that he felt was so evasive it clouded Sidney's case. By acclamation, the Saints decided the problem should be resolved at the October 1843 general conference of the Church. (D.H.C. 5:538, and 553-56.) But Joseph had so little confidence in Rigdon's loyalty that the week before the conference trial Joseph, during the 1 October 1843 Quorum meeting, "re-anointed" Law and Lyman counselors in the Presidency. When Joseph was questioned about doing this in advance of Sidney's fall, he gave this trese answer that was more than metaphor, "Why, (said he), by the same rule that Samuel anointed David to be King over Israel while Saul was yet crowned." (Jedediah M. Grant, A collection of Facts Relative to the Course Taken by Elder Sidney Rigdon, in the States of Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and Pennsylvania (Philadelphia: Brown, Bicking & Guilbert, Printer, 1844), p. 15.) Jedediah M. Grant who overheard this explanation said that though the Prophet's answer was cryptic it "Proved a quieter to all their rising conjectures." (Ibid.) Neither William Law nor Amasa Lyman received the fulness of the priesthood on this occasion, however. In fact, neither man received these blessings during the lifetime of Joseph Smith. So while William Law received the anointing referred to in D&C 124:91, yet he was not given the fulness of the oracles of God.

The meeting adjourned with the expectation that the Quorum would meet the following Wednesday evening, 4 October 1843, when Hyrum Smith would receive the fulness of the priesthood ordinances. (Joseph Smith, Diary, 1 October 1843.) The "council of the quorum" met briefly and found, however, that Hyrum was too sick to attend. (Ibid., 4 October 1843.) Consequently, they adjourned until after the general conference. The following Sunday evening (8 October 1843) the Quorum met at Joseph's home. Harriet Adams, James Adams's widow (he had died in August); Elizabeth Ann Whitney, wife of Newell k.; Clarissa Smith, John Smith's wife; and Lucy Mack Smith, widow to Joseph Smith, Sr., and mother of the Prophet, were received into the Quorum [of Anointed]. They then witnessed the conferral of the fulness of the priesthood ordinances upon Hyrum and Mary Fielding Smith [that is of anointing them a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]. (Ibid., 8 October 1843.)

In like manner, meetings were held through October. New members of the Quorum were added while senior members of the Quorum received the fulness of the priesthood [that is of anointing them a Kings and Queens, Priests and Priestesses]. For example, on 22 October 1843, while twenty-four witnessed, "William Marks and wife were anointed [a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]."; and on 27 October 1843, "Bishop Whitney and wife were anointed [a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]." (Ibid., 22 and 27 October 1843).

The Twelve Apostles and the Quorum [of Anointed]:

When the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles returned to Nauvoo in late October 1843, following their summer missions, preparations began for the remainder of the Twelve then residing in Nauvoo to receive their endowment. Since late spring the apostles had been on missions in the East "collecting means to build the Temple and the Nauvoo House," (Ibid, 28 May 1843.), and Brigham Young and Heber C. Kimball had not met with the Quorum [of Anointed] since the eternal marriage meetings in May. However, when Brigham and Heber arrived in Nauvoo on 22 October 1843, less than two hour before the next of the regularly scheduled prayer meetings, they spent very little time at home resting or visiting with their families--for they left their homes and immediately went to the Quorum [of Anointed] meeting. Brigham put it matter-of-factly: "went in to counsel with the Brethern in the afternoon." (Brigham Young, Diary, 22 October 1843, Brigham Young Collection, Church Archives.) A little over a week later, these wives were rewarded for their patience. On Wednesday, 1 November 1843, the wives of the four apostles already members of the Quorum [of Anointed] received their admittance to the Quorum [of Anointed]. Brigham Young's wife, Mary Ann; Heber Kimball's wife, Vilate; Willard Richard's wife, Jennetta; and John Taylor's wife, Leonora, received their washings and anointings form Emma in the Mansion House. (Joseph Smith, Diary, and Brigham Young, Diary, both for 1 November 1843; Heber C. Kimball, 1840-45 Journal ["Book 91"], unnumbered p. 114, entry incorrectly dated January 1844; and Helen M. Whitney, Plural Marriage as Taught by the Prophet Joseph Smith, p. 14.) Willard Richards had prepared the room in Joseph's Brick Store for conferring endowments, but for some reason they met for only a prayer meeting in the Mansion. (Joseph Smith, Diary, 1 November 1843.) The following Sunday, however, Joseph, having tried of the inconvenience of administering the endowment in such small quarters, requested schoolmaster Mr. Cole to "find some other Room for his school,: "as the room [was] needed for councils." (Ibid., 5 November 1843.) So Willard Richards again prepared the store room as on the first and that evening the women received the endowment.

Two and one-half weeks later Brigham Young, President of the Quorum of the Twelve, was the first of the apostles to receive the fulness of the priesthood. The evening of 22 November 1843, at Joseph's "old house B[righam] Young was anointed [a King and a Priest unto the Most High God] and his wife [Mary, a Queen and a Priestess unto her husband]. (Ibid., 22 November 1843.) Brigham and Mary Ann received the ceremony under the hands of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. (George A. Smith, Address, 25 December 1874, The Millennial Star 37 (2 February 1875:66.) After it was over, Joseph charged Brigham "to take the quorum [of the Twelve] and anoint them king and priest to God. (Ibid.)

However, five members of the Twelve then in Nauvoo had not as yet received the first anointings. When Brigham received the anointing as king and priest, apostles George A. Smith and Wilford Woodruff, who were the last of the members of the Twelve then residing in Nauvoo who had not previously been initiated to the principles of eternal and plural marriage, were only recent converts to these principles. George A. Smith, who arrived with Brigham and Heber on 22 October, was met at the boat landing by Hyrum Smith. On their way to his home, Apostle Smith later recalled, Hyrum "recited the most of the Revelation of Patriarchal Marriage, and invited me to his home to receive further instructions." (George A. Smith to Joseph Smith III, 9 October 1869; and Joseph Smith, Diary, 22 October 1843.) The following day, George A. Smith met with the Prophet who "gave [him] additional views on the subject, and spoke of the results of the same in the eternal worlds." (Joseph Smith, Diary, 23 October 1843.) Hyrum Smith was equally punctual in teaching these things to Wilford Woodruff upon his arrival in Nauvoo on 4 November 1843. Wilford had to attend to some unpleasant business regarding his unfinished home the first week after arriving. (Wilford Woodruff, Journal, 4-10 November 1843.) However, on 11 November 1843, he and his wife Phoebe spent the evening in conversation at John Taylor's home. Apostle Woodruff recorded in his daily diary that "Br Hiram Smith was...with us & presented som [sic] ideas of much interest to me concerning Baptism for the dead, the resurrection redemption & exaltation in the new & everlasting covenant that reacheth into the eternal world. He sealed the marriage covenants between me & my wife Phebe W Carter for time & eternity & gave us the principle of it which was interesting to us. (Ibid., 11 November 1843.) Thus the final preparations had been made. At the first meeting of the Quorum after Brigham Young received the fulness of the priesthood, apostles Parley P. Pratt, Orson Hyde, Wilford Woodruff and George A. Smith received their "anointing preparatory for further Blessings." Ibid., 2 December 1843.) Three weeks later, 23 December 1843, Orson Pratt also received his endowment. (Ibid., 23 December 1843; and both the Joseph Smith, Diary, and the Willard Richards, Diary, for the same date.) By this time nine members of the Quorum of the Twelve had received the endowment ordinances. 2 December 1843

December 2.-- Met in the Assembly Room with Joseph, Hyrum and the twelve, when the ordinances of endowment were administered to Elders Orson Hyde, Parley P. Pratt, W. Woodruff, Geo. A Smith and Orson Spencer. We received instructions on the Priesthood from Joseph. (Manuscript History of Brigham young by Watson p. 154-159.)

Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Willard Richards, and George Miller and others Anointed Kings and Priest to God by Joseph Smith--Also the anointing of Kings and Priests is the Patriarchal Priesthood:

Joseph washed and anointed [us] as Kings and Priests to God, and over the House of Israel,... [because] he was commanded of God, [to do so]... and [thereby] conferred on us Patriarchal Priesthood. Brigham's description of the nature of the ordinances and ceremonies at Nauvoo:

[W]hen we got our washings and anointings under the hands of the Prophet Joseph at Nauvoo we had only one room to work in with the exception of a little side room or office. [In this side office] we were washed and anointed, and had our garments placed upon us and [we] received our New Name.... [After this] we went into the large room... Joseph divided up the room the best that he could. [He] hung the veil... Then as we passed along from one department to another, [he] gav[e] us [the] signs, tokens, penalties with the Key words. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 28; L. John Nuttal, Diary, 7 February

Joseph Smith says to Brigham about the Ordinances:

...this is not arranged right, but, we have done the best we could under the circumstances in which we are placed, and I wish all these ceremonies.... [We preformed the ordinances under Joseph's supervision numerous times] and each time I got some thing more so that when we went through the Temple at Nauvoo I understood and knew how to place them there. We had our ceremonies pretty correct. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 28; L. We Must Have All the Ordinances To Reign in the Kingdoms:

The question is frequently asked, "Can we not be saved without going through with all these ordinances?" I would answer, No, not the fulness of salvation. Jesus said, There are many mansions in my Father's house, and I will go and prepare a place for you. House here named should have been translated kingdom; and any person who is exalted to the highest mansion has to abide a celestial law, and the whole law too. (Teachings, p. 331.)

21 January 1844--Sunday

Sealing the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to the fathers:

The Sealing Power of the Priesthood:

The Sending of Elijah:

What shall I talk about today? I know what Brother Cahoon wants me to speak about. He wants me to speak about the coming of Elijah in the last days. I can see it in his eye. I will speak upon that subject then. The Bible says, "I will send you Elijah the Prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord; and he shall turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to the fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse."

Now, the word turn here should be translated bind, or seal. But what is the object of this important mission? or how is it to be fulfilled? The keys are to be delivered, the spirit of Elijah is to come, the Gospel to be established, the Saints of God gathered, Zion built up, and the Saints to come up as saviors on Mount Zion.

But how are they to become saviors on Mount Zion? By building their Temples, erection their baptismal fonts, and going forth and receiving all the ordinances, baptism, confirmations, washings, anointings, ordinations and sealing powers upon their heads, in behalf of all their progenitors who are dead, and redeem them that they can come forth in the first resurrection and be exalted to thrones of glory with them, and herein is the chain that binds the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers, which fulfills the mission of Elijah. And I would to God that this temple was now done, that we might go into it, and go to work and improve our time, and make use of the seals while they are on earth. (D. H. C., Vol. 6: 183-184; Teachings, p. 330.)

[An address given by Joseph Smith] 21 January 1844 (Sunday). Front of Robert D. Foster's Hotel. [Recorded in Wilford Woodruff Journal]:

A large assembly of Saints met at the Temple and herd an interesting discours (sic) deliverd (sic) by President Joseph Smith. The following is a synopsis of his discourse upon the occasion

When I consider the surrounding Circumstances in which I am placed this day, standing in the open air with week lungs & somewhat out of health I feel that I must have prayers & faith of my brethren that God may strengthen me & pour out his special blessings upon me if you get much from me this day. Their are many people assembled here to day & throughout this City & from various parts of the world who say that they have received to a certainty a portion of knowledge from God by revelation in the way that he has ordained & pointed out I shall take the broad ground then that if we have or Can receive a portion of knowledge from God by immediate revelation by the same source we can receive all knowledge. What shall I talk about today I know what Br Cahoon wants me to speak about, he wants me to speak about the Coming of Elijah in the last days I Can see it in his eye, I will speak upon that subject then, The Bible says "I will send you Elijah before the great & dreadful day of the Lord Come that he shall turn the hearts of the fathers to the Children & the hearts of the Children to their fathers lest I Come & smite the whole earth with a curse," Now the word turn here should be translated (bind or seal) But what is the object of this important mission or how is it to be fulfilled, The keys are to be delivered the spirit of Elijah is to Come, The gospel to be esstablished (sic) the Saints of God gathered Zion built up, & the Saints to Come up as Saviors on mount Zion but how are they to become Saviors on Mount Zion by building their temples erecting their Baptismal fonts & going forth & receiving all the ordinances, Baptisms, Confirmations, washings anointings ordinations & sealing powers upon our heads in behalf of all our Progenitors who are dead & redeem them that they may come forth in the first resurrection & be exalted to thrones of glory with us, & here in is the chain that binds the hearts of the fathers to the Children, & the Children to the Fathers which fulfills the mission of Elijah & I would to God that this temple was now done that we might go into it & go to work & improve our time & make use of the seals while they are on earth the Saints have none to much time to save & redeem their dead, & gather together their living relatives that they may be saved also, before the earth will be smitten & the Consumption decreed falls upon the world & I would advise all the Saints to go to with their might & gather together all their living relatives to this place that they may be sealed & saved that they may be prepared against the day that the destroying angels goes forth & if the whole Church should go to with all their might to save their dead seal their posterity & gather their living friends & spend none of their time in behalf of the world they would hardly get through before night would Come when no man Could work & my ownly (sic) trouble at the present time is concerning ourselves that the Saints will be divided & broken up & scattered before we get our Salvation Secure for thei[r] is so many fools in the world for the devil to operate upon it gives him the advantage often times, the question is frequently asked Can we not be saved without going through with all thes ordinances &c I would answer No not the fulness of Salvation, Jesus said there was many mansions in his fathers house & he would go & prepare a place for them. House here named should have been translated (Kingdom) & any person who is exalted to the highest mansion has to abide a Celestial law & the whole law to[o], But their has been a great difficulty in getting anything into the heads of this generation it has been like splitting hemlock knots with a Corn doger (sic) for a wedge & a pumpkin for a beetle, Even the Saints are slow to understand I have tried for a number of years to get the minds of the Saints prepared to receive the things of God, but we frequently see some of them after suffering all they have for the work of God will fly to peaces (sic) like glass as soon as anything Comes that is Contrary to their traditions, they Cannot stand the fire at all, How many will be able to abide a Celestial law & go through & receive their exhaltation (sic) I am unable to say but many are Called & few are Chosen. (TWOJS, p. 317-319.)

[What great things do we learn form this discourse concerning the mission of Elijah:

1. Elijah is the sealing power 2. We [men and women are to be] Saviors on mount Zion,
3. Going the temple and receiving all ordinances for themselves and their dead.
4. We are to go through all these ordinances for all our dead. This can be done because of the natural reserves built in the ordinances which is to say that we cannot deny the holy Ghost and shed innocent blood. Because of these natural reserves and the other which is the second seal or signature of approval placed on all ordinances by the Holy Ghost to be totally approved we can receive these ordinances for all our dead without exception-forgiving all and letting God forgive who he will forgive-but as for us we will forgive all.

5. Receiving all ordinances, Baptisms, Confirmations, Washings anointings ordinations & Sealing powers upon our heads in behalf of all our progenitors who are dead & redeem them that they may come forth in the first resurrection & be exalted to thrones of Glory with us

a. All ordinances-the previous ordinances are all mentioned in the plural meaning more than one ie, anointings & ordinations when a dead mans work is done for him he is first ordained to the priesthood and to the office of Elder... He is anointed to become hereafter a king and priest -- In the higher ordinances of the temple which we must also receive for him if he is to have power to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection -he is ordained and anointed a priest and a king and his wife by him a queen and priestesses. Every one of these Confirmations Baptisms and washings are all plural because they are in fact plural in the temple for each individual.

6. We cannot come forth in the first resurrecting as promised to all saints in their marriage sealing-with thrones kingdoms principalities etc... D&C 132:19--Can there be a kingdom without a king and a queen -- No I Say there cannot-- and Joseph Smith knew this he said "The question is frequently asked Can we not b saved without going through with all these ordinances &c I would answer No not the fulness of Salvation... We must receive all the ordinances of the temple for ourselves and our dead to be exalted

7. I would to God that this temple was now done that we might go into it & go to work & improve our time & make use of the seals while they are on earth the Saints have none to much time to save & redeem their dead, & gather together their living relatives that they may be saved also, before the earth will be smitten & the Consumption decreed falls upon the world & I would advise all the Saints to go to with their might & gather together all their living relatives to this place that they may be sealed & saved that they may be prepared against the day that the destroying angels goes forth.
We must give all our dead and selves that we can the fulness of all the ordinances and blessings contained in the temple before the destroying angels are set free or 7th seal is opened... 144000 and Rev. 7 innumerable company sealed to have power of the destroying angels..... the Saints to Come up as Saviors on mount Zion but how are they to become Saviors on Mount Zion by building their temples erecting their Baptismal fonts & going forth & receiving all the ordinances, Baptisms, Confirmations, washings anointings ordinations & sealing powers upon our heads in behalf of all our Progenitors [innumerable company of saints 144,000 to seal up and call to the Church of the Firstborn.] who are dead & redeem them that they may come forth in the first resurrection & be exalted to thrones of glory with us, & here in is the chain that binds the hearts of the fathers to the Children, & the Children to the Fathers which fulfills the mission of Elijah & I would to God that this temple was now done that we might go into it & go to work.

Parley P. Pratt Received His Second Anointing:

Joseph Smith:

Met with the Twelve in the assembly room concerning the Oregon and California Exploring Expedition; Hyrum and Sidney present. I told them I wanted an exploration of all that mountain country. Perhaps it would be best to go direct to Santa Fe. "Send twenty-five men: let them preach the Gospel wherever they go. Let that man go that can raise $500, a good horse and mule, a double barrel gun, one barrel rifle, and the other smooth bore, a saddle and bridle, a pair of revolving pistols, bowie-knife, and a good sabre. Appoint a leader, and let them beat up for volunteers. I want every man that goes to be a king and a priest. When he gets on the mountains he may want to talk with his God; when with the savage nations have power to govern, &c. If we don't get volunteers, wait till after the election." (D.H.C. 6:224.)

Hyrum Smith Speaking:

...I think this people is abundantly able to build this temple, and much depends upon it for our endowments and sealing powers; and many blessings depend upon it. (D.H.C. 6:237.)

Quoting Hyrum Smith, Wandle Mace wrote in his personal Journal:

While urging the completion of the of the Temple, Hyrum Smith said:

Much depends upon it, for our endowments and sealing powers, and many blessings depend upon it.

 [Also:] He told us to pray "that you may live to go into this Temple and be sealed in your foreheads,"----putting his hand upon his forehead----for said he, "It is your right to live until you are three score years and ten." (Journal of Wandle Mace, BYU, Special Collections pp. 94, 129.)

Fathers to seal their children:

Again the doctrine or sealing power of Elijah is as follows if you have power to seal on earth & in heaven then we should be Crafty, the first thing you do go & seal on earth your sons & daughters unto yourself, & yourself unto your fathers in eternal glory.... (TWOJS, p. 331.)

10 March 1844 (The Prophet's Discourse on the Missions of Elias, Elijah and Messiah)

Discourse of the Prophet--Elias, Elijah, Messiah:

There is a difference between the spirit and office of Elias and Elijah. It is the spirit of Elias I wish first to speak of; and in order to come at the subject, I will bring some of the testimony from the Scripture and give my own.

In the first place, suffice it to say, I went into the woods to inquire of the Lord, by prayer, His will concerning me, and I saw an angel, and he laid his hands upon my head, and ordained me to a Priest after the order of Aaron, and to hold the keys of this Priesthood, which office was to preach repentance and baptism for the remission of sins, and also to baptize. But I was informed that this office did not extend to the laying on of hands for the giving of the Holy Ghost; that that office was a greater work, and was to be given afterward; but that my ordination was a preparatory work, or a going before, which was the spirit of Elias; for the spirit of Elias was a going before to prepare the way for the greater, which was the case with John the Baptist. He came crying through the wilderness, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight." And they were informed, if they could receive it, it was the spirit of Elias; and John was very particular to tell the people, he was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light.

He told the people that his mission was to preach repentance and baptize with fire and the Holy Ghost.

If he had been an imposter, he might have gone to work beyond, and undertook to have performed ordinances which did not belong to that office and calling, under the spirit of Elias. (D. H. C., 6:249-246; Teachings, p. 335)

10 March 1844 (The Prophet's Discourse on the Missions of Elias, Elijah and Messiah Continued)

Mission of Elias to Prepare the Way: The spirit of Elias is to prepare the way for a greater revelation of God, which is the Priesthood of Elias, or the Priesthood that Aaron was ordained unto. And when God sends a man into the world to prepare for a greater work, holding the keys of the power of Elias, it was called the doctrine of Elias, even from the early ages of the world.

John's mission was limited to preaching and baptizing: but what he did was legal; and when Jesus Christ came to any of John's disciples, He baptized them with fire and the Holy Ghost.

We find the apostles endowed with greater power than John: their office was more under the spirit and power of Elijah than Elias.

In the case of Philip when he went down to Samaria, when he was under the spirit of Elias, he baptized both men and women. When Peter and John heard of it. they went down and laid hands upon them, and they received the Holy Ghost. This shows the distinction between the two powers.

When Paul came to certain disciples, he asked if they had received the Holy Ghost? The said, No. Who baptized you, then? We were baptized unto John's baptism. No, you were not baptized unto John's baptism, or you would have been baptized by John. And so Paul went and baptized them, for he knew what the true doctrine was, and he knew that John had not baptized them. And these principles are strange to me, that men who have read the Scriptures of the New Testament are so fare from it.

What I want to impress upon your minds is the difference of power in the different parts of the Priesthood, so that when any man comes among you, saying, "I have the spirit of Elias,: you can know whether he be true of false; for any man that comes, having the spirit and power of Elias, he will not transcend his bounds.

John did not transcend his bounds, but faithfully performed that part belonging to his office; and every position of the great building should be prepared right and assigned to its proper place; and it is necessary to know who holds the keys of power, and who does not, or we may be likely to be deceived.

That person who holds the keys of Elias hath a preparatory work. But if I spend much more time in conversing about the spirit of Elias, I shall not have time to do justice to the spirit and power of Elijah.

This is the Elias spoken of in the last days, and here is the rock upon which many split, thinking the time was past in the days of John and Christ, and no more to be. But the spirit of Elias was revealed to me, and I know it is true; therefore I speak with boldness, for I know verily my doctrine is true. (D. H. C., Vol.

Mission of Elijah:

Now for Elijah. The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is, that ye have power to hold the key of the revelation, ordinances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchisedeck Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God, even unto the turning of the hearts of the fathers unto the children, and the hearts of the children unto the fathers, even those who are in heaven.

Malachi says, "I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord: and he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse."

Now, what I am after is the knowledge of God, and I take my own course to obtain it. What are we to understand by this in the last days?

In the days of Noah, God destroyed the world by a flood, and He has promised to destroy it by fire in the last days: but before it should take place, Elijah should first come and turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, &c.

Now comes the point. What is the office and work of Elijah? It is one of the greatest and most important subjects that God has revealed. He should send Elijah to seal the children to the fathers, and the fathers to the children. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:251; Teachings, p. 337.)

For the Living and the Dead:

Now was this merely confined to the living, to settle difficulties with families on earth? By no means. It was a far greater work. Elijah! what would you do if you were here? Would you confine your work to the living alone? No; I would refer you to the Scriptures, when the subject is manifest: that is, without us, they could not be made perfect, nor we without them; the fathers without the children, nor the children without the fathers.

I wish you to understand this subject, for it is important; and if you will receive it, this is the spirit of Elijah, that we redeem our dead, and connect ourselves with our fathers which are in heaven, and seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection; and here we want the power of Elijah to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven. This is the power of Elijah and the keys of the kingdom of Jehovah. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:251–252; Teachings, p. 337–338.)

Sealing on Earth and In Heaven:

Let us suppose a case. Suppose the great God who dwells in heaven should reveal Himself to Father Cutler here, by the opening heavens, and tell him, "I offer up a decree that whatsoever you seal on earth with your decree, I will seal it in heaven; you have the power then; with your decree, I will seal it in heaven; you have the power then; can it be taken off? No. Then what you seal on earth, by the keys of Elijah, is sealed in heaven; and this is the power of Elijah, and this is the difference between the spirit and power of Elias and Elijah; for while the spirit of Elias is a forerunner, the power of Elijah is sufficient to make our calling and election sure; and the same doctrine, where we are exhorted to go on to perfection, not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, &c.

We cannot be perfect without the fathers, &c. We must have revelation from them, and we can see that the doctrine of revelation far transcends the doctrine of no revelation; for one truth revealed from heaven is worth all the sectarian notions in existence.

This spirit of Elijah was manifest in the days of the apostles, in delivering certain ones to the buffetings of Satan, that they might be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. They were sealed by the spirit of Elijah unto the damnation of hell until the day of the Lord, or revelation of Jesus Christ.

Here is the doctrine of election that the world has quarreled so much about; but they do not know anything about it. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:252; Teachings, p. 338.)

Falling from Grace:

The doctrine that the Presbyterians and Methodists have quarreled so much about--once in grace, always in grace, or falling away from road between them both, for while the Presbyterian says "once in grace, you cannot fall;" the Methodist says: "You can have grace today, fall from it to-morrow, next day have grace again; and so follow on, changing continually." But the doctrine of the Scriptures and the spirit of Elijah would show then both false, and take a road between them both; for, according to the Scripture, if men have received the good word of God, and tasted of the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, it is impossible to renew them again, seeing they have crucified the Son of God afresh, and put Him to an open shame; so there is a possibility of falling away; you could not be renewed again, and the power of Elijah cannot seal against this sin, for this is a reserve made in the seals and power of the Priesthood.

I will make every doctrine plain that I present, and it shall stand upon a firm basis, and I am at eh defiance of the world, for I will take shelter under the broad cover of the wings of the work in which I am engaged. It matters not to me if all hell boils over; I regard it only as I would the crackling of the thorns under a pot. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:252-253; Teachings, p. 338-339.)

10 March 1844 (The Prophet's Discourse on the Missions of Elias, Elijah and Messiah Continued) Murderers:

A murderer, for instance, one that sheds innocent blood, cannot have forgiveness. David sought repentance at the hand of God carefully with tears, for the murder of Uriah; but he could only get it through hell: he got a promise that his soul should not be left in hell.

Although David was a king, he never did obtain the spirit and power of Elijah and the fulness of the Priesthood; and the Priesthood that he received, and the throne and kingdom of David is to be taken from him and given to another by the name of David in the last days, raised up out of his linage.

Peter referred to the same subject on the day of Pentecost, but the multitude did not get the endowment that Peter had; but several days after, the people asked "what shall we do?" Peter says, "I would ye had done it ignorantly," speaking of crucifying the Lord, &c. He did not say to them, "repent and be baptized, for the remission of your sins;" but he said, "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins my be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord." (Acts iii. 19.)

This is the case with murders. They could not be baptized for the remission of sins for they had shed innocent blood. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:253; Teachings, p. 339.)

The Doctrine or Sealing Power of Elijah:

Again: The doctrine or sealing power of Elijah is as follows:--If you have power to seal on earth and in heaven, then we should be wise. The first thing you do, go and seal on earth your sons and daughters unto yourself, and yourself unto your fathers in eternal glory, and go ahead, and not go back, but use a little wisdom, and seal all you can, and when you get to heaven tell your Father that what you seal on earth should be sealed in heaven, according to his promise. I will walk through the gate of heaven and claim what I seal, and those that follow me and my counsel. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:253; Teachings, p. 340.)

Beware, O earth, How you Fight against the Saints of God:

The Lord once told me that what I asked for I should have. I have bee afraid to ask God to kill my enemies, lest some of them should, peradventure, repent.

I asked a sort time since for the Lord to deliver me out of the hands of the Governor of Missouri, and if it needs must be to accomplish it, to take him away; and the next news that came pouring down from there was, that Governor Reynolds had shot himself. And I would now say, "Beware, O earth, how you fight against the Saints of God and shed innocent blood; for in the days of Elijah, his enemies came upon him, and fire was called down from heaven and destroyed them. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:254; Teachings, p. 340.)

Mission of Elias, Elijah, and Messiah:

The spirit of Elias is first, Elijah second, and Messiah last. Elias is a forerunner to prepare the way, and the spirit and power of Elijah is to come after, holding the keys of power, building the Temple to the capstone, placing the seals of the Melchisedec Priesthood upon the house of Israel, and making all things ready; then Messiah comes to His Temple, which is last of all.

Messiah is above the spirit and power of Elijah, for He made the world, and was that spiritual rock unto Moses in the wilderness. Elijah was to come and prepare the way and build up the kingdom before the coming of the great day of the Lord, although the spirit of Elias might begin it. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:254; Teachings, p. 340.)

The Coming of the Lord:

I have asked of the Lord concerning His coming; and while asking the Lord, He gave a sign and said, "In the days of Noah I set a bow in the heavens as a sign and token that in any year that the bow should be seen the Lord would not come; but there should be seed time and harvest during that year: but whenever you see the bow withdrawn, it shall be a token that there shall be famine, pestilence, and great distress among the nations, and that the coming of the Messiah is not far distant.

But I will take the responsibility upon myself to prophesy in the name of the Lord, that Christ will not come this year, as Father Miller has prophesied, for we have seen the bow; and I also prophesy, in the name of the Lord, that Christ will not come in forty years; nd if God ever spoke by my mouth, He will not come in that length of time. Brethren, when you go home, write this down, that it may be remembered.

Jesus Christ never did reveal to any man the precise time that He would come. God and read the Scriptures, and you cannot find anything that specifies that exact hour He would come; and all that say so are false teachers.

There are some important things concerning the office of the Messiah in organization of the world, which I will speak of hereafter, May God Almighty bless you and pour out His Spirit upon you, is the prayer of your unworthy servant. Amen. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:254; Teachings, p. 340-341.)

Now for Elijah, the spirit power & calling of Elijah is that ye have power to hold the keys of the revelations ordinances, oricles (sic) powers & endowments of the fulness of the Melchezedek Priesthood & of the Kingdom of God on the earth & to receive, obtain & perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God even unto the sealing of the hearts of the fathers unto the children & the hearts of the children unto the fathers even those who are in heaven. Malachi says I will send Elijah before the great and dreadful day of the Lord come & He shall turn the hearts of the Fathers to the Children and the hearts of the Children to the Fathers lest I come & smite the earth with a Curse, Now what I am after is the knowledge of God & I take my own Course to obtain it, what are we to understand by this in the last days, in the days of Noah God destroyed the world by a flood & has promised to destroy it by fire in the last days but before it took place Elijah should first come & turn the hearts of the Fathers to the Children &c. now comes the point what is this office & work of Elijah, it is one of the greatest & most important subjects that God has revealed, He should send Elijah to seal the children to the fathers & fathers to the Children, Now was this merely confined to the living to settle difficulties with families on earth, by no means, it was a far greater work Elijah what would you do if you was here would you confine you work to the living alone. No I would refer you to the scriptures whare (sic) the subject is manifest, i.e, without us they could not be made perfect, nor we without them, the fathers without the children nor the children without the fathers. [This phrase we cannot be made perfect without them is best illustrated in the temple endowment when receiving the keys of each kingdom-the room represents the world and when the keys are given for each kingdom to eventually pass by the angles and be a god-we are taught that The Father is no respecter of persons the first who receive keys or fulness will be last as they have to wait until all have received the fulness so that all can go on. So even though we have received the fulness of the Priesthood and all its ordinances and have the crowning of being Kings and Priests etc. We cannot be perfected and the Lord will not honor it until all have had the same opportunity-for we are all joint-heirs with Christ-that means we are made equal with God as Joint-heirs--All his children who want these blessings receive them together or not at all.....And thus they cannot be perfected without us and we without them-just as in the rooms of the temple in the endowment-those who receive the keys first cannot go on and be perfected until all in the room are perfected and because they are joint-heirs they all move on and receive the blessings of the Celestial Kingdom together jointly....] I wish you to understand this subject for it is important & if you will receive it this is the spirit of Elijah that we redeem our dead & connect ourselves with our fathers which are in heaven & seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection & here we want the power of elijah to seal those who dwell on earth to those which dwell in heaven this is the power of Elijah & the keys of the Kingdom of Jehovah. Let us suppose a case; suppose the great God who dwells in heaven should reveal himself to Father Cutler here by the opening heavens and tell him I offer up a decree that whatsoever you seal on earth with your decree I will seal it in heaven, you have power then, can it be taken of[f] No, Then what you seal on earth by the Keys of Elijah is sealed in heaven, & this is the power of Elijah, & this is the to make our calling & Election sure, & the same doctrine whare we are exhorted to go on unto perfection not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works but of laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead &c. we cannot be perfect without the fathers...

...the spirit & power of Elijah is to come after holding the keys of power building the Temple to the Cap stone, placing the seals of the Melchezedeck priesthood up on the house of Israel & making all things ready [preparing all with the Fulness of the Priesthood and all its ordinances found in the holy Temple of God with power to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection] then Messiah (sic) comes to his Temple [or the terrestrial world] which is the last of all [or the Cap Stone]. Messiah is above the spirit & power of Elijah, for he made the world & was that spiritual rock unto moses in the wilderness. Elijah was to come & prepare the way & build up the kingdom before the coming of the great day of the Lord

[by sealing all those with the fulness of the priesthood and all its ordinances then Christ will come for a thousand years and when we are all perfected he will lead us into the Celestial Kingdom as joint-heirs with him and we will be perfected together and receive all the blessings of the Father and be equal with him jointly.....] (TWOJS, p. 329-332.)

The spirit power & calling of Elijah is that ye have power to hold the keys of the revelations ordinances, oricles (sic) powers & endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood & of the Kingdom of God on the Earth to [1] receive, [2] obtain & [3] perform all the ordinances belonging to the Kingdom of God even unto the sealing of the hearts of the hearts [sic] fathers unto the children & the hearts of the children unto the fathers even those who are in heaven. (Wilford Woodruff, 10 Mar. 1844, Journal; TWOJS, p. 329) [Here we see that we not only need to receive these ordinances we need to preform them. See Abraham 1:2 "I sought for the blessings of the fathers, and the right whereunto I should be ordained to administer the same..."]

This power of Elijah is to that of Elias what in the architecture of the Temple of God those who seal or cement the Stone to their places are to those who cut or hew the stones the one preparing the way for the other to accomplish the work By this we are sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise ie Elijah [D&C 131:5 The more sure word of prophecy means a man's knowing that he is sealed up unto eternal life, by [1] revelation [the seal of the Holy Ghost] and [2] the spirit of prophecy, through the power of the Holy Priesthood [the seal and power of Elijah].

To obtain this sealing is to make our calling and election sure which we ought to give all diligence to accomplish. [This means receiving the fulness of the Priesthood and all its ordinances to be named a King and Queen and Priest and Priestess and have our exaltation sealed upon us unconditionally by the power of the Priesthood which is the Key which Elijah was the Custodian of, and we are called up, elected and our calling and election is made sure or sealed upon us by revelation of the priesthood that what soever you bind on earth shall be sealed in heaven then [2] a second ratifying approval must be sealed upon us to be valid. ie. except a man be baptized by [1] water (the ordinance of the Priesthood seal) and of [2] the spirit [the ratifying stamp of approval-by the mouth of two or more witness shall all my words be established-we now have the seal or witness of two members of the Godhead then when the Father stretches forth his hand and sees both the seals of the other members of the Godhead he will put his crowning seal upon it and say let him come into my kingdom and receive all that I have with the Church of the Firstborn... and it Elias who was the power to build the temple-Elijah which seals all the fulness of the priesthood upon us- to make our calling and election sure and seals upon us the power to come forth to meet christ in the morning of the first resurrection-Christ who puts the capstone on the temple and prepares us to meet the Father-and the Father that gives us all that he has with all of his other children in the Church of the Firstborn and we are made equal with him and given our own kingdoms and dominions and the Father and Christ shall be King of Kings and God of Gods and the Holy Ghost shall also seal all ordinances contacts etc., D&C 132:7.] (TWOJS, p. 335.)

A letter written at St. James, Michigan by George Miller, June 1855; referring to the organization of the Council of Fifty, 10 March 1844:

Brother Miller [Joseph said], I perceive the Spirit of God is in the pineries as well as here, and we will call together some of our wise men and proceed to set up the kingdom of God by organizing some of its officers. And from day to day he called some of the brethren about him, organizing them as princes in the Kingdom of God, to preside over the chief cities of the Nation, until the number of fifty-three were called. IN THIS COUNCIL WE ORDAINED JOSEPH SMITH AS KING ON EARTH, and in order to install him as one earthly King it was agreed upon that we would run Joseph Smith for president of the United States and Sidney Rigdon for Vice-president. God an Exalted Man:

I will go back to the beginning before the world was, to show what kind of a being God is. What sort of a being was God in the beginning? Open your ears and hear, all ye ends of the earth, for I am going to prove it to you by the Bible, and to tell you the designs of God in relation to the human race, and why He interferes with the affairs of man.

God himself, was once as we are now, and is an exalted man, and sits enthroned in yonder heavens! That is the great secret. If the veil were rent today, and the great God who holds this world in its orbit, and who upholds all worlds and all things by His Power, was to make himself visible,--I say, if you were to see him today, you would see him like a man in form--like yourselves in all the person, image, and very form as a man; for Adam was created in the very fashion, image and likeness of God, and received instruction from, and walked, talked and conversed with Him, as one man talks and communes with another.

In order to understand the subject of the dead, for consolation of those who morn for the loss of their friends, it is necessary we should understand the character and being of God and how He came to be so; for I am going to tell you how God came to be God. We have imagined and supposed that God was God from all eternity. I will refute that Idea, and take away the veil, so that you may see.

These are incomprehensible ideas to some, but they are simple. It is the first principle of the gospel to know for a certainty the character of God, and to know that we may converse with Him as one man converses with another, and that He was once a man like us; yea, that God himself, the Father of us all, dwelt on an earth, the same as Jesus Christ Himself did; and I will show it from the Bible. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:305, Teachings, p 345-346.)

Eternal Life to Know God and Jesus Christ:

I wish I was in a suitable place to tell it, and that I had the trump of an archangel, so that I could tell the story in such a manner that persecution would cease forever. What did Jesus sat? (Mark it, Elder Rigdon!) The scriptures inform us that Jesus said, as the Father hath power in himself, even so hath the Son power--to do what? Why, what the Father did. The answer is obvious--in a manner to lay down his body and take it up again. Jesus, what are you going to do? To lay down my life as my Father did, and take it up again. Do you believe it? If you do not believe it you do not believe the Bible. The scriptures say it, and I defy all the learning and wisdom and all the combined powers of the earth and hell together to refute it. Here, then, is eternal life--to know the only wise and true God; and you have got to learn how to be gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to God, the same as all gods have done before you, namely, by going from one small degree to another, and from a small capacity to a great one; from grace to grace, from exaltation to exaltation, until you attain to the resurrection of the dead, and are able to dwell in everlasting burnings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power. And I want you to know that God, in the last days, while certain individuals are proclaiming His name, is not trifling with you or me. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:305-306; Teachings, p. 346-347.)

[Note: Here we see the Following:

1. Eternal life is to know the only wise God and Jesus whom he sent, and
2. In order to know God our Heavenly Father we must be like him. We must:
    a. learn how to be gods ourselves, and
    b. [learn how] to be kings and priests to God, and
    c. Go from one small degree to another, until
3. We attain to the resurrection of the dead, and are able to dwell in everlasting burnings....

In other words we must receive the fulness of the Priesthood before we can be resurrected to dwell in everlasting burnings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power.]

These are the first principles of consolation. How consoling to the mourners when they are called to part with a husband, wife, father, mother, child, or dear relative, to know that, although the earthly tabernacle is laid down and dissolved, they shall rise again to dwell in everlasting burnings in immortal glory, not to sorrow, suffer, or die any more, but they shall be heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ. What is it? To inherit the same power, the same glory the same exaltation, until you arrive at the station of a god, and ascend the throne of eternal power, the same as those who have gone before. What did Jesus Do? Why, I do the things I saw my Father do when worlds came rolling into existence. My Father worked out His kingdom with fear and trembling, and I must do the same; and when I get my kingdom, I shall present it to My Father, so that He may obtain kingdom upon kingdom, and it will exalt Him in glory. He will then take a higher exaltation, and I will take His place, and thereby become exalted myself. So that Jesus treads in the tracks of His Father, and inherits what God did before; and God is thus glorified and exalted in the salvation and exaltation of all His children. It is plain beyond disputation, and you thus learn some of the first principles of the gospel, about which so much hath been said.

When you climb up a ladder, you must begin at the bottom, and ascend step by step, until you arrive at the top; and so it is with the principles of the gospel--you must begin with the first, and go on until you learn all the principles of exaltation. But it will be a great while after you have passed through the veil before you will have learned them. It is not all to be comprehended in this world; it will be a great work to learn our salvation and exaltation even beyond the grave. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:306-307; Teachings, p. 347-348.)

Our Greatest Responsibility:

What promises are made in relation to the subject of the salvation of the dead? and what kind of characters are those who can be saved, although their bodies are moldering and decaying in the grave? When His commandments teach us, it is in view of eternity; for we are looked upon by God as though we were in eternity; God dwells in eternity, and does not view things as we do.

The greatest responsibility in this world that God has laid upon us is to seek after our dead. The apostle says, "They without us cannot be made perfect"; for it is necessary that the sealing power should be in our hands to seal our children and our dead for the fulness of the dispensation of times--a dispensation to meet the promises made by Jesus Christ before the foundation of the world for the salvation of man.

Now, I will speak of them. I will meet Paul half way. I say to you, Paul, you cannot be perfect without us. It is necessary that those who are going before and those who come after us should have salvation in common with us; and thus hath God made it obligatory upon man. Hence, God said, "I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord: he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to the fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse." (Malachi 4:5.) (D. H. C., Vol. 6 313; Teachings, p. 356.)

The Unpardonable Sin:

I have a declaration to make as to the provisions which God hath made to suit the conditions of man--made from the foundation of the world. What has Jesus said? All sins, and all blasphemies, and every transgression, except one, that man can be guilty of, may be forgiven; and there is a salvation for all men, either in this world or the world to come, who have not committed the unpardonable sin, there being a provision either in this world or the world of spirits. Hence God hath made a provision that every spirit in the eternal world can be ferreted out and saved unless he has committed the unpardonable sin which cannot be remitted to him either in this world or the world of spirits. God has wrought out a salvation for all men, unless they have committed a certain sin; and every man who has a friend in the eternal world can save him, unless he has committed the unpardonable sin. And so you can see how far you can be a savior. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:313-314, Teachings, p. 356-357.)

The Forgiveness of Sins:

All sins shall be forgiven, except the sin against the Holy Ghost; for Jesus will save all except the sons of perdition. What must a man do to commit the unpardonable sin? He must receive the Holy Ghost, have the heavens opened unto him, and know God, and then sin against him. After a man has sinned against the Holy Ghost, there is no repentance for him. He has got to say that the sun does not shine while he sees it; he has got to deny Jesus Christ when the heavens have been opened unto him, and to deny the plan of salvation with his eyes open to the truth of it; and from that time he begins to be an enemy. This is the case with many apostates of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

When a man begins to be an enemy to this work, he hunts me, he seeks to kill me, and never ceases to thirst for my blood. He gets the spirit of the devil--the same spirit that they had who crucified the Lord of Life--the same spirit that sins against the Holy Ghost. You cannot save such persons; you cannot bring them to repentance; they make open war, like the devil, and awful is the consequence. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:314-315; Teachings, p. 358.)

You must Have Your Second Anointings To Reign on Celestial Thrones in the Eternities:

The declaration this morning is, that as soon as the Temple and baptismal font are prepared, we calculate to give the Elders of Israel their washings and anointings, and attend to those last and more impressive ordinances, without which we cannot obtain celestial thrones. But there must be a holy place prepared for that purpose. There was a proclamation made during the time that the foundation of the Temple was laid to the effect, and there are provisions made until the work is completed, so that men may receive their endowments and be made kings and priests unto the Most High God, having nothing to do with temporal things, but their whole time will be taken up with things pertaining to the house of God. [Isaiah 49, Rev. 7:15. Won't see sun night and day.] There must, however, be a place built expressly for that purpose, and for men to be baptized for their dead. It must be built in this central place; for every man who wishes to save his father, mother brothers, sisters and friends, must go through all the ordinances for each one of them separately, the same as for himself, from baptism to ordination, washings and anointings, and receive all the keys and powers of the Priesthood, the same as for himself.

I have received instructions from the Lord that from henceforth wherever the Elders of Israel shall build up churches and branches unto the Lord throughout the States, there shall be a stake of Zion. In the great cities, as Boston, New York, &c., there shall be stakes. It is a glorious proclamation, and I reserved it to the last, and designed it to be understood that this work shall commence after washings, anointings and endowments have been performed here.

The Lord has an established law in relation to the matter: there must be a particular spot for the salvation of our dead. I verily believe there will be a place, and hence men who want to save their dead can come and bring their families, do their work by being baptized and attending to the other ordinances for their dead, and then they may go back again and live and wait till they go to receive their reward. I shall leave my brethren to enlarge on this subject: it is my duty to teach the doctrine. I would teach it more fully--the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. God is not willing to let me gratify you; but I must teach the Elders, and they should teach you. God mad Aaron to be the mouth piece for the children of Israel, and He will make me be god to you in his stead, and the ELders to be mouth for me.... (D. H. C., Vol. 6 319-320; Teachings p. 362-363.)

Subject changed to Resurrection of the Dead. John 14:2d "in my Fathers Kingdom are many Kingdoms. I go to prepare a Kingdom for you, that the exaltation that I receive you may receive also."

The sectarians have no Charity for me but I have for them. I intend to send men to prison to preach to them, and tis is all on the Principle of entering in by Water and Spirit. Then you must not only be baptized for them but they must receive the Holy Ghost by Proxy and be sealed by it unto the day of their redemption as all the other ordinances by proxy.

All persons who have been Baptized and who have received the Holy Ghost may be baptized for their ancestors.... God has administrators in the eternal world to release those spirits from Prison the [fulness of the] ordinances being administered by proxy upon them the law is fulfilled. (D&C 132:7)

All resurrected bodies dwell in flaming fire for our God is a consuming fire

Salvation for Ourselves and Our Dead:

I am going on in my progress for eternal life. It is not only necessary that you should be baptized for your dead, but you will have to go through all the ordinances for them, the same as you have gone through, to save yourselves. There will be 144,000 Saviors on Mount Zion, and with them an innumerable host, that no man can number. Oh! I beseech you to forward, go forward and make your calling and your election sure; and if any man preach any other Gospel with that which I have preached, he shall be cursed; and some of you who now hear me, shall see it and know that I testify the truth concerning them. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:365; Teachings, p. 366-367.)

Endowments Given in Nauvoo by Joseph the Prophet:

Joseph Smith, before his death, was much exercised about the completion of the Temple in Nauvoo, and the administering of ordinances therein. In his anxiety and for fear he should not live to see the Temple completed, he prepared a place over what was known as the brick-store--which many of you who lived in Nauvoo will recollect--where to a chosen few he administered those ordinances that we now have today associated with Endowments, so that if anything should happen to him--which he evidently contemplated--he would feel that he had then fulfilled his mission, that he had conferred upon others all the keys given to him by the manifestations of the power of God. [Moroni 1st visit and Malachi-Elijah] (President John Taylor, J. D., Vol. 25:183; Temples of the Most High, N. B. Lundwall, ninth ed. 1954, p. 252.)

Sermon by the Prophet--The Christian Godhead--Plurality of Gods:
President Joseph Smith read the 3rd chapter of Revelation, and took for his text 1st chapter, 6th verse--"and hath made us kings and priests unto God and His Father: to Him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen.
It is altogether correct in the translation. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:473; Teachings, p. 369.)

Plurality of Gods:

I will preach on the plurality of Gods. I have selected this text for that express purpose. I wish to declare I have always and in all congregations when I have preached on the subject of the Deity, it has been the plurality of Gods. It has been preached by the Elders for fifteen years.
I have always declared God to be a distinct personage, Jesus Christ a separate and distinct personage from God the Father, and that the Holy Ghost was a distinct personage and a Spirit: and these three constitute three distinct personages and three Gods. If this is in accordance with the New Testament, lo and behold! we have three Gods anyhow, and they are plural; and who can contradict it?

Our text says, "And hath made us kings and priests unto God and His Father." The Apostles have discovered that there were Gods above, for Paul says God was the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. My object was to preach the scriptures, and preach the doctrine the contain, there being a God above, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. I am bold to declare I have taught all the strong doctrines publicly, and always teach stronger doctrines in public than in private.

John was one of the men, and apostles declare they were made kings and priests unto God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. It reads just so in the Revelation. Hence, the doctrine of a plurality of Gods is as prominent in the Bible as any other doctrine. It is all over the face of the Bible. It stands beyond the power of controversy. A wayfaring man, though a fool, need not err therein.

Paul says there are Gods many and Lords many. I want to set it forth in a plain and simple manner; but to us there is but one God--that is pertaining to us; and he is in all and through all. But if Joseph Smith says there are Gods many and Lords many, they cry, "Away with him! Crucify him! Crucify him!" (D. H. C., Vol. 6:474; Teachings, p. 370-371.)

The Succession to the President of the Church Problem, and how it Relates to the Fulness of the Priesthood-the Second Anointing:

The Martyrdom and the Garments of Priesthood:

Returning to Nauvoo to give themselves up and go to Carthage:

Joseph and Hyrum, however, decided it would be best to return to Nauvoo and give themselves up. (D.H.C., 6:548-50.) That evening they made preparations to leave for Carthage. It is very unlikely the Quorum [of Anointed] met that Sunday evening; nevertheless, joseph instructed those of the Quorum [of Anointed] who where going to accompany him to remove their sacred garments before going to Carthage. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 21 December 1845, and Oliver B. Huntington, Journal, 22 April 1897.) * * * Not only was provision made to protect the sacred clothing of the Anointed Quorum, but Joseph took precautions to protect the Council of Fifty. William Clayton, before Joseph crossed the river, mentioned in his diary the concern the Prophet had for the records of the Kingdom. "Joseph whispered to me either to put the r. or K. into the hands of some faithful man and send them away, or burn them, or bury them. I concluded to bury them, which I did immediately on my return home." (William Clayton, Journal, 22 June 1844, cited in Ehat, "The Constitution of the Kingdom of God," p. 268.) * * * In the announcement of the Martyrdom, published in the 1844 Doctrine and Covenants, Willard Richards's faith in Joseph's promise he received when he was given his garment was also canonized: for Willard Richards was the only one in the jail who "through the providence of God, escaped, without even a hole in his robe." (D&C 111 (1844 edition): 135 (present LDS edition). But without his robe, john Taylor, too, was miraculously preserved and would later say that the brethren did not remove their garments because of fears, as some had misrepresented, but so they would not expose the sacred clothing to the gaze of unbelievers. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 21 December 1845.) (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 184-187.)

Notice that in John's testimony, before Jesus went to the Mt. of Olives he lay aside his garments and when he took his garments it does not say that he put them on again. There could possibly be a correlation between why John's account only says that Jesus took his garments rather than saying put them on again and what the Prophet Joseph Smith did:

|v6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
|v7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.
|v8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
|v9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.
|v10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.
|v11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.
|v12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?
|v13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.
|v14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
|v15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
|v16 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
|v17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.
(NewT:John 13:4-17)

Joseph Smith Took off His Garments Before He Went to Carthage:

On one occasion while talking to the Salt lake School, Brigham Young spoke about Joseph's death and he:

...alluded to Emma Smith's prevailing on Joseph to take off his garments before he went to Carthage, Hyrum Smith and John Taylor did the same; but Willard Richards being charged by Joseph never to put them off, would not, for said Joseph: Willard, the day will come when bullets will whistle by you on each side, and men will fall on each side of you, but you shall be preserved (Journal History, (?), July 24, 1869, p. 1.; Salt Lake City Minutes-probably.; The school of the Prophets.... by John R. Patrick, p. 129.)

Joseph Smith the Prophet is killed: Here we see that when the greatest light is given, [ie., ...that he may come...and restore again that which was lost unto you, or that which he hath taken away, even the fulness of the priesthood." (D&C 124:28).] the greatest darkness pervades, as Satan attempts to destroy this light. This was a type of the Savior, after he had prepared the people to receive the fulness of the priesthood, and atoned for the sines of the world, which was the greatest light ever given the world, the advisory was also hard at work trying to kill the Lords servants. But in the end, the Father will give His Only Begotten power to crush the serpents head, as he promised Adam and Eve in the Garden.

Brigham Young asks Sidney Rigdon to meet with the Twelve and explain his position:

President Rigdon Explains why he feels he should be the "guardian" of the church:

The object of my mission is to visit the saints and offer myself to them as a guardian. I had a vision at Pittsburgh, June 27th. This was presented to my mind not as an open vision, but rather a continuation of the vision mentioned in the Book Of Doctrine and Covenants.

It was shown to me that this church must be built up to Joseph, and that all the blessings we receive must come through him. I have been ordained a spokesman to Joseph, and I must come to Nauvoo and see that the church is governed in a proper manner. Joseph sustains the same relationship to the church as he has always done. No man can be the successor of Joseph.

the kingdom is to be built up to Jesus Christ through Joseph; there must be revelation still. The martyred Prophet is still the head of this church; every quorum should stand as you stood in you washings and consecrations. I have been consecrated a spokesman to Joseph, and I was commanded to speak for him. The Church is not disorganized through our head is gone. We may have a diversity of feelings on this matter. I have been called to be a spokesman unto Joseph, and I want to build up the church unto him; and if the people want me to sustain this place, I want it upon the principle that every individual shall acknowledge it for himself.

I propose to be a guardian to the people; in this I have discharged my duty and done what God has commanded me, and the people can please themselves whether they accept me or not. (D. H. C., Vol. 7:229-230.)

President Brigham Young Replied:

I do not care who leads the church, even though it were Ann Lee; but one thing I must know, and that is what God says about it. I have the keys and the means of obtaining the mind of God on the subject.

I know there are those in our midst who will see the lives of the Twelve as they did the lives of Joseph and Hyrum. We shall ordain others and give the fulness of the priesthood, so that if we are killed the fulness of the priesthood may remain.

Joseph conferred upon our heads all the keys and powers belonging to the Apostleship which he himself held before he was taken away, and no man or set of men can get between Joseph and the Twelve in this world or in the world to come.

How often has Joseph said to the Twelve, 'I have laid the foundation and you must build thereon, for upon your shoulders the kingdom rests.'

The Twelve, as a quorum, will not be permitted to tarry here long; they will go abroad and bear off the kingdom to the nations of the earth, and baptize the people faster than mobs can kill them off. I would like, were it my privilege, to take my valise and travel and preach till we had a people gathered who would be true.

My private feelings would be to let the affairs of men and women alone, only go and preach and baptize them into the kingdom of God; yet, whatever duty God places upon me, in his strength I intended to fulfill it.

I want to see this people, with the various quorums of the priesthood, assembled together in special conference on Tuesday next at 10 a. m.' (D. H. C., Vol. 7:230.)

8 August 1844

Brigham Young's speaks of the keys of the Priesthood, and the transfiguration occurs as members of the Church sustain the Twelve's leadership of the Church in a special conference:

For the first time in my life, for the first time in your lives, for the first time in the kingdom of God in the 19th century, without a Prophet at our head, do I step forth to act in my calling in connection with the Quorum of the Twelve, as Apostles of Jesus Christ unto this generation--Apostles whom God has called by revelation through the Prophet Joseph, who are ordained and anointed to bear off the keys of the kingdom of God in all the world.

I now wish to speak of the organization of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. If the church is organized, and you wan to know how it is organized, I will tell you. I know your feelings--do you want me to tell your feelings?

Here is President Rigdon, who was counselor to Joseph. I ask, where are Joseph and Hyrum? They are gone beyond the veil; and if Elder Rigdon wants to act as his counselor, he must go beyond the veil where he is.

There has been much said about President Rigdon being President of the Church, and leading the people, being the head, etc. Brother Rigdon has come 1,600 miles to tell you what he wants to do for you. If the people want President Rigdon to lead them they may have him; but I say unto you that the Quorum of the Twelve have the keys of the kingdom of God in all the world.

The Twelve are appointed by the finger of God. Here is Brigham, have his knees ever faltered? Have his lips ever quivered? Here is Heber and the rest of the Twelve, and independent body who have the keys of the priesthood--the keys of the kingdom of God to deliver to all the world: this is true, so help me God. They stand next to Joseph, and are as the First Presidency of the Chruch.

I do not know whether my enemies will take my life or not, and I do not care, for I wan to be with the man I love.

You cannot fill the office of a prophet, seer and revelator: God must do this. You are like children without a father and sheep without a shepherd. You must not appoint any man at our head; if you should, the Twelve must ordain him. You cannot appoint a man at our head; but if you do want any other man or men to lead you, take them and we will go our way to build up the kingdom in all the world.

I know who are Joseph's friends, and who are his enemies. I know where keys of the kingdom are, and where they will eternally be. You cannot call a man to be a prophet; you cannot take Elder Rigdon and place him above the Twelve; if so, he must be ordained by them.

Brother Joseph, the Prophet, has laid the foundation for a great work, and wee will build upon it, you have never seen the quorums built one upon another. There is an almighty foundation laid, and we can build a kingdom such as there never was in the world: we can build a kingdom faster than satan can kill the saints off.

Do you want a spokesman? Here are Elder Rigdon, Brother Amasa Lyman [whom Joseph expected to take as a counselor] and myself. Do you want the church properly organized.... Elder Rigdon claims to be spokesman to the Prophet. Very well, he was; but can he now act in that office? If he wants now to be a spokesman to the Prophet, he must go to the other side of the veil, for the Prophet is there, but Elder Rigdon is here. Why will Elder Rigdon be a fool? Who knows anything of the priesthood, or the organization of the kingdom of God. I am plain.

Does this church want it as God organized it? Or do you want to clip the power of the priesthood, and let those who have the keys of the priesthood go and build up the kingdom in all the world, wherever the people will hear them?

If there is a spokesman, i f h e i s a k i n g a n d p r i e s t, let him go and build up a kingdom unto himself; that is his right and it is the right of many here, but the Twelve are at the head of it.

I want to live on the earth and spread truth through all the world. You saints of latter-days want things right. If 10,000 men rise up and say they have the Prophet Joseph Smith's shoes, I know they are importers. In the priesthood you have a right to build up a kingdom, if you know how the church is organized.

Now, if you want Sidney Rigdon or William Law to lead you, or anybody else, you are welcome to them; but I tell you, in the name of the Lord that no man can put another between the Twelve and the Prophet Joseph. Why? Because Joseph was their file leader, and he has committed into their hands the keys of the kingdom in this last dispensation, for all the world; don't put a thread between the priesthood and God.

I will ask, who has stood next to Joseph and Hyrum? I have and I will stand next to him. We have a head, and that head is the Apostleship, the spirit and power of Joseph, and we can now begin to see the necessity of that Apostleship.

Brother Rigdon was at his side--not above. No man has a right to counsel the Twelve but Joseph Smith. Think of these things. You cannot appoint a prophet; but if you let the Twelve remain and act in their place, the keys of the kingdom are with them and they can manage the affairs of the church and direct all things aright. (D. H. C., Vol. 7:230-236.)

Wilford Woodruff quoting Brigham Youngs comments--right of King and Priest:

The Prophet Joseph has lade the foundation for a great work, and we will build upon it.... Let those who hold the keys of the kingdom of God build it up in all the world. If... he is a king and priest, let him go and build up a kingdom this is his right, and it is the right of many here but who is the head? The Twelve.... Now if you want Rigdon, Lyman or Law to lead you or any body else, you may have them, but I tel you in the name of the Lord, that no man can put another between the Twelve and the Prophet Joseph. Why? Because Joseph was their file leader and he has committed into their hands the keys of the Kingdom for all the world. (Wilford Woodruff, Journal, 8 Aug 1844; (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 202.)

Wilford Woodruff reflecting on the Succession of the Priesthood:

Joseph Smith was what he professed to be, a prophet of God, a seer and revelator. He laid the foundation of this Church and kingdom, and lived long enough to deliver the keys of the kingdom to the Elders of Israel, unto the Twelve Apostles. He spent the last winter of his life, some three or four months, with the Quorum of the Twelve, teaching them. It was not merely a few hours ministering to them the ordinances of the Gospel; but he spent day after day, week after week and month after month, teaching them and a few others the things of the kingdom of God. Said he, during that period, "I now rejoice. I have lived until I have seen this burden, which has rested on my shoulders, rolled on to the shoulders of other men; now the keys of the kingdom are planted on the earth to be taken away no more for ever." But until he had dome this, they remained with him; and had he been taken away they would have had to be testored by messengers out of heaven. But he lived until every key, power and principle of the holy Priesthood was sealed on the Twelve and on President Young, as their President. He told us that he was going away to leave us, going away to rest. Said he, "YOu have to round up your shoulders to bear up the kingdom. No matter what becomes to me. I have desired to see that Temple built, but I shall not live to see it. You will; you are called upon to bear off this kingdom." This language was plain enough, but we did not understand it any more than the disciples of Jesus when he told them he was going away, and that if he went not the Comforter would not come. it was just so with Joseph. He said this time after time to the Twelve and to the Female Relief Societies and in his public discourses; but none of us seemed to understand that he was going to seal his testimony with his blood, but so it was. (Journal of Discourses 13:164.)

Samuel W. Richards to Franklin D. Richards:

Orson Hyde told... that they were in Council with Joseph so much last spring[.] He said that Joseph was preparing them for the work that they have now got to do which is to hold the keys and build up this kingdom in all the world. Joseph committed unto them all the keys of the Priesthood otherwise the fulness would not have been upon the Earth now [that] he is taken away. He also took them through all the ordinances which is necessary for the Salvation of Man, that they having experienced them all, by passing through them, might be prepared to lead the People in the path which they had trod when he had finished his work ordained and anointed the twelve to lead this people and build upon the foundation which he had laid he was filled with joy & says he it is now but little matter what becomest of me....he has gone to minister not only on earth but in heaven, and under the earth. (Samuel W. Richards to Franklin D. Richards, 23-26 August 1844, Church Archives; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 184-187.)

Joseph Fielding thoughts upon Joseph death:

[M]y Consolation in the midst of this Affair was that all had been done[.] Joseph and Hyram had done all that they could have done and the Foundation of the great Work of the last Days was laid so that it could be finished by the 12 Appostles [sic] who had been instructed in all things pertaining to the Kingdom of God on the Earth, some also beside the 12 had received their Endowment, which was expected at the completion of the Temple. I myself and my Wife had had this Privilege granted us in part, [Joseph and his wife would be anointed a King and Priest and Queen and Priestess when the Nauvoo temple was completed a few months later], I also believed that as Joseph was the only one that had the Keys of the Priesthood of [the] Kingdom of God on the Earth since the Days of Peter and the other Apostles, he must not only minister the same on Earth but also to the whole World of Spirits who departed from this Life in the time of the Broken Covenant, even as Jesus did to those before him to the Flood [1 Peter 3:18-20; 4:6; Isaiah 61:1; D&C 76: 73-74; and , Moses 7: 38-40 (23-45), 55-47)], that those who had died without the Priesthood must remain so until it should be restored to the Earth, but it is necessary that they as well as we who are now alive should be made acquainted with the Ordinances, Signs and Tokens of the Priesthood and the Turms [sic] of Admission into the kingdom in Order that they may come forth with those who have received it here, so that Joseph was as much needed there as here, and perhaps more so, these Reflections in a great measure took off the edge of the Grief that I might else have felt, for I thought that [he] had so fulfilled his own Purposes, and I felt willing to say amen to it. (Ehat, "Nauvoo Journal of Joseph Fielding," pp. 153-54; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 210.)

The Mantle of the Prophet:

Elder Wilford Woodruff:

It was evident to the Saints that the mantle of Joseph had fallen upon him [Brigham young], the road that he pointed out could be seen so plainly, that none need err therein; the spirit of wisdom and counsel attended all his teachings, he struck upon a chord, with which all hearts beat in unison. (Millennial Star, Feb. 1845, p. 138.)

Elder Orson Hyde's Testimony:

We went among the congregation and President YOung went on the stand. Well, he spoke, and his words went through me like electricity. "Am I mistaken?" said I, "or is it really the voice of Joseph Smith?" This is my testimony; it was not only the voice of Joseph, but there were the features, the gestures and even the stature of Joseph before us in the person of Brigham. And though it may be said that President YOung is a complete mimic, and can mimic anybody, I would like to see the man who can mimic another in stature who was abort for or five inches higher than himself. [Journal of Discourses, Vol. 13:181.)

Benjamin F. Johnson's Testimony:

I sat in the assembly near to President Rigdon, closely attentive to his appeal to the conference to recognize and sustain his claim as "guardian for the Chruch." And I was, perhaps, to a degree, forgetful of what I knew to be the right and duties of the apostleship. And as he closed his address and sat down, my back was partly turned to the seat occupied by Apostle Brigham Young and other Apostles, when suddenly, and as from heaven, I heard the voice of the Prophet Joseph. That thrilled my whole being, and quickly turning around, I saw in the transfiguration of Brigham young, the tall, straight, and portly form of the Prophet Joseph Smith, clothed in a sheen of light covering him to his feet. And I heard the real and perfect voice of the Prophet, even to the whistle, as in years past caused by the loss of a tooth, said to have been broken out by the mob a Hyrum. This view or vision, although but for seconds, was to me as vivid and real as the glare of lightning or the voice of thunder from the heavens. And so deeply was I impressed with what I saw and heard in this transfiguration, that for years I dared not publicly tell what was given me of the Lord to see. But when in later years I did publicly bear this testimony, I found that others could testify to having seen and heard the same. But to what proportion of the congregation that were present, I could never know. But I do know that this, my testimony, is true. (Benjamin F. Johnson to George F. Gibbs, n.d., Historical Department, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Salt Lake City; spelling and punctuation modernized.

George Q. Cannon's Testimony:

Who that was present on that occasion can ever forget the impression it made upon them! If Joseph had arisen from the dead and again spoken in their hearing, the effect could not have been more startling than it was to many present at the meeting. It was the voice of Joseph himself; and not only was it the voice of Joseph which was heard; but it seemed in the eyes of the people as though it was the very person of Joseph which stood before them. A more wonderful and miraculous event than was wrought that day in the presence of that congregation we never heard of. The lord gave his people a testimony that left no room for doubt as to who was the man He had chosen to lead them. (Juvenile Instructor, 5:174-175.)

William Byram Pace Testimony:

Sidney Rigdon spent, what seemed to me several hours, harrangueing (sic) the people on the importance of making him their Leader, after which, Brigham Young arose and said only a word, when it was observed by the whole congregation that the mantle of "Joseph" was upon him, in word, gesture and general appearance.

The people arose en-masse (sic) to their feet astonished, as it appeared that Joseph had returned and was speaking to the people.

I was small and got upon a bench that I might more fully witness the "Phenonomia" (sic).

There was no longer any question as to who was the Leader. (William Byram Pace, p. 7, BYU Special Collections, Mor, M270.1, P114.)

The Twelve Sent an Epistle to the Saints:

To the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, in Nauvoo and all the world.... GREETING.

BELOVED BRETHREN:--Forasmuch as the saints have been called to suffer deep affliction and persecution, and also to mourn the loss of our beloved Prophet and also our Patriarch, who have suffered a cruel martyrdom for the testimony of Jesus, having voluntarily yielded themselves to cruel murderers who had sworn to take their lives, and thus like good shepherds have laid down their lives for the sheep, therefore it becomes necessary for us to address you at this time on several important subjects.

You are now without a prophet present with you in the flesh to guide you; but you are not without apostles, who hold the keys of power to seal on earth that which shall be sealed in heaven, and to preside over all the affairs of the church in all the world; being under the direction of the same God, and being dictated by the same spirit, having the same manifestations of the Holy Ghost to dictate all the affairs of the church in all the world, to build up a kingdom upon the foundation that the prophet Joseph has laid, who still holds the keys of this last dispensation, and will hold them to all eternity, as a king and priest unto the most high God, ministering in heaven, on earth, or among the spirits of the departed dead, as seemeth good to him who sent him. .... (Times and Seasons Vol. 5:618-612.)

Patriarchal Blessing given to Joseph C. Kingsbury [a Holy Order Member] by John Smith [A Holy Order Member, in part says:]

Thou are entitled to all the blessings which the servants of God sealed upon their children in ancient days which is a fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood with all the blessings and benefits thereof [Abraham 1: 2-4; Also Lehi, of the Book of Mormon, must have been a King and Priest who married his sons and daughters in the wilderness, and gave this Priesthood to his son's Nephi and others to build and officiate in the Holy Temples]. Thou are a lawful heir to these things because thou art a son of Joseph, the son of Jacob who was sold into Egypt (Joseph C. Kingsbury "Diary", University of Utah Library.)

Wilford Woodruff does not Receive The Fulness of the Priesthood with the rest of the remaining Twelve, in the Nauvoo temple, because he is sent on a mission to England:

Wilford Woodruff, Dan Jones and Hiram Clark, with their families, left Nauvoo for England. (Church Chronology, A Record of Important Events, Pertaining to the History of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Compiled by Andrew Jenson, Assistant Church Historian, 2nd ed., 1914, p. 26.)

John S. Fullmer to "Uncle John" on the Prophets death and succession:

[John S. Fullmer writing to his Uncle John testified that the modern apostles were] equal [in] authority with ["Peter, james, & John or Paul"]... Men who have power to bind on earth & it shall [be] bound in Heaven. & to Loose on earth & it shall be loosed in Heaven.... Now I expect these things will choke you pretty near, but...I tell you these things are reasonable; & were these powers & authority are not held, then you will not find the fulness of the everlasting Gospel, nor the fulness of the priesthood....

Perhaps you may think that be cause [sic] our leaders are gone [Joseph and Hyrum] we are the same as broken up, but let me tell you that ... to our joy, the Prophet succeeded before his death in completely organizing the Church conferring Keys, authority and enduements upon the Apostles & others, so that the work can go on as well as when he alone was propelling it; and better, because there are more now to push it, each holding all the power which he held in the priestly office. We are rushing the Temple ahead, faster since his death than before. In it, all who shall be found worthy, have promised their enduement. We expect to finish it before a year form now. What would you give to share in such a blessing? (John S. Fullmer to "Uncle John,: 27 September 1844, Church Archives.; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 210.)

Elder Heber C. Kimball's Discourse:

Elder Heber C. Kimball addressed the congregation on the principles of salvation by the celestial law. He went on to show the order of the resurrection and that there are different orders or degrees, wherever death finds us the resurrection will take hold of us [Alma 34:32-35]. 'We desire to obtain a fulness of celestial glory, but many will be disappointed. It is for this that we pray every day that the Lord will spare our lives that we may obtain it. President Joseph Smith never rested till he had endowed the Twelve with all the power of the priesthood, because he was about to pass within the veil. He designed that we should give it to you and you cannot be saved without it. You cannot obtain these things until that house [The Temple] is built. I and my brethren are willing to do all that lays in our power to finish that house for your benefit, that you may go where Joseph is gone. We have got to carry out Joseph's measures and you have got to assist us. When Jesus was upon the earth his time was spent in endowing the Twelve Apostles that they might do the things he had left undone and carry out his measures, and upon the same principle we carry out Joseph's measures. We have no rest--don't sleep half as much as you do. We need your prayers. [JST EPH 4:11-14; D&C 76:57; What order.] (D. H .C.; 7:299-300.)

2 November 1844

Mrs. Joe Smith--Grand design of the Prophet--A correspondent at Alton, after stating that the recent murder of Joe Smith has been followed by a depression of his followers, gives the following interesting items:--Mrs. Joe Smith, it is said, has lost all confidence (if she ever had any) in the Mormon faith. She will soon remove to some secure situation, undoubtedly the richest lady in the West. Joe has been amasing money for several years for the purpose of eventually going to Jerusalem, intending to issue a proclamation calling in the Jews, over whom he was to be head till the return of Christ upon the earth--which event he believed would take place 45 years from 1844.--With reference to this expedition he was crowned

`King of Israel' in 1844 by Council of Fifty, denominated the `Ancient of Days'. The fifty were all sworn to secrecy. I had the fact from one who assisted at the coronation--divulged since Joe's death. This was the prophet's grand design; and had it been generally known, we'd perhaps have saved our State from the desgrace [sic] and infamy of perpetrating so foul a murder. The fact affords a key to certain movements of the prophet, which are otherwise inexplicable. (The Upper Mississippian and Rock Island Republican; Rock Island Public Library; H. G. Reynold, Editor; November 2, 1844. From the New Bedford Bulletin.)

Joseph Smith
Now if they kill me you have got all the keys, and all the ordinances, and you can confer them upon others, and the hosts of Satan will not be able to tear down the kingdom as fast as you will be able to build it up; and now,... on your shoulders will rest the responsibility of leading this people for the Lord is going to let me rest awhile. (Trial of Sidney Rigdon, by Orson Hyde, Millennial Star, Vol. 5:104, Dec. 1844.)

December 1844

The Prophet Joseph Gives the Endowment tot he Twelve: Before I went east on the 4th of April, last, we were in council with Brother Joseph almost every day for weeks. Says Brother Joseph, in one of those councils, "There is something going to happen; I don't know what it is, but the Lord bids me to hasten, and give you your endowment before the temple is finished." He conducted us through every ordiance of the holy priesthood, and when he had gone through with all the ordinances he rejoiced very much and said, "Now if they kill me you have got all the keys, and all the ordinances, and you can confer them upon others, and the hosts of Satan will not be able to tear down the kingdom as fast as you will be able to build it up; and now," said he, "on your shoulders will rest the responsibility of leading this people to the Lord [like Enoch and Melchizedek did, and like Moses tried to do] for the Lord is going to let rest awhile." Now why did he say to the Twelve "on your shoulders will this responsibility rest"?--why did he not mention Brother Hyrum? The Spirit knew that Hyrum would be taken with him, and hence he did not mention his name; Elder Rigdon's name was not mentioned, although he was there all the time, but he did not attend our councils. (Trial of Sidney Rigdon, by Orson Hyde, Millennial Star, Vol. 5:104. (Dec. 1844.) Temples of the Most High, N. B. Lundwall, ninth ed. 1954, p. 251.) [Joseph Smith preface to his mission described by Moroni three times spoke of this final event taken place the Seal of Elijah quoted Malachi.]

By Wilford Woodruff: Has the Prophet Joseph found Elder Rigdon in his councils, when he organized the quorum of the Twelve a few months before his councils, when he organized the quorum of the Twelve a few months before his death, to prepare them for the endowment? And when they received their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and the pattern of heavenly things: and thus addressing the Twelve, exclaimed: "Upon your shoulders the kingdom rests, and you must round up your shoulders and bear it, for I have had to do it until now. But now the responsibility rests upon you. It mattereth not what becomes of me." But I say, has this been the case with Elder Rigdon in any wise? (Trial of Sidney Rigdon, Millennial Star, Vol. 5:109. (Dec. 1844.) Temples of the Most High, N. B. Lundwall, ninth ed. 1954, p. 251.)

Pattern of Endowments Revealed from Heaven: This great and good man was led, before his death, to call the Twelve together from time to time and to instruct them in all things pertaining to the kingdom, ordinances and government of God. He often observed that he was laying the foundation, but it would remain for the Twelve to complete the building. Said he, "I know not why; but for some reason I am constrained to hasten my preparations, and to confer upon the Twelve all the ordinances, keys, covenants, endowments, and sealing ordinances of the priesthood, and so set before them a pattern in all things pertaining to the sanctuary and the endowment therein."

Having done this, he rejoiced exceedingly; "for," said he, "the Lord is about to lay the burden on your shoulders and let me rest awhile; and if they kill me," continued he, "the Kingdom of God will roll on, as I have now finished the work which was laid upon me, by committing to you all things for the building up of the kingdom according to the heavenly vision, and the pattern shown me from heaven." [Elder Kimball tells us what measure Christ and Joseph left them to perform – all the ordinances and to prepare the people to meet God.] With many conversations like this, he comforted the minds of the Twelve, and prepared them for what was soon to follow.

He proceeded to confer on Elder Young, the President of the Twelve, the keys of the sealing power, as conferred in the last days by the spirit and power of Elijah, in order to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to the fathers, lest the whole earth should be smitten with a curse.

This last key of the priesthood is the most sacred of all, and pertains exclusively to the first presidency of the church, without whose sanction, and approval or authority, no sealing blessing shall be administered pertaining to things of the resurrection and the life to come.

After giving them a very short charge to do all things according to the pattern, he quietly surrendered his liberty and his life into the hands of his blood-thirsty enemies, and all this to save the people for whom he had so long labored from threatened vengeance. (By Parley P. Pratt, Millennial Star, Vol. 5:151; Temples of the Most High, N. B. Lundwall, ninth ed. 1954, p. 252.)

The sealing Ordinances (including The Second Anointing) Conferred Upon the President of the Church and the Most Sacred of All:

This great and good man (Joseph Smith) was led, before his death, to call the twelve together, from time to time, and to instruct them in all things pertaining to the kingdom, ordinances, and government of God.* Said he, "I know not why; but for some reason I am constrained to hasted my preparations, and to confer upon the Twelve all the ordinances, keys, covenants, endowments, and sealing ordinances of the priesthood, and so set before them a pattern in all things pertaining to the sanctuary and the endowment therein. "He proceeded to confer on elder Young, the President of the Twelve, the keys of the sealing power, as conferred in the last days by the spirit and power of Elijah, in order to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to the fathers, lest the whole earth should be smitten with a curse.

This last key of the priesthood is the most sacred of all, and pertains exclusively to the first presidency of the church, without whose sanction and approval or authority, no sealing blessing shall be administered pertaining to the things of the resurrection and the life to come. (Millennial Star, Vol. 5:151. Written in New York, January 1st, 1845, pub. March 1845.)

1 January 1845:

Reflections. Jan. 1st 1845

. . . The organization of the Kingdom of God on 11th March last is one important event. This organization was called the Council of Fifty or Kingdom of God, and was titled by revelation as follows, "Verily thus saith the Lord, this is the name by which you shall be called, the Kingdom of God and his Laws, with the Keys and power thereof, and judgment in the hands of his servants, Ahman Christ." In this council was the plan arranged for supporting Pres. Jos. Smith as a candidate for the presidency of the U.S. Prest Joseph was the standing chairman of the council and myself the Clerk. In this Council was also devised the plan of establishing an emigration to Texas, and plans laid for the exaltation of a standard and ensign of truth for the nations of the earth. In this council was the plan devised to restore the Ancients [Lamanites] to the Knowledge of the truth and the restoration of Union and peace amongst ourselves. In this council was Prest Joseph chosen our Prophet, Priest and King by Hosannas. In this council was the principles of eternal truth rolled forth to the heavens without reserve and the hearts of the servants of God made to rejoice exceedingly. ("Extracts from the Journal of Elder Wm Clayton, regarding the K. of G."; L. William Clayton Journal:

Tuesday Feby. 4. 1845 Met at the 70s Hall with the Council of the Kingdom. There were only 25 members present viz: B. Young, S. Bent, John Smith, Alpheus Cutler, R. Cahoon, W.W. Phelps, G. Miller, P. Haws, Josh Fielding, Levi Richards, J.D. Parker, L. Woodworth, H.C. Kimball, O. Spencer, P.B. Lewis, D.D. Yearsley, C.C. Rich, O. Pratt, A. Lyman, J. W. Coolidge, O.P. Rockwell, G.A. Smith, E. Snow, and Wd Richards and myself. This is the first time we met since the massacre of Pres. Joseph & Hyrum Smith. The Council was reorganized and President B. Young appointed standing chairman as successor to Prest Joseph Smith by unanimous vote. The vote was then taken in ancient order on each one present and all were received by unanimous vote. The vote then passed for absent members according to their ages and stations and resulted as follows, viz: Ezra Thayre, Amos Fielding, N.K. Whitney, C.P. Lott, J.M. Bernhisel, Elias Smith, O. Hyde, W. Woodruff, P.P. Pratt, D.S. Hollister, John Taylor, Wm Smith, A.W. Babbitt, J.M. Grant, and B.F. Johnson were unanimously sustained and received into the new organization. The following were rejected and dropped from the Council: Uriah Brown, Wm Marks, Sidney Rigdon, Lyman Wight, James Emmett, Samuel James, Edward Bonny, Alexander Badlam, Geo.J. Adams, Merinus G. Eaton and Lorenzo D. Wasson. President Joseph & Hyrum two of the members were martyred for the truth and John P. Green is dead, so that there is only 40 members left in the Council. It was voted to fill up the Council, at some future time. The weather is extremely cold and the Council adjourned at 2 1/2. Full Redemption of the Lamanites Will Include Them Receiving Their Second Anointings in the Temple of the New Jerusalem:

To this city (New Jerusalem), and to its several branches or stakes, shall the Gentiles seek, as to a standard of light and knowledge; yea, the nations and the kings and nobles shall say--Come, and let us go up to the Mount Zion, and to the temple of the Lord, where His holy Priesthood stand to minister more fully, and receive the ordinances of remission, and of sanctification, and redemption, and thus be adopted into the family of Israel, and identified in the same covenant of promise.

The despised and degraded son of the forest, who has wandered in dejection and sorrow, and suffered reproach, shall then drop his disguise and stand forth in manly dignity, and exclaim to the Gentiles who have envied and sold him--"I am Joseph; does my father yet life?" or, in other words, I am a descendant of that Joseph who was sold into Egypt. You have hated me, and sold me, and thought I was dead; but lo! I live and am heir to the inheritance, titles, honors, priesthood, sceptre, crown, throne, and eternal life and dignity of my fathers, who live for evermore.

He shall then be ordained, washed, anointed with holy oil, and arrayed in fine linen, even in the glorious and beautiful garments and royal robes of the high priesthood, which is after the order of the Son of God; and shall enter into the Holy of Holies, there to be crowned with authority and power which shall never end.

The spirit of the Lord shall then descend upon him like the dew upon the mountains of Hermon, and like refreshing showers of rain upon the flowers of Paradise.

His heart shall expand with knowledge, wide as eternity, and his mind shall comprehend the vast creations of his God, and his eternal purpose of redemption, glory, and exaltation, which was devised in heaven before the worlds were organized; but made manifest in these last days, for the fulness of the Gentiles, and for the exaltation of Israel.

He shall also behold his Redeemer, and be filled with His presence, while the cloud of His glory shall be seen in His temple. (Millennial Star Vol. 6, Appendix: pp. 9, 10; Written in New York April 6, 1845.)

Crowns in Eternity:

The next thing we will speak of will be the reward that will be bestowed upon the resurrected Saints. This is something upon which all inspired men have spoken and written; and it is a theme that rejoices the hearts of the Saints while contemplating it.

The Saints will not receive their crowns of glory until after their resurrection. When the curse in part shall be removed from the world; when wickedness and abomination shall be known no more in the land, then will the Saints come forth clothed with immortality, and be crowned with power and glory and a reward for all their labors. No person will be crowned with power in the eternal world, (we are to be kings and priests to God to all eternity,) unless they have been ordained thereto in this life, previous to their death, or by some friend acting as proxy for them afterwards, and receiving it for them. What is it to be kings and priests? It is to have honor, authority and dominion, having kingdoms to preside over, and subjects to govern, and possessing the ability ever to increase their authority and glory, and extend their dominion. (Orson Pratt in a funeral address...Times & Seasons, Vol. 6: p. 920, publication date June 1st, 1845, see above for the date of the funeral address.)

Funeral of Mrs. Caroline Smith--Address given by Elder Orson Pratt--We are to be Kings and Priests to God to all eternity:

...No person will be crowned with power in the eternal world, (we are to be kings and priests to God to all eternity,) unless they have been ordained thereto in this life, previous to their death, or by some friend acting as proxy for them afterwards, and receiving it for them. What is it to be kings and priests? It is to have honor, authority and dominion, having kingdoms to preside over, and subject to govern, and possessing the ability ever to increase their authority and glory, and extend their dominion. (Times and Seasons, Vol. 6:920, 1 June 1845.)

What do we learn from this sermon:

1. We are to be kings and priests to God to all eternity: What does this mean? One can only speculate at this point but as was shown me in my vision one cannot be resurrected and then be anointed a king and priest. I think the answer is contained in this sentence. We are to be kings and priests to God to all eternity. To all eternity is absolute-it means all of eternity. Not one moment can be lost, not one measure of eternity can one not be a king and priest. Hence, when someone is resurrected they must already be a king and a priest as the moment the resurrection starts for a person so has eternity. Hence D&C 132:7
...All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations [ie. I was anointed and confirmed to be a king and priest and I expect to be one...], that are not made and entered into and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, of him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity [and all eternity, means just that all eternity], ...are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in [the resurrection] or after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead. (D&C 132:7.) From what the spirit told me and what is said in the Doctrine and covenants and what orson Pratt said all eternity is absolute so the following makes sense what orson Pratt says.

"unless they have been ordained [a king and priest to God to all eternity] in this life, previous to their death, or by some friend acting as proxy for them afterwards, and receiving it for them." [They] will [not] be crowned with [this] power in the eternal world...]

[Also marriage and all others see 132:7 is for all eternity; this is why Jesus says that there is no marriage in heaven. Once the resurrection starts D&C 132:7 Eternity starts and what part of eternity can be left out and it still be all eternity.... None!]

|v7 And verily I say unto you, that the conditions of this law are these: All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations, that are not made and entered into and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, of him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity, and that too most holy, by revelation and commandment through the medium of mine anointed, whom I have appointed on the earth to hold this power (and I have appointed unto my servant Joseph to hold this power in the last days, and there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred), are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead. (D&C: Section 132:7)

|v17 For these angels did not abide my law; therefore, they cannot be enlarged, but remain separately and singly, without exaltation, in their saved condition, to all eternity; and from henceforth are not gods, but are angels of God forever and ever. (D&C: Section 132:17)

make a covenant with her for time and for all eternity, if that covenant is not by me or by my word, which is my law, and is not sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, through him whom I have anointed and appointed unto this power, then it is not valid neither of force when they are out of the world, because they are not joined by me, saith the Lord, neither by my word; when they are out of the world it cannot be received there, because the angels and the gods are appointed there, by whom they cannot pass; they cannot, therefore, inherit my glory; for my house is a house of order, saith the Lord God. (D&C: Section 132:18)

|v19 And again, verily I say unto you, if a man marry a wife by my word, which is my law, and by the new and everlasting covenant, and it is sealed unto them by the Holy Spirit of promise, by him who is anointed, unto whom I have appointed this power and the keys of this priesthood; and it shall be said unto them--Ye shall come forth in the first resurrection; and if it be after the first resurrection, in the next resurrection; and shall inherit thrones, kingdoms, principalities, and powers, dominions, all heights and depths--then shall it be written in the Lamb's Book of Life, that he shall commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, and if ye abide in my covenant, and commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, it shall be done unto them in all things whatsoever my servant hath put upon them, in time, and through all eternity; and shall be of full force when they are out of the world; and they shall pass by the angels, and the gods, which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things, as hath been sealed upon their heads, which glory shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever.

|v49 For I am the Lord thy God, and will be with thee even unto the end of the world, and through all eternity; for verily I seal upon you your exaltation, and prepare a throne for you in the kingdom of my Father, with Abraham your father.
(D&C: Section 132:49)

It was written in the law of the Lord on high, that they that overcome by obedience, should be made kings and queens, and priests and priestesses to God and his Father, through the atonement of the eldest son, and that natural eyes should not see, nor natural ears hear, neither should the natural heart conceive the great glorious, and eternal things, honors and blessings, that were then, in the Father's dominions, and mansions, prepared in the beginning for them that kept the faith to the end, and entered triumphantly into their third estates:--the eternal life. (Joseph's Speckled Bird; Times and Seasons, Vol. 6:917)

The Office of Patriarch to The Church:

In regard to the office of patriarch, William Smith has been ordained patriarch to the church; but he is not the only patriarch, but would act as a senior patriarch, holding the keys of that priesthood; and his labors would be more especially connected with the church in Zion; and he would take the lead, priority, or presidency of the patriarchal office in this place; and in this capacity, if there should be a council of patriarchs, he as a matter of course would preside by right of office. But every legally ordained patriarch has the same right to bless that he has, and their administrations are just as legal as his are. Every ordinance that is administered by a legal administrator, is legal. A priest has just as much right to baptize a person for the remission of sins as an elder, a high priest, or an apostle; but he cannot lay on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, because he does not possess that authority to do it; but an elder does, and an elder's administration would be just as legal as the administration of any of the beforementioned persons, or as that of the president of the church.

Rights of Fathers to Act as Patriarchs:

Every father, after he has received his patriarchal blessing, is a patriarch to his own family, and has the right to confer patriarchal blessings upon his family; which blessings will be just as legal as those conferred by any patriarch of the church: in fact it is his right; and a patriarch is blessing his children, can only bless as his mouthpiece.

A patriarch to the church is appointed to bless those who are orphans, or have no father in the Church to bless them. Not as stated inadvertently, in the editorial above alluded to "to bless all, and such as have not a father to do it," for this he could not do, where the church is so extensive; the burden would be too onerous; hence other patriarchs have been ordained, both in this country, and in England, to assist the patriarch to the church, and hence the provision made in the Doctrine and Covenants: "It is the duty of the Twelve, in all large branches of the church, to ordain evangelical ministers, [patriarchs] as they shall be designated unto them by revelation." (D. & C. 107:39.) And should any of those patriarchs remove here, they have just as much right to administer in their patriarchal office under the direction of the patriarch to the church, as an elder or priest would, who should remove from one of the branches to this place, under the direction of the presidency. Brother William Smith, however "holds the keys of the patriarchal blessings upon the heads of all my people," and would of necessity have the seniority, and of course the priority and presidency; yet it would be left for those who wished to be administered to, to make their choice; just as much as it would for a candidate for baptism to choose who should administer to him.

The above is the true doctrine of the church in regard to this matter, and we speak of it for the information of the brethren at large, lest those who may have received their patriarchal blessings from other sources, or from their fathers, might be tempted to think they were of no avail, and to set at rest this agitated question.

The Patriarch Does Not Preside Over the Priesthood or the Church:

We now proceed to answer some of the remarks which we have heard:

We have been asked, "Does not patriarch over the whole church" place Brother William Smith at the head of the whole church as president?

Answer. No. Brother William is not patriarch over the whole church, but patriarch to the church, and as such he was Ordained. The expression "over the whole church," is a mistake made by W. W. Phelps. He is patriarch to the church to Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The twelve are commanded to ordain evangelical ministers in all large branches of the church abroad, and who has charge over them? The patriarch? No. Those who ordained them. And to who is committed the power and authority to regulate all the affairs of the churches abroad? And who has the charge of the whole priesthood here? Answer. The presidency of the church, and not the patriarch.

But does not the Doctrine and Covenants say:

"First, I give unto you Hyrum Smith to be a patriarch unto you to hold the sealing blessings of my church, even the Holy Spirit of promise, whereby ye are sealed up unto the day of redemption, that ye may not fall notwithstanding the hour of temptation that may come upon you." (D. & C. 124:124.)

Yes, but that is in regard to seniority not in regard to authority in priesthood, for it immediately follows, "I give unto my servant Joseph to be a presiding elder over all my church, to be a translator, a revelator, a seer, and prophet." (D. & C. 124:125.) In the Doctrine and Covenants we read "the duty of President of the office of the high priesthood is to preside over the whole church, and to be like unto Moses." (D. & C. 107:91.) And from this is evident that the president of the church, not the patriarch, is appointed by God to preside.

But does not the patriarch stand in the same relationship to the church as Adam did to his family, and as Abraham and Jacob did to theirs? No. This is another mistake which is made by our junior, and one that may be very easily made inadvertently. Adam was the natural father of his posterity, who were his family and over whom he presided as patriarch, prophet, priest and king. Both Abraham and Jacob stood in the same relationship to their families. But not so with Father Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, or William Smith. they were not the natural fathers of the church, and could not stand in the same capacity as Adam, Abraham, or Jacob [or Lehi]; but inasmuch as there had been none to bless for generations past, according to the ancient order, they were ordained and set apart for the purpose of conferring patriarchal blessings, to hold the keys of this priesthood, and unlock the door, that had long been closed upon the human family: that blessings might be conferred according to the ancient order, and those who were orphans, or had no father to bless them [As Abraham was an Orphan, his fathers leaving the priesthood sought his blessings from the fathers who had not left the priesthood], might receive it through a patriarch who should act as proxy for their father, and that fathers might again be enabled to act as patriarchs to their families, and bless [and seal] their children [with the holy spirit of Promise]. For like the other ordinances in the church, this had been neglected and must needs be restored. But Father Joseph Smith was not president of the church, nor the president's counsel. Nor was Hyrum Smith either president or president's counsel. He was one counsel, but when he was ordained patriarch he gave it up and another was ordained in his stead, [William Law] and in all probability if Brother William magnifies his calling, he will not be able henceforth to attend to the duties of an apostle; but officiate in the same capacity in regard to blessing as his brother Hyrum did--not as president of the church, but as patriarch to it. The president of the church presides over all patriarchs, presidents, and councils of the church; and this presidency does not depend so much upon genealogy as upon calling, order, and seniority. James and Joses were the brothers of Jesus, and John was his beloved disciple, yet Peter held the keys and presided over all the church. Brother William was in the quorum of the twelve yet he was not president of the twelve during his brother's lifetime, nor since; and if being ordained a patriarch would make him president of the church, it would have made Father Joseph Smith and Hyrum Smith presidents over the church instead of Joseph.

Brother William understands the matter, and were it not for the folly of some men there would be no necessity for these remarks.

A patriarch is what is termed in scripture an evangelist, and Brother William acts in that capacity, and God placed in the church "first apostles,' not first evangelists, but the president stands in the same relationship to the church as Moses did to the children of Israel, according to the revelations.

Again, who ordained Father Smith to the office of patriarch? His son Joseph, and Father Smith ordained Hyrum, and the twelve (of whom Brother William is one) ordained him. Who are appointed to ordain evangelical ministers? It is the duty of the Twelve, in all large branches of the church, to ordain evangelical ministers, as they shall be designated unto them by revelation. (D. & C. 107:39.) Can a stream rise higher than its fountain? No....

We think that everyone will see that Brother William Smith's patriarchal office will not exalt him higher in regard to priesthood than he was before, as one of the twelve; but will rather change the nature of his office.

But will it take any thing from his priesthood? it may be asked. No. You cannot take any man's priesthood away without transgression. Brother William will still retain the same power, priesthood, and authority that he did before, and yet will hold in connection with that the patriarchal office and the keys of that priesthood, and as one of the twelve must maintain his dignity as one of the presidents of the church [This occurred during the apostolic interregnum of 1844-1847 when the twelve, Brigham Young at their head, were sustained as "presidents of the Chruch"], of whom President Brigham Young is the president and head, and presides over all patriarchs, presidents, and councils of the church. (Times and Seasons, 6:921-922, June 1, 1845; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 146-149.)

John Taylor Later Explains--The Patriarchal Order:

We find that after the days of Noah an order was introduced called the patriarchal order, in which every man managed his own family affairs. And prominent men among them were kings and priests unto God, and officiated in what is known among us as the priesthood of the Son of God, or the priesthood after the order of Melchizedek. Man began again to multiply on the face of the earth, and the heads of families became their kings and priests, that is, the fathers of their own people. And they were more or less under the influence and guidance of the Almighty. We read, for instance, in our revelations pertaining to these matters, of a man called Melchizedek, who was a great high priest. We are told that there were a great many high priests in his day, and before him and after; and these men had communication with God, and were taught of him in relation to their general proceedings, and acknowledged the hand of God in all things with which the were associated. (JD, 17:207, October 7, 1874; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 139.)

After prayer and singing, Elders Isaac Morley and Charles C. Rich administered, and we partook of the sacrament.

I introduced the subject of establishing rules for preservation of order in the House of the Lord which were agreed to and ordered to be printed.

There is too much covetousness int he church, and too much disposition amongst the brethren to seek after power and has been from the beginning, but this feeling is diminishing and the brethren begin to know better. In consequence of such feelings Joseph [Smith] left the people in the dark on many subjects of importance and they still remain in dark. We have got to rid such principles from our hearts.

I referred to the manner in which the corner stones of this Temple were laid as published in the Times and Seasons, and said that the perfect order would have been for the presidency of the stake to lay the first or southeast corner; the hich council the second or southwest corner; the bishops the northeast corner; but the high priests laid the southwest corner, though they had no right to do it. I spoke of the brethren making objections to persons being permitted to receive the ordinances, and added, that when objections were made I should feel bound to determine whether the person making the objections was a responsibile person, and if he is not, I should do as I pleased about listening to the objections; but if he was a person I should listen to them.

To constitute a man responsible he must have the power and ability not only to save himself but save others; but there are those who are not capable of saving themselves and will have to be saved by others.

When a man objects to another receiving the ordinances he becomes responsible to answer to God for that man's salvation; and who can tell but if he received the ordiances he would be saved, but if we refuse to give him the means he cannot be saved and we are responsible for it.

There is no law to prevent any man from obtaining all the blessings of the priesthood if he will walk according to the commandments, pay his tithes and seek after salvation, but he may deprive himself of them.

After much profitable instruction we united in prayer. Orson Hyde being mouth.

Meeting adjourned for one week. (H.C., VII p. 545, 6.)

The following brethren and sisters assembled to the Attic Story of the Temple according to appointment viz., Pres Brigham Young & Mary Ann Young, Heber C. Kimball & Villate Kimball, Parley P pratt & Mary Ann Pratt, Orson Hyde-------[sic]. Orson Pratt & Nancy M. Pratt, George A. Smith & Barsheba W. Smith, Amasa Lyman & Loisa M. Lyman, John Taylor & Leonora A [sic. Taylor, John Smith & Clarissa Smith, Newel K. Whitney & Elizabeth A. Whitney, George Miller & Mary C. Miller, Alpheus Cutler-------[sic] Isaac Morley & Lucy Morley, Wm W. Phelps & Sally Phelps, John M. Bernhisel, William Clayton, Joseph C. Kingsbury, Franklin D. Richards, Samuel Bent & Lettice Bent, Agness M. Smith & Mary [fielding] Smith, Mercy R. Thompson & Tirzah Cahoon, Lucian Woodworth & Phebe Woodworth, Orson Spencer & Catherine C. Spencer, Cornelius P. Lott & Joseph Fielding, Joseph Young.

Soon after 11 o'clock those who were present were ordered by the president to cloth themselves, which being done and seated at 20 minutes after 11 o'clock sang, "Adam Ondi Ahman" etc. After which we bowed before the Lord and president Young offered up prayers. We next sung "Glorious Things of thee are spoken" &c. When bread & whine having been provided by Bishop N.K. Whitney Elders Isaac Morley & Charles C. Rich were called upon to administer the sacrament. They broke the bred which was then blessed by Isaac Morley and passed round by Charles C. Rich, who also blessed the wine and passed it round likewise.

We then sang, "O happy souls who pray &c" and "Come all ye sons of Zion." After which President Young introduced the subject of having rules of order to govern all who come here and to regulate our works, printed. He wished to know the minds of the quorum whether they thought it best. It was voted unanimously that we think it wisdom to have some rules printed for that purpose.

It was also unanimously voted that President Young introduced the rules.

He then explained that he had some rules draughted [drafted] last evening. but they were now at the office to be printed early for tomorrow, he however explained the majority of them explaining also the order he wished carried out, and then took a vote whether this quorum will sustain him this regulation. The vote was unanimous in the affirmative.

He then observed that he should henceforth have all the cloth which was intended for robes, garments, and aprons, brought and either cut or made in this Temple under the superintendance of those who know how to do it right. There are now scarcely two aprons alike nor two garments cut or marked right, and it is necessary to observe perfect order in this thing and it never can be done unless we take this course.

A conversation then ensued on the distinction of office or power between a president of Seventies, and a member of the High Council or a High Priest. It arose in consequence of some of the High Council having been washed and anointed by some of the presidents of Seventies & inasmuch as [sic] their [sic] had been some considerable differense in the views of the brethren in regard to the difference of authority between the High Council and Seventies, President Young concluded it would be wisdom to have the subject understood at this early stage of business so as to prevent any feelings or dispute arising on the subject hereafter.

He stated that the Seventies are ordained Apostles, and when they go forth into the ministry, they are sent with power to build up the Kingdom in all the world, and consequently they have power to ordain High Priests, and also to ordain and organize a High Council.

Some of the High Priests have been ready to quarrel on the subject, supposing they had power and authority above the Seventies, and some in their zeal for power, have abused and trampled on the feelings of some of the Seventies.

There is too much covetousness in the Church and too much disposition amongst the brethren to seek after power and as been from the beginning, but this feeling is diminishing and the brethren begin to know better. In consequence of such feelings Joseph left the people in the dark on many subjects of importance and they still remain in the dark. We have got to rid such principles form our hearts.

He then referred to the manner in which the cornerstones of the Temple were laid as published in the Times and Seasons, and then stated that the perfect order would have been for the presidency of the Stake to lay the first or South East corner. The High Council the 2nd or South West corner. The Bishops the North West corner and the Priests the North East corner, but added the High Priests laid the South West corner, but they had no right to do it.

He then introduced the subject of the brethren making objections to any person being permitted to receive the ordinances, and added that when the objections were made he should feel bound to determine whether the person making the objections was a responsible person, if he was not he should do as he pleased about listening to the objections, but if he was a responsible person he should then listen to the objections.

To make a man a responsible man he must have the power and ability not only to save himself but to save others, but there are those who are not capable of saving themselves and will have to be saved if they are saved at all by those who are capable of doing it. An objection from such would have no weight on his mind.

When a man objects to another receiving the ordinances he becomes responsible to answer to God for that mans salvation. And who knows but if he received the ordinances he would be saved, but if we refuse to give him the means he cannot be saved and we are responsible for it. There is no law to prevent any man from obtaining all the blessings of the Priesthood if he will walk according to the commandments, pay his tithes and seek after salvation, but he may deprive himself of them.

After much important instruction from the president the signs of the Holy Priesthood were offered up and praying. Elder Orson Hyde being mouth. After which the company were dismissed til next Sunday with strict orders to be here and dressed precisely at 11 o clock.

At 2 o clock P.M. agreeable to appointment nearly all those new members [of the Holy Order] who have received the ordinances the past week assembled in the upper department to receive instructions in regard to the ordinances and their duty to be observed henceforth and forever. At the same hour Prest Young, H.C. Kimball, P. Pratt, O. Pratt, O. Hyde, J. Taylor, G. A. Smith, A. Lyman, N. K. Whitney, G. Miller, W. W. Phelps, appointed W. W. Phelps and P.P. Pratt to instruct the brethren & sisters not waiting which was done and much good instruction given by them. They were especially instructed more fully into the nature and importance of the blessings and powers of the Holy Priesthood which they have received, and it was enjoined upon them not to talk out of doors, but to be wise and prudent in all things.

They were also informed that no one will be admitted into these rooms during the time we are to work except those who are asked to assist, unless they are invited by those who have authority.

At a quarter to 5 they were dismissed by blessing from Er [Elder] Taylor.

At the same time this was going on those who were in president Youngs room were listening to a number of letters which were read together with.the report of the trial of J. B. Backenstos as published in the Iowa Register.

About 5 O clock nearly all the company having left the house President Young and others of the Twelve went down to the lower story of the Temple to council together on the arrangements of the Pulpits.

The following persons remained and slept in the Temple over night, viz. Prest Young, A.P. Rockwood, J.D. Lee & David Candland. (Heber C. Kimball Journal).

... About 11. o. the breth. met for service & I presented the rules of order after singing & prayer accepted. We then partook of the sacrament spent the rest of the day with the brethren in giving them instruction and offering prayer's to the most High (Brigham Young journal)

21 December 1845: Sunday

Instructions given to the Quorum of Anointed by George A. Smith, Heber C. Kimball, and Amasa M. Lyman:

Sunday December 21st, 1845.

According to appointment on Sunday last, a meeting was held in the east room this day of all those who could cloth themselves in the garments of [the] Priesthood -- 75 persons were present, Elder H. C. Kimball presiding. The names of those-present so far as the clerks could ascertain them are as follows -- H.C. Kimball, Vilate Kimball - John Taylor Leonora Taylor-- P.P. Pratt. Mary Ann Pratt Orson Pratt. Sarah M. Pratt -- Amasa Lyman Maria Louisa Lyman -- George A. Smith. Bathsheba W. Smith, John Smith, Patriarch, Clarissa Smith Alpheus Cutler, Lois Cutler Reynolds Cahoon. Tirzah Cahoon, George Miller, Clarissa Miller -- C.C. Rich Sarah D. Rich - W.W. Phelps -- Sally Phelps Samuel Bent. Theodore Turley -- F.D. Richards Jane S. Richards.--David Fullmer, Rhoda Ann Fullmer--Ruben Miller--F. Nickerson Simeon Carter--Lydia Carter -- Thomas Grover -- Caroline F. Grover G. W. Harris Lucinda Harris -- William Felshaw, Mary H. Felshaw, James Allred--Elizabeth Allred Elizabeth Taylor--Steven Markham Levi Richards--Wm A Sanqer, Mary Sanger Louisa Sanger--William Crosby, Sally Crosby, Joseph Fielding & wife (Hannah Fielding) Elijah Fordham, Anna B. Fordham William Weeks Caroline Weeks -- David Candland -- L.R. Foster, Mary Smith Mercy R. Thompson -- John M. Bernhisel Erastus Snow -- Ezra T. Benson & wife John Pack & wife -- Cynthia Durfee, Eliza R. Snow--James Taylor, Joseph L. Heywood & wife William Cahoon & wife and 2 others whose names were not obtained.----

At five minutes before 11. the song, "Glorious things of thee are spoken" was sung &c--

Father John Smith then made a few remarks, blessed the bread and it (was) handed round by Bishop George Miller--The wine was blessed by (Bishop) Geo. Miller and handed round by him--while the wine was passing round, Elder Geo. A. Smith arose and addressed the congregation. He thanked God for the privileges this day enjoyed & spoke of the difficulties under which the church had labored to attain to the blessings we now enjoy. Another thing he thanked God for--Already [we have] had more than 500. hundred persons through the ordinances of the endowment), and therefore, if half of them should be-like the foolish virgins, and turn away from the truth, the principles of the Holy Priesthood would be beyond the reach of mobs and the assaults of the adversaries of the Chruch. -- Order was one of the laws of Heaven there ought to be no whispering here -- no difficulty ought to be mentioned. - whatever transpires here ought not to be mentioned any where else -- When we pray to the Lord we ought to come together clad in proper garments, and when we do so, and unite our hearts and hands togethere, and act as one mind, the Lord will hear us and will answer our prayers. Our garments should be properly marked and we should understand these marks and we should whear these garments continually, by night & by day, in prison or free and if the devils in hell cut us up, let them cut the garments to pieces also -- if we have the garments upn us at all times we can at any time offer up the signs, (and-tokens) He then related an instance of some children being healed and cured of the whooping cough in one night, through the prayers of himself and Elder Woodruff in Michigan while they were there on a mission [in June 1844 before the death of the Prophet Joseph]. Said that whenever they could get an opportunity they retired to the wilderness or to an upper room-- they did so and offered up the signs [and prayed after the Holy Order], and were always answered. It would be a good thing for us to put on our garments every day pray to God, and in private circles, when we can do so with safety --

We are now different form what we were before we entered into this quorum [of anointed]--Speedy vengeance will now overtake the transgressor-- When a man and his wife are united in feeling, and act in union, I believe that they can hold their children by prayer and faith and will not be obliged to give them up to death until they are fourscore years old. [See, Mosiah Chapter 27-particularly verses 14 & 22-23:

> And again, the angel said: Behold, the Lord hath heard the prayers of his people, and also the prayers of his servant, Alma, who is thy father; for he has prayed with much faith concerning thee that thou mightest be brought to the knowledge of the truth; therefore, for this purpose hive I come to convince thee of the power and authority of God, that the prayers of his servants might be answered according to their faith.
> And he [Alma-the-Elder] caused the priests should assemble themselves together; and they began to fast, and to pray to the Lord their God that he would open the mouth of Alma[-the-Younger] that he might speak, and also that his limbs might receive their strength--that the eyes of the people might be opened to see and know of the goodness and glory of God.
> And it came to pass after they had fasted and prayed for the space of two days and two nights, the limbs of Alma received their strength, and he stood up and began to speak unto them, bidding them to be of good comfort:],

Sometimes men trifles, destroy the confidence which each ought to have in each other. this prevents a union of faith & feeling-- The apostasy of Thomas B. Marsh was caused by so small a thing as a pint of striplings--and his oaths brought the exterminating order which drove us all out of Missouri-- The woman ought to be in subjection to the man--be careful to guard against loud laughter--against whispering--against levity, talebearing. He expressed his unfeigned love for the brethren, and his confidence in their endeavors to keep these rules.--

"The Spirit of God" was then sung--

Elder Kimball next addressed the meeting--. He concurred in all that had been said-- the observation of these things is most essential. About four years ago next May [Which would have been May 4, 1842 to be exact] nine persons were admitted into the Holy order--five are now living, B. Young. W. Richards, George Miller, N. K. Whitney and H. C. Kimball, two are dead [James Adams, d. 11 August 1843 and Hyrum Smith, d. 27 June 1844], and two are worse than dead [meaning William Law and William Marks]. You have not got all you will have if you are faithful and keep your toung in your mouth--You are pronounced clean, but were you pronounced clean from the blood of this generation! NO! Not all of you. Only some few who have deserved it Females were not received when we first received the Holy Order-- [Meaning the second anointing, the anointing of Kings and Queens and Priests and Priestesses, which would commence a few days later in January]. Men apostatized, being bed by their wives-- if any such cases occure again no more women will be admitted-- He spoke of the necessity of women being in subjection to their husbands "I am subject to my God [since men are anointed as Kings and Priests unto the Most High God and His Father and receives revelation for his posterity from this great Patriarchal chain], my wife is subject to me and will reverence me in my place, and I will try to make her happy [since men's wives are anointed as Queens and Priestesses to their husbands and receive all the blessings in the fulness of the priesthood jointly with them]. I do not want her to step forward and dictate to me any more than I dictate to President Young-- In his absence I take his place according to his request [Possibly meaning that when the husband is absent, then, the wife acting as the Queen and Priestess in their kingdom would step forward and lead in family prayer and etc].

Shall we cease from loud laughter and mirth? will you never slander your brother and sister [We covenant not to speak evil of the Lord's Anointed--which are other members of the Quorum of Anointed. Also all who have the endowment are anointed, as they have been washed and anointed.]? I will refer your minds to the covenants you have made by an observance of these things you will have dreams and visions. In the coming week we will take through 100 a day. we want no man to come in here unless he is invited, or on business Let those having cloth to make up send it here and we will make it up & put it to good use--Women should be appointed to attend to the washing and anointings of the High Priests wives. There is a lot ahead. You are not yet ordained to anything [meaning Kings and Priests, Queens and Priestesses and ect. see D&C 76:56-58], but we have the clay here it is mellow & we shall soon put it on the wheel. If any brother divulges anything we shall cut him off. We shall not be with you long. We cannot rest day or night until we put you in possession of the Priesthood. We want you now to make up garments for yourselves I want my own robe back again --If we have made you clean every whit, now go to work and make others clean." [People are going to be made clean every whit in the next few days as they receive the washing of feet and receive the fulness of the Priesthood making them Kings and Priests unto the Most High God and their wives Queens and Priestess unto them.] We will have a screen put up before the vail and will make an office of my room, and have a stairway leading down from it. No person will be allowed to take people through the vail but those appointed Let women wait upon women & let men wait upon men. then no jealousies will arise. He closed at 5 mi. before one.

Elder P.P. Pratt approved of what had been said & said a few words about the fasion of our robes his own robe, which was like those first used, was not sewed up at the sides, neither was it of more than one breadth.

Elder Kimball showed the right fashion for the leaf.--Spoke of Elder Richards being protected at Carthage Jail having on the robe, while Joseph & Hyrum and Eld[er] Taylor were shot to pieces said the Twelve would have to leave shortly, for a charge of treason would be brought against them for swearing us to avenge the blood of the anointed ones, and some one would reveal it, and we shall have to put some day between sundown and dark--

George Miller said that when near the camp of Gen Hardin, he was shot at and the Sentinel who was near him was killed, but he escaped unhurt, having on his garments--He spoke of the design and purpose for which all (the signs-&tokens) Symbols in the garden were given &c, Paul said he bore in his body the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ [Galatian 6:17]--which was as plainly as he dare allude to these things in writing. But the marks Paul alluded to were just such as we now have on our garments-- He spoke of the signs, tokens & penalties, and of the work in general, said it was the work of God, by which he designs to reinstate man into his presence &c.

Elder John Taylor confirmed the saying that Joseph and Hyrum & himself were without their robes in the jail at Carthage whil Doct Richards Had his on, but corrected the idea that some had that they had taken them off through fears.

W.W. Phelps said Joseph told him one day about that time, that he had laid aside his garment on account of the hot weather

Elder Kimball said word came to him & to all the Twelve about that time to lay aside their garments and take them to pieces, or cut them up so they could not be found.

> [Joseph and Hyrum could have, once again, been following the pattern of the Savior in this matter. Joseph knowing, like the Savior he would be a martyr. A careful study of John 13:1-20 will show that the Prophet Joseph Smith has prepared the twelve and has washed and pronounced them clean every whit (John 13:10) and made them Kings and Queens and Priests and Priestesses and given them every needful thing. Now Joseph sensing his own martyrdom now follows the pattern of the Savior himself. John 13:3-4 "Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things unto his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God; He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself." One will notice by careful reading that it is never stated that Joseph's and our Perfect Example ever puts back on his garments. Perhaps there is a correlation. One could only know by prayerful pondering and confirmation for the Lord through the Holy Ghost.]

The sisters ought not to gather together in schools to pray unless their husbands or some man be with them--every evening at 5 o clock the High Priests meet for prayer by themselves, clothed in their robes of Priesthood Also the High Council, and the Seventies--

There are from seven to twelve persons who have met together every day to pray [in a Prayer Circle] ever since Joseph's death, and the people have been sustained upon this principle [the true order of prayer.] Here is Brother Turley [he] has been liberated by the power of God and not of man [--according to faith and prayer in the true order of prayer]. And I have covenanted, and never will rest nor my posterity after me until those men who killed Joseph & Hyrum have been wiped out of the earth.

Elder Cahoon had permission to speak at 20 m. past one. He bore testimony of the importance of those things which had been spoken. He rejoiced in the idea that the things he was taught in the beginning were the same things now taught and remembered, and it is so because they are eternal things.

The whole assembly was then formed into 2 circles one within the other The signs and tokens were given, the proper attitude for prayer assumed, [most probably in the True Order of Prayer formed in the Prayer Circle], and Elder [John] Taylor being mouth the whole congregation united with him in prayer to God at 10 minutes past 2 [the Congregation probably repeating the prayer after Elder Taylor, as is done today, in our own Prayer Circles]. the meeting was dismissed and all unclothed themselves of their robes and another congregation which had been waiting in the vestibule of the temple was admitted into the east room, not being clothed in the garments of [the] Priesthood.

At three o'clock sang, "Hosanna"--prayer by Orson Hyde, after which by invitation of Elder kimball who presided (President Young not having been at the Temple today, and the duty of presiding having devolved upon Elder Kimball as the next in successiou [sic]) Amasa Lyman addressed the assembly.

He said, "Doubtless with most of the present assembly it is the beginning of a new era in their lives--they have come to a place [in] time they never saw before--they have come to the commencement of a knowledge of things, and it is necessary that they should be riveted on their minds. One important thing to be understood is this, that those portions of the priesthood which you have receive are all essential matters--it is not merely that you may see these things, but it is a matter of fact, a matter that has to do directly with your salvation-- for which you have talked and labored many years-- it is not for amusement you are brought to receive these things-- but to put you in possession of the means of salvation, and be brought into a proper relationship to God--Hence a man becomes responsible for his own conduct and that of his wife, if he has one. It is not designed that the things that are presented today should be forgotton [sic] tomorrow, but [they should be] remembered and practiced [sic] through all [your] coming life-Hence it is a stepstone to approach to the favor of God.

Having descended to the lowest state of degradation, it is the beginning of a homeward journey. It is like a man lost in a wilderness, and the means with which we are invested here to direct us in our homeward journey. You then see the reason why you are required to put away your vanities, cease to talk of all those things which are not conducive to eternal life.

This is why you are required to be sober, to be honest, that you could ask and receive, knock and it should be opened, and that when you sought for things you would find them. It is putting you in possession of those keys by which you can ask for things you need and obtain them--this is the key by which to obtain all the glory and felicity of eternal life-- It is the key by which you approach God. No impression which you receive here should be lost. It was to rivet the recollections of the tokens & covenants in your memory like a nail in a sure place, never to be forgotten.

The scenery through which you have passed is actually laying before you a picture a map, by which you are to travel through life, and obtain an entrance into the celestial [sic] Kingdom hereafter. If you are tempted in regard to these things here [in the Temple], you will be tempted when you approach the presence of God hereafter. You have, by being faithful, been brought to this point, by maintaining these things which have been entrusted to you. This is a representation of the Celestial Kingdom. It is not merely for the sake of taking over these things that they are given to you, but for your benefit and for your triumph over the powers of darkness hereafter.

We want the man to remember that he has covenanted to keep the law of God, and the woman to obey her husband, and if you keep your covenants you will not be guilty of transgression. The line that is drawn is for you to maintain your covenants, and you will always be found in the path of obedience, after that which is virtuous and holy and good, and will never be swallowed up by unhallowed feelings and passions.

If you are found worthy, and maintain your integrity, and do not run away and think you have got all your endowment [this statement is made because Elder Lyman having been made a King and Priest unto God and his Wife a Queen and Priestess unto him knew the saints needed this ordiance to receive the fulness of the priesthood which would commence in the Nauvoo Temple a few day's thereafter], you will be found worthy after a while [to receive your Second Anointing], which will make you honorable with God. You have not yet been ordained to anything, but will be by and by [meaning Kings and Priests, Queens and Priestesses & ect]. You have received these things because of your compliance with all the requisitions with all the requisitions of the law, and if faithful you will receive more.

You have now learned how to pray [in the True Order of Prayer]. You have been taught how to approach God and be recognized [again in the True Order of Prayer or the Prayer Circle]. This is the principle by which the church has been kept together, and [it has] not [been by] the power of arms. A few individuals have asked for your preservation, and their prayers have been heard, and it is this which has preserved you from being scattered to the four winds.

Those who have learned to approach God and receive these blessings, are they better than you? The only difference is they have been permitted to have these things revealed unto them.

The principles which have been opened to you are the things which ought to occupy your attention all your lives. They are not second to anything; you have the key by which, if you are faithful, you will claim on your posterity all the blessings of the Priesthood.

Elder H. C. Kimball Said, "The ideas advanced by Brother Lyman are good and true. We have been taken as if were from the earth, and have travelled until we have entered the Celestial Kingdom. And what is it for, it is to personify Adam. And you discover that our God is like one of us, for He created us in his own image. Every man that ever came upon this earth, or any other earth, will take the course we have taken--another thing, it is to bring us to an organization, and just as quick as we can get into that order and government, we have the celestial [sic] Kingdom here. You have got honor and reverence your brethren, for if you do not you never can honor God. The man was created, and God gave him dominion over the whole earth, but he saw that he never could multiply and replenish the earth without woman; and He made one and gave her to him. He did not make the man for the woman but the woman for the man, and it is just as unlawful for you to rise up and rebel against your husband, as it would be for a man to rebel against God.

When the man came to the vail, God gave the key word to the man, and the man gave it to the woman. But if a man does not use a woman well and take good care of her, God will take her away from him and give her to another.

Perfect order and consistency makes heaven, but we are now deranged, and the tail has become the head--

We have now come to this place, and all your former covenants are of no account. And here is the place where we have to enter into a new covenant, and be sealed, and have it recorded. One reason why we bring our wives with us is that they may make a covenant with us to keep these things sacred. You have been anointed to be Kings & Priests, [Queens and Priestesses] but you have not been ordained to it yet.--and you have got to get it by being faithful You can't sin so cheap now as you could before you came to this order [viz. received the ordinances of the Endowment]. It is not for us to reproach the Lord's anointed, nor to speak evil of him; all have covenanted not to do it.

One other thing. You all want to get garments, and you need not wait to get fine linen or bleached cotton for Your garments,--Shirting or sheeting will do for garments. The woman can cut them from the cuts on their husbands-- We dont want-you to come here and take up the time to cut your garments. Go to a good-faithful sister, & secrete yourselves, and make your garments. We have been crowede too much and we have got to stop it, and if you have cloth, and come here to get your cloth cut we shall keep it here to make use of till we get through. We don't want one person that has come into the order the week past, to come into this room during the coming week except those who are to work. If you want any thing let it come in writing.

David Sessions, Gilbert D. Gouldsmith and Elam Ludington volunteered to draw water from the river in barrels for the use of the Temple. Elder George A. Smith made a few remarks. He spoke principally in relation to the importance of keeping sacred the signs & tokens & principles we had received while passing along through the different degrees--

He was followed by Elder orson Hyde who said a few words in approbation of what had been said by Elder Smith and followed up in the same matters--

The congregation was dismissed by prayer by Elder John Taylor [probably in the same manner as the morning session] and soon departed from the Temple to their respective homes. (Helen Mar Whitney, "Scenes in Nauvoo, and Incidents from H.C. Kimball's Journal," The Woman's Exponent 12 (1 and 15 August 1883): 26, 34; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 113-117.) (Also Heber C. Kimballs Journal).

21 December 1845

A statement by Heber C. Kimball, which he made before two groups of newly endowed Saints in the Nauvoo Temple. To the First Group he said:

You [were] pronounced clean [in the washings], but were you pronounced clean from the blood of this generation? No! Not all of you. Only some few who have deserved it.

To the Second Group he said:

You have been washed and pronounced clean [in the washings], but not from the blood of this generation. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 1845-46, 21 December 1845, Chruch Archives.)

John 13:4-10

The Washing of Feet to become Clean every Whit:

|v4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.
|v6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
|v7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.
|v8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
|v9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.
|v10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, (NewT:John 13:4-10)

The following [is] a statement of Brigham Young in the Nauvoo Temple which includes the Prophet's teachings on the highest ordinances of the Temple: Those who come in here and have received their washing & anointing will [later] be ordained Kings & Priests, and will then have received the fulness of the Priesthood, all that can be given on earth. For Brother Joseph said he had given us all that could be given to man on the earth (Heber C. Kimball Journal kept by William Clayton, 26 December 1845, Church Archives). (TWOJS: p. 286 n 25.)

Heber C. Kimball--Records Brigham Youngs remarks of the faithful to be ordained Kings and Priests:

[T]hose who...come in here [the Nauvoo Temple] and have received their washing & anointing will, be ordained Kings & Priests, and will then have received the fulness of the Priesthood, all that can be given on earth. For Brother Joseph said he had given us all that could be given to man on the earth. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 26 December 1845; italics added; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 80.)

28 December 1845 Sunday

About two hunderd of the brethren and sisters met at thirty a.m. in the attic story of the Temple, some of the side rooms were filled. and the curtains withdrawn.

After singing and prayer, I addressed the meeting.

The sacrament was administered. Elder Kimball made a few remarks. After prayer the meeting was dismissed by benediction from Elder Orson Hyde. (H.C., VII p. 555-6.)

28 December 1845

Meeting at half past 10 o'clock this day in the attic story of the Temple for those who could clothe themselves in the garments of the Priesthood. A very large congregation was present, the side rooms were some of the them filled, the curtain was with drawn, and the other rooms besides the east room were filled. -- About 200 persons were present, clothed in priestly garments--Pres. Young addressed the meeting it having been opened by prayer by P.P. Pratt, & singing the songs of Zion, "The morning breaks the shadows flee" & "Come to Me" &c. Pres. Young came into the room at 1/4 before 12 N. -- He said he supposed those present were a part of those who had received their endowment. that they were those who desired to be wise and do honor to the cause they have espoused, and bring no reproach upon the character of him who has given us of the things of his Kingdom liberally. The Keys or Signs of the Priesthood are for the purpose of impressing on the mind the order of the creation- In the first place the name of the man is given a new name, Adam signifying the first man--or Eve, the first woman--Adam s name was more ancient than he was--it was the name of a man long before him, who enjoyed the priesthood. The new name should be after some ancient man--Thus with your ancient name, your modern name, and the name that was last given you, you enquire concerning things past present & future

After his fall, another name was given to Adam, and being full of integrity, and not disposed to follow the woman nor listen to her was permitted to receive the tokens of the priesthood.

I wish you to cease talking about what you see and here in this place. No man or woman has a right to mention a work of the appearance of this building in the least, nor to give the signs & tokens except when assembled together, according to the order of the Priesthood, which is in an upper room. There are not a dozen persons that can give the signs & token[s] correctly & the reason is that person would run to that vail. one of the most sacred places on the face of the earth, that had not understood the right manner of giving the signs & tokens

The order and ordinances passed through here prove the principles taught in the Bible -- First men should love their God supremely Woman will never get back, unless She follows the man back -- if the man had followed the woman he would have followed her down until this time--Light, liberty & happiness will never shine upon men until they learn these principles -- The love which David & Jonathan had for each other was the love of the priesthood.

God is a personage of tabernacle--The Son is a personage of tabernacle--The Spirit or Holy Ghost is also a personage, but not a personage of tabernacle, but is a personage of Spirit--God dwells in eternal burnings puts his hand through the vail & writes on the wall Any person that goes through these ordinances, unless they cleanse their hearts & sanctify themselves & sanctify the Lord, [this perhaps is what happened to the brother of Jared when he ask the God of eternal burnings to but fourth his hand and write on the wall or touch the stones and now, in metaphor, the brother of Jared took hold of the Lords hand by faith and the angles presented the man Jared to the Lord, now that he had conversed with him through the vail by seeing his hand, and said that Jared now desires to enter into the presence of the Lord. Now the Lord says in essence to the brother of Jared, Let him enter and Jared entered into the presence of the Lord. Another example of this is Moses, he climbs upon the holy temple mount and the Lord puts forth his finger and hand and writes upon the tablets and by and by Moses has the same experience as the brother of Jared and Moses is admitted into the presence of Lord. The Lord having written on the wall of the temple the commandments or the tablets for Moses. The best example and drawing though of what I believe is being said here is the Facsimly from the book of Abraham fig # 7 "Represents God sitting upon his throne, revealing through the heavens the grand Key-words of the Priesthood; as, also, the sign of the Holy Ghost unto Abraham, in the form of a dove."] it will damn them When we begin again I shall select those that are worthy-- We shall not be able to have another public meeting here on account of the weight on the floor, it has already caused the walls to crack -- prevents the doors from shutting, and will injure the roof. I see here 200 persons, all clothed in their garments. tomorrow I suppose we cannot find half enough to work with, unless we lay an embargo on your garments, and forbid any of you carrying away your garments. When we began we could dress a company of 30, now we cannot dress 18. For my right arm I would not say that everybody is honest, for I do not believe they are.

The names of those who would volunteer to furnish a suit of garments, to be used by those who were yet to go through the ordinances was then taken, they are as follows, viz W.W. Major, John Lytle, James Harman, Daniel Carter, John D. Lee, L.R. Foster, M.D. Hambleton, Vernon H. Bruce, Sidney A. Knowlton, Charles C. Rich, J. L. Heywood, Elijah Fordham, Norton Jacobs, Daniel Spencer, Joshua S. Holman, Willmer B. Benson, Hiram Spencer, L. O. Littlefield, J.M. Bernhisel Zimri H. Baxter, Andrew Whitlock, William A sanger, J.S. Hovey, Stephen Winchester Jr. Wm S. Covert, John S Hatfield, Joseph Kain P. G. Sessions - Ezra T. Benson Wm Matthews, Abraham Palmer & wife. 32 in all each of these agreed to furnish one suit of garments for Temple use--

It was decided that when the High Priests were washed & anointed they should find the oil, and the lights, and the Seventies do the same when they occupied the rooms and the wood is to [be] supplied as follows -- 1000 men, or as many as can be obtained, to go to the islands and cut wood, and teams to go and draw it to the Temple until 1000 cords have been obtained.

Sung the hymn, "Glorious things of thee are Spoken" Prayer by Amasa Lyman asking a blessing on the bread -- Bread passed round by Charles C. Rich and George Miller. Blessing on the wine [was] asked by P.P. Pratt While the wine was passing, sung the hymn "Adam ondi Ahman"

Elder H.C. Kimball cautioned the brethren and sisters against telling that the Twelve were in the Temple -- P.P. Pratt said a few words to the same point.

Elder Kimball moved that no man tell his wife what he had seen Pres Young said "all that are in favor of this signify it by holding your tongues when you go away from here." P.P. Pratt--"Contrary by the same sign."

Elder Kimball continued his remarks, alluded to the stories in circulation that several persons had been killed on their way through the ordinances, and that men and women were stripped naked here Joseph said that for men and women to hold their tongues was their Salvation.

A circle was formed composed of about 20 persons, most of whom had received the ordinances, and been admitted to the first quorum at a previous time They united in prayer Elder John Taylor being mouth A hymn was sung, being led by Goddard, Kay & Cahoon -- notice was given that no more meetings would be held in the Attic Story, for the present, and the congregation dismissed after prayer by Eld. Orson Hyde-- (Heber C. Kimball Journal)

Brigham Young and the using of our names--told in Nauvoo Temple concerning prayers--Sunday, Dec. 28, 1845:

At 10:00 a.m. in the House of the Lord, such of the Saints as were provided with Priestly Robes convened for worship, all being arrayed in Priestly attire--linen clean and white-- which is a token of the righteousness of the Saints. The congregation were seated in Perfect Order, then called to order by Elder Parley P. Pratt. A hymn was sung by the concourse. The Throne of Grace was then addressed by Parley P. Pratt. While supplicating the Throne of Grace (God) the Supplicant was fully overcome while remembering the condition of the scattered remnants of the House of Israel who are still under the hands of oppression. After the prayer the hymn "Come Unto Me" was sung led by Elder Kay.

President Brigham Young then arose and said that in-as-much as this congregation that are present are those that have received their endowments and only a small part of them, therefore, I will give some general instructions. While the bread and wine are preparing, the ordinances that you have received in the garden together with the performances of those things that has been presented are to represent the creation of the world, the name Adam was given him because he was the first man, but his new name pertained to the Holy Priesthood and as I before stated is more ancient than he was. There are four penal signs and four penal tokens and should I want to address the throne to inquire after ancient things which transpired on planets that rolled away before this planet came into existence, I should use my new name which is ancient and referred to ancient things. Should I wish to inquire for present things, I should use my own name which refers to present things, and would I want to inquire for future things, I would use the third name which refers to the first token of the Melchizedek Priesthood, or is the third token that is given and refers to the Son.

in one place and nowhere else but these signs and tokens that pertain to the Priesthood should never be given anywhere only in such places as belong to the order of the Priesthood. (Readings in Church History 2:188)

...the name that was given to Adam was more ancient than he was--The name Adam was given him because he was the first man--but his New Name pertained to the Holy Priesthood & as I before stated is more ancient than he was--there are 4 Penal Signs & 4 Penal Tokens and should I want to address the Thorne (sic) to enquire after ancient things which transpired on Plannets that roled abay before this Plannet came into existance, I should use my New Name which is Ancient & refers to Ancient things-Should I wish to Enquire Present things I should use my own Name which refers to present things & should I want to Enquire for Future things I would use the 3rd Name which refers to the first token of the Melchizedek Priesthood--or is the 3rd token that is given--& refers to the son--the 2nd Token of the M. Priesthood is to be given only in one place and nowher else--but these signs & tokens that pertain to the Priesthood should never be given any where only in such places as belong to the P.H. & that too by none but such as belong to the order of the Priesthood. How the name's are to be used in Prayer-John D. Lee Journal:

At 10 in the morning I entered the Temple of the Lord arrayed myself in Priestly attire -- and took my station near the head of the company -- by the speaker -- in order to take minutes -- of the discourse. Elder P.P. Pratt addressed the Throne of Grace. Pres. Brigham Young then arose draped in lined clean and white in the midst of about 300 that were arrayed in white robes -- which is an emblem of the righteousness of the saints -- He spoke in reference to the order of the Priesthood -- the signs and tokens connected there with -- he observed that there were 4 penal signs and 4 penal tokens and each one of them aludes (sic) to certain names -- the first aludes to your New or 1st Name and 2nd to the 2nd and so on and should I or any of you want to inquire of the Lord -- for anything ancient that transpired on Plannets (sic) that rolled into existence long after this world or theater then myself and refern (sic) to ancient times -- and should I want to enquire for things that are modern I would use my own name and to inquire for things that are future I would use the name which refers to things in future -- using the signs that are connected with the 3 names -- The spirit of Elijah's God was in our midst and surely we had a time of rejoicing -- while we partook of the Bread and Wine and that or our own make pure and good -- such a stene (sic) my eye never before beheld. George Albert Smith said concerning the "True Order of Prayer:

When we pray to the Lord we ought to come together clad in proper garments, and when we do so, and unite our hearts and hands together, the Lord will hear us and will answer our prayers. (Heber C. Kimball 1845-46 Journal, Dec. 28, 1845, Church Archives.) [Note the Following:

> When we pray to the Lord we ought to
> > [1] come together [men and women, in the true order of prayer]
> >
> > [2] clad in proper garments [garments of the priesthood],
> > [3] unite our hearts [if our hearts are not united we are asked to remove ourselves so that the spirit can be unrestrained], and
> > [4] [unite] our hands together [the signs and tokens that pertain to the priesthood],
> the Lord will hear us and will answer our prayers.]

28 December 1845

George A. Smith Explained:

If we have the garments [of the holy priesthood] upon us at all times we can at anytime offer up the signs. (Heber C. Kimball 1845-46 Journal, December 28, 1845.)

28 December 1845

Brigham Young Cautioned:

These signs and tokens that pertain to the Priesthood should never be given any where only in such places as belong to the P[riesthood] and that too by none but such as belong to the order of the Priesthood. (Seventies Record Book B, December 28, 1845, Church Archives.)

Describing the work in the Nauvoo temple Lisle G. Brown has written about the rooms along the side of the Celestial Room:

This room also served as sealing room, in which couples were sealed in the Holy Order of Matrimony. It was also called the Holy of Holies. An altar was installed in the room on 7 January 1846 and was dedicated by Brigham Young the same day. Heber C. Kimball left a description of the altar, which was later included in the published History of the Church:

> The altar is about two and one-half feet high and two and one-half feet long and about one foot wide, rising from a platform about 8 or 9 inches high and extending out on all sides about a foot, forming a convenient place to kneel upon. The top of the altar and the platform for kneeling upon are covered with cushions of scarlet damask cloth; the sides of the upright part or body of the altar are covered with white linen. [H.C. 7:556]

After the installation of the altar in room one, Brigham Young began sealing couples in the Holy Order of Matrimony. The highest ordinances of the temple were also performed in the same room. Apparently because it proved difficult to continue administering both marriages and t hese ordinances [the highest ordinances] in the same room, Brigham Young later assigned rooms two and four for giving the most sacred ordinance, as he noted in his diary on 27 January. Both John D. Lee and Norton Jacob wrote of receiving their blessings of the fulness of the priesthood in rooms two and four respectively. (The sacred Departments for Temple Work in Nauvoo: The assembly room and the Council Chamber, Lisle G. Brown, Brigham Young University Studies, Spring 1979, Vol. 19, p. 373.)

Introduction to the Book of Anointings:

Brigham Young and the Twelve were Zealous in fulfilling Joseph's intentions for the Nauvoo Temple when ordinance work began in December 1845. In less than sixty days, over 5,000 persons received the endowment, 2,420 living individuals received eternal marriage sealings, 369 persons participated in proxy marriage ordinances, 71 children were sealed, 130 adoptions were preformed, and 591 received the anointings of the fulness of the priesthood [and were made Kings and Queens, Priests and Priestesses unto the Most High God.] (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 240.)

|v8 The Melchizedek Priesthood holds the right of presidency, and has power and authority over all the offices in the church in all ages of the world, to administer in spiritual things.
|v9 The Presidency of the High Priesthood, after the order of Melchizedek, have a right to officiate in all the offices in the church.
|v10 High priests after the order of the Melchizedek Priesthood have a right to officiate in their own standing, under the direction of the presidency, in administering spiritual things, and also in the office of an elder, priest (of the Levitical order), teacher, deacon, and member.
|v11 An elder has a right to officiate in his stead when the high priest is not present.
|v12 The high priest and elder are to administer in spiritual things, agreeable to the covenants and commandments of the church; and they have a right to officiate in all these offices of the church when there are no higher authorities present.
|v13 The second priesthood is called the Priesthood of Aaron, because it was conferred upon Aaron and his seed, throughout all their generations.
|v14 Why it is called the lesser priesthood is because it is an appendage to the greater, or the Melchizedek Priesthood, and has power in administering outward ordinances.

|v15 The bishopric is the presidency of this priesthood, and holds the keys or authority of the same. (D&C: Section 107:8-15)

 Anointing Blessing of Brigham Young

Brother Brigham Young, I pour this holy, consecrated oil, upon your head, and anoint thee a King and a Priest of the Most High God in over (sic) the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and unto all Israel: and I anoint thy head, that thy brain may be healthy and active and quick to think and to understand and to direct thy whole body and I anoint thy eyes that they may see and perceive, and that thou mayest not be deceived in what thou beholdest, and that thy sight may never fail thee: and I anoint thy ears that they may be quick to hear and communicate to thy understanding; and that thou mayest hear the secret deliberations of thy enemies, and thereby thou shalt be enabled to overreach their designs: and I anoint thy nose that thou may scent, and relish the fragarence (sic) of the good things of the earth: and I anoint thy mouth that thou mayest be enabled to speak the great things of God, and confound all the wisdom of man, and put to nought all who shall raise up to oppose thee, in all countries where thou goest for thou shalt build up the Kingdom of God among many people, and in the midst of mighty nations: so thy glory shall be established, and whosoever thou shalt bind on earth, shall be bound in heaven, and whomsoever thou shalt loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven; for there shall be given unto thee crowns, and kingdoms, and dominions; and thou shalt receive all thy heart shall desire; and thy soul shall besatisfied with a multitude of blessings which thou shalt receive; for princes shall bow at thy feet and deliver unto thee their treasures; and thou shalt teach them the principles of salvation. And I seal thee up unto Eternal Life, that thou shalt come forth in the morn of the first resurrection, and receive all these blessings, in their fulness. And thou shalt attain unto [the] Eternal Godhead, and receive a fulness of Joy, and glory, and power; and that thou mayest do all things whatsoever is wisdom that thou shouldest do, even if it be to create worlds and redeem them: so shall thy joy be full to the praise and glory of God: Amen.

Anointing Blessing of Mary Ann Young.

Sister Mary Ann Young, I pour upon thy head this holy, consecrated oil, and seal upon thee all the blessings of the everlasting priesthood, in conjunction with thy husband: and I anoint thee to be a Queen and Priestess (sic) unto thy husband, over the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; and thou shalt be heir to all the blessings which are sealed upon him, inasmuch as thou dost obey his counsel; and thou shalt receive glory, honor, power and exaltation in his exaltation: and thou shalt be a strength in thy mind for thou shalt have visions, and manifestations of the Holy Spirit, and the time shall come that Angels shall visit thee, and minister unto thee, and teach thee; and in absence(sic) of thy husband shall comfort thee, and make known his situation.

Thou shalt be a wise counsellor to many of thy sex, and they shall look unto thee for precept and [f]or example.

Thou shalt be noted and honored for thy generosity, and the freedom and good feelings with which thou shalt relieve the wants of the distressed; and the disgression (sic) with which thou shalt act in thy sphere in all things. And I seal thee up unto Eternal Life, thou shalt come forth in the morning of the first resurrection and inherit with him all the honors, glories, and power of Eternal Lives, and that thou shalt attain unto the eternal Godhead, so thy exaltation shall be perfect, and thy glory by full, in a fulness of power and exaltation.

And the glory, honor and power shall be ascribed unto the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost: Amen.

[Also, included are journal entries recorded by the saints of these events, and the Priesthood office held by the brethren. It is interesting to note that:
[1] Many/Some of the brethren held offices in the priesthood other than High Priest, such as Seventy, Elder, and Teacher, and
[2] Many of these brethren mentioned in [1] remained in that same office of the priesthood, in which they were ordained into their deaths,
[3] Men were anointed priests rather than ordained priests, and
[4] Many of them were left in the office of the priesthood that they were ordained to, such as, High Priest, Seventy, Elder and Teacher in the Aaronic priesthood.
This would seem to indicate:
[1] Being anointed a King and P R I E S T unto the Most High God is the conferral, bestowal or granting of all the priesthood over ones own kingdom. The prophet Joseph Smith said, "Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings [within their own kingdom(s)]." (Teachings, p. 322.)

Kingdom of "Priests & Kings":
The covenant that the Lord sought to make with Israel was one in which they would become a "kingdom of priests", and an holy nation: (Exodus 19:6). "Early commentators, both Jewish and Christian, and also in the ancient versions,: understood this to mean that they would be "priests and kings" (Biblical Commentary 2:96-97). That accords with the expectation of the New Testament Saints (Revelation 1:5-6; 5:9-10) and in the same promise made to the Saints of our day (D&C 76:56). (Gospel Symbolism, Joseph Fielding McConkie, 1985, p. 61.)
In the Secrets of Enoch we have an account of Enoch being taken unto the presence of the Lord. In this instance the Lord instructs Michael, "Go and take Enoch from out his earthly garments, and anoint him with my sweet ointment, and put him into the garments of My glory." This having been done, Enoch records, "I looked at myself, and was like one of his glorious ones." (2 Enoch 22:8-9.) In another Enoch manuscript, an account is given of Enoch being taken again into the heavenly court, clothed with the garments of glory, and invited to sit upon the heavenly throne. He had a crown placed upon his head, and was called the "Lesser YHWH" (Jehovah) in the presence of the heavenly household. (3 Enoch 12:2-5.)
Describing the manner of his dress when he was taken to the heavenly court, Levi said he "put on the robe of the priesthood, and the crown of righteousness, and the breastplate of understanding, and the garment of truth, and the plate of faith, and the turban of the head, and the ephod of prophecy.: in so doing he was assisted by seven angels.

"The first anointed me with holy oil, and gave to me the staff of judgment. The second washed me with pure water, and fed me with bread and wine (even) the most holy things, and clad me with a holy and glorious robe. The third clothed me with a linen vestment like an ephod. The fourth put round me a girdle like unto purple. The fifth gave me a branch or rich olive. The sixth placed a crown on my head. The seventh placed on my head a diadem of priesthood, and filled my hands with incense, that I might serve as priest to the Lord God." (Testament of Levi 8:2-11.) (Gospel Symbolism, Joseph Fielding McConkie, 1985, p. 134-135.)

In the Old Testament, anointing was the divinely appointed rite for the inauguration of prophets, priests, and kings--all of whom were types of Christ, the great Prophet, Priest, and King. (Gospel Symbolism, Joseph Fielding McConkie, 1985, p. 201.)

As Paul said:

Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; And ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's. (NewT:1 Corinthians 3:22-23)

Fully Anointed-the Culminating of being Anointed a King and a Priest:

The English word Christ is from a Greek word meaning [fully] anointed of the Father [King of kings and Lord of lords, or his proxy, the Prophet and those delegated with this authority] to be the [Fathers] personal representative in all things pertaining the salvation of mankind. (Bible Dictionary, p. 609.)

From this we would conclude that each person fully anointed becomes a Christ as Paul states in 1 Cor. 3:22-23, and that those persons in reality becomes a god (christ) to his own posterity taking the place of the Father unto his posterity unto the salvation of mankind who are his seed.

Being anointed a king and priest is the authority over ones posterity to reign as king of kings, lord of lords and god of gods. It includes being the King and ruler of mankind or societies, as one is anointed "King" and the authority over all nature and creations and the governing of elements, as one is made "a Priest". And thus one becomes a joint heir with Christ and Equal with God as he has taken on the Countenance and same work of the Father and the Son and is "Anointed a King and Priest unto the Most High God and his Father" as far back as that goes.

The difference between being Anointed a "king and a priest unto the Most High God and His Father", and being ordained to an office in the priesthood seems to be this:

1. When one is anointed King and Priest they are given all priesthood authority to bless, govern, preside as patriarch (father), prophet, priest and king in and over their posterity to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of their offspring, As given at the veil of the Temple. They are in essence king of kings and lord of lords and god of gods unto their posterity. There house is in order and they preside over it.

2. God said, "Behold, mine house is a house of order, saith the Lord God, and not a house of confusion." (D. & C. 132:8.) Therefore, since the Patriarchal priesthood is to preside over ones own family, as Adam presides over his posterity, God:

Established the Church, and its various offices in his Church to stand as the Proxy Patriarch over those orphans who had no Patriarchal priesthood, to fully endow and anoint their children making them Christs and Gods and Kings and Priests unto the Most High God and His Father. The Patriarchal Priesthood becoming degenerate and corrupted and no longer existing--the Father established a Church and set at its head a Proxie "King of kings and Lord of lords" and Patriarch for Himself and all the authority over all the families of the earth because we are all the Fathers children, ie. Brigham Young being anointed "King and Priest of the Most High God over the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, and unto all Israel--meaning not only the House of Israel but all of Gods posterity, Ham, Shem and Japeth. This then made the Church the proxy Patriarch of all the orphans of the degenerate true Patriarchal priesthood and men were "ordained" (meaning order) to different offices in this Proxy Patriarchal order (the Church)--Thus being ordained and assigned to offices within this structure to carry out the same function as a patriarch would if he were available. Thus, one could be assigned to different offices in this structure, the Church, to help reestablish the Patriarchal priesthood of each father.

[1] Men were ordained to Offices in the 3rd Priesthood-the Melchizedek priesthood-which is without Father or Mother and could be ordained to function as High Priest, Seventy, Elder, Teacher, and etc.--being transferred around in the various offices as the need raised in the Proxy Patriarchal Chruch, i.e. Men were Ordained as High priests etc. and then later called to serve in other offices such as Elders quorum president or the president priests in the Aaronic priesthood and could be suffeled around and reassigned as the need arrised.

[2] This is why when anointed king and priest unto the Most High God and His Father, many were not ordained a High priest, nor did they need to be because this is an office in the Proxy Patrichal Church structure and they could sit in the office which they were directed as Teacher in the Aaronic priesthood, Elder, Seventy, High Priest etc. This was for the Church, or the other children of the Father outside their own posterity. They could not bless, bestow, endow, give the priesthood, or make Kings and Priests etc. to others outside their own family unless they were given authority from the Father to do so. Thus the Prophet holds the Keys of this Proxy Patriarchal Church Priesthood and is the third priesthood reestablishing the true Patriarchal priesthood and when all has been restored and the sealing of Each Patriarch to each other back to the Great Patriarch, the Most High God has taken place there will be no need for the Proxy Patrichal Church-but we will act under the direction of the Patriarchal Chain and each patriarch will be king of kings and Lord of lords to his posterity to the latest generation and throughout all eternity.

[3] Since anointing one a King and Priest unto the Most high God and his Father-this is giving him all the authority to bring to pass the eternal life of his posterity. He can seal all the blessings to his posterity that there are and he holds these keys--the Patriarch holds the sealing blessing--whereby posterity are sealed up unto the day of redemption unto the most high God and His father (D&C 124:124). Because this priesthood was corrupted and degenerate the Lord established the Proxy Patrichal Priesthood Chruch, made it the Proxy Patriarch and placed a Prophet at the head of it as the Proxy, Patriarch, prophet, priest and king over all his posterity to reestablish the patriarchal priesthood and govern all his posterity (D&C 124:125).

[4] This is why men didn't need to be Ordained a High Priest when anointed king and priest-Ordinations are to officiate in offices in the Proxy Patriarchal Priesthood without father and mother. When Men were Anointed Priest and King they were given all power in the priesthood through time and all Eternity to exalt there posterity and seal them up and bless them and endow them and govern them. They had all they needed--they would attained even unto the Godhead with their spouse (see Brigham and Mary Young's Second anointings).

[5] The Patriarchal priesthood was the priesthood which Abraham held--Because He Was not given the keys of King of Kings and Lord of Lords or Proxy Patriarch over all of God's Children. Law of Adoption was established, temporarily making men his children to bless them with this priesthood and seal them up to the Father. This, Adoption-the ability to transfer the Keys of King of Kings and Lord of Lords, was a forerunner to the keys of Elijah, which would set Gods house in order again, assign and reestablish the true Patriarchal Chain sealing every person to there proper father and not just to Israel all the way back to the Father Himself.

The Lord Establishing everything line upon line established the Law of Adoption first-so that we could be grafted on a living tree until he taught the dead and reestablish the patriarchal priesthood which had become degenerate and dead and make it living again. Thus the Lord first sent an Elias to graft us into something that was currently living and at the Kirtland Temple "Elias appeared [a forerunner to something which will follow which is greater], and committed the dispensation of the gospel of Abraham [Adoption], saying that in us and our seed all generations after us should be blessed (D&C 110:12) [receive all the ordinances--Thus the children of Japeth, Shem and Ham receive their priesthood under the Hand of Abraham's seed and we all receive the resurrection and ultimate blessing from Abraham's offspring, Christ. But, Adoption is not totally correct--in order to be totally correct--Elijah must come to reseal us into the true Patriarchal order, our patriarchal blessings coming from our true fathers, the children of Shem being sealed up to him, and that the Children of Japeth being sealed up to him and the Children of Ham being sealed up to him. The Children of Israel to Abraham and back to Shem. All being placed into a resurrected living tree in its proper form and branch back to the Father--this being the tree of life--the true tree. "After the vision [of Elias and the dispensation of the gospel of Abraham [Adoption] closed, another great and glorious vision burst upon us; for Elijah the prophet, who was taken to heaven without tasting death, stood before us, and said:

Behold, the time has fully come, which was spoken of by the mouth of Malachi--testifying that he [Elijah] should be sent, before the great and dreadful day of the Lord come--

To turn [seal] the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers, lest the whole earth be smitten with a curse--"(D&C 110:16).

This making a Kingdom of Kings and Priests to meet Christ when he Comes and no man will need be taught by his neighbor for all shall know Christ--for when he comes they shall be like him a king and a priest. And the second Coming will be like the sun rising in the East and Setting in the West. As each person is made a king and priest and overcome all things they will rise to meet Christ and this will be the Second Coming to them. And as more are made kings and priests and overcome the earth more will rise in the first resurrection to the Second coming-being a king and priest to God and His Father to all eternity on into the next resurrection.

"Therefore, the keys of this dispensation [fully preparing people to meet Christ sealing the hearts of the Fathers and the Children together up to eternal life] are committed into your hands [the Proxy patriarch, prophet, priest, and king over God kingdom to prepare them to meet God be sealed to him, like him, when he comes, Joint-heirs with Christ and Equal with God--being anointed King and Priest unto the Most High God and His Father]; and by this ye may know that the great and dreadful day of the Lord is near, even at the doors [feed my sheep and prepare ye the way of the Lord and making a kingdom of kings and priests to meet Him]. (D&C 110:16.)

Monday, 12. [January, 1846]--One hundred and forty-three persons received their endowments in the Temple. I officiated at the altar. Such has been the anxiety manifested by the saints to receive the ordinances [of the Temple], and such the anxiety on our part to administer to them, that I have given myself up entirely to the work of the Lord in the Temple night and day, not taking more that four hours sleep, upon an average, per day, and going home but once a week. (H. C., Vol. 7:567.) [Relates to the vision I say both the people and the and Christ in Anxiety. Also Revelation 7 working in temple day and night. and D&C 121. expand...]

Autobiography of Parley P. Pratt:

January 1st, A.D. 1846, I continued to minister in the Temple night and day, with my President and the rest of the Twelve, until early in February. (Autobiography of Parley P. Pratt, Brigham Young University, Special Collections, Amer Bx 8670 P86ba 1985, p. 304.)

Autobiography of Parley P. Pratt:

It was Joseph Smith who taught me how to prize the endearing relationships of father and mother, husband and wife; of brother and sister, son and daughter.

I was from him that I learned that the wife of my bosom might be secured to me for time and all eternity; and that the refined sympathies and affections which endeared us to each other emanated from the fountain of divine eternal love. It was from him that I learned that we might cultivate these affections, and grow and increase in the same to all eternity; while the result of our endless union would be an offspring as numerous as the stars of heaven, or the sands of the sea shore.

It was from him that I learned the true dignity and destiny of a son of God, clothed with an eternal priesthood, as the patriarch and sovereign of his countless offspring. It was from him that I learned that the highest dignity of womanhood was, to stand as a queen and priestess to her husband, and to reign for ever and ever as a queen and mother of her numerous and still increasing offspring.

I had loved before, but I knew not why. But now I loved--with a pureness--an intensity of elevated, exalted feeling, which would lift my soul from the transitory things of this grovelling sphere and expand it as the ocean. I felt that God was my heavenly Father indeed; that Jesus was my brother, and that my wife and my bosom was an immortal, eternal companion; a kind ministering angel, given to me as a comfort, and a crown of glory for ever and ever. In short, I could now love with the spirit and with the understanding also. (Autobiography of Parley P. Pratt, Brigham Young University, Special Collections, Amer Bx 8670 P86ba 1985, p. 259-260.)

John D. Lee Receives His Second Anointings:

Jan 14: 2 of my family came through the washings and anointings...we went into room No 1 where we being clothed in Priestly apparel--kneeled over the alter (sic)--rather before the Holy Alter (sic) and over it the sacred and solemn covenant and sealing was entered into and ratified in the presence of 3 witnesses-From thus we were conducted to Room No 2 where we received our anointings.... (Journal of John D. Lee, under date given.)

John D. Lee Reminiscence of His Second Anointing [See also, entry number 55]:

I was among the first to receive my washings and anointings, and even received my second anointing, which made me an equal in the order of the Priesthood, with the right and authority to build up the kingdom in all the earth, and power to fill any vacancy that might occur. I have officiated in all the different branches, from the highest to the lowest. There were about forty men who attained to that order in the Priesthood, including the twelve Apostles and the first presidency, and to them was intrusted the keeping of the records. I was the head clerk; Franklin D. Richards was my assistant clerk. My office was in room number one, at President Young's apartments.

I kept a record of all the sealings, anointings, marriages and adoptions. In the Temple I took three more wives--Martha Berry, Polly Ann Workman and Delethea Morris, and had all my family sealed to me over the altar, in the Temple, and six of them received their second anointings, that is, the first six wives did, but the last we had not time to attend to. Journal of Sarah D. Rich:

Mr. Rich was at the time one of the High Council, and had to be away most of the time, and to help with the Temple which was fast being completed. Of course, I had to be deprived of his society most of the time, but we had a nice little home not far from the Temple, in which I took great comfort with my little family, which then consisted of three children, and Harriet Sarget (sic), the little motherless girl I had taken to live with me. She was just turned in her 12th year; she was a great help to me in looking after my children.

***

The Temple was finished and dedicated unto the Lord, and the work of giving Endowments commenced. President Young chose many Brothers and Sisters to come to the Temple and assist in giving Endowments. Among those chose was Mr. Rich and myself; we were to be there at seven in the morning and remain until work was done at ten or twelve o'clock at night, if necessary. So we got a good girl, Mary phelps, a wife of my husband's to stay and take care of the children; and we helped in the House of the Lord to give Endowments for four months, until the house was closed: and we as a people commenced to prepare ourselves to depart for the Rocky Mountains. For by this time the Devil was mad, and the lives of many of our brethren were sought by the mob that had assassinated our brethren, Joseph and Hyrum. But many were the blessings we had received in the House of the Lord, which was caused joy and comfort in the midst of all our sorrows, and enabled us to have faith in God, knowing He would guide us and sustain us in the unknown journey that lay before us. For if it had not been for the faith and knowledge that was bestowed upon us in that Temple by the influence and help of the Spirit of the Lord, our journey would have been like one taking a leap in the dark, to start out on such a journey in the winter as it were, and in our state of poverty, it would seem like walking into the jaws of death. But we had faith in our Heavenly Father, and we put our trust in Him, feeling that we were His chosen people and had embraced His Gospel; and instead of sorrow we felt to rejoice that the day of our deliverance had come.

I had in that Temple given to my husband four other wifes (sic), which were sealed to him in that Temple by the Holy Order of God by one having authority to do the same. Their name were Eliza A. Graves, Sarah J. Peck, Mary A. Phelps, and Emeline W. Grover. They were all that was sealed to him at that time. So this enlarged our family to be a few mor in number to prepare for the journey West. (Sarah D. Rich, p. 41-44, BYU Special Collections, Mor, M270.07, R377.)

The Death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith:

The next day the Nauvoo Legion went part way to carthage to meet the bodies. The inhabitants were all out in the streets, on the house tops and every where to see if they could get just a glimpse of him. But he was in a new wagon, which had no cover other than green bushes which had been laid over the top of the box. Hence they could not see him. As they drove around to the Mansion (the Prophet's Home) the people were almost frantic to get one little glimpse of him, but they were driven back by the Marshall. The wagon was driven inside of the back gate and the gate was locked. No one was allowed in the yard except the guards and the Prophet's special friends.

The traitors were in high glee.

My father was at the Mansion all night, doing what he could to help them. In the morning he came up early and told me that if I would get up I could go down, as he had gotten permission for me to see Joseph and Hyrum Smith as they lay at their home. I went down, saw them and laid my hand on Joseph's forehead. The blood was oozing out of the wound in his shoulder, and the sheet that was around him was stained with blood. Still he looked very natural. Hyrum had been shot in the face and therefore he did not look very natural. The funeral was held at one o'clock that day. The Saints were all allowed to go and view the remains after they were dressed.

Working on the Temple:

My father was still working on the temple. Every able bodied man was needed to work on it in order to get it completed, so that the Saints could receive their ordinances. He worked all the next fall and winter, during which time the excitement grew worse. The mob burned houses and drove the Saints from other settlements into Nauvoo.

Brigham Young appointed the Lead the Saints:

In the meantime Brigham Young was appointed to lead the Saints. The enemy issued orders for him to be arrested, so he could not hold public meetings nor be on the streets very much.

Married to Charles C. Rich:

On January 6th, 1845, after considerable deliberation, I embraced the principal of celestial marriage. I was married to charles C. Rich with the full consent of his first wife, I being his third wife. We lived in the hope of soon moving to the Rocky Mountains, where we could enjoy the rights and liberties of our religion.

The Temple Completed:

The temple now being almost completed our enemies raging. The Saints had to guard the temple night and day to keep it from being destroyed. Early in the fall of 1845 the enemy came in determined to exterminate or drive the Latter-Day Saints out of the United States. Seeing there was no other way for them, the Saints met with the officers of the enemy and surrendered their arms, and made a promise that they would leave the next sprint. They thought during that winter they could have their endowments and do a great deal of work in the temple.

As soon as possible the temple was opened and dedicated to the Lord. They opened it to all the worthy Saints, and gave their endowments, sealings and ordinances to just as many as it was possible. This only enraged the enemy more. There were Saints working in the temple every day except Saturdays, and a greater part of the night, giving endowments until the first of February. During the winter every able bodied person was making wagons, clothing and preparing for the journey, as they expected to start by spring for the Rocky Mountains. On the first of February the temple was closed and every thing was taken down. The spirit of the Lord was greatly manifested during that winter,and we all enjoyed the privilege of having our endowments and sealings. I received all these blessings in the Nauvoo temple in common with my husband and family. (Mary A. Rich, p. 17-19, BYU Special Collections, Mor, M270.07, R375e.)

11 May 1837

Patriarchal Blessing of Winslow Farr by Zebedee Coultrin (sic), on 11 May 1837, promising him that he would be numbered with the Lord's anointed and become a king and a priest unto the most high. This blessing came to pass on 22 January 1846 about nine years later. This blessing clearly shows that Joseph understood, and had been clearly teaching this doctrine for some time before he bestowed these blessings starting 28 September 1846, when he and Emma received this ordiance for the first time:

Patriarchal Blessing Pronounced by Z. Coultrin, upon the head of Winslow Farr, son of Winslow and Olive Hovey Freeman Farr, Born at East Charleston township, Orleans co., State of Vermont, on the 11 day of May, in the year of our Lord, 1837.

Brother Winslow, in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ, I lay my hands upon your head and seal upon you a patriarchal Blessing, for thou art of the seed of Abraham, of the lineage of Ephraim. I seal upon thy head a Father's blessing, for thou art a lawful heir to all the blessings of the holy Melchesdic (sic) Priesthood, and in as much as thou wilt keep the commandments of the Lord thou shalt attain to all the blessings of eternal exaltation, and the choice blessings of the heavens shall rest down upon thee, and thou shalt be filled with the spirit of prophecy and revelation, and every organ of thy mind shall be filled with the inspiration of the Lord, for thou wast chosen and called of the Lord before the foundations of the earth were laid to come forth in this dispensation to assist in building up the Zion of the Lord upon the earth, and to proclaim the gospel unto the house of Israel, and unto all the saints of the most high.

Thou shalt have power over the elements and the winds and the waves of the seas shall obey thy voice, for thou art a chosen vessel unto the most high. Thou shalt have mighty faith before the Lord, even like unto the brother of Jared, and thou shalt be filled with the wisdom of the heavens, and thou shalt be enabled to attain unto all the blessings of eternal exaltation. Thou shalt become the father of a might people, and thy sons shall be filled with the light of heaven fro the holy priesthood of God shall rest down upon them throughout all their generations, and many of them shall become kings and priests unto the most high and shall become a numerous people, dwelling in the midst of Zion; thy daughters shall become mothers of might men filled with the intelligence of the heavens, and the mighty power of god shall rest upon them and their generations shall multiply, and dwell upon the earth and reign with the Lord a thousand years, and unto thy generations there shall be no end. Thou shalt attain unto all the blessings, and sealing powers that shall be given in the holy temples of the Lord [Winslow was one of the men who Anointed men and women, Kings and Priests and Queens and Priestesses] and thou shalt be a laborer to carry out the design of God in thy creation, for thou hast been appointed a bishop and a presiding high priest over thy brethren, and thou shalt have wisdom before the Lord that thou shalt be enabled to conduct all things according to the revelations of Jesus Christ as they are given to us. Thou shalt behold the Zion of the Lord when it shall become perfected, when all nations shall flow unto it, and thou shalt rejoice in the holy one of Israel, and shalt remain upon the earth until thou art satisfied with life. Thou shalt be wrapt (sic) in the visions of the heavens, and clothed with salvation as with a garment, and thou shall be numbered with the Lord's annointed (sic), and shall be a king and a priest unto the most high, and no hand lifted against thee shall prosper, but thou shalt dwell in peace and righteousness all the days of they life upon the earth. Thy posterity shall become mighty before God, and the choice blessings of the heavens shall rest down upon them. Thou shalt behold the heavens when they shall no longer retain Jesus, but he shall come down and dwell with men upon the earth. Thou shalt have power over every unclean spirit and every evil thing; thou shalt be enabled to heal the sick, and to do many mighty miracles in the name of the Lord, and thou shalt live upon the earth and behold the day when Zion shall flourish and wickedness be no more.

These blessings we seal upon thee, for thou are of the pure blood of Jacob, and shalt be enabled to receive all the blessings of the house of Joseph, and shall continue in all the blessings pertaining unto eternal life throught (sic) all thy days upon the earth, and thou shalt receive an everlasting inheritance when the ancient of days shall sit, and be enabled to come forth in morning of the first resurrection and shall be numbered with the sanctified before the Lord.

Now, Brother, I seal all these blessings upon thy head, and these up unto eternal life unto all the Powers of exaltations, thrones, Dominions, and powers of eternal lives, in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ, even so, Amen. Joseph Fielding and Wive's Receive Their Second Anointing:

1846 January 4 Since the Death of Joseph and Hyrum, the Building of the Temple has gone on rapidly, and contrary to the expectation and Prophecy of Sidney Rigdon and others, the Roof has been put on, the Spire put up and beautifully ornamented. The Temple is indeed a noble Structure, and I suppose the Architects of our Day know not of What Order to call it: Gothic, Dorick (sic), Corinthian or What; I call it Heavenly. The upper Room is finished, and about the beginning of December it was dedicated, and the 12 began to give the Saints their Endowments. On the 5(th) I entered it for the first (time) and truly felt as though I had gotten out of the World, and on Friday, the 12th I and my Wife received our Endowment, having formerly received it in the Days of Joseph and Hyrum, but it is now given in a more perfect manner because of better Convenience. The 12 are very strict in attending to the true and proper form. On Sunday, the 21st, 986 had received their Endowment.

On the 3rd of Jan'y (46) Mary Ann received her Endowment in the Temple.

Friday, the 23(rd) of Jan'y, 1846, we were sealed in the Temple by Heber C. Kimball and on the same Day we were also anointed by Parley P. Pratt. Monday, 26(th) our 4 Children were washed, anointed and Sealed to Jos'h & Hannah Fielding, and we (Joseph & Hannah) were sealed to Hyrum Smith for time and Eternity by Elders B. (Brigham) Young & H. C. Kimball.

Our 4 Children are Rachel, born at Preston, County of Lancaster, England, on the 27(th) of June, 1839.

Ellen, born in Preston, aforesaid, on the 9th of Feb. 1841.

Heber, born in Nauvoo on the 20(th) of July, 1843.

Joseph, born at Nauvoo on the 13th of July, 1846.

23 March 1843

Joseph Kingsbury Promised by the Prophet Joseph Smith that he would receive "the Holy Annointings (sic) & Endowments in this life"--blessing that Joseph Smith sealed upon the head head of Kingsbury on 23 March 1843 is as follows:

Brother Joseph [Kingsbury]--

I lay my hands upon thy head in the name of Jesus Christ to bestow upon thee a Patriarchal Blessing according to the power & authority of the Holy Priesthood vested in me; I say unto thee, thou shalt be blessed with the good things of this world abundantly in thy life-time & I seal thee up to come forth in the First Resurrection unto eternal life and thy companion Caroline who is now dead, thou shalt have in the First Resurrection for I seal thee up for and behalf to come forth in the First Resurrection unto eternal lives (and it shall be as thou she was present herself) & thou shalt have her & she shall be thine & no one shall have power to take her from thee. And you both shall be crowned & enthroned to dwell together in a Kingdom in the Celestial Glory in the presence of God & you shall enjoy each other's society and embraces in all the fulness of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, for thou shalt receive the Holy Annointings (sic) & Endowments in this life to prepare you for all these blessings even so, Amen. (Witnesses to above blessing-- N. K. Whitney; Elizabeth Ann Whitney; & Sarah Ann Whitney) (Journal of Joseph Kingsbury, Brigham Young University, Special Collections, Bx 8608, Ala, # 4242.)

[Note: This is an interesting blessing. It appears that the Prophet is sealing together and unto eternal life Joseph Kingsbury and Caroline, who was dead, on 23 Mar 1843.

It appears that The Prophet Joseph Smith also, by revelation, intended for Caroline to receive her Second Anointings of which she did not receive at Nauvoo. If her work has not as yet been done, someone should probably do it proxy for her.]

Second Anointing of Joseph C. Kingsbury:

I am daily employed under the direction of the trustees at the Temple Office & on the 8 Dec 1845. I received an endowment in the upper room of the Temple in Nauvoo or the City of Joseph, also was sealed to Bishop N. K. Whitney as his son on 27 Jan 1846 the same time and Dorcas A. Moore & Leonza A. Pond were sealed to him as his daughters & the two daughters were sealed to me to be my wives for time and eternity by Pres. Brigham Young & on 28 or 29 Jan. 1846, I received my 2nd Annointing (sic) with my two wives, under the hands of Pres. Orson pratt in the North East Room in the upper part of the Temple in the City of Joseph and these blessings I feel to be thankful for & I pray I may always remember the goodness of the Lord to me & I am making preparations with many other brethren this winter to go to the Wilderness in the Spring. Joseph C. Kingsbury--A Biography by Lyndon W. Cook:

Joseph Kingsbury's new assignment in the Trustees' Office gave him daily interaction with members of the anointed quorum; within two months he was admitted into the holy order. In Parley P. Pratt's store, on the 26th of January, 1845, Kingsbury and his "wife," Sarah Ann (plus a few others) formally received the sacred temple endowment. ["Joseph C. Kingsbury 1846-1864 Journal"; Diary of William Clayton, 26 January 1845; and "List of Anointed Quorum," Newel K. Whitney Collection, Manuscripts, Brigham Young University Library. Others admitted to the quorum on this day included Eliza R. Snow, Helen Mar Kimball, Louisa Beaman and John E. Page and wife, Mary. Kingsbury's son, Joseph T. Kingsbury, recorded the "in January 1845," His father "received his first anointing" (Joseph T. Kingsbury, "History of Joseph C. Kingsbury," 1882-1883).] Joseph [Kingsbury] was humbled and pleased. Now he met weekly (Sundays) with the quorum in prayer meetings where he received sacred instructions and learned to use the priesthood keys...: "[I] Was Recd (sic) into the Corum (sic) of the Priesthood and met with the Corum (sic) at Times & offer[e]d up Prayer & Recd. (sic) instructions Verry (sic) Benefitial (sic)."

Joseph [Kingsbury] was privileged to attend nearly all of the special meetings of the anointed quorum or "Holy order" during November 1845 through January 1846. Members of the order met each Sunday (and sometimes more often) to worship; clothed in the robes of the priesthood, they prayed and received counsel. On the 7th of December, 1845 , Joseph met with forty-one members of the quorum [men and women both were in this quorum] to discuss the monumental task before them--the administration of the endowment to more than five thousand Nauvoo Saints, all to be accomplished in sixty days! [See Journal of Heber C. Kimball, 7 December 1845.]

On the 10th of December, temple work began in the top floor of the Nauvoo Temple. All those who had received temple blessings--endowment, eternal marriage, or fulness of the priesthood--prior to this time repeated these ordinances in the temple. Actually, it was unnecessary to preform these ordinances again, but members of the anointed quorum had a keen desire to do so. For them, repeating these ordinances properly in that holy place symbolized the importance of these sacred blessings and it witnessed their own great reverence for the beautiful temple they had built to their God. Kingsbury was among those who were washed and anointed and endowed--for a second time--on this inaugural day of temple work. [See Journal of Heber C. Kimball, 10 December 1845.] Six days later, Joseph's wife, Dorcas, and other member of her family received their endowments. [Thomas Moore, a seventy, his wife Mahala and their daughters, Dorcas and Elizabeth were washed and anointed and endowed on the 16th of December, 1845, (Journal of Heber C. Kimball, under date given).] Joseph was happy. He looked forward now to that culminating blessing--the fulness of the priesthood--which would seal him and his wives up unto eternal life, and he would not be satisfied until he had received these blessings.

These days were days of profound spiritual growth for Kingsbury; he hoped for a long life with Dorcas, and eternity with her and Caroline. After Caroline's death, Joseph had struggled to find meaning in his life. The experiences which followed her death had strengthened his reliance on himself and upon his God, and expanded his human sympathies.

On the 1st of January, 1846, Joseph and Sarah Ann, as part of Heber C. Kimball's family, were invited to attend a private supper and dance in the Nauvoo Temple. Outside it was raining. The ground was soft, and the mud was very deep. The sky was gloomy and dismal, but inside the temple, the families of Brigham Young and Heber C. Kimball were enjoying a grand family reunion. The "Spirit of the Lord was present," according to Heber C. Kimball; a spirit of "meekness & humility & gratitude to God" pervaded the entire group; "tears came into the eyes of many," and "love and union, peace & harmony prevailed." After remarks by President Young, everyone there was put under covenant to never again "mingle with the wicked" of the world. The dancing concluded at 2:30 A.M. and the whole group slept that night in th temple. [See Journal of Heber C. Kimball, 1 January 1846.]

About this same time, Joseph Kingsbury was adopted a gospel son of Bishop Newel K. Whitney. [Even before Joseph Kingsbury left Nauvoo for the west, he was referring to Newel K. Whitney as his "father" (see "Joseph C. Kingsbury Journal"). The record which contain the temple ordinances of eternal marriage and second anointing (i.e., "Record of Sealings," "Book of Proxy," and "Book of Anointings" in Church Archives) give Kingsbury's name as "Joseph Corrodon Kingsbury Whitney."] Worthy Saints whose fathers were not members of the Chruch were often adopted into the families of prominent leaders. This was done in order to assure that all of the righteous would be sealed together in family units. In a similar vein, parents who were aware and in favor of plural marriage desired that their daughters be sealed to Chruch leaders or other prominent members. Earlier, in 1845, two daughters of Stillman and Maria Pond, converts from Massachusetts, and one daughter of Thomas and Mahala Moore, were sealed to Bishop Whitney, and in January 1846 another daughter, Loenza Alcena Pond, was sealed to Kingsbury. There was little romance to this union; both Joseph and Loenza viewed it as a religious duty. However, in time they did learn to love each other.

On the 26th of January, 1846, at 3:30 P.M. in the Nauvoo Temple, Joseph Kingsbury's three wives were sealed for time and eternity to him. For the second time, Caroline Whitney, deceased, was vicariously united to Joseph--Dorcas stood as proxy--["A book of Proxy," 26 January 1846.] and then Dorcas Adelia Moore was sealed to him. After this, Loenza Alcena Pond was sealed to Joseph. Brigham Young administered these ordinances and Heber C. Kimball and Amasa Lyman were witnesses. ["Record of Sealings," 26 January 1846.] Two days later, on the 28th of January, Orson Pratt administered the ordinances of the fulness of the priesthood to Joseph and his wives. First with Dorcas, and then with Loenza, Joseph knelt on the scarlet, damask cushions of the altar in the upper northeast room of the temple, and by proper priesthood authority, he was ordained a priest and anointed a king unto God. Dorcas and Loenza were anointed priestesses and queens unto their husband. It was a glorious occasion, and Joseph recorded his impressions about this exalted ordiance with characteristic modesty: "For these blessings I feel to be very thankful & I pray I may always remember the goodness of the Lord to me. [Joseph C. Kingsbury 1846-1864 Journal.] (Joseph C. Kingsbury, A Biography, by Lyndon W. Cook, p. 89-95, Grandin Book Company, Provo, Utah, 1985, Utah State Historical Society, 921, K 61c, 1985.)

Biography on James Allred:

James Allred Aids John Taylor home after he was shot at Carthage Jail: In the year of 1844, in June the Church Leaders were taken to the Carthage Jail, Hancock Co. Ill. At the jail the Prophet handed his sword to James and said "Take this, you may need it to defend yourself". This sword came to Utah with James and is now in the Utah State Capitol.

In the year 1842 James Allred was ordained a seventy and a member of the 4th quorum of seventies.

About this time the saints began to be persecuted very hard and more especially the heads of the church. The prophet and his brother Hyrum were continuously being hunted and persecuted by the mobs. Grandmother Elizabeth Warren often used to put potatoes in the coals in the fireplace at night and leave bread and butter and fresh butter milk (of which the Prophet was very fond) out on the table so that they could come in during the night and eat.

In the year 1844 in June the Prophet Joseph Smith, his brother Hyrum, President John Taylor and Willard Richards were taken to the Carthage Jail, Hancock Co. Ill. On the 27th of June the Prophet and Hyrum were murdered in the Carthage Jail. The Prophet had presiously (sic) prophecied that Willard Richards would not be harmed and true to the prophecy he escaped without a scratch. but President Taylor was badly wounded by four bullets.

Grandfather James took President Taylor from the prison to take him to his home. He only had his wagon to carry him and the trip was long by road, so they decided that a sleigh could be pulled behind the wagon by going through the fields which were mostly swamps. And this would only be eighteen miles by distance from Nauvoo by cutting through the fields. Accordingly they secured a sleigh, fastened it behind the wagon and placed President Taylor in it. He was bleeding badly/ And so weak from the loss of blood that he could scarcely speak. His wife sat beside him bathing the blood from his wounds and trying to make the journey as easy as possible. The sleigh was much easier riding than the wagon, and by the time they reached him President Taylor was able to talk loud enough that Grandfather could hear him from where he sat in the wagon.

After the murder of the Prophet, President Young with the help of the Apostles then took up the work for which the Prophet had laid the foundation [See also, entry Numbers 4, 14, 68, 132]. Persecution began to rage again with awful fury and in the fall of 1845 the mob commenced burning houses.

On the nineth of Feb. 1846 Grandfather crossed the mississippi River to go west with the heads of the church. He arrived at the Missouri River to go west July 15, of the same year. Here he was made President of the Hugh Council and acting Bishop at Council Point. In the spring of 1851 he started west to the Rocky Mountains. He arrived at Salt Lake in October of the same year. (Biography of James Allred, by Blain, Sevilda Jane Allred, Utah Historical Society, A 2077.)

1844 [Last of June or the first of July]

James Allred Aids John Taylor home after he was shot at Carthage Jail:

While I [John Taylor] lay at Carthage, previous to Mrs. Taylor's arrival, a pretty good sort of man, who was lame of a leg, waited upon me, and sat up at night with me; afterwards Mrs. Taylor, mother, and others waited upon me.

Many friends called upon me, among whom were Richard Ballantyne, Elizabeth Taylor, several of the Perkins family, and a number of the brethren from Macedonia and La Harpe. Besides these, many strangers from Quincy, some of whom expressed indignant feelings against the mob and sympathy for myself. Brother Alexander Williams called upon me, who suspected that they had some designs in keeping me there, and stated that he had, at a given point in some woods, fifty men, and if I would say the word he would raise other fifty, and fetch me out of there. I thanked him, but told him I thought there was no need. However, it would seem that I was in some danger; for Colonel Jones, before referred to, when absent from me, left two loaded pistols on the table in case of an attack, and some tome afterwards, when I had recovered and was publishing the affair, a lawyer, Mr. Backman, stated that he had prevented a man by the name of Jackson, before referred to, form ascending the stairs, who was coming with a design to murder me, and that now he was sorry he had not let him do the deed.

There were others also, of whom I heard, that said I ought to be killed, and they would do it, but that it was too damned cowardly to shoot a wounded man; and thus, by the chivalry of murderers, I was prevented from being a second time mutilated or killed. Many of the mob came around and treated me with apparent respect, and the officers and people generally looked upon me as a hostage, and feared that my removal would be the signal for the rising of the 'Mormons'.

I do not remember the time that I stayed at Carthage, but I think three or four days after the murder, when Brother Marks with a carriage, Brother James Allred with a wagon, Dr. Ells, and a number of others on horseback, came for the purpose of taking me to Nauvoo. I was weak at the time, occasioned by the loss of blood and the great discharge of my wounds, so when my wife asked me if I could talk I could barely whisper no. Quite a discussion arose as to the propriety of my removal, the physicians and people of Carthage protesting that it would be my death, while my friends were anxious for my removal if possible.

I suppose the former were actuated by the above named desire to keep me. Colonel Jones was, I believe, sincere; he had acted as a friend all the time, and he told Mrs. Taylor she ought to persuade me not to go, for he did not believe I had strength enough to reach Nauvoo. It was finally agreed, however, that I should go; but as it was thought that I could not stand riding in a wagon or carriage, they prepared a litter for me; I was carried downstairs and put upon it. A number of men assisted to carry me, some of whom had been engaged in the mob. As soon as I got downstairs, I felt much better and strengthened, so that I could talk; I suppose the effect of the fresh air.

When we had got near the outside of the town I remembered some woods that we had to go through, and telling a person near to call for Dr. Ells, who was riding a very good horse, I said, 'Doctor, I perceive that the people are getting fatigued with carrying me; a number of 'Mormons' live about two or three miles from here, near our route; will you ride to their settlement as quick as possible, and have them come and meet us?' He started off on a gallop immediately. My object in this was to obtain protection in case of an attack, rather than to obtain help to carry me.

Very soon after the men from Carthage made one excuse after another, until they had all left, and I felt glad to get rid of them. I found that the tramping of those carrying me produced violent pain, and a sleigh was produced and attached to the hind end of Brother James Allred's wagon, a bed placed upon it, and I propped up on the bed. Mrs. Taylor rode with me, applying ice water to my wounds. As the sleigh was dragged over the grass on the prairie, which was quite tall, it moved very easily and gave very little pain.

When I got within five or six miles of Nauvoo the brethren commenced to meet me from the city, and they increased in number as we drew nearer, until there was a very large company of people of all ages and both sexes, principally, however, men. (D.H.C., 7: 117-119.)

Wandle Mace Journal:

Conference over, we continued our labors on the Temple with renewed diligence, completing portions that the endowments might be bestowed upon the living for themselves and their dead. At the same time wagon companies were organized to make wagons for the journey to the Rocky Mountains.

During these labors I was called to the Temple to receive my endowments and sealing. Joseph had said, "Those whose names are on the books showing their labors for the Temple shall have the first claim to have their work done,: and President Young and the Twelve were very particular to carry out these instructions. This was a hurrying time. The endowments were in progress day and night as one company followed another in quick succession.

whereby fathers and mothers, wife and children, all family associations will be enjoyed after the resurrection of the dead when they will live forever, for "there will be no more death. (Wandle Mace, p. 22, BYU Special Collections, Amer, Quarto, BX, 8670.1, M15m.)

On Wednesday, the 10th day of December 1845, the Twelve commenced washing and anointing in the Temple of the Lord!!

On Friday, the 12th [Dec. 1845], Brother Wm. Weeks came to me and said he wanted me to go home and prepare myself and wife and come to the Temple at 12 o'clock a.m. [noon] ready to receive our endowments. We most joyfully complied with the request, and at about 5 o'clock p.m. we were washed and anointed in the House of the Lord. It was the most interesting scene of all my life and one that afforded the most peace and joy that we had ever experienced since we were married, which has been over 15 years. Brethren Wm. Weeks, Truman O. Angell, Charles C. Rich, George W. Harris, James Allred, and Wm. Felshaw were the first that received their endowments in this House of the Lord, which took place on this day, the time before having been occupied in the washing and anointing [of] those that had before received their endowments under the hands of Joseph Smith, the Prophet, which he conferred upon them 1 year ago last winter. After those six went in with their wives, Amos Fielding, Noah Packard, Samuel Rolf, Aaron Johnson, Wm. Snow, Willard Snow, Erastus Snow, Player, and myself, with our wives, were called in, and all passed through the endowment at the same time.

On Sunday, the 14th [Dec. 1845], attended a general conference of the Seventies in the concert Hall. Brother A. P. Rockwood presided, and there was about $30 raised to purchase clothing for the purpose of carrying the Seventies through the endowments. I still continued to work at the Temple, rejoicing in being counted worthy to associate with the Lord's holy anointed ones.

This week my father visited me after being absent from the city some time. He appeared to be much perplexed about his business and seemed inclined to tarry at his home at Pilot Grove through the winter, but I persuaded him to come and live with my family and endeavor to obtain a knowledge of the things pertaining to the fullness of the Priesthood and Kingdom of God in the last days. He tarried till Sunday the 21st, when, upon my recommendation, he was ordained into the Elders' Quorum. About the middle of this week the weather set in very cold. I found Widow Stoel and family were suffering intensely, living in a cold, open house without firewood. I called upon her as I went to my work in the morning and told her to take her children and go to my house. Afterwards, with the assistance of Father, I removed her beds, etc., and she tarried with us.

On Tuesday, [the] 23d [Dec. 1845], my father moved his clothing etc., and took up his abode with us. We all lived together now very happily, enjoying the comfort of the Holy Ghost.

On the 21st [Dec. 1845], I, with my wife, first had the exquisite pleasure of meeting with the holy order of the Lord's anointed in his holy House, whose motto is "Holiness to the Lord".

The enemies of the Lord this week got out warrants for the apprehension of the Twelve, and the Deputy Marshal of this district came here with some dozen soldiers and apprehended a man by the name of Wm. Miller, supposing him to be Brother Brigham Young; took him out to Carthage, where they found out their mistake, and were chagrined to think they had missed their aim. May God grant that they may always be foiled in their attempts and fall into their own pit which they have prepared for the Saints.

On Monday, the 28th [Dec. 1845], Brother Noah Rogers arrived direct from the Sandwich Islands and was joyfully received by his friends and brethren. The Marshal returned and searched the Temple for the Twelve, but when he came where they [had been], they [were not] there, and he went away as cheap as he came.

Sunday, January 11, 1846-- I met with the congregation of the Lord on the second floor of the Temple. Brethren Clapp, John Young, and Father Nickerson spoke to the people, and we had a good meeting. It is a time of trouble, and the Twelve are preparing to leave a country were they are hunted like wild beasts, by a black-hearted set of mobbers. This evening a number of such scoundrels, under the character of government troops, went to the house of Brother Andrew Colton in the midst of the night and took him out of his bed, under a charge of horse stealing. They went also to Brother Eatman's stable and broke it open looking for the stolen horse, but found him not. But they took their prisoner off to Carthage. The police were soon in pursuit; and some of the rascals who stayed till morning were driven off by our police and were told by Captain Stout that if they came back and were found running through the streets at night he would kill them; and [they] left the city in great rage.

Tuesday, the 13th [Jan. 1846]--Having been permitted to leave the work at the Temple, I commenced again at our wagon shop, and I went over the river after timber. This evening at 6 o'clock I attended prayers among the anointed ones in the Temple. Continued work for the shop through the week.

Sunday attended meeting in the second story of the Temple. Brother Clapp preached and Brother John Young spoke, prophesy[ing] [that] all the Saints that would obey the commandments of God he would bring out from among this nation with a high hand and an outstretched arm.

Monday, the 19th [Jan. 1846], went with my wife to the Temple in the morning to attend to our sealing, but there was a council to be held, which put other business [first]. I went into that council to represent M. Serrine's company. The business of the council was to ascertain how many were ready to start for the West. Not being in possession of all the facts, the President, Brother Brigham Young, appointed next Sunday at 2 o'clock to make report of all men and teams that could be ready to depart on short notice.

In the evening I went into the Holy of Holies with Emily, my wife, were, by President Brigham Young we were, according to the holy order of the Priesthood, sealed together for time and all eternity and sealed up unto eternal life and against all sin except the sin against the Holy Ghost. May God keep us faithful in his ordinances. Amen!

Saturday, 24th [Jan. 1846]--A meeting of the people was called in the House of the Lord to elect three trustees to assist the Trustees in Trust, N. K. Whitney and George Miller, when they shall leave here, that the business may be done in their absence. Brethren Almon W. Babbit, John Fullmer, and from the Church, which was carried unanimously. Strange and Aaron Smith [were] also cut off. Many have been deluded by Strangism, and one of them a president of Seventies. This evening met with my quorum (14th). They were notified [to] be at the Temple Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock to receive their endowments.

At 5 o'clock Wednesday, [the] the 4th, I repaired to the Temple, where I found the brethren and sisters recreating themselves with music and dancing after their labors, as the endowments were adjourned for 2 days.

Friday [7 February 1846]--The endowments were continued in the evening. I again repaired to the House of the Lord with my father, Udney, my wife Emily, my daughter Elsie P., and Miss Matilda Stoel. In the course of the night my father, daughter, and Miss Matilda all received their washing and anointing, and about 11 o'clock I, with my wife Emily, received my second anointing [and] was ordained a king and Priest unto God in room no. 4.

Sunday, February 8, 1846-- At 9 o'clock a.m. the endowments were stopped in the House of the Lord, and the veils were taken down. The people were then called out into the grove west of the Temple, where we were addressed by President Joseph Young, who is President of all the Seventies, there being 32 quorums. Brethren Jedediah Grant and Benjamin Clapp, also of the First Council of the Seventies, spoke to the People. Brethren Hyde, Taylor, P. P. Pratt, and Brigham Young gave vent to their feelings by addressing the people for the last time in Nauvoo. Brigham Young Reminisces Receiving His Anointings Under the Hands of The Prophet Joseph at Nauvoo:

Pres. B. Young was filled with [the] Spirit of God and revelation and said When we got our washings and anointings under the hands of the Prophet Joseph at Nauvoo, we had only one room to work in with the exception of a little side room or office where we were washed and anointed, had our garment placed upon us and received our new name, and after he had preformed these ceremonies, he gave the keys words signs togkens (sic) and penalties. Then after, we went into the large room over the store in Nauvoo. Joseph Smith divided up the room the best that he could, hung up the Vail, (sic) marked it, gave us our instructions as we passed along form one department to another, giving us signs tokens, penalties with the key words pertaining to those signes (sic), and after we had got through, Brother Joseph turned to me (B. Young) and said, 'Brother Brigham, this is not arranged right, but we have done the best we could under the circumstances in which we are placed, and I want you to take this matter in hand and organize and systematize all these ceremonies with the signs tokens penalties and Key Words'. I did so and each time I got something more so that when we went through the Temple at Nauvoo I understood and knew how to place them there. We had our ceremonies pretty correct. (Excerpts from the Diary of L. John Nuttal, Dec. 1876 -- March 1884, Journal 1, p. 3-4, Utah State Historical Society, A, 1868-2.)

The Nauvoo Temple was dedicated privately, Elder Joseph Young offering the dedicatory prayer. 1 May 1846

The Nauvoo Temple was publicly dedicated by Orson Hyde. (Church Chronology, A Record of Important Events, Pertaining to the History of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Compiled by Andrew Jenson, Assistant Church Historian, 2nd ed., 1914, p. 29.)

Nauvoo Temple Completed And Dedicated: Reynolds Cahoon:

Obedient to the commandment, the Temple was completed. Joseph and Hyrum did not live to see the Nauvoo Temple. It was dedicated quietly on April 30, 1846 by Joseph Young, brother of Brigham Young, and publicly on May 1, 1846 by Orson Hyde. Their zeal and sacrifices had not gone unrewarded, for form the date of December 10, 1845, when the first endowments were given until February 7, 1846, when the Temple was closed for Ordinances work, more than 5,500 endowments had been given in the Nauvoo Temple. (Reynolds Cahoon and His Stalwart Sons, Utah Pioneers, Compiled and Edited By Stella Cahoon Shurtleff and Brent Farrington Cahoon, 1960, p. 49, Utah State Historical Society, 929.2, Clls.)

Truman O. Angell, Sr.

...when the first encampment of the brethren, (the Twelve and others) left Nauvoo, William Weeks, the architect, was taken with them.

This left me [Truman o. Angell, Sr.] to bring out the design and finishing of the lower hall which was fully in my charge from then on to its completion, and was dedicated by a few of us -- Brother Orson Hyde taking charge. (He having come back from the encampment of the Twelve for that purpose).

Orson Hyde, "A Diagram and Explaination of the Kingdom of God":

D I A G R A M

The above diagram shows the order and unity of the kingdom of God. The eternal Father sits at the head, crowned King of kings and Lord of lords. Wherever the other lines meet, there sits a king and a priest unto God, bearing rule, authority, and dominion under the Father. He is one with the Father, because his kingdom is joined to his Father's and becomes part of it.

The most eminent and distinguished prophets who have laid down their lives for their testimony (Jesus among the rest), will be crowned at the head of the largest kingdoms under the Father, and will be one with Christ as Christ is one with his Father; for their kingdoms are all joined together, and such as do the will of the Father, the same are his mothers, sisters, and brothers. He that has been faithful over a few things, will be made ruler over many things; he that has been faithful over ten talents, shall have dominion over ten cities, and he that has been faithful over five talents, shall have dominion over five cities, and to every man will be given a kingdom and a dominion, according to his merit, powers, and abilities to govern and control. It will be seen by the above diagram that there are kingdoms of all sizes, and infinite variety to suit all grades of merit and ability. The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the temple of God on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fullness of the priesthood, (for the fullness of the priesthood includes the authority of both king and priest) and have not been anointed and ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown, or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom.

While this portion of eternity that we now live in, called time, continues, and while the other portions of eternity that we may hereafter dwell in, continue, those lines in the foregoing diagram, representing kingdoms, will continue to extend and be lengthened out; and thus, the increase of our kingdoms will increase the kingdom of our God, even as Daniel hath said: "of the increase of his kingdom and government there shall be no end." All these kingdoms are one kingdom, and there is a King over kings, and a Lord over lords. There are Lords many, and Gods many, for they are called Gods to whom the word of God comes, and the word of God comes to all these kings and priests. But to our branch of the kingdom there is but one God, to whom we all woe the most perfect submission and loyalty; yet our God is just a subject to still higher intelligences, as we should be to him.

...These kingdoms, which are one kingdom, are designed to extend till they not only embrace this world, but every other planet that rolls in the blue vault of heaven. Thus will all things be gathered in one during the dispensation of the fullness of times, and the Saints will not only possess the earth, but all things else, for, says Paul, "All things are yours, whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's" (Orson Hyde, "A Diagram of the Kingdom of God." Millennial Star 9 [15 January 1847]:23-24; TWOJS, p. 297-299.)

5 February 1847

John D. Lee washed and anointed for burial by his wive's Louisa and Rachel:

About 9 [P.M.] I was washed in salaratus and water from head to foot, after in spirits, then anointed in like manner by Louisa and Rachel (as I told them) preparatory to my burial. They were both very kind and attentive to me. (John D. Lee Journal, February 5, 1847, LDS Chruch Archives.)

5 December 1847

The Quorum of the Twelve sustains Brigham Young as President of the Chruch:

The quorum of the Twelve sustains Brigham Young as President of the Chruch. He selects Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards as his counselors. Notice that he is only sustained as President of the Church. This is because on 12 January 1846, he has already been anointed "King and a Priest of the Most High God in and over the Chruch of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and unto all Israel." In essence, Brigham Young and succeeding President's of the Church are acting Proxy--King of King's and Lord of Lord's for the Savior. These Keys of King of King's and Lord of Lord's, will be delivered back up to the Savior when he comes to Adam-Ondi-Ahman preceding His glorious Second Coming (Teachings p. 122, 158]. And then at the End of the Millennium the Savior will deliver these keys along with all other up to His Father, and Our Eternal Father in Heaven will then reign over his posterity as the Supreme King of King's, Lord of Lord's and God of God's.

Nancy Ann Wilson Washing and anointing husbands feet:

So, she, Nancy Wilson, departed this life at the age of 41 years having been the mother [of] eleven children, nine of them on my hands... she died having been in the church 15 years, having become a member at the age of 26 years during which time she has attended every ordiance of the Gospel that has been offered in day, and in fact all that I know anything about. She was baptized for the remission of her sins and had hands laid upon her for the reception of the Holy Ghost, and confirmed in the Church and has received blessings from time to time.

At the temple at Nauvoo she received her washings and anointings even to become a queen and a priestess, after which time she attended to one other ordinance which was to wash the feet of her husband and anoint him to be her king and priest and savior, that she might have claim on him at the resurrection...Nancy Wilson, who knew and died in triumph of faith in the gospel of the Son of God, after having lived and obeyed all the laws and ordinances of the Church...died full in the faith of a glorious resurrection with the just and was buried on the Missouri Bluff just above Kanesville ("Record of Lewis Dunbar Sr. and Nancy Ann Wilson," typescript, LDS Church Archives; account written shortly after July 20, 1851, when Nancy Wilson died.)

Orson Pratt--A General Funeral Sermon of all Saints and Sinners; Also, of the Heavens and the Earth :

When our spirits leave these bodies, will they abe happy? Not perfectly so. Why? Because the spirit is absent from the body; it cannot be perfectly happy while a part of the man is lying in the earth. How can the happiness be complete when only a part of the redemption is accomplished? You cannot be perfectly happy until you get a new house. You will be happy, you will be at ease in paradise; but still you will be looking for a house where your spirit can enter, and act as you did in former times, only more perfectly, having superior powers. Consequently, all the holy men that have lived in days of old, have looked forward to the resurrection of their bodies; for then their glory will be complete.

What did Paul say upon this subject? He said, "I have fought a good fight," "I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day." Do you understand this passage? Remember that this crown that Paul speaks of, was not to be given in the day we die; but it is to be given in "that day:-- the day of the Lord's appearing; it is to be given to all those that love his appearing; then is the time that Paul will get his crown; then is the time that the Saints who fall asleep in our day, will receive their crowns--crowns of rejoicing--kingly crowns. What good would a crown do a man who is miserable and wretched? Many persons have worn crowns in this life; tyrants have had crowns of diamonds and gold; but what benefit are they? None at all, except to a being who has made himself perfectly happy by his obedience. But what are we to understand by this crown of righteousness, which is to be given to the Saints? We understand that it is actually to be a crown of glory; that they are to be kings in reality. John speaks in the firs chapter of his Revelations to the Churches in his day, and represents the Saints to be Kings and Priests; he says, Christ "hath made us kings and priests unto God and His Father;" and this too while in this life.

In another place he speaks of those who are dead--about their singing a new song: "And they sung a new song, saying," Thou "hast redeemed us Oh God by thy blood, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests." Here then we find, from the first chapter, that they were made Kings and Priests before they were dead; and in the next quotation, we find that they still retained their kingly office after death, and actually had made songs to express their happy condition--Thou "hast made us kings and priests." Now we see the reason why they are to wear crowns, for they will be made King's and Priests on the earth: the Lord then, must have some way to give this kingly power.

Do you understand this, brethren and sisters? If you were to speak, I should hear innumerable voices respond, "Yes, we understand it; the Lord has revealed the ordinances; we know how the sons and daughters of God obtain this kingly office, while living here in this mortal tabernacle."

We will pass over that; suffice it to say, that death does not wrench it from them; for they are to be kings not for a day, or for this short life, but they are to remain to all eternity kings; having their thrones, and acting in the duties belonging to their kingly office. Compared with this, what are all the little, petty kingdoms of this earth worth? They are not worth one snap of the finger. The kings of the world exercise a certain authority over the nations--over their governments, and controlling them; and do you suppose that the Saints will be kings in the eternal world, and sit down upon thrones, in silence, not exercising the functions of their office? Not That is not the way the Lord has organized His creations; if there are kings, you may depend upon it they will have kingdoms under their control; they will give laws to those subjects over whom they bear rule; they will control them by the priestly office, for it is combined with the kingly office, and neither can be separated contraced in His feelings, in His views and disposition, that He would limit the authority of the priestly office to this little globe we inhabit? No. God has more expansive views; without end; they are one eternal round. What kind of works are they? They are to make creations, and people them with living beings, and place them in a condition to prove themselves; and to exercise the kingly and priestly office to redeem them after they have suffered pain, and sorrow, and distress; and to bring them up into the presence of God; that they, in their turn, may become kings and priests for other creations that shall be made, and that shall be governed and ruled over by those possession that proper authority.

We do not believe that everything has got to be limited to this little space of time in this world; but the Saints will be doing a work that will be adapted to beings that are the sons of God in the fullest sense of the word, that are precisely like their Father; and if so, they will be like Gods, and will hold dominion under that Being who is the Lord of lords; and they will hold it to all eternity. (Journal of Discourses, Orson Pratt, 25 July 1852, p. 289-290.)

Orson Pratt pointed out that the works of the Father continue by mane living worthily, and becoming Kings and Priests:

His works are without beginning and without end; they are one eternal round. What kind of works are they? They are to make creations; and people them with living beings; and place them in a condition to prove themselves; and to exercise the kingly and priestly office to redeem them, after they have suffered pain and sorrow and distress; and to bring them into the presence of God; that they may become kings and priests for other creations that shall be made; and that shall be governed and ruled over by those possessing the proper authority. (Journal of Discourses, vol. 1, p. 291.)

Anointings and then the Sacrament:

Monday Nov 8 The Day was dull in G.S.L. City. Pres. Heber C. Kimball Willard Richards, Thos. Bullock, Wm. C Staines, James Ure, James W. Cummings, Samuel L. Sprague, Wm. W. Phelps, each with a wife met in the Temple room The Brethren anointed (sic) each other. The wives were anointed (sic) by Sister Whitney and Snow; afterwards all partook of cakes and wine. Some spoke in tongues, etc. (Journal History, 8 Nov 1852.)

Letter Extract of the First Presidency:

Think not, O ye Elders of Israel! that your eternal heirship is won, and immutably secured, because you have attained to a portion of the Holy Priesthood, and a few of its initiating ordinances, while as yet your life and security of all your great and glorious blessings in hope and prospect, are as a vapor before the sun; as yet depending wholly on your meekness, faithfulness, and perseverance to the end, in everything good. Think not that you are legally entitled to even one wife, while you live on this earth unless you are sealed up to everlasting lives, by the will and decree of the Eternal Father, and a knowledge of the fact has been communicated to you, through the proper source, and not direct, to you in person. And consider that the blessings you have hitherto received, through the mercies of Him who loveth you, even your Father in heaven, will all be wrested from you, like David's of old, should you err like him. *****

Pres. Brigham Young
Pres. Heber C. Kimball
Pres. Willard Richards

(Deseret News Weekly, April 16, 1853.)

September 1853

If husbands or wives die before they have the opportunity of being baptized into this church, then it is necessary, before the ordinance of marriage can be administered in their behalf, that the living should attend to baptisms, and confirmations, and ordinations, and washings, and annointings, and all other institutions ordained of God, for and in the name of the deceased, and last of all the sealing powers of marriage and the blessings connected therewith, that the dead may in all things be justified, and sanctified and exalted, and glorified, and made kings, and priests, and Gods, through the same laws and ordinances as the living. (The Seer, vol. 1 (1853), p. 143 by Orson Pratt.)

October 1853

Orson Pratt on the nature and office of a King and Priest:

The Kingly authority is not separate and distinct from the Priesthood, but merely a branch or portion of the same. The Priestly authority is universal, having power over all things; the Kingly authority until perfected is limited to the kingdoms placed under its jurisdiction: the former [the Priestly authority] appoints and ordains the latter [the Kingly authority]; but the latter [the Kingly authority] never appoints and ordains the former: the first [or Priestly authourity] controls the Laws of Nature, and exercises jurisdiction over the elements, as well as over men; the last [or Kingly authority] controls men only, and administers just and righteous laws for their government. Where the two are combined and the individual perfected, he has almighty power both as a King and as a Priest: both offices are merged into one. The distinctions then, will be merely in the name and not in the authority: either as a King or a Priest he will then have power and dominion over all things, and reign over all. Both titles, combined, will then not give him anymore power than either singly. It is evident that the distinctions of title are only expressive of the condition of things prior to the glorification and perfection of the persons who hold the Priesthood; for when they are perfected, they will have power to act in every branch of authority by virtue of the great and almighty, and eternal Priesthood, which they hold; they can then sway their scepters as Kings; rule as Princes, minister as Apostles, officiate as teachers; or act in the humblest or most exalted capacity. There is no branch of the Priesthood so low that they cannot condescend to officiate therein; nor so high, that they cannot reach forth the arm of power and control the same. (The Seer, vol. 1 (1853), p. 145 by Orson Pratt.)

The Saints receive the Priestly and Kingly office here in this life; hence, John the Revelator expresses himself as follows: "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us Kings and Priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion forever and ever." (Rev. 1: 5, 6.) The saints being ordained here in this life both kings and priests, holding authority after they die and go to the world of spirits. Hence, John heard them singing in the spirit world the following song: "Thou are worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by the blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God Kings and Priests: and we shall reign on the earth." (Rev. 5: 9, 10.) The Saints not only retain the office of Kings and Priests while as disembodied spirits, but they also hold the office after the resurrection. Therefore, John writes, saying, "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection. on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be Priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." (Rev. 20:6.) They are not only to reign on the earth a thousand years after the resurrection, but in another passage he says, "They shall reign for ever and ever." (Rev. 22:5.) Therefore, all saints who are ordained Kings and Priests in this life will retain this office and this eternal power for evermore, being made as Melchisedec was, like unto the son of God, they will abide Priests continually. Therefore, the Priesthood, so far as future duration is concerned, is eternal and will have no end.

* * * * * * *

In receiving the gospel, we receive that eternal plan that had no origin-- a plan by which an endless succession of worlds has been redeemed and glorified, and the inhabitants thereof made Kings and Priests to reign forever and ever. And thus the works of God who dwells in an infinite number of tabernacles and worlds, are one eternal round, without beginning, without end; and thus also, all who receive the gospel and this eternal Priesthood, and are faithful to the end, and receive of the fulness of the Father, will be gods; for the fulness of Him who is from everlasting will dwell in them, and they in Him; and henceforth they can proclaim themselves, as not only designed to be to everlasting, because they continue, but also "from everlasting," because the knowledge, power, and glory that are in them, together with the Calling, Ordinance, and Priesthood which are upon them, were from everlasting.

The Celestial Family Chain:

Orson Pratt

Will not a man have his own family? Yes, he will also have his own mansion and farm, (symbols of whatever possessions a celestial being will have) his own sons and daughters. And what else? Why, the fact is man will continue to multiply and fill up his creation....

And what will he do when this is filled up? Why, he will make more worlds, and swarm out like bees from the old hive, and prepare new locations, and when a farmer has cultivated his farm and raised numerous children, so that the space is beginning to be too strait for them, he will say, "My sons, yonder is plenty of matter, go and organize a world, and people it, and you shall have laws to govern you, and you shall understand and comprehend through your experience the same things that we know. And thus it will be one eternal round, and one continual increase; and the government will be placed under those that are crowned as kings and priests in the presence of God." (Discourses of Pratt, p. 373; Celestial Symbols, Allen H. Barber, p. 50, Horizon Publishers, Second Printing, 1990.)

A Tangible Kingdom of Activity:

Orson Pratt

A Saint who is one in deed and in truth, does not look for an immaterial heaven, but he expects a heaven with lands, houses, cities, vegetation, rivers and animals; with thrones, temples, palaces, kings, princes, priests and angels; with food, raiment, musical instruments etc., all of which are material. Indeed the Saint's heaven is a redeemed, glorified celestial material creation, inhabited by glorified material beings, male and female, organized into families, embracing all the relationships of husbands and wives, parents and children, where sorrow, crying, pain, and death will be no more. On it they expect to live with body, parts and holy passions; on it they expect to move and have being; to eat, drink, converse, worship, sing, play on musical instruments, engage in joyful innocent social amusements, visit neighboring towns and neighboring worlds. (Discourses of Pratt, p. 62; Celestial Symbols, Allen H. Barber, p. 51, Horizon Publishers, Second Printing, 1990.)

Among the first principles that were revealed to the children of men in the last days was the gathering; the first revelations that were given to the Church were to command them to gather, and send Elders to seek out a place for the gathering of the Saints. What is the gathering for? Why was it that the Savior wished the children of Israel to gather together? It was that they might become united and provide a place wherein He could reveal unto them keys which have been hid from before the foundation of the world; the he could unfold unto them the laws of exaltation, and make them a kingdom of Priests--even the whole people, and exalt them to thrones and dominions in the celestial world. (George A. Smith, J. D., Vol. 2:214.)

Brigham Young

Father or king of many kings:

We understand that we are to be made kings and priests unto God; now if I be made the king and lawgiver to my family, and if I have many sons, I shall become the father of many fathers, for they will have sons, and their sons will have sons, and so on, from generation to generation, and, in this way, I may become the father of many fathers or the king of many kings. This will constitute every man a prince, king, lord, or whatever the Father sees fit to confer upon us. (Discourses, p. 302.)

Brigham Young

The kingdoms he possesses and rules over are his own progeny. Every man who is faithful and gets a salvation and glory, and becomes a King of Kings and Lord of lords, or a Father of fathers, it will be by the increase of his own progeny. Our Father and God rules over his own children. Wherever there is a God in all the eternities possessing a kingdom and glory and power it is by means of his own progeny. (JD 11:262; Discourses of Brigham Young p. 25.)

...Now if the Lord had considered it wisdom, on the day of the Kirtland endowment and great solemn assembly, to come forward and reveal to the children of men the facts that are laid down plainly in the Bible, and had told them that, without the law of sealing, no man could be exalted to a throne in the celestial kingdom, that is, without a woman by his side; and that no woman could be exalted to the celestial world without she was exalted with a man at her head; that the man is not without the woman, nor the woman without the man in the Lord; (George A. Smith, J. D., Vol. 2:214-216)

On the evening after the dedication of the Temple [Kirtland], hundreds of the brethren received the ministering of angels, saw the light and personages of angels, and bore testimony of it. They spake in new tongues, and had a greater manifestation of the power of God than that described by Luke on the day of Pentecost. Yet a great portion of the persons who saw these manifestations, in a few years, and some of them in a few weeks, apostatized. If they Lord had on that occasion revealed one single sentiment more, or gone one step further to reveal more fully the law of redemption, I believe He would have upset the whole of us. The fact was, He dare not, on that very account, reveal to us a single principle further than He had done, for He had tried, over and over again, to do it. He tried at Jerusalem; He tried away back before the flood; He tried in the days of Moses; and He had tried, from time to time, to find a people to whom He could reveal the law of salvation, and He never could fully accomplish it; and He was determined this time to be so careful, and advance the idea so slowly, to communicate them to the children of men with such great caution that, at all hazards, a few of them might be able to understand and obey. For, says the Lord, My ways are not as your ways, nor My thoughts as your thoughts; for as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways that your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. (George A. Smith, J. D., Vol. 2:215-16; Temples of the Most High, N. B. Lundwall, ninth ed. 1954, p. 34.)

In speaking of this, I will qualify my language by saying, that the Saint who has been sealed unto eternal life and falls into transgression and does not repent, but dies in his sin, will be afflicted and tormented after he leaves this vale of tears until the day of redemption; but having been sealed with the spirit of promise through the ordinances of the house of God, those things which have been sealed upon his head will be realized by him in the morning of the resurrection. But it is my desire and my constant prayer that I may so live, that when I depart from this life--when I lay down this mortal body, (if I am called upon to lay it down before the coming of our Lord,) I may enter into the paradise of rest, and not only conquer Satan, and have power over him here, but have power over him and all his hosts hereafter. These are my feelings, these are my desires, and this is my prayer. (Orson Pratt, J.D., Vol. 2:260.)

...Those who go through their endowments now and are sealed up unto eternal lives, those blessings will stick to them, if they will stick to the blessings and promises that are made over unto them, and step forward with one heart and one mind to do the will of God as made known to them from time to time from this stand. Second Anointings in Nauvoo:

Friday, Dec. 18
Some of the Brethren inquired upon Pres. Young to make inquiries upon certain teachings of Joseph concerning the endowments. Elder Geo. A. Smith said that Joseph taught that but one king and priest could be anointed at one meeting in a private room dedicated by permission to anoint in, and but one person could be anointed in a day, but in the Temple several could be anointed in a day, but at each meeting (anointing) the meeting was dismissed and then came together again. Pres. Young said that Joseph taught him to take the quorum and anoint them kings and priests to God, and when he got through with that begin at the beginning again to administer for the dead. When the Temple is finished and a place duly prepared we should not be confined to any particular number in sealing and anointing. The rooms next to the east pulpit, or over it will be the place to attend to the second anointings. Under the pulpit in the west end will be the place to offer sacrifices; there will be an altar prepared for that purpose so that when any sacrifices are to be offered they should be offered there. (Journal History, Friday December 18, 1857, H.B.Y. 1857: 904.)

1858 Wilford Woodruff record Joseph Smith's second anointing which occurred on 28 Sept. 1843:

Then by common consent Joseph Smith the Prophet Received his second Anointing of the Highest & holiest order. (Wilford Woodruff, Historian's Private Journal, 1858, Typescript p. 24, original in LDS Chruch Archives.)

Temple Ordinances Expressly for the Chruch of the Firstborn:

The sectarian world, as we call them, is a professed church of God without the Priesthood. Sectarians have not the Priesthood; but all of them who live according to the best light and intelligence they can obtain through faithfulness to what they believe, as taught unto them, will receive a kingdom and glory that will far transcend all their expectations, imaginations, or visions in their most excited moments, whether in their falling-down power, jumping power, or squawling (sic) power. All they have ever desired or anticipated they will receive, and far more; but they cannot dwell with the Father and Son, unless they go through those ordeals that are ordained for the Church of the Firstborn. The ordinances of the house of God are expressly for the Church of the Firstborn.

... Promises have been showered upon my head: blessings have been pronounced upon me by the Priesthood at different times; other blessings have been sealed upon me, through the holy ordinances of the Gospel, by the proper authority: but I contemplate that these are conditional. There is a small degree of trembling and fear that, after all, I may prove unfaithful, and that I may not be able to endure unto the end.

The great promises of our Saviour to his Apostles have been made upon this condition. It is true there are some promises that God had made upon some subjects without conditions. We might mention the following in the revelation upon marriage, concerning sealing blessings upon persons, and sealing them up to eternal life--sealing upon them blessings for time and for all eternity, at the time when the man and woman go forth and are sealed by the Priesthood having authority to do this. This remains upon them, if they are sealed unconditionally; at least, the revelation says, if such a one transgresses, he shall be destroyed in the flesh and suffer until the day of redemption; and then they shall come forth and inherit all that was placed upon their heads by the servants of God, on the condition that they have not committed the sin against the Holy Ghost or shed innocent blood. This would seem to be as near an unconditional promise as can well be made to mortals. But this is not altogether unconditional, for there are some exceptions; but it would come as near as anything we have ever read of. This ought to be a comfort to the Saints, and not a license for them to sin and commit all manner of blasphemies; but it should be a comfort and a consolation to those that may, in the hour of temptation, be overtaken in a fault, to encourage them to turn unto the Lord their God with all their hearts, minds, might, and strength. Then they can lay hold of these promises, and with them come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, and inherit all that was placed upon their heads. But when we reflect upon pain in this life, it is grievous to be born and to think of. When we think that a man may be buffeted, not only in this life, but until the morning of the first resurrection, this ought to cause the heart of every Latter-day Saint to shrink from everything that is sinful. What! shall we offend God who has made these great and precious promises? Where is our life, if we should offend God, the giver of all these good things? If we should dare to sin upon such a promise, we should indeed be deserving of the severest punishment. Let no Latter-day Saint, then, try to claim these great and precious things, if they wilfully commit sin, and because the Lord has promised that they should only be punished for a season. The time of their punishment is here in this life, and it is sure not to extend into the other for any great period. Yet there is far more satisfaction in being perfectly honest before God and men,--yes, far more satisfaction, joy, and consolation here in this life, to live without any threatening and punishment in this or in the next life. Every man that has the right spirit within him will feel that he ought to keep the commandments of God; and it is the great source of our happiness and the fountain from which we draw all these great, glorious, and honorable tokens of the approval of our Heavenly Father. Obedience produces enduring happiness in our minds. Then let us love God and love righteousness, because it is right; let us love honesty, love to do good, because there is pleasure in doing so; let us hate wickedness because it is hateful in its nature; let us hate that which has the appearance of evil, and do that because we know it to be the feeling of God, of angels, and of all good men.

These should be the feelings of every Latter-day Saint; they should study to discriminate between the right and the wrong, and be determined to walk continually in the path of virtue, of righteousness, and of truth. Let us study to make ourselves approved before God, that we may have his smiles and approbation continually. (Orson Pratt, J.D., Vol. 8:311-312.)

Brigham Young - We must observe all the ordinances of the Lord:

Were I to draw a distinction in all the duties that are require of the children of men, from first to last, I would place first and foremost the duty of seeking unto the Lord our God until we open the path of communication from heaven to earth--from God to our own souls. Keep every avenue of your hearts clean and pure before him. You may inquire whether we would do away with the ordinances of the house of God. This leads you to them, and it is the only thing that can lead the people to a true knowledge of the reality of facts as they exist.

We are aware that the Christian world cling to this one item, passing by every one of the ordinances of the house of the Lord, treating every commandment with lightness. They will pick up perhaps one or two of the ordinances and a few of the commandments; but they are opposed to the residue, and look upon them as a thing of naught. Through the kingdom of God and all the attributes he has dispensed to the children of men and our, (he has placed them upon our heads by ordinances,) yet if I should rise up here and tell you that I would rather have these than all the ordinances, the statement would need explanation. First of all, have the mind of Christ within you, and know that we are governed and controlled by his Spirit--by the Comforter, the Holy Ghost--by the influence of heaven; and this leads us to every one of the ordinances of the house of God; wherefore we by no means do them away.

Some of you may ask, "Is there a single ordinance to be dispensed with? Is there one of the commandments that God has enjoined upon the people that he will excuse them from obeying?" Not one, no matter how trifling or small in our own estimation. No matter if we esteem them non-essential, or least or last of all the commandments of the house of God, we are under obligation to observe them. Nothing will lead us to them, short of the mind of Christ within us to lead us understandingly to observe them to our own benefit. This is what I want of the people, so that we may be prepared, each and all of us, for the things that are coming upon the earth. (J.D., Vol. 8:339.)

Brigham Young on Women and "Sons of Perdition":

A few remarks on woman. She is the glory of the man but she is not at the head in all the creations of God. Pertaining to his children on this earth she is not accountable for the sins that are in the world. God requires obedience from man, he is the lord of creation, and at his hands the sins of the world will be required. Could the female portions of the human family fully understand this, they would see that they are objects of tender mercy and greatly blessed. This no doubt on a casual view appears to my sisters [to be] a glorious doctrine for them; and some might be tempted in ignorance to take unwarrantable liberties, corrupt themselves with sin, and then take shelter under the doctrine that man alone is culpable for the sins they commit. There are however restrictions placed upon woman.... Woman must atone for sins committed by the volition of her own choice, she will never become an angel to the Devil, and sin so far as to place herself beyond the reach of mercy. (Brigham Young, Speech delivered on 8 October 1861, Chruch Archives.)

Blessing by Charles W. Hyde upon the head of Sarah Ann Turnbow, daughter of Samuel and Martha Smith. Born Dec. 11, 1842, in Lee County, Iowa.

Sister Ann, I lay my hands upon thy head to seal upon thee a father's blessing which shall be sealed and ratified in the book of life. Thou shalt have the gift of discernment and wisdom that leads to Eternal Life. Great shall be thy reward and understanding for thou art of Joseph and a lawful heir to the fulness of the Priesthood with thy companion and a numerous posterity on the earth. Thou shalt have an inheritance in Zion with all the Redeemed and shalt help to redeem thy fathers household. Thou shalt go into the Temple of the Lord, the place called the Holy of Holy and converse with angels and be ordained a queen by the hand of your Redeemer and thy companion a king and priest. No good thing shall be denied thee, and I seal upon you these blessings of powers, dominions and eternal lives forever and ever. Amen. (Genealogical and Blessing Book--Samuel Turnbow, p. 15, Salt Lake City, under date given.)

Brigham Young--Explains that the Priesthood Authority will once again be reestablished through the Patriarchal Order:

I will here refer to a principle that has not been named by me for years. With the introduction of the Priesthood upon the earth was also introduced the sealing ordinance, that chain of the Priesthood from Adam to the latest generation might be united in one unbroken continuance. It is the same power and the same keys that Elijah held, and was to exercise in the last days. "Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord: and he shall turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse." By this power men will be sealed to men back to Adam, completing and making perfect the chain of the Priesthood from his day to the winding up scene. (J.D., vol. 9:269.) [Note: that the scriptures state that Adam was the son of God and Held the Priesthood After the Order of God. When this great Sealing- Priesthood Chain is reestablished then Mens Authority will descend Down through the proper chain of Patriarchal Line even from God the Father of all Living--This will be our Eternal Line of authority. For we will be Kings and Priests unto God and His Father

Brigham Young:

We talk a great deal about our religion. It is not now my intention to deliver a discourse on this subject, enumeration facts and producing evidences in my possession which are unanswerable, but I will merely give a text, or make a declaration, that our religion is simply the truth. It is all said in this one expression--it embraces all truth, wherever found, in all the works of God and man that are visible or invisible to mortal eye. It is the only system of religion known in heaven or on earth that can exalt a man to the Godhead, and this it will do to all those who embrace its laws and faithfully observe its precepts. This thought gives joy and delight to the reflecting mind, for, as has been observed, man possesses the germ of all the attributes and power that are possessed by God his heavenly Father.

There are some of the sealing ordinances that cannot be administered in the house that we are now using; we can only administer in it some of the first ordinances of the Priesthood pertaining to the endowment. There are more advanced ordinances that cannot be administered there; we would, therefore, like a Temple, but I am willing to wait a few years for it.

***

Some of us are not dependent on the Temple for our endowment blessings, for we have received them under the hands of Joseph the Prophet, and know were to go to bestow the same on others. You may ask me whether the leaders of the Church have received all their endowment blessings. I think that we have got all that you can get in your probation, ... (Brigham Young, Journal of Discourses, 10:252, 254.)

1863

1865

...my husband one day told me that a select few had been chosen to receive their Second Endowments, and that we were to be honored with the same privilege. This I was told was one of the highest honors that could be conferred upon us, as the Second Endowments had never been given to any one since the Mormons left Nauvoo.

When we reached the Endowment House, we ladies were shown into one room and our husband into another. We then proceeded to array ourselves in our robes, caps, and aprons--the same as when we received our first Endowments--and when all was ready we were ushered into another room by one of the brethren, who was also dressed in his Temple robes. There we met our husband and several other brethren, all dressed in the same way. We sat down, and oil was then poured upon the head of our husband by two of the brethren--Daniel H. Wells and another--and he was then ordained a King and Priest to all eternity. After that, we two wives were anointed in like manner, and ordained Queens and Priestesses, to reign and rule with our husband over his kingdom in the celestial world. (T.B.H. Stenhouse, An Englishwoman in Utah [Fanny], 1882, p. 320-321.)

26 December 1866

I met with the Presidency and Twelve at President Youngs Office at about 12 oclock (sic) The subject of the Endowments & 2d Anointings was presented when President Young said that the order of the 2d anointing was for the persons to be anointed to be cloathed (sic) in their priestly robes of the man upon the right hand and wife or wives upon the left hand the Administrator may be dressed in his usual clothing or in his Priestly robes as he may see fit. The meeting should be opened by Prayer then the Administrator should anoint the man a King & Priest unto the Most High God then he should anoint the wife or wives Queens & Priestess unto her husband There should be but one man anointed at any one meeting if more than one man is anointed in a day They should come together and open by Prayer as though their had not been any meeting before and thus continue to the end. President Young said when a woman was anointed a Queen to a good man and he died & the woman was sealed to another man for time it was not necessary for her to be anointed a Queen again [Nauvoo "Book of Anointing" indicates that women were anointed queens to their husbands for time] but if she was anointed a Queen to a man who was not worthy of a wife & she is sealed to another man she should be anointed a Queen unto him. When a good man dies & his wives have not been anointed Queens unto him they may be anointed Queens to him after his death without any Proxy [their husbands already being anointed king and priest, see "Book of Anointings as example.] (Wilford Woodruff, Journal, 26 December 1866, LDS Church Archives.)

President Brigham Young:

Before Joseph's death he had a revelation which signified that we had passed the ordeal, and that we should never apostatize form the faith of the holy gospel; "and," said Joseph, "if there is any danger of your doing this, the Lord will take you to Himself forthwith, for you cannot stray from the truth." When men and women have travelled to a certain point in their labors in this life, God sets a seal upon them that they never can forsake their God or His kingdom; for, rather than they should do this, He will at once take them to Himself. Probably this is so with many of the elders who are taken from us, and over whom many ignorantly morn. I say, to God give thanks, for who knows but that had they lived there might have been trials to pass through which they could not overcome. It is all right, blessed be the name of the Lord.

1867 Second Anointings of Sylvester H. Earl:

...In the fall, Willber and myself went to Great Salt Lake City. In '62, I moved my first wife to St. George. She was very sick in '63 and '64. We then all settled in Pine Valley, and got some good farming land, and in 1867, I was called upon to take my wives and go to Salt Lake to get our second anointings. Brigham Young--Explains that the Priesthood Authority will once again be reestablished through the Patriarchal Order:

The fathers cannot be made perfect without us; we cannot be made perfect without the fathers. There must be this chain in the holy Priesthood; it must be welded together from the latest generation that lives on the earth back to Father Adam, to bring back all that all that can be saved and placed where they can receive salvation and a glory in some kingdom. This Priesthood has to do it; this Priesthood is for this purpose. God has revealed the plan of salvation, we know how to carry it out. (J.D., Vol. 13:280.) [The thought just occurred to me that Just as the Father pulls a person out of the Waters of Baptism into a new birth. So he iniates and pulls the child from the Spirit World into Mortality and also since the Baptism is Symbolic of the Resurrection. It is the Father who pulls the son into the new birth of Immortality.]

The Patriarchal Order:

We find that after the days of Noah an order was introduced called the patriarchal order, in which every man managed his own family affairs. And prominent men among them were kings and priests unto

God, and officiated in what is known among us as the priesthood of the Son of God, or the priesthood after the order of Melchizedek. Man began again to multiply on the face of the earth, and the heads of families became their kings and priests, that is, the fathers of their own people. And they were more or less under the influence and guidance of the Almighty. We read, for instance, in our revelations pertaining to these matters, of a man called Melchizedek, who was a great high priest. We are told that there were a great many high priests in his day, and before him and after; and these men had communication with God, and were taught of him in relation to their general proceedings, and acknowledged the hand of God in all things with which the were associated. (JD, 17:207, October 7, 1874; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 139.)

Nauvoo Anointings:

Second annointing (sic) administered to B. Young in Nauvoo Temple by Joseph Smith; then B. Young gave it to 9 or the 12 and power to administer in ordinances of gospel for the dead. George A. Smith said S. Rigdon never received the 2nd annointing (sic). (St. George Stake Historical Record (# 97707) Vol. 3, p. 28, December 25, 1874.)

December 25, 1874

Prest. (George A.) Smith, on rising,....spoke of the Solemn assembly which convened in Kirtland nearly forty years ago, and of the great blessings poured out by the Lord on that occasion. He felt glad to see present here today perhaps forty witnesses of what then took place. He alluded to councils which had been held in Nauvoo, and to the fact of the Prophet Joseph calling the Twelve together,....placing Brigham Young as President of the Twelve. The speaker stated that the Prophet and Patriarch Hyrum, in one of those meetings with the twelve, had administered to Brigham Young what is known as the Second Anointing, and instructing him to administer in like manner to his brethren of the Twelve, which he did to the nine of the Twelve then at home. The twelve were then instructed to administer in the Ordinances of the Gospel for the dead, beginning with baptism and the laying on of hands. This work was at once commenced. It soon became apparent that some had long records of their dead for whom they wished to administer. This was seen to be but the beginning of an immense work, and that to administer all the ordinances of the Gospel to the hosts of the dead was no light task. Some of the Twelve asked Joseph if there could not be some shorter method of administering for so many. Joseph in effect replied. The laws of the Lord are immutable; we must act in perfect compliance with what is revealed to us. We need not expect to do this vas word for the dead in a short time; I expect it will take at least a thousand years.

Brother George A. Smith, in the foregoing recital, incidentally remarked that Elder Sidney Rigdon had never received the Second Anointing, nor the keys pertaining to baptism for the dead.

The speaker warmly and most earnestly exhorted the people to energetically prosecute the work on the St. George Temple so that Prest. Young, and the twelve may have the opportunity of going therein to communicate the keys of knowledge and power which the Prophet Joseph Smith had conferred on others in a temple. (James G. Bleak, Clerk and Historian of the Southern Mission. Friday, December 25, 1874. Millennial Star Vol. 37: 66, Tuesday, February 2, 1875; St. George Stake Historical Record No. 97707.)

Brigham Young Reminisces Receiving His Anointings Under the Hands of The Prophet Joseph at Nauvoo--Recorded in L. John Nuttal Journal:

Pres. B. Young was filled with [the] Spirit of God and revelation and said When we got our washings and anointings under the hands of the Prophet Joseph at Nauvoo, we had only one room to work in with the exception of a little side room or office where we were washed and anointed, had our garment placed upon us and received our new name, and after he had preformed these ceremonies, he gave the keys words signs togkens (sic) and penalties. Then after, we went into the large room over the store in Nauvoo. Joseph Smith divided up the room the best that he could, hung up the Vail, (sic) marked it, gave us our instructions as we passed along form one department to another, giving us signs tokens, penalties with the key words pertaining to those signes (sic), and after we had got through, Brother Joseph turned to me (B. Young) and said, 'Brother Brigham, this is not arranged right, but we have done the best we could under the circumstances in which we are placed, and I want you to take this matter in hand and organize and systematize all these ceremonies with the signs tokens penalties and Key Words'. I did so and each time I got something more so that when we went through the Temple at Nauvoo I understood and knew how to place them there. We had our ceremonies pretty correct. (Excerpts from the Diary of L.

Dear Brother: ---

I very much object to telegrams such as that regarding Bp. Dorius. It compromises all parties concerned, the principles, the sender, and the receiver, and much prefer that communications on such matters be made through the mail. Those desiring such work done must make proper arrangements before hand or they must wait.

Bp. Dorius has our consent to his request.

Fulness of the Priesthood by Daniel Tyler:

In my last [article in this series of articles on the temple] I showed you how particular the Lord was about having everything recorded and witnessed. This strictness is not confined to those two items, but the Lord has always been very particular to have things done "according to the pattern" He has given. In a revelation given on the 19th of January, 1841, He says:

> For there is not a place found on earth that he may come and restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fulness of the priesthood.
> Perhaps some of my young readers may enquire if Joseph Smith previous to the giving of this revelation was not an Apostle, which is the highest grade of Priesthood in the Church, as well as Prophet, Seer and Revelator, and if there were not a quorum of Twelve Apostles, a Patriarch and a quorum of Seventies as well as Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons.

Yes, my young friends, all these authorities were in the Church; yea, more, they had received endowments in the Kirtland Temple, where cloven tongues as of fire sat upon many, and they spoke with the power of God, and saw many marvelous things, brief mention of which has heretofore been made. While Joseph Smith was an Apostle he was also the chief of the Apostles, and presided over the Apostles and over the whole Church, as is stated in the Doctrine and Covenants, sec. cvii., par. 91-92. The question then arises, What is meant by the fullness of the priesthood?

It does not mean any special office above that of Apostles, but that there were powers belonging to the different grades of priesthood which had not been conferred. They had no temple, no baptismal font, no administration for the dead, no endowments, no place to "reveal ordinances which had been hid from before the world was." As a faint illustration, I will speak of the Patriarchal priesthood, and say that every faithful Elder in Israel who has received a patriarchal blessing by a legally authorized father in Israel, is, himself, by virtue of his blessing, a patriarch to his children, and without such blessing is not a recognized patriarch. This doctrine may be new to some of you, but whether or not, it is true.

But all faithful patriarchs have not the fullness of that priesthood. By virtue of a patriarchal blessing the patriarch thus created receives power to renew unto his posterity the rights conferred upon him; but he cannot confer patriarchal blessings outside his own lineage or rather beyond his immediate descendants; while those especially ordained to bless the people may bless all kindreds of the earth, and the Patriarch to the Chruch is recognized as the Patriarch of all Patriarchs.

In like manner men may be ordained to other grades of priesthood without obtaining a fullness thereof. The Lord informed the prophet that the temples were the places to receive "the fullness of the priesthood." He said: "for a baptismal font there is not upon the earth, that my Saints may be baptized for those who are dead; for this ordinance belongeth to my hours," (a temple) "and cannot be acceptable to me, only in the days of your poverty, wherein ye are not able to build a house unto me."

These additional powers include all of the keys that belong to the holy priesthood on the earth, or were ever revealed to man in any dispensation, and which admit men and Women within the veil. They enable them to pass by the angels and the gods, until they get into the presence of the Father and the Son. They make of them kings and priests, queens and priestesses to God, to rule and reign as such over their posterity and those who may be given to them by adoption, in the great jubilee of rest which is near at hand. It gives them the right to the tree of life, and the "seal of the living God in their foreheads," spoken of by John the revelator. No marvel, then, that the Lord requires sacred places for such great and glorious things--"the fulness of the holy priesthood" to be restored.

All these ordinances and ceremonies instituted by the Almighty and comprehended in that which is called the Gospel are necessary. There is no such thing as non-essential ordinances; every one of them is essential. Exaltation cannot be arrived at without them. But exaltation does not consist of the mere compliance to certain forms and ceremonies that the Almighty has instituted and places in his Church. There is something more required, something superior to all this. What is it? It is the spirit that comes from our Father to dictate us in every act, to make us righteous and holy unto the Lord, and to sanctify us and bring us into complete subjection to and harmony with the laws that govern the celestial kingdom. (Elder Chas. W. Penrose, J. D., Vol. 21:353).

Wilford Woodruff - 50,000,000,000 REDEMPTION OF THE DEAD:

We have a great work before us in the redemption of our dead. The course that we are pursuing is being watched with interest by all heaven. There are fifty thousand millions of people in the spirit world who are being preached to by Joseph Smith, and the apostles and elders, his associates, who have passed away. Those persons may receive their testimony, but they cannot be baptized [or receive any of the ordinances of the House of the Lord] in the spirit world, for somebody on the earth must perform this ordinance[s] for them in the flesh before they can receive part in the first resurrection, and be worthy of eternal life. The eyes of millions of people are watching over these Latter-day Saints. Have we any time to spend in trying to get rich and in neglecting our dead? I tell you no. (J.D. 22:234; June 26, 1881; The Discourses of Wilford Woodruff, Bookcraft, p. 148.)

[The Iron Curtain came down in East Germany-These people have been with me almost constantly for the last year working and pleading to help them receive all the ordiance of the Gospel, particularly the Second Anointing and Fulness of the Priesthood so that we can bring down the Iron Curtain of Death and imprisonment for these people them so that they can be loosed and go free and come with Jesus Christ as resurrected, glorified, perfected, and happy beings. This is what they want so desperately or at least what I saw, when the Lord showed me all of these people! Amen and Amen.]

Dear Brother:

Mrs. Elizabeth Gilbert, (who is in her Eighty-second year) is here for the purpose of obtaining her Second Anointing, together with her husband, Algernon Sidney Gilbert, who died when Zion's Camp went up to Missouri --- My brother Henry Rollins, stands as Proxy for her husband --- his uncle.

I, also wish to know if the Sealing of my mother to Mr. John M. Burk, in Nauvoo can be changed. As she did not wished to be Sealed to him --- but Brother Young told her to let it be so for the present, and it could be changed afterwards (or words to that effect).

Must her sealing remain as it was in Nauvoo? Or can she be sealed to Joseph --- for that is our desire Henry desires to be adopted into Josephs kingdom ---

Respectfully

(s) James A. Rollins

Dear President Taylor

As I understand you are well acquainted with Bro James H. Rollins and his sister Mary E. who is the wife of Joseph the Prophet. It does not require a great deal of writing from me, he has had his Second Anointing, and can act for his uncle if approved. They are very much exercised about their Mother. He informs me it was understood when living at President Smith's that he was to be in his family, and would like his mother sealed to him.

You Bro in the Gospel

John Taylor:

...And if temples are to be built here and ordinances performed in them in the interest of those who have died without law, and in the adjudication of all these matters, that the Priesthood behind the veil, to whom is committed the judgment of these things, should communicate with the Priesthood upon the earth, that they may be administered for by proxy in the temples erected by us, and those who shall follow after us; that all things may be done according to equity, law, and justice, and that none but those worthy to receive those great blessings and high exaltations can participate in the same; being thus sanctioned by the Priesthood in heaven and the Priesthood upon the earth? Hence, while they are saviors, preach to the spirits in prison and judge the dead, we build temples and administer for them upon the earth, and thus become, as it is written, "saviors upon Mount Zion;" operating and cooperating with the Priesthood behind the veil, in the interest, happiness, salvation and exaltation of the human family. Thus shall we also become legitimately and by right, through the atonement and adoption, Kings and Priests--Priests to administer in the holy ordinances pertaining to the endowments and exaltations: and Kings, under Christ, who is King of Kings and Lord of Lords, to rule and govern, according to the eternal laws of justice and equity, those who are thus redeemed and exalted. (Mediation and Atonement, by President John Taylor, 1882, p. 158-159.)

10 May 1883

President Taylor:

...let Sister Paxman have her expressed choice, which she ought to have had before, ...and let her be sealed to Bro. Paxman, and anointed to him.... (Andrew K. Larson, Erastus Snow, SLC; U of U Press 1971, p. 566.)

Apostle Erastus Snow:

Well, Now, because the Lord has set His hand to gather out from the nations of the earth the humble and the honest in heart and those that will be obedient and will submit themselves to the truth and to the law of the Lord, therefore He reveals unto them a new and everlasting covenant, the holy covenant of marriage for time and for all eternity, the union of the sexes, the sealing of wives to husbands and husbands to wives, children to parents, etc., the uniting and sealing us in the holy Priesthood unto the fathers and even unto our Lord Jesus Christ, who stands at the head of the kingdom of righteousness, the Chief Apostle and High Priest of our profession; and unto this new and everlasting covenant has the Lord purposed and designed His people to be united and bound together with the Son, our Savior, and through Him unto His Father; for He has said, "Whosoever receiveth me receiveth my Father, and all that my Father hath shall be given unto him."

This new and everlasting covenant reveals unto us the keys of the Holy Priesthood and ordinances thereof. It is the grand keystone of the arch which the Lord is building in the earth. In other words, it is that which completes the exaltation and glory of the righteous who receive the everlasting Gospel, and without it they could not attain unto the eternal power an Godhead and fulness of celestial glory. Now, many may enter into the glory of God, and become servants in the house of God and in the celestial kingdom of God, who are not able to abide this new and everlasting covenant; but as we are told in the Doctrine and Covenants, with them there is an end to their exaltation. They may remain in their saved condition without exaltation, but they enter not into the order of the Gods. They cannot progress through the ceaseless rounds of eternity except they abide in the covenant, and abide the law that governs it, and the Lord will not be mocked in these things. (Journal of Discourses, 24:161.)

George Q. Cannon's Remarks–Minutes recorded by John Irvine–School of the Prophets:

Now, whether the washing of feet [at the original Kirtland School] was suspended by the Endowment or not is a question in my mind, and probably, in all our minds. But it seems to me clear that after Peter, at least, had received an uncommon bestowal of power at the Transfiguration, that the Savior even after that washed his feet and the feet of the rest and commanded them that as they seen him do so should they do to one another. It was one of the last ordinances he performed in their midst. Brother Nuttall whispers to me a thing with which you are no doubt all familiar; that in the washing that takes place in the first endowment, they are washed that they might become clean from the blood of this generation--that is, I suppose, in the same way they are ordained to be Kings and Priests--that ordinance does not make them clean from the blood of this generation anymore than it makes them Kings and Priests. If they fully receive of another endowment [the second anointing], a fulness of that power, and the promises are fulfilled in the bestowal of the power upon them. (Salt Lake [City] School of the Prophets Minute Book, typescript entry for 2 Aug. 1883, original in LDS Church Archives.)

August 12, 1883

President George. Q. Cannon

Attain unto the Eternal Godhead:

...My acquaintance with mankind, so far as it goes, teaches me that of all people now living, either in Christendom or heathendom, the Latter-day Saints excel them all in their hopes, in their anticipations, in the character of the glory that they are to receive, and in the promises which are sealed upon them. There is not a man in this room who has a proper conception of the Gospel, and of the rewards attached to obedience to it, who does not at least hope that he will attain unto celestial glory, (which means the Godhead [attain unto the Godhead], to be an heir of God, and a joint heir with Jesus Christ); that he will enter upon a career of exaltation that shall not terminate throughout the endless ages of eternity, and that will place him in the company of Him concerning whom it is said "of the increase of His kingdom there shall be no end." And there is not a woman in this congregation who has a proper conception or knowledge of the promises associated with the Gospel, and with obedience thereto, who does not indulge, when she thinks upon these matters, in similar hopes, and would be very unhappy if she thought she should be deprived of that which she anticipates--I mean of being one with her husband as a wife and as a queen and as a priestess throughout eternity, and stand with him at the head of their mutual posterity.

...When Joseph Smith lived upon the earth.... He stood as God's ambassador--not clothed with the attributes of God, for he was a mortal man; but he stood as the representative of God upon the earth, holding the keys of the kingdom of God upon the earth, with the power to bind on earth and it should be bound in heaven. He occupied that position when he lived, and on his departure another took his place upon the earth and stood in precisely the same capacity to us as a people that Joseph Smith did [King and Priest in and over the House of Israel, or in other words proxie for the Christ as King of kings and Lord of lords--and will deliver up those keys unto the Lord when he comes]. That was Brigham Young. When he passed away another stepped forward and took the same position, and holds the same keys and exercises the same authority and stands precisely in the same position to us that the Prophet Joseph did or that the Prophet Brigham did when he lived upon the earth. Now, was not Joseph Smith a mortal man? Yes. A fallible man? Yes. Had he not weaknesses? Yes, he acknowledged them himself, and did not fail to put the revelations on record in this book [the Book of Doctrine and Covenants] wherein God reproved him. His weaknesses were not concealed from the people. He was willing that people should know that he was mortal, and had failings. And so with Brigham Young. Was not he a mortal man, a man who had weaknesses? He was not a God. He was not an immortal being. He was not infallible. No, he was fallible. And yet when he spoke by the power of God, it was the word of God to this people. When he sealed a man up to eternal life, he bestowed upon him the blessings pertaining to eternity, and to the Godhead, or delegated others to do it in his stead, God in the eternal world recorded the act; the blessings that were sealed upon that man or that woman, they were sealed to be binding in this life, and in that life which is to come; they became part of the records of eternity and would be fulfilled to the very letter upon the heads of those upon whom they were pronounced, provided they were faithful before God, and fulfilled their part of the covenant. there is no doubt about it. And so it is to-day. There is but one man, (as you have often heard), at a time on the earth, who holds this authority. There may be others who have this authority also; and I thank God there are many who hold this authority--that is the authority of the Apostleship; but they hold it subordinate to the man who holds the keys, they cannot exercise this authority only as he shall consent or delegate or authorize them to do so. T here is but one man who has the power to exercise this authority, to stand, as it were in God's stead [King and Priest in and over the House of Israel, or in other words proxie for the Christ, King of kings and Lord of lords--and will deliver up those keys unto the Lord when he comes] to be His voice unto the people, and that is the man who stands at the head and who is President, and who holds the keys by virtue of the appointment of God. God places him there. It is not man's act. It is God's providence. (George Q. Cannon, August 12, 1883, JD 24:271-278)

What position are the Presidents of Stakes placed:

I [John Taylor] am called a Prophet to God, also a seer and revelator. My councilors are also sustained as Prophets, Seers and Revelators, as also the Twelve and their councilors. Is this a fiction or reality? Joseph fixed thes matters in his day, and they are no fiction.

The Presidents of Stakes are placed in the same position as the Church in Kirtland, when the Prophet Joseph presided over it. The Presidents of Stakes and their councilors stand in the same relationship to the Stakes, as Joseph Smith and his councilors stood to the Stake in Kirtland, with this difference that their authority extends only to the stake while that of Joseph Smith and his councilors extended to the whole World.--that being the case they would be quite as confident to manage their affairs as we are to manage ours, and they could select that class of men to associate with them, as we have with us, for they have the right to know the mind and will of God in their behalf. [Note: this possibly could be the reason why Stake presidents were permitted, for so long, to recommend people for second anointings.] (Minutes of the School of the Prophets, LDS Church Archives.)

Minutes of the School of the Prophets, Salt Lake City, 12 October 1883, LDS Church Archives [John Taylor Version]:

Brother (giving name) in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by virtue of the Holy Priesthood I wash your feet in accordance with the order instituted by God in his church and as practised by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ when in the flesh upon his Apostles and disciples, and also observed by his servant Joseph Smith the Prophet as an introductory ordinance into the school of the prophets. I pronounce thee clean from the blood of this generation, and confer upon thee all the rights, blessings, powers and privileges associated with this holy ordinance, and I do it by virtue of the Holy Priesthood and in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Occasionally he [John Taylor] inserted "And I say unto thee thy sins are forgiven thee." (Minutes of the School of the Prophets, Salt Lake City, 12 October 1883, LDS Church Archives [John Taylor Version].)

Minutes of the School of the Prophets, Salt Lake City, 24 December 1883, LDS Church Archives [Wilford Woodruff version]:

By virtue of the Priesthood and in the name of Jesus Christ I wash thy feet according to an Holy Ordinance introduced by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ with his disciples when he washed their feet and told them to wash one another, and also by Joseph Smith, the Prophet of the Lord, [as] an introductory ordinance to the School of the Prophets, and pronounce thee clean from the blood of this generation, and say unto thee, thy sins are forgiven thee, and seal and confirm upon thee all the rights, powers, and privileges associated with this ordinance in the authority of the Holy Priesthood and in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen. (Minutes of the School of the Prophets, Salt Lake City, 24 December 1883, LDS Church Archives [Wilford Woodruff version].)

October 11, 1883 & December 24th, 1883

Henry Eyring Initiated Into the School of the Prophets, 1883:

Oct 11th we were invited to the endowment house, where we were told that a school of the Prophets would be organized and that only those who are willing to observe the word of wisdom and observe all other laws, God has given us, could be admitted. We were told to come again the next day, fasting and with our bodies washed clean.

Oct 12th 1883 was a day to be long remembered by all who partook of the blessings that were then bestowed upon us.
Patriarch Zebedee Coltrin, who was the only surviving member of the school of the Prophets organized by the Prophet Joseph Smith at Kirtland washed the feet of President John Taylor and Pres Taylor in turn washed the feet of Zebedee Coltrin and then the feet of his Counselors, then of ten of the Apostles (Elders C C Rich and John H. Smith being absent the former sick, the later presiding in England) then the feet of Counselor D H. Wells (J W Young absent).
after that the remaining brethren were seated according to age and prest Taylor washed the feet of twenty of the Presidents of Stakes, of Jno. B. Maiben Counselor to Prest Canute Peterson, of myself and of Geo Reynold private Secretary to Prest Taylor. The ceremony used by Prest Taylor was about as follows: "In the name of Jesus and by the authority of the holy priesthood I wash your feet in accordance with the pattern set by our Lord Jesus Christ when he washed his disciples feet and told them to wash each-others' feet, and also according to the pattern given by the Prophet Joseph Smith as an introductory ordiance to the School of the Prophets.
I pronounce you clean from the blood of this generation and say unto you, your sins are forgiven you and I seal upon you every blessing, gift, right and authority pertaining to this holy ordinance and I do it in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."
After the washing of feet the Sacrament was administered, consisting of bread and wine. Of the latter we partook about one third of a Tumbler full each and of the former as much as our appetite would prompt us.
After the sacrament we retired to a lower room and on returning were saluted by Pres't Taylor with the words prescribed in Section VII of the D. & C. Pres't Geo Q. Cannon in behalf of the members answered the salutation.
We were then dismissed by prayer.

A Patriarchal Blessing upon the head of George Albert Smith, son of Sarah Farr and John Henry Smith, born April 4 1970, at S. L. City, S. L. Cou. U.T.

Mr. George Albert in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ I lay my hands upon your head and seal upon you a Patriarchal Blessing for thou art of the seed of Abraham of the house of Joseph and lineage of Ephraim. I seal upon thy head a father's blessing, for thou art a lawful heir to all the blessings of the holy Priesthood, and inasmuch as thou wilt keep all the commandments of the Lord thou shalt attain to all the blessings of eternal lives, and the choice blessings of the heavens shall rest down upon you and thou shalt be filled with wisdom of the heavens and the light of the Lord shall swell within you, and every organ of your mind shall be filled with the inspiration of the Lord, for thou wast called and chosen of the Lord from before the foundation of the earth was laid to come forth in this dispensation to assist in building up the Zion of God upon the earth, and thou shalt be enabled to bring many to a knowledge of the truth, for thy voice shall be as the voice of a trumpet in declaring the words of the Lord to the nobles of the earth, and many shall believe in thy words and embrace the gospel of the Son of God. For thou shalt be filled with the mighty power of God, and shall be able to do many mighty works in their midst. And thou shalt have power over the elements, and the winds and the waves of the sea shall obey thy voice, and no miracle shall be too great for thee to do, when it shall be necessary for the salvation [of] man, for thou art called to do a great and a mighty work in the great kingdoms [sic] of God. And thou shalt attain to all the blessings and sealing powers that shall be given in the holy temples of the Lord and thou shalt behold the Lord when he shall come in the clouds of heaven, and shall be enabled to do a great work upon the earth, both for the living and the dead, and shall assist in the redemption of thy father's house. And thou shalt become a mighty prophet in the midst of the sons of Zion. And the angels of the Lord shall administer unto you, and the choice blessings of the heavens shall rest upon you. And thy posterity shall become great upon the earth, and the Holy Melchisedek Priesthood shall rest upon them throughout their generations and thy sons shall rest upon them throughout their generations and thy sons shall become a mighty men before the Lord, filled with the wisdom of the heavens, and many of them shall become prophets and apostles and shall dwell in the midst of the Zion of the Lord and their posterity shall become very great and they shall become kings and priests of the most high. And thy daughters shall become women of great renown and shall become the mothers of mighty men before the Lord, and shall dwell among the sanctified of the Lord, and shall become a vast multitude dwelling in the midst of the zion of the Lord, and shall live and reign a thousand years upon the earth and thy generations there shall be no end. And thou shalt be wrapt (sic) in the visions of the heavens and thou shalt be clothed with salvation as with a garment, for thou art destined to become a might man before the Lord, for thou shalt become a mighty apostle in the church and kingdom of God upon the earth, for none of thy father's family shall have more power with God than thou shalt have, for none shall excel thee, for thy reward shall be great in the heavens, for the blessing of thy father and of thy grandfather shall rest upon thee, and thou shalt become a man of mighty faith before the Lord, even like unto that of the brother of Jared, and thou shalt remain upon the earth until thou are satisfied with life, and shall be numbered with [the] Lord's annointed (sic) and shall become a king and a priest unto the Most High, for thou art of the pure blood of Jacob, and have a right to all the blessings of the house of Joseph, and shall receive an everlasting inheritance when the Ancient of Days shall come, and thou shalt have power to come forth on the morning of the first resurrection and shall be numbered with the sanctified before the Lord. And I now seal all these blessings upon thy head, and thee up to all the powers of exaltation of thrones and dominions, and powers of eternal lives in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ, Amen. [A Patriarchal Blessing upon the head of George Albert Smith, son of Sarah Farr and John Henry Smith, born April 4 1970, at S.  Forty years ago, when President Merril (sic) was the president in the Logan Tempal (sic) he gave me a great blessing while I was there with my husband having our second endowments. He said my mission of this earth was to tend to the sick. He commanded me to go forth and take care of the sick. I was very poorly at that time. I did not think it would be possible to do so but in three weeks I was able to take care of my daughter-in-law in confinement. Brother Merrill gave me this blessing never having seen me before and did not know that I had been practicing delivering women for years. It is evident that this blessing was inspired and he also said I would live long on the earth and be a queen among queens in the eternal worlds and said many more great things that I cannot remember at this time. I had to be helped into the temple but walked out without help. This has always been a strong testimony to me. President J. D. McAllister

St. George Temple

May Dear Brother

To satisfy a feeling which has been on my mind for some time. I submit the following: My Son George Q. who died in this City when he was 18 years and 21 days old, was very faithful to us as a son, and also in the Holy Priesthood so far as he opportunity when a Deacon, he was 1st Councilor to the President of the Quorum, which position he filled honorably, until ordained an Elder, previous to receiving his Endowment. He was appointed Clk of the [p.2] 1st Quorum of Elders in the Stake. Being naturally of a religious turn of mind it seemed natural for him to perform his spiritual duties. He acted as a Teacher in the ward, with entire satisfaction to the Saints up to the time of his death.

When on his death bed I asked him if there was any thing that he would like me to do for him, he said "I would like you to have some wives sealed to me." According to his request I had two girls who died in the Church sealed to him. Two other, apreciating [sic] his worth have expressed a desire to have their daughters sealed to him, which will be done. These tokens of respect filles [sic] our hearts [p. 3] with joy feeling as we do, that our dear boy was worthy.

Now the question is, do you think he was old enough to receive his 2d Anointing?

Bro McAllister it is not my desire to seek blessings for my sons that they are not entitled to. But I had great hope for my son, for I fully apreciated [sic] his worth, and would like to see that every blessing was put in his reach, to which his faithfulness entitled him.

You as the Prest. of the St George Stake knew him, hence I submit the question to you.

I am very respectfully
Your Brother in the Gospel,
(s) D. H. Cannon

Dear President Taylor

I can fully endorse the words expressed by Bp D. H. Cannon in relation to his son George Q. He lived and died a good young man.

I think you are acquainted with him, also his Uncle George Q.

I address this to you personally.

God our Father be with you all.

President John D. T. McAllister
St. George Temple

Dear Brother:

Though the deceased son of Bishop David H. Cannon --- George Q --- was quite young when he died, still as he is so highly recommended, you may administer to his representative and the representative of the deceased who have been seal'd to him the ordinance of Second Anointing.

With Kind regards,
Your Brother,
(s) John Taylor

Mrs. Eliza Perry Benson
Logan Temple

Dear Sister:

Your letter asking the privilege of 2nd anointing for your parents John Perry and Grace Williams Perry who are deceased, has been received.

You are at liberty to have them officiated for and receive their 2nd anointings; but those who officiate for them must be those who have already had that sacred ordinance. By presenting this to Bro. M. W. Merrill he will have the Ordinance attended to.

Very respectfully,
(s) John Taylor

President John Taylor

Dear Brother.

The theme of my correspondence on the present occasion will be a subject that has engrossed my mind for many years and especially of late.

I have just returned from St George wither I had been with a portion of my family to work for my dead relatives and friends in the Temple of the Lord.

I find in looking over my record that my Father died an Elder; I recd for him some 7 years ago his second anointings. He was a good man and was called hence without a moments warning by a St[r]oke of lightning at the age of 63. He was Killed on Beaver City some 27 years ago and I am very desirous to receive for him the ordination as an High Priest that he may belong to the same quorum as my Brother Joshua and myself if it meets with your approval. [p. 2] Brother Erastus Snow was some little acquainted with Father and to him I refer as his advocate.

My Brother Joshua had his failings, like many more, but my mind has been set at rest for many years in regard to his present condition and situation in the spirit world. He was never cut off from the Church altho he demeaned himself very improperly for some time before his death and no doubt brought about his early demise thro his bad habit of drinking. Nevertheless from manifestations I have received since his death I am satisfied that he has sorrowfully repented and is now engaged in doing all the good he can on the other side. If it meets with your approval I would very much like him to receive his second anointings. I was rebaptized for him in the Temple at St George some 8 years ago. I take pleasure in mentioning the names of Judge Elias Smith and Prest Daniel H. Wells as his advocates.

I have another Brother dead named Benjamin he lived on Greenville Beaver Co [p. 3] also died in the faith. I should be pleased to receive for him his second anointings and will mention the name of Prest John R. Murdock of Beaver Stake as his advocate.

I hope dear Brother you will not deem me presumptuous in asking for blessings for my dead relatives --- they are very dear to me and I am fully sattisfied [sic] that the three I have mention'd are doing all they can according to their calling and Priesthood to further on the work of the Lord where they are --- I have done for them all I can --- I have recd the blessings mention'd for myself and earnestly wish that these near and dear to my heart should share in the same blessing and privileges that I by the clemency of the Priesthood have been permitted to receive.

Prayer the Lord to shield and protect you and the brethren with you in the future as he has in the past and with due respect I desire to subscribe myself you[r] Brother in the Gospel

Dear Brother

Three years ago I got ready by the council of Apostle George Teasdale to go to St. George, to attend to Temple work also to get my second anointings in connection with my wives. One of my wives Maria was taken sick which hindered me from going at that time, afterward my wife Eliza now seventy years old, became too feeble to travel that distance. I have been in hiding Seventeen months past but I think I can go safely to the Logan Temple. I ask if I now with my wives can have the privilege of this great blessing. I therefore think and feel as if I ought not to neglect this matter any longer if the privilege is mine I would also like my first wife Ann who is dead, died three years and half ago, to receive the blessing through one of my living lives acting for her.

Please endorse upon the recommends if you will grant me this privilege and return to me that I may know how to prepare, as I am not known by my right name here please send the recommends to Brother Joseph E. Taylor with whom I am acquainted.

I will see him and ask him to receive them for me.

I remain your Brother in the Gospel.

Dear Brother:

Enclosed please find the endorsed recommends of the two widows of your father-in-law for them to get their Second Anointing; and you are at liberty to act for him and receive this ordinance with them in his behalf.

Enclosed is seen a certificate for Marion Brown Arthur. As we suppose this was your wife I have endorsed it for her to receive her second anointing; though you do not mention, or ask in the letter. If this is not your wife, she ought not to receive her second anointing on the strength of this recommend.

Prest. J. D. T. McAllister

Dear Brother:

In reply to your letter of the 12th of November. There is no objection to Brother Noah Brimhall receiving his second anointing and I have endorsed his recommend accordingly. But his present wife cannot be anointed tom him as she is only his wife for time, and when she receives her anointings to her deceased husband, Bailey Lake, his other two wives should also receive theirs.

If Brother Brimhall were to act for Bailey Lake and she were to be anointed to him as proxy, it might lead to confusion. The better way, in order that the records may be straight, is for some one [sic] to act for Brother Lake and the three wives be anointed at the same time. Brother George Lake having one [of] these wives and being his brothers heir could do this with the greatest [p. 2] propriety, if he should be worthy of the ordinance.

Under the circumstances I think Brother Brimhall had better get a relative of his own, or of his deceased wifes [sic], or in the absence of such a relative, some friend who has had her second anointing to act as proxy for his deceased wife, and let Sister Lavina Jones Lake Brimhall wait for this ordinance until arrangements can be made for the other wives of Brother Lake to join her in obtaining this ordinance.

With Kind regards,
Your Brother,

AN INCIDENT AT ST. GEORGE TEMPLE:

I will here say that two weeks before I left St. George, the spirits of the dead gathered around me, wanting to know why we did not redeem them. Said they, "You have had the use of the Endowment House for a number of years, and yet nothing has ever been done for us. We laid the foundation of the government you now enjoy, and we never apostatized from it, but we remained true to it and were faithful to God."

These were the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and they waited on me for two days and two nights. I thought it very singular, that notwithstanding so much work had been done, and yet nothing had been done for them. The thought never entered my heart, from the fact, I suppose, that heretofore our minds were reaching after our more immediate friends and relatives.

I straightway went into the baptismal font and called upon Brother McAllister to baptize me for the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and fifty other eminent men, making one hundred in all, including John Wesley, Columbus, and others. I then baptized him for every President of the United States, except three; and when their cause is just, somebody will do the work for them. (J.D. 19:229, September 16, 1877.)

I think it is better for you to defer the ordinance of second anointing for this Indian girl who has been sealed to you since her death. It will be no loss to her for the present.

As to the martyrs of whom you speak, we see no impropriety in having the ordinance of baptism attended to for them, especially if you know who they are; but before having them sealed to you, you should certainly have some knowledge of them and of your right to have them, as others may claim that they have a better right than you hereafter.

Dear Brother:--

Your letter in reply to mine upon the subject of second anointings for Brother George Lufkin and Brother James Townsend has been received and considered.

Whoever attends to the ordinances for Brother Townsend should certainly take his last wife to the temple with them, so that she might receive the blessing as well as the deceased wife. Is Brother George Lufkin the proper person, who is as worthy as he, who is nearer as heir to the Townsend Family than he is? If he is the proper party to represent Brother Townsend, under the circumstances you are at liberty to inform him that if he will et his recommendation properly signed, I will endorse it for him to receive his second anointing and to act for Brother Townsend, on condition, also, that he takes Brother Townsend's surviving wife with him.

Now, in relation to the other subject which you mention ---the cases of worthy men and women who are aged who have not had their second anointings, and who are waiting to have this privilege accorded to them, being counseled by you not to ask for the privilege. We think such cases deserve consideration, and where you know of aged men and women who are worthy to receive this ordinance, I would like you to forward their names to me for consideration; and these that we decide as proper to receive this ordinance can have their recommendations signed to that effect.

Dear Brother:

Your pencil memoranda, dated Oct 18th, showing a list of names of persons in Morgan Stake deemed worthy to receive their second anointings, came duly to hand.

There seems to be some misunderstanding in these matters by you in sending such a formidable list, and in such a manner as the lone received. In such an important matter as second anointings it is not expected that the Stake or the Wards are to be hunted over to find names to recommend for such an ordinance. It is only contemplated that we be furnished with the names of those who are deemed worthy by the Presidency of the Stake, and who are quite aged, and whose life and labors in the Church have been such as to entitle them to this blessing. When such name are submitted the ages of the parties should be noted, and you will be informed as to their acceptance before the parties receive any information or their recommends are endorsed to go to the Temple.

Trusting that you will now understand this matter thoroughly and will act accordingly, and with kind regards,

Dear Brother:

Your letter on November 9th representing the wishes of Sister Sarah Clarke who was sealed to David Wood in Salt Lake City in 1854 to have her second anointings, also to officiate for Brother Wood's first wife who s dead, has been received.

You say that Brother Wood received his second anointing in 1867, but neither of his wives was anointed to him at that time because his first wife was not present. You are hereby authorized to administer that ordinance in behalf of Brother Wood's first wife, and afterwards Sister Smith can be anointed to Brother Wood. It will be necessary for some persons who have received this ordinance to officiate for Brother and Sister Wood, deceased, and Sister Smith can act for her self.You can arrange about that.

In regard to establishing a rule in such cases as this one, as you intimate in your letter, I do not desire it to be so; but prefer that all matters pertaining to this ordinance shall first be referred to me, as also all cases where a liv [p. 860] ing man has had his blessings and brings his wife or wives to receive theirs: he and they should first have permission before the ordinance is performed.

Dear Brother:--

The enclosed recommend for Christian O. Boreguard and his wife Anna to obtain their second anointings, is returned herewith for corrections.

In regard to these matters, I will say that it is not expected that Bishops will take these cases in hand and recommend persons for this ordinance.

The instructions which have been given on this subject are that the President of the Stake, as they shall find from time to time in their Stakes those brethren who are aged, and who have been faithful in the Church during their lives, and thorough their untiring energies have proven themselves worthy of this blessing, will note of such cases and, through the President, will submit to me the names of such persons and their wives, both living and dead, who have also been faithful and are worthy for consideration. In forwarding to me the names of such persons, I must have the age, in years, of each one named. It is not expected that any person will be informed of what action is being taken until [p. 425] after their names are approved and their recommends properly endorsed by me. Faithful and worthy aged brothren [sic] who have died without this blessing, should be remembered with their wives in this connection.

After names of worthy aged persons have been submitted by he Presidents of Stakes and been approved by me, the usual recommend can then be forwarded, with a slip of paper calling my attention to the fact.

Trusting this will be satisfactory to you, and with kind regards

President John D. T. McAllister

Dear Brother:--

Your letter of Feb. 27th, asking certain questions pertaining to Temple ordinances, has been received and considered.

In regard to your last question, pertaining to a woman having been sealed and anointed [second anointing] to her husband, but subsequently divorced from him, he continuing a faithful, good man, etc., is she to be anointed to a second man as though she never had been anointed? I answer, No. In such a case it will not be proper for the sister to be again anointed.

Your second question as to my having any word for you in relation to adoption---

I would say it will be well to leave the matter of adoption for the present as they have been, and not make any changes. This will also answer your question in regard to going back as far as records can be obtained correctly in adoptions. [p. 431]

In relation to children who are old enough to be baptized [&] who are dead, receiving their endowments. I will say that in performing ordinances for the dead it is safe to follow the rules observed in regard to the living, unless there may be special occasions which can be attended to when the circumstances require.

Dear Brother,

I with my youngest wife, have received our 2d anointing, but the 2 older ones have not yet been able to get to the temple, to attend to theirs but intend to as soon as circumstances will permit. I was informed there was another ordinance which might be given at some future time in an upper room. Can we not pass through them all for that is my blessing given by the Patriarch. So I feel to ask for all, although the day may be breaking, I cannot let thee go, except thou bless me. So said our father Jacob. I have one wife who died in the faith. She was a good saint, she had her endowment in the Endowment House in Salt Lake, and wa sealed to me by permission of President Taylor. can she receive the 2d anointing by Proxey. Should not those wives that have been sealed to me who died out of the Church, be adopted to their parents who will have done work for [them] in the temple. And should not those parents, who [were] adopted to us have done this work for them, as we have been adopted. I suppose none of these [can] receive a 2d anointing who have not received the gospel in the flesh. Please excuse me, for so much inquisitiveness for I know not where else to apply for this information. The spirit prompts me to ask is there not another ordinance yet concerning a rod, if so can I receive it. I do not know that there is, but I feel to ask for all that is for me. Your brother,

Elder Phineas W. Cook
Garden City, Rich Co.

Dear Brother:--

I have received your letter of the 11th inst., in which you speak of another ordinance in addition to the second anointing, which might be given at some future time in an upper room.

You have received all the ordinances which we administer. The ordinance [Washing of Feet?] to which you refer is one between yourself and your family, and which doubtless was explained to you when you received your second anointing.

Your wife who is dead, and who, you say, was a faithful woman, can receive her second anointing. One of your other wives can act for her. Those died out of the Church, and who have been sealed to you since, need not at the present time receive this ordinance. We do not administer it to those who are in this condition.

As to the ordinance connected with the rod, we know nothing of that. You will have to wait for awhile or until we meet Aaron.

Of course, your present living wives, if they are worthy and can obtain recommendations from the Bishop, can receive the ordinance of second anointing, whenever it will be convenient to you and to them.

With kind regards,
I am your brother,
(s) W. Woodruff

Dec. 13. [1889] I was endowed for Emma's brother, Edwin Whitham, and Emma for her stepmother, Sarah Patience Rollins Whitham, and had Sarah P. R. Whitham sealed to Emma's father George Whitham.

I had received a recommend from Stake President Ira N. Hinckley. (Apostle F. M. Lyman having kindly helped me) to receive my second anointings. Through misunderstanding it was not signed by President W. Woodruff. By Brother Daniel H. Wells' kindness I sent it from the temple to Brother Woodruff, but did not receive it back in time. So I had to come home without that great blessing. Presidents Wells and A. H. Lund were especially kind to us, so also Sisters Matheny and Snow to Emma who was especially blessed by Brothers Wells and Lund. We had a grand and glorious time and learned much.

After 1890 Manifesto-Warren M. Johnson, told by his son, Price:

When they sent word for him (Warren) to give up his plural wife, he fasted for about a week. At the end of the week, he went down to the river to look at the boats. And he knelt down there and he said, "Father, I can't give her up. She has been a faithful companion to me and has had these fine children. And I won't give her up to the devil!" Then he heard a voice say, "Will you give her up to me?" He said, "Yes, Father, as free as the water in the river there." Later he went to Kanab to a conference, and one or two of the apostles were there, John Henry Smith, I believe, and Brigham Young, Jr. Father told them this story. They said, "Brother Johnson, that was your supreme test. There is no power in the heavens that can take her from you now. She is yours. You go down t the St. George Temple with your wives and get your second anointings." My father went as soon as he could after that and they got these great blessings. To Presidents of Stakes and Bishops
Dear Brethren:--

It has been decided that it is no longer necessary for those going to the Temples to attend to ordinances therein to send their recommends to President Woodruff to be endorsed by him. The signatures if the Bishop and Stake President will be all that is required.

This decision applies to all ordinances attended to in the House of the Lord, except Second Anointings, which last named will still require the approval of the President of the Church before they can be administered. This being the decision, Bishops and Wards and Presidents of Stakes will see the increased necessity for care, so that no unworthy person will be recommended for ordinances in the Temples.

Wilford Woodruff's dedicatory prayer of the Salt Lake Temple:

"O thou God of our fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, whose God thou delightest to be called, we thank thee with all the fervor of overflowing gratitude that thou hast revealed the powers by which the hearts of the children are being turned to their fathers and the hearts of the fathers to the children, that the sons of men, in all their generations can be made partakers of the glories and joys of the kingdom of heaven. Confirm upon us the spirit of Elijah, we pray thee, that we may thus redeem our dead and also connect ourselves with our fathers who have passed behind the veil, and furthermore seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection, that we who dwell on earth may be bound to those who dwell in heaven. We thank thee for their sakes who have finished their work in mortality, as well as for our own, that the prison doors have been opened that deliverance has been proclaimed to the captive, and the bonds loosed from those who were bound. [Here is the true power to loose on earth and in Heaven, not to loose the sealing which has been placed upon someone but to loose those in spirit prison.] We praise thee that our that our fathers, from last to first, from now, back to the beginning, can be united with us in indissoluble links, welded by the holy Priesthood, and that as one great family stand before thee [many we understand the greatness of the blessing of permitting the seed of Cain to hold the priesthood and receive all the blessings of the Gospel--for it was not only they and their progenitors who were praying for this great blessing, but all mankind who understood from the beginning that we are Joint-heirs with Christ--meaning either we all receive the blessing and move ahead to exaltation together or if one of Gods children are not with us, He (Christ) leaves the fold to stand without progression and goes and gets the black sheep and brings it back to the fold--or in other words because we are joint-heirs we receive all things in common and we cannot be saved with out them, neither can they be saved without us], and by the power of the atoning blood of thy Son be delivered from all evil, be saved and sanctified, exalted and glorified.

[We are promised as a part of the sealing of celestial marriage with power to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection. According to D&C 76:50-90 the qualifications to have this promise fulfilled is the following sentence. In the dedicatory prayer it is expectant that we are made kings and priests in this life:]

...May they be united by the Spirit and power of God in all their labors, and in every thought, word and act may they glorify thy name and vindicate the wisdom that has made them kings and priests unto thee. (The House of the Lord, Talmage, 2nd ed., p. 161-171.)

Abraham H. Cannon and His Wives Received their Second Anointings:

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7TH, 1893. I spent the most of the day at the office where I found plenty to do in attending to the regular business which came to my attention. I went down home to dinner and thought I would try to do this every day, as I have no appetite to eat from a dinner basket on these warm days.--At 5 o'clock I went to the Temple where I met my folks, we having received permission from Pres. Woodruff to receive our second anointings. Father was there to perform the ceremony. Bro. Lyman was also there to be with his wife Susan D. Callister Lyman as she received this blessing. Father anointed and spoke the words, John D. T. McAllister held the horn, and Lorenzo Snow and John R. Winder were the witnesses. Sister Lyman was first anointed in the presence of us all, she thus being the first to receive this blessing in this building. I then received mine, and my wives followed in the order of their marriages. I felt very much pleased to be thus favored. The ordinances of the washing of feet was explained by Bro. McAllister, after the anointings had been given.--I went to the President's office and spent a short time with Father talking business, and then took John Q. to his home before I went to my home. I was engaged in reading in the evening til time to retire. (Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, June 7, 1893, BYU Special Collections.)

Dear Brother:--

We have made the following ruling which is self-explanatory, and send it to you for your guidance as President of the Manti Temple.

"Persons having received their endowments, who are otherwise qualified, may act for the dead in the ordinances of sealing and adoption, without having been Sealed or adopted themselves. But in Second Anointings, none shall be eligible to act for the dead, unless they have received this blessing themselves."

29 November 1893

I went to the President's office with Bro. James E. Talmage in the forenoon to get some doctrinal points answered by the brethren. Concerning a change in the articles of faith, and about the subject of baptism an answer will be given after these matters have been submitted to the Quorum meeting this afternoon. About the Sons of Perdition it was said we can scarcely tell who will be consigned to this doom. That there will also be daughters of Perdition there is no doubt in the minds of the brethren. It was explained that only such can become Sons of Perdition who receive a testimony of the Gospel--who receive the Holy Ghost, and the highest blessings of the Church, and then wilfully deny the light they have obtained. Murderers who crucify Christ anew, or consent to His death, in that they shed innocent blood knowing at the time that they are thereby preventing the spread of truth, will be subject to this penalty. [Note: Perhaps the reason brethern fells "That there will also be daughters of Perdition" is because when a wife is anointed unto her husband in the second anointing, she is also sealed up to eternal life and against all sin except the shedding of innocent blood and denying the Holy Ghost. This condition would not be in their blessing if it were not a possibility for them to commit it.] (Abraham H. Cannon "Journal", BYU Special Collections, Vol. XVII, pp. 120-21 of original.)

28 MAY 1894

Wilford Woodruff and ADDED REVELATION on "THE LAW OF ADOPTION":

"THE LAW OF ADOPTION." I want to lay before you what there is for us to do at this present time; and in doing this I desire particularly the attention of President Lorenzo Snow, of the Salt Lake Temple; President M. W. Merrill, of the Logan Temple; J.D. T. McAllister, of the Manti Temple, and President D. H. Cannon, of the St. George Temple, and those associated with them. You have acted up to all the light and knowledge that you have had; but you have now something more to do than what you have done. We have not fully carried out those principles in fulfillment of the revelations of God to us, in sealing the hearts of the fathers to the children and the children to the fathers. I have not felt satisfied, neither did President Taylor, neither has any man since the Prophet Joseph who has attended to the ordinance of adoption in the temples of our God. We have felt that there was more to be revealed upon this subject than we had received. Revelations were given to us in the St. George Temple, which President Young presented to the Church of God. Changes were made there, and we still have more changes to make, in order to satisfy our Heavenly Father, satisfy our dead and ourselves. I will tell you what some of them are. I have prayed over this matter, and my brethren have. We have felt, as President Taylor said, that we have got to have more revelation concerning sealing under the law of adoption. Well, what are these changes? One of them is the principle of adoption. In the commencement of adopting men and women in the temple at Nauvoo, a great many persons were adopted to different men who were not of the lineage of their fathers, and there was a spirit manifested by some in that work that was not of God. Men would go out and electioneer and labor with all their power to get men adopted to them One instance I will name here: A man went around Nauvoo asking every man he could, saying, "You came and be adopted to me, and I shall stand at the head of the kingdom, and you will be there with me." Now, what is the truth about this? Those who were adopted to that man, if they go with him, will have to go where he is. He was a participator in that horrible scene--the Mountain Meadow massacre.... Men are in danger sometimes in being adopted to others, until they know who they are and what they will be. Now, what are the feelings of Israel? They have felt that they wanted to be adopted to somebody. President Young was not satisfied in his mind with regard to the extent of this matter; President Taylor was not.

When I went before the Lord to know who I should be adopted to (we were then being adopted to prophets and apostles), the Spirit of God said to me, "Have you not a father, who begot you?"

"Yes, I have."

"Then why not honor him? Why not be adopted to him?"

"Yes," said I, "that is right."

I was adopted to my father, and should have had my father sealed to his father, and so on back; and the duty that I want every man who presides over a temple to see performed from this day hence forth and forever, unless the Lord Almighty commands otherwise, is, let every man be adopted to his father. When a man receives the endowments, adopt him to his father; not to Wilford Woodruff, nor to any other man outside the linage of his fathers [the seed of Japeth and Ham should be sealed to them and those who are not of the house or lineage of Abraham should be sealed to their own fathers and not to Abraham, the keys of Abraham was an Elias, a preparatory law, to prepare for the law of Elijah-The sealing of the hearts of the literal fathers to the literal children all the way back to our heavenly father.] That is the will of God to this people. I want all men who preside over these temples in these mountains of Israel to bear this in mind. What business have I to take away the rights of the lineage of any man? What right has any man to do this? No; I say let every man be adopted to his father; and they you will do exactly what God said when he declared he would send Elijah the prophet in the last days. Elijah the prophet appeared unto Joseph Smith and told him that the day had come when this principle must be carried out. Joseph Smith did not live long enough to enter any further upon these things. His should was wound up with this work before he was martyred for the word of God and testimony of Jesus Christ. He told us that there must be a welding link of all dispensations and of the work of God from one generation to another. This was upon his mind more than most any other subject that was given to him.

In my prayers the Lord revealed to me that it was my duty to say to all Israel to carry this principle out, and in fulfillment of that revelation I lay it before this people.

I say to all men who are laboring in these temples, carry out this principle, and then we will make one step in advance what we have had before.

Myself and counselors conversed upon this and were agreed upon it, and afterwards we laid it before all the apostles who were here (two were absent)--Brothers thatcher and Lund, the latter being in England), and the Lord revealed to every one of these men--and they would bear testimony to it if they were to speak--that that was the word of the Lord to them. I never met with anything in my life in this Church that there was more unity upon than there was upon that principle. They all feel right about it, and that it is our duty. That is one principle that should be carried out from this time henceforth.

"But," says one, "suppose we come along to a man who perhaps is a murderer." Well, if he is a murderer, drop him out and connect with the next man beyond him. But the Spirit of God will be with us in this matter.

We want the Latter-day Saints from this time to trace their genealogies as far as they can, and to be sealed to their fathers and mothers. Have children sealed to their parents, and run this chain through as far as you can get it. ... This is the will of the Lord to this people, and I think when you come to reflect upon it you will find it to be true. (Millennial Star, 56:335-339, May 28, 1894; The Discourses of Wilford Woodruff, Bookcraft, p. 154-157.)

28 May 1894

FURTHER ON FAMILY SEALINGS:

Another principle connected with this subject I want to talk about. A man has married a woman, and they have a family of children. The man lays down in death without ever hearing the gospel. His wife afterwards hears the gospel and embraces it. She comes to the temple and she wants to be sealed to her husband, who was a good man. The feeling has been to deny this and to say, "No, he was not in the Church, and you cannot be sealed to your husband." Many a woman's heart has ached because of this, and as a servant of God I have broken that chain a good while ago. I have laid before every woman this principle and let her have her choice. Why deprive a woman of being sealed to her husband because he never heard the gospel? What do any of us know with regard to him? Will he not hear the gospel and embrace it in the spirit world?....

There will be very few, if any, who will not accept the gospel. Jesus, while his body lay in the tomb, went and preached to the spirits in prison, who were destroyed in the days of Noah. After so long an imprisonment, in torment, they doubtless gladly embraced the gospel, and if so they will be saved in the kingdom of God. The fathers of this people will embrace the gospel. It is my duty to honor my father who begot me in the flesh. It is your duty to do the same. When you do this, the Spirit of God will be with you. And we shall continue this work, the Lord adding light to that which we have already received. I have had friends adopted to me. We all have, more or less. But I have had a peculiar feelings about it, especially lately. There are men in this congregation who wish to be adopted to me. I say to them today, if they can hear me, Go and be adopted to your fathers, and save you fathers, and stand at the head of you father's house, as saviors upon Mount Zion, and God will bless you in this. This is what I want to say, and what I want carried out in our temples.... I have had a great desire that I might live to deliver these principles to the Latter-day Saints, for they are true. They are one step forward in the work of the ministry and in the work of the endowments in these temples of our God. ...Those of you who stand here--I do not care whether you are apostles or what you are--by honoring your fathers you will not take any honor from you heads; you will hold the keys of the salvation of your father's house, as Joseph Smith does. You will lose nothing by honoring your fathers and redeeming your dead. (Millennial Star, 56:339-341, May 28, 1894; The Discourses of Wilford Woodruff, Bookcraft, p. 157-159.)

Second Anointing Also Given by the Prophet:

In the evening the best and indeed the crowning feature of the whole excursion was enjoyed. President Snow announced that the evening would be occupied by the Temple workers as a Testimony meeting, and it was so done. Most of the brethren workers bore strong and grateful testimonies, not only of their delight and joy in the work of the Temple, but testified also of their happiness and of their gratitude to the Saints in Box Elder Stake, who had made it possible for them to enjoy such a rare treat.

Three of the sisters, Sister Zina D. Young, who is the President of the sisters in the Temple, with Sister Bathsheba W. Smith and Minnie J. Snow, her two counselors, spoke briefly of their joy in the work. Aunt Bathsheba mentioned the fact that she had received her blessings in Nauvoo under the hands of the Prophet Joseph Smith, she being now the only living woman who has received these blessings.

President Woodruff spoke afterwards on the same subject, and bore testimony to the receiving the same blessings in the same manner, he being the only living man at present who has thus received his endowments. This, then, should be recorded in the mind, and in the private journal of everyone, the President Woodruff and Sister Bathsheba W. Smith were endowed and received their blessings and sealings and anointings under the hands of the Prophet Joseph Smith. There were many more who likewise had this great privilege, but they are all dead, leaving only these two living witnesses.

We are having many men come to us with pretended revelations, Josephites and Strangities and other men. One man came to me and said he had revelations to lead this Church; I am willing to leave all these things in the hands of God. Where has the power of God been since the death of Joseph? With this people. They say, these apostates, that Brigham Young organized the endowments and originated the principle of plural marriage. They're liars, every one of them, and the truth is not in them in so far as this matter is concerned. There's Sister Bathsheba Smith; she and I both had our endowments under the hands of the Prophet Joseph Smith. I had my second anointing and sealings under his hands. There is not a single principle in this Church that he did not lay the foundation for. He called the Twelve together the last time he spoke to us, and his face shone like amber. And upon our shoulders he rolled the burden of the Kingdom, and he gave us all the keys and powers and gifts to carry on this great and mighty work. He told us that he had received every key, every power and every gift for the salvation of the living and the dead, and he said: "Upon the Twelve I seal these gifts and powers and keys from henceforth and forever. No matter what may come to me. And I lay this work upon your shoulders. Take it and bear it off, and if you don't you'll be damned." I don't feel justified in contending with these apostates and such men. There is too much work to be done. And these things are true, and if such men don't find it out here, they will hereafter.

There is an anxiety in the spirit world concerning this people. The angels of God are with us, and they will assist us in this work. God bless you and all this people. I felt that I had finished my work when that Temple was finished; and doctors said I could not live. But my life was spared because this people were putting up petitions in my behalf continually before God. I feel to bless you, my brethren and sisters. May he help us all to do our duty, and be prepared for the great events coming upon this earth. Amen.

President Lorenzo Snow on Second Anointings:

The whole earth is the Lord's. The time will come when it will be translated and be filled with the spirit and power of God. The atmosphere around it will be the spirit of the Almighty. We will breathe that Spirit instead of the atmosphere that we now breathe. But now it is for us to make the preparation, that we may be worthy to be called into the house of the Lord and receive our second blessings. I do not want the presidents of Stakes to send any person to our Temples to receive the highest blessings that have ever been bestowed upon man since the world began, until it can be said of him, "He pays his full tithing." When you find an honest, faithful Latter-day Saint who is worthy of receiving His blessings, send him along. I do not care how fast they come. The time is now at hand when the Latter-day Saints can be greatly and abundantly blessed, so that they can make the preparation in its fulness.

Dear Brother:--

During the lifetime of the late President Wilford Woodruff a rule was established by him not to permit a woman to be anointed to a man unless she had lived with him as his wife. This was a restriction of the rule in such cases which [were] obtained during the life time of Presidents Brigham Young, and John Taylor. After considering the matter, we have concluded to restore the practice expressed in the following, and which will govern in such cases in the future:

Any woman who has been sealed to a man, in life or by proxy whether she has lived with him or not, shall have the privilege of being anointed to him, inasmuch as he shall have had his second blessings.

Thursday the 19th of september 1900 was the OUTSTANDING DAY OF OUR LIFE, President Frank Y. Taylor was authorized by the First Presidency of the Church to invite Ida and I TO RECEIVE OUR SECOND ANNOINTINGS (sic), AND IN THE TEMPLE, ON THIS MOMENTOUS DAY, President John R. Winder, President of the Temple, explained fully what the 2nd annointings (sic) were and told us of the glorious promises offered to those who keep the commandments of the Lord and live a worthy and holy life: that these were the highest of all earthly blessings and no one receives them but those selected by the President of the Church. No one else has that right. How wonderful they were, what hopes they inspire, what strength they give, what anticipations they awaken in our hearts and how wonderful it is to feel a nearness to the Lord by righteous living. We were thrilled in expectancy and joyous in hopes of living worthy to secure all that was promised us. We have started on an everlasting journey and all depends on whether we endure until the end. President Snow and Joseph F. Smith on who should receive Second Anointings:

After the opening exercises, Pres. Lorenzo Snow spoke upon the subject of giving Second Anointings. He said that this blessing brought a person to a greater knowledge of things pertaining to God and His purposes in the earth, that the glorious things of the kingdom were made clear to the understanding of the man. Therefore it would be a very serious thing for a man to apostatize after he had received this great blessing. He warned the Presidents of Stakes that they should exercise great care when giving recomends (sic) to those of his stake to receive these great blessings and should know by their work their integrity and devotion to the cause of the Gospel, for the responsibility would rest upon them if any were recomended (sic) unworthily or that apostatized.

Prest. Jos. F. Smith then made a few remarks on the Subject of the Second Anointing. He said that it was the crowning blessing of and the highest gift to conferred by the Melchesidek (sic) Priesthood. Elders should do something to be worthy to receive this great blessing and there are many ways out of the ordinary routine duties by which a man could earn the good will of God to the obtaining of this blessing. Every man should be determined to place everything on the altar, even to the laying down of life itself for the gospel's sake in order to be truly worthy of this blessing. (Thomas A. Clawson Journal, April 8, 1901, 1895-1904 Book, p. 226, 228, University of Utah, Special Collections.)

This afternoon my wife and I took [the] train for salt lake city to our second anointings and attend 100th anniversary of Brigham Young's birth...

May 31, Friday

Went to Temple this morning presenting recommend which Pres. Snow gave me about 3 months ago. We had not come before for second anointing as the baby was young and because we desired to become settled in our new home.

I was called to speak during the services of the temple. Dwelt principally upon the necessity of keeping awake during temple services and keeping spiritually awake in our duties. I consider this a very great honor to be called to speak in the house of the Lord. Bp John R. Winder anointed us and Elder Madsen instructed us. These are the Greatest Blessings that are bestowed upon man in the flesh. We were both melted in tears and I felt that Patriarchal spirit of pure affection more than I have done before. The witnesses to the anointing were John R. Winder-Anointed, Adolph Madsen-assisted, John Nicholson Recorder.

This evening from about 9-30 to 12. O. C. my wife and I attended to the second part of the ordiance of second anointings. We besides the ordiance itself sang "We thank thee O god for a prophet", conversed concerning our duties to each other and children, read from John XII:1-8 verses, read the rev. on the eternity of the Marriage Covenant, Section 132. We dedicated room for the purpose of this meeting. Closed by singing, "Oh my father thou that dwellest". Anna was mouth in preliminary prayer, I gave the dedicatory prayer and the benediction. The spirit of the Lord was with us and we felt nearer together than usual, were much encouraged in pressing onward in our endeavor to succeed in life. We fasted during the day and broke our fast together a little after 12 O. C. (William Henry Smart Journal, Acc 276, University of Utah Special Collections, under dates given.)

Dear Brother:--

This is in answer to your note on the back of a letter written by Elder William Asber to Bishop Joseph Hopkin, of Echoe, in which Brother Asber requests the bishop to take steps to procure for him a recommend in favor of Elias Asber and wife, his deceased brother and sister-in-law.

In the first place we would say that recommends for second blessings are not Bishop's recommends and their names therefore should not appear on them. The President of Stakes alone are held responsible for people recommended for second anointings, and where they are not personally acquainted with the parties to be recommended, it is in order for them of course to satisfy themselves through reliable sources. In the next place we would say that it is not expected that people shall be found asking that this most sacred ordinance shall be administered to them, but you should take pains to seek out the worthy people under your jurisdiction, and this by means of your counselors and Bishops. In this particular case however you will be perfectly safe in issuing the recommends sought for, as we personally known the parties to be worthy.

Dear Brother:--

This is in answer to yours of the 3rd inst.

It is not in order for people to ask for recommends for second blessings. They should be chosen through the Stake Presidency because of their faithfulness, fitness and worthiness to receive this higher ordinance of the house of the Lord. It is understood of course that you have received second anointings yourself, otherwise you had better refrain from recommending for the present. We may say however that second blessings are not administered to single individuals of either sex, but to men and their wives.

President Thomas E. Bassett
Rexburg Dear Brother:--

. . . Further as far as possible the person recommended ought to be personally known to you and persons recommended should be instructed to regard their business to the temple as strictly private. It is taken for grandid [sic] that you will confer with your counselors about such matters, also in cases where the parties are not sufficiently known to you to justify your recommending them, it is understood that you will be free to talk with their bishops or anyone else in whom he may have confidence about them for the purpose of satisfying yourself as to their worthiness to receive these higher blessings: but it was never intended that bishops should recommend for second blessings; neither that people should ask for recommends to obtain them. On the contrary, they should be sought out, and the strictest privacy should be observed in everything pertaining to this matter.

Dear Brother:--

Referring to yours of the 14th inst. we would say that President Woodruff's instructions to Stake President[s] on the subject of recommending for second anointings limited them to persons who had gathered with the Church whether dead or alive, and this was the policy adopted by President Snow, although he may have made exceptions to it. And it is our mind that faithful men who have gathered with the Church, who can be recommended as worthy to receive these higher blessings, but who through death were deprived of them, should receive them by proxy. It would be in order therefore to extend your recommends to Franklin P. Whitmore, deceased, inasmuch as your knew him to be worthy.

President C. R. Hakes

Dear Brother:--

Brethren recommended to the temple for second anointings should be men of experience whose integrity to the work of the Lord is beyond questions, and who are known for their continued faithfulness, as it would be very unfortunate thing indeed for a man to receive the higher blessings and afterwards apostatize. The question of age would naturally be a consideration in recommending for the higher ordinances, but it is not to be understood for a moment that you should wait until brethren become old before recommending them to receive these blessings. The chief qualifications are worthiness, fitness and unshaken integrity, and these should be combined in man thus recommended whether they occupy presiding positions or not; but as a matter of course the brethren occupying presiding position, such as those of stake presidency, high counsilor [sic], president of the high priest's quorum, and bishop are suppose to be in possession of these qualifications.

The usual form of recommend should be used containing the name of the brother recommended, also the name of his wive or those of his wives, dead or alive, as the case may be, to be anointed to him, and all such recommends should be sent to this office for endorsement accompanied by a letter of explanation.

President J. D. T. McAllister
Manti Temple

Dear Brother:--

Complaints have reached us from Presidents of Stakes that persons doing temple work have been advised by temple workers to speak to the Presidents of Stakes about obtaining their Second Annointings. This must not be done, or suggested by any one laboring in our temples. None but Stake Presidents have the right to suggest and recommend persons to obtain their Second Annointings. The reason is plain: those working in the temples see people in heir Sunday clothing only, and are not acquainted with their every day life. When such persons come to their Stake Presidents and ask for this blessing, saying they were counselled to do so in the temple, it places him in the unpleasant position, perhaps, that he has to refuse their request, and he is blamed by the applicants. No person has the right to ask for this blessing. He must wait till sought out by his Stake President. If the President of a temple feels impressed with the worthiness of any person, dead or alive, he can make suggests to the President of the Stake, but he should not mention this to the persons themselves.

Please have these instructions repeated to all laboring in the temple.

Dear Brother:--

In yours of the 21st inst. you desire to know if a regular recommend should be used for deceased people, when recommending to the temple.

Our answer is that in recommending for second blessings the same form of recommend should be used for the dead as for the living, but when people are recommended who are dead, the fact that they are dead should be so stated in the recommend. It is needless for us to say that you should recommend no person to receive his second anointing without satisfying yourself of his worthiness to receive those great blessings.

We note you say this sister is making a desperate effort due to some temple work this winter. The question has arisen in our minds, whether or not she has, or has had a husband; and if a married woman, whether her husband has had his second anointing. Dear Brother:-

Referring to yours of the 1st inst., recommending Sister Harriot B. Rowberry for second anointing, we would say that a woman cannot receive those blessings except in connection with her husband; and a man so indifferent to the ordinances of the house of the Lord as to neglect doing how own temple work in his lifetime, although, as you say, he might have done so had he been so inclined, can scarcely be considered worthy of second anointing and we do not see how you can consistently recommend him to receive those blessings.

For these reasons we have withheld your endorsement from the recommend sent by you in favor of Sister Rowberry.

If affords us much please to hand you herewith a recommend for yourself and wife to the Manti Temple to receive your Second Anointing.

We feel that your devotion and service to the Church merits special favor and we are sure that you will appreciate it. However, should there be any reason why you cannot avail yourself of this blessing, kindly return the recommend to me.

Dear Brother:-

Second blessings are intended for those only who have born the heat and burden of the day, and endured faithful to the end; and as a general thing, they are administered only to people who have gathered with the body of the Church. And in recommending such people it is expected that their worthiness is personally known to the Stake President who recommends them. Dear Brother:--

The First Presidency desire me to inform you that second blessings are not administered to any accepting those who receive the gospel and are known for their worthiness. The women therefore referred to in your letter who have been sealed to Elder Beckstand, but who did not receive the gospel in their lifetime, should be recommended by your [sic] to receive these blessings.

And furthermore bishops are not competent to recommend for second blessings, and their names therefore should not be on such recommends. This privilege belongs soley [sic] to the Stake President in connection with his counselors. The Stake President however may confer with bishops in regard to this matter, but he must become responsible for the recommend through how own signature.

Prest. C. N. Lund and Counselors
North Sanpete Stake

Dear Brethren:

We herewith submit answers to the questions in yours of the 14th inst.

Question: Where we grant a brother and sister the privilege of second blessings, and they desire the same blessing in behalf of their deceased parents who were true and faithful members of the Church while they lived, shall we grant their request?

Answer: Yes.

Question: Where the husband is dead and his widow living, is it alright for her to receive these blessings and have someone who has received them stand for him, provided of course he a was worthy man?

Answer: Yes.

Question: A brother who has [was?] recommended for this purpose a year or two ago asked permission to receive the ordinance on behalf of his son, a worthy young man who died. Would you approve of this request being granted?

Answer: Not at present. Question: If the good record of a man is broken by his falling into transgression, say adultery or fornification [sic], and he repents and makes restitution as far as he can do so, and has received forgiveness, can he afterwards, by living a faithful and good life, be entitled to receive these higher ordinances?

Answer: Every such case should stand on its own merits. In some instances it may be highly proper to recommend for second blessings, in other improper. For stance, a man who commits adultery after receiving his endowments should not be recommended to receive second blessings. Let the cases of all such men be considered and determined by the authority on the other side of the veil. But where a man commits adultery before joining the Church or even after baptism but before receiving his endowments his condition is different, and yourself and counselors must be judges as to his worthiness to receive these blessings.

Question: We have not recommended anyone, only in exceptional cases, who have not reached the age of 50. Is that age limit alright?

Answer: If man 50 years of age has been faithful he may be recommended for higher blessings.

Dear Brother:--

Please present our compliments to Brother McAllister and say to him that it is not customary for women to be anointed to men, to whom they have been sealed after death, but with whom they had not lived in their lifetime as husband and wife in the marriage relation. Both of you will at once perceive the consistency and wisdom of this when you call to mind the fact that the second anointing consists of positive blessings bestowed only upon people who are known, and who can be recommended, for their long and steadfast faithfulness in the Church. And indeed, so particular have the Presidencies been at administering second anointings, that they drew the line between faithful members of the Church who died without gathering with the Church, and faithful members who gathered with the body of the Church and remained faithful afterwards, leaving the faithful people who died in a scattered condition to be dealt with by the authority on the other side of the veil. But the main thought intended to be conveyed by us in this particular case is that the parties receiving the blessings must not only be known for their fidelity and faithfulness, but they must be, or have been, husband and wife as well, or one flesh, to use the scriptural expression.

Dear Brother:-

Inasmuch as you can recommend Bro. Robert Henderson and wife, deceased, to receive their second blessings, it will be in order for you to do this. And in fact, this instruction applies to any other faithful members of the Church of your Stake whom you can recommend as worthy to receive these blessings but who passed away without them.

In the case of Bro. and Sister Henderson, Sister Peters can officiate for Sister Henderson (her mother), and she and the family can agree among themselves as to who will stand proxy for Bro.

Henderson.

Dear Brother:--

Please find enclosed recommends for second blessings endorsed by President Smith.

The First Presidency direct me to call your attention to the printed form used by you in this instance recommending for a second blessing, and would thank you to let them know if this particular form was prepare by yourself, or purchased by you of the printer already prepared? Their reason for illiciting [sic] this information is this: the form is unauthorized, and not in accordance with their mind in recommending for second anointing. In other words the word "second" should not be in the recommend at all, and you are therefore requested to discard this particular form, and in fact destroy it.

Instructions have been given so many times in regard to this matter, that it was taken for grandid [sic] that every Stake President is fully informed in relation to it. The way to do is to use the common form of temple recommend, and write a letter in connection with it explaining who the people are thus recommended, and giving, as near as you can, their ages and a brief account of their lives so that the presidency may by this means gather some idea of their suitableness and worthiness to receive the endorsement of the President. And it is taken for grandid [sic] that you [will] take pains to become personally acquainted with everybody recommended by you for second blessings, and you are of course at liberty to adopt every necessary means to acquire the information; and strict privacy should be enjoined by you and all so recommended by you.

Dear Brother:--

People who are not members of the Church during their lifetime are not eligible to receive second blessings. They should not only haven been members of the Church, but their faithfulness and worthiness to receive these blessings should be unquestioned, and besides the line has been drawn in favor of those who have either gathered with the main body of the Church or died on the way to the gathering place, all others are left to be dealt with by the authority on the other side of the veil. the recommends in favor of mary Morgan and mary Ann Love are therefore herewith returned unendorsed.

The case of the grandfather of Sister Owens of Willard City, with his wife who died before the Church was organized, comes within the rule, and it will be for you therefore to satisfy yourself from the best evidence obtainable as to his worthiness and govern yourself accordingly. If he should be found to be worthy his wife, in this instance, would be an exception to the rule.

Prest. William Budge

Dear Brother:--

We have just returned to President Stohl two temple recommends given by him for second blessings in behalf of two women, one of whom was not a member of the Church, the other was but died also in a foreign land without having gathered with the body of the Church. A brother, living in Box Elder Stake, who had recently been doing work in the Logan Temple in behalf of the women referred to, was told, while there that it was in order now for him to have those women anointed to him, and he therefore procured recommends from his Stake President to have this work done for them.

We have just informed President Stohl that a rule of the temple forbids deceased women who are [sic] not members of the Church prior to their demise, or who did not gather with the body of the Church, being anointed to men, therefore, we could not endorse the recommends of the sisters referred to.

We write this for your information; also to say that it is not becoming in brethren to suggest that second blessings be given to anybody, living or dead, unless they are delegated by the President of the Church to act in this capacity, and it would be well therefore for you to so inform your Temple workers.

We are, with kind regards, your brethren,

Dear Brother:--

The general rule adopted by the First Presidency in regard to the second anointing, is in effect that those blessings should be confined to faithful members of the Church who have gathered with the body of the Church, or who died on the way in an effort to do so. Inasmuch therefore as you shall be able to satisfy yourself through the testimony of such men as Elders E. W. [Smith] and Ralph Smith that their father, who died in Australia, where he is said to have gone for the purpose of making money to immigrate himself and family to Zion --- that he died in a state of worthiness, you may consider yourself at liberty to recommend him and his wife for second blessings.

Do Not Boast of Second Blessings:

We cannot speak to emphatically on this subject to our brethren who are on missions, by way of caution against the infraction of their covenants, and in condemnation of those who do this for the purpose of impressing others with their self-importance when they boast of having received "the highest blessings," conveying the idea that they are more advanced in those things than some of their fellow laborers. "The secrets of the Lord are with them that fear him," and they who do not "fear him" sufficiently to keep to themselves that which was only intended for them and which they are forbidden to make known to others, prove themselves unworthy to receive the fulfillment of the promise of God, to "crown them with honor, immortality, and eternal life." Dear Brother:--

We regret to say that we could not possibly find time to give second blessings to the large number of brethren and sisters mentioned in yours of the 23rd inst., during the coming conference. The Logan Temple will re-open on the 12th of April, and it may be that Prest. Budge will be able to accommodate your people within the conference date, and we suggest that you write him on the subject.

On behalf of the First Presidency

P.S. There were no temple recommends enclosed in your letter. Of course you understand it to be in order that temple recommends should be issued to each man and his wife or wives, and sent here for endorsement of the President before presenting them at the temple.

If you had consulted us beforehand we would have advised not giving recommends for second blessings to so many at the same time, as privacy in regard to this matter is strictly required, and this you should charge them with, if they all come at one time especially.

John H. Koyle:

On may 17, 1949, a great high priest [John H. Koyle] passed away; --a man who had borne frequent and solemn testimony that he had communed with the Angel Moroni.... --A man who testified that he had been visited by the translated Nephite Apostles.... --A man who, in his declining years, conversed with the Prophet Joseph Smith, and with Moses and others. --A man who was important enough to the Powers on High, that about the time he was made a bishop, (about 1910) he was visited by his stake president, who declared that he had been commanded by an angel of the Lord to recommend Bishop Koyle for his second annointings, wherein his calling and election was made sure. (The Dream Mine Story, by Norman C. Pierce, Revised Edition November, 1972, pp. 97, found in the Salt Lake City Public Library.)

25 October 1914

...Joseph Smith intended that women would receive ordinances promising them that they would be queens and priestesses in eternity. Moreover, Joseph Smith conveyed the impression that husband and wives would receive the fulness of the priesthood blessings, through which they would be promised life as long as it would be desirable to them. That the conferral of these ordinances would not be a conferral of priesthood is expressed best by Elder James E. Talmage in this classic and ever-timely statement:

> In the restored Church of Jesus Christ, the Holy Priesthood is conferred, as an individual bestowal, upon men only, and this in accordance with Divine requirement. It is not given to woman to exercise the authority of the Priesthood independently; nevertheless, in the sacred endowments associated with the ordinances pertaining to the House of the Lord, woman shares with man the blessings of the Priesthood. When the frailties and imperfections of mortality are left behind, in the glorified state of the blessed hereafter, husband and wife will administer in their respective stations, seeing and understanding alike, and co-operating to the full in the government of their family kingdom. Then shall woman be recompensed in rich measure for all the injustice that womanhood has endured in mortality. Then shall woman reign by Divine right, a queen in the resplendent realm of her glorified state, even as exalted man shall stand, priest and king unto the most high God. Mortal eye cannot see nor mind comprehend the beauty, glory, and majesty of a righteous woman made perfect in the celestial kingdom of God (James E. Talmage, 'The Eternity of Sex." Young Woman's Journal 25 [October 1914]:

20 January 1920

A HEAVENLY MANIFESTATION

By Heber Q. Hale, President of the Boise Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

It is with very humble and grateful spirit that I attempt to relate on this occasion, by request, a personal experience which is very sacred to me. I must of necessity be brief, furthermore, there were certain things made known to me which I do not feel at Liberty to relate here. Let me say by way of preface that between the hours of 12 and 7:30 in the night of January 20, 1920, while alone in a room at the home of my friend, W. F Rawson in Carey, Idaho, this glorious manifestation was vouchsafed to me.

I was not conscious of anything that transpired during the hours mentioned, except what I experienced in this manifestation. I did not turn over in bed, nor was I disturbed by any sound, which indeed, is unusual for me. Whether it be called a dream an apparition, a vision, or a pilgrimage of my spirit into the world of spirits, I know [not], I care not. I know that I actually saw and experienced the thing related in this Heavenly Manifestation, and that they are as real to me as any experience in my life. For me, at least, that is sufficient.

Of all the doctrines and practices of the Church, the vicarious work for the dead has been the most difficult for me to comprehend and whole-heatedly accept. I consider this vision is the Lord's answer to the prayer of my soul on this and certain other questions.

I passed but a short distance from my body through a film in to the world of spirits. This was my first experience after going to sleep. I seemed to realize that I had passed through the change called "death", and I so referred to it in my conversation with the immortal beings with whom I came immediately into contact, I readily observed their displeasure at our use of the word "death" and the fear which we attach to it. They use another word in referring to the transition from mortality. Which word I do not recall, and I can only approach its meaning as the impression was felt upon my mind, be calling it a "New Birth".

My first visual impression was the nearness of the world of spirit to the world of mortality. The vastness of this heavenly sphere was bewildering to the eyes of a spirit-novice. Many enjoyed unrestricted freedom as to both vision and action. The vegetation and landscape were beautiful, beyond description. Not all green, as here, but gold with varying shades of pink, orange and lavender as the rainbow. A sweet calmness pervaded everything. The people I met there I did not think of as spirits, but as men and women, self-thinking and self-acting individuals, going about important business in a most orderly manner. There was perfect order there and everybody had something to do and seemed to be about their business.

That the inhabitants of the spirit world are classified according to their lives of purity and their subserviency to the Father's will was subsequently made apparent. Particularly was it observed that the wicked and unrepentant are confined to a certain district by themselves, the confines of which are as definitely determined and impassable as the line marking the division of the physical from the spirit world a mere film but impassable until the person himself has changed. The world of spirit is the temporary abode of all spirits pending the resurrection from the dead and the judgment. There was much activity within the different spheres and appointed ministers of salvation were seen coming from the higher to the lower spheres in pursuit of their missionary appointments.

I had a very pronounced desire to meet certain of my kinsfolk and my friends but I was at once impressed with the fact that I had entered a world more numerously inhabited. I could be in only one place at a time and accordingly it would require many years to search out and converse with all those I had known and to those whom I desired to meet me, unless they were especially summoned to meet me. All worthy men and women were appointed to special and regular services under a well organized plan of action, directed principally toward preaching the gospel to the unconverted, teaching those who seek knowledge, and establishing family relationships and gathering genealogies for the use and benefit of mortal survivors of their respective families that the work of baptism and the sealing ordinances may be vicariously performed for the departed in the Temples for spirits have access to our Temple records and are kept fully advised of the work done therein, but the vicarious work done here does not become automatically effective there.

The recipients must first believe, repent and accept baptism and confirmation, then certain consummating ordinances are performed effectualizing these saving principles in the lives of these regenerated beings. And so the great work is going on; they doing a work there which we cannot do here, and we doing a work here which they cannot do there -- both necessary -- each the complement of the other -- thus bringing about the salvation of all of God's children who will be saved.

I was surprised to find there no babies in arms. I met the infant son of Orson W. Rawlins, my first counselor. I immediately recognized him as the baby who died a few years ago, and yet he seemed to have the intelligence and in certain respects, the appearance of an adult, and was engaged in matters pertaining to his family and its genealogy. My mind was quite contented on the point that mother will again receive into their arms, their children who died in infancy and be fully satisfied; but the fact remains that entrance into the world of spirit is not [an] inhabitation of growth, but the greatest opportunity for development. Babies are adult spirits in infant bodies.

I presently beheld a mighty multitude of men, the largest I have ever seen gathered in one place, who I immediately recognized as soldiers, the millions who had been slaughtered and rushed so savagely into the world of spirit during the great war.

Among them moved calmly and majestically the great General in supreme command. As I drew nearer I received the kindly smile and generous welcome of that great loving man, General Richard W. Young. then came the positive conviction of my soul that all men, living or dead, there is not one who is so perfectly fitted for the great mission unto which he had been called. He commands immediately the attention and respect of all the soldiers, he is at once a great general and a great High Priest of God. No earthly field of labor to which he could have been assigned can compare with it in importance and extent. I passed from this scene to return later when I found General Young had this vast army of men completely organized with officers over successive divisions and all where seated and he was perching the gospel in great earnestness to them.

As I passed on I soon met my beloved Mother. She greeted me most affectionately and expressed surprise at seeing me there and reminded me that I had not completed my allotted mission on earth. She seemed to be going somewhere and was in a hurry and accordingly took her leave with saying that she would see me again.

I moved forward covering an appreciable distance and consuming considerable time viewing the wonderful sights of landscape, parks, trees, flowers and meeting people, some of whom I knew, but many thousands of whom I did not recognize as acquaintances.

I presently approached a small group of men standing in a path lined with spacious stretches of flowers, grasses and shrubbery -- all of a golden hue -- marking the approach to a beautiful building. This group was engaged in earnest conversation. One of their number parted from the rest and came walking down the path. I at once recognized my esteemed President Joseph F. Smith. He embraced me as a father would his son and after a few words of greeting quietly remarked, "you have not come to stay," for which I understood more as a declaration than an interrogation. For the first time I became fully conscious of my uncompleted mission on earth and as much as I would have liked to remain, I at once asked Pres. Smith if I might return. "you have expressed a righteous desire" he replied, and I shall take the matter up with the authorities and let you know later."

We then returned and he led me toward a little group of men from whom he had just separated. I immediately recognized President Brigham Young and the Prophet Joseph Smith. I was surprised to find the former a shorter and heavier built man that I had expected. On the other hand I found the latter to be taller than I had expected to find him. Both they and Pres. Smith were possessed of a calm and holy majesty which was at once kind and kingly [Second Anointing]. Pres. Smith introduced me to the other who greeted me warmly. We then returned our steps and President Smith took his leave saying he would see me again.

From a certain point of vantage I was permitted to view this earth and what was going on. There were no limitations to my vision and I was astounded at this. I saw permitted to view this earth and what was going on. There were no limitations to my vision and I was astounded at this. I saw my wife and children at home. I saw President Heber J. Grant at the head of this great Church and Kingdom of God [Heber J. Grant, as the Proxy King of Kings, and Lord of lords, for the Lord] and felt the divine power that radiated from God giving it correct principles and designated to endure, and beset by evil and sinister forces that seek to lead men astray, and thwart the purposes of God. I saw towns and cities; the sins and wickedness of men and women; I saw vessels sailing upon the oceans and scanned the battle carried fields of France and Belgium.

In a word, I beheld the whole world as if it were but a panorama passing before my eyes. Then there came to me the unmistakable impression that this earth and scenes and persons upon it are open to the vision of the spirits only when special permission is given or when they are assigned to special service here. This [is] particularly true of the righteous who are busily engaged in the service of the Lord and who cannot be engaged in two fields of activity at the same time. The wicked and unrepentant spirits having still, like all the rest, their free agency, and applying themselves to no useful or wholesome undertaking seek pleasure about their old haunts and exalt in the sins and wretchedness of degenerate humanity. To this extent they are still the tools of Satan. It is these idle mischievous and deceptive spirits who appear as miserable counterfeits at spiritualistic scenes, table dancing, and ouija board operations. The noble and great ones do not respond to the call of the medium and to every curious group of meddlesome inquires. They would not do it in mortality, certainly they would not do it in their increased state of knowledge in the world of immortality. These wicked and unrepentant spirits are allies of Satan and his hosts, operating through willing mediums in the flesh, these three forces constitute an unholy trinity upon the earth and are responsible for all the sins, wickedness, distrust and misery among men and nations.

I moved forward feasting my eyes upon the beauties of everything about me and glorifying in the indescribable peace and happiness that abound in everybody and through everything. The farther I went, the more glorious things appeared. While standing at a certain vintage, I beheld a short distance away a wonderful beautiful temple, capped with a golden dome, from which emerged a small group of men dressed in white robes who parsed for a brief conversation. These were the first I had seen thus clad. The millions that I had previously seen were dressed, of course, but dressed variously. the soldiers, for instance, were in uniform. In this little group of men my eyes rested upon one more splendorous and holy than the rest. While I thus gazed, President Joseph F. Smith parted from the others and came to my side. "Do you know HIM?" he inquired. I quickly answered, "Yes, I know HIM." My eyes beheld my Lord and Savior. "It is true," said President Joseph F. Smith and how my soul thrilled with rapture unmistakable joy filled my soul. President Smith informed me that I had been given permission to return to complete my mission upon the earth which the Lord had appointed me to fill and with his hand upon my shoulder uttered these memorable and significant words: "Brother Heber [Hale], you have a great work to do. Go forth with a Prayerful heart and you shall be blessed in your ministry from this time on. Never doubt that God lives, that Jesus Christ is His Son, the Savior of the world, that the Holy Ghost is a God of spirit, and the messenger of the Father and the Son. Never doubt the resurrection of the dead, and the immortality of the soul, that the mission of the Latter-Day Saints is to all the world, all mankind both living and the dead, and that the great work in the Holy Temple for the Salvation of the dead has only begun."

"Know this, that Joseph Smith was sent of God to usher in the gospel dispensation of the fullness of times, which is at this time the recognized and ordained head of the Church of Jesus Christ upon the earth. Give him your confidence and support. Much you have seen and heard here you will not be permitted to repeat when you return."

Quite a distance through various scenes and passing innumerable people, I traveled before I reached this sphere which I had first entered. On my way I was greeted by many friends and relatives certain of whom sent words of greeting and counsel to their dear ones here. My mother being one of them. The other I will mention. I met Brother John Adamson, his wife, his son, James, and daughter Isabelle, all of whom were killed by the hand of a foul assassin in Carey, Idaho, in the evening of October 29, 1915. They immediately said (Brother Adamson speaking), "Tell the children that we are very happy and that they should not mourn our departure nor worry their minds over the manner by which we were taken. There is a purpose in it and we have a work here to do which requires our collective efforts and which we could not do individually. I was at once made to know that the work referred to was that of genealogy on which they were working in England and Scotland.

One of the grandest and most sacred things of heaven is family relationship. The establishment of a complete change without any broken links, brings a fullness of joy. Links wholly bad will be dropped out and other new links put in our two adjoining links welded together. Men and women throughout the world are moved upon by their dead ancestors to gather genealogy. These are the links for the chain. The ordinances of baptism, endowments and sealing performed in the temple of God by the living for the dead are the welding of the links. Ordinances are performed in the spirit world effectualizing in the individual recipients and saving principles of the gospel vicariously performed here. As I was approaching the place were I had entered my attention was attracted to a small group of women preparing what appeared to be wearing apparel. Observing my inquiring countenance one of the women remarked. "We are preparing to receive Brother Philip Worthington". (He died Jan. 22, 1920. Pres. Hale was advised by telegram, returned to Boise and presided over his funeral January 23.) As I gasped his name in repetition I was admonished. "If you knew the joy and glorious mission that awaits him here you would not ask to have him detained on earth." Then flooding through consciousness came this awful truth that the will of the Lord can be done on earth as it is in Heaven, only when we resign completely to His will and let his will be done in us and through us. On account of the selfishness of men or assertion of the personal will as against the will of God, many persons who might have otherwise been taken in innocence and peace have been permitted to live and have passed a life of suffering and misery or debauchery and crime and have lived to their own peril. Men and women and children are often called to missions of great importance to the other side and some respond gladly while others refuse to go and their loved ones will not give them up. Also many die because they have not faith to be healed, others, yet live alone and pass out of the world of mortals without any special manifestations or action of the divine will. When a man is stricken ill, the question of prime importance is not "Is he going to live or die." What matters whether he lives or dies so long as the will of the Father in done? Surely we can trust him with God. Herein lies the special duty and privilege of administration by the Holy priesthood, namely, it is given the elders of the Church to divine the will of the Father concerning the ones upon whose heard their hands are laid. If for any reason they are unable to presage the Father's will, they should continue to pray in faith for the afflicted one humbly conceding supremacy to the will of God, that his will be done, in earth as it is in heaven ["The Lord's Prayer" is Prophetic! We should pray for the earth to become heaven].

To a righteous person birth into the world of spirit is a glorious privilege and blessing. The greatest spirits in the family of the Father have not usually been permitted to tarry longer int he spirit world where the field is greater and the workers fewer. This earth career therefore, may be longer or shorter as the Father wills.

I passed quietly out where I had entered the world of spirit and immediately my body quickened and I arose to ponder over and record the many wonderful things I had seen and heard. Let me here and now declare to the world that irrespective of what others may think and say, I do know of my own positive knowledge and from my own personal experience that God is the Father of all the spirits of men and that he lives, that Jesus Christ is his Son and the Savior of the world [D&C 132:24 "This is eternal lives--to know the only wise and true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent." & D&C 130:3 "John 14:23--The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance"], that the spirit of man does not die but survives this change called death, and goes to the world of spirit -- that the world of spirit is upon this earth, that man's individuality is not lost by death, nor his progress inhibited, that the spirits will literally take up their bodies again in the resurrection, that the principles are now being taught to the spirits and the great work of saving the Father's family among the living and the dead is in progress and that but comparatively few will be lost, that the gospel of Jesus Christ has again been established upon the earth with all keys, powers, authority, and blessings through the instrumentality of the Prophet Joseph Smith, that this is not only the power which will save and exalt everyone obedient, but will ultimately save the world [Ordinances of the Fulness of the Priesthood ultimately will save the World], that the burden of our mission is to save souls unto God [Saving Souls Unto God is the burden of our mission--That means D&C 76:21, saving "Sons and Daughters Unto God--through the Fulness of the Priesthood...When we are ultimately Anointed Kings & Priests Unto the Most High God & His Father--This is the burden of our mission], and that the work for the dead is no less important than the work for the living. SECOND ANOINTING

Heber Hale's Second Anointing:

Taken from the Lambert collection in the University of Utah Library:

A note regarding the one-time existence of a "second anointing", or Second blessing in the Mormon temple.

Riding in an automobile the evening of June 28, 1966, with (1) a former student of mine, Dr. John Fitzgerald, (2) Juanita Brooks, and (3) Heber Q. Hale, who was once "high up" in Mormon Church circles and a very believing person who, up in Boise, Idaho, in the 1920's saw visions and heard voices and saw great spiritual manifestations, the topic of the "Second Endowments" in the Mormon temple ceremonies came up. Fitzgerald had never heard of it. Mrs. Brooks said John D. Lee's recitals said something about "second anointings" or something. I [Asael C. Lambert,] had once asked the President of the Idaho Falls temple if they had built any special upper room for "Second endowments" and he dodged and answer because he probably didn't know what the term meant. Heber Hale's who is now in his eighties and pretty liberally alert said he recently asked Howard McDonald, President of the Salt Lake Temple, if They had any "second blessing" nowadays and McDonald had said loudly and emphatically that there "is no such thing" "and never was". Hale said he chided McDonald for his ignorance and abruptness, and told him that he, Hales, had had his "Second Blessings", or using my phrase, "Second Endowments." Hale then told us that years ago he and his wife had been asked by President Joseph F. Smith to come to [the] Salt Lake Temple and receive their "Second Blessings", which they did. I asked if the ceremony was given for a company or group, and Hales said, "Oh No. Only for the man and his wife who are asked and chosen by the President of the Church. Not even the Apostles can select persons for that blessing." I asked "Did they have a special room for it?" He said, "No. We were taken up into the sealing room with its altar. We knelt on opposite sides of the altar my wife and I, with hands clasped across the altar, and President Smith at the end who gave us our second blessings." He stressed the word blessings," but didn't recite what was said. He said it was all for special recognition for faithfulness and worthiness [and] for encouragement and reward."

Mrs Brooks, who has for years gone through the St. George temple rather regularly didn't say whether she or anyone she knew had received their "Second Anointing," but she suggested it would probably include some further confirmations of power the man had and was to have over his wife or wives--always one concern of the temple "endowment". She said there was (is) a small upper room in the St. George temple,--"a small prayer room." (Asael C. Lambert, Papers, University of Utah Libraries, "Notebook on Mormon Temple Ceremonies," Box 26, Book 3.)

Opening The Gate Beautiful

When the Prophet Joseph Smith asked the Lord for wisdom on that early spring day, in 1820, the Gateway of Heaven was opened, and angels come through for the first time in centuries. That opened Gateway led into the higher courts of life's temple.

In the olden days, women were not permitted to go beyond the Gate Beautiful into the Court of Sacrifice, nor into the Higher Place. During the dark ages, after the light of revelation had been withdrawn from the earth, women felt keenly, but perhaps unconsciously, the heavy hand of superstition and oppression.

Men, because of superior strength and leadership, could force their way through the clouds of darkness and superstition, but helpless women and little children were sufferers, as they always are when society is lighted only by the rays of cold reason, earthly ethics, and lustful desires. So that, when the Vision, given to the Prophet Joseph Smith, came through the Gateway, the women with their little children were among the most blessed recipients of the results of that Vision.

It is very probable that the Vision came to the Prophet on the Paschal day of the year, although no date has been kept for us, but it was on the Paschal day when the Church was organized, when Elijah visited the Prophet in the temple at Kirtland, and when, strange to say, the Prophet organized the Relief Society. That day, the 17th of March, 1842, was the opening of the Paschal season for the year 1842. It was the day celebrated as the fast day of Queen Esther, by the Jews. What a wonderful Easter these events have brought to the earth.

The women, because of the opening Vision, have been permitted to enter into the Court of Sacrifice now symbolized by the sacrament which is given in this Church, not only to women but also to the little children in our Sunday Schools. How symbolic this blessed privilege is to the liberty for women and children which followed that marvelous Vision!

Women have been given the right of franchise, first in the Church itself. They have always voted on all matters of procedure, and on the support of all officers in the Church from the least to the greatest. The doctrine of common consent makes the woman an equal with man in all her religious activities. She is admitted not only into the courts of women, symbolically and equally in our own temples, but also she is given a higher position in this sacred ordinance which she shares, side by side with her husband. Indeed, in the last or Holy of Holies, men must be accompanied by their wives when they secure their blessings.* (Relief Society Magazine, April, 1920; Also, Motherhood A partnership with God, Compiled by Harold Lundstrom, 1956, Bookcraft, p. 339-341.)

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO THE STAKE PRESIDENT

To the Stake President:

1. Give names in full, using one form only and the next for each and every family.

2. Leave the line commencing with the word "for" blank.

3. Send each and every recommend direct to the President, not by the hand of anybody, the person recommended included. After the President returns the recommend to you bearing his signature of approval, it will then be in order for you to deliver it in person to the head of the family thus recommended, explaining to him in a private confidential way the sacredness of the ordinance, cautioning him at the same time not to speak of it to anybody outside the temple; and in the interest of privacy you are request not to send more than one family to the temple the same week bearing a recommend of this character.

4. All persons thus recommended should be true and faithful men, as a general thing ripened by age and experience, men valiant for the truth, who have never been known to waiver in the defense of the faith or to withhold their allegiance to or support of the constituted authorities of the Church, as well as of clean moral lives, and their wives true and faithful Latter-day Saints. If there should be any doubt in your mind as to the entire worthiness of any person contemplated by you, it would be quite well in order for you to satisfy yourself by inquiry, but without mentioning the purpose thereof.

5. In the earlier life of the Church, the President thereof made the selection himself, but on account of its growth numerically, the Stake President, and he alone, has been designated to do this for him, subject of course to his approval and the Stake President therefore becomes the sole custodian of this book.

6. A letter addressed to the President should accompany each recommend, giving a brief account of the man thus recommended. A valiant, faithful man, deceased, should not be overlooked. They may be recommended on the strength of the testimony of faithful men who knew them, whose testimony can be relied on.

Dear Brother:--
I have signed the seven recommends for second blessings contained in yours of the 22nd inst., and have forwarded the same to President Sheperd of the Logan Temple, as requested by you.
The following is one of the instructions given to Stake Presidents in connection with their issuing temple recommends for second blessings:

"Send each and every recommend direct to the President, not by the hand of anybody, the person recommended included. After the President returns the recommend to you bearing his signature of approval, it will then be in order for you to deliver it in person to the head of the family thus recommended, explaining to him in a private confidential way the sacredness of the ordinance, cautioning him at the same time not to speak of it to anybody outside the temple; and in the interest of privacy you are requested not to send more than one family to the temple the same week bearing a recommend of this character."

If you and Prest. Sheperd of the Logan temple can agree between yourselves that these blessings can be administered to each family recommended by you without other families so recommended knowing anything at all about it, you have my consent that the recommends be acted on during the week of the visitation of yourself and people at the temple, otherwise the instruction in regard to this matter should be strictly adhered to.

Dear Brother:--

Referring to yours of the 15th inst. we would say that President Woodruff's instructions to Stake President [sic] on the subject of recommending for second anointing limited them to persons who had gathered with the Church, whether dead or alive, and this was the policy adopted by President Snow, although he may have made exceptions to it. And it is our mind that faithful men who have gathered with the Church, who can be recommended as worthy to receive these higher blessings, but who through death were deprived of them, should receive them by proxy. It would be in order therefore to exted your recommends to Franklin P Whitmore, deceased, inasmuch as you knew him to be worthy.

Dear Brother Chipman:

I have your letter of the 27th inst. enclosing one from Brother Arthur Bradder, making application for his Second Blessings.

Second blessings are only given by the President of the Church upon recommendation of a member of the Council of the Twelve. At some time when one of the Apostles is in your stake, if he feels to properly recommend Brother Bradder, the matter will be taken under advisement.

I return his letter herewith.

Dear Brother McMurrin:

Answering your letter of October 11th.

We find upon inquiry that it has been some years since ordinances bestowing second blessings have been performed in cases where both parties are dead.

Where people are sealed in the temple for and on behalf of the dead, or in cases where people who are dead were themselves sealed while living, the feeling has always been that every privilege, power and blessing of every description will be given to them, if they have lived worthy of [the] same, and that they could not have more even if they had additional blessings sealed upon them. We, therefore, feel that there is no necessity of performing the ordinances that Sister Smith requests.

A Patriarchal Blessing of Mary Vest:

A BLESSING GIVEN BY THOMAS A. SHREEVE, PATRIARCH, UPON THE HEAD OF MARY JANE A, MORLEY VEST Daughter of Thomas Morley and Mary (Oldfield) Morley

Born March 7, 1879, Ogden, Utah

Sister Mary Jane A, Vest.
In accord with thy request and desire, and in the authority of the Holy Priesthood,

I lay my hands upon your head and give unto you a Patriarchal Blessing, that your heart may be made glad with the testimony of the Lord Jesus Christ, for you were one of the faithful ones in the eternal world, and was blessed with the privelege (sic) of comeing (sic) to the earth in this dispensation of the Gospel. Through a noble race who God tested and tried and found not wanting. and their blessings will rest upon you and thy posterity to the latest generations.

You are of the seed of Abraham, the lineage of Ephraim, A true daughter of Zion, A mother in Israel to choice spirits of men and women who will do you honor, for they will be worthy of the choice blessings of the New and Everlasting Covenant.

And the hand of the Lord will be made manifest in your behalf, for he has led and guided you up to the present moment of time, and will continue his love and mercy unto you and thy children.

* Listen to the Still Small voice of the Comforter, and the vision of thy mind shall be opened and you shall see and understand things as they are, both temporal and spiritual. Continue to put thy trust in the Lord, associate with his people And his Spirit will be thy constant companion, and your heart will be made glad with the testimony of the Gospel, and this will become an anchor to thy soul forever. For the Lord will not leave you nor foresake (sic) thee until you are brought back by thy companion into the presence of your Heavenly Father, there to be crowned as a queen in the Celestial kingdom of our Godm Surrounded by thy family, who will rejoice with you in the presence of our Heavenly Father.

I bless you that you may have peace and comfort in your home and habitation, with thy family and friends. And that  you may be priveleged (sic) to have thy days prolonged upon the earth and see thy childrens, children rise up and call you blessed. and that you may live long upon the earth, even until you are satisfied with length of days and of years. And enjoy good health even until you are satisfied with life.

This blessing I seal upon you with every other that the Father sees will be for thy good and happiness, And seal you up unto Eternal Life to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection clothed with honor, glory and immortality.

This I do in the name of Jesus Christ.

Amen.
/s/ Thomas A. Shreeve

(Blessing in Possession of David G. Jenson.)

* Mary Vest, was the daughter of Thomas Morley, the Patriarch of Ogden. The night that he died, Mary had a wonderful dream, in which, she found herself in a beautiful flower garden. She said that the flowers were the most gorgeous she had ever seen and that many were of colors not of this world. While she was looking at, and admiring the beauty of everything, suddenly she saw a man whom she recognized immediately as our Savior, in front of her. He was walking through the divine flower garden. Mary noticed that he was walking towards the most beautiful and grand flower in all the garden. When He came to that flower, the Savior tenderly bent over and picked the flower and brought it up to him. Mary said that she knew that the flower represented her good father, and that the Lord was taking him home to be with Him.

Shortly thereafter Mary was told that indeed her father had died on the night that she had had this wonderful manifestation of Love from her Savior for her and her father.

 Mary lived into her nineties with perfect health and saw here great-grand children until many were in their teens. (David G. Jenson, Great-grandson of Mary Vest.)

From Joseph Fielding Smith's Way to Perfection:

Each person baptized into the Church is under obligation to keep the commandments of the Lord. He is under covenant, for baptism is a "new and an everlasting covenant." (D.C. 22:1.) When he has proved himself by a worthy life, having been faithful in all things required of him, then it is his privilege to receive other covenants and to take upon himself other obligations which will make of him an heir, and he will become a member of the "Church of the Firstborn." Into his hands "the Father has given all things." He will be a priest and king, receiving of the Father's fulness and of his glory. Is this worth having: It cannot be obtained without some effort. It cannot be obtained without knowledge of the things of God.And the fulness of these blessings can only be obtained in the temple of the Lord!

April 19, 1934

I wrote Prest. Heber J. Grant as fol[lows]:

Dear Pres. Grant:

If the following named brethren, General Authorities of the Church, and their wives have received their second blessings, the Salt Lake Temple Records do not disclose that fact, I therefore, conclude that they have not except possible Pres. Hart who may have received his blessings in the Logan Temple:

J. Reuben Clark, Jr.
Charles H. Hart
Antoine R. Ivins
Samuel O. Bennion
John H. Taylor

I understand that it is order for a member of the Council of the Twelve to recommend worthy members to the President of the Church to receive their second blessings. Accordingly, I recommend that these brethren and their wives be invited to receive their blessings.

The Temple Ceremony
President David O. McKay

Not so with one who is anointed to become a king and priest of the Most High; a queen and priestess in the realms of God. Now that is what it means. I do not know how long it will take you or me to achieve that , but we are anointed that we may become such. Do not shut your eyes to the glories and open them to the mechanics, that seem so simple and are performed so awkwardly sometimes.

December 10, 1942

George F. Richards Journal; Ms/f/600/#4/CHO.

I attended regular Thu. Meetings. At the 10:-A.M. meeting of the Presidency, the Twelve and the Patriarch held in the Temple, the matter of allowing the administration of second blessings was considered. I brought up the subject at our last Quarterly meeting of the Twelve held in the Temple Sept. 29th last. I made quite an extended talk on the subject at that time at the conclusion of which it was decided by vote to present the question to the Council of the First Presidency, the Twelve and the Patriarch. To-day all were present except Geo. Albert Smith, Richard R. Lyman and Sylvester Q. Cannon and I suggested to Pres. Clawson that he bring the question forward, which he did. I had a chance to explain, and it was decided that the four members of the Council, viz. J. Reuben Clark Jr., Albert E. Bowen, Harold B. Lee and the Patriarch Jos. F. Smith should be privileged to receive theirs and others whom the members of this council may recommend and the Council sustain. Pres. Grant appointed me to administer these blessings. I suggested that Jos. Fielding Smith be appointed to assist me in this work. We are to make the appointment, i.e. Jos. Fielding & I, for the brethren.

I have anxiously looked forward to this action.

The records show that there have been 32, 495 such blessings administered in the Church and that during that last 12 years there have been but 8 administrations. Thirteen of the 32 General Authorities had not had theirs and at least two others who have had them with their first wives have later wives not yet anointed to their husbands.

George F. Richards Journal; Ms/f/600/#4/CHO.

I obtained permission of Pres. Grant to see him at his home. I found him in bed and his condition seemed worse than I had expected to find. I gave him a blessing, and recommended that he issue recommends to all the General Authorities and their wives who have not received their second blessings and give it [to] them for Christmas which he approved and authorized also approved Stephen L. Chipman & Wife whom I recommended. I reported to Joseph Anderson, who had recommends made. These I took to the President and he signed them. I returned the signed recommends to Joseph Anderson, the President's Secretary, for distribution. I feel that this day's accomplishments had been inspired and is a wonderful accomplishment. May the Lord be praised for ever.

This is one of the most happy days of my life. I am sure it will endure over Christmas.

December 31, 1942:

George F. Richards Journal; Ms/f/600/#4/CHO.

This has been a wonderful year for me and my family.... I have also been in renewing the former practice in the Church of administering Second Anointings to faithful members, the practice having gone practically into disuse, only eight such blessings having been administered in the past twelve years. Up to twelve years ago there had been administered in the Church thirty two thousand plus of such blessings. The day before Christmas I was instrumental in getting Pres. Grant to sign recommends for thirteen of the general authorities and their wives and the wives of two others of the Council to their husbands; also a recommend for Stephen L. Chipman and wife, he having had his previously. I am sure that the Lord has inspired what I have been able to do along these lines. Pres. Grant, in our council meeting of a few weeks ago appointed me to administer these blessings and at my request appointed Elder Jos. Fielding Smith to assist me. We are the only ones in the Church having this authority by appointment.

October 14, 1943:

George F. Richards Journal; Ms/f/600/#4/CHO.

Attended 10:00 A.M. meeting of the First Presidency, the Twelve & the Patriarch. The council approved my recommendation that 2nds [Second Annointings] be offered the following: Harold S. Snow of St. George Temple, El Ray Christiansen Pres. of Logan Temple and David Smith, Pres. of Idaho Falls Temple.

August 12, 1949:

George F. Richards Journal; Ms/f/600/#4/CHO.

I attended quarterly meeting of the Twelve where I presided and presented my views respecting the non administration of seconds [Second Annointings], which received approval with the request by motion made by Stephen L. Richards that I presented the matter to the Presidency if I could get a hearing, either to them alone or in the Council of the First Presidency & the Twelve.

August 18, 1949:

George F. Richards Journal; Ms/f/600/#4/CHO.

At the 10:00 A.M. Council meeting of the Presidency and Twelve I read a paper of 5 or 6 pages deploring the neglect on our part in not administering Second blessings as formerly. The paper and other statements made by me in connection therewith were accepted 100%

Excerpts from the paper referred to in the George F. Richards August 18, 1949 Journal entry are as follows:

To the Members of the First Presidency and the Quorum of the Twelve:

Dear Brethren:

For a long time I have felt that I would like to express to you the disappointment I feel that we have practically discontinued the administration of Second Anointings in the Church, and to give to you some of the reasons why I feel as I do.

I have not been able to bring myself to feel that the Lord is pleased with us in neglecting such an important and sacred endowment, which He has given us to be administered in His holy temples to worthy members of His Church.

The Second Anointings were given by revelation to the Prophet Joseph Smith to be administered to worthy members of the Church, both the living and the dead; and from the days of the Prophet Joseph to the days of President Heber J. Grant that practice continued.

> "And verily I say unto you, let this house be built unto my name, that I may reveal mine ordinances therein unto my people; for I deign to reveal unto my church things which have been hid from before the foundation of the world, things which pertain to the dispensation of the fulness of times." Doctrine and Covenants 124:40,41.

> "And it shall come to pass that if you built a house unto my name, and do not the things I say, I will not perform the oath which I make unto you, neither will I fulfil the promises which ye expect at my hands, saith the Lord. For instead of blessings, ye, by your own words, bring cursings, wrath, indignation, and judgments upon your own heads, by your follies, and by all your abominations, which you practise before me, saith the Lord." Doctrine and Covenants 124:47,48.

These things' I understand to mean and include the Second Anointings, a neglect to administer which in the temples reared for that purpose will be attended by the Lord's displeasure, and bring upon us cursings instead of blessings, wrath, indignation and judgments.

We calculate to give the Elders of Israel their washings, and anointings, to attend to those last and more impressive ordinances without which we cannot obtain Celestial thrones.... Joseph Smith's Teachings, p. 362.

Ordinances in the Temple

> The declaration this morning is, that as soon as the Temple and baptismal font are prepared, we calculate to give the Elders of Israel their washings and anointings, and to attend to those last and more impressive ordinances, without which we cannot obtain celestial thrones. But there must be a holy place prepared for that purpose. There was a proclamation made during the time that the foundation of the Temple was laid to that effect, and there are provisions made until the work is completed, so that men may receive their endowments and be made kings and priests unto the Most High God, having nothing to do with temporal things, but their whole time will be taken up with things pertaining to the house of God. These must, however, be a place built expressly for that purpose, and for men to be baptized for their dead. It must be built in this central place; for every man who wishes to save his father, mother, brothers, sisters and friends, must go through all the ordinances for each one of them separately, the same as for himself, from baptism to ordination, washing and anointings, and receive all the keys and powers of the Priesthood, the same as for himself.

This refers directly to the Second Anointings. Nowhere else in Church ordinances are men made kings and priests unto the Most High God.

In olden times, kings in Israel were anointed such by the Prophets of God. Should not those who are to become kings and priests and attain to Godhood be anointed thereto while here on earth? That is the nature of the work of Second Anointings.

Every man and woman who has received his or her first endowments has received a PROMISE that through faithfulness they would be privileged to receive the Second Anointings.

"Brethren and Sisters, if you are true and faithful, the day will come when you will be chosen, called up and anointed kings and queens, priests and priestesses, whereas you are now anointed only to become such. The realization of these blessings depends upon your faithfulness." (Endowment Ceremonies, p. 1x2.)

Thousands of good and faithful men and women are dying without receiving a fulfillment of the promise made them in connection with the temple ceremonies.

When living members receive their Second blessings, or anointings, they are given a charge that they must not speak of those things to anybody; that only those who are invited by the President of the Church are to receive them, and that none others are supposed to know anything about them.

Formerly, the Stake Presidents made their recommendations for Second Anointings to the President of the Church, and when approved by him the individuals so approved received their invitation from the president of the Chruch, and on presentation of that recommend to the Temple President of the temple district where the individuals resided, the temple president officiated for them. The Stake Presidents and SPECIAL recommend books for that purpose.

About 1928 an incident occurred which so incensed the First Presidency that they had all the recommend books brought in to the President's office, and instructions were given that no recommends of that character should be given by stake president thereafter.

The Twelve were authorized to make recommendations; but their recommendations were rarely ever acted upon favorably, so that the administering Seconds almost entirely ceased. In twelve years, from 1930 to 1942, when these facts were tabulated, but eight such blessings were administered in the Church. Only EIGHT blessings in twelve years!

The following tabulation of Second Blessings administered in the temples were such blessings were administered will no doubt be of interest to you:

Temple	Period	Living	Dead	Total
Salt Lake	To Dec. 10, 1942	14,847	6,226	21,073
Logan	To Oct. 13, 1931	3,139	1,229	4,368
St. George	To Jan. 13, 1938	1,885	1,619	3,504
Manti	To Dec. 12, 1929	2,407	1,143	3,550
Nauvoo	In Jan. & Feb 1846			406
	Totals . . .	22,278	10,217	32,902

The incident above mentioned which so exasperated the First Presidency was as follows: A brother who had received his Second Blessings, while speaking in a priesthood meeting in one of the Idaho stakes, told the brethren that they all should have their Second Blessings. Of course that was a serious infraction of the charge which he received when he had his Second Anointings; but I have never learned of any serious consequences to follow, except action on the part of the Authorities, discontinuing the administration of those blessings in the Church.

It appears to me that the mistake made by the good brother in Idaho was not so serious as to justify letting those sacred ordinances come into disuse in the Church. I think now is the time to act; with such modifications as to details as the brethren might feel to make, insuring that these blessings be administered only to those who are worthy to receive them. * * *

If there is condemnation resting upon us for our neglect, the longer we delay action the greater will be our condemnation.... Temples under construction now and in the future should be provided with a room for the administration of these blessings alone, to be known as the Holy of Holies, for if we do not move in the matter before us, some others coming after us will do so for it must be done, and temples should be designed and constructed with that thought in mind.

It is to be hoped that this communication will not be shelved and forgotten without full consideration by this Council. For several years these matters have given me great mental anxiety and spiritual concern, and but for want of courage I would have sought an opportunity to be heard years ago. I do not want to leave this sphere of action without VIGOROUSLY protesting our indifference and neglect.

Sincerely and affectionately you brother,
GEORGE F. RICHARDS, President, Council of Twelve.

To the Members of the First Presidency and the Quorum of the Twelve

Dear Brethren:

For a long time now I have felt that I would like to express to you the disappointment I feel in that we have practically discontinued the administration of Second Anointings in the Church, and to give you some of the reasons why I feel as I do.

I have not been able to bring myself to feel that the Lord is pleased with us in neglecting such an important and sacred endowment, which he has given to us to be administered in His holy temples to worthy members of His Church.

The Second Anointings were given by revelation to the Prophet Joseph Smith to be administered to worthy members of to Church, both for the living and the dead; from the days of the Prophet Joseph to the days of President Heber J. Grant that practice continued.

"And verily I say unto you, let this house be built unto my name, that I may reveal mine ordinances therein unto my people; for I deign to reveal unto my church things which have been hid from before the foundation of the world, things which pertain to the dispensation of the fulness of times." Doctrine and Covenants 124:40,41.

""And it shall come to pass that if you built a house unto my name, and do not the things I say, I will not perform the oath which I make unto you, neither will I fulfil the promises which ye expect at my hands, saith the Lord. For instead of blessings, ye, by your own words, bring cursings, wrath, indignation, and judgments upon your own heads, by your follies, and by all your abominations, which you practise before me, saith the Lord." In the kingdom a woman does not hold the priesthood, but she shares it with her husband, and she is the immediate beneficiary of many of its great blessings. When she unites in marriage with a man of the priesthood in one of the temples of the kingdom, the blessings pronounced upon her are of equal import to those given her husband, and these blessings are to be realized only through the enduring compact of the marriage, for "man (is not) without the woman, neither the woman without the man, in the Lord." (I Cor. 11:11.) (Stephen L. Richards, If Every Woman Understood, General Conference, October 1952; Also, Motherhood A partnership with God, Compiled by Harold Lundstrom, 1956, Bookcraft, p. 336.)

SECOND COMFORTER NOT HOLY SPIRIT OF PROMISE.
The Holy Spirit of Promise is not the Second Comforter. The Holy Spirit of Promise is the Holy Ghost who places the stamp of approval upon every ordinance that is done righteously; and when covenants are broken he removes the seal. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 1, p. 55.)

THE SECOND COMFORTER

TWO COMFORTERS. Joseph Smith speaks of two Comforters: the first is the Holy Ghost, the second is the Son of God himself. He uses the 14th chapter of John as the basis for his discourse. Verses 16, 17, and 26 definitely refer to the Holy Ghost. They speak of the Spirit of Truth which "dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." Verses 18, 21 and 23 clearly refer to the Lord himself and his coming to man.

SECOND COMFORTER NOT HOLY SPIRIT PROMISE. The Holy Spirit of Promise is not the Second Comforter. The Holy Spirit of Promise is the Holy Ghost who places the stamp of approval upon every ordiance that is done righteously; and when covenants are broken he removes to seal.

DENYING THE SECOND COMFORTER. There is no forgiveness for denying the First Comforter. But if a man received honor enough to have the presence of the Son, he would also have the knowledge of the First Comforter and should he turn away, his sin would be unpardonable. A man could not deny the Second Comforter any more than he could the first.

If a man gets knowledge enough to have the companionship of the Son of God, the chances are his call and election would be sure. [one seal]. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 1:55)

If you would become a son or daughter of God and an heir of the kingdom, then you must go to the house of the Lord and receive blessings which there can be obtained and which cannot be obtained elsewhere; (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2. p. 40.)[this would include the higher ordinances also such as the ordiance of making one a king and Queen, Priest and Priestess; What does the prophet say it "cannot be obtained elsewhere"-in the resurrection or after the resurrection. D&C 132:7.)

1956

THE CHURCH OF THE FIRSTBORN

EXALTED BEINGS BELONG TO CHURCH OF FIRSTBORN. Those who gain exaltation in the celestial kingdom are those who are members of the Church of the Firstborn [and how do they become members D. & C. 76:54, 67, 71, 94-95, 102; 77:11; 78:21; 88:5; 93:22 and others]; in other words, those who keep all the commandments [and ordinances] of the Lord. There will be many who are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints [by Baptism and Confirmation] who shall never become members of the Church of the Firstborn [by Ordiance and Confirmation?].

The higher ordinances [plural] in the temple of God pertain to exaltation in the celestial kingdom.... In order to receive this blessing [a member of the Church of The Firstborn,] one must keep the full law, must abide the law by which that kingdom is governed; for, "He who is not able to abide the law of a celestial kingdom cannot abide a celestial glory."

So being ordained an elder, or a high priest, or an apostle, or even President of the Church, is not the thing that brings the exaltation, but obedience to the laws and ordinances and the covenants required of those who desire to become members of the Church of the Firstborn, as these are administered in the house of the Lord. To become a member of the Church of the Firstborn, as I understand it, is to become one of the inner circle. We are all members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints by being baptized and confirmed, and there are many who seem to be content to remain such without obtaining the privileges of exaltation. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2, p. 41-42.)

HOW TO JOIN CHURCH OF THE FIRSTBORN. The Lord has made it possible for us to become members of the Church of the firstborn, by receiving the blessings of the house of the Lord and overcoming all things. Thus we become heirs, "priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory," who shall "dwell in the presence of God and his Christ forever and ever," with full exaltation (D&C 76:56, 62). Are such blessings worth having?

I have said that only one man at a time on the earth holds the keys of this sealing power of the priesthood, but he may, and does, delegate power to others, and they officiate under his direction in the temples of the Lord. [Here we see that becoming a member of the Church of the Firstborn is a sealing ordiance.]

No man can officiate in these sealing ordinances [what, becoming a king and priest, and a member of the Church of the Firstborn], until he receives the authority to do so by being set apart by the one who holds the keys, notwithstanding he may hold the priesthood. All the authority exercised in the temples is then, after all, the authority centered in one man. He has the power and calls upon others to officiate, and they seal upon us the keys and powers which, through our obedience, entitles us to become sons and daughters and members of the Church of the Firstborn, receiving all things in the kingdom. This is what we can get in the temple, so that we become members of the family, sons and daughters of God, not servants. (Doctrines of

[Up through the Marriage sealing the words members of the Church of the Firstborn are never used. I called the SLC temple and talked the temple recorder brother Right today on Aug. 26, 1989 about the vision the lord showed me about the people on the other side who need to be made kings and queens etc and about the Church of the first born-If part of last ordiance...We talked about 45 min. and he said that I was far beyond the average person in the church in what the Lord had shown me in my vision and I had brought much light to him on the subject putting the scriptures together the way I had in explaining it, I said that I had not put the scriptures together in that way but I had just attempted to explain empirically by the writings of others what I had seen.... He also said that he would ask someone at the temple who had this ordiance done if being a member of the Church of The Firstborn was a part of that ordinance of receiving the fulness of the Priesthood. Also the spirit enlightened my mind and I told him that we not only have the scriptures that tell us we will have these ordinances but God has promised them and sealed them upon us through the ordinances of the temple he has promised and sealed us with the power the come forth in the morning of the first resurrection-this is when Christ comes, in order to have this power and enjoy this full blessings one must have conferred upon them the fulness of the priesthood D&C 132:7 or they can't receive this promise---and the Lord has said my words shall all be fulfilled whether by my own voice or by the voice of my servants it is the same. I also talked to my mother today she asked me about Elias and Elijah I explained them to her the best I could... The whole earth wasted at the Lords coming.....] 1956

CELESTIAL MARRIAGE ESSENTIAL TO EXALTATION. Another thing that we must not forget in this great plan of redemption and exaltation, is that a man must have a wife, and a woman a husband, to receive the fulness of exaltation. They must be sealed for time and for all eternity in a temple; then their union will last forever, and they cannot be separated because God has joined them together, as he taught the Pharisees.

Parents will have eternal claim upon their posterity and will have the gift of eternal increase, if they obtain the exaltation. This is the crowning glory in the kingdom of God, and they will have no end. When the Lord says they will have no end, he means that all who attain to this glory will have the blessing of the continuation of the "seeds" forever. Those who fail to obtain this blessing come to the "deaths," which means that they will have no increase, forever. All who obtain this exaltation will have the privilege of completing the full measure of their existence, and they will have a posterity that will be as innumerable as the stars of heaven.

If you want salvation in the fullest, that is exaltation in the kingdom of God, so that you may become his sons and daughters, you have got to go into the temple of the Lord and receive these holy ordinances which belong to that house, which cannot be had elsewhere. No man shall receive the fulness of eternity, of exaltation, alone; no woman shall receive that blessing alone; but man and wife, when they receive the sealing power in the temple of the Lord, if they thereafter keep all the commandments, shall pass on to exaltation, and shall continue and become like the Lord. And that is the destiny of men; that is what the Lord desires for his children. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2, p. 43-44.)

[The Prophet saw the Apostles standing in a circle with their eyes cast toward the earth and the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ standing over them but they did not see him because their thoughts were centered on the things of the world---find---We need to look up from the earth and look to the celestial world and like our prototype types –the City of Enoch and the City of Melchizedek make a kingdom of Kings and priests that can be lifted up to meet these great Cities when the Lord comes--This is the only way it can happen this is the only way the earth can be lifted up to a terrestrial sphere as these two cities are that is the same way that they did it and that is by making a kingdom of priests and kings and having no poor among us – all are joint heirs from the least to the greatest in talents]

MAKING OUR CALLING AND ELECTION SURE.
Those who press forward in righteousness, living by every word of revealed truth, have power to make their calling and election sure. They receive [1] the more sure word of prophecy and know by revelation and [2] the authority of the priesthood that they are sealed up unto eternal life. They are sealed up unto eternal life [by the power of the priesthood]. They are sealed up against all manner of sin and blasphemy except the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost and the shedding of innocent blood [again by the power of the priesthood]. But the mere fact of being married for time and eternity in the temple, standing alone, does not give them this guarantee. Blessings pronounced upon couples in connection with celestial marriage are conditional upon the subsequent faithfulness of the participation parties. [In other words these former seals by the priesthood are something more that the sealing ceremony and are additional for us to make our calling and election sure...] (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2, p. 46.)

SEALING BY THE HOLY SPIRIT OF PROMISE

NATURE OF THE SEALING BY THE SPIRIT. I will make an explanation of the expression, "Sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise." This does not have reference to marriage for time and all eternity only, but to every ordiance and blessing of the gospel. Baptism into the Church is sealed by this Spirit, likewise confirmation, ordination, and all ordinances as well as marriage for time and all eternity.

The meaning of this expression is this: Every covenant, contract, bond, obligation, oath, vow, and performance, that man receives through the covenants and blessings of the gospel, is sealed by the Holy Spirit with a promise. The promises is that the blessing will be obtained, if those who seek it are true and faithful to the end. If they are not faithful, then the Holy Spirit will withdraw the blessing, and the promise comes to an end. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2:94.)

We have been taught that adultery is a crime second only to the shedding of innocent blood. We cannot treat it lightly. For a man to destroy another man's home is too serious an offense to be readily forgiven. Such a man should not be permitted to come back in the Church, under any circumstances, at least until years have elapsed. He should be placed on probation for that length of time to see if he can, or will, remain clean. Even then I confess I do not know what disposition the Lord will make of him. To permit him to come back within a short time has a very evil effect upon the other members of the Church who begin to think that this enormous crime is not so serious after all. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2, p. 94.) [When I read this the Spirit said to me that the greater crime was that by dealing hardly with these people we are teaching the people a worse crime than that of the sin of adultery and that is the sin of the lack of forgiveness or predigests-When we join in the prayer Circle in the House of the Lord we are asked to leave if we have any ill feelings one towards another or if we cant forgive-thus we shall also be asked to leave the celestial kingdom until we can forgive all and get it right. The Lord has decreed I will forgive whom I will forgive but for you it is to forgive all mankind-even governor Boggs and Hitler and others for if we do not we have the greater sin and cannot be permitted into the kingdom of god. The Parable of the Lord who forgave his servant but the servant wouldn't forgive his fellow servants.... Also about the woman who washed the savior's feet-told a story about forgiveness those whom I forgive the most love me the most-those whom we forgive the most will love us the most and we will be saviors on mount zion to them as well what a great joy.]

SEALING BY THE HOLY SPIRIT OF PROMISE

NATURE OF THE SEALING BY THE SPIRIT. I will make an explanation of the expression, "Sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise." This does not have reference to marriage for time and all eternity only, but to every ordiance and blessing of the gospel. Baptism into the Church is sealed by this Spirit, likewise confirmation, ordination, and all ordinances as well as marriage for time and all eternity.

The meaning of this expression is this: Every covenant, contract, bond, obligation, oath, vow, and performance, that man receives through the covenants and blessings of the gospel, is sealed by the Holy Spirit with a promise. The promise is that the blessing will be obtained, if those who seek it are true and faithful to the end. If they are not faithful, then the Holy Spirit will withdraw the blessing, and the promise comes to an end. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2, p. 94-95.)

FULNESS OF PRIESTHOOD REQUIRED FOR EXALTATION.

There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God with the fulness of the priesthood. How could a man be an heir in that kingdom without priesthood? While the sisters do not hold the priesthood, they share in the fulness of its blessings in the celestial kingdom with their husbands. These blessings are obtained through obedience to the ordinances and covenants of the house of the Lord....

To obtain the fulness of the priesthood does not mean that a man must become President of the Church. Every man who is faithful and will receive these ordinances and blessings obtains a fulness of the priesthood, and the Lord has said that "he makes them equal in power, and in might, and in dominion." (D&C 76:95; 88:107.) Only one man at a time on the earth holds the keys of the priesthood [King of kings and Lord of lords, proxie for the Lord]; only one man at a time has the power to receive revelations for the Chruch; but the Lord made it possible for every man in this Church, through his obedience, to receive the fulness of the priesthood through the ordinances of the temple of the Lord. This cannot be received anywhere else. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2, p. 132-133.)

FULLNESS OF THE PRIESTHOOD FOR LIVING AND DEAD:

Only in the temple of the Lord can the fulness of the priesthood be received. Now that temples are on the earth, there is no other place where the endowment and the sealing powers for all eternity can be given. No man can receive the keys of exaltation in any other place.

Joseph Smith has said that, "the saints have not too much time to save and redeem their dead, and gather together their living relatives, that they may be saved also, before the earth will be smitten, and the consumption decreed falls upon the world. (Teachings, p. 330.) When that day comes, those who have professed to believe in the latter-day work, and who have rejected the doctrine of temple building and the ceremonial endowments therein, will find themselves shut out of the kingdom of God. [In the temple as [...] said, "we receive the keys and sealings to pass by the angels and Gods-those who go to the temple will notice that no one is permitted to move to one sphere unto another even though he has received the keys and blessings until all in the room, which represents the world, has had an opportunity to receive the same, for God is no respecter of persons, so it is imperative that all receive the opportunity to receive the fullness of the priesthood or those who have it will be shut out waiting for those who haven't until they have an opportunity to receive it - thus we cannot be perfected without our dead or those around us who are living it is impossible - As enoch and Melchizedek found out to be translated to a higher station- there were no poor among us [this means temporal welfare and spiritual welfare all were made equal With God....Then all received the blessing jointly and the whole city was caught up...] This subject occupied the mind of the Prophet Joseph Smith for several years before his death, for the Lord revealed to him all things pertaining to the work in the temples, and he revealed them unto others that the work might go on.

In the temples the saints are performing the ordinances which will insure, through faithfulness, the fulness of the blessings of the kingdom of God. During the past century the Chruch has been true to this calling, and the prospect for the future is good. This work will go on through the millennium, until redemption shall come to all who are worthy to receive it. In the words of the Prophet: "Let the dead speak forth anthems of eternal praise to the King Immanuel, who hath ordained, before the world was, that which would enable us to redeem them out of their prison; for the prisoners shall go free." (D&C 128:22.) (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2, p. 133.)

[Also, how can this prophecy be fulfilled unless we give these prisoners this promise of the fulness of the priesthood-for they have to remain in the prison of spirits until all their ordinances are accomplished and cannot be resurrected-that means all those who have receive only the partial blessings of temple up through the sealing of husband and wife must remain in spirit prison when Christ comes until this crowning ordiance is done for them-It might be better to do it while we are living-we aren't expected to be perfect in fact the true way of perfection is listed in D&C 76:50-90 look at the tenses of the words we are kings and priests, gods , a member of the Church of the Firstborn and then resurrected after we have practiced then we overcome all things...]

FULNESS OF PRIESTHOOD IS IN SEALING POWER OF ELIJAH.

But now we have the fulness of the power of the priesthood. The Lord has restored the keys and authorities of all the dispensations and has made it possible, by the power of Elijah, to make every act performed by authority of force when men are dead or out of the wold. Let us remember that all contracts, bonds, oaths, or performances, which are not entered into by the authority of this sealing power [the priesthood], are of no efficacy or virtue after men are dead. The house of the Lord is a house of order and everything in it is obedient to divine law.

When a man assumes authority which he does not have a and becomes a law unto himself, according to the word of the Lord, he is not justified and must remain filthy still. Let each member of the Church reflect carefully upon these things and see to it that he or she is in perfect harmony with that which the Lord has revealed, and that all ordinances are received under the hands of those who are officially called and endowed with power from on high. (Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 2, 134.)

FULNESS OF THE PRIESTHOOD:

HOW CHRIST GAINED FULNESS OF PRIESTHOOD.

Joseph Smith said: "If a man get a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord" (Teachings, p. 308.)

I hope we understand that. If we want to receive the fulness of the priesthood of God, then we must receive the fulness of the ordinances of the house of the Lord and keep his commandments (D&C 124:28-42). (Doctrine of Salvation, Vol. 3, p. 131.)

There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God without the fulness of the priesthood....Every man who is faithful and will receive these ordiances and blessings obtains a fulness of the priesthood, and the Lord has said the "he makes them equal in power, and in might, and in dominion." (Doctrines of Salvation, 3:132.)

LORD'S COVENANT WITH ABRAHAM:

We are a covenant people--that is we are subject to covenants and obligations as members of the Church. It has always been so. The Lord established covenants with Adam in the beginning. You find that clearly stated in the book of Genesis and more clearly stated in the Book of Moses in the Pearl of Great Price. He made covenants with Enoch that are also stated in those scriptures. He made a covenant with Noah, which resulted in the saving of Noah's family and great promises being given to him in the flood.

Then Abraham received covenants--very definite and important covenants that concern us very materially today. Let me say just a word about the covenant that was made with Abraham. In the Book of Abraham I read the following: "My name is Jehovah, and I know the end from the beginning; therefore, my hand shall be over thee." (That is what the Lord said to Abraham.)

"And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee above measure, and make thy name great among all nations, and thou shalt be a blessing unto thy seed after thee, that in their hands they shall bear this ministry and Priesthood unto all nations; And I will bless them through they name; for as many as receive this Gospel shall be called after thy name, and shall be accounted thy seed, and shall rise up and bless thee, as their father; And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse them that curse thee; and in thee (that is, in thy Priesthood) and in thy seed (that is, thy Priesthood), for I give unto thee a promise that this right shall continue in thee, and in thy seed after thee (that is to say, the literal seed, or the seed of the body) shall all the families of the earth be blessed, even with the blessings of the Gospel, which are the blessings of salvation, even of life eternal. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 3, p. 244.)

Covenant with Abraham for All His Seed:

Of course the Lord established this covenant more particularly through Isaac and Jacob, and from Jacob through the 12 sons who stand at the head of the 12 tribes of Israel. But I call your attention to this fact: According to the Doctrine and Covenants, Moses got his priesthood from Jethro, who was a descendant of Abraham but not a descendant in any way, as far as we know, of Jacob or Israel. Jethro came through another branch of Abraham's family, that of Keturah. He was a Midinite, and yet he held the priesthood.

We sometimes think, as the Jews in the days of Christ thought, that all the blessings of Israel pertain just to us. You know what a time the Lord had to convince the apostles in that early day that the gospel was for the Gentiles. You have read the story of Cornelius and how the Lord had to convince Peter that the gospel was for someone else besides the Jews. We must not think that in those early days none except those who were descendants of Israel or Jacob were entitled to the blessings of the priesthood. That is shown clearly in this fact, as already pointed out, that the Midianites held the priesthood. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 3, p. 245.)

PROCESS OF ADOPTION INTO HOUSE OF ISRAEL:

Is it necessary that we be of the house of Israel in order to accept the gospel and all the blessings pertaining to it? If so, how do we become of the house of Israel, by adoption or by direct lineage?

Every person who embraces the gospel becomes of the house of Israel. In other words, they become members of the chosen lineage, or Abraham's children through Isaac and Jacob unto whom the promises were made. The great majority of those who become members of the Church are literal descendants of Abraham through Ephraim, son of Joseph. Those who are not literal descendants of Abraham and Israel must become such, and when they are baptized and confirmed they are grafted into the tree and are entitled to all the rights and privileges as heirs. (Doctrines of Salvation, Joseph Fielding Smith, Vol. 3, p. 245-246.)

Joseph Fielding Smith wrote that if women:

[A]re faithful and true, they will become priestesses and queens in the Kingdom of God, and that implies that they will be given authority. (Joseph Fielding Smith, Doctrines of Salvation, 3 Vols, Salt lake City: Bookcraft, 1954-57, Vol 3:178.) [Note: The purpose of a wife and mother being a Priestess is to Officiate as Eve, the Endowment (Washings and Anointings) to her daughters. The Father as a Priest would Officiate as Adam all the Ordinances to their Son's. This is the Order of the Patriarchal Priesthood back to Our Heavenly Father and His Father. Note also: that the Purpose of a Wife and Mother being Made a Queen is to help Govern over her posterity and joint-Kingdom. Her Role as a Priestess would to have power over nature and all things in the creative process that Mothers would have a natural responsibility over, Just as the Husband is a King over his Kingdom and Posterity, and a Priest to officiate in the Saving ordinances of his Children and to govern nature. This is the Patriarchal or Family Government--In the true order of Prayer it is the Man and Wife's endless Posterity that surrounds them symbolic of the Man and woman bring their posterity to God, as Saviors on Mt. Zion. James represent's Christ at the Altar.]

Note: D&C 132 indicates that the Second Anointing is for all people and that they might stumble. If we take away the opportunity to stumble from people by only giving to old men--then why did God put in the provision for those to stumble and pay for their own sins--It was because of free agency. When we only give this ordinance to those who for certain will not fail we have stripped free agency from mankind and perhaps thwarted God's work... as it was Satan's plan that no one would fail.????

Alvin R. Dyer to a group of Missionaries:

Some day [they would be called up to be a king and priest or queen and priestess. (Alvin R. Dyer, "For What Purpose," typescript of a speech given on march 18, 1961, at a missionary conference in Oslo, Norway, mammographic copy, p. 7.)

Reed Probst, Sept. 27, 1964, said his g-grandmother had had her 2nd Anointings, his grandfather (Pres. of the S. States Mission) at his mother's death-bed, said, 'She looks like a queen of heaven.' His father said, "she is." Bro. Richards tried to correct his father, "ordained to become such" -- but his father replied, 'Not in her case. She has rec'd the further anointing, & is a queen of heaven.' In this manner only did the family ever learn that she had had that ordinance. (Duane Jeffry, card file on Mormonism, "Second Anointing," card no. 1, back of card.)

...there are certain of the higher ordinances to which an unmarried woman cannot be admitted, but the rule is equally in force as to a bachelor. The married state is regarded as sacred, sanctified, and holy in all temple procedure: and within the House of the Lord the woman is the equal and the help-meet of the man. In the privileges and blessings of the holy place, the utterance of Paul is regarded as a scriptural decree in full force and effect: "Neither is the man without the woman neither the woman without the man, in the Lord" [I Cor. 11:11]. (The Horse of the Lord, James E. Talmage, 1962, p. 94.)

As high and important to the Church as the office of prophet, apostle and patriarch are , nevertheless, the highest ecclesiastical ordinations do not confer the authority of Elijah, the sealing power of the priesthood, or the power of a king and priest. As President Joseph Fielding Smith expressed it best in our own century,

I do not care what office you hold in the church--you may be an apostle, you may be a patriarch, a high priest, or anything else--but you cannot receive the fullness of the priesthood and the fullness of eternal reward unless you receive the ordinances of the house of the Lord.... Then [the door is] opened so you can obtain all the blessings which any man can gain.... You can have ["the fullness of the Lord's blessings"] sealed upon you as an elder, if you are faithful; and when you receive them, and live faithfully and keep these covenants, you then have all that any man can get. There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God without the fulness of the priesthood" (Joseph Fielding Smith, first address to the Priesthood as President of the Chruch, 4 April 1970, The Improvement Era 73 [June 1970]: 65-66). (TWOJS. p. 304-305.)

...Perhaps Abraham received the "anointing and sealing" (the priesthood ordination of king and priest) under the hands of Melchisedek (Genesis 14:17-24 and JST Genesis 14:25-40), but the "election sure"--the absolute assurance of power in the priesthood--came directly from God only after Abraham indicated his willingness to sacrifice Isaac (Genesis 22:1-14) (TWOJS, p. 305.) [Pratt says this is a second confirmation....]

|v53 But inasmuch as they will repent, thou art gracious and merciful, and wilt turn away thy wrath when thou lookest upon the face of thine Anointed. (D&C: Section 109:53)

|v16 Cursed are all those that shall lift up the heel against mine anointed, saith the Lord, and cry they have sinned when they have not sinned before me, saith the Lord, but have done that which was meet in mine eyes, and which I commanded them. (D&C: Section 121:16)

|v7 And verily I say unto you, that the conditions of this law are these: All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations, that are not made and entered into and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, of him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity, and that too most holy, by revelation and commandment through the medium of mine anointed, whom I have appointed on the earth to hold this power (and I have appointed unto my servant Joseph to hold this power in the last days, and there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred), are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead. (D&C: Section 132:7)

Ezra Taft Benson--Indicating that the Church will be replaced by the Family Kingdom--As also indicated in JST Eph 4:11-14:

The Church [of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints] was created in large measure to help the family [Kingdom], and after the Chruch has performed its mission, the celestial patriarchal order will still be functioning. (Ezra Taft Benson, "Strengthen the Family," Improvement Era, 73 [Dec. 1970]: 46.)

October, 1972

Joseph Smith bestowed upon the twelve apostles all the keys and authority and power that he himself possessed and that he had received from the Lord. He gave unto them every endowment, every washing and anointing, and administered unto them the sealing ordinances. (Ensign, December, 1972, Spencer W. Kimball, p. 34.)

That all temple ordinances for the living are also performed for the dead, see James E. Talmage, The House of the Lord, pp. 163, 211 and B. H Roberts, Comprehensive History of the Church 6:495.) (TWOJS, p. 405.)

Quorum of anointed/translates into the quorum of Christs----Look up the word Anointed.

May 1981

Spencer W. Kimball -- The Mission of the Church:
We are impressed that the mission of the Church is threefold:
--To proclaim the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people;
--To perfect the Saints by preparing them to receive [all of] the ordinances of the gospel by instruction and discipline to gain exaltation;
--To redeem the dead by preforming [all of the] vicarious ordinances of the gospel for those who have lived on the earth.
All three are part of one work--to assist our Father in Heaven and his Son, Jesus Christ, in their grand and glorious mission "to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man." (Moses 1:39.) (A Report of My Stewardship, Gen. Conf., Ensign (May 1981), 5; The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball, p. 434-435.)

THE GATHERING OF ISRAEL NOW INVOLVES CONVERSION:

Now, we are concerned with the gathering of Israel. This gathering shall continue until the righteous are assembled in the congregations of the Saints in the nations of the world. This reminds us of the tenth article of faith, wherein the Prophet Joseph Smith said to his inquirer, "We believe in the literal gathering of Israel and in the restoration of the Ten tribes: that Zion (the new Jerusalem) will be built upon the American continent; that Christ will reign personally upon the earth; and, that the earth will be renewed and receive its paradisiacal glory."...
Now, the gathering of Israel consists of joining the true church and their coming to a knowledge of the truth God.... Any person, therefore, who has accepted the restored gospel, and who now seeks to worship the Lord in his own tongue and with the Saints in the nations where he lives, has complied with the law of the gathering of Israel and is heir to all of the blessings promised the Saints in these last days. ("The Gathering of Israel," Honolulu Area Conf., 06/18/78, Church Growth, Gathering; The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball, Bookcraft, p.438-439).

THE SAINTS ARE NO LONGER TO COME TO A SINGLE PLACE:

In 1955, Sister Kimball and I went to Europe. we spent six months touring all of the missions in Europe. The people were still laboring under the impression that they should come to America for the gathering process. The burden of the sermons to them was, "Stay where you are. You have received the gospel. The blessings will be brought to you. It will not be long until you have stakes, and the Brethren will come across the ocean to visit you. Eventually temples will come, and you will have all the blessings of Zion."

Now you folks of South America are in a different category: you have always lived in Zion. One of the Brethren said the Zion was all of America and that it is like a great bird with two wide wings: North America and South America....

Many people have been holding their breath waiting to see the gathering of Israel. We are in Israel and are being gathered. (Buenos Aires Area Conf., Priesthood Session, 03/09/75; (The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball, Bookcraft, p. 439.)

Now, in the early days of the Church we used to preach for the people to come to Utah as the gathering process, largely because that was the only place in the whole world where there was a temple. Now we have sixteen temples, and two more that have been approved, scattered throughout the world. So it is no longer necessary that we bring the people all to Salt Lake City. Our missionaries preach baptism and confirmation. And then we come to you with conferences and to organize stakes. So we say again, stay in Korea. This is a beautiful land. In this land you can teach your children just as well as you could in Salt Lake City. Stay in Korea where you can teach the gospel to millions of people.

And so the gathering is taking place. Korea is the gathering place for koreans, Australia for Australians, Brazil for Brazilians, England for the English. And so we move forward toward the confirmation of this great program the Lord has established for us. (Seoul, Korea, Area Conf. 08/17/75; Temple Work, Missions; The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball, Bookcraft, p. 439-440.)

The first Presidency and the Twelve see great wisdom in the multiple Zion's, many gathering places where the Saints within their won culture and nation can act as a leaven in the building of the kingdom--a kingdom which seeks no earthly rewards or treasures.

Sometimes, inadvertently, we have given artificial encouragement to individuals to leave their native land and culture and, too often, this has meant the loss of the leaven that is so badly needed, and the individuals involved have sometimes regretted their migrations.

I am hopeful that each of you will ponder carefully what it is the Lord would have you do with your lives, with the special skills, training, and testimonies you have. (Commencement at Church College of Hawaii, 04/13/74, Build Home Communities; The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball, Bookcraft, p. 440.)

Tonga is Zion. When we sing the song, "Come to Zion, Come to Zion," we are not asking people to get in their boats and come back to the United States. We are asking them to get established in their own countries; to acquire property, build homes, and teach the young people truths of the world, as well as of the Chruch, through the schools that are developed. (Nuku'alofa, Tonga, Area Conf., 02/24/76; The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball, Bookcraft, p. 440.)

1984 What is a Temple?
By Hugh W. Nibley

The general impression one gets from reading the long discussions in the Talmud is that people in the Temple at Jerusalem spent most of their time at baptisms and ablutions. Certainly baptism is one specific ordiance always mentioned in connection with the Temple. "When one is baptized one become a Christian," writes Cyril, "exactly as in Egypt by the same rite one becomes an Osiris." Not only does Cyril recognize the undeniable resemblance between the christian and non-Christian rites, but he also notes that they have the identical significance, which is initiation into immortality. The baptism, since it is not by immersion. It is followed by an anointing, which our guide calls "the antitype of the anointing of Christ himself," making every candidate as it were a messiah. Elsewhere he describes this rite specifically as the anointing of the brow, face, ears, nose, breast, etc., "which represents," he says, "the clothing of the candidate in the protective panoply of the Holy Spirit," which however does not hinder the initiate from receiving a real garment on the occasion. Furthermore, the candidate was reminded that the whole ordiance "is in imitation of the sufferings of Christ," in which "we suffer without pain by mere imitation his receiving of the nails in his hands and feet: the antitype of Christ's sufferings." Bishop Cyril further insists that Moses and Solomon had both been duly baptized in this manner: "After being washed in water, he (Moses) was anointed and called a Christ, because of the anointing which was a type. When Solomon came forth to be king, the High Priest anointed him, after a bath in Gihon. This again was a type. But with us these things are not a type but a reality." From his last remark it is plain that the early Christians actually performed the rites described. The Jews once taught that when Michael and Gabriel lead all the sinners up out of the lower world, "they will wash and anoint them, healing them of their wounds of hell, and clothe then with beautiful pure garments and bring them in the presence of God." These things are often referred to in the earliest Christian writings, but were soon lost in a manner we must no describe. (The Temple in Antiquity, Ancient Records and Modern Perspectives, Religious Studies Center, Brigham Young University, Volume 9:27-28.)

Anointings:

Adam Clarke's commentary of the Holy Bible:

It appears form Isa. xi. 1, that anointing with oil, in consecrating a person to an important office, whether civil or religious, was considered as an emblem of the communication of the gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit. This ceremony was used on three occasions, viz., the installation of prophets, priests and kings, into their respective offices. But why should such an anointing be deemed necessary? Because the common sense of men taught them that all good, whether spiritual or secular, must come form God, its origin and cause. Hence it was taken for granted, 1.

That no man could foretell events unless inspired by the spirit of God. And therefore the prophet was anointed, to signify the communication of the Spirit of wisdom and knowledge. 2. That no person could offer an acceptable sacrifice to God for the sins of men, or profitably minister in holy things, unless enlightened, influenced and directed by the Spirit of grace and holiness. Hence the priest was anointed, to signify his being divinely qualified for the due performance of his sacred functions. 3. That no one could enact just and equitable laws, which should have the prosperity of the community and the welfare of the individual continually in view, but that man who was ever under the inspiration of the Almighty. Hence kings were inaugurated by anointing with oil.... In the Hebrew language masach signifies to anoint, and mashiach, the anointed person. [Note: the following assertions are not in conformity with modern, revealed scripture]. But as no man was ever dignified by holding the three offices, so no person ever had the title maschiach, the anointed one, but Jesus the Christ. He alone is Kings of Kings and Lord of Lords: the king who governs the universe, and rules the hearts of his followers: the prophet, to instruct men to the way wherein they should go: and the great high priest, to make atonement for their sins. Hence he is called Messiahs, a corruption of the word, The Anointed One, in Hebrew; which gave birth to no Christos, which has precisely the same significance in Greek. Of him, Melchizedek, Abraham, Aaron, David, and others were illustrious types. but none of these had the title The Messiah, or the Anointed of God. This does and ever will, belong exclusively to Jesus the Christ." [Note: that the Prophet of the Chruch of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints is the Acting Proxie King of Kings and Lord of Lords on earth and will deliver these keys back to Christ when he comes. Also, Joseph Smith Created a Quorum, called the Quorum of Anointed - which both men and their wives belonged. To translate the word anointed [fully anointed or the Fulness of the Priesthood] one would have--A Quorum of Anointed--or A Quorum of Christ's--or a Quorum of Elohem's [Eternal fathers and mothers with eternal increase.]

Anointed One:

Literally interpreted the Hebrew Messiah means Anointed One, and accordingly Christ is the Anointed One. (Ps. 2; Acts 4:23-30.) [Note: Each person who receives the fulness of the Priesthood and is fully anointed is literally a christ as that is what the word means; see Hugh Nibley's article above.]

[Christ] was the Anointed of the Father to carry the eternal truths of salvation to the living and the dead. (Isa. 61:1-3; Luke 4:16-32; Acts 10:38.) [Note: It is possible in the Patriarchal priesthood that each Father becomes a Messiah, or Christ to their posterity, ie, Adam and Eve gave the Ordinances of the Gospel to their posterity.] (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed, p. 39.)

1988-1989 Patriarchal Blessing:

Joseph C. Jenson II--By Earl L. Murry

...You shall be anointed a king and priest, therefore you must refine, develop and do all things in such a way that they would be as one would expect of a king, and therefore the position of your wife and your sons & daughters are identified. (Patriarchal Blessing of Joseph C. Jenson II, a copy is in the possession of the

Boyd K. Packer:

. . . . The Lord revealed that the priesthood and its ordinances were "instituted from before the foundation of the world" (D&C 124:33, 34), and commanded that a temple be built at Nauvoo as a place to "restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fulness of the priesthood" (D&C 124:28). Sacred ordinances could then be performed for "therein are the keys of the holy priesthood ordained" (D&C 124:34).

. . . . Men and woman have complementary, not competing, responsibilities. There is difference but not inequity. Intelligence and talent favor both of them. But, in the woman's part, she is not just equal to man, she is superior! She can do that which he can never do, not in all eternity can he do it. There are complementing rewards which are hers and hers alone.

And, blessings bestowed impartially upon man and woman alike include: baptism; the gift of the Holy Ghost; the testimony of Jesus; personal revelation; the ministry of angels; the responsibility to teach, to testify, to exhort, to edify, and to comfort; the faith to be healed, and many other spiritual gifts, all under a uniform standard of worthiness.

And, the highest ordinances in the house of the Lord they receive together and equally, or not at all.

. . . . I could not possibly express the depth and the intensity of love and gratitude that I feel toward my wife, the mother of our children.

Without her, I could not have the highest and most enduring blessings of this "priesthood after the holiest order of God" (D&C 84:18), this "holy priesthood after the order of the son of God" (D&C 107:3). For, in order to obtain the highest, a man must enter into this order of the priesthood [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage]; And if he does not, he cannot obtain it." (D&C 131:1-4.)

I know that the son of God is our Redeemer. Reverently I give thanks to God the Father for the comsumate blessing: a sweetheart, wife, companion, friend, a help-meet, a woman! In the name of Jesus Christ, amen.

Published by the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day saints SLC, Utah--I am a child of God 1989 children's sacrament meeting presentation, P. 5:

...Heavenly Father loves us so much that he wants us to return to be with him someday. He wants us to live so that we can become kings and queens in his kingdom. Each one of us is important to him. To help us while we are on earth, Heavenly Father has given us many wonderful gifts. (Published by the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day saints SLC, Utah--I am a child of God 1989 children's sacrament meeting presentation, P. 5. [Praise to the Man was sung-Note: Some of the words: "Kings shall extol him, and nations revere." What type of nation, a nation of priests shall have his name for good, and what type of Kings will extol him, perhaps, those who receive the fulness of the priesthood and have much to him to be thankful for. "Faithful and true, he will enter his kingdom [can there be a kingdom without a king?], Crowned in the midst of the prophets of old.")

The following items have poorer source documentation than the main body of the compilation:

Adam was the natural father of his posterity, who were his family and over when he presided as patriarch, prophet, priest, and king. Both Abraham and Jacob stood in the same relationship to their families. (John Taylor, Times and Seasons 6:921.)

Members of the Church of the Firstborn:

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints who so devote themselves to righteousness that they receive the higher ordinances of exaltation become members of the Church of the Firstborn. Baptism is the gate to the church itself, but celestial marriage is the gate to membership in the Church itself, but celestial marriage is the gate to membership in the Church of the Firstborn, the inner circle of faithful saints who are heirs of exaltation and the fulness of the Father's kingdom. The Church of the Firstborn is made up of the sons of God, those who have been adopted into the family of the Lord, those who are destined to be joint-heirs with christ in receiving all that the Father hath. (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine p. 139.)

Presidents of Stakes to recommend for Second Anointings:

The Presidents of Stakes ar authorized to recommend aged and faithful persons to receive their second anointings, but no others have this authority to issue recommends for this purpose. (Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 17:94)

Anointing of Enoch:

And the Lord said to Michael; "Go and take Enoch from out his earthly garments, and anoint him with my sweet ointments, and put him into the garments of my glory.

And Michael did thus, as the Lord told him. He anointed me, and dressed me, and the appearance of that ointment is more than the great light, and his ointment is like sweet dew, and its smell mild, shining like the sun's ray and I looked at myself, and was like one of his glorious ones. (Secrets of Enoch" Vol 22:8-9.)

144,000 to Receive Second Anointings.

That the remnants of Israel shall be restored before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and that through the ordinances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priests, who administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. [D&C 77:9-11] (DNTC, Vol. 3, p. 429.)

[Priests and Priestesses perform the Saving Ordinances unto their posterity]

Each Man and Each Woman Respectively Adam and Eve:

In the Final Ordiance--The fulness of the Priesthood is where the Cycle Starts of One Eternal Round--The Man and the Woman is Prepared to Commence their Kingdom.

Notice that they are first made Kings and Queens. This signifies that they have a Kingdom. Now that they have a Kingdom they are next made a Priest and Priestess. This signifies that they have power over Nature or are Creators and Saviors of a posterity.

The Priestly Function is to Prepare the Kingdom to bring Spirits--Thus Adam Helps to Create the World.

The Priestess Prepares the Body of the Offspring and Washes it and anoints it in Water and Blood and the Child is innocent under her and clean every whit until 8 years old. This is a Creator Function.

The Father and Mother decide on a name and name their Child under the ordiance of the Priesthood.

The Parents are Elohem [man and woman] they create their offspring after their own image and place their children into a Terrestrial state where they provide for them and everything is given to them spontaneously.

Then the Parents want their Children to Become like them and the Children want to be like the parents. The Children notice that they are alone. They enter the Telestial world--the lone and dreary world and are driven toward the East because that is the direction of Father in heaven will come when all the Saving ordinances are accomplished.

The Father and Mother--King and Queen--Priest and Priestess start the Ordinances of Salvation.

Since the Mother Washed and Anointed the Child at birth the Father is now responsible to Wash the Child at 8 years of age.

The Father Washes and Confirms the Child for further Ordinances and give's his the gift of the Holy Ghost -- the God or Governor of the telestial kingdom to be their constant companion on their quest to eternal life and exaltation. This is the second kingdom of their Mortal existence they walk through.

They receive all the preparatory laws and ordinances from their Parents and commence the endowment at birth.

The become of age and Adam and Eve are prompted by the spirit to give them other sealing gifts of that of Patriarchal sealings, washings, anointings and blessings.

The incitory ordinances take place:

The Mother [Eve] Priestess--washes and anoints her Daughters with the Priestess and seals the washings and anointings of the body with health and posterity and the light of the Lord--and consummate this part of the ordiance by telling them that eventually they will be taken out of the Lone world and if faithful be called up and sealed to a man and be made a queen and Priestess to their Husbands where they can stare the eternal Circle of exaltation and be like there own parents and create their own offspring.

The Father does the Same to his sons...

Washing of Feet:

When Abraham after receiving the fulness of the priesthood they partook of bread and wine.

Inocent Blood:

The Lamanites in the Book of Mormon, when converted, would not take up arms or to shed innocent blood. After possibly receiving this ordinance [fullness of the Priesthood] they would not risk their salvation.

Calling and Election:

[1] Christ, the Priesthood, seales you or presents you.
[2] The H.G. seales you.
[3]The Voice of the Father says let him enter. Hand--you have part in the kingdom.

Point's of Fellowship--Highest to lowest:
Celestial: [1] The Father, Son, H.G., Your Spouce, and Yourself, Your Posterity. Six Points--or 5 Points of fellowship, same people named in the Celestial marriage cerimony.

[3] The Father, Son, H.G., Yourself, Others posterity. 4 points of fellowship--same people named at baptism.

Terrestrail Glory:

[1] The Son, H.G., and Yourself--Good and Honorable of the earth. 3 points of fellowship.

Telestial Glory:

[1] The H.G., and Yourself. 2 points of fellowship.

Perdition:

[1] Yourself--1 point of fellowship or darkness--no fellowship with anyone else with light.

Resurrection:

Baptism represents the resurrection. You are burried in the water. Your head is laid down in the west so that you can be brought up to the East to meet the Savior when he comes. Your Father or the Priesthood Proxy brings you up out of the grave symbolic of your Father, Husband or Priesthood Head bringing, lifting you up at the Resurrection. Foot to foot, Knee to knee, Hand to back, Hand to hand, and usually a hug is also associated at the end, and your father, who has already received all his ordiances and is the patriarchal head, symbolically says let them enter.
Also, the right hand forms the Squar, and the two people in the water also form a squar on there forearms--Which represents exactness and following the Law like Christ--Who you are becoming the Children of.

The resurrection is the Same:

If Baptism is symbolic of the Resurection then at the Veil--which represents death. The candidate in the Mason rite is in the laying down position as in baptism. It is our Father, husband or Priesthood head who raises us up from the Dead and performs this ordiance. Foot to Foot, Hand to back, knee to Knee, a hug is associated and the Priesthood head lifts their posterity or family up and says--let them enter.....

Marriage is the fullest Key to revelation if it is combined with all the other ordinances because the husband and wife are a complete unit and can receive all light, understanding, this is why this is life eternal to know the only true god and Jesus is in D&C 132. We can't know them unless we are a complete unit or one flesh. For that is what they are.

Breaking the Veil:

The prayer Circle is the Key to break the Veil and see the Father. It is the Place that one starts when the receive the 2nd anointing. It is here that we are instructed to be equal and jointly we can open the veil and see the Father. There can be no enmity between us we must be one even as the father and the Son are one. We all must have all the ordinances to open the veil and see the Father. This is why the Father doesn't come until the end of the Millennium.

Fulness of the Priesthood:
In the city of Enoch there was not poor among them. [This could also mean that all of the people received all the ordinances--then the veil could be rent, and the City taken up into heaven.]

INTRODUCTION

The first question probably asked by the reader as he starts this paper is, "Why write on an ordiance as sacred as the Second Anointing?" This is, of course, a legitimate question, and deserves an answer.

Although Second Anointings are confidential, there is a surprising amount of source material on it. This material includes official directions, statements, and instructions by the Church, other statements by General Authorities, and accounts in books, letters, diaries, and journals of individuals who have received their anointings. The very existence of the data, leads to the gathering and analysis of it. It is better, I feel, for an active and faithful Latter-day Saints to examine it, rather than allowing an anti-Mormon author to distort, expose, and sensationalize the ordinance.

It is also possible to assembly the data in a reasonable manner, and analyze it without transgressing the limits of propriety. This is possible, of course, because the material itself, in most cases, does not go beyond these limits. Understandably, individuals who received their anointings do not speak of write about their experience, except in the most appreciated manner. I have attempted to take care to not go beyond what is written, but have simply attempted to place the data in a logical format, which only gives a mere glimmer of this most holy ordinance.

A note on terminology:

Anyone who has conducted research on Second Anointings realizes that there is a bewildering variety of terms used to describe the ordinance. These terms include: anointings, second anointings, further anointings, last anointings, higher anointings, second blessings, highest blessings, special blessings, special ordinances, second endowments, etc. All of these terms, however, refer to the same ordinance, which is listed on Church records a "Second Anointings." With this understanding the reader should not be confused or puzzled by the variety of terms, used to indicate the ordinance, that appear in the quotations used in this paper.

PART ONE--THE RECOMMEND

The Recommend

As with other Temple ordinances those individuals who receive their Second Anointings must have a recommend. Ordinarily individuals secure Temple recommends by requesting interviews with their bishops and stake presidents. Persons cannot, however, request an interview for a recommend for Second Anointings, but they must wait for an invitation, a "call", to come forth and receive this ordiance. Joseph F. Smith gave specific instructions that "individuals selected [for Second Anointings] must not be informed until after the issue of such a recommend." (1) In no other ordiance of the Gospel is it more apparent that many are called, but few are chosen. Many Latter-day Saints request interviews, receive recommends, and obtain their Endowments and Sealings, but only a comparatively few of them receive the invitation to have their Second Anointings.

Apparently there is no special form for Second Anointing recommends; the usual Temple recommend form is used. In 1902 Joseph F. Smith directed a stake president that the "Name of the man and wife (or wives) to be anointed to him [are] to be placed on the usual recommend." (2)

However, under certain circumstances a formal, printed recommend is not necessary. A letter, or simply a note, from the President of the Chruch is sufficient. Joseph W. Musser wrote that he and his wife received their "Higher Anointings" upon the written invitation of President Lorenzo Snow. (3) President Wilford Woodruff wrote a "recommend" for his daughter and son-in-law, in which he stated, "This is to certify that I hereby recommend My Son in Law Ovando C. Beebee And His Wife My Daughter Clara Beebe Worthy of their Second Anointing..." (4) In 1886 President John Taylor wrote a letter to a woman, granting her request for Second Anointings to be administered to her deceased parents, and instructed, "By presenting this [letter] to Bro. M. W. Merrill he will have the Ordinance attended to." (5) Some Presidents also used telegrams. A telegram, sent to Karl G. Maeser informing him of his approval for Second Anointings from President Wilford Woodruff, is in existence. (6)

The Authority for Issuing the Recommend

The issuance of recommends for Second Anointings rests exclusively with the President of the Chruch. In 1891 President Wilford Woodruff directed that Temple recommends, issued by bishops, no longer required the signature of the President of the Chruch, "except Second Anointings, which last named will still require the approval of the President of the Church before they can be administered." (7) This policy remains in effect to this date: "Temple recommends for Second Anointings still require the signature of the President of the Chruch." (8)

Although the President of the Church approves those who receive Second Anointings, he also has the authority to delegate to others the right to nominate individuals for the ordinance. Some Presidents have allowed stake presidents to exercise this privilege. In 1887 President John Taylor approved the request of President L. W. Shurtliff for Second Anointings of a Brother E. G. Williams. (9) In 1889 President Wilford Woodruff directed that "the Presidents of Stakes were to be the judges of who were to receive them." (10) President Lorenzo Snow allowed stake presidents this privilege, (11) and stressed that they were to nominate only worthy individuals. (12) President Joseph F. Smith issued a circular, which included this statement, "Bishops are not to issue recommends for second anointings, this is the province of Presidents of Stakes, under approval of the President of the Chruch." (13) For a time President Heber J. Grant continued the practice of allowing stake presidents to nominate persons for their Second Anointings. In 1921 he wrote a letter, returning such recommends to a stake president, and included these instructions:

> Send each and every recommend direct to the President [of the Chruch,] not by the hand of anybody, the person recommended included. After the President returns the recommend to you bearing his signature of approval, it will then be in order for you to deliver it in person to the head of the family thus recommended. (14)

However, by 1926 President Grant rescinded the authority of stake presidents to issue Second Anointing recommends. In a letter to one stake president, under the date of January 30, 1926, he wrote, "Second Blessings are only given by the President of the Church upon recommendation of a member of the Council of the Twelve." (15) The reason for President Grant's break with tradition is not clear, but this policy of limiting the approval of Second Anointing recommends has apparently been continued by subsequent Presidents of the Chruch. In 1951 Stephen L. Richards of the Council of the Twelve, told Henry W. Richards, "Joseph F. Smith was a little too liberal with them [Second Anointings], some thought, and as a result Heber J. Grant gave them only to people who were General Authorities. George Albert Smith was liberal, and administered to some outside the General Authorities." (16)

An analysis of the limited amount of statistical data available confirms Elder Richards remarks. A report prepared in 1930 showed 14771 Second Anointings administered for the living between 1842 and 1929, or approximately 170 per year. (17) Between 1930 and 1935, there were only six Second Anointings performed for the living, or one per year. (18) In 1936 no Second Anointings were performed. (19) In 1937 two Second Anointings were administered for the living. (20) In 1938 Two other individuals received the ordiance. (21) In 1967 the foreman of the Salt Lake Temple stated that he had prepared the Holy of Holies for ordinance work only five times between 1955 and 1967. (22) Finally, in 1970 it was reported that thirteen Second Anointings were performed. (23)

Presently it is not clear if the Apostles still enjoy the privilege of nominating individuals for Second Anointings. Theodore M. Burton said that Second Anointings "are only given to a person when called by the First Presidency of the Church." (24) Heber Q. Hale, former President of the Boise Stake, stated in 1966 that Second Anointings were "only for the man and his wife who are asked and chosen by the President of the Chruch. Not even the apostles can select persons for that blessing." (25)

Qualifications of Individuals Recommended

Presidents of the Chruch, who have allowed stake presidents to nominate persons for Second Anointings, have given specific instructions concerning the qualifications of those to whom the ordinance is administered. In a priesthood meeting in 1901 Lorenzo Snow forcefully taught the responsibility of stake presidents in recommending only worthy individuals:

> After the opening exercises Prest. Lorenzo Snow spoke upon the Subject of giving Second Anointings. He said that this blessing brought a person to a greater knowledge of things pertaining to God and his purposes in the earth, that the glorious things of the kingdom were made clear to the understanding of the man. Therefore it would be a very serious thing for a man to apostatize after he had received this great blessing. He warned the Presidents of Stakes that they should exercise great care when giving recommends to those of his stake to receive these great blessings and should know by their work their integrity and devotion to the Gospel, for the responsibility would rest upon them if any were recommended unworthily or that apostatized. (26)

Joseph F. Smith stressed the following: "Integrity to work beyond question; for it would be very unfortunate to apostatize afterwards...Chief qualifications are worthiness, fitness and unshaken integrity." (27) In 1901 he taught:

> Elders should do something to be worthy to receive this great blessing and their [sic] are many ways out of the ordinary rutine [sic] duties by which a man could earn the good will of God to the obtaining of this blessing. Every man should be determined to place everything on the altar, even to the laying down of life itself for the gospel sake in order to be truly worthy of this blessing. (28)

Finally President Smith directed that Second Anointings should be given to those who have born "that heat and burden of the day, and endured faithfully to the end." (29)

Not only must individuals have unshakable integrity and enduring faith but they must also "have had endowments in [their] lifetime, and have been sealed and lived together faithfully as husband and wife." (30) Joseph F. Smith stressed that Second Anointings are only to be given to a married man and his wife or wives. (31)

Age was also a partial factor. Wilford Woodruff stated that Second Anointings "was an ordiance of the eternal world which belonged particularly to old men." (32) But Joseph F. Smith indicated that age alone did not disqualify a man, "Age [is] to be considered, but need not be "old" before receiving it." (33) Age as well as Church callings and positions often necessitate receiving the ordinance. Joseph F. Smith counseled stake presidents that those they nominated "need not be presiding men, but the presiding officers (Stake Presidents, High Council, Presidents of High Priests, etc.) should qualify." (34)

Among the other qualifications, mentioned by presidents of the Church, was the payment of a full tithe. Lorenzo Snow stressed:

> I do not want the presidents of stakes to send any person to our Temples to receive the highest blessings that have ever been bestowed upon man since the world began, until it can be said of him, "He pays his full tithing." (35)

With the nominating of persons for Second Anointings no longer within the area of authority of stake presidents, the worthiness of those who receive the ordinance rests exclusively within the determining spirit of the President of the Chruch.

PART TWO--THE PARTICIPANTS

Prior to the administration of the Second Anointing ceremony, the ordiance room is prepared by the Temple Foreman. (36)

There are, at a minimum, four men associated with administering Second Anointings. The man, under whose authority the ordinance is performed, is called either the Chief Officiator, or Administrator. (37) Because he gives the blessings, and other spoken portions of the ceremony, he is sometimes called the "Mouth," (38) or the one who speaks the words. (39) He is usually the President of the Church, a Counselor in the First Presidency, an Apostle, or a Temple President. (40)

Assisting the Chief Officiator is a man who holds the "horn of oil." (41) Not only is he charged with this responsibility, but he also instructs those who receive the ordiance about the second part of the ceremony. (42) He may, therefore, also be called the Instructor.

Two witnesses, who hold the Melchizedek Priesthood, complete the four necessary individuals to officiate in the Second Anointings. (43)

Those individuals who receive the ordiance may be called the candidates. They include a man and his wife or wives. (44) If any of the wives have died previous to the ordinance, proxies represent them in the ceremony. (45)

Normally Second Anointings are administered for the man and his wife (wives), with only the four officiator's and witnesses present. (46) When several couples were nominated at the same time by one stake president, Heber J. Grant directed that "in the interest of privacy you are requested not to send more than one family to the temple the same week bearing a recommend of this character." (47) When Heber Q. Hale was asked if Second Anointings were administered for a company or a group, he replied, "Oh no. Only for that man and his wife..." (48) President Grant also instructed the above stake president, that if "these blessings can be administered to each family recommended by you without other families so recommended knowing anything at all about it, you have my consent that the recommends be acted upon during the week of the visitation of yourself and people at the temple." (49)

Dress of the Participants

When Fanny Stenhouse received her Second Anointings she wrote that she and her husband's second wife went to the Endowment House, and dressed in "robes, caps and aprons--the same as when we received our first endowments." (50) After thus attired, the two women were escorted to the ordiance room by a man similarly clothed in Temple robes. In the room they met their "husband and several other brethren, all dressed the same way [i.e., in Temple robes]." (51)

Although all the participants in the Stenhouse Second Anointings were dressed in Temple robes, apparently it is not specifically required that all the participants dress in robes. Brigham Young taught that the couple to be anointed were "to be clothed in their Priestly robes...[but] the Administrator may dress in his usual clothing or in his Priestly robes, as he may see fit." (52) On another occasion President Young reiterated this policy to Wilford Woodruff, stating "their [sic] was no necessity of dressing in the Temple Clothing while giving the Second Anointing anymore that in administering the first anointing or ordaining." (53)

PART THREE--THE WASHINGS, ANOINTINGS AND BLESSINGS

The following sections consist of an organized survey of statements, gleaned from a wide variety of sources, by individuals who received their Second Anointings. I have also included some materials from official Church records. It is not my intention to sensationalize, expose, or in anyway demean the holy ordinance of Second Anointings, but rather to gather together what sources there are into an organized, and systematized overview of the ordiance. This will provide the essence, a glimmer at most, of the ordinance.

A Two Part Ceremony

The Second Anointing ceremony is divided into two parts. William H. Smart and his wife participated in the first part on May 31, 1901, and on June 20, 1901, they "attended to the second part of the ordinance of anointing." (54) Rhoda A. Fullmer and her husband received their Second Anointings on January 19, 1846, and on the next day they "attended to the last anointings." (55) Although some individuals experienced a delay of days, even weeks, between the two parts, others did not specifically mention such time lags in their diaries. This seems to suggest that the two parts can be performed within a short time, perhaps even on the same day, of each other.

Most sources indicate that the initial part of the ceremony is administered in the Temple. The first Temple, in which Second Anointings were performed, was at Nauvoo. According to John D. Lee, "There were about forty men who attained to that order of the priesthood." (56) Huly B. Kimball stated, that "there were 90 individuals that received their Second Anointings" in the Nauvoo Temple. (57) The two rooms at the northeast corner of the attic story were utilized for Second Anointings. (58) In a statistical summary of Temple ordinances, performed in the for Utah Temples between 1877 and 1898, Second Anointings were administered in all the Temples. (59) In these Temples the ceremony was performed in sealing rooms, (60) and the Holy of Holies in the Salt Lake Temple as well. (61)

Although the Temple is the most appropriate place for Second Anointings to be given, under special circumstances the ordinance can be administered in locations other than Temples. According to George A. Smith, Joseph Smith "taught that but one king and priest could be anointed at one meeting in a private room dedicated by permission to anoint in, and but one person could be anointed in a day, but in the Temple several could be anointed in a day." (62) Before the dedication of the Nauvoo Temple Second Anointings were administered in such "private" rooms, such as the Mansion House, the Red Brick Store, and Brigham Young's home. (63) But such practices were merely temporary until a proper edifice, the House of the Lord, could be prepared, dedicated and consecrated for administering the higher ordinances of the Gospel.

Opening the Meeting

Joseph Smith taught, that "in the Temple several [persons] could be anointed in a day, but at each anointing the meeting was dismissed, and then came together again." (64) Thus, each anointing of a man and his wife was a meeting distinct from any other Second Anointing service. Brigham Young stressed this same principle, "There should be but one man anointed at any one meeting. If more than one man is anointed in a day, they should come together and open by prayer as though their [sic] had hot been any meeting before and thus continue to the end." (65)

Each Second Anointing service commences with an opening prayer, after which the participants kneel around the altar in prayer, the individual offering the invocation kneeling at the altar. Following these preliminaries the participants offer the signs and tokens of the Priesthood. (66)

Preliminary Ordinances to the Anointing

Entries in a volume, recording Second Anointings administered in the Nauvoo Temple, (67) indicate that the rites and ceremonies performed prior to the anointings include those ordinances associated with the revelation on the School of the Prophets. (68) These ordinances include the so-called Holy Greeting, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and the Washing of Feet. (69)

The Holy Greeting, or Holy Salutation, consists of the following:

> Art thou a brother or brethern? I salute you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, in token or remembrance of the everlasting covenant, in which covenant I receive you to fellowship, in a determination that is fixed, immovable and unchangeable, to be your friend and brother through the grace of God in the bonds of love, to walk in all the commandments of God blameless, in thanksgiving, forever and ever. Amen. (70)

This gladsome salutation is offered with hands lifted towards heaven by the Officiator, and the recipient returns the salute in like manner, with hands lifted towards heaven, repeating the greeting, or simply replying, "Amen." (71)

Abraham H. Cannon mentioned that "the washing of feet" was part of his Second Anointing. (72) The purpose of the Washing of Feet is given in the Scriptures:

And ye shall not receive any among you into this school, save he is clean from the blood of this generation.

And he shall be received by the ordinance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted. (73)

When the Savior washed the feet of His Apostles, he stated that they, except Judas, were "clean every whit." (74) In this dispensation Joseph Smith instituted the same ordinance in 1833. On that occasion he "pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation, but if any of them should sin wilfully after they were thus cleansed, and sealed up to eternal life, they should be given over to the buffetings of Satan until the day of redemption." (75)

The scriptures indicate that the washing of feet is to be administered by "the president, or presiding elder of the church," and that he is "to gird himself according to the pattern given in the thirteen chapter of John's testimony." (76) One recipient of the ordinance left an account of the prayer used in the Washing of Feet:

In the name of Jesus and by the authority of the holy priesthood I wash your feet in accordance with the pattern set by our Lord Jesus Christ when he washed his disciples feet and told them to wash each others' feet, and also according to the pattern given by the Prophet Joseph Smith as an introductory ordiance to the School of the Prophets.

I pronounce you clean from the blood of this generation and say unto you, your sins are forgiven, and I seal upon you every blessing, gift, right, and authority pertaining to this holy ordinance, and I do it in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen. (77)

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is always associated with the Washing of Feet. In the scriptures the Lord directs that the ordinance of Washing of the Feet "is to be commenced with prayer; and ...with partaking of bread and wine." (78) Following the Washing of Feet, administered by Joseph Smith in 1833, the brethren closed with a sacramental feast of bread and wine, and they "ate and drank, and were filled." (79) In the Solemn Assembly, held in the Kirtland Temple in 1836, bearers of the Priesthood met to administer the Washing of Feet. They completed the sacred occasion by partaking of the Sacrament. (80) In Salt Lake City in 1852 a feast of "cakes and wine," following the anointings of several brethern and their wives. (81) In 1883, after the Washing of the Feet in a school of the > Prophets, "the sacrament was administered, consisting of bread and wine. Of the latter we partook of about one third of a tumbler full each and of the former as much as our appetite would prompt us." (82)

The Oil of Anointing

Olive oil is used for the Second Anointings. It is dedicated and consecrated especially for that purpose. In 1886 Samuel Roskelley noted that in the Logan Temple Joseph F. Smith and others dedicated twelve bottles of olive oil for "Anointings," and then the "same men blessed 6 bottles of oil for 2nd Anointings." (83)

The Anointing

In 1961 Alvin R. Dyer spoke concerning the initiatory ordinances of Washing and Anointing:

> I call your attention now to the washing and anointing that you received in the Temple.... When you went into the washing and anointing room, where you were washed and anointed with water and oil, you were given a new name, and you were promised that some day you would be called to be a king and priest; or a queen and priestess. (84)
> In the initiatory anointing men and women are promised, that, if they are faithful to the covenants made in the Temple, the time will come when they will actually be called up to be anointed kings and priests, or queens and priestesses, whereas in the initiatory anointing they are only promised to become such. Obviously there is then another, or second anointing, promised in the first anointing, which in essence fulfills the contingent blessings made in the first anointing. Hence, this is the reason it is called the "Second Anointing."

Fanny Stenhouse described briefly the Second Anointings, received by herself and her husband:

> We sat down and oil was then poured upon the head of our husband by two of the brethren--Daniel H. Wells and other--and he was ordained a King and Priest to all eternity. After that, we two wives were anointed in like manner, and ordained Queens and Priestess, to reign and rule with our husband over his kingdom in the Celestial world. (85)
> The blessings and promises, associated with the anointing, are manifold. Let us now turn to a brief discussion of the various blessings bestowed in the anointing.

Kings and Priests

As fanny Stenhouse described in her Second Anointing, the man is ordained a King and a Priest. Brigham Young taught that this is the main purpose for the ordiance, "The Administrator should anoint the man a King and Priest unto the Most High God." (86) No other General Authority has spoken as clearly as Orson Pratt on the nature and office of a King and Priest:

> The Kingly authority is not separate and distinct from the Priesthood, but merely a branch or portion of the same. The Priestly authority is universal, having power over all things; the Kingly authority until perfected is limited to the kingdoms placed under its jurisdiction: the former appoints and ordains the latter; but the latter never appoints and ordains the former: the first controls the Laws of Nature, and exercises jurisdiction over the elements, as well as over men; the last controls men only, and administers just and righteous laws for their government. Where the two are combined and the individual perfected, he has almighty power both as a King and as a Priest: both offices are merged into one. The distinctions then, will be merely in the name and not in the authority: either as a King or a Priest he will then have power and dominion over all things, and reign over all. Both titles, combined, will then not give him anymore power than either singly. It is evident that the distinctions of title are only expressive of the condition of things prior to the glorification and perfection of the persons who hold the Priesthood; for when they are perfected, they will have power to act in every branch of authority by virtue of the great and almighty, and eternal Priesthood, which they hold; they can then sway their scepters as Kings; rule as Princes, minister as Apostles, officiate as teachers; or act in the humblest or most exalted capacity. There is no branch of the Priesthood so low that they cannot condescend to officiate therein; nor so high, that they cannot reach forth the arm of power and control the same. (87)
> In this same article Orson Pratt stated that "The Saints receive the Priestly and Kingly office here in this life." (88) John the Revelator taught this same doctrine, that Jesus Christ "hast made us unto our God kings and priests." (89) Joseph taught the Saints "have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to God, the same as all Gods have done before you, namely, by going from one small degree to another and from a small capacity to a great one; from grace to grace, from exaltation to exaltation, until you attain to the resurrection of the dead, and are able to dwell in everlasting burnings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power." (90) Although it is necessary for men to learn to be kings and priests, Brigham Young pointed out, that "A person may be anointed a king and priest long before he receives his kingdom." (91)

Patriarchal Priesthood

Brigham Young indicated the patriarchal nature of the office of king and priest, when he said, "This is the order of the Kingdom of Heaven, that men should rise up as kings and priests unto God. We must have posterity to rule over." (92) George Miller, who received his anointings with others from the Prophet Joseph Smith, wrote, "Joseph washed and anointed us kings and priests to God, and over the House of Israel...and conferred on us the Patriarchal Priesthood." (93) After the Prophet gave his brother, Hyrum and his wife, their second anointings, he wrote, "My brother Hyrum and his wife were blessed, ordained, and anointed." (94) When speaking of James Adams, who received his anointings the same time as George

Miller, Joseph said, that he "anointed him to the patriarchal power-- to receive the keys of knowledge and power by revelation to himself." (95)

The appropriateness of the Patriarchal Priesthood, being bestowed during the Second Anointing, becomes clearer when we realize that the Priesthood held in the heavens is organized patriarchally. Joseph Fielding Smith explained, "The Patriarchal Priesthood will be the priesthood that will be held by all those worthy of exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom of God. for the whole plan of salvation and exaltation is based on the Patriarchal Order." (96) the following statement by Joseph Smith, when correlated with the above information, assumes greater significance, "The 2nd Priesthood is Patriarchal authority. Go to and finish the temple, and God will fill it with power, and you will then receive more knowledge concerning this priesthood." (97)

Keys of the Priesthood

John D. Lee wrote that his Second Anointings made him "an equal in the order of the priesthood, with the right to build up the kingdom in all the earth, and power to fill any vacancy that might occur." (98) This certainly agrees with the statement of Orson Pratt, that those ordained Kings and Priests can "act in the humblest or most exalted capacity," or that "There is no branch of the Priesthood so low that they cannot condescend to officiate therein; nor so high, that they cannot reach forth the arm of power and control the same." (99) Wilford Woodruff testified that the Twelve Apostles received from Joseph Smith "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things." (100) Orson Hyde wrote that "to us [the Twelve] were committed the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing." (101) Such statements are in harmony with the revealed word of the Lord that a Temple is built, "For therein are the keys of the holy priesthood ordained, that you [the Saints] may receive honor and glory." (102) Brigham Young indicated that some of the Saints actually received the keys of the kingdom in the Nauvoo Temple, "Such was the anxiety manifested by the Saints to receive the ordinances of Endowment & no less on our part to have them get the Keys of the Kingdom--that I gave myself up entirely to do the work of the Lord in the Temple." (103)

Blessings of Abraham Isaac, and Jacob

Orson Pratt pointed out that the works of the Father continue by mane living worthily, and becoming Kings and Priests:

> His works are without beginning and without end; they are one eternal round. What kind of works are they? They are to make creations; and people them with living beings; and place them in a condition to prove themselves; and to exercise the kingly and priestly office to redeem them, after they have suffered pain and sorrow and distress; and to bring them into the presence of God; that they may become kings and priests for other creations that shall be made; and that shall be governed and ruled over by those possessing the proper authority. (104)
> The Lord has revealed that there are certain promises associated with the works of the Father. In the latter-day revelation He said:

> Abraham received promises concerning his seed, and of the fruit of his loins...which were to continue so long as they were in the world; and as touching Abraham and his seed, out of the world they should continue; both in the world and out of the world should they continue as innumerable as the stars; or, if ye were to count the sand upon the seashore ye could not number them.
> This promise is yours also, because ye are of Abraham, and the promise was made unto Abraham; and by this law is the continuation of the works of my Father, wherein he glorifieth himself. (105)

The promises, given to Abraham, were continued by the Lord to his son, Isaac, and his grandson, Jacob or Israel. (106) Because these blessings pertain to the seed of the Patriarchs, the chosen House of Israel, they are often called the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. These blessings and promises are also extended to latter-day Israel:

> Who shall compare it with the Kingdom that God has promised unto us? He has promised us that we shall sit upon thrones, that we shall have crowns, and that we shall have a posterity as numerous as the stars in heaven, as countless as the sand upon the seashore; for he said, 'I seal upon you the blessings of kingdoms, of thrones, of principalities, of powers, and of dominions. I seal upon you the blessings of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob. I seal upon you the promise that you shall come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, clothed with glory, immortality, and eternal lives.' These are the promises that are made to the Latter-day Saints. The most of them have been sealed upon your heads. The Lord promised unto Abraham, that as the stars of the heaven were innumerable in multitude and as the sand on the seashore was countless, so his seed should be. That same promise has been sealed upon your heads, ye Latter-day Saints who have been faithful." (107)

The Holy Spirit of Promise

Joseph W. Musser wrote that he and his wife received "the Holy Spirit of Promise" at their Second Anointings. (108) The Lord revealed that a man, such as Hyrum Smith, can "hold the sealing blessings of the Church, even the Holy Spirit of Promise." (109) the Lord also revealed that "there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred." (110) Latter-day revelation teaches that to be sealed with the Holy Spirit of Promise, is to be "sealed up unto the day of redemption, that ye may not fall notwithstanding the hour of temptation that may come upon you." (111) Brigham Young taught that "When men and women have traveled to a certain point in their labors in this life, God sets a seal upon them that they can never forsake their God or His Kingdom; for rather than they should do this, He will at once take them to Himself." (112) The conditions of being sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, as recorded in revelation, are:

> And verily I say unto you, that the conditions of this law are these: All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, > vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations, that are not made and entered into and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, of him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity, and that too most holy, by revelation and commandment through the medium of mine anointed, whom I have appointed on the earth to hold this power (and I have appointed unto my servant Joseph to hold this power in the last days, and there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred), are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead. (113)

> Under this law, those sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, may commit "any sin or transgression of the new and everlasting covenant, and all manner of blasphemies, and if they commit no murder wherein they shed innocent blood, yet they shall come forth in the first resurrection and enter into their exaltation; but they shall be destroyed in the flesh, and shall be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption." (114) To such individuals, as Joseph Fielding Smith pointed out, "mere confession is not enough; the sinners are: 1--to 'be destroyed int he flesh'; and 2--to 'be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption.'" (115) To be destroyed in the flesh means exactly what it says. Since men's lives cannot be taken at this time for such sins, "What the Lord will do in lieu of this, because we cannot destroy in the flesh, I [Joseph Fielding Smith] am unable to say, but it will have to be made up in some other way." (116)

Although the chance of those sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise committing grievous sins, or remaining unrepentant from less serious transgressions, is always possible, the actuality of such an occurrence is not great. Alma observed, that those persons "after being sanctified by the Holy Ghost [sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise], having their garments made white, being pure and spotless before God, could not look upon sin, save it were with abhorrence." (117)

The position of Second Anointings in the sealing power of the Holy Spirit of Promise is made clear in this statement: "The Expectation of exaltation must be sealed unto you by the Holy Spirit of Promise--that most holy ordinance, the Second Anointing, must be sealed unto you by revelation and commandment through the medium of the Anointed One." (118)

The Morning of the First Resurrection

The scriptures make it clear that all men will be resurrected, "but every man in his won order." (119) Concerning this "order," the Savior said, that all men "shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." (120) These two resurrections are known as the resurrection of the just and unjust, or the first and last resurrections. (121) The nature of these two resurrections is indicated by Joseph Smith, that "some are raised to be angels, others to be Gods." (122)

Those destined to inherit the Celestial Kingdom "are they who shall have part in the first resurrection," and they "are priests and kings, who have received of his [God] fulness, and of his glory." (123) This resurrection is often called the "morning" of the first resurrection. Following this resurrection, those persons come forth who "have received their part in that prison which is prepared for them, that they might receive the gospel, and be judged according to men in the flesh." (124) These persons "are the honorable men of the earth, who were blinded by the craftiness of men," and they receive of God's "glory, but not of his fulness." (125) These individuals receive their bodies during the "afternoon" of the first resurrection, and they inherit the Terrestrial Kingdom. The morning and the afternoon of the first resurrection constitute the resurrection of the just.

After the resurrection of the just ends, the resurrection of the unjust commences. This resurrection begins with those who inherit a telestial glory. They are the "spirits of men who ar to be judged, and found under condemnation." (126) These are the wicked "who are thrust down into hell," and are not redeemed from the devil until the last resurrection." (127) This resurrection might properly be called the "evening" of the last resurrection. Finally, at the end of the resurrection the sons of perdition come forth. These "remain filthy still," and they "go away into everlasting punishment, which is eternal punishment, to reign with the devil and his angels in eternity." (128) This can be called the "night" of the last resurrection. The evening and the night of the last resurrection constitute the resurrection of the unjust.

Individuals who receive the Second Anointing, having been sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, have the Lord's decree that they "shall come forth in the first resurrection, and if it be after the first, in the next resurrection." (129) Indeed these very words are spoken to the candidate, "I seal upon you the promise that you shall come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, clothed with glory, immortality, and eternal lives." (130) But what of those persons, who receive their Second Anointings, are thereby sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, and are influenced by Satan to such a degree that they are "turned over unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption." Along with the wicked they must atone for their unrepentant sins, but, while the wicked come forth to a Telestial glory, those sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise come forth to receive that which was sealed upon their heads, even exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom. They come forth not "in the first resurrection" with the just, but in the "next resurrection" with the unjust, but receive their exaltation nonetheless. Orson Pratt explained this doctrine clearly:

> ...the Saint who has been sealed unto eternal life and falls into transgression and does not repent, but dies in his sins, will be afflicted and tormented after he leaves this vale of tears until the day of redemption; but having been sealed with the spirit of promise through the ordinances of the House of God, those things which have been sealed upon his head will be realized by him in the morning of the resurrection. (131)

Godhood and the Godhead

Those who come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, having received the seal of the Holy Spirit to stand as kings and priests unto the Most High, "shall pass by the angels and the gods, which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things, as hath been sealed upon their heads, which shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever...Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (132) Such is the promise contained in the Second Anointing!

Not only is this promise of Godhood available to those who are faithful, but even weightier blessings can be bestowed upon the very elect in mortality. Brigham Young spoke of such blessings, when he said, "We talk a great deal about our religion...It is the only system known in heaven, or on the earth that can exalt a man to the Godhead." (133) President Young explained how men can achieve this great promise:

> The Lord has led this people all the while in this way, by giving them here a little and there a little, and thus he increases their wisdom, and he that receives a little and is thankful for that shall receive more and more, even unto the fulness of the Godhead. (134)

When the assurance of the Godhead is given to a man in mortality, by a man having the keys, power and authority of this priesthood, that promise will be recorded and recognized by God. George Q. Cannon testified, "When he [Brigham Young] sealed a man unto eternal life, he bestowed upon him the blessings pertaining to eternity and to the Godhead, or when he delegated others to do it in his stead, God in the eternal world recorded the act." (135) Thus in this life, while some may be anointed and sealed to Godhood, others may receive the assurance of even greater blessings, even that of the Godhead. (136)

Closely associated with the blessings and promises of the Second Anointing, is the promise of the Second Comforter, who is Jesus Christ. A patriarchal blessing indicates such a relationship, "Thou shalt go into the Temple of the Lord, the place called the Holy of Holy and converse with angels and be crowned a queen by the hand of you Redeemer, and thy companion a king and priest." (137) Another patriarchal blessing states, "Thou shalt officiate in the Holy Temples of the Lord for the dead and for the keys of the holy washing and anointings and by prayer of faith, God will send the second comforter to build thee up and strengthen thee in the hour of need." (138)

Henry W. Richards stated that the President of the Church calls in the candidates and tells them they "may or may not receive the visitation of Christ then and there, just as with the First Comforter;" he also added that the Savior will eventually appear to them, "just as [they] may or may not receive the Holy Ghost at confirmation, but [they] will, when prepared, see Christ in the Holy of Holies." (139) It is appropriate that in the Holy of Holies in the Salt Lake Temple there "is a window of colored glass depicting the appearance of the Eternal Father and His Son Jesus Christ to the boy Joseph Smith." (140) Beneath this window appears the significant statement, "This is my Beloved Son, hear Him." This window, beautifully symbolizes, the statement of Joseph Smith, "than when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear to him from time to time, and even He will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the Kingdom of God." (141)

Women and the Second Anointing

All the blessings and ordinances of the Gospel, except ordinations to the Priesthood, are equally available to women, as well as men. James E. Talmage explained:

> It is a precept of the Church that women of the Church share the authority of the Priesthood with their husbands, actual or prospective; and therefore women whether taking the endowment for themselves, or for the dead, are not ordained to a specific rank in the Priesthood. Nevertheless there is no grade or rank or phase of the temple endowment to which women are not eligible on an equality with men. True, there are certain of the higher ordinances to which an unmarried women cannot be admitted, but the rule is equally in force as to the bachelor. (143)
> This last sentence refers, of course, to the Second Anointing, as noted previously in this paper.

While men are ordained Kings and Priests in the Second Anointing, their wives are anointed and ordained Queens and Priestesses. Brigham Young directed that the Administrator, following the anointing of the husband, "should anoint his wife or wives Queens and Priestesses unto her husband." (144) Fanny Stenhouse wrote that happened in her Second Anointing: "After that [the anointing of her husband] we two wives were anointed in like manner, and ordained Queens and Priestesses, to reign and rule with our husband over his kingdom in the celestial world." (145) In connection with their husbands wives become full partakers in all the rights, powers, blessings, and promises of the Second Anointing.

In passing it should be noted, that when a man has more than one wife, the women are anointed in the order of their marriages. Abraham H. Cannon wrote, "I then received mine [anointings] and my wives followed in the order of their marriages." (146) Frederick Kessler noted that his two wives received their anointings to "Regular Order." (147)

Sealing the Washings and Anointings

Apparently the sealing of the Second Anointing is done over the altar. Although later descriptions of the Holy of Holies do not indicate the presence of an altar in the room, a description of the room, printed in 1893, specifically mentions that the altar in the Holy of Holies in the Salt lake Temple is "rich." (148) During his Second Anointing, Heber Q. Hale stated, "We knelt on opposite sides of the altar, and President [Joseph F.] Smith at the end gave us our second blessings." (149) Brigham Young directed that during the sealings "the man [should] be upon the right hand [of the altar] and the wive or wives upon the left hand." (150)

The Garments of the Holy Priesthood

Individuals who receive their initiatory washings and anointings, and the endowment covenant to henceforth wear a special undergarment. In the scriptures this garment is symbolically called the "shield of faith wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." (151) As such it is often called the Garment of the Holy Priesthood. Embroidered "marks" are sown on the garment "to remind the wearers of their temple obligations." (152) In a 1936 report to the First Presidency four Apostles recommended "that a definition be given in the temple of the symbolism and significance of the various marks in the garment." (153) The four brethern suggested that the marks be described as follows:

> The Square: Honor, integrity, loyalty, trustworthiness;
> The compass; An undeviating course in relation to truth, desires should be kept within proper bounds;
>
> The Navel: that the spiritual life needs constant sustenance;
>
> The Knee: Reverence for God, the source of divine guidance and inspiration. To this last one might be added that which is now in use: That every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Jesus is the Christ. (154)
>
> Herman R. Bangerter described further the symbolic significance of these marks:
> These symbols were often abbreviated: By taking an angle from the square we have an L, or the sign of the square; and angle from the interlaced triangle gives us a V, or the sign of the compass; and the merging of the physical and spiritual is symbolized by the X, which is often written -, or the line... If we write them out we have the Latin word "LVX," which means light. If they are arranged in the form of the spiritual triangle with the point downward, we have the symbol of spiritual light, which is pure intelligence. If an individual is worthy of wearing this symbol on his breastplate, and continues faithfully in the service of the Master, he will receive the SPIRITUAL LIGHT, which will enable him on her to unite the physical and the spiritual, and through the process of Divine Alchemy, change the mortal corruptible body into the Celestial Eternal Body and thereby have eternal life.
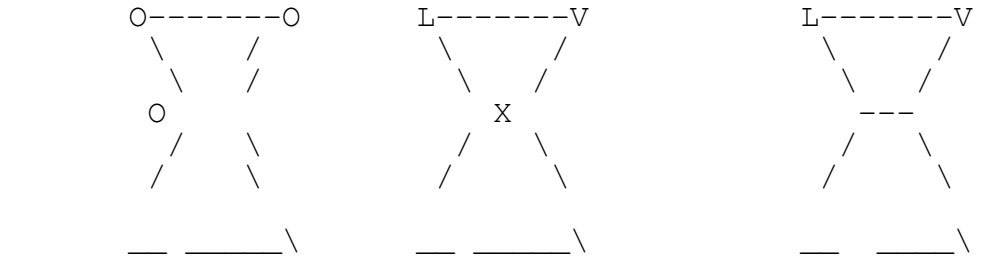
> Whenever an individual consecrates his life to the service of God and to his fellowmen, he brings the points of the triangles together thus; which is preparatory to uniting them in the interlaced triangles, as they continue onward through a life of faithful service. (155)



As Herman Bangerter noted above, individuals who receive their endowments, wear the above symbols on their garments, "preparatory to uniting them in the interlaced triangles." Since the above symbols are associated with the initiatory ordiance and the endowment, we would expect that there would be an alteration of the marks, following the Second Anointing, which would indicate the new status of the candidate.

Bangerter alluded to this very change:

> Whenever individuals are initiated into the mysteries of Godliness they then strive to bring into their beings that principle of balance which is symbolized by the lesser Seal of Solomon, in the five pointed star. After meditation and instruction, they become adepts, and finally after mastering the Mysteries of the Kingdom, they become true priests, or priestesses after the Order of Melchizedek, as Masters of Spiritual Laws, by which they advance to the six-pointed star, or the Great Seal of Solomon, wherein the physical and spiritual become inseparably connected, in the Celestial Kingdom of Eternal Life. (156)

Not only is the six-pointed star, or the Seal of Solomon, significant in relationship to the Second Anointing, but the circle has equal symbolic meaning int he ordinance, because it "is the universal symbol of eternal life," (157) which is the promised blessing associated with the Second Anointing. Thus, it is not without significance that the Holy of Holies in the Salt Lake Temple, the room in which Second Anointings are properly administered, and the room which "is reserved for the higher ordinances in the priesthood," is "of circular outline, eighteen feet in diameter." (158) Of equal importance is the floor of the Holy of Holies, which is composed of "native hard-wood blocks, each an inch in cross-section." (159) These blocks are inlaid in the beautiful depiction of the six-pointed star, or Seal of Solomon. (160)

The Instructions and Closing the Meeting

Following the ordinances, the Assistant who holds the Horn of Holy Anointing Oil, also known as the Instructor, gives instructions to the male candidate and his wife, concerning the second part of the ceremony. Abraham H. Cannon noted that "the ordinance of washing of feet was explained by Br. McAllister, after the anointing had been given." (161) In the Second Anointing of William H. Smart, he noted that "Elder Madsen instructed us." (162) The meeting is then closed with prayer.

PART FOUR -- THE LAST ANOINTINGS

The second part of the Second Anointing, takes place with only the husband and wife participating. Following the instructions, given int he Temple during the Second anointing ceremonies, the couple meet to attend "to the last anointings, that of the feet." (163) William H. Smart briefly described the nature of the "last anointings" in his diary:

> This evening from about 9:30 to 12 O.C. my wife and I attended to the second part of the ordinance of second anointings. We besides the ordinance itself sang 'We thank thee O God for a prophet,' conversed concerning our duties t each other and the children, read John XII:1-8 verses, read the Rev[elation] on the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant, Section 132. We dedicated the room for the purpose of the meeting. Closed by singing: 'Oh my father thou that dwellest.' Ann was mouth in preliminary prayer I gave the dedicatory prayer and benediction. (164)

John 12:1-8 records the washing of the Savior's fee by Mary, which was done "against the day of my burying." When this ceremony was administered by Vilate Kimball to Heber C. Kimball, they left a written record, attesting to the fact:

> April 1st 1844 I heber C. Kimball, received the washing of my feet and was anointed by my wife, Vilate, for my burial, that is my feet, head and stomach, even as Mary did jesus, that she might have claim on him in the resurrection.
> I, Vilate Kimball, do hereby certify that on the first day of April, 1844, I attended to washing and anointing of my dear companion, Heber C. Kimball, that I may have a claim on him in the morning of the first resurrection.
> Vilate Kimball. (165)

PART FIVE -- WORDS OF WISDOM AND CAUTION

The Apostle Paul wrote that members of the Church should not be satisfied with only the first ordinances of the Gospel, but they should strive towards perfection, "Therefore not leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and faith toward God. Of the doctrine of baptisms, of the laying on of hands, and of the resurrection of the dead, and of the eternal judgment. And we will go on unto perfection if God permit." (166)

Joseph Fielding Smith taught that if we desire to achieve exaltation, we must not be satisfied with only part of the ordinances, but we must make ourselves worthy to obtain all the ordinances of the Gospel:

> We are all members of the Chruch of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints by being baptized and confirmed, and there are many who seem to be content to remain such without obtaining the privileges of exaltation. The Lord has made it possible for us to become members of the Church of the First Born by receiving the blessings of the House of the Lord and 'overcoming all things.' Thus we become heirs, 'priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory,' who shall 'dwell in the presence of God and his Christ forever and ever,' with full exaltation. (167)

Brigham Young and his Counselors also cautioned the Saints not to be quickly satisfied, after having received a few of the ordinances of the House of the Lord:

> Think not, O ye Elders of Israel! that your eternal heirship is won, and immutably secured, because you have attained to a portion of the Holy Priesthood, and a few of its initiating ordinances, while as yet your life and security of all your great and glorious blessings in hop and prospects, are as a vapor before the sun; as yet depending wholly on your meekness, faithfulness, and perseverance to the end, in everything good. Think not that you are legally entitled to even one wife, while you live on this earth unless you are sealed up to everlasting lives, by the will and decree of the Eternal Father, and a knowledge of the fact has been communicated to you, through the proper source, and not direct, to you in person. And consider that the blessings you have hitherto received, through the mercies of Him who loveth you, even your Father in heaven, will all be wrested from, like David's of ole, should you err like him. (168)

But even to those, who have received their Second Anointings, Charles W. Penrose, cautioned them not to boast of this, lest they loose that to which they have been sealed:

> We cannot speak too emphatically on this subject to our brethren who are on missions, by way of caution against the infraction of their covenants, and in condemnation of those who do this for the purpose of impressing others with their self-importance when they boast of having received 'the highest blessings,' conveying the idea that they are more advanced in those things than some of their fellow laborers. 'The secrets of the Lord are with them that fear him,' and they who do not 'fear him' sufficiently to keep to themselves that which was only intended for them and which they are forbidden to make known to others, prove themselves unworthy to receive the fulfillment of the promise of God to 'crown them with honor, immortality, and eternal life. (169)

Finally in closing this paper I must stress this fact. While the Second Anointing is extremely important in the road which leads to exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom, we must not be overly concerned if we do not receive this ordinance before we die. In a letter to the author Bruce R. McConkie wrote:

> ...every person who lives worthy to receive a blessing, which for reasons beyond his control does not come to him in this life, will receive the blessing in eternity. No one will ever be denied any reward in eternity that he would have received here had the opportunity to get it here been afforded him. (170)

Elder McConkie stated a true principle. If, through no fault on our part, we are not permitted to obtain the blessings, covenants, promises, ordinances, or any necessary elements of the Plan of Salvation during our mortal estate, we will not be penalized for it in the next estate. This same principle was revealed to Joseph Smith:

> All who have died without a knowledge of this Gospel, who would have received it if they had been permitted to tary, shall be heirs of the celestial kingdom of God; also all that shall die henceforth without a knowledge of it, who would have received it with all their hearts, shall be heirs of that kingdom, for I, the Lord will judge all men according to their works, according to the desires of their hearts. (171)

At the end of the above letter form Bruce R. McConkie to the author, he wrote, "...none of us need to have anxieties about what happens or does not happen in the administration of the ordinances." (172) Men shall receive the necessary ordinances when it is required for their advancement. Nonetheless we should always strive to live worthily, and be prepared to receive any of the ordinances at any time.

A COMPILATION OF QUOTATIONS ON SEER STONES, THE URIM & THUMMIM AND OTHER SACRED OBJECTS

COMMENTARIES

Documentary History of the Church, 1:110; Joseph Smith; September 26, 1830.

Sept. 26, 1830: To our great grief, however, we soon found that Satan had been lying in wait to deceive, and seekng whom he might devour. Brother Hiram Page had in his possession a certain stone, by which he had obtained certain `revelations' concerning the upbuilding of Zion, the order of the Church, etc., all of which were entirely at variance with the order of God's house, as laid down in the New Testament, as well as in our late revelations. As a conference meeting had been appointed for the 26th day of September, I thought it wisdom not to do much more than to converse with the brethren on the subject, until the conference should meet. Finding, however, that many--especially the Whitmer family and Oliver Cowdery--were believing much in the things set forth by this stone, we thought best to inquire of the Lord concerning so important a matter.

During the last week in September of 1830, a conference was held at Fayette. There were only sixty-two members of the Church at that time. At the conference much was said about Hiram [Page's] peepstone. He acknowledged his error and promised to be loyal to his leader and cease consulting the stone for guidance. Oliver Cowdery had apologized for his course and so Hiram was re-instated in the good graces of his leader. The Page `peepstone' however, has been preserved as a souvenir in the Archives of the Reorganized Church. The writer was permitted to examine it. It is a flat stone about seven inches long, four wide and one quarter inch in thickness. It is dark gray in color with waves of brown and purple across the surface. A small hole has been drilled through the end of it as if a string had been threaded through it. It is simply impressive enough to make a good paper weight, yet it became a tool through which the adversary attempted to stir up strife and create a schism in the Church. Hiram E. Page had received spurious infomation about the building up of Zion, which was a popular theme with the little flock.

Spoken at the house of Benjamin Brown, New York State. Related by Lorenzo Brown, "Joseph Smith, Jr. Papers," Church Historian's Library, Salt Lake City, Utah; 1832. After I got through translating the Book of Mormon, I took up the Bible to read with the Urim and Thummim, I read the first chapter of Genesis, and I saw the things as they were done. I turned over the next and the next, and the whole passed before me like a grand panorama; and so on chapter after chapter until I read the whole of it. I saw it all! Then I think of the sectarian priests boasting of what they know. Why I have forgotten a thousand times more than they know.

Abraham sought the Lord diligently, and finally he had given unto him a Urim and Thummim, in which he was enabled to obtain a knowledge of many things that others were ignorant of. I think the meaning of the name of this instrument is Light and Perfection, in other terms, communicating light perfectly, and intelligence perfectly, through a principle that God has ordained for that purpose.

Evening and Morning Star; W. W. Phelps; 1833.

It [the Book of Mormon] was translated by the gift and power of God, by an unlearned man, through the aid of a pair of Interpreters, or spectacles--(known, perhaps in ancient days as Teraphim, or Urim and Thummim).

Joseph Knight, Sr.; untitled and undated manuscript in LDS Church Archives written between the last date of entry mentioned in the manuscript, 1833, and Knight's death in 1847. Typed as in original.

Joseph says when can I have it [the Nephite Record] the answer was the 22nt Day of September next if you bring the right person with you Joseph says who is the right person the answer is your oldest Brother But before September Came his oldest Brother Died [Alvin died 19 November 1823] then he was disappointed and did not [k]now what to do but when the 22nt day of September came he went to the place and the personage appeared and told him he could not have it now But the 22nt day of September next he might have the Book if he brot with him the right person Joseph says who is the right person the answer was you will know then he looked in his glass and found it was Emma Hale daughter of old Mr. Hale of Pennsylvany. * * *

Now the way he [Joseph Smith] translated was he put the urim and thummim into his hat and Darkened his Eyes then he would take a sentence and it would appear in Brite Roman Letters then he would tell the writer and he would write it then that would go away the next Sentence would Come and so on.

The Susquehanna Register; Isaac Hale; 1 May 1834. The manner in which he [Joseph Smith] . . . read and interpret[ed] was . . . with a stone in his hat, and his hat over his face, while the Book of Plates were at the same time hid in the woods.

Messenger and Advocate; vol 1, p. 14; Oliver Cowdery; Oct. 1834.

These were days never to be forgotten--to sit under the sound of a voice dictated by the inspiration of heaven. . . . Day after day I continued uninterrupted to write from his mouth, as he translated with the Urim and Thummim, or, as the Nephites would have said, "Interpreters," the history or record, called "The Book of Mormon."

--27--I met with the Twelve at brother Joseph's. He covered ["conversed" in Millennial Star] with us in a familiar manner on a variety of subjects, and explained to us the Urim and Thummim which he found with the plates, called in the Book of Mormon the Interpreters. He said that every man who lived on the earth was entitled to a seer stone, and should have one, but they are kept from them in consequence of their wickedness, and most of those who do find one make an evil use of it; he showed us his seer stone.

He [Joseph Smith] said in time of war the Nephites had the advantage of their enemies by looking in the seer stone which would reveal whatever they wished to know. I believe a peepstone is one of the same piece with the Urim and Thummim, if we understood it.

God and the planet where he dwells is like crystal, and like a sea of glass before the throne. This is the great Urim & Thummim whereon all things are manifest both things past, present & future and are continually before the Lord. The Urim & Thummim is a small representation of this globe. The earth when it is purified will be made like unto crystal and will be a Urim & Thummim whereby all things pertaining to an inferior kingdom or all kingdoms of a lower order will be manifest to those who dwell on it, and this earth will be with Christ[.] Then the white stone mentioned in Rev. c2 v17 is the Urim & Thummim whereby all things pertaining to an higher order of kingdoms even all kingdoms will be made known and a white stone is given to each of those who come into this celestial kingdom, whereon is a new name written which no man knoweth save he that receiveth it. The new name is the key word.

Under date of June 21, 1892, Sister Sarah M. Kimball signed her name to the following statements: "At a Relief Society Meeting held April 28, 1842, I heard the Prophet Joseph make the statement. `While other leading men of the Church have been unrighteously aspiring, Heber C. Kimball has been true and is to me what John was to Jesus, my beloved disciple.' Bro. Kimball showed me a rod that the Lord through the Prophet Joseph had given to him. He said that when he wanted to find out anything that was his right to know, all he had to do was to kneel down with the rod in his hand, and that sometimes the Lord would answer his questions before he had time to ask them." My mother and my sister, Helen Marr, told me the same thing and added to it, that Pres. Young received a similar rod from the Lord at the same time. They claimed that these rods were given to them because they were the only ones of the original Twelve who had not lifted up their heels against the Prophet.

June 2nd came to Nauvoo and on the 3rd was raised to a master mason. Not far from the 20th of June the well known Mormon War, or it is so termed commenced which ended in the death of the Prophet and Patriarch, Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

About a week before their death I went with a company from the Morley settlement to Nauvoo in defense of our brethren.

The Sunday before their death the troops were all disbanded, and I with the rest returned home. I shall always mourn that I did not stay and have the privilege of seeing those martyrs [Joseph and Hyrum] after they were slain. However I afterwards succeded in getting a cain out of the box in which Joseph was brought to Nauvoo in from Carthage.

Before leaving Nauvoo, he [Wilford Woodruff] paid a visit to Emma Smith to whose life he sought to bring consolation in the hour of her bereavment. She gave him a piece of oak for a staff. The oak had been taken from Joseph's coffin. She also presented him with a pair of white cotton gloves, and to his wife she gave a handkerchief. He and Mrs. Woodruff next called upon Mary Smith, widow of Hyrum, and mother of President Joseph F. Smith. She gave Elder Woodruff several small locks of hair taken from the heads of Joseph, Hyrum, Samuel, and Don Carlos, all brothers who had passed away into the other world. Speaking of these relics Elder Woodruff says: "I also obtained some hair of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles. My purpose in getting it was that I might put a part of each of these collections in the knob of my staff as a relic of those noble men, the master spirits of the nineteenth century." These relics he held as something sacred during his life time, and they are now in the possession of his family.

This church has been led by revelation, and unless we forsake the Lord entirely, so that the priesthood is taken from us, it will be led by revelation all the time. The question arises with some who has the right to revelation? I will not ascend any higher than a priest, and ask the priest what is your right? You have the right to receive the administration of angels. If an angel was to come to you and tell you what the Lord was going to do in this day, you would say you had a revelation. The president of the priests has a right to the Urim and Thummim, which gives revelation. He has the right of receiving visits from angels. Every priest then in the church has the right of receiving revelations. Every member has the right of receiving revelations for themselves, both male and female. It is the very life of the church of the living God, in all ages of the world. The Spirit of Truth is sent forth into all the world to reprove the world of sin and unrighteousness, and of a judgment to come. If we were here today and had never heard this gospel, and a man was to come bounding into our midst, saying, he had come to preach the gospel, to tell us that God was about to restore the priesthood, and save the people, etc., it would be your privilege, and my privilege to ask God in the name of Jesus Christ, as individuals, concerning this thing, whether it was of God, and get a testimony from God that it was true, and this would be revelation. Let us take some of these old fathers for an example, they have heard the gospel, they have been baptized, etc., had hands laid on them for the gift of the Holy Ghost---he has got a family of children, he has been led all his days by his own spirit, but now begins to come to understand he has the right to bow before the Lord and receive instruction from God, from day to day, how to manage his family, his farm, his merchandise, and to govern all the affairs of his house. I will take some of my younger brethren who have received the gospel, they have been ordained an elder to hold the keys, etc. What is your privilege? It is your privilege to go and preach the gospel to the world, and to go by the power of the Holy Ghost, and you have no right to go without it. You have been ordained to go forth and build up the kingdom to a certain extent. No man ever preached a gospel discourse, nor ever will, unless he does it by revelation. You will do it by the Holy Ghost, or when you tell the history of the gospel, the gospel will not be there. It has got to be done by revelation or the gospel you have not got, and when you preach, the people will still be left without the gospel. There never was a prophet on the earth that dictated to the people, but he dictated their temporal affairs as well as spiritual. It is the right of an individual to get revelations to guide himself. It is the right of the head of a family to get revelations to guide and govern his family.

Stewart's mission - which will appear hereafter - he in connection with Bro. W. I wrote with my own pen, the entire Book of Mormon [save a few pages], as it fell from the lips of the Prophet Joseph Smith, as he translated it by the gift and power of God, by means of the Urim and Thummim, or as it is called by that book, "holy interpreters". That of which I spoke, which Joseph termed a key, was indeed, nothing more nor less than the Urim and Thummim, and it was by this that the angel showed him many things which he saw in vision; by which also he could ascertain, at any time, the approach of danger, either to himself or the Record, and on account of which he always kept the Urim and Thummim about his person. * * *

[After Martin Harris had lost the 116 pages of completed Book of Mormon manuscript, Lucy Mack Smith said that Moroni appeared to Joseph and demanded the return of the Nephite interpreters. The Prophet responded:] "I did as I was directed, and as I handed them to him, he remarked, `If you are very humble and penitent, it may be you will receive them again; if so it will be on the twenty-second of next September [1828].' After the angel left me I continued my supplications to God, without cessation, and on the twenty-second of September, I had the joy and satisfaction of again receiving the Urim and Thummim, with which I have again commenced translating, and Emma writes for me."

It was about the size but not the shape of a hen's egg.

How much would you give for even a cane that Father Abraham had used, or a coat or ring that the Savior had worn? The rough oak boxes in which the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum were brought from Carthage, were made into canes and other articles. I have a cane made from the plank of one of those boxes, so has Brother Brigham and a great many others, and we prize them highly and esteem them a great blessing. I want to carefully preserve my cane, and when I am done with it here I shall hand it down to my heir, with instructions to him to do the same. [FOOTNOTE: This cane is now (1888) in the possession of Bishop Abram A. Kimball, who testifies that healing virtues attach to it.] And the day will come when there will be multitudes who will be healed and blessed through the instrumentality of those canes, and the devil cannot overcome those who have them, in consequence of their faith and confidence in the virtues connected with them. . . .

If I had those relics of Abraham and the Saviour which I have mentioned, I would give a great deal for them. In England, when not in a situation to go, I have blessed my handkerchief, and asked God to sanctify it and fill it with life and power, and sent it to the sick, and hundreds have been healed by it; in like manner I have sent my cane. Dr. Richards used to lay his old black cane on a person's head, and that person has been healed through its instrumentality, by the power of God. I have known Joseph, hundreds of times, send his handkerchief to the sick, and they have been healed. There are persons in this congregation who have been healed by throwing my old cloak on their beds.

Joseph had a stone which was dug from the well of Mason Chase twenty-four feet from the surface. In this stone he could see many things to my certain knowledge. * * *

In the first place, he told me of this stone, and proposed to bind it on his eyes, and run a race with me in the woods. A few days after this, I was at the house of his father in Manchester, two miles south of Palmyra village, and was picking my teeth with a pin while sitting on the bars. The pin caught in my teeth and dropped from my fingers into shavings and straw. I jumped from the bars and looked for it. Joseph and Northrop Sweet also did the same. We could not find it. I then took Joseph on surprise, and said to him--I said, "Take your stone." I had never seen it, and did not know that he had it with him. He had it in his pocket. He took it and placed it in his hat--the old white hat--and placed his face in his hat. I watched him closely to see that he did not look to one side; he reached out his hand beyond me on the right, and moved a little stick and there I saw the pin, which he picked up and gave to me. I know he did not look out of the hat until after he had picked up the pin. * * *

[The lenses of the Urim and Thummim] were about two inches in diameter, perfectly round, and about five-eighths of an inch thick at the centre. . . . They were joined by a round bar of silver, about three-eighths of an inch in diameter, and about four inches long, which with the two stones, would make eight inches. * * * [They were] white, like polished marble, with a few grey streaks. * * *

Joseph had before this described the manner of his finding the plates. He found them by looking in the stone found in the well of Mason Chase. The family had likewise told me the same thing.

Journal of Discourses, Vol 9, p. 86; Brigham Young; May 7, 1861.

What are the privileges of a bishop? Has he the privilege of the administration of angels? Yes; this belongs to the lesser Priesthood. Has he the privilege of using the Urim and Thummim? Yes. The breastplate of Aaron that you read of in the scriptures was a Urim and Thummim, fixed in bows similar to the one Joseph Smith found. Aaron wore this Urim and Thummim on his breast, and looked into it like looking on a mirror, and the information he needed was there obtained. * * *

This earth, when it becomes purified and sanctified, or celestialized, will become like a sea of glass; and a person, by looking into it, can know things past, present, and to come; though none but celestialized beings can look into the earth, and the things they desire to know will be exhibited to them, the same as the face is seen by looking into a mirror.

Statement by Elizabeth Ann Whitmer; original not available; cited in William McLelllan letter to "My Dear Friends"; Independence, Missouri; RLDS Church Archives; February 1870.

I cheerfully certify that I was familiar with the manner of Joseph Smith's translating the Book of Mormon. He translated the most of it at my Father's house. And I often sat by and saw and heard them translate and write for hours together. Joseph never had a curtain drawn between him and his scribe while he was translating. He would place the director in his hat, and then place his face in his hat, so as to exclude the light.

now the first that my husband translated was translated by the use of the Urim and Thummim, and that was the part that Martin Harris lost. On Sunday, Sept. 4, 1870, Martin Harris addressed a congregation of Saints in Salt Lake City. He related an incident which occurred during the time that he wrote that portion of the translation of the Book of Mormon which he was favored to write direct from the mouth of the Prophet Joseph Smith, and said that the Prophet possessed a seer stone, by which he was enabled to translate as well as from the Urim and Thummim, and for convenience he then used the seer stone.

Noah, after having preached the Gospel and published glad tidings among the nations, was commanded to build an ark. He had a Urim and Thummim by which he was enabled to discern all things pertaining to the ark and its pattern.

The Most High says: "I deign to reveal unto you hidden things, things that have been kept hid from the foundation of the world." Among these hidden things that are to be revealed are the books of genealogy, tracing individuals and nations among all people, back to ancient times.

It may be inquired: "How can all this be done?" We answer, by the Urim and Thummim, which the Lord God has ordained to be used in the midst of his holy house, in his Temple.

Just as fast as we are able to administer for them, so will the Lord God make manifest, by the manifestation of holy angels in his house, and by the Urim and Thummim, those names that are necessary, of our ancient kindred and friends, that they may be traced back to the time when the Priesthood was on the earth in ancient days.

The affidavits of the sons were read, and Mr. Smith was fully examined by the Court. . . . On the request of the Court, he exhibited the stone. It was about the size of a small hen's egg, in the shape of a high-instepped shoe. It was composed of layers of different colors passing diagonally through it. It was very hard and smooth, perhaps by being carried in the pocket.

Joseph Smith, Sr., was present, and sworn as a witness. . . .

The next witness called was Deacon Isaiah Stowell. He confirmed all that is said above in relation to himself, and delineated many other circumstances not necessary to record. He swore that the prisoner possessed all the power he claimed, and declared he could see things fifty feet below the surface of the earth, as plain as the witness could see what was on the Justice's table, and described very many circumstances to confirm his words. Justice Neeley soberly looked at the witness and in a solemn, dignified voice, said, "Deacon Stowell, do I understand you as swearing before God, under the solemn oath you have taken that you believe the prisoner can see by the aid of the stone fifty feet below the surface of the earth, as plainly as you can see what is on my table?" "Do I believe it?" says Deacon Stowell, "do I believe it? No, it is not a matter of belief. I positively know it to be true."

The reason of this was that Aaron was appointed to be a judge among the children of Israel, occupying a similar place among that people that the President of the Bishopric occupies in the Church. But he was blessed above those who have been ordained to the same calling in this dispensation, for he was in possession of the Urim and Thummim, and by virtue of this instrument he could inquire of the Lord in relation to every case that should be brought before him for adjudication. The judgment of man is naturally very weak and imperfect, and inasmuch as Aaron was required to judge the people of God, it was of the utmost importance that all his decisions should be given in righteousness, that there should be no imperfections connected with them, and for that reason the Lord gave express instructions to Aaron, through his brother Moses, to have a breastplate. In this breastplate were twelve stones, representing the Twelve Tribes of Israel, and in the center of these rows of stones the Urim and Thummim was placed, and when he was required to render judgment upon any matter, he inquired of the Lord through it, and was enabled to give decisions according to the word of the Lord. * * *

. . . when the brother of Jared was coming to this land the Lord gave him some very remarkable visions, and among other things he gave him the Urim and Thummim, prepared two crystal stones in two rims of a bow, and sanctified them, and showed to the brother of Jared many marvelous things. * * *

But we have every reason to believe that the time is not far distanct, and that there are some living among the young now upon the earth, that will live to behold great numbers of revelations given, and will behold other books come forth and other records translated by the Urim and Thummim, that same instrument that Joseph Smith used in the translation of the "Book of Mormon", which will again come forth and be revealed to the seer and revelator that God will raise up by which these ancient records will be brought to light.

The Prophet translated the part of these writings which, as I have said is contained in the Pearl of Great Price, and known as the Book of Abraham. Thus you see one of the first gifts bestowed by the Lord for the benefit of His people, was that of revelation, the gift to translate, by the aid of the Urim and Thummim, the gift of bringing to light old and ancient records. Have any of the other denominations got this gift among them? Go and inquire through all of Christendom and do not miss one denomination.

When Joseph was translating the Book of Mormon, [Morse] had occasion more than once to go into his immediate presence, and saw him engaged at his work of translation.

The mode of procedure consisted in Joseph's placing the Seer Stone in the crown of a hat, then putting his face into the hat, so as to entirely cover his face, resting his elbows upon his knees, and then dictating word after word, while the scribes--Emma, John Whitmer, O. Cowdery, or some other wrote it down.

Saints' Herald; Emma Smith to Joseph Smith III; Vol 26, pp. 289-90; 1 Oct. 1879.

In writing for your father I frequently wrote day after day, often sitting at the table close by him, he sitting with his face buried in his hat, with the stone in it, and dictating hour after hour with nothing between us. . . . The plates often lay on the table without any attempt at concealment, wrapped in a small linen table-cloth, which I had given him to fold them in.

Saints' Herald; Edward Traughber; Vol 26, p. 341; 15 Nov. 1879.

With the sanction of David Whitmer, and by his authority, I now state that he does not say that Joseph Smith ever translated in his presence by aid of Urim and Thummim; but by means of one dark colored, opaque stone, called a "Seer Stone," which was placed in the crown of a hat, into which Joseph put his face, so as to exclude the external light. Then, a spiritual light would shine forth, and parchment would appear before Joseph, upon which was a line of characters from the plates, and under it, the translation in English; at least, so Joseph said.

High Priests Record, Spanish Fork, Utah; p. 128; LDS Church Archives; September 1880.

[In response to an inquiry by Zebedee Coltrin about what he had done with the Urim and Thummim] Joseph said he had no further need of it and he had given it to the angel Moroni. He had the Melchizedek Priesthood, and with that Priesthood he had the key to all knowledge and intelligence.

Kansas City Journal; David Whitmer; 5 June 1881.

I, as well as all of my father's family, Smith's wife, Oliver Cowdery, and Martin Harris were present during the translation. The translation was by Smith, and the manner as follows: He had two small stones of a chocolate color, nearly egg shaped and perfectly smooth, but not transparent, called interpreters, which were given him with the plates. He did not use the plates in translation, but would hold the interpreters to his eyes and cover his face with a hat, excluding all light, and before him would appear what seemed to be parchment on which would appear the characters of the plates on a line at the top, and immediately below would appear the translation in English.

James Wareham said to me after Eliza R. Snow Smith that the Prophet Joseph Smith had a Peepstone (caled in the Book of Doc & Covenant Gaselum) that he got by digging in the Ladies Garden 25 feet down in the Ground. The Lord Reviled to Joseph Smith that such a Stone was 25 feet down in the Ground but he (J. Smith) did not know how to get but; but he went to the Lady there owned the Garden and asked her if she did not wish to have a Well dug in her Garden, she said yes, he could find no plase where there was Watter only in the Center of the Garden, she did not like it so well to have the Well in the Center, but rather than not have the Well she concluded to have the Well in the Centre of the Garden and Joseph Smith the Prophet found the Peepstone 25 feet down he could see many things in that Stone, but Oliver Cowdery stol the Stone from Joseph Smith, and years afterwards gave it to Phinehas Young who was there on visit for him to [p. 144] give it to Prst Brigham Young, but he did not do it, but kept it till after Prst Brigham Young was dead, but before Phinahas Young died he gave the Peepstone to Prst John Taylor.

The Prophet possessed a seer stone, by which he was enabled to translate as well as from the Urim and Thummim, and for covenience he used the seer stone. . . . By aid of the seer stone, sentences would appear and were read by the Prophet and written by Martin, and when finished he would say, "Written," and if correctly written that sentence would disappear and another appear in its place, but if not written correctly it remained until corrected, so that the translation was just as it was engraven on the plates, precisely in the language then used.

"Questions asked of David Whitmer at his home in Richmond Ray County Mo. Jan. 14-1885 relating to book of Mormon, and the history of the Church of Jesus Christ of LDS by Elder Z. H. Gurley [editor of the RLDS Saints' Herald]"; holograph in LDS Church Archives; Jan 14 1885.

He [Joseph Smith] used a stone called a "Seers stone," the "Interpreters" having been taken away from him because of transgression. The "Interpreters" were taken from Joseph after he allowed Martin Harris to carry away the 116 pages of Ms of the Book of Mormon as a punishment, but he was allowed to go on and translate by the use of a "Seers stone" which he had, and which he placed in a hat into which he buried his face, stating to me and others that the original character appeared upon parchment and under it the translation in English.

Chicago Tribune; David Whitmer interview; 17 Dec. 1885.

The plates were never restored to Joseph--nor the spectacles, but a different Urim & Thummim--one oval or kidney-shaped--a seer's stone, which he placed in his hat, and, face in hat, he would see character and translation on the stone.

Chicago Inter-Ocean; David Whitmer interview; 17 Oct. 1886. Also Saints' Herald, Vol 33, p. 706; 13 Nov. 1886.

[After Martin Harris lost the first 116 pages of Book of Mormon manuscript] . . . the Lord . . . took from the prophet the Urim and Thummim and otherwise expressed his condemnation. By fervent prayer and by otherwise humbling himself, the prophet, however, again found favor, and was presented with a strange, oval-shaped, chocolate-colored stone, about the size of an egg only more flat, which, it was promised, should serve the same purpose as the missing Urim and Thummim. . . . With this stone all of the present Book of Mormon was translated.

Millennial Star, Vol. 48, p. 36; 1886.

Mr. Whitmer then described Smith's story of the vision in which the location of the plates was revealed, with the history of the Nephites, Moroni's labor, and Smith's finding of the tablets, with which every one is familiar.

Whitmer and Cowdery were greatly impressed by the recital of this strange story, and were conducted to the hill, where they personally viewed the receptacle in which Moroni, at the beginning of the fifth century, had concealed the history of his fathers. Smith also said that he had been commanded to at once begin the translation of the work in the presence of three witnesses. In accordance with this command, Smith, Cowdery and Whitmer proceeded to the latter's home, accompanied by Smith's wife, and bearing with them the precious plates and spectacles. The house of senior Whitmer was a primitive and poorly designed structure, but it was deemed the most secure for carrying out the sacred trust on account of the threats that had been made against Smith by his mercenary neighbors. In order to give privacy to the proceeding, a blanket, which served as a portiere, was stretched across the family living room to shelter the translators and the plates from the eyes of any who might call at the house while the work was in progress. This, Mr. Whitmer says, was the only use made of the blanket, and it was not for the purpose of concealing the plates or the translator from the eyes of the amanuensis. In fact, Smith was at no time hidden from his collaborators, and the translation was performed in the presence of not only the persons mentioned, but of the entire Whitmer household and several of Smith's relatives besides.

The work of translating the tablets consumed about eight months, Smith acting as the seer, and Oliver Cowdery, Smith's wife and Christian Whitmer, brother of David, performing the duties of amanuensis, in whose handwriting the original manuscript now is. Each time before resuming the work all present would kneel in prayer and invoke the Divine blessing on the proceeding. After prayer, Smith would sit on one side of a table, and the amanuenses, in turn, as they became tired, on the other. Those present and not actively engaged in the work, seated themselves around the room, and then the work began. After affixing the magical spectacles to his eyes, Smith would take the plates and translate the characters one at a time. The graven characters would appear in succession to the seer, and directly under the character, when viewed through the glasses, would be the translation in English. Sometimes the character would be a single word, and frequently an entire sentence. In translating the characters, Smith, who was illiterate and but little versed in Biblical lore, was oftimes compelled to spell the words out, not knowing the correct pronunciation, and Mr. Whitmer recalls the fact that at that time Smith did not even know that Jerusalem was a walled city. Cowdery, however, being a school teacher, rendered invaluable aid in pronouncing hard words and giving them their proper definition.

I will now give you a description of the manner in which the Book of Mormon was translated. Joseph Smith would put the seer stone into a hat, and put his face in the hat, drawing it closely around his face to exclude the light; and in the darkness the spiritual light would shine. A piece of something resembling parchment would appear, and on that appeared the writing. One character at a time would appear, and under it was the interpretation in English. Brother Joseph would read off the English to Oliver Cowdery, who was his principal scribe, and when it was written down and repeated by Brother Joseph to see if it was correct, then it would disappear, and another character with the interpretation would appear. Thus the Book of Mormon was translated by the gift and power of God, and not by any power of man. * * *

At times when Brother Joseph would attempt to translate he would look into the hat in which the stone was placed, he found he was spiritually blind and could not translate. He told us that his mind dwelt too much on earthly things, and various causes would make him incapable of proceeding with the translation. When in this condition he would go out and pray, and when he became sufficiently humble before God, he could then proceed with the translation. Now we see how very strict the Lord is, and how he requires the heart of man to be just right in his sight before he can receive revelation from him. * * * After the translation of the Book of Mormon was finished early in the spring of 1830 before April 6th, Joseph gave the Stone to Oliver Cowdery and told me as well as the rest that he was through with it, and he did not use the Stone anymore.

[p. 7]. . .Private dedicatory services were held 17 day of May 1888 by [p. 8] President Wilford Woodruff, George Q. Cannon, Lorenzo Snow, Brigham Young Jr., Francis M. Lyman, the dedicatory prayer being offered by Pres. Wilford Woodruff the same as used in the dedicatory services. Minutes of these proceedings are found in detail in Historical Record No. 1. The private dedication was held because the General Authorities were in retirement, avoiding the U.S. officials for the practice of polygamy. One item mentioned by President Woodruff about the dedicatory services at Manti was: that "I consecrated upon the alter the seer stone that Joseph Smith found by revelation some thirty feet under the earth and with him through life. This is the very seer stone that the Prophet Joseph Smith used part of the time when translating the Book of Mormon--the one he took from the well he was digging together with his brother Hyrum near Palmyra for Mr. Clark Chase, and which he falsely accused of taking from the children of Mr. Chase, which gives an account of the private and return journey to Salt Lake City.

Wilford Woodruff Journal; LDS Church Archives; 18 May 1888. NOTE: Though the reason for the consecration is not given, Orson Pratt related in 1873 that through the medium of Urim and Thummim, "which the Lord God has ordained to be used in the midst of his holy house, in his Temple. . . books of genealogy, tracing individuals and nations among all people back to ancient times will be revealed." See JD 16:260 quoted above.

Before leaving [the Manti Temple after its dedication] I consecrated upon the Altar the sears stone that Joseph Smith found by Revelation some 30 feet under the earth carried by him through life.

William P. Smith [brother of the Prophet] interview by J. W. Peterson and W. S. Pender; reported in The Rod of Iron, 3 (Feb. 1924): 6-7 and in Saints' Herald, 79 (9 March 1932): 238; 4 July 1891.

By pressing the head a little forward, the rod held the Urim and Thummim before the eyes much like a pair of spectacles. A pocket was prepared in the breastplate on the left side, immediately over the heart. When not in use the Urim and Thummim was placed in the pocket the rod being of just the right length to allow it to be deposited. This instrument could, however, be detached from the breastplate when away from home, but Joseph always used it in connection with the breastplate when translating, as it permitted him to have both hands free to touch the plates. The instrument was too large for Joseph's eyes; they must have been used by larger men. Sometimes Joseph Smith resorted to the plan of covering his eyes with a hat to exclude the light in part to prevent eye strain.

There is a matter that I wish to lay before you, that weighs upon my mind, and seems very important to me. I refer to some very sacred articles I bought at the sale of my father's personal effects,--articles that never should have been given up to the idle gaze; but being brought out, my mother and myself felt it a wish of our hearts to get them, that their sacredness might not be sullied.

They are: two sear-stones and an arrow point. They are in the possession of President Woodruff now, and very properly too, but I feel dear cousin, that they should ever be the property of the President of the Church, and not of individuals; that at his demise, they are not retained as they were before among "personal effects," but considered ever the legitimate property of God's mouth-piece.

I had with me a cane made of the rough box hastily nailed together into which the Prophet Joseph Smith's body was placed after he was murdered and brought to Nauvoo from Carthage.

In the top of the cane was a lock of his hair which was taken from his head after he had been buried seven months. My brother William took it off his head as he and my brother Dimick were moving the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum from where they were first buried, in the cellar of the Nauvoo House, to the cellar or pit under a little outhouse that was built exclusively for that purpose. The glass over his face was broken and they saved some of the glass. And a piece of that glass covered the hair in the top of the cane, and then a piece of metal with a round hole in the center was over the glass and hair. Through the hold in the metal (aluminum) the hair could be seen.

At the party on that evening the cane and its history became known and was viewed, inspected, admired and handed [sic, handled] by each individual, and was constantly on the move until 12 o'clock at night. I was invited to give a history of the cane and of the burial and reburial of the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, which I did. The cane came into my possession in this way: It was my brother Dimick's cane in the first place. The whole box that Joseph's body was brought to Nauvoo in was sawed up into strips suitable to make walking canes of and divided out among his special friends. After the death of Dimick the cane became Allen's, and he told me to take and keep it until he called for it. He died without calling for it at all.

In the account which the Prophet Joseph Smith gives of the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, he says that an angel directed him to a certain hill in the side of which was buried a stone box. In this box he found the plates containing the writings from which the Book of Mormon was translated. With these plates other things were buried, and among them were what he describes as two stones set in silver bows, and fastened to a breastplate. These instruments he calls the Urim and Thummim. They are similarly described in the Book of Mormon, in which they are called interpreters. In translating the ancient record engraven upon the gold plates the Prophet used these interpreters. By the power of the Lord he was enabled to look upon these stones and read the English translation of the ancient writings as it appeared upon them sentence by sentence.

Many unbelievrs, who read the account of this remarkable method of translating, not only refuse to believe it, but ridicule the idea of using such instruments for such a purpose. It certainly would be absurd for an uninspired man to take two ordinary stones from the earth and with their aid attempt to translate a record written in an unknown language. But the stones of the Urim and Thummim were prepared by the Lord for certain sacred purposes, and it was through a gift from Him that the record contained in the Book of Mormon was translated.

Those who scoff at the means employed by the modern Prophet in this work show their ignorance of the Bible, and of the methods the Lord made use of in ancient times to reveal intelligence to His chosen servants. . . .

The "Helps to the Study of the Bible," contained in the Oxford Teachers' Bible, under the heading of "A Glossary of Antiquities, Customs, etc.," furnishes some explanation of the use of the Urim and Thummim. Their meaning is given as "Lights and Perfections;" and they are described as "the sacred symbols (worn upon the breastplate of the high priest `upon his heart'), by which God gave oracular responses for the guidance of His people in temporal matters." It is further stated that "What they were is unknown; they are introduced in Exodus without explanation, as if familiar to the Israelites of that day. * * * Some scholars suppose that they were the twelve stones of the breastplate; others that they were two additional stones concealed in its fold. Josephus adds to these the two sardonyx buttons worn on the shoulders, which, he says, emitted luminous rays when the response was favorable; but the means by which the oracles were given is lost in obscurity." The description of the Urim and Thummim and of their purposes given by the Prophet Joseph is not in the least at variance with what is said of them in the Bible, or with what the world knows of them.

S.H.B. Smith Esq.

Dear Sir

Yours of 10- kame to me a day or two ago - I hardly know what information you desire. & therefore may not be able to give you a satisfactory answer.

The events which transpired on June 27th 1844 were very thoroughly empressed upon my mind and I do not remember the detales of the killings of Joseph & Hiram Smith as I have after scence published. "And I was then 14 years old. And saw Joseph Smith fall out of the window. I was but a short distance from the jail, and going towards it with both eyes open and out among the mob before sil [?] had left. I went up to Smith and saw that he was dead. Then was the first to go into the (p. 2) jail & up the stairs where I found Hiram Smith stretched upon the floor dead - No one was in the other room. Richards had taken Taylor into the cell department, and they were in there at that time. Soon after I went home. arid first. Therefore sundown took all the county records inn a wagon and took them some 8 miles into the contry east of Carthage for safe keeping - "David E. Head esq. clerk having there in charge I got home just at sunrise next morning - Soon after Samuel V. Smith and three others came in a wagon - and in a short time the body of Joseph was put in their wagon and the body of Hiram in Father's and he and my brother John D. went to Nauvoo with them - arriving late at night.

Soon after the killing of the Smithes, (p. 3) Father had the bodies brought to our house. and rough pine coffins made in which they were placed. "Those boards have furnished material for thousands of walking canes."

I knew your Father Samuel V. Smith, but did not see him at Carthage the day the Smiths were killed. Yet he might have been in the evening after I went away.

Now Taylor was also taken care of until he was able to be taken home.
All I can say about the killing of the Smiths in detale. "leaving out all causes of every description" is that on the 27th day of June 1844 at about 5. P. M. an armed mob of at least 100 men surrounded the jail and killed Joseph and Hiram Smith and wounded Mr Taylor, and after a forum of all inquest had been held their bodies were disposed of as above detailed. Should this not be satisfactory (p. 4) or not the information you desire please write what you wish to know. My fathers name was Artois Hamilton and I know he had many friends at Nauvoo.

Yours truly
/s/ Wm R. Hamilton

Wm R. Hamilton Esq
Dear Sir

Your favor of March the 18th was duly received. I appreciate very much the information you have furnished me, and if not asking too much would like to ask you if you know if the jailar George W. Stigall is still living & if so if you know his Post Office address? I do not know whether or not he was a young man at the time – John Taylor told me that Samuel H. Smith was the first man he saw – after the shooting, and what I would like to find out is if Samuel H. Smith saw the man that helped Willard Richards carry John Taylor into the cell. You say that when you "went up the stares you found Hyrim Smith stretched upon the floor" and no one was in the room at the time: Now as Willard Richards & John Taylor were in the room at the time of the shooting perhaps Samuel H. Smith had gone into the cell along with Richards & Taylor, I have two sisters that are older than I am and it has been related by the family more or less from the time of the tradigy up to the present time, but . . .

"The History of A Nephite Coin"; a personal experience of Elder Richard M. Robinson of Grantsville, Utah; LDS Archives; recorded 30 Dec. 1934; Elder Robinson had returned from a Southern States mission and was in company of President Lorenzo Snow; 1899.

[President Snow] went and got the money purse or leather bag that President Young had brought to the Rocky Mountains with him, also the Seer Stone and said, "This is the Seer Stone that the Prophet Joseph used. There are very few worthy to view this, but you are." He handed the Seer Stone to me and I couldn't express the joy that came to me as I took that stone in my hands. Words are not equal to the task of expressing such a sublime joy! He then told me to hand the Seer Stone to my wife and I handed it to her. He then blessed us with the greatest blessing I have ever heard fall from the mouth of man!

The Seer Stone was the shape of an egg though not quite so large, of a gray cast something like granite but with white stripes running around it. It was transparent but had no holes, neither in the end or in the sides. I looked into the stone, but could see nothing, as I had not the gift and power of God that must accompany such a manifestation.

Among the recent visitors to Salt Lake City, not one has attracted more interest, from early members of The Church, than John W. Rigdon of New York City, the only surviving son of Sidney Rigdon who was one of the early workers in the cause of God, and once the first counselor to the Prophet Joseph. Patriarch John Smith and John W. Rigdon were school companions in Nauvoo, and Mr. Rigdon also knew President Lorenzo Snow. His object in coming to Utah was to call upon some of his old-time friends. On Saturday, May 19, he visited with President Lorenzo Snow, and spent some time in the President's office. Mr. Rigdon is a pleasant gentleman, well on in years, having been born in Mentor, Ohio, in 1830. His hair and mustache are white. He has a thin face, a round, full voice, bright eyes, and a nervous, sensitive nature. In manner, he is very affable; in conversation, ready and intelligent. He stands erect, and his rather tall but thin form lends him a dignified bearing. He carried as a souvenir a cane which had been taken from the oaken boxes in which the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum were brought from Carthage to Nauvoo, after the martyrdom.

. . . during the Nauvoo period Apostle Heber C. Kimball `inquired by the rod' in prayer. . . .

In the revelation to Oliver Cowdery in May 1829, Bro. [B. H.] Roberts said that the gift which the Lord says he has in his hand meant a stick which was like Aaron's Rod. It is said Bro. Phineas Young [brother-in-law of Oliver Cowdery and brother of Brigham Young] got it from him [Cowdery] and gave it to President Young who had it with him when he arrived in the [Salt Lake] Valley and that it was with that stick that he pointed out where the Temple should be built.

Millennial Star; Vol 76, pp. 552-557; T. W. B.; 1914.

The Urim and Thummim were instruments that were anciently provided as part of the furnishings for the use of the preisthood who ministered in the tabernacle and temple service under the Mosaic dispensation. Their history and use are confined to that period of time, according to the Biblical record. No description of them is therein given, and so nothing can be learned from that source respecting their size, shape, substance and general appearance. It may, however, be inferred from the fact that they were to form part of the ornamentation of the "breastplate of judgment"--an appurtenance belonging to the Aaronic Priesthood--that they were not large, but must have been of exquisite workmanship. Fastened to this, they were always to be worn by the priest when he went before the Lord in his official capacity, as we learn from the following scripture: "And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breastplate of judgment upon his heart, when he goeth in unto the holy place, for a memorial before the Lord continually. And thou shalt put in the breastplate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim: and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the Lord: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart before the Lord continually." (Ex. 28:29,30)

The Hebrew meaning of the words "Urim" and "Thummim," is "Lights" and "Perfections," which, in the Septuagint--an early Greak version of the Hebrew--is rendered by terms that signify "Manifestations" and "Truth." The names of these instruments then, are suggestive of the use for which they were designed by the Almighty, namely: to make known truth without any admixture of error. But notwithstanding the universal service for which their names imply an adaptation, it appears from the sacred record that their use was restricted to making known the will of God concerning the more difficult matters of a material or temporal nature that demanded the attention of His people. The view that they were to be employed in solving problems of this nature only, is founded upon what is said in Numbers 27:18-21, and in other texts, in none of which is any reference made to things that are essentially spiritual. Thus in the passages just cited, we read: "And the Lord said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and lay thine hand upon him; and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation; and give him a charge in their sight. And thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel may be obedient. And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him after the judgment of Urim before the Lord: at his word shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he, and all the children of Israel with him, even all the congregation" (Numbers 27:18-21).

In what manner the will of the Lord was made known by means of the Urim and Thummim, can be conjectured only. A number of different opinions have been proposed; but as none of them can be considered as of more value than mere surmises, no time will now be occupied with their consideration. It is worthy of notice, however, that apparently only those whose righteousness made them acceptable to God, were granted manifestations of His will by their means, even in temporal concerns. An instance in point occurred in the life of Saul, as recorded in I Sam. 28:4-6 in these words: "And the Philistines gathered themselves together, and came and pitched in Shunem: and Saul gathered all Israel together, and they pitched in Golboa. And when Saul saw the host of the Philistines, he was afraid, and his heart greatly trembled. And when Saul inquired of the Lord, the Lord answered him not, neither by dreams, nor by Urim, nor by prophets." These quotations contain about all the information, we believe, that the Biblical record gives concerning the history, use, etc., of these sacred instruments, and with the destruction of Solomon's temple by the Babylonians all definite trace of them is lost, so far as Israelitish history of tradition is known. The Jews of times after the captivity say that several things, which made that temple so glorious in their sight, were not in the temple of Zerubbabel, nor in that of Herod, with all its grandeur; and among the things lost were the Urim and Thummim--the others being the Shechinah, the tables of the law written by the finger of God Himself, and Aaron's rod that budded. What became of them is a question, we believe, that none of the ancients attempt to answer.

It is claimed, however, by some of the membership of this Church that the Urim and Thummim spoken of in the Bible are the identical "seer stones" used by Joseph Smith in translating the originals of the Book of Mormon records. This opinion is regarded as absurd by our enemies; but one purpose of these remarks shall be to show that there is quite a degree of probability to sustain it. But before coming directly to this point, some other relative matters shall be considered, and among them is a statement made in the Book of Mormon concerning the time when the Lord first provided the Urim and Thummim, or instruments of their class, for the use of His saints.

It appears from the work just named that a number of Nephites, who formed part of a community which may be known as the people of Limhi, discovered certain gold plates upon which were engraven some Jaredite records in an unknown language. They were delivered to king Mosiah and were finally translated by means of some "seer stones," or "interpreters," which were in his possession. Though these instruments were not by the Nephites called Urim and Thummim, yet the use which they were made to serve on that occasion, harmonizes so nicely with the meaning of these names, as already noted, and with the uses to which the quoted scriptures from the Bible show such instruments were put by the ancient Israelites, that it seems almost certain the "interpreters" of the Book of Mormon history and the Urim and Thummim of the Bible records, were identical in character. Speaking of them, the Book of Mormon says: And now he translated them (the Jaredite records) by the means of those two stones which were fastened into the two rims of a bow. Now these things were prepared from the beginning, and were handed down from generation to generation, for the purpose of interpreting languages; and they have been kept and preserved by the hand of the Lord, that he should discover to every creature who should possess the land the iniquities and abominations of his people, and whosoever has these things is called seer, after the manner of old times. (Mosiah 28:13-16). Here there are mentioned some particular uses for which the seer stones of the Nephites were prepared, but this fact does not restrict their use to them alone, any more than when the Bible states that the Urim should tell the Israelites when the whole congregation should go in or out, limits its service to that single matter. In the quotation from Mosiah we learn that instruments, evidently of the same nature as the Urim and Thummim of ancient Jewish history, were prepared by the Lord "from the beginning."

Referring now, for another point, to the Pearl of Great Price (Book of Abraham), we find that according to it, that Abraham himself was in possession of the Urim and Thummim, a certain passage reading thus: "And I, Abraham had the Urim and Thummim which the Lord my God had given unto me, in Ur of the Chaldees, and I saw the stars that they were very great," etc., and a little further on in the same paragraph he says that this knowledge was made known to him through that instrument. Not all the remaining portion of the Book of Abraham was given in the same way, for in the third paragraph succeeding, he says that the Lord talked with him face to face, and put His hand upon his (Abraham's) eyes and by these means taught and showed him many great things. It is worthy of notice in this connection that matters of a temporal or physical nature only are referred to as uses for which the Urim and Thummim were applied in ancient times. This is a consistency of considerable value. One that an impostor, writing an alleged authentic Book of Abraham, might easily fail to take into account.

But, says an objector, if Abraham had them, how is it that no mention is made of them until the time when the Israelites were in the wilderness? and, hence, many are very sure that their first use among men was during the exodus of those people from Egypt. However, it is not difficult to account for the absence of all allusions to them in the Bible as being known previous to the time spoken of. Only a small number of references to them are found in that book, though they were in possession of the Israelites from about 1491 B.C., to the time of the Babylonish captivity--a period of 900 years in round numbers--nor are they mentioned at all from the time of Samuel 1056 B.C., and so we have here 520 years of absolute silence respecting them. We must also remember that this failure to speak of the Urim and Thummim occurs during the very period when a large part of the Jewish sacred history was being written. That they are not referred to as known during the 500 years just preceding 1491 B.C., is not at all, therefore, surprising. When we consider, further, that there is not a single book of the Bible that was written until the time of the Exodus, the objection we have in hand may be passed as quite insignificant. The only book of a sacred nature which we possess claiming to have been written before that event does mention them.

One additional point remains to be noticed. If we turn to the quotation already given from Exodus, it will be observed that the Urim and Thummim are there spoken of as being already well known to Moses and others of the Israelitish people. A sacred instrument of such great value would not have been put, for the first time, into the hands of any man without some explanation of its purpose, and instructions as to the manner of its use would then be given. It is spoken of as something already familiar to God's servants. These facts have led learned commentators on the Bible to conclude that the Urim and Thummim were in use among the Israelites before they were made part of the breastplate furnishings. It follows, then, that the statement of the Pearl of Great Price that Abraham had the Urim and Thummim cannot be successfully controverted; and the Book of Mormon claim that they, or similar instruments, were made in the beginning and handed down from generation to generation, while not proven from Biblical history, nevertheless, obtains from that source a good degree of probability in its favor.

Now, can it be shown that the Urim and Thummim of the Israelites ever got or could get to America, and so be in possession of the Nephites, and finally be lodged in the hands of Joseph Smith for his use? With our present light on this question no conclusive answer in the affirmative can be given; yet there are facts of Israelitish and Book of Mormon history which together show that it could have been done, and no point in the argument need be strained in the least.

When Nephi obtained the brass plates from Laban, no mention whatever is made of his having got with them the Urim and Thummim. This is precisely as the case should stand; for Laban, though a keeper of a copy of the Jewish law and history, was evidently occupying his own house and had a private treasure where he kept the records. A little study of the Book of Mormon narrative relative to the case, will lead one quite surely to the conclusion. The Urim and Thummim were sacred treasures of the Temple, and were securely guarded there. There is not a word of the whole narrative which implies that Nephi went to the temple for any purpose whatever; but in fulfillment of his mission to get the plates he went to the house of Laban, as is stated in substance in I Nephi 4:5. This fact should be kept well in mind. Now, only a few years after Lehi and his company had left Jerusalem, and had, through Nephi's efforts, come into possession of the brass plates--the land of promise, or America as it is now called, being duly reached-another company of Jewish colonists left that same city, having the same destination in view. Of this second company the king's son was a member, and this circumstance causes one to think that it was in all probability made up of Jewish notables who had free access to the temple--a company worthy to be the companions of the king's son. The king himself was deeply interested in the welfare of those people on account of his son's happiness and prosperity being associated so closely with them. There is nothing of which the mind of man can conceive that would so perfectly serve the purpose of a guide to a colony going into a distant and unknown land, having first to cross wide stretches of uncharted seas, without a mariner's compass, as that ancient Urim and Thummim, one of whose specified purposes was to tell the people about their goings "in and out." Does it not look as if they were bound to get that instrument, or something else equally reliable, before they set sail upon an unknown sea? There was nothing which, on account of its small size, could be carried along so easily, nothing more sacred in the eyes of Israelitish people, and, consequently, nothing that they would more jealously guard against falling into the hands of their Babylonian foes, and this second colony left Jerusalem almost simultaneously with the capture of that unfortunate city by Nebuchadnezzar; and now mark the fact again, that the history of the Urim and Thummim comes to an end among the Jews from that very time. The Babylonians, who carried off the rich treasures of Solomon's Temple, make no mention of them, nor of the other things that were the most holy of its furnishings. Is it not probable that the Almighty interfered to preserve them? What did He do with them? Reader, keeping in mind the fact that with the destruction of Jerusalem, the Jewish history of these instruments ceases, and remember that it is with the descendants of that second colony which left that city just at that time and went to America, that the purposes of the ancient Jewish Urim and Thummim again begins, as we learn from Mosiah 8:13-19, and what stronger circumstantial evidence can be desired to prove that the "interpreters" of the Nephites were identical with the Urim and Thummim of the Israelites? From the period in Nephite history when that chapter of Mosiah was written, until those sacred things were delivered into the hands of Joseph Smith, the record as to how they were guarded and preserved is without a break. There is a consistency in all these matters that is too striking to have been conceived in the brain of an unschooled youth who wrote the Book of Mormon as an alleged imposture, and we commend them to the consideration of those who mock at our claim that Joseph Smith had "seer stones," by calling them "wonderful spectacles," "peepstones," etc. The probability that he had the Israelitish Urim and Thummim can be denied only by a denial of the whole "Mormon" system.

As a basis for a few closing remarks, we find by turning to the Doctrine and Covenants Section 17:1, that the breastplate, the sword of Laban and the Urim and Thummim were given to the brother of Jared when the Lord talked to him face to face in the mount. Jared and his brother lived during the days when the tower of Babel was being built. This brother--whose name is not disclosed--was a man of such faith and righteousness that it might be said that he walked with God, and at some period of his life he had the special manifestation of God's favor of which the cited text makes mention. It does not appear that the Urim and Thummim were made on that occasion, and the way in which the reference to them is worded, lends color to the Book of Mormon statement that they were prepared "in the beginning." That they were taken from the ancient Jewish priesthood to be restored in the due time of the Lord, is evident from what is said in Ezra and Nehemiah in the passages already referred to, a portion of them reading that the Jewish priesthood "should not eat of the most holy things, till there stood up a priest with Urim and with Thummim." It appears, then, that just as certainly as we look for the restoration of the Jews to the full favor of God, when they shall enjoy all their ancient rights and privileges, just so sure is it that the Urim and Thummim shall be again among the furnishings supplied to His priesthood.

On top of Mount Olives I erected a pile of stones as a witness according to the ancient custom. On what was anciently called Mount Moriah, where the temple stood, I erected another and used the rod according to the prediction on my head.

Brigham Young; M. R. Warner; Hercourt, Brace Co., New York; 1925. The memory of the Prophet was perpetuated a few days later. The rough boards which had been used as temporary coffins were sawed in pieces and distributed among Joseph's and Hyrum's friends, who had canes made of them, each with a lock of the Prophet's hair set in the top. These canes are considered sacred relics today.

When Adam was driven out of Paradise, he cut a branch from the fig tree which was the tree of life, and this branch served him as a staff all his life. This staff he left to his son, and it was transmitted from generation to generation till it came into the possession of Abraham. It was with this staff that the Patriarch smashed the idols of his father Terah. Jacob used the staff as he tended the flocks. . . and his son Judah gave it as a pledge to his daughter-in-law Tamar. Later it was hidden by an angel and found by Jethro, who gave it to Moses. The staff then came into the possession of Phineas who buried it in the desert. It belogned to Joseph. . . at the moment of the birth of the Saviour, and it served afterwards as one of the planks in the Cross of Christ.

* * * Father often told us children of some of his experiences. He was one of the men who helped bury the Prophet Joseph Smith. The first coffin they buried him was of rough oak and they later made canes of this oak. Each cane had a lock of Joseph Smith's hair set under a small piece of glass and then mounted in silver on top and the name of the man it belonged to engraved on it. Father always told mother to keep the cane by her bed and if she was sick to put it under her pillow and it would be a protection for her. After father's death, the cane was to go to which ever of his children carried on this temple work. My older brother happened to have done more than I had so after Father died the cane went to him. Since my brother's death though, his wife has had it in her possession and she has promised to bring it to me, when she visits her son in Provo this summer. She is living in Canada at present and the cane is too valuable to be mailed. I will be glad when it is in my possession.

Father said that when they buried the prophet they always buried him at night. They had a mock funeral one day for him, but the coffin was filled with rocks. The men who buried him were never to disclose the actual place of burial. Three of the men who buried him also have canes in their family possession, these three are Heber C. Kimball, of Salt Lake City, and Brother Dibble and brother Wadsworth of Springville, I don't know how many others there were.

The most famous of all tribal bundles, with one exception, was the Roman Faces, symbol of the unity and authority of the nation -- originally twelve sticks bound together to represent twelve Etruscan tribes<42>. {FOOTNOTE 42: Nibley, Wstn, Pol. Quart. II (1949) p. 334.} The one exception is, of course, that bundle of twelve which according to the Talmud, were all cut from a single stick, and bound together when Moses laid them up on the ark<43>. {FOOTNOTE 43: L. Ginzber, The Legends of the Jews (Philidelphia: Jewish Publication Soc., 1909ff), III, 306.} What may be the earliest Christian writing after the New Testament thus elaborates on the account in Numbers 17:

> And he took them and bound them together, and sealed [them] with the rings of the leaders of the tribes, and he laid them up in the Ark of the Covenant before the altar of God. And he closed the Ark and sealed the locks, just as he had the rods. Then he said unto them: Men and brethren, that tribe whose rod shall blossom has been chosen of God to be priests and ministers to Him. And when it was morning, he summoned together all Israel, the 600,000 men, showed the seals to the leaders of the tribes, opened the Ark of the Covenant, and brought out the rods. . .<44> {FOOTNOTE 44: I Clement, Epist. Ad corinthos, Ch. 43.}
> How thoroughly familiar the Jews of old were with the use and significance of various types of symbolic rods may be seen from the wealth of tradition built up around the wonderful Rod of Aaron. This was "the rod that the Holy One. . .created in the twilight of the first Sabbath eve and gave to Adam. He transmitted it to Enoch," from whom it passed down in succession to Noah, Shem, Abraham, and Joseph, from whom it was stolen by servants of Pharoah, only to be stolen back again by the man whose daughter married Moses who alone of all her suitors was able to grasp the rod without being consumed.<52> {FOOTNOTE 52: Ginzber, Legend of the Jews II, p. 291.} According to another account, "Jacob wrested the rod from Esau, and . . . he always kept it with him . . . at his death he bequeathed it to his favorite son Joseph."<53> {FOOTNOTE 53: Ibid. V., p. 412.} We are assured that "Aaron's rod is identical with the rod of Judah," and that the same rod was in David's hand when he went to fight Goliath, and that "it will come from hiding in the time of the Messiah."<54> {FOOTNOTE 54: Ibid. VI, p. 106.} It is this very rod "that the Judean kings used until the time of the destruction of the Temple, when, in miraculous fashion, it disappeared. Elijah will in the future fetch it forth and hand it to the Messiah.<55> {FOOTNOTE 55: Ibid. III, p. 307.} For when the Messiah comes, it is by this rod, which bears his name, that he will establish his identity before the people: first of all, we are told, will come Elijah, and to make sure of the identity of the Messiah, the Jews will demand that he perform the miracle of resurrection before their eyes," instead of which he will "wave the sceptre given him by God. . . . Then the Jews will believe that Elijah is the Elijah promised to them and the Messiah introduced by him is the true Messiah."<56> {FOOTNOTE 56: Ibid. IV, p. 234.} The Book of the Bee brings this same staff into the Christian system by claiming that "it belonged to Joseph. . .at the moment of the birth of the Saviour, and it served afterwards as one of the planks in the Cross of Christ."<57> {FOOTNOTE 57: Quoted in A. S. Rappoport, Myth and Legend of Ancient Israel, (London, 1928) II, p. 366: "When Adam was driven out of Paradise, he cut a branch from the fig tree which was the tree of life, and this branch served him as a staff all his life. This staff he left to his son, and it was transmitted from generation to generation till it came into the possession of Abraham. It was with this staff that the Patriarch smashed the idols of his father Terah. Jacob used the staff as he tended the flocks. . . and his son Judah gave it as a pledge to his daughter-in-law Tamar." Later it was hidden by an angel and found by Jethro, who gave it to Moses. "The staff then came into the possession of Phineas, who buried it in the desert. It belonged to Joseph . . . at the moment of the birth of the Saviour, and it served afterwards as one of the planks of the Cross of Christ."}

Note that this staff in the hand of a prophet or patriarch is a true herald's staff, "in intent a king's sceptre, held by the herald as deputy." Thus God is represented as promising to Moses in the hereafter: "and one of my many sceptres upon which is engraved the Ineffable Name, one that I have employed in the creation of the world, shall I give to thee, the image of which I had already given thee in this world."<58> {FOOTNOTE 58: Ginzberg, op. cit., III, pp. 420f.} And thus Moses speaks to the Red Sea: "For a whole day I spoke to thee at the bidding of the Holy One. . .but thou didst refuse to heed my words; even when I showed thee my rod, didst thou remain obdurate."<59> {FOOTNOTE 59: Ibid., III, p. 19.} When Pharoah asked Moses and Aaron, "Who will believe you when you say that you are embassadors of God, as you pretend to be?" the credentials they produced were the rod and its miracles.<60> {FOOTNOTE 60: Ibid., III, p. 335.} This aspect of the rod as a sign to the world that God has given his authority to the holder is very significant, since it represents the power of priesthood: Indeed, the early Christian Fathers insist that the rod is simply a symbolic representation of the power of priesthood: "The rod of Aaron," says Justin Martyr, "bearing blossoms showed him to be the High Priest. A rod from the root of Jesse became the Christ. . . . By the wood God showed himself to Abraham . . . ." <61> {FOOTNOTE 61: Justin Martyr, Dial. with trypho, 86, in Patrol. Graec. VI, 680:1: "The cross is the symbol of the wood of life in Paradise. Moses with a rod was sent to liberate the people; and holding this rod in his hands as commander of the nation he divided the Red Sea. By its power he struck water from the rock, and by throwing it into the waters of Merra he made them sweet. . . . Jacob boasts that he passed through the river on this staff," etc.}

* * * Innocent III tells us that the pontifical staff signifies the power of Christ and quotes Psalms II and XLIV to prove it.<64> {FOOTNOTE 64: In Patrel. Lat. CCXVII, 790.} Yet there are few better-known traditions in the Roman Church than that which reports that the Pope has no rod, because the rod of Peter, the only one he could have, was given by Peter to Eucherius, Bishop of Trier, when he was sent on his mission to the Germans; this rod is said to have raised Eucherius' successor, Mayternus, from the dead, <65> {FOOTNOTE 65: In Patrel. Lat. CCXXI, 690.} just as the rod of Elijah was said to have raised the dead.

2. A king's staff in the hand of another showed that the other was a delegate of the king, with authority to act in his name. The royal staff is thus a sign of power, a scepter.

"Your Question"; The Improvement Era, p. 382-383; by Joseph Fielding Smith, President of the Council of the Twelve; June 1954.

QUESTION: Will you please tell us something about the Urim and Thummim? Was the one used by the Prophet Joseph Smith the one had by Abraham? If so, how did he get it? ANSWER: The history concerning the Urim and Thummim, or "Interpreters" as they are called in the Book of Mormon, is not very clear. Abraham had the Urim and Thummim by which he received revelations of the heavenly bodies, as he has recorded in the book of Abraham. (See Abraham 3:1-4.) What became of these after his death we do not know. Aaron also had the Urim and Thummim, and these were, evidently from the reading of the Bible, handed down among the priests of Aaron from generation to generation. (References: Ex. 28:30, Lev. 8:8, Num. 27:21, Deut. 33:8, 1 Samuel 28:6, Ezra 2:63, Neh. 7:65.) The Lord gave to the brother of Jared the Urim and Thummim which he brought with him to this continent. These were separate and distinct from the Urim and Thummim had by Abraham and in Israel in the days of Aaron. The account of this set is found in Ether 3:22-28, and in part, is as follows:

"And behold, when ye shall come unto me, ye shall write them and shall seal them up, that no one can interpret them; for ye shall write them in a language that they cannot be read.

"And behold, these two stones will I give unto thee, and ye shall seal them up also with the things which ye shall write.

"For behold, the language which ye shall write I have confounded; wherefore I will cause in my own due time that these stones shall magnify to the eyes of men these things which ye shall write.

"And the Lord said unto him: Write these things and seal them up; and I will show them in mine own due time unto the children of men.

"And it came to pass that the Lord commanded him that he should seal up the two stones which he had received, and show them not, until the Lord should show them unto the children of men." (Ether 3:22-24, 27-28.)

We have no record of Lehi bringing with him to America the Urim and Thummim. The Lord did give to Lehi the Liahona, which was a ball which directed him the way he should go, and writing appeared on it from time to time, but this was not the Urim and Thummim. (See D. & C. 17:1.)

King Mosiah possessed ". . . two stones which were fastened into the two rims of a bow" (Mosiah 28:13) called by the Nephites "Interpreters," with which he translated the Jaredite record (see Ibid., 28:11-14), and these were handed down from generation to generation for the purpose of interpreting languages. How Mosiah came into possession of these "two stones" or Urim and Thummim, the record does not tell us, more than to say that it was a "gift from God." (Ibid., 21:28.) Mosiah had this "gift" or Urim and Thummim before the people of Limhi discovered the record of Ether. They may have been received when the "large stone" was brought to Mosiah with engravings upon it, which he interpreted by the "gift and power of God." (Omni 20-21.) They may have been given to him or to some other prophet before his day, just as the brother of Jared received them--from the Lord.

That the Urim and Thummim, or two stones, given to the brother of Jared were those in the possession of Mosiah appears evident from the following statements in the Book of Mormon:

The brother of Jared was commanded to seal up his writings of the vision he had when Christ appeared to him, so that they could not be read by his people. This vision was in a language which was confounded, for it was not to go forth until after the resurrection of Christ. The Urim and Thummim were also sealed up so that they could not be used for the purpose of interpreting those sacred writings of this vision, until such time as the Lord should grant to man to interpret them. When they were to be revealed, they were to be interpreted by the aid of the same Urim and Thummim. (See Ether 3:21-28.)

The people of Limhi brought to Mosiah a record, ". . . engraven on plates of ore," (Mosiah 21:27) which record Mosiah translated by the aid of "two stones which were fastened into the two rims of a bow," and which gave an account of the Jaredites. (See Ibid. 28:11-19.) In translating this record Mosiah kept from going forth to the people that particular part forbidden of the Lord to be revealed until after he was lifted up upon the cross. (See Ether 4:1.) These sacred revelations given to the brother of Jared were kept from the Nephite people, as well as many other things, until after the resurrection of Christ. (See Alma 63:12.) After the appearing of the Savior to the Nephites, the vision of the brother of Jared was revealed to the Nephites. When Moroni made his abridgment of the record of Ether, he copied on his record the vision of the brother of Jared. (See Ether 4:2-7.) At the command of the Lord, however, Moroni also sealed up the greater things in this vision and the "interpreters"--which were the same "two stones" had by the brother of Jared, so that this vision should not be made known even in our day among the Gentiles, in the day of their wickedness (see 2 Nephi 27:8); ". . . until the day that they shall repent of their iniquity, and become clean before the Lord." (Ether 4:6.) So we today do not have the fulness of the account written and sealed up by the brother of Jared and again sealed by Moroni. This part of the record the Prophet Joseph Smith was forbidden to translate. We have, then, received but the "lesser part." (3 Nephi 26:8-11.)

Joseph Smith received with the "breastplate" and the plates of the Book of Mormon, the Urim and Thummim, which were hid up by Moroni to come forth in the last days as a means by which the ancient record might be translated, which Urim and Thummim were given to the brother of Jared. (See D. & C. 17:1.)

The statement has been made that the Urim and Thummim was on the altar in the Manti Temple when that building was dedicated. The Urim and Thummim so spoken of, however, was the seer stone which was in the possession of the Prophet Joseph Smith in early days. This seer stone is now in the possession of the Church.

[22 Sep 1827] * * * At the usual hour I commenced preparing breakfast. My heart fluttered at every footstep, as I now expected Joseph and Emma momentarily and feared lest Joseph might meet with another disappointment [in not obtaining the plates]. * * *

. . . Joseph returned.

I trembled so with fear lest all might be lost in consequence of some failure in keeping the commandments of God that I was under the necessity of leaving the room in order to conceal my feelings. Joseph saw this and said, "Do not be uneasy, mother, all is right--see here, I have got a key."

I knew not what he meant, but took the article of which he spoke into my hands and examined it. He took it again and left me, but said nothing respecting the Record. * * *

Joseph kept the Urim and Thummim constantly about his person, by the use of which he could in a moment tell whether the plates were in any danger. Just before Emma rode up to Mr. Wells', Joseph, from an impression that he had had, came up out of the well in which he was laboring and met her not far from the house. Emma immediately informed him of what had transpired, whereupon he looked in the Urim and Thummim and saw that the Record was as yet safe; . . . .* * *

That of which I spoke, which Joseph termed a key, was indeed, nothing more nor less than the Urim and Thummim, and it was by this that the angel showed him many things which he saw in vision; by which also he could ascertain, at any time, the approach of danger, either to himself or the Record, and on account of which he always kept the Urim and Thummim about his person.

When he returned he requested me to come down stairs. I told him that I could not leave my work just then, yet, upon his urgent request, I finally concluded to go down and see what he wanted, upon which he handed me the breastplate spoken of in his history.

It was wrapped in a thin muslin handkerchief, so thin that I could feel its proportions without any difficulty.

It was concave on one side and convex on the other, and extended from the neck downwards, as far as the center of the stomach of a man of extraordinary size. It had four straps of the same material, for the purpose of fastening it to the breast, two of which ran back to go over the shoulders, and the other two were designed to fasten to the hips. They were just the width of two of my fingers (for I measured them), and they had holes in the end of them, to be convenient in fastening. After I had examined it, Joseph placed it in the chest with the Urim and

Doctrine and Covenants Compendium, pp. 36-37; 71; Sidney B. Sperry; 1960. Commenting on D&C 8:6-9.

Even as the Urim and Thummim and Liahona (1 Nephi 16:10, 16, 26-30; Alma 37:38-39) were sacred instruments given by the Lord to his servants for the purpose of receiving revelation, so the Doctrine and Covenants hints at still another sacred instrument which may have been used by Oliver Cowdery. Among other instructions given to Oliver in Section 8 we find the following:

> Now this is not all thy gift; for you have another gift, which is the gift of Aaron; behold it has told you many things; behold, there is no other power, save the power of God, that can cause this gift of Aaron to be with you. Therefore, doubt not, for it is the gift of God; and you shall hold it in your hands, and do marvelous works: and no power shall be able to take it away out of your hands, for it is the work of God. And, therefore, whatsoever you shall ask me to tell you by that means, that I will grant unto you, and you shall have knowledge concerning it. (8:6-9; underlining ours.)
> It has been said that by the "gift of Aaron" in these verses is meant the gift of speech such as was possessed anciently by Aaron when he acted as a spokesman for Moses. Doubtless Oliver Cowdery was a good speaker, but it should be remembered that the Lord appointed Sidney Rigdon to be the "spokesman" unto Joseph Smith. (100:9-11) The author does not believe that the gift of speech is what is meant in these verses directed to Oliver. It is not likely that the Lord would say to Oliver, "You shall hold it in your hands," (vs. 8) if by that He was referring to the gift of speech. No, the language would appear to refer to some object or instrument of a kind having unusual revelatory properties. And in the original revelation as printed in the Book of Commandments a definite object seems to be meant:
>
> Now this is not all, for you have another gift, which is the gift of working with the rod: behold it has told you things: behold, there is no other power save God, that can cause this rod of nature to work in your hands, for it is the work of God: and therefore you shall ask me to tell you by that means, that will I grant unto you, that you shall know. (Book of Commandments, original ed; 1833. Courtesy Church Historian's Office. Underlining ours.)
> It may be that the Lord gave Joseph and Oliver the rod of Aaron. (See Exodus 4:20; 7:20; Numbers 17:6, 8, 10.)* * *

Now the Lord tells him that he has another gift (vss. 6-9), the gift of Aaron, which has told him many things. No other power, save that of God's can cause this gift of Aaron to be with him. He shall hold it in his hands and do marvelous works. No power shall be able to take it out of his hands, because it is the work of God. Whatsoever Oliver will ask the Lord by means of this gift, he shall have granted, and the Lord will give him knowledge concerning it.

As we have already pointed out in Chapter 3, [above] the gift of Aaron promised to Oliver, is not, it seems the gift of speech but a sacred instrument or object through which he could have the power of revelation. The fact that he can hold it in his hands shows that it is not the gift of speech. As the writer showed in Chapter 3, [above] it is possible that this gift of Aaron is the "Rod of Nature," as appears in the revelation when it was first published in the Book of Commandments. It may be the rod of Aaron mentioned in the Old Testament.

Statement of Louise Belnap; November 29, 1962. Lundwall had pledged not to reveal the source.

According to a statement given to me by Bro. Lundwall Nov. 29, 1962, that he had knowledge that Brig. Young had the Urim and Thummim and it revealed to him (Brig. Young) where the Temple was to be built. He put the "rod" or the Urim and Thummim where the center spot of the Temple [was supposed to be] into the ground until he found a stick to pound into the ground to mark the spot.

THE SEER'S GIFT; OR THE GIFT OF SEEING WITH THE URIM AND THUMMIM

This gift is a peculiar manifestation of the Spirit to the natural eyes, as well as to the mind. The Urim and Thummim is a stone or other substance sanctified and illuminated by the Spirit of the living God, and presented to those who are blessed with the gift of seeing. All Saints cannot see by the illuminations of the Urim and Thummim; but, as we have already said, "to some is given one gift, and to some another." Aaron and the firstborn of his sons who were high priests after the Levitical order, were blessed with this choice gift. And the Lord commanded that the Urim and Thummim should be inserted in the breastplate worn by the high priest. Four rows of precious stones, upon which the names of the twelve tribes of Israel were engraved, adorned the breastplate: these stones were set in gold; and the breastplate was attached by gold rings to a richly wrought ornament, called an ephod.

The Urim and Thummim was the most important part of the breastplate: the other portions, it is true, were not only ornamental, but highly significant of the important office of the high priest as judge in Israel. But is was the Urim and Thummim which emphatically constituted the breastplate, a "breastplate of Judgment." Hence, the Lord, after having described the pattern of the ephod and breastplate, said to Moses, "And thou shalt put in the breastplate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim; and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the Lord: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart before the Lord continually." (Exodus xxviii. 30.)

How Moses first obtained this Urim and Thummim is not revealed: but it is mentioned in this passage, as an instrument already in his possession. It may have been given to him by the Lord upon Mount Sinai, or it may have descended to him from his ancestors.

It was through the Urim and Thummim that Aaron was prepared to judge the twelve tribes. In all difficult cases, arising between man and man, Aaron asked counsel of the Lord by looking in this sacred instrument. Thus he bore "the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart before the Lord continually." The revelations by the Urim were indispensably necessary to the office of a judge over Israel.

After the death of Aaron the ephod and breastplate containing the Urim and Thummim descended by birthright to his son Eleazar: and he became a judge over Israel. Even Joshua, who succeeded Moses, as a great commander and leader of Israel, was commanded to inquire of the Lord through Eleazar the priest, who was to get revelations for him by the Urim. This is plainly taught in the following passages: "And the Lord said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the Spirit, and lay thine hand upon him; and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation; and give him a charge in their sight. And thou shalt put some of thine honor upon him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel be obedient. And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him after the judgment of Urim before the Lord: at his word shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he, and all the children of Israel with him; even all the congregation." (Numbers xxvii. 18-21.) Thus it will be seen, that all Israel went out and came in, and were governed by the revelations of the Urim.

Just previous to Moses' death, he blessed all the tribes of Israel, naming the most important blessings which should characterize each, "And of Levi he said, Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be with thy Holy One." (Deuteronomy xxxiii. 8.) It is evident that Moses considered this sacred instrument to be one of the most important blessings given to the tribe of Levi; and for this reason, it was placed first on the list of blessings enumerated for that tribe. All the rest of the tribes were to receive revelations by the Urim and Thummim through the priesthood of Levi. * * *

Hosea the prophet foretold the future calamities of Israel, among which he predicts the loss of the Ephod and Teraphim. He said, "The children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an image, and without an Ephod, and without Teraphim. Afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the Lord their God, and David their king: and shall fear the Lord and His goodness in the latter days." (Hosea iii. 4,5.) Many long centuries have rolled away, since this prophecy commenced its fulfilment. The Ephod, with its breastplate of judgment, containing the Urim and Thummim, has been absent some two thousand years. But as the "latter days" have come, in which great blessings are to be given to Israel, as predicted in the fifth verse, God has again restored the Urim and Thummim to the great Seer of the last dispensation--Joseph Smith. By this sacred instument, he translated that divine and holy record, the Book of Mormon, or the sacred history of ancient America.

Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, was a descendant of Abraham, and a priest of the Most High God, not after the order of Aaron, but after a higher order. He was a priest of the descendants of Midian, who was the fourth son of Keturah, one of Abraham's wives. The Medianitish priest came into the camp of Israel and gave Moses the pattern after which to organize the whole nation for the proper administration of their theocratical form of government. And Moses did all things as he was directed by this great priest. After which Moses requested him to go with Israel, but Jethro (or Hobab) said unto him, "I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred. And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou mayest be to us instead of eyes." (Numbers x. 30-31.) How could Jethro benefit Israel in their wanderings in the wilderness? By being to them as eyes; that is, by being their Seer. There is but little doubt, from what is recorded, that Jethro had the Urim, or the Seer's divine instrument, through which he could inquire of God; hence, the anxiety of Moses to retain him in the camp, that he might be as eyes to Israel during their long and tedious journey in a solitary and frightful wilderness.

In the revelation to John on Patmos, Jesus says, "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth save he that receiveth it." (Rev. ii. 17.) Now there must be something connected with this stone of more value than the new name written in it. There is undoubtedly a power connected with it, of the same nature as that attending the Urim: or the stone itself will be a Urim and Thummim to the person to whom the new name has been given, and to none others. Each can see in his own white stone, but cannot discern anything in the others. Joseph the Seer, in his interesting history, says, that this white stone will be a Urim and Thumim. He also says, that the "sea of glass," upon which John saw the Saints standing, will be the earth in its sanctified and immortal state; and that in this glorified state, it will be a Urim and Thummim to all the celestial inhabitants who dwell upon it. If a small stone or other material in Aaron's breastplate could be made, by the power of God, to shine forth and illuminate the vision of the Seer; then, by the same power, the whole earth could be filled with the Spirit of God, and be made to shine with celestial glory, like the sun in the firmament of heaven. The glorified inhabitants, of a glorified world, would thus have the means of beholding all kingdoms and worlds of an inferior order.

The "silver cup" which Joseph in Egypt commanded the steward to put in Benjamin's sack, in order to try his brethren, was, most probably, sanctified as a Urim and Thummim to Joseph. Hence, Joseph commanded the steward to pursue his brethen, and say to them, "Is not this it in which my lord drinketh, and whereby indeed he divineth?" And when Joseph's brethren were brought back, he said unto them, "What deed is this that ye have done? Wot ye not that such a man as I can certainly divine?" (See Gen. xliv.) It would be no more difficult for the Lord to sanctify a "Silver Cup," and cause it to be endowed with all the properties of the Urim, than to sanctify a stone or any other material for such a holy purpose. It was the gift of seeing in these holy divine instruments which, without doubt, constituted the difference between a seer and a prophet. The former being a prophet with the additional gift of the Urim; and the latter being a prophet without the aid of that divine instrument.

THE MANNER OF TRANSLATING THE BOOK OF MORMON

Relative to the manner of translating the Book of Mormon the Prophet himself has said but little. "Through the medium of the Urim and Thummim I translated the record by the gift and power of God," is the most extended published statement made by him upon the subject. Of the Urim and Thummim he says: "With the record was found a curious instrument which the ancients called Urim and Thummim, which consisted of two transparent stones set in a rim of a bow fastened to a breast-plate."

Oliver Cowdery says of the work of translation, "I wrote with my own pen the entire Book of Mormon (save a few pages), as it fell from the lips of the Prophet Joseph Smith, as he translated by the gift and power of God, by the means of the Urim and Thummim, or, as they are called by that book, `Holy Interpreters'." This is all that Oliver has left on record on the manner of translating the book.

David Whitmer is more specific on this subject. After describing the means the Prophet employed to exclude the light from the Seer Stone, he says: "In the darkness the spiritual light would shine. A piece of something resembling parchment would appear, and under it was the interpretation in English. Brother Joseph would read off the English to Oliver Cowdery, who was his principal scribe, and when it was written down and repeated to brother Joseph to see if it was correct, then it would disappear, and another character with the interpretation would appear. Thus the Book of Mormon was translated by the gift and power of God and not by any power of man."<15>

[FOOTNOTE 15: Address to all Believers in Christ, a pamphlet published by David Whitmer, 1887, p. 12.]

There will appear between this statement of David Whitmer's and what is said both by Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery a seeming contradiction. Joseph and Oliver both say the translation was done by means of the Urim and Thummim, which is described by Joseph as being "two transparent stones set in a rim of a bow fastened to a breastplate;" while David Whitmer says that the translation was made by means of a Seer Stone. The apparent contradiction is cleared up, however, by a statement made by Martin Harris. He said that the Prophet possessed a Seer Stone, by which he was enabled to translate as well as with the Urim and Thummim, and for convenience he sometimes used the Seer Stone. Martin said further that the Seer Stone differend in appearance entirely from the Urim and Thummim that was obtained with the plates, which were two clear stones set in two rims, very much resembling spectacles, only they were larger.<16>
[FOOTNOTE 16: Harris' Statement. Millennial Star, vol. xliv, pl 87.]

The Seer Stone referred to here was a chocolate-colored, somewhat egg-shaped stone which the Prophet found while digging a well in company with his brother Hyrum, for a Mr. Clark Chase, near Palmyra, N.Y.<17>
[FOOTNOTE 17: Ibid.] It possessed the qualities of Urim and Thummim, since by means of it--as described above--as well as by means of the Interpreters found with the Nephite record, Joseph was able to translate the characters engraven on the plates.

Martin Harris' description of the manner of translating while he was an amanuensis to the Prophet is as follows:

"By aid of the Seer Stone, sentences would appear and were read by the Prophet and written by Martin, and when finished he would say `written;' and if correctly written, the sentence would disappear and another appear in its place; but if not written correctly it remained until corrected, so that the translation was just as it was engraven on the plates, precisely in the language then used."<18> [FOOTNOTE 18: See Tucker's Origin, Rise and Progress of Mormonism, ch. ii.]

The sum of the whole matter, then, concerning the manner of translating the sacred record of the Nephites, according to the testimony of the only witnesses competent to testify in the matter is: With the Nephite record was deposited a curious instrument, consisting of two transparent stones, set in the rim of a bow, somewhat resembling spectacles, but larger, called by the ancient Hebrews Urim and Thummim, but by the Nephites Interpreters. In addition to these Interpreters the Prophet Joseph had a Seer Stone, which to him was as Urim and Thummim; that the Prophet sometimes used one and sometimes the other of these sacred instruments in the work of translation; that whether the Interpreters or the Seer Stone was used the Nephite characters with the English interpretation appeared in the sacred instrument; that the Prophet would pronounce the English translation to his scribe, which, when correctly written, would disappear and other characters with their interpretation take their place, and so on until the work was completed.

It should not be supposed, however, that this translation, though accomplished by means of the Interpreters and Seer Stone, as stated above, was merely a mechanical procedure; that no faith, or mental or spiritual effort was required on the Prophet's part; that the instruments did all, while he who used them did nothing but look and repeat mechanically what he saw there reflected. Much has been written upon this manner of translating the Nephite record, by those who have opposed the Book of Mormon, and chiefly in a sneering way. But the translation of the Book of Mormon by means of the Interpreters and Seer Stone, was not merely a mechanical process. It required the utmost concentration of mental and spiritual force possessed by the Prophet, in order to exercise the gift of translation through the means of the sacred instruments provided for that work. Fortunately we have the most perfect evidence of the fact, though it could be inferred from the general truth that God sets no premium upon mental or spiritual laziness; for whatever means God may have provided to assist man to arrive at the truth, he has always made it necessary for man to couple with those means his utmost endeavor of mind and heart. So much in the way of reflection; now as to the facts referred to.

In his Address to All Believers in Christ, David Whitmer says:

> "At times when brother Joseph would attempt to translate he would look into the hat in which the stone was placed, [to exclude the light], he found he was spiritually blind and could not translate. He told us that his mind dwelt too much on earthly things, and various causes would make him incapable of proceeding with the translation. When in this condition he would go out and pray, and when he became sufficiently humble before God, he could then proceed with the translation. Now we see how very strict the Lord is, and how he requires the heart of man to be just right in his sight before he can receive revelation from him."

In a statement to Wm. H. Kelley and G. A. Blakeslee, the latter of Gallen, Michigan, under date of Septermber 15th, 1882, David Whitmer said of Joseph Smith and the necessity of his humility and faithfulness while translating the Book of Mormon:

> "He was a religious and straightforward man. He had to be; for he was illiterate and he could do nothing himself. He had to trust in God. He could not translate unless he was humble and possessed the right feelings towards everyone. To illustrate so you can see: One morning when he was getting ready to continue the translation, something went wrong about the house and he was put out about it. Something that Emma, his wife, had done. Oliver and I went upstairs and Joseph came up soon after to continue the translation but he could not do anything. He could not translate a single syllable. He went downstairs, out into the orchard, and made supplication to the Lord; was gone about an hour--came back to the house, and asked Emma's forgiveness and then came upstairs where we were and then the translation went on all right. He could do nothing save he was humble and faithful."<19> [FOOTNOTE 19: Braden-Kelley Debate, p. 186.]

The manner of translation is so far described by David Whitmer and Martin Harris, who received their information necessarily from Joseph Smith, and doubtless it is substantially correct. . . .

One item mentioned by President Woodruff about the private dedicatory services at Manti [May 17, 1888] is of more than passing interest. "Before leaving," he writes, "I consecrated upon the altar the Seer Stone that Joseph Smith found by revelation some thirty feet under the earth, and carried by him through life." This is the very Seer Stone that the Prophet Joseph Smith used part of the time when translating the Book of Mormon; the one he took from the well he was digging with his brother Hyrum, near Palmyra, for Mr. Clark Chase.

Statement by Nels B. Lundwall to Ogden Kruat; 22 April 1967.

During the 1920's I became a very close acquaintance of J. Golden Kimball. On one occasion he told me that while he was a young man the family cows wandered away and became lost. They hunted everywhere for them, but to no avail. Someone suggested that they go to a certain person who was known to have a "seer stone;" so they proceeded to that person and inquired if they could locate the cows for them. The person used the stone and told them where the cows could be found. Golden said that they went to the place that was specified and there were the cows!

. . . Religion becomes magic when the power by which things operate is transferred from God to the things themselves. . . . When men lack revelation they commonly come to think of power as residing in things. Did the "Staff of Moses" make water come from the rock or cause the Red Sea to part? Of course not, yet in time the miraculous powers which were displayed through its agency come to be attributed by men to the staff itself. It became a magic thing, like Solomon's Seal, which possessed in itself the wonder-working powers which gave Solomon his ascendancy over men and beasts.

. . . Alma told Helaman that in this connection he should be careful to preserve the interpreters. This has reference to the Urim and Thummim which had come into the hands of King Mosiah back around 225 B.C., shortly after the Jaredites were wiped out in civil war. This particular set of Urim and Thummim (which seems to have been a different set than the one possessed by Moses and Aaron) and originally been given to the Jaredites (D.C. 17:1) and then transferred to Mosiah about the time he was led into the land of Zarahemla and asked to interpret a stone inscription made by the last survivor of the Jaredites named Coriantumr (Omni, verses 20-22). Mosiah never disclosed the circumstances under which he received the Jaredite Urim and Thummim, but Alma knew its history and furnishes us a number of extremely interesting facts concerning it in the next verse.

23. Alma says that when the secret combinations began spreading among the Jaredites the Lord said: "I will prepare unto my servant Gazelem (identified in D.C. 17:1 as the brother of Jared) a stone (actually a set of stones but treated as a single instrument) which shall shine forth in darkness unto light (through revelation), that I may discover (reveal) unto my people (the Jaredites)...the works of their brethren, yea, their secret works, their works of darkness, and their wickedness and abominations."

Orson Pratt said "Gazelem" meant a person who has been given the Urim and Thummim (See J.D. Vol. 16, p. 156). Note that the stone given to Gazelem is spoken of in the singular, whereas the next verse calls it "interpreters" in the plural. Even in the Bible the word "Urim" is sometimes used to designate both the Urim and Thummim. The words "stone" and "Urim" seem to be collective terms to designate the instrument used for translation and revelations. As such, it would be singular, whereas in point of fact it consisted of TWO stones. Note that after Joseph Smith received the Urim and Thummim he was sometimes referred to as "Gazelem" (see D.C. 81:11). We should also observe that the first Jaredite to receive the Urim and Thummim was Jared's brother (D.C. 17:1) and therefore he would appear to be the original Gazelem or Seer to whom the Lord was referring in this present verse. God prepared this sacred instrument in anticipation of the secret combinations which He knew would eventually need to be exposed among the Jaredites.
24. These sacred "interpreters" had somehow been transferred from the Jaredites (probably from their last prophet, Ether) to the Nephite Prophet, King Mosiah, and then transferred down from Mosiah to Benjamin, from Benjamin to Mosiah II, and from Mosiah II to Alma (Mosiah 28:20). Alma wanted Helaman to know that these interpreters would continue to serve God's original purpose when he said:
25. "I will bring forth out of darkness unto light (by revelation) all their secret works and their abominations." This was so that the prophets could call them to repentance. If they did not respond God would thereafter destroy them. This is exactly what happened to the Jaredites and the Lord said he would use this same policy in connection with every nation which thereafter inhabited this land (of America).

It is also interesting that Bruce R. McConkie's "available leisure time" is given to searching out, polishing, and shaping rocks. He is an avid lapidarist. Several times he has been in danger in his efforts to extract valuable rocks from the holes and cliffs where they are found: and once his life was spared miraculously as the Spirit of the Lord prompted his pulling back as a mass of rock fell just where he had been.

Letter from Steve Barnett to President Spencer W. Kimball; March 16, 1975.

Dear President Kimball:
May I congratulate you for a most successful conference in South America this past couple of weeks. I am sure that the results will be greatly beneficial to our Brothers in the South, as well as to the Saints all over the world. I am sure that the new Temple will prove to be one of the busiest and most fruitful.
I have just located a copy of a most interesting letter from your grandfather, President Heber C. Kimball, which he wrote while crossing the plains in 1846. Although the copy is somewhat difficult to read, I am sure you will find it most interesting as it concerns oxen for the trip west. This copy is for your own use as I have already sent one off to the Church Historical Department for their files.

I was sorry to hear that the Chruch was not interested in purchasing the home of Brigham Young's father in Mendon, New York but I suppose it would be impossible for us to buy every Church-related spot in the country. I can report that the owners of the home were very cordial to me when I visited Mendon last summer, as I am sure they were to you on your previous visit there. I am sure that any member of the Church wishing to visit the home will be treated very well, no matter who owns the property itself.

I should report what has been accomplished since you gave me my first lead in collecting the "Canes of the Martyrdom" belonging to President Heber C. Kimball which were carved from the original coffins of the martyrs in which they were brought home from Carthage. The Kimball family was extremely cooperative and friendly concerning my quest for information. One quite important fact I found was that there were two sets of canes manufactured and your grandfather had at least one of both variety. We already knew about the canes carved from the Carthage coffins, but James Bird of Nauvoo evidently carved three canes from the remnants of the permanent coffins, and President Heber C. Kimball was given one of these too. Brigham Young received the second one and Mr. Bird evidently retained the third. If I should locate anything else that is interesting concerning the Kimball canes, I shall let you know. I am also tracing the canes belonging to Brigham Young and am trying to start on the canes of Willard Richards. Thank you for the initial help you gave to me in contacting the Kimball family. It is greatly appreciated.

May God bless you bountifully in the great responsibilities of your office.

Sincerely your brother,
/s/ Steve Barnett

Just before Harold B. Lee became the President of the Church, Joseph Fielding Smith was approached by Brother Dan Ludlow. Brother Ludlow was on the church committee for translating, and a man called him on the phone and says; "Hey, I've got the first part of the Book of Mormon in Hebrew. Would you like to buy it? He said "Yes, I certainly would." Because they were struggling with that particular translation. And so be brought it in and gave it to Brother Ludlow. Brother Ludlow took it in to President Joseph Fielding Smith and said, "Look what I've got." And President Joseph Fielding Smith said, "Thank you for returning stolen property." He took it, put it in his drawer, and kept it. They couldn't find out what had happened until after his death; then they went to Bruce McConkie who was the executor of the estate and asked him if they couldn't look in the safe and see if the rest of it was there, because they got word somehow that a man called Miller, a Jewish convert to the church in the 20's, had translated the Book of Mormon into Hebrew. Harold B. Lee gave them a letter to take to Bruce McConkie, because Bruce McConkie says, "No, I can't open the safe without a letter from the First Presidency because it has been left to the First Presidency. It has been willed to them." So they got the letter, opened up the safe, and there was the seer stone and a number of other various secret things, and the whole Book of Mormon in Hebrew.

One of the original pulpits is also preserved in the historical room [of the St. George Temple]. "This is the one Brigham Young struck," President Bowler continued, pointing to the holes made by the cane. "He was speaking, got strong and struck the pulpit. There's more than one story about how that happened. Brother Lorraine Cox heard his grandmother say that when he struck it, fire came down and burned the holes. His grandmother saw it. Fire came from the end of the cane. Just last Thursday, Sister Bleak called me. (Her late husband, Earl J. Bleak, was a grandson of James G. Bleak, who was a scribe for President Young.) After the Temple dedication, Brigham Young left some personal belongings with James G. Bleak. The cane Brigham Young hit the pulpit with was with them. Sister Bleak asked me what I would do with the cane if she gave it to me and I said I'd display it in a glass case over the pulpit in the Historical Room."

President Bowler obtained the cane from Sister Bleak. He picked it up and remarked, "You know, had I been President Young, I'd of held it this way with the end down. He was a short man, about like me. I turned the cane over and asked, `Have you ever noticed that on the end of that cane, there's a burned spot. It's a deeply-embedded spot on the end of the cane. It's not on the outside, but its like it was burned from the inside.' Choose what you will . . . which of the two stories. . . but on the end of that cane, there is a burned spot. You can believe what you want, but it's there," concluded President Bowler as we stood in the beautiful Historical Room of the St. George Temple.

The Historians Corner
Edited by James B. Allen

Two interesting essays are included in this issue of The Historians Corner. The first is by Steven G. Barnett, an inveterate collector of little-known facts and documents in Mormon history. His discussion of "The Canes of the Martyrdom" clearly demonstrates the love and reverence Joseph Smith's closest associates held for him. But it also provides some significant insight into the nature of some Mormon believers whose devotion to the relics assoicated with their martyred prophet bordered on veneration.

THE CANES OF THE MARTYRDOM

Steven G. Barnett Shortly after the martyrdom of the Prophet Joseph Smith in 1844, unusual mementos in his memory--wooden canes--were fashioned from the oak planks of the rough-hewn coffin in which the body was returned to Nauvoo. The history of these mementos--the Canes of the Martyrdom--is elusive, but some conclusions may be drawn from what little solid information can be found.

The canes themselves were given to a small group of the Prophet's friends. How many canes there were originally, to whom the canes were given, and how many of these canes exist today are matters of pure conjecture. We do know that Willard Richards, Heber C. Kimball, Dimick Huntington, Wilford Woodruff, and probably Brigham Young had such canes. Today, the only authenticated Martyrdom cane carved from the wood of the oak coffins at Carthage known to exist is that of Dimick Huntington. Perhaps those belonging to Heber C. Kimball and Perrigrine Sessions are also still in existence. <1> {FOOTNOTE 1: An undated Church News article entitled "Story of the Cane--Discloses Saga of Pioneers" by Courtney Cottam who interviews Thomas Sessions, a son of Perrigrine Sessions, has been brought to the attention of the author. In this article Thomas Sessions states the following concerning the cane in his possession at that time: "The cane is hardwood. It is made from the wood of the same tree the planks for the prophet's coffin was made from" (photocopy of this article in collection of author.)}

The Huntington Cane is 33-1/2" long, made from medium brown oak, with a hollowed knob handle containing a lock of Joseph Smith's hair. Originally, a piece of glass (from the viewing screen of the coffin in which Joseph Smith was laid in state)<2> {FOOTNOTE 2: Joseph Smith's body may have been placed in as many as three different coffins in 1844. These would be the rough oak box he was placed in at Carthage, the outer coffin used while the body lay in state at the Mansion House (which was then filled with bags of sand and buried at the cemetery), and the coffin in which the body was buried secretly in the basement of the Nauvoo House. Perhaps these precautions were taken to protect the bodies from any mutilation that may have been planned by the Prophet's enemies. (See B. H. Roberts, A Comprehensive History of the Church, 6 vols. [Provo, Utah: Brigham Young University Press, 1965], 2:293.)} covered the hole in the knob, having been affixed to a metal guard placed just inside the top of the cane, but this metal guard has since been broken. The glass is intact, however, still covering the hair it was meant to protect at the base of the knob's hollowed inside. Just below the knob, there is also a band of metal on the shaft, as well as a metal tip at the base of the cane.<3> {FOOTNOTE 3: Oliver Boardman Huntington Journal, MS, Book 18, pp. 62-64, Archives and Manuscripts Department, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University, Provo. Under the date of Monday, 8 March 1897, Huntington writes (original spelling and punctuation retained throughout this article):

> I had with me a cane made of the rough box hastily nailed body together into which the Prophet Joseph Smiths ^ was placed after he was murdered and brought to Nauvoo from Carthage.
> In the top of the cain was a lock of his hair which was taken from his head after he had been buried 7 months. My brother William his head took it off ^ as he and my brother Dimick were moving the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum from where they were first buried, in the cellar of the Nauvoo House, to the cellar or pit under a little outhouse that was built exclusively for that purpose. The glass over his face was broken and they saved some of that glass And a piece of that glass covered the hair in the top of the cain, and then a piece of metal with a round hole in the center was over the glass and hair Through the hole in the metal (alluminum) the hair could be seen.
> At the Party on that evening the cane and its history became known and was viewed, inspected, admired and handled by each individual, and was constantly on the move until 12 o'clock at night. I was invited to give a history of the cane and of the burial and reburial of the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, which I did. The cain came into my possession in this way
> It was my brother Dimicks cane in the first place. The whole box that Josephs body was brought to Nauvoo in was sawed up into strips suitable to make walking canes of and divided out among his special friends.
> After the death of Dimick the cane became Allens, and he told me to take and keep it until he called for it.
> He died without calling for it at all.}

References to the Martyrdom canes appear rather frequently in LDS literature. In Brigham Young by M. R. Werner, we read:

> The memory of the Prophet was perpetuated a few days later. The rough boards which had been used as temporary coffins were sawed in pieces and distributed among Joseph's and Hyrum's friends, who had canes made of them, each with a lock of the Prophet's hair set in the top. These canes are considered sacred relics to-day.<4> {FOOTNOTE 4: M. R. Werner, Brigham Young (New York: Harcourt, Brace Co., 1925), p. 182.

Matthias F. Cowley, in his Wilford Woodruff: History of His Life and Labors, says:

> Before leaving Nauvoo, he paid a visit to Emma Smith to whose life he sought to bring consolation in the hour of her bereavement. She gave him a piece of oak for a staff. The oak had been taken from Joseph Smith's coffin.

Apostle Cowley also speaks of President Woodruff's visit to Mary Fielding Smith, widow of Hyrum Smith, where he was given locks of the hair from the heads of Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, Samuel H. Smith, and Don Carlos Smith. President Woodruff commented on the reason for collecting these relics:

> I also obtained some hair of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles. My purpose in getting it was that I might put a part of each of these collections in the knob of my staff as a relic of those noble men, the master spirits of the nineteenth century.<5> {FOOTNOTE 5: Matthias F. Cowley, Wilford Woodruff: History of His Life and Labors (Salt Lake City, Utah: Bookcraft, 1971), pp. 227-28. A more precise account of this event is found in Wilford Woodruff's diary under the date of 23 August 1844:
> > I met with the quorum of the Twelve in Council a little time or some of them. I visited Emma Smith the widow of the prophet--she let me have a peace of oak for a Staff > > out of the coffin of the Prophet Joseph who was inhumanly martered in Carthage All in company with his brother Hiram. Emma also let me have a Pair of gloves composed of white cotton and Mrs [?] Woodruff--a pair Cotton handerchief both of which the Prophet wore, while living. We called upon Sister Mary Smith widow of Hiram Smith the Patriarch. She gave us some hair from the head of Joseph Smith, Hiram Smith, Samuel Smith, & Don Carloss Smith, all brothers, of the same Parents I also obtained some hair of the quorum of the Twelve Apostles in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter day Saints my object was in putting a portion of each in the top of my Staff as a relick of those noble men, master spirits of the nineteenth centaury, to hand down to my posterity. to deposit in the most Holy and Sacred place in the Holy temple of GOD on the consecrated Hill of Zion. (Wilford Woodruff Journal, 23 August 1844, Library-Archives of the Historical Department of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Church Office Building, Salt Lake City, Utah.)}

Don Corbett also relates this story in his Mary Fielding Smith: Daughter of Britain.<6> {FOOTNOTE 6: Don C. Corbett, Mary Fielding Smith: Daughter of Britain (Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Co., 1970), p. 174.}

In the Life of Heber C. Kimball by Orson F. Whitney, Heber C. Kimball is quoted as testifying to the healing virtues of these canes:

> How much would you give for even a cane that Father Abraham had used, or a coat or ring that the Savior had worn? The rough oak boxes in which the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum were brought from Carthage, were made into canes and other articles. I have a cane made from the plank of one of those boxes, so has Brother Brigham and a great many others, and we prize them highly and esteem them a great blessing. I want to carefully preserve my cane, and when I am done with it here I shall hand it down to my heir, with instructions to him to do the same. And the day will come when there will be multitudes who will be healed and blessed through the instrumentality of those canes, and the devil cannot overcome those who have them, in consequence of their faith and confidence in the virtues connected with them.

Further on in the same speech, Heber C. Kimball is quoted as saying:

> In like manner I have sent my cane. Dr. Richards used to lay his old black cane on a person's head and that person has been healed through its instrumentality, by the power of God.<7> {FOOTNOTE 7: Orson F. Whitney, Life of Heber C. Kimball (Salt Lake City: Bookcraft, 1967), pp. 465-66. The discourse cited here was delivered on 15 March 1857. The complete text is found in Journal of Discourses, 26 vols. (London: Latter-day Saints' Book Depot, 1855-1886; reprint ed., 1967), 4:292-95.}

John D. Lee's Confessions also refer to the cane-carving incident.<8> {FOOTNOTE 8: John D. Lee, Mormonism Unveiled: or the Life and Confessions of the late Mormon Bishop John D. Lee (St. Louis, Mo.: Bryan, Brand & Co., 1877), p. 153. This passage states that "the remains of the Prophet and his brother were laid in a sepulcher made of stone. The rough boards, which once enclosed them, were sawed in pieces and distributed among their friends, many of whom had canes made of the pieces, with a lock of the hair of the Prophet set in the top of them, and those canes are kept as sacred relics to this day."}

Current editions of Parley P. Pratt's Autobiography carry an illustration of Willard Richards holding his cane.<9> {FOOTNOTE 9: Parley P. Pratt, Autobiography of Parley P. Pratt (Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Co., 1968), p. 407.} An enlarged version of the same collection of pictures of the Twelve Apostles under Brigham Young also appears in William Edwin Berrett's The Restored Church.<10> {FOOTNOTE 10: William Edwin Berrett, The Restored Chruch (Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Co., 1969), p. 269.} Willard Richards's cane seems to be identical to the Huntington cane.

There were also some other canes made which have at times been mistaken for those made from the Carthage coffins. James Bird, a cabinet maker assigned to the project, fashioned three canes from the wood left over from the construction of the burial coffins of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. One of these was presented to Brigham Young, one to Heber C. Kimball, and the last retained by Mr. Bird. The Bird cane is a straight stick with an ivory handle that measures 4-1/2" long. The cane itself is 32-1/2" long with a 1" brass band at its tip. This cane is now preserved by the Bird family in California.<11> {FOOTNOTE 11: Correspondence of the Bird family with author, 18 November 1974 and 10 December 1974. This correspondence includes a photograph of the James Bird cane.} Members of the Kimball family claim that at one time Heber C. Kimball had three canes connected to the Martyrdom. One of those three canes has been described as 34-1/2" long of solid oak construction. The handle is a solid knob of 1", banded at its base by a brass ring. The tip of the cane is also brass capped. This is the cane the Kimball family feels was used by Heber C. Kimball for healing purposes, and it is owned by family members living in Salt Lake City.<12> {FOOTNOTE 12: Correspondence of the Kimball family with author, 14 July 1974. Another cane belonging to Heber C. Kimball was embellished with a gold handle inscribed with "The Kingdom of God or Nothing--Heber C. Kimball." This cane is also thought by the Kimball family to be related to the Martyrdom.}

There is also a possibility that some bogus canes have been made which have been mistaken for those directly connected with the martyrdom. William R. Hamilton, writing to S. H. B. Smith from Carthage, Illinois, on 18 March 1898, states:

> Soon after the killing of the Smiths, Father had the bodies brought to our home, and rough pine coffins made in which they were placed. Those boards have furnished material for thousands of walking canes.

It is improbable that there was enough wood available from two coffins for "thousands of walking canes," and William Hamilton may have been joking as he referred to such claims. If not, he may simply have been in error, for he is the only source that gives any description of the coffin wood being other than oak. The Huntington cane is definitely oak, and Mr. Hamilton may have forgotten some of the facts over the intervening fifty-four years; he was a boy of fourteen at the time of these events.<13> {FOOTNOTE 13: William R. Hamilton to S. H. B. Smith, 18 March 1898, photocopy in collection of author. William R. Hamilton's father, Artois Hamilton, was the owner of the Hamilton Hotel in Carthage, where much of the drama of Joseph Smith's last days took place.}

Some individuals have claimed that these canes have a hidden, dark meaning other than their sentimental and healing virtues. Raymond W. Taylor, in an unpublished article entitled "The Legend of the Friends of the Martyrs," suggests an oath of vengence.<14> {FOOTNOTE 14: Raymond W. Taylor, "Legend of the Friends of the Martyrs," MS, 23 July 1970, collection of the author. Raymond W. Taylor is pictured holding the Huntington cane on p. 208 [of BYU Studies]. Harry M. Beardsley claims that the canes served as a symbol of status: "Later, the wood was split into short lengths and distributed among the leaders of the Church. For many years walking-sticks made from the wood were recognized as emblems of rank and authority." (Beardsley, Joseph Smith and His Mormon Empire [Cambridge, Mass.: Houghton Mifflin Co.: Riverside Press, 1931],p. 370.)} In this theory, the canes were symbolic of the owner's oath of revenge against those who spilled the blood of the Prophet of God. However, the basis for such a belief appears to be purely circumstantial.

The Canes of the Martyrdom are a very real part of the Mormon heritage. Shrouded in mystery as they are, the canes stand as a testimony of the love the owners shared for the Prophet Joseph Smith and his work.

Old Testament: Genesis-2 Samuel (Religion 301) Student Manual; The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; p. 152; 1981.

The Urim and Thummim. As noted above, the Urim and Thummim was carried in the pouch formed when the breastplate was folded over (see Exodus 28:30). A urim and thummim has been given to many prophets in all ages and has a transcending effect concerning the further light and knowledge they obtain.

"A Urim and Thummim consists of two special stones called seer stones or interpreters. The Hebrew words urim and thummim, both plural, mean lights and perfections. Presumably one of the stones is called Urim and the other Thummim. Ordinarily they are carried in a breastplate over the heart. (Ex. 28:30; Lev. 8:8.). . .

". . . Abraham had them in his day (Abra. 3:1-4), and Aaron and the priests in Israel had them from generation to generation. (Ex. 28:30; Lev. 8:8; Num. 27:21; Deut. 33:8; 1 Sam. 28:6; Ezra 2:63; Neh. 7:65.) . . .

". . . Ammon said of these same stones: `The things are called interpreters, and no man can look in them except he be commanded, lest he should look for that he ought not and he should perish. And whosoever is commanded to look in them, the same is called seer.' (Mosiah 8:13; 28:13-16.)

"The existence and use of the Urim and Thummim as an instrument of revelation will continue among exalted beings in eternity." (McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, pp. 818-19.)

The Urim and Thummim of Aaron was not the same as that used by Joseph Smith, for the Prophet received the Urim and Thummim used by the brother of Jared (see McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, p. 819.)

"Recent Events Involving Church History and Forged Documents"; Dallin H. Oaks, Quorum of the Twelve Apostles; The Ensign; October 1987, pp. 68-69; a talk given at Brigham Young University; 6 Aug 87. It should be recognized that such tools as the Urim and Thummim, the Liahona, seerstones, and other articles have been used appropriately in biblical, Book of Mormon, and modern times by those who have the gift and authority to obtain revelation from God in connection with their use. * * *

Some sources close to Joseph Smith claim that in his youth, during his spiritual immaturity prior to his being entrusted with the Book of Mormon plates, he sometimes used a stone in seeking for treasure. Whether this is so or not, we need to remember that no prophet is free from human frailties, especially before he is called to devote his life to the Lord's work. Line upon line, young Joseph Smith expanded his faith and understanding and his spiritual gifts matured until he stood with power and stature as the Prophet of the Restoration.

A New Witness for God, 2:106-108; BHR [B. H. Roberts?].

Oliver Cowdery, one of the Three Witnesses of the Book of Mormon, and the Prophet's chief amanuensis, says of the work of translation in which he assisted: "I wrote with my own pen the entire Book of Mormon (save a few pages), as it fell from the lips of the Prophet Joseph Smith, as he translated by the gift and power of God, by the means of the Urim and Thummim, or, as it is called by that book, `Holy Interpreters'." (Mosiah 8:13) This is all he has left on record on the manner of translating the book. (Statement of Oliver Cowdery, Oct. 21, 1848, Kanesville, Iowa).

David Whitmer, another of the Three Witnesses, is more specific on this subject. After describing the means the Prophet employed to exclude the light from the "Seer Stone," (he used his hat) he says: "In the darkness the spiritual light would shine. A piece of something resembling parchment would appear, and under it was the interpretation in English. Brother Joseph would read off the English to Oliver Cowdery, who was his principal scribe, and when it was written down and repeated to Brother Joseph to see if it was correct, then it would disappear, and another character with the interpretation would appear. Thus the Book of Mormon was translated by the gift and power of God and not by any power of man." ("An Address to all Believers in Christ:, 12, DW)* * *

The apparent contradiction is cleared up, however, by a statement made by Martin Harris, another of the Three Witnesses. He said that the Prophet possessed a "Seer Stone," by which he was enabled to translate as well as from the Urim and Thummim, and for convenience he then (i.e., at the time Harris was acting as his scribe) used the Seer Stone. . . . Martin said further that the Seer Stone differed in appearance entirely from the Urim and Thummim that was obtained with the plates, which were two clear stones set in two rims, very much resembling spectacles, only they were larger. (Harris statement to Edward Stevenson, MS 44:87)

The "Seer Stone" referred to here was a chocolate-colored, somewhat egg-shaped stone which the Prophet found while digging a well in company with his brother Hyrum. (LJS, Cannon, 56) It possessed the qualitites of Urim and Thummim, since by means of it--as described above--as well as by means of the "Interpreters" found with the Nephite record, Joseph was able to translate the characters engraven on the plates.

DESCRIPTION OF THE URIM AND THUMMIM, BREASTPLATE, AND GOLDEN PLATES
By George Q. Cannon

The Urim and Thummim was as the angel had described it--two precious stones set in an arch of silver which was fastened to an ancient breastplate of pure gold, curiously wrought. The breastplate was concave on one side and convex on the other, and seemed to have been made for a man of greater stature than is ordinary in modern days. Four golden bands were fastened to it, for the purpose of attaching it to the person of its wearer--two of the bands being for the shoulders, the others for the waist or hips.

The plates, also of gold, were of uniform size; each was slightly less in thickness than a common sheet of tin and was about eight inches in width; and all were bound together by three rings, running through one edge of the plates. Thus secured, they formed a book about six inches in thickness. A part of the volume, about one-third, was sealed; the other leaves Joseph turned with his hand. They were covered on both sides with strange characters, small and beautifully engraved.

Joseph Smith Canes; source & date unknown.

Among the sacred momentos that have played a notable role in promoting and instilling faith in men's hearts in these latter days are what have come to be known as "the Joseph Smith canes." The use of these canes made from rough oak boxes which transported the martyred Prophet and Patriarch from Carthage Jail to Nauvoo was by no means a new innovation for the healing of the sick introduced during this Last Dispensation; but it was an ancient practice which existed during Old Testament times when Elisha, a holy man of God, instructed his servant Gehazi to take his [Elisha's] staff and go with a Shunammite woman and bring her dead son back to life by laying the staff upon the child's face. (2 Kings 4:17-20, 27-31)

As Elisha's staff was used as a healing device anciently, the canes made from the boards of Joseph and Hyrum's temporary coffins were used as instruments of faith to bring about similar miracles.

It is only through the exercise of faith in God that the spirit of life which restores the dead to life itself or the spirit of healing which makes a sick person well again can attend the canes used in bringing about these miraculous events.

Abraham A. Kimball Journal MSS; p. 216; no date given.

I have a cane made from one of the boards of the boxes that the Prophets Joseph and Hyrum was brought from Carthage in accordance to the statement made by Heber C. Kimball now in print, and I consider the statement authentic. How many canes were made from said boxes I am unable to say, but I believe the one I have to be genuine; and shall claim the promises while I live for them and if I am deceived in the cane, God will forgive me, I hope. Although I am fully aware no benefit or blessing will follow for the blessing. One of the promises concerning the cane was, that the time would come when hundreds would be healed by their instrumentality and through the faith those had in them, that owned them. And the devil should not have power to overcome them, through their faith. The same kind of faith, I suppose, that the world was formed by, the mountains removed and the dead raised.

Historical Record; pp. 216, 384, & 632; LDS Church Archives.
Martin said that after continued translation they would become weary, and would go down to the river and exercise by throwing stones out on the river, etc. While so doing, on one occasion, Martin Harris found a stone very much resembling the one used for translating, and on resuming their labor of translation, he put in place the stone he had found. He said that the Prophet remained silent, unusually and intently gazing in darkness, no traces of the usual sentences appearing. Much surprised, Joseph exclaimed, "Martin! What is the matter? All is as dark as Egypt!" Martin's countenance betrayed him, and the Prophet asked Martin why he had done so. Martin said, to stop the mouths of fools, who had told him that the Prophet had learned those sentences and was merely repeating them, etc.

The subject of the [Hiram Page] stone . . . was discussed, and after considerable investigation, Brother Page, as well as the whole Church who was present, renounced the said stone, and all things connected therewith, much to our mutual satisfaction and happiness.

The Urim and Thummim, mentioned in the account of the vision, were a pair of transparent stone spectacles. Smith would put on the spectacles, when a few words of the text of the Book of Mormon would appear on the lenses. When these were correctly transcribed by Cowdery, who acted as his amanuensis, these words would disappear and others take their place. When 116 pages were completed, Smith entrusted them to Martin Harris, to take to his home with a view to convert his family to the new faith. They were placed at night in a bureau drawer and next morning were missing, having been stolen. They were never found and never replaced, so that the Book of Mormon today is short that number of pages of the original matter. As a chastisement for this carelessness, the Urim and Thummim was taken from Smith. But by humbling himself, he again found favor with the Lord and was presented with a strange oval-shaped, chocolate colored stone, about the size of an egg, but more flat, which it was promised should answer the same purpose. With this stone all the present book was translated. The Prophet would place the stone in a hat, then put his face in the hat and read the words that appeared thereon. This stone was confided to Oliver Cowdery and preserved by him until his death in 1850. After that event, Phineas Young succeeded in getting it from Cowdery's widow, and it is now among the sacred relics preserved at Salt Lake City.

Jane Manning James Autobiography, p. 19; holograph in LDS Church Archives.

One morning I met Brother Joseph coming out of his mothers room he said good morning and shook hands with me. I went in to his mothers room she said good morning bring me that bundle from my bureau and sit down here. I did as she told me, she placed the bundle in my hands and said, handle this and after I had done it she said sit down. Do you remember that I told you about the Urim and Thummim when I told you about the Book of Mormon, I answered yes mam. She then told me I had just handled it, you are not permitted to see it, but you have been permitted to handle it. You will live long after I am dead and gone and you can tell the Latter-day Saints, that you was permitted to handle the Urim and Thummim.

Origin, Rise and Progress of Mormonism, Chap. 2.

By the aid of the seer stone, sentences would appear and were read by the Prophet and written by Martin, and when finished he would say "written;" and if correctly written, the sentence would disappear and another appear in its place; but if not written correctly it remained until corrected, so that the translation was just as it was engraven on the plates, precisely in the language then used.

Reminiscences of the Prophet Joseph, p. 5 & 27; by Stevenson.

I [Joseph Smith] have, by the aid of the Urim and Thummim, seen those martyrs [for Christianity] and they were honest, devoted followers of Christ according to the light they possessed; they will be saved. * * *

I found that the Urim and Thummim consisted of two smooth three-cornered diamonds, set in glass, and the glasses were set in silver bows which were connected with each other, in much the same way as old fashioned spectacles only much larger.

Wandle Mace Diary, p. 66; microfilm in LDS Church Archives.

Uncle John visited us and during his stay we related to him our experience (with evil spirits) and we learned from him that. . . in Staffordshire a branch of the Church was organized at the Potteries and Elder Alfred Cordon was president; among those who embraced the Gospel at this place were some who had practiced magic, or astrology. They had books which had been handed down for many generations; they also had two stones, about the size of goose eggs; they were rough uncouth looking stones--one end was flattened so they could be placed on a table. When they wished to gain information from this source, they would place these stones upon a table, and kneel down and pray to one who they addressed as Sameazer, which they called "charging the stones," when upon looking into them they saw what they sought for. For instance, a young woman, whose sister joined the church and emigrated to Nauvoo, not hearing from her, became very anxious, and to learn something about her, went to one of these astrologers, or magicians to inquire if her sister was well or something about her. The magician after charging the stones as before explained, told her to look into them. The young woman did so and said she saw her sister sitting upon something but could not describe what kind of a seat it was--by the side of a curious looking house, and apparently in good health. This satisfied her that her sister was safe and well, but the house and the seat her sister was on she could not understand what it could be.

This young woman, afterwards, joined the church and came to her sister who was living on a farm a short distance from Nauvoo, a worn fence enclosed the farm and log house, and it was upon this fence near the log house that she had seen her sister sitting when she looked into the magician's stones in Staffordshire, England.

This is the substance of the narration as I heard it from Uncle John. Sometime after I moved to Nauvoo I became acquainted with Elder Alfred Cordon, who related to me the same; he also said the books with the stones were placed into his hands by these men after they joined the church, and he gave them to Apostle George A. Smith, who destroyed the books, but put the stones in the bottom of his trunk and brought them to Nauvoo. He gave them to Joseph the Prophet who pronounced them to be a

Urim and Thummim--as good as ever was upon the earth--but he said, "They have been consecrated to devils."

MY OLD WHITE STONE
By W. W. Phelps

O keep my old "white stone," Father
  O keep it till I come;
The stone I had of thee at home,
  Before this world was known:

For lo! in it is my "new name"--
  The name thou gavest me,
When I was wash'd and set apart
  For the glory yet to be.

Eternity is thine, Father,
  Age after age has gone,
And yet, among thy sons, as one,
  My spirit moves divine
With light and life, and sense and love,

Through realms where wisdom's known,
  To find, by faith, my path back home,
To my gem--my old "white stone."

The sweetest joy that seems, Father,
  Is now and then a view,
Of that eternal world and you,
  That flashes through my dreams,
In some blest spot that's still and pure,

Where virtue's bliss is known,
  And where my spirit eyes can see,
For themselves, my old "white stone."

Remarkable Visions, p. 6; by Orson Pratt.

With the records was found a curious instrument, called by the ancients the Urim and Thummim, which consisted of two transparent stones, clear as crystal, set in two rims of a bow. This was in use in ancient times by persons called seers. It was an instrument, by the use of which they received revelations of things distant or things past and future.

Gospel Mysteries

Exodus 4:1-5, 17, 20.

And Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee.
And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod.
And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand:
That they may belive that the Lord God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee.
And thou shalt take this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs.
And Moses took his wife and his sons, and set them upon an ass, and he returned to the land of Egypt: and Moses took the rod of God in his hand.

Exodus 7:8-25.

And the Lord spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,
When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, Shew a miracle for you: [OR Prove yourselves by performing a miracle.] then thou shalt say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent.
And Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did so as the Lord had commanded: and Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, and it became a serpent.
Then Pharaoh also called the wise men and the sorcerers: now the magicians of Egypt, they also did in like manner with their enchantments.
For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods.
And he hardened Pharaoh's heart, [JST Ex.7:13 And Pharaoh hardened his heart...] that he hearkened not unto them; as the Lord had said.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Pharaoh's heart is hardened, he refuseth to let the people go.
Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning; lo, he goeth out unto the water; and thou shalt stand by the river's brink against he come [HEB to meet him]; and the rod which was turned to a serpent shalt thou take in thine hand.
And thou shalt say unto him, The Lord God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying, Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness: and, behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear.
Thus said the Lord, In this thou shalt know that I am the Lord: behold, I will smite with the rod that is in mine hand upon the waters which are in the river [OR Nile], and they shall be turned to blood.
And the fish that is in the river shall die, and the river shall stink; and the Egyptians shall lothe to drink of the water of the river.
And the Lord spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and stretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their streams, upon their rivers, and upon their ponds, and upon all their pools of water, that they may become blood; and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in vessels of wood, and in vessels of stone.
And Moses and Aaron did so, as the Lord commanded; and he lifted up the rod, and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and all the waters that were in the river were turned to blood.

And the fish that was in the river died; and the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink of the water of the river; and there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt.
And the magicians of Egypt did so with their enchantments: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, neither did he hearken unto them; as the Lord had said.
And Pharaoh turned and went into his house, neither did he set his heart to this also. [HEB idiom meaning `paying no regard even to this.']
And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink; for they could not drink of the water of the river.
And seven days were fulfilled, after that the Lord had smitten the river.

Exodus 8:1-32.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, Go unto Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Let my people go, that they may serve me. And if thou refuse to let them go, behold, I will smite all thy borders [IE all within thy border] with frogs:
And the river shall bring forth frogs abundantly, which shall go up and come into thine house, and into thy bedchamber, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy kneading-troughs:
And the frogs shall come up both on thee, and upon thy people, and upon all thy servants.
And the Lord spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch forth thine hand with thy rod over the streams, over the rivers [OR canals], and over the ponds, and cause frogs to come up upon the land of Egypt.
And Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt; and the frogs came up, and covered the land of Egypt.
And the magicians did so with their enchantments, and brought up frogs upon the land of Egypt.
Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, Intreat the Lord, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people; and I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the Lord.
And Moses said unto Pharaoh, Glory over me: [IE I grant you preeminence to declare:] when shall I intreat for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people, to destroy the frogs from thee and thy houses, that they may remain in the river only?
And he said, To morrow. And he said, Be it according to thy word: that thou mayest know that there is none like unto the Lord our God.
And the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people; they shall remain in the river only.
And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh: and Moses cried unto the Lord because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh.
And the Lord did according to the word of Moses; and the frogs died out of the houses, out of the villages, and out of the fields.
And they gathered them together upon heaps: and the land stank.
But when Pharaoh saw that there was respite, he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them; as the Lord had said.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch out thy rod, and smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice throughout all the land of Egypt.
And they did so; for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and smote the dust of the earth, and it became lice in man, and in beast; all the dust of the land became lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

And the magicians did so with their enchantments to bring forth lice [OR get rid of the lice], but they could not: so there were lice upon man, and upon beast.
Then the magicians said unto Pharaoh, This is the finger of God: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them; as the Lord had said.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh; lo, [OR as] he cometh forth to the water; and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Let my people go, that they may serve me.
Else, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send swarms of flies upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses: and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.
And I will sever [OR separate, segregate] in that day the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there; to the end thou mayest know that I am the Lord in the midst of the earth.
And I will put a division between my people and thy people: to morrow shall this sign be.
And the Lord did so; and there came a grievous swarm of flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his servants' houses, and into all the land of Egypt: the land was corrupted [HEB ruined] by reason of the swarm of flies.
And Pharaoh called for Moses and for Aaron, and said, Go ye, sacrifice to your God in the land.
And Moses said, It is not meet so to do [OR it would not be right]; for we shall sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians [OR things abominable] to the Lord our God: lo, shall we sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians before their eyes, and will they not stone us?
We will go three days' journey into the wilderness, and sacrifice to the Lord our God, as he shall command us.
And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to the Lord your God in the wilderness; only ye shall not go very far away: intreat for me.
And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will intreat the Lord that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people, to morrow: but let not Pharaoh deal deceitfully any more in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the Lord.
And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the Lord.
And the Lord did according to the word of Moses; and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people; there remained not one.
And Pharaoh hardened his heart at this time also, neither would he let the people go.

Exodus 9:1-35.

Then the Lord said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.
For if thou refuse to let them go, and wilt hold them still,
Behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thy cattle which is in the field, upon the horses, upon the asses, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep: there shall be a very grievous murrain [OR severe plague].
And the Lord shall sever [OR segregate, distinguish] between the cattle of Israel and the cattle of Egypt: and there shall nothing die of all that is the children's of Israel.
And the Lord appointed a set time, saying, To morrow the Lord shall do this thing in the land.

And the Lord did that thing on the morrow, and all the cattle of Egypt died: but of the cattle of the children of Israel died not one.
And Pharaoh sent, and, behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Israelites dead. And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.
And the Lord said unto Moses and unto Aaron, Take to you handfuls of ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle it toward the heaven in the sight of Pharaoh.
And it shall become small dust in all the land of Egypt, and shall be a boil [OR festering boils] breaking forth with blains [HEB blisters, pustules] upon man, and upon beast, throughout all the land of Egypt.
And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven; and it became a boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast.
And the magicians could not stand before Moses because of the boils; for the boil was upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians.
And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh [JST Ex. 9:12 And Pharaoh hardened his heart...], and he hearkened not unto them; as the Lord had spoken unto Moses.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.
For I will at this time send all my plagues upon thine heart, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people; that thou mayest know that there is none like me in all the earth.
For now I will stretch out my hand, that I may smite thee and thy people with pestilence; and thou shalt be cut off from the earth.
And in very deed for this cause have I raised thee up [OR let thee remain], for to shew in thee [HEB show thee] my power; and that my name may be declared throughout all the earth.
As yet exaltest thou thyself against my people, that thou wilt not let them go?
Behold, to morrow about this time I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt since the foundation thereof even until now.
Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field; for upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, the hail shall come down upon them, and they shall die.
He that feared the word of the Lord among the servants of Pharaoh made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses:
And he that regarded not the word of the Lord left his servants and his cattle in the field.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be hail in all the land of Egypt, upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt.
And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven: and the Lord sent thunder and hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground; and the Lord rained hail upon the land of Egypt.
So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as there was none like it in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation.
And the hail smote throughout all the land of Egypt all that was in the field, both man and beast; and the hail smote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field.
Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail.

And Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, I have sinned this time: the Lord is righteous, and I and my people are wicked.
Intreat the Lord (for it is enough) that there be no more mighty thunderings and hail; and I will let you go, and ye shall stay no longer.
And Moses said unto him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will spread abroad my hands unto the Lord; and the thunder shall cease, neither shall there be any more hail; that thou mayest know how that the earth is the Lord's.
But as for thee and thy servants, I know that ye will not yet fear the Lord God.
And the flax and the barley was smitten: for the barley was in the ear, and the flax was bolled [OR in bud].
But the wheat and the rie [HEB spelt (a type of wheat)] were not smitten: for they were not grown up.
And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread abroad his hands unto the Lord: and the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured upon the earth.
And when Pharaoh saw that the rain and the hail and the thunders were ceased, he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart, he and his servants.
And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, neither would he let the children of Israel go; as the Lord had spoken by Moses.

Exodus 10:1-29.

And the Lord said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh: for I have hardened his heart, and the heart of his servants, that I might shew these my signs before him: [JST Ex. 10:1 ...for he hath hardened his heart, and the hearts of his servants, therefore I will show these my signs before him;]
And that thou mayest tell in the ears of thy son, and of thy son's son, what things I have wrought in Egypt, and my signs which I have done among them; that ye may know how that I am the Lord the Lord.
And Moses and Aaron came in unto Pharaoh, and said unto him, Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuse to humble thyself before me? let my people go, that they may serve me.
Else, if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to morrow will I bring the locusts into thy coast:
And they shall cover the face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth: and they shall eat the residue of that which is escaped, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and shall eat every tree which groweth for you out of the field: And they shall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers' fathers have seen, since the day that they were upon the earth unto this day. And he turned himself, and went out from Pharaoh.
And Pharaoh's servants said unto him, How long shall this man be a snare unto us? let the men go, that they may serve the Lord their God: knowest thou not yet that Egypt is destroyed [OR ruined]?
And Moses and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh: and he said unto them, Go, serve the Lord your God: but who are they that shall go?
And Moses said, We will go with our young and with our old, with our sons and with our daughters, with our flocks and with our herds will we go; for we must hold a feast unto the Lord.
And he said unto them, Let the Lord be so with you, as [OR if] I will let you go, and your little ones: look to it; for evil is before you. [HEB idiom meaning `you are bent on mischief.']

Not so: go now ye that are men, and serve the Lord; for that ye did desire. And they were driven out from Pharaoh's presence.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land, even all that the hail hath left.
And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the Lord brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts.
And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coasts of Egypt [HEB within the whole border]: very grievous were they; before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such.
For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened; and they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.
Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron in haste; and he said, I have sinned against the Lord your God, and against you.
Now therefore forgive, I pray thee, my sin only this once, and intreat the Lord your God, that he may take away from me this death only.
And he went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the Lord.
And the Lord turned a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and cast them into the Red sea [OR Reed Sea]; there remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt.
But the Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart [JST Ex. 10:20 But Pharaoh hardened his heart...], so that he would not let the children of Israel go.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even darkness which may be felt.
And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days:
They saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.
And Pharaoh called unto Moses, and said, Go ye, serve the Lord; only let your flocks and your herds be stayed [OR remain behind]: let your little ones also go with you.
And Moses said, Thou must give us also [HEB leave in our possession] sacrifices and burnt offerings, that we may sacrifice unto the Lord our God.
Our cattle also shall go with us; there shall not an hoof be left behind; for thereof must we take to serve the Lord our God; and we know not with what we must serve the Lord, until we come thither.
But the Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart [JST Ex. 10:27 But Pharaoh hardened his heart...], and he would not let them go.
And Pharaoh said unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thyself, see my face no more; for in that day thou seest my face thou shalt die.
And Moses said, Thou hast spoken well [HEB As you have spoken], I will see thy face again no more.

Exodus 14:15-18.

And the Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward:
But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea.

And I, behold, I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians [JST Ex. 14:17 And I say unto thee the hearts of the Egyptians shall be hardened], and they shall follow them: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen. [HEB I will be honored by Pharaoh and by all his army, etc.]
And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

Exodus 17:8-16.

Then came Amalek, and fought with Israel in Rephidim.
And Moses said unto Joshua, Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to morrow I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in mine hand.
So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill.
And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.
But Moses' hands were heavy [IE grew heavy with weariness]; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up [OR supported] his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.
And Joshua discomfited [HEB weakened, disabled] Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: for I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.
And Moses built an altar, and called the name of it Jehovahnissi [IE The Lord is my banner]:
For he said, Because the Lord hath sworn that the Lord will have war with Amalek from generation to generation [HEB A hand upon the throne of the Lord! (an oath, of strong affirmation)].

Exodus 20:1-13.

Then came the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, into the desert of Zin in the first month: and the people abode in Kadesh; and Miriam died there, and was buried there.
And there was no water for the congregation: and they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron.
And the people chode [OR contended] with Moses, and spake, saying, Would God that we had died when our brethren died before the Lord!
And why have ye brought up the congregation of the Lord into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die there?
And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us in unto this evil place? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates; neither is there any water to drink.
And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation [HEB tent of meeting], and they fell upon their faces: and the glory of the Lord appeared unto them.
And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,
Take the rod, and gather thou the assembly together, thou, and Aaron thy brother, and speak ye unto the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth his water, and thou shalt bring forth to them water out of the rock: so thou shalt give the congregation and their beasts drink.

And Moses took the rod from before the Lord, as he commanded him.
And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he said unto them, Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?
And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice: and the water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.
And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron, Because ye believed me not [IE in not speaking to the rock, striking it instead], to sanctify me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore ye shall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them.
This is the water of Meribah; because the children of Israel strove with the Lord, and he was sanctified in them.

Exodus 28:29-30.

And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breastplate of judgment upon his heart, when he goeth in unto the holy place, for a memorial before the Lord continually.
And thou shalt put in the breastplate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim [HEB Light and Perfection]; and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the Lord: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart before the Lord continually.

Numbers 17:1-10.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,
Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of them a rod according to the house of their fathers, of all their princes according to the house of their fathers twelve rods: write thou every man's name upon his rod.
And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the rod of Levi: for one rod shall be for the head of the house of their fathers.
And thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation [HEB tent of meeting] before the testimony, where I will meet with you.
And it shall come to pass, that the man's rod, whom I shall choose, shall blossom: and I will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, whereby they murmur against you.
And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, and every one of their princes [HEB leaders, heads, rulers] gave him a rod apiece, for each prince one, according to their fathers' houses, even twelve rods: and the rod of Aaron was among their rods.
And Moses laid up the rods before the Lord in the tabernacle of witness.
And it came to pass, that on the morrow Moses went into the tabernacle of witness: and, behold, the rod of Aaron for the house of Levi was budded, and brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds.
And Moses brought out all the rods from before the Lord unto all the children of Israel: and they looked, and took every man his rod.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Bring Aaron's rod again before the testimony, to be kept for a token against the rebels; and thou shalt quite take away their murmurings from me, that they die not.

Numbers 21:4-9.

And they journeyed from mount Hor by the way of the Red sea [HEB Reed Sea], to compass [OR go around] the land of Edom: and the soul of the people was much discouraged because of the way.
And the people spake against God, and against Moses, Wherefore have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? for there is no bread, neither is there any water; and our soul loatheth this light bread.
And the Lord sent fiery [OR poisonous] serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and much people of Israel died.
Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, We have sinned, for we have spoken against the Lord, and against thee; pray unto the Lord, that he take away the serpents from us. And Moses prayed for the people.
And the Lord said unto Moses, Make thee a fiery serpent, and set it upon a pole: and it shall come to pass, that everyone that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live.
And Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole, and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived.

Numbers 27:18-21.

And the Lord said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and lay thine hand upon him;
And set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation; and give him a charge in their sight.
And thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him [OR invest him with some of your authority], that all the congregation of the children of Israel may be obedient.
And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him after the judgment of Urim [OR as revealed through the Urim and Thummim] before the Lord: at his word shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he, and all the children of Israel with him, even all the congregation.

Deuteronomy 33:1, 8.

And this is the blessing, wherewith Moses the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death.
And of Levi he said, Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be with thy holy one, whom thou didst prove at Massah, and with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;

1 Samuel 28: 6.

And when Saul enquired of the Lord, the Lord answered him not, neither by dreams, nor by Urim, nor by prophets.

2 Kings 4:17-20, 27-31.

And the woman conceived, and bare a son at that season that Elisha had said unto her, according to the time of life.
And when the child was grown, it fell on a day, that he went out to his father to the reapers.

And he said unto his father, My head, my head. And he said to a lad, Carry him to his mother.
And when he had taken him, and brought him to his mother, he sat on her knees till noon, and then died.
And when she came to the man of God to the hill, she caught him by the feet: but Gehazi came near to thrust her away. And the man of God said, Let her alone; for her soul is vexed within her: and the Lord hath hid it from me, and hath not told me.
Then she said, Did I desire a son of my lord? did I not say, Do not deceive me?
Then he said to Gehazi, Gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thine hand, and go thy way: if thou meet any man, salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not again: and lay my staff upon the face of the child.
And the mother of the child said, As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And he arose, and followed her.
And Gehazi passed on before them, and laid the staff upon the face of the child; but there was neither voice, nor hearing. Wherefore he went again to meet him, and told him, saying, The child is not awaked.

Psalms 23.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Psalms 45:6.

Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre.

Mark 6:7-11.
And he called unto him the twelve, and began to send them forth by two and two; and gave them power over unclean spirits;
And commanded them that they should take nothing for their journey, save a staff only; no scrip, no bread, no money in their purse:
But be shod with sandals; and not put on two coats.
And he said unto them, In what place soever ye enter into an house, there abide till ye depart from that place.
And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence, shake off the dust under your feet for a testimony against them. Verily I say into you, It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.

Hebrews 1:8-13.

But unto the Son he saith, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom.
Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.
And, Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands:
They shall perish; but thou remainest; and they all shall wax old as doth a garment;
And as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed: but thou are the same, and thy years shall not fail.
But to which of the angels said he at any time, Sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool?

Revelation 2:17.

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it.

Mosiah 8:13, 17, 19.

Now Ammon said unto him: I can assuredly tell thee, O king of a man that can translate the records; for he has wherewith that he can look, and translate all records that are of ancient date; and it is a gift from God. And the things are called interpreters, and no man can look in them except he be commanded, lest he should look for that he ought not and he should perish. And whosoever is commanded to look in them, the same is called seer.
But a seer can know of things which are past, and also of things which are to come, and by them shall all things be revealed, or, rather, shall secret things be made manifest, and hidden things shall come to light, and things which are not known shall be made known by them, and also things shall be made known by them which otherwise could not be known.
And now, when Ammon had made an end of speaking these words the king rejoiced exceedingly, and gave thanks to God, saying: . . . these interpreters were doubtless prepared for the purpose of unfolding all such mysteries to the children of men.

Mosiah 28:13-16.

And now he [Mosiah] translated them by the means of those two stones which were fastened into the two rims of a bow.
Now these things were prepared from the beginning, and were handed down from generation to generation, for the purpose of interpreting languages;
And they have been kept and preserved by the hand of the Lord, that he should discover to every creature who should possess the land the iniquities and abominations of his people;
And whosoever has these things is called seer, after the manner of old times.

Alma 37:21, 23-24.

And now, I will speak unto you concerning those twenty-four plates, that ye keep them, . . . and that ye preserve these interpreters.
And the Lord said: I will prepare unto my servant Gazelem, a stone, which shall shine forth in darkness unto light, that I may discover [IE reveal, make known] unto my people who serve me, that I may discover unto them the works of their brethren, yea, their secret works, their works of darkness, and their wickedness and abominations.
And now, my son, these interpreters were prepared that the word of God might be fulfilled. . . .

Ether 3:22-24.

And behold, when ye shall come unto me, ye shall write them and shall seal them up, that no one can interpret them; for ye shall write them in a language that they cannot be read.
And behold, these two stones will I give unto thee, and ye shall seal them up also with the things which ye shall write.
For behold, the language which ye shall write I have confounded; wherefore I will cause in my own due time that these stones shall magnify to the eyes of men these things which ye shall write.

D&C 8:6-9.

Now this is not all thy gift; for you have another gift, which is the gift of Aaron; behold, it has told you many things;
Behold, there is no other power, save the power of God, that can cause this gift of Aaron to be with you.
Therefore, doubt not, for it is the gift of God; and you shall hold it in your hands, and do marvelous works; and no power shall be able to take it away out of your hands, for it is the work of God.
And, therefore, whatsoever you shall ask me to tell you by that means, that will I grant unto you, and you shall have knowledge concerning it.

Book of Commandments; Original Edition, 1833; April 1829. See also Doctrine and Covenants Compendium, Sidney B. Sperry, pp. 36-37, 71; 1960.

Now this is not all, for you have another gift, which is the gift of working with the rod: behold it has told you things: behold, there is no other power save god, that can cause this rod of nature to work in your hands, for it is the work of God; and therefore whatsoever you shall ask me to tell you by that means, that will I grant unto you, that you shall know.

D&C 10:1-3.

Now, behold, I say unto you, that because you delivered up those writings which you had power given unto you to translate by the means of the Urim and Thummim, into the hands of a wicked man, you have lost them. And you also lost your gift at the same time, and your mind became darkened.
Nevertheless, it is now restored unto you again; therefore see that you are faithful and continue on unto the finishing of the remainder of the work of translation as you have begun.

D&C 17:1.

Behold, I say unto you, that you must rely upon my word, which if you do with full purpose of heart, you shall have a view of the plates, and also of the breastplate, the sword of Laban, the Urim and Thummim, which were given to the brother of Jared upon the mount, when he talked with the Lord face to face, ...

D&C 28:11.

And again, thou shalt take thy brother, Hiram Page, between him and thee alone, and tell him that those things which he hath written from that stone are not of me and that Satan deceiveth him;

D&C 85:7-8.

And it shall come to pass that I, the Lord God, will send one mighty and strong, holding the scepter of power in his hand, clothed with light for a covering, whose mouth shall utter words, eternal words; while his bowels shall be a fountain of truth, to set in order the house of God, and to arrange by lot the inheritances of the saints whose names are found, and the names of their fathers, and of their children, enrolled in the book of the law of God;
While that man, who was called of God and appointed, that putteth forth his hand to steady the ark of God, shall fall by the shaft of death, like as a tree that is smitten by the vivid shaft of lightning.

D&C 121:46.

The Holy Ghost shall be thy constant companion, and thy scepter an unchanging scepter of righteousness and truth; and thy dominion shall be an everlasting dominion, and without compulsory means it shall flow unto thee forever and ever.
D&C 130:6-11.

The angels do not reside on a planet like this earth;
But they reside in the presence of God, on a globe like a sea of glass and fire, where all things for their glory are manifest, past, present, and future, and are continually before the Lord.
The place where God resides is a great Urim and Thummim.
This earth, in its sanctified and immortal state, will be made like unto crystal and will be a Urim and Thummim to the inhabitants who dwell thereon, whereby all things pertaining to an inferior kingdom, or all kingdoms of a lower order, will be manifest to those who dwell on it; and this earth will be Christ's.
Then the white stone mentioned in Revelation 2:17, will become a Urim and Thummim to each individual who receives one, whereby things pertaining to a higher order of kingdoms will be made known;
And a white stone is given to each of those who come into the celestial kingdom, whereon is a new name written, which no man knoweth save he that receiveth it. The new name is the key word.

By this timely aid was I enabled to reach the place of my destination in Pennsylvania; and immediately after my arrival there I commenced copying the characters off the plates. I copied a considerable number of them, and by means of the Urim and Thummim I translated some of them, which I did between the time I arrived at the house of my wife's father, in the month of December, and the February following.

And this was the stick with which all the works of God were performed, after he had created heaven and earth, and all the host of them, seas, rivers and all their fishes. And when God had driven Adam from the garden of Eden, he took the stick in his hand and went and tilled the ground from which he was taken. And the stick came down to Noah and was given to Shem and his descendants, until it came into the hand of Abraham the Hebrew. And when Abraham had given all he had to his son Isaac, he also gave to him this stick. And when Jacob had fled to Padan-aram, he took it into his hand, and when he returned to his father, he had not left it behind him. Also when he went down to Egypt, he took it into his hand and gave it to Joseph, one portion above his brethren, for Jacob had taken it by force from his brother Esau.

INTRODUCTION

We need to be finished by 1:30 sharp if possible. There are other sessions panelists have to attend, and I know you have sessions you have to attend as well.

Our paper today -- oh, before I make the introduction, let me invite you to move forward because I know there are slides as part of this presentation and I suspect you can see them better if you're closer and we've not going to ask anybody to give an opening prayer, so don't be at all reluctant to come right down front.

Our paper today, "The Evolution of the Mormon Temple Ceremony" is by David Berger, who is the Director of the P.C. Center at Santa Clara University and David Berger has published widely, particularly in Dialogue magazine.

Our comment today is by Armand Mauss, who is Professor of Sociology at Washington State University. He too has published widely in a number of fields of study.

And they way we're going to run the session today is to have the paper and comments, and if there is time for questions, we will open it to questions. We are to try and close right at 1:30. So we'll see where we are at the end of the comments and take it from there. So I'll turn the time then over to David Berger.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE MORMON ENDOWMENT CEREMONY
by
David John Berger

Well, I recognize a few faces from the Thursday presentation; it looks like you couldn't get enough controversy the, so we'll try and make it a double menu today for you.

For faithful Latter-day Saints the temple Endowment ceremony is one of the most sacred ordinances received in mortality. My purpose today is not to discuss the theological significance of the ritual, neither will I examine the spiritual or symbolic dimensions of the Endowment. I will instead focus on the descriptive history of this ceremony, particularly the origins, introduction and systematic changes made since its inception.

Part One - The Formulative Period, 1835-1845

As early as October 1835 Joseph Smith foretold his apostles of an up-coming Endowment, which would grant them power from on High. The Kirtland Endowment, first given three months later, was a simple stage ceremony consisting of washing and anointing the body, blessings and sealings, and washing of feet. These ordinances clearly were patterned after similar washings and anointings described in the Old and especially the New Testament. Significantly after giving this Endowment to about three hundred male Church members, Joseph Smith declared that "he had now completed the organization of the Church and we had passed through all necessary ceremonies."

Five years later Joseph announced a revelation in which he was commanded to build another temple where the Lord would reveal new ordinances. As in Kirtland, Joseph elected to administer this revised Endowment to selected Church members prior to the completion of the Nauvoo Temple. This happened for the first time on 4 and 5 May 1842 to nine men in the upper story of Joseph Smith's store in Nauvoo. The Nauvoo Endowment was a significant departure from the simple washings and anointings received in Kirtland, including new theological instruction and ritual. According to the History of the Church, Joseph "instruct[ed] them in the order and principles of the Priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, Endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of Days." This revised Endowment was again expanded over a year later to include two additional ceremonies related to the temple sequence: celestial marriage for time and eternity and the second anointing. The second anointing was a special ceremony wherein a couple received a confirmation of a promise, given earlier in the Endowment, of being anointed to become a king and priest to God, or a priestess and goddess to the husband. The "ancient order of things" referred to by Joseph Smith included a complex of ritualistic signs, tokens, and penalties.

Many years later, according to his secretary L. John Nuttall's diary account, Brigham Young reminisced about the specifics of receiving his Endowment from Joseph, > President Young was filled with the Spirit of God and revelation and said, we had only one room to work in. Joseph divided up the room the best that he could, hung the veil, marked it, and gave us our instructions as we passed along from one department to another, giving us signs, tokens, penalties with the key words, pertaining to those signs, and after we had got through Brother Joseph turned to me and said, Brother Brigham this is not arranged right, but we have done the best we could under the circumstances in which we are placed, and I wish you to take this matter in hand and organize and systematize all these ceremonies with the signs, tokens, penalties and key words. I did so and each time I got something more, so that when we went through the temple at Nauvoo, I understood and knew how to place them there. We had our ceremonies pretty correct.

Young's last comments suggest that the Nauvoo Temple Endowment structure probably was expanded into a more elegant reconstitution, as contrasted to its initial administration in the constricted quarters over Joseph Smith's store. While documentation is unavailable for comparison with the 1842 ritual, the Nauvoo Temple ceremony's dramatic background probably changed as well. On 10 December 1845 when Endowments were first administered in the temple, Heber C. Kimball's diary contains a cast listing of four characters: Elohim, Jehovah, Michael and the Serpent, or Satan. Two days later Kimball wrote, "Last evening an arrangement was made establishing a better order in conducting the Endowment." The anachronistic characters of Peter, James and John were added to this list.

Last time I put the glass up here, and I was shaking so much you could see that, so I am not going to let you see that this time.

The earliest complete published account of the Nauvoo Temple Endowment ceremony indicates that the characters of Adam and Eve were personified by everyone receiving the ritual, rather than by two designated actors. A sequential analysis of other published accounts suggest that these characters, as well as the dramatizer of the Christian minister, were not instituted until the 1850's Endowment House administration in Utah. These recitals state that several actors depicted ministers from different Christian sects, instead of the single minister cited in more recent published accounts. The first published account of a single minister was in 1905.

With respect to these ceremonies, this constituting the "ancient order of things", considerable speculation has occurred viz-a-vie, their origins and incorporation into the Endowment ritual. Despite the insistence by some Mormons that Joseph Smith received the entire Endowment ritual by revelation from God, no such direct statement by the Prophet is available. Given that other important doctrinal innovations made by Joseph, such as the Word of Wisdom and the United Order, were sometimes influenced by environmental factors, it is appropriate that we consider this possibility in our analysis.

The temple clearly stood at the heart of Joseph Smith's theology. As a culmination of the Restoration it provided the synthesis for the beliefs in the origin and purpose of man, and reunited mankind with God through sacred rituals. In such light it is not surprising that the Nauvoo Endowment's general content dealt with a retelling of the plan of salvation. This instructional material is mostly found in sacred scripture, introduced by Joseph in his revision of the Bible, pertinent sections of which are now published in the Book of Moses and in the Book of Abraham. Such material is not unique to Joseph Smith in Mormon theology. Similar archetypical themes are common in Judeo-Christian apocalyptic and pseudipigraphic literature, as well as in ceremonies of Greek mystery cults, Mithraic initiations, rites practiced in Qumran, in ancient Egypt and elsewhere. A number of Latter-day Saints have cited similarities between these ancient rites and Mormon rituals and doctrines as evidence for Mormonism's divine status. While interesting phenomenological parallels do exist between the Mormon temple Endowment ceremony and some of these Near Eastern rites, the content of these ancient rites, often based on what some Mormons would consider to be idolatrous worship and semi-heathen pagan practices, clearly is at odds with the theological basis of the Mormon temple ceremony, if not of the Church itself.

Aside from the creation accounts used in the Nauvoo Endowment, as found in the Books of Abraham and Moses, the only other scriptural reference directly linking ancient writings with the Mormon temple ceremony is found in Explanatory Note 8 to Facsimile Two of the Book of Abraham. Given that this document has been linked to the Egyptian Book of the Dead, it is difficult to see how this relates to the ceremony introduced by Joseph Smith in Nauvoo.

The issue of possible originating influence with respect to the Endowment's various signs, tokens and penalties, most logically appears to lie with Freemasonic sources. Many prominent Mormons, including Deputy Grand Master of Illinois James Adams, Heber C. Kimball, Newel K. Whitney, George Miller, John C. Bennett, William Law, William Marks, John Smith, Willard Richards and Brigham Young, were Freemasons prior to joining the Church. Of relevance to the Nauvoo Endowment's creation, Joseph Smith was initiated an Entered Apprentice Mason on 15 March 1842, and received the Fellow Craft and Master degrees the next day. Those are the first three degrees of Masonry, which I am talking about now. During the organization of the Female Relief Society one day later his founding address is filled with Masonic allusions. An important sermon he gave on 1 May 1842 was filled with references to Masonic notions, such as signs and keywords. Finally only forty-nine days after his Masonic initiation, Joseph introduced the Endowment ceremony to a trusted circle of friends in the upper story of his red brick store.

While Joseph did not base the entire Endowment ceremony on Freemasonic ritual, Masonic rites clearly formed a pattern for some of its content. This becomes evident from analyzing extractions from William Morgan's Masonic expose published in 1827. The book was called Illustrations of Free Masonry.

I have some slides I would like to show you right now. It you could turn the light off in the back by pressing "one". I have three slides before the Masonic stuff. Then I'm going to quote to you fairly extensively from this book which was widely available in the region at the time, to give you an idea of the public awareness on the content of Masonic rites.

This, by the way, is a photograph of the Kirtland Temple and I'm sure you're familiar with that, as well as this picture which is the store in Nauvoo where Joseph introduced the Endowment upstairs. This is one of the best photographs we have of the Nauvoo Temple before it was destroyed.

These are pictures taken from William Morgan's expose illustrating these various ordinances. I will read to you now from the Entered Apprentice degree. This is the penal sign and due guard on the screen.

> [This sign] is given by holding your two hands transversely across each other, the right hand upwards and one inch from the left . . . [and] by drawing your right hand across your throat, the thumb next to the throat, your arm as high as your elbow in a horizontal position.

The grip of the Entered Apprentice [degree] is this slide. It is given with "the right hands [being] joined together as in shaking hands and each sticks the thumb nail into the third joint or upper end of the forefinger." The sign and due guard of the Fellow Craft [degree] -- There are all three positions on this slide.

> . . . . . .
>
> The due guard is given by raising the left arm until that part of it between the elbow and shoulder is perfectly horizontal, and rasing the rest of the arm in a vertical position so that part above it form a square.

The pass grip of the Fellow Craft [degree] -- down in the corner > is given by taking each other by the right hands, as though going to shake hands and each putting his thumb between the fore and second fingers where they join the hand, and pressing the thumb between the joints.

There's a close up picture of that.

> This is the sign and due guard of the Master Mason, the third degree. [This] is given by raising both hands and arms to the elbows, perpendicularly, one on each side of the head, the elbows forming a square. The words accompanying this sign in case of distress are, "O Lord my God! is there no help for a widow's son?

Incidently, this happened to be what Joseph Smith was exclaiming as he stood in the window in the Cartage Jail just before he was shot, according to John Taylor and other associates -- trying to give the Masonic sign of distress. He recognized Masons in the crowd apparently. The due guard "is made by holding both hands in front, palms down." The penal sign > is given by putting the right hand to the left sides of the bowels, the hand open with the thumb next to the belly, and drawing it across the belly and letting it fall; this is done tolerably quick.

The pass grip of the Master Mason "is given by pressing the thumb between the joints of the second and third fingers where they join the hand." The candidate > is raised on what is called the five points of fellowship, which are foot to foot, knee to knee, breast to breast, hand to back and mouth to ear. This is done by putting the inside of your right foot to the inside of > the right foot of the person to whom you are going to give the word, the inside of your knees to his, laying your right breast against his, your left hands on the back of each other, and your mouths to each other's right ear (in which position alone you are permitted to give the word), and whisper the word, Mahabone. The Master's grip is given by taking hold of each other's hand as though you were going to shake hands, and sticking the nails of your fingers to the joint of the other's wrist where it unites the hand. . . He is also told that Mah-hah-bone signifies marrow in the bone.

You could turn the lights back up please. Put the projector on the "fan," so that it doesn't blow up.

Many of Joseph Smith's closest associates were long time Masons. These Church officers were deeply involved with the establishment of the Nauvoo Lodge. In light of the text cited above, there is little wonder that Heber C. Kimball would write in 1842

> There is a similarity of priesthood in Masonry. Brother Joseph says Masonry was taken from priesthood and become degenerated, but many things are perfected.

Later in 1858 Kimball said,

> We have the true Masonry. The Masonry of today is received from the Apostasy, which took place in the days of Solomon and David. They have now and then a thing that is correct, but we have the real thing.

And, Joseph Smith's close friend, Joseph Fielding, wrote in 1844, "Many have joined the Masonic institution. This seems to have been a stepping stone, or preparation for something else -- the true origin of Masonry."

These men identified the temple ceremony as being a pure form of ancient Masonic rites, something formerly lost, but restored to its original, pristine condition. Nevertheless, research by Twentieth Century historians of Freemasonry suggest a more recent introduction for systematic Masonic initiation ceremonies. After experiencing declining membership among working stone masons in the period after the Middle Ages, lodges began to accept honorary members. These speculative or accepted masons gradually developed rites which changed the working tools of operative masons into allegories and symbols illustrating a system of morality. These rudimentary ceremonies, mainly established to distinguish members of trade organizations, however, were no way identical with expanded rites known to Masons contemporary with Joseph Smith. According to two historians, > there is very little evidence of the adoption of the tri-gradal system [this is referring to the Entered Apprenticed, Fellow Craft and Master degrees] before 1730, and even before that date the process was slow. Though some symbolism doubtlessly had crept into Masonry by that date, it would not appear to have reached its full development for another forty or fifty years.

Despite the popular belief held by many, including some Mormons apologists, that Masonry's present-day ceremonies date back to Solomon's Temple, or even the time of Adam, it is clear that this opinion is not supported by modern scholarship. At most these stories merely served as a dramatic mythical backdrop to rites known to current Masons. In this light the elements of the Nauvoo Temple Endowment ceremony paralleled in the Masonic rites are of contemporary Nineteenth Century, not ancient origins.

Part Two - Nineteenth Century Utah Period, 1846-1899

Following the exodus of the Mormons from Nauvoo in 1846 the Endowment administrations entered a period of dormancy. Aside from a few prayer circles held on the open prairie during the trek west, and one known incident of an Endowment administration on Ensign Peak in the Salt Lake valley, only a modicum of temple work was performed by Mormons immediately following their resettlement. On 7 July 1852 the Endowment ordinances were recommenced in the Old Council House. In May 1855 the Endowment House was dedicated. Endowments were conducted there until 1844 (Sic, 1884). The first recorded Endowments for the dead were not performed until 1877; this was in the St. George Temple.

Following the dedication of the lower part of that temple in 1877, Brigham Young decided it was necessary to commit the Endowment ceremony to written form. Drafts were subjected to his daily review and approval. The project took approximately two months to complete. On 21 March 1877 Wilford Woodruff wrote, "President Young has been laboring all winter to get up a perfect form of Endowments as far as possible. They having been perfected I read them to the company today."

The St. George Temple Endowment included a revised thirty minute lecture at the veil, which summarized important theological concepts taught in the Endowment, and contained reference the Adam-God doctrine. For example Brigham young taught in this lecture that Adam > had begotten all the spirits that was to come to this earth, and Eve our common mother, who is the mother of all living, bore those spirits in the Celestial world. They consequently came to this earth and commenced the great work of forming tabernacles for those spirits to dwell in.

This teaching may have been included in the veil lecture as late as the turn of the century.

Other considerations concerning revising the Endowment came in 1883 when John Taylor expressed serious misgivings about giving newly initiated people an Endowment consisting of both the lower and higher ceremonies. He opined that members should first receive the Aaronic portion of the Endowment and prove their faithfulness prior to receiving the Melchizedek portion. Concurring associates included Wilford Woodruff, George Q. Cannon, and Franklin D. Richards. Despite such strong resolutions previous advocated in public by Brigham Young in 1864 and later by Cannon in 1894, no record indicates that such a change was ever implemented in the ritual.

Aside from the aforementioned inclusion of Adam-God in the veil lecture and other minor procedural matters, it seams clear that the Endowment underwent minimal structural change from its Nauvoo introduction through the end of the Nineteenth Century.

One important change in the emphasis of temple work did occur, however, resulting from a revelation given by Wilford Woodruff announced in the April 1894 General Conference. Woodruff's action prompted a cessation of sealing people to General Authorities and other Church members out side their family lineage, and instead be sealed to their own parents. The Church established the Genealogical Society of Utah in November 1894, and ultimately awakened a heightened interest in systematic work of dead lineal ancestors.

Shortly following the Salt Lake Temple's dedication in 1893 President Woodruff met with the Council of the Twelve and the Church's four temple presidents, spending "three hours in harmonizing the different modes of ceremonies in giving the Endowments." This effort may have been a precursor of an extensive review, which I will discuss in a few moments.

Part Three: The Transitional Period, 1900-1930

One of the Most consequential events in modern LDS Church history was the Reed Smoot investigation, held during 1904 through 1906. Among the many issues laundered before the Senate Sub-committee were the secret oaths of the Endowment ceremony. The Sub-committee ultimately was concerned that Mormons were being led to take treasonous oaths against the U. S. government, and heard testimony from several individuals on this subject. Of the many oaths and covenants discussed the most renown was the Oath of Vengeance.

Smoot Hearing testimony, as well as other prior public discussions of this oath, indicated that commencing with the Nauvoo Temple Endowment, the Oath of Vengeance was an obligation taken by all initiates. For example, while many early published accounts claim that those endowed were personally charged with avenging Joseph and Hyrum's deaths, in 1912 St. George Temple president, David H. Cannon, emphasized that endowees "importuned God to take care of this matter." Things started to change at that time.

In a 1924 St. George Temple meeting Edward H. Snow mentioned one recent change made to the Endowment, "in no longer praying that the blood of the prophets and righteous men might be atoned for, because this pray had been answered, and is no longer necessary." David H. Cannon then related a comment made during a local conference by Anthony W. Ivins, that "took exception to the way the Law of Retribution was worded and said he thought the language was harsh and that the Authorities thought of changing that." Finally in a 1927 letter from Apostle George F. Richards to all temple presidents directed that they "omit from the prayer circles all reference to avenging the blood of the prophets. Omit from the ordinance and lecture all reference to retribution."

This modification was but one of many procedural changes made to the Endowment ritual and temple clothing, spearheaded by an apostolic committee organized at the beginning of Heber J. Grant's administration. From 1921 through 1927 President George F. Richards chaired the group, which included David O. McKay, Joseph Fielding Smith, Stephen L. Richards, John A. Widstoe, and later James E. Talmage. Under Richards' direction they codified and simplified the temple ceremonies, originally drafted in St. George in 1877, and committed to paper for the first time those ceremonies informally known as the unwritten portions, "the covenants and the instructions given the forming a prayer circle and a lecture at the veil." A major reason for this effort was to insure the ceremony's standardization in all temples. Because part of the ceremony had remained unwritten, the manner in which it was given tended to very somewhat between the different temples. The St. George Temple ceremony was taken as model, since it was the oldest ceremony.

In addition to eliminating the Oath of Vengeance during this period, other changes included accommodating more patrons by streamlining the ceremony. The length of the Endowment was reduced from about six and a half hours, which was roughly the same duration as the Nauvoo Endowment, to about half that time, including initiatory ordinances. I should mention Andrew Ehat, who is not here today to respond, did bring up one point, which I didn't address. A lot of the time delay that was caused in administrating the Endowment came because of the facilities. For instance, only one spot at the veil to go through the veil, and in the old times all the people acted out different parts of the Endowment. They later changed that so people were designated from the audience or company going through to act the part on behalf of everyone else. That did a great deal to speed things up.

A number of the Endowment's graphic penalties were toned down. For example, until this time the initiates allegedly agreed that revealing the Endowment secrets would result in having "my throat cut from ear to ear and my tongue torn out by its roots," "our breasts torn open and our hearts and vitals torn out and given to the birds of the air and beasts of the field," and "having your body be cut asunder and all your bowels gush out." These came directly from earlier Masonic sources, and the signs that the Masonic ceremonies had, as you saw earlier, were indicative of those. Now these penalties are said to allude to "different ways in which life may be taken."

After learning that garments and temple clothing were not originally designed solely by Joseph Smith, the committee dramatically altered the style of the temple garment, with sleeve length raised from the wrist to the elbow, legs raised from the ankle to just below the knee, buttons used instead of strings, collar eliminated, and the crotch closed. For the first time adherence to the Word of Wisdom became an official requirement for admission to the temple. Apparently this had been encouraged prior to 1921, but exceptions had been made. In 1920 the first night session started, beginning with one session per week. This was later expanded to three evening sessions per week to meet the demand. And perhaps one of the most interesting changes made was the cessation of kissing over the altar during vicarious sealings for the dead.

Another practice during the Depression years was to pay people for performing Endowments for the dead. Frequently these temple workers were indigents paid by members who did not have the time to perform ordinances for deceased ancestors, usually fifty cents an Endowment was the going rate at the time. Typically, money was left on deposit with the clerks of the temple, who would then disperse it as each vicarious Endowment was performed. While it is not clear when this practice ended, probably the 50's or early 60's in some temples, it probably became difficult for temples to administer the collection and distribution of cash.

Endowments performed per member during this period increased substantially, especially during Heber J. Grant's administration. Perhaps resulting from Grant's lessening influence due to his advance age and death in 1945, attendance then declined somewhat. Second anointings, however, decreased dramatically during President Grant's administration, becoming practically none existent by 1930. I'll show you a slide on that a little late on in the presentation.

Since its introduction the Endowment ceremony's presentation has been within a theatrical construct. The earliest known comment by the First Presidency regarding the use of motion pictures in the Endowment ceremony came in 1927, when they affirmed they had no intention then of using it. This attitude changed by late 1953, however, when President David O. McKay asked Gordon B. Hinckley to chair a committee with the task of creating a meaningful Endowment presentation for the new one-room Swiss Temple. The outgrowth was a film shot in the upper room of the Salt Lake Temple, actually many films. Due to inclement Utah weather, outside photography was done in the Southern States, while the lava flows scenes accompanying the creation portion came following negotiations with Walt Disney Studios for the rights to use approximately 350 feet of a segment of the Disney film Fantasia. Different casts, mainly composed of returned missionaries, native converts and local nationals, were used for eight major languages. A year later additional casts were used to produce films for use in the New Zealand Temple. According to one source, this film or these films were not professional staged. There was no real acting, no scenery and no real sophistication. The actors' portrayal was identical to that of a live Endowment performance.

The wide screen concept, introduced in early 1960's to American movies, influenced Oakland Temple designer Harold Burton's layout of that temple's two Endowment rooms. Initially a 4x5 inch slide projectors were used to produce photo-murals, depicting room changes found in life Endowment presentations. These were used until a second Endowment film was produced. Due to space limitations in the Salt Lake Temple, the First Presidency authorized this production to take place in the BYU motion picture studio. A new studio stage constructed for this purpose was formally opened in 1966. Two additional professional quality films were produced at BYU during 1969 and the early 1970's. It is these later two films which are currently used in the movie Endowment presentations.

In 1976 the Church temple committee transferred all Endowment film and sound operations from BYU to new facilities set up in the Salt Lake Temple basement. While film continues to be processed in a California lab -- negatives I understand are hand escorted down by representatives of the Church for that -- all sound tracks are now produced in this basement facility. Sound track duplication facilities also exist in some other temples, mainly outside the United States.

Perhaps one of the most significant effects of modern technology on temple work stems from the Church's widespread use of electronic data processing. In 1961 a severe shortage of names provided by members for vicarious ordinance work forced the Church to decide between either closing temples, decreasing the number of sessions, or taking institutional responsibility for providing names. President McKay opted to have the Genealogical Society take responsibility. Since the start of its Name Extraction Program, the Society has provided about 75% of all names used in vicarious temple work.

On a related note, members of the Church's Computer Planning Committee realized during the late 50's and early 60's that given the estimated seventy billion people who had been born on the earth, all the LDS adults working eight hours a day, seven days a week in the temples would not be able to keep up with the world population growth, much less complete ordinance work for deceased ancestors. Accordingly a number of procedural changes were suggested. Despite some initial opposition by Harold B. Lee and Joseph Fielding Smith, with what they perceived as doctrinal tampering, one important change was made in the early 1960's. This change permitted vicarious ordinances to be performed out of their traditional order, and let new data processing system collate the results. In this manner deceased persons could be sealed or endowed, before they had been baptized, washed, anointed or confirmed.

Since the initiation of the computer based Name Extraction Program in 1965, computers have been used to track the administration of both living and vicarious temple ordinances, ranging from initiatory work to marriage sealings. Sophisticated data processing techniques are now employed as patrons present their temple recommends, coded with MasterCard-like magnetic strips to record and account for the names of the deceased persons in proxy work. If you haven't seen one, it looks just like this. There is a strip running along one side, and you run your card through a reader to get your name, and before you go into the Celestial Room you run it through a machine again to complete the ordinance. They also can tract the illegitimate use of these cards, so that Fundamentalists cannot brake into the temple and record the ceremony like a few have done. While some have balked at this integration of mammon's world into the temple, computerization clearly has augmented efficiency in doing work of the dead.

Part Five: Concluding Remarks

From outward appearances Mormons have embraced vicarious temple work with more vigor than ever before. Many older temples have been renovated and now use the more efficient movie format in lieu of live actors. The number of operating temples has increased dramatically from thirteen in 1970 to thirty-seven by the end of 1985. An analysis of ordinance data, however, suggests that at the most temple work has remained relatively flat over the last five years. An average of only one out of every three converts actually receive his or her own Endowment. Graphs of actual data, since 1971, show an exponentially widening gulf between total live Endowments and the number of new converts. This trend clearly began after World War II. Given that new missionaries Endowments have annually averaged almost one third of all live Endowments since 1971, the actual percent of new members receiving their own Endowment is much smaller. Since 1971 vicarious Endowments have been performed at an average rate of .81 per members per year. These per member levels have declined slightly during the past ten years, despite the impressive numbers of new temple dedications.

If you could dim the lights and turn the projector on, I'd like to show you a few slides right now. These are pictorial representations of what I've been talking about.

This is the second anointing slide I referred to earlier, basically showing how anointing activity has risen rapidly at the beginning of the Twentieth Century, primarily under Lorenzo Snow's administration, dropping off next to nothing during Heber Grant's administration. There are more details on that in my article on the second anointing in Dialogue, which was published in 1983.

I've included this slide. It is taken from the Deseret News Church Almanac, one of the few published things the Church has done on temple ordinances, to give you an idea how they lump the numbers into one nice expanding geometric curve. This curve represents all ordinances, which include baptisms for the dead, anointings, Endowments, marriage sealings, so forth. It is, of course, dramatically taking off and looks very good. There is an adjustment made at the bottom, that some how we lost fifteen or twenty million ordinances. I asked the Historical Department, which indicates this is where this adjustment comes from, what it was, and they wouldn't tell me.

This chart depicts the Endowment activity -- this is vicarious Endowments -- verses membership totals since 1846, when they were really officially commenced in the Nauvoo Temple, and as you see, the Endowments always are underneath the total membership. There is never a one-to-one correlation there.

This is a year-by-year breakout for the last fifteen years, and the pattern is still continuing.

Now, you can do a lot with numbers. So I'm going to show you a few things I have tried to do with them. I am missing a lot of data. I need stuff that I haven't been able to obtain, but I've done the best I can under the circumstances.

What I did here -- oh, this is another slide; I have them slightly out of order. This represents the number of convert baptisms since 1971, on a year-by-year breakout -- the top yellow figure, and the green you have the live Endowments which are charted. As you see the baptisms are really taking off at an exponential rate, whereas the live Endowments are pretty much flat. If there is any growth at all, it is arithematic.

I took this chart and inversed, to try and get an idea what percentage of converts baptized actually receive their own Endowments -- the live Endowment. So in 1971 it would be about 38%, in 1985 it was running at what -- about 27, 28%. The regression on this is a negative slope.

Now the same pair of slides I just showed you for the last fifteen years, you see the same pattern for temple activity since the beginning in 1846. This is net member increase on the top, verses live Endowments on the bottom. Then again I inversed to show what percentage of converts, or net increase were getting their Endowments, and as you can see, we still have a negative slope.

This slide shows you the relationship of live Endowments year-by-year for the last fifteen years and the total number of new missionaries called at the bottom, which consistently averaged about a third.

Now, this could be the most controversial slide. There is so much mysticism attached to the Endowment I was somewhat trying to quantify temple activity, to see what was really happening. Ideally I would like to have annual figures for who has a temple recommend, and so forth, but I couldn't get these. So what I did, I took total membership and tried to figure out how many Endowments per member per year have been performed. And, it is a fairly positive slope. There are a few dips. I think there are some explanations. Probably World War II accounted for the dip in 1945. I'm not sure what the '55 to '66 slump was. Probably due to the vast number of new converts who were baptized at that period. Adjusting to that, however, there weren't many new temples being dedicated during that period. You see a drop off at the every end.

I'm going to blow that up a little more so that you can see it year-by-year, how it's going. Basically, it's been pretty flat. The difference between this period of stabilization as contrasted with the others is that we have had a massive influx of new temples dedicated, and the numbers still don't reflect those. Armand [Mauss] will have more to say on that in his response.

Could you turn the lights up please? Let me quickly finish up here.

Waning individual temple activity is, no doubt, led to an increase effort among Church leaders to try to stimulate renewed interest among temple goers. During the late 1970's many stakes were issued Endowment quotas. While less emphasis is now placed on quotas, expectations remain high. For example, active recommend holders living close to a temple usually are expected to perform an average of one vicarious Endowment per month, In my own stake 2,671 visits to the Oakland Temple were made in 1985, verses 3,340 in 1984, a 27% drop in activity. Consequently, my stake presidency has requested all endowed temple recommend holders to increase temple attendance by participating in such events as stake temple days, and even take personal vacation time off work "to spend as much time in the temple as possible." But, that many Latter-day Saints apparently are not participating, in a large quantitative sense, to produce both vicarious and living Endowments, suggests a need for change. A call for reconsideration for how the Endowment ceremony is performed seems to have historical precedent. Given that specific content and procedural alterations to the ritual were subject to review and often implemented in 1845, 1877, 1883, 1893, 1919-1927, early 1960's, 1968-1972, and there have been others I am not aware of. In light of these changes and my earlier observations that no explicit testimony by Joseph Smith is known stating that the Endowment ritual was received by direct revelation, one could expect regular reviews and modifications by Church officials.

On an economic level the Church already is addressing travel expenses to attend the temple, particularly in underdeveloped regions of the world. This solution entails the construction of numerous, scaled down temples strategically placed in areas of high member densities. In an effort to further reduce temple construction and operating expenses, it might be advantageous to explore adapting rooms in selected stake centers for temple work.

Aside from this, further consideration for potential reformation of the Endowment ceremony includes two areas: the symbolism employed in the ritual, and the manner in which vicarious ordinances are performed.

Increasing trends among new converts and/or maturing youth in not obtaining their Endowment carries one implication that the ordinance no longer holds as much meaning as it once did. Indeed, according to one writer, Latter-day Saint symbolism has undergone a dramatic decline in visibility. I believe the decline stems from the effects of technology and rationalism upon members. The symbolism which originally had great meaning and importance to Joseph Smith and early Mormons, has now a diluted significance to Twentieth Century members. Such elements of out-dated symbolism, largely vestiges of Nineteenth Century Masonic influence, include the idea of a secret ceremony, secret handshakes, and signs, strange clothing, and intimidating penalties for revealing these secrets. Many feel that even in their present toned-downed form, their violent allusions are highly offensive.

On a similar note, several recent temple dedications have produced widespread opposition from local citizens and clergy, partially due to the ceremony's portrayal of a Christian minister as the hireling of Satan. Such characteristics seem to thwart rather than encourage members' love towards those who do not embrace their faith.

Furthermore, the Endowment ceremony still depicts the role of women as subservient helpmeets to men, not as equals relating to God on the same footing. This imagery could be developed to reflect the prevailing recognition of modern women's expectation and need for autonomy.

With respect to the system for performing vicarious Endowments it is interesting that it is the only portion of the total sequence of temple work which has not been batch-processed for volume production. Through 1985 a cumulative total of over 1.5 million Endowments for the living and almost 86 million Endowments for the dead have been performed. If the Church is serious about completing this sequence for every person born, it seems imperative that the Endowment portion undergo a dramatic mechanical overhaul. If patrons don't need to hear baptism and confirmation speeches prior to performing these proxy ordinances, or talks on how to have a good marriage before vicarious sealings, as all living people traditionally receive before their own ceremonies, it makes little sense that they must hear about events in the Garden of Eden, or the lone and dreary world, before vicariously receiving their own Endowment, (1)[although the repetition of these narratives no doubt benefits the individual. If increasing the numbers of Endowments were the primary objective, these elements could be performed in a few minutes instead of two hours.

The balance of temple activities devoted to instructing members in theological matters and allowing time for meditation, inspiration, and worship might be done under a different, less mechanical setting. Perhaps, the increased reliance on the movie presentation has created a dulled](1) response from frequent temple goers. A reversion to the live presentation, therefore, might help augment the attentiveness and rediscovery as participants review fundamental concepts. In this manner the Church potentially could increase vicarious temple work for the dead, as well as more adequately meet the spiritual needs of its diverse modern membership. Ultimately, the temple Endowment ceremony remains one of the most distinctive aspects of what otherwise is a religious tradition now mostly devoid of ritualistic symbolism. (Applause)

by
Armand L. Mauss

I can tell you right now there won't be anytime for questions. I will not run appreciably over 1:30, but I think in fairness to everyone, you should be forewarned that if you have some place you have to be at 1:30, including members of the panel, you ought to just leave and don't wait to say good-bye, or wait for a formal closing of these proceedings. I promise not to take offense. [Question: How long will you take?] I have about sixteen minutes of stuff to say, so we'll see how it goes.

I actually have more than that, but in the interest of time I've skipped some of the earlier material in my paper about the various kinds of sociological functions that temples have performed: rites of passage, occupational employment, in effect, for the elderly, and an elite system or stages of spiritual elites through people can pass, and aspire to pass as they go through their Church career. All of these are important sociological functions, quite apart from the spiritual aspects of temple life, but to turn directly to Dave's paper.

As with much in Mormonism more generally, there is the recurring question, here, of the relative importance of the social environment verses revelation in both the form and the content of the temple environment. The most emotional and controversial instance of this issue has to do, of course, with possible borrowings from Masonry. Richard Bushman has warned us with persuasive examples that we should be wary of facile assumptions about environment borrowings in our efforts to understand either the content of the Book of Mormon or anything else about Mormonism, and I share that position fully. Yet, I see no reason to try to make an argument at the opposite extreme, so often found in folk-Mormonism that revelation in the temple Endowment or elsewhere came spontaneously out of heaven, through a cultural and social vacuum and into human minds, that were somehow totally devoid of, or un-affected by pre-existing concepts or proclivities.

This is not the place for an extended discussion of the nature and process of revelation, but Mormonism probably even more than most religions has always recognized the importance of the human element in the revelatory process, whether in the very initiation of that process, as we find in D&C 9, or in providing the conceptual categories and constraints within which revelation has been understood. After all the "mistakes of men" are readily acknowledged in the revelation of the Book of Mormon itself, if you read the Preface in the title page, and the revelations of the Doctrine and Covenants we are told in Section 1, verses 24 to 28, came to the Lord's servants "in their weakness after the manner of their language that they might come to understand, despite their tendency to err." Why should it be different with the revelations on temple work?

Given the involvement of the Smith family and friends in the Masonic order prior to 1842, and the similarities between portions of the Mormon and Masonic rituals after 1842, there is obviously a strong implication of some degree of Mormon borrowing from the Masons. That the Masonic ceremony itself underwent change and evolution, even in recent centuries, does not necessarily invalidate Joseph Smith's claim that he was restoring by revelation an even a more ancient temple ceremony, to which the Masonic one bore certain resemblances. On the other hand, neither does that claim constitute a declaration of the total independence of the Mormon temple ceremony from any external cultural influences, including Masonic influences. Frankly, I have some difficulty why all of this should be such a big issue, except to one with a fairly simplistic understanding of how a prophet and his religion get their ideas from. Since prophets and religions always arise from and are nurtured within a given cultural context, self always evolving, it should not be difficult to understand why even the most original revelations have to be expressed in the idiom of that cultural context.

It seems to me that the most original and authentic and enduring elements of the temple rituals, are the doctrines and the covenants which are transacted there, whether we are talking about the Endowment, marriages, or vicarious baptisms. And by covenants I mean here the commitments that the Saints make to certain standards and principles. I am not referring to much to those covenants involved with the signs and tokens, which seem to me to have the most peripheral doctrinal significance. Those basic covenants and doctrines do, indeed, call for a deeper understanding and a higher level of commitment than a new member usually has at the time of baptism. And it seems entirely appropriate to me that those covenants and doctrines should be entered into in a special sacred place, and at a more mature stage of spiritual development. Altogether though these constitute -- these fundamental covenants and doctrines constitute less than a hour of the total temple Endowment. The rest of the Endowment is best understood, I think, as merely a kind of a liturgical medium for carrying and reinforcing the more crucial elements that I have referred to. Even those crucial elements, to the extent that they are specific temporal expression of a more enduring abstract archetype, might be subject to some modification also, as revelation dictates. But the rest of the ceremony, the liturgical trappings could be replaced altogether in accordance within varied historical and cultural settings in which the LDS temples are found. We do not value fish more or less because they are found in a fresh or a salt water medium, or because they are surrounded by a great variety of this or that kind of marine geology or flora. Similarly a great variety of environment elements ought to be acceptable in the medium within which the essentials of the Endowment are found.

To discover that that medium contains some Masonic elements should be no more disturbing than the recognition that it also contains elements borrowed from the lore of the film arts, especially from Disney; or the fact that the murals found in the temples before the film age are borrowed from a variety of non-Mormon traditions and motives of painting; or that the meeting rooms of the temples, as well as LDS chapels resemble strongly those in many Protestant churches, with a pulpit or altar in the front, and that seats or pews in rows, and so forth; or that the hymns sung in LDS sacrament meetings are borrowed in form, in not always in content, from the Protestant tradition, as is for that matter the order of services for the most part; or that Christmas trees, and sometimes even Santa Claus appear in Mormon churches at Christmas time; or that the Church bureaucracy has borrowed liberally from the corporate business world for its procedures and practices. The list could go on and on, for the Mormon religion always has been, and always will be given expression primarily in forms and idioms that are familiar to its converts and adherents.

Of course, such expressions will not necessarily occur willy-nilly. They may be consciously and strategically chosen. Thus the assimilationist positions of the Church -- the Americanization -- the assimilationist position of the Church leaders during the present century was accompanied by a phasing out of the so-called second Endowment, and by modifications in the general temple Endowment and garment that made them more normal and palatable. On the other hand, in the Nineteenth Century, when Mormonism was trying to establish its uniqueness and distance from conventional Christianity, it is not too surprising that its leaders would include in the Endowment elements that were expressly anathema to that Christianity, including Masonic elements. One is put in mind here of a parallel, perhaps, in the rejection by certain American Blacks of the white man's Christianity in favor of a form of Islam.

With such an understanding of the interaction of the cultural, temporal and revelatory elements in their religion Mormons are better able to identify those elements which are truly distinctive, inspired and indispensable, while considering all the rest subject to modification, or even elimination, in line with changing cultural settings. This principle clearly operates in the religion more generally, and there is no doctrinal reason that it could not apply to the temple as well. Thus, as time goes on we might see variations in the Endowment, not only from one generation to another, but also from one country to another, as long as the essentials remain. It seems to me that the question of Masonic borrowings shrinks into insignificance with this more expansive perspective.

The changes in the Endowment and in the garment that have been traced in Dave's paper, can be understood as responses to the changing circumstances surrounding the Mormon religion more generally. Max Weber and his disciple Earnst Troeltsch pointed to recurring cycles in the his of new religions that by now have empirical replications. Though religions and their new converts tend to be characterized at the beginning by many mystical and spiritual experiences, and by much charismatic fervor, new movements tend to be tamed with the passage of time, if they are to survive at all. A rapidly increasing membership brings with it many organizational imperatives, leading to increasing bureaucratization, standardization and routinization. An hostile social environment will exert pressure on the new religion to give up or tone down its most deviant characteristics, as a condition of enjoying a modicum of social respectability that s necessary for its survival and continued growth. The unique charismatic elements which nurtured the religion in its infancy are eventually routinized and brought under institutional controls. This process can be seen as readily in Mormonism, as in the histories of countless other new religions. It has been thoroughly documented and described for Mormons, most recently by Thomas Alexander in his new book on the history of the Church from 1890 to 1930.

As Alexander indicates toward the end of his book, both the Endowment and the garment during the 1920's underwent a great deal of modification, shortening, streamlining, and standardization, very much in line with the assimilationist policies of the Church more generally. Indeed there is good reason to believe that serious consideration was given during the 1920's to relinquishing altogether the use of the garment outside the temple. Thus, even within the walls of the temple itself we can see the classical process of routinization and institutionalization, a process that has continued down to the present, when computers are used to reassemble on the records those segments of temple ordinances that have been pragmatically disassembled in the actual doing. A related point has been made about the decline of unique Mormon symbolism in Alan Robert's paper in Sunstone in 1979.

What Max Weber called the routinization of charisma though, can be seen even more clearly in the relation of the temple to the rest of the religion. The increase in temple activity during the first half of the century, documented by both Berger and Alexander, has clearly been accompanied by a decline throughout the Church in more spontaneous charismatic expressions of healings, visions, tongues, millennial anticipation and accounts of the Three Nephites. Though I do not have systematic data on this decline, it is clearly implied in the Shepherds' book on the changing content of General Conference sermons. Anyone who has lived as long as I have, furthermore, has seen the typical testimony meeting transformed from a sharing of personal spiritual experiences to a series of recitations by formula about things to be thankful for. Alexander has made the observation, furthermore, in a personal conversation with me that a major, if unintended function of increased emphasis on an increasingly standardized temple routine has been the displacement of the spontaneous and unregulated charismatic expressions in early Mormonism by the controlled, channelled and institutionalized containment of charisma, via the temple in line with Weberian theory. To the extend, futhermore, that even the residue of the charisma in the temple continues to erode in the face of batched processing and enhanced technology, we may have some of the explanation for the loss of popular enthusiasm about temples, implied by Berger's figures on the flattening rates of temple activity in most recent years.

Yet, it would be premature to conclude from Dave's paper, and his graphs and tables, that there has been a decline in temple activity more generally. In particular, statistical relationships between conversion rates and rates of temple activity are complicated by both temporal and geographic considerations. There is always a time-lag in high conversion rates in a given part of the world and the construction of a temple in that same area. At the very least then we would have to break down the data according to time and place in order to make inferences about relationships between conversion rates or Church growth and temple activity. This would be all the more true for vicarious temple work, as distinguished from personal Endowments and marriages. A Further complication arises from the fact of defection rates, which in certain times and missions around the world have been phenomenal. Thus, high rates of Church growth accompanied by low rates of temple work, in a given area may tell us far more about defection than about commitment to temple work in high growth areas.

My final observation has to do with the implications of the temple proceedings for dogma and for popular belief. It is unavoidable that ritual, like other human transactions not only reenforces beliefs, it even generates them. Much of the reenforcement is intentional, of course, but much may also be unintentional. So the interesting question always arise of what the Saints may unintentionally be getting taught by their temple experience, especially if it is repeated often. There always has been much folklore about the temple garment, of course, including it supposed protective properties against physical injury, properties never attributed to it officially or doctrinally, as far as I know, but nevertheless passed on in the ever circulating lore about temple and temple work. In a version of Dave's paper that you didn't see, because it was longer and more detailed, we have heard that a serious consideration was once given to the use of a dark skinned actor to portray Lucifer in the most recent temple films. An idea, which though it was surely a byproduct of only traditional Mormon folklore, would just as surely have been sacralized, and by implication canonized, if it appeared as part of the temple ritual.

While the Church was fortunately spared such an egregious example of temple indoctrination, one wonders what doctrinal notions may unintentionally be canonized by consistently portraying Adam, Eve and other major Biblical figures, not only as European in appearance, but as Nordic, even in the temples of Asia and the Pacific. This bias is serious enough in the art work of our visitor centers, but in the temple it may actually take on doctrinal implications. While a portrayal of events in Eden during the Endowment is accompanied by a reminder that it is intended to be figurative, much of the rest of the Church instruction encourages a more literal cast of mind among the membership. Thus, one wonders what kind of doctrine is inadvertently being taught by films that portray the Gods, the Father and Son, as while, not just in a celestial or spiritual sense, but in a mortal racial sense with stereotypic white beards; or that shows the dwelling place of the Father with stereotypic golden throne and arches; or that portrays Lucifer as a good-looking young man with a van Dyke beard; or that present non-Mormon clergy as slow witted dupes dependent on Satan for their livelihood, and sprouting medieval notions that have no currency for generations; or that seem to sanctify the anomaly of relations between the sexes which are ultimately supposed to be equalitarian, which are temporally hierarchial.

There is no implication intended here, either that the Saints are so unimaginative that they take everything literally, or that it is up to the scholars to fix up the Endowment ceremony in line with what their own notions of what is acceptable. Yet in a Church, which only aspires to have universal appeal, it is incumbent upon all us to attend to those elements of cultural ethnocentrism which are intertwined with our teachings, whether within the temple or without. One way to undermine both ethnocentrism and undue literalism in temple teaching is to permit the expression of the Endowment in as great a variety of cultural idioms as possible, consistent with the integrity of the fundamental covenants and doctrines which must unite all Latter-day Saints across all cultures. Should that begin to happen we shall all see far greater change in the temple Endowment than what we have learned about from Dave Berger's careful and interesting paper. Thank you. (Applause.)

QUESTION AND ANSWER PERIOD

Berger: If you want to ask any questions we will hang around for a few minutes. Sure---

Question: Just what are you trying to accomplish? Are you trying to tell us that our Prophets are wrong and that you are right, or what are you trying to do?

Berger: With respect to what?

Question: With Sunstone for instance and with all that you have been telling us.

Mauss: I think that we are trying to tell people that our Prophets are human beings, and that, if we understand that, we're in a better position to separate the human element from the divine element, and know what we should cling to.

Question: Are you both good Mormons?

Mauss: Well, it depends on what you mean by "good Mormon". I'm an active participant in my home ward and have been a member of the Church all my life, but I really think that is not an appropriate question for this forum.

Question: Dave, I would like to ask a question regarding the Masonic influence, such as may be assumed, would be in the temple ceremony. Masonic rituals apparently evolved over a period of time themselves. I think you suggested at some point they evolved to a point at which certain rituals and signs and whatever, that were incorporated possibly into the Mormon temple ceremonies -- ah, can you identify those periods of time in any concise way. We can surely say this didn't come from Solomon or that developed at a later time. How would you address that?

Berger: Well, it's difficult to know on what date certain things were solidified. The most credible Masonic historians are quick to say that it all happened over a long period of time and it's difficult to know exactly what happened when. What we do know is that in the operative Masonic world -- This would be the stone masons; the guys who built the buildings had these tools that they used and they gradually were transformed into the ceremonies that we know now to represent a spiritual system of morality. Those ceremonies initially were used on the basis of identifying each other in trade organizations, and they were very rudimentary, even into the late 1600's. Portions of the ceremony, as we know it now, were starting to evolve about that time. The Grand Lodge of England, which was the granddaddy of them all, if you will -- it was the lodge from which everything else traces its path of authority up 'till now. It was established in 1717, and even at that point there was no cohesive, unified concept among Masons at to what the ceremonies ought to be or their genesis was. After the Grand Lodge was established, there was individuals who tried to start writing these histories. And this happened particularly in the 1720's and 1730's. What they did is they took these rudimentary ceremonies and began to develop or build the mythical backdrops. The concept, for example, that they went all the way back to Solomon's Temple, or all the way back to Adam, and built this into the framework of their own ceremonies. As the quote went earlier that I gave, even these were not fully developed until the mid to late 1700's. So it took a long time for all that to progress. And to say the things I was showing on the screen were common to all Masons in a systematic, neat, tight package, as you know it now, clear back to Solomon or Adam is ludicrous.

Question: Do the Masons today generally accept their origins going back to Solomon, or is that particular to Mormons?

Berger: I don't know a large number of Masons over different parts of the world, so I don't know what the view in the pew is, so to speak. I suspect that it's sort of like what we have in the Church. There is a certain informed group who really dig in and study and aren't consumed by the mysticism, but the majority probably just accept it as is and pass along. Masonic historians have evolved to do a more scientific type of history, dating from the 1930's and 1940's up 'till now. So it's taken that long to get a good view.

Question: Have you found any differences in the plural marriage ceremony, or is the plural marriage ceremony multiple sealings as we know it, or is there actually a difference?

Berger: I haven't done a whole lot of work with plural marriage. I try to stay away from that subject. I think the ceremony is pretty similar now, as it was then. It's just that they did it several times.

Question: I am interested in how the temple ceremony portrays the patriarchal principle of the Church, and whether that particular principle has been portrayed that way since the inception of the temple ceremony, or whether that is something that has evolved over time?

Berger: Well, it is difficult to answer that precisely, because we don't have texts available to us now of the ceremony as it was originally administered in 1842. There obviously were some changes between then and '45 as Heber C. Kimball noted in his diary, and without those texts -- I have diary entries from some of the different General Authorities from that period, so we can piece some of it together. We're basically reduced to relaying on published accounts. Now the published accounts are given by apostates. People who went through the temple and decided it was about time to print the content of the ceremony. I've collected over a hundred of these exposes, dating from 1846 on, '45 actually. And it's interesting, that some relay on each other, but there is a core of maybe a dozen or so exposes done by different people which give a little insight. I think that the patriarchal principle did go back quite a ways, though. At least to the Utah Endowment House period, and possibly to Nauvoo. It may not have been as well organized as it is now, but I think it did go back quite a ways.

Question: As you view that, being given that the temple ceremony has been changed in some instances as how it is portrayed, is it your personal opinion that the Church views the patriarchal principle as something being portrayed differently, or in that the ways that it is portrayed right now is doctrinally correct?

Berger: Can you hear that in the back?

Voices: No!

Berger: He's asking about the patriarchal principle as depicted in the temple ceremony, in larger retrospect to its place within Mormon doctrine or theology. I think that -- I suggested that could be one place that changes could be made. I think, though, it clearly comes hard in face of the doctrine of the Patriarchal Priesthood, and how everything comes through priesthood. And I think that it would be pretty hard to change it over night without serious reconsideration how women are involved in the ecclesiastical process. I don't see any other way how they could do that. Any other questions?

Question: Is your paper going to be published?

Berger: Well, you can ask that guy in the back down there, Jack Newell. I submitted it to Dialogue. I think they'll publish it---the answer is, yes.

Question: And Armand's paper as well?

Berger: Yeah, I think that would be appropriate. You can buy a tape, if you want. I decided not to tape it the last time, but then I changed my mind. So---

Question: Will that tape be available in an hour?

Berger: Right now. Walk out the door. In maybe half an hour or so it will be available. Thank you very much.

Partial Transcript of Nauvoo Endowment, microfilm serial no. 183,371 (old no. 25163, pt 1) in the Genealogical Library, Salt Lake City, Utah. The spine of the volume has the following notation:

ENDOWMENTS 10 DEC. 1845
TO 7 FEB. 1846
SUPPLEMENTARY RECORD
NAUVOO TEMPLE

[letter tipped in]:

Gospel Mysteries

Salt Lake Temple Records Office
June, 1924

This record is compiled from memorandums found with the Nauvoo Temple record books, and it is evident that the lists refer to Endowments given in that Temple, as most of the names thereon are the same as are entered in the Endowment Record. It is not known why these names were not included in that record; they are duly recorded herein, by instruction of the Presiding Authorities of the Temple.

This constitutes a Record that is supplementary to the Nauvoo Endowment Record.

[s] Duncan McAllister, Recorder

List of Ordinance Workers, pages 194-200

Note: It is probable that nearly every all of the women's names in this record are their married names.

Individuals who first received their endowments: page 66.

...Continued work as usual on the Temple of the Lord until the morning of the 7th of January [1846] when being called upon I went to receive my endowment. Went in about 10 in the morning with the second company, was the first of the company that was washed at the same time with Walter E. Wilcox. Done by Jacob Gates, and anointed by Harrison Burgess, also received a new name by him. B. L. Clapp, Elohim, & Orson Pratt, Peter. Received through the v[eil] by Amasa Lyman. Got through about 4 in the afternoon and left the house, while passing out Pres. Joseph Young informed me that he should depend upon me to come and assist in giving the Endowments. On the morning of the 8th commenced my work as usual on the Temple, and continued until the morn[ing] of the 20th when I was sent for by Bro. Young to come and labour in the Endowments and immediately went for that purpose. First commenced writing for Pres Joseph [Young] and the next day commenced labour at the veil, and continued administering and officiating in all the departments of the first endowment with the exception of the serpent, which I esteemed as a great blessings and privilege, affording to me a knowledge of those things which had been concealed before.

...I obtained permission of Pres Joseph [Young] for her [Mary Parker] to have the privilege of spending her time in the temple also, where she commenced her labours on the morn[ing] of the [January] 27th and in the evening of the [January] 29th we were sealed upon the altar, Husband and Wife, for time and all eternity, by Amasa Lyman, at 25 minutes to nine witnessed by Phineas Richards and C. W. Wandall and recorded by F. D. Richards.

...

February 1st [1846] Sunday Attended meeting at the Temple Preaching by Orson Pratt, followed by Noses Smith.

...

12 Feb [1846] Commenced a regular meeting with the Brethren in the Temple for prayers, to continue, so long as we staid in this place, beginning near the hour of sunset.

...

 Continued by work and meetings at the Temple untill Wednesday the 18th [of February]...Missed prayer at the Temple.

...

Continued work and prayers through the week [to Sunday February 22, 1846].

...

Feb 22 [1846] ...from thence [a meeting in the Seventies Hall] to prayer meeting in the Temple until 10 o'clock in the evening, being one of the first quorums, numbering 15 which quorum regulated the order of Meeting in the Temple under the direction of Orson Hyde and Joseph Young, and who should there attend.

...

March 1 [1846] ...In the P.M. went to Levi's and at Sundown to the Temple, where we spent the evening in holy conversation, administering the Sacrament, and speaking in Tongues, enjoying the blessings of the Gospel.

...

March 11th & 12th [1846] Missed prayers in the Temple.

Sunday March 15th [1846] At meeting, held south side of the Temple (a very windy day) Preaching by Orson Hyde, and he also read a Revelation to the people which was given by the Spirit to him the day previous concerning the present condition of the Church and the falsity of Strangism, &c, &c. In the evening was with the Quorum in the Temple untill after 12 o'clock at night. The Sacrament was administered, and great Blessings were enjoyed, Tongues, Prophecying [sic], and the angels attended us, Their glory filled the House in so much that many witnessed it throughout the city and testified thereof, that is the brightness of fire.

March 15 (Wed) [1846] Evening spent with the Quorum in the Temple, myself presiding at which time it was testified that there had not been so great faith manifested at any time before, and was testified of by many without that the Temple was filled with exceeding bright light, the gift of Tongues & prophecy was much enjoyed.

March 19 [1846] Carried a ticket to Uncle Levi that he should have an admittance into the Quorum with us, and in the evening was present with us for the first time. This evening resulted in an unpleasant manner to the company a censuring spirit arose which took several hours to quell and for a time seemed as if to destroy the Quorum but through faith and perseverance it was overcome, and union restored.

20 March [1846] Missed meeting with Quorum

22 March [1846] ...went to my Quorum meeting in the Temple. The Whole Quorum being present consisting of 15 members, as follows, Zebedee Coltrain, Phineas Richards, Levi Richards, Graham Coltrain, John Coltrain, F. D. Richards, Abel Lamb, Benj. Brown, Wendall Mace, Thomas B. Richards, Charles Patten, Curtis E. Bolton, William Anderson, John Loveless, and my self. Dressing ourselves in the order of the Priesthood we called upon the Lord, his Spirit attended us, and the visions of heaven were opened to our view. I was, as it was, lost to myself, and beheld the earth reel to and fro, and was moved out of its place, men fell to the earth and their life departed from them, and at the close thereof, there appeared a great company as it were of saints coming from the West as I stood with my back to the north and they were passing to the east, and the scripture was fulfilled with saith, 'Come see the desolation which the Lord hath made in the Earth,' and the company of Saints who had been hid as it were from the earth, walked in the light for the glory of the Lord was around them while darkness was upon the face of the Earth, and I beheld other things which were glorious while the power of God rested down upon me. Others also beheld Angels, and the glory of God. Having had a season of enjoyment, it was proposed by C.E.B. [Curtis E. Bolton] that we pray for the Prophet Joseph to come into our midst and converse with us, some consented so to do but the idea was first objected to as being unwise by Bro. Levi R. [Richards] who received a reprimand by way of [a] hint to leave the room from Bro. B. [Brown] not being agreed with the Quorum. The matter was taken up, and after some remarks from several of the brethren, it was decided by the President, that we had no right to pray for such a thing, and all was again right. The Sacrament was administered and our joy encreased [sic] by the gift of Tongues and Prophecy by which great blessings were spoken and made known to us.

29 March [1846] ...in the evening was with the Quorum in the Temple and enjoyed the meeting much.

...

April 1st [1846] In the evening had an excellent time in the Temple. Bro. Patten and Bro. A[n]derson with their women at the Quorum, all of them (there being six) were anointed for their infirmities and 2 children blessed. The Sacrament was administered and we had had [sic] an interesting time.

[From April 2 to 4 he was home with his wife who was ill.]

April 5 [1846] Did not attend prayer at the Temple.

April 10 [1846] In the P.M. at the Temple.

April 12 [1846] ...in the afternoon attended the Quorum Meeting in the Temple, the Sacrament was administered, and several dreams were told, and the interpretations given in Tongues, where in some of the principles of the resurrection were explained and much good instruction given. April 13 [1846] ...in the Evening was with the Quorum as usual. Bro. Loveless and Bro. Lamb was present with their wives, all of whom were anointed and administered unto for their health, after which the subject of the resurrection was again [?] on the birth of the spirit that we must be born of the earth. etc.

April 14 [1846] Did not attend prayers.

April 16 [1846] Did not attend prayer in the Temple.

April 17 [1846] ...in the evening with the Quorum in the Temple untill 9 o'clock.

April 29 [1846] In the afternoon met in the attick story of the Temple with the members who formed the prayer circle in [Room] No. 1 and a part of [Room] No. 2 with our wives and had a feast of cakes, pies, wine & where we enjoyed ourselves with prayer, preaching, administration for healing, blessing children, and music and dancing untill near midnight, the other hands completed painting the lower room.

May 9 [1846] Went to the Temple where I spent the evening with a party (consisting mostly of the members of our Quorum with their wives) learning the rudiments of dancing taught by I. K. Nichols.

10 May [1846] After [Sabbath] meeting attended Quorum meeting in the attick with my wife where we partook of the Sacrament and spent the evening. Trustees Heywood and Fulmer were present, a woman was administered to, who had been blind for many years, brought to the meting by Bro. Heywood.

May 11 [1846] In the evening after prayer went to Bro. Lerned Barlow's.

May 12 [1846] Spent the evening at the Temple dancing school with my wife.

May 14 [1846] Went to the temple in the evening to the dancing school.

May 16 [1846] Saturday evening attended the dancing school with my wife.

TEMPLE ORDINANCES AS ADMINISTERED IN NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, 1840-1846

By

Lisle G Brown

Part One - Introduction

While sitting comfortably in the Washington, D. C., temple and viewing the motion picture endowment, I have often wondered how closely that version of the ceremony corresponded to the original services introduced by Joseph Smith in the 1840's. I have had similar thoughts while participating in the "live" endowment in the Salt Lake Temple. If through some extraordinary circumstances a company of 1990 Latter-day Saints found themselves in the 1840's, either in the upper room of Joseph Smith's red brick store or in the attic rooms of the Nauvoo Temple, what would they experience when they received their endowments? Would they feel comfortable with and receptive to the ceremonies? Would they obtain the same blessings, enter into the same covenants, and receive the same instructions as the Nauvoo Saints? In essence, were the temple ceremonies of the 1840's the same as those of the 1990's?

Obviously, the temple services of the 1840's would not conform in all particulars to the contemporary ceremonies, which make the full use of modern technology, such as motion pictures, audio recordings, amplified and stereophonic sound, dramatic lighting, and computerized automation; none of which were available in the nineteenth century. Moreover, the endowment, as introduced by Joseph Smith in his store, would not follow precisely the modern ceremony, because he himself explained that he labored under less than ideal circumstances.(1) Recognizing this, he charged Brigham Young to take the new ceremonies and to "organize and systemize" them.(2) Clearly the Prophet himself did not feel the services administered in his store were the final expression of the rituals. Brigham Young later stated, that each time he undertook to make provisions for conducting the ceremonies, he understood better how to administer them.(3) Before his death in 1877 President Young had the ceremonies partially written out as a guide for future temple workers.(4) Temple workers taught the unwritten portions of the ceremonies to other temple workers. Naturally over time such a method of transmission resulted in slight variations in the services between temples.(5) Finally in the 1920's the First Presidency allowed the endowment to be completely written down in order to insure uniformity of presentation throughout all temples. At this same time an apostolic committee, under the direction of George F. Richards, made a thorough revision of all the temple ordinances, refining them and making them more acceptable to the sensibilities and tastes of twentieth century Mormons.(6) Even since receiving my own endowment in the early 1960's, I have personally observed a number of minor alterations in the ceremony, suggesting that the General Authorities have continued to refine and adjust the ceremonies as required.(7)

All of the above suggests that temple ceremonies are not static, inert, and lifeless rituals, but are instead dynamic and fluid vehicles which can be adapted to the circumstances in which they are administered, from the cramped quarters of Joseph Smith's store to the spacious interiors of modern temples. President Harold B. Lee recognized that some members might be disturbed by the apparent "changeable" nature of the ceremonies, especially the endowment. He addressed this concern as follows:

> Sometimes our people who go through the temples are a bit startled because of the varied ways in which the endowment is presented. Perhaps, as under inspiration they [those of the General Authorities assigned to oversee temple work] studied the nature of the endowment, they thought to make it a little more meaningful to the patrons who would come: part by dramatization, part by question and answer, part by lecture, part by picturization on the walls of some of the temples. We have artists who have tried to put those who go through the temple in the mood of the lesson to be taught as they proceed through the temple. In more recent times, as the many language problems presented themselves (like those in the Swiss Temple where we may have a German-speaking session today, a French-speaking tomorrow, and an English-speaking the next day, as well as Scandinavian sessions) by picturing the endowment on a screen rather than by giving it by lecture and dramatization, the same message can be given with a minimum number of workers like we have in other temples. . . . Now, when we have that in mind, we will see why the Prophet in the beginning of this dispensation, gave certain instructions to have the brethren stimulated in their thinking.(8)

Although changes have occurred in the ceremonies over the years, such alterations have not affected the underlying foundation of the rituals. Using the endowment as an example, Latter-day Saint scholar Hugh Nibley indicated the reason for this:

> The Mormon endowment . . . is frankly a model, a presentation in figurative terms. As such it is flexible and adjustable; for example, it may be presented in more languages than one and in more than one medium of communication. But since it does not attempt to be a picture of reality, but only a model or analog to show us how things work, setting forth a pattern of man's life on earth with its fundamental whys and wherefores, it does not need to be changed or adapted greatly through the years; it is a remarkably stable model.(9)

Just how stable a model the ordinances are, will be demonstrated by examining the various sources on the introduction of temple rites among the Latter-day Saints.

This study examines the administration of the ordinances of the temple at Nauvoo, first as initially introduced by Joseph Smith to his closest associates in private residences, and then as given to the Saints generally by Brigham Young and the Twelve Apostles in the temple. The study pays particular attention to the Apostles' labors, in order to see if they were thorough in following the patterns established by the Prophet. As the endowed Latter-day Saint reads the study and mentally compares the current ceremonies with the Nauvoo rituals, he will see that in all important particulars the contemporary temple ordinances are based entirely on those ceremonies administered in Nauvoo in the 1840's.

Part Two - The Red Brick Store(10)

Upon examining the primary sources for the introduction of temple ordinances by Joseph Smith in the 1840's, the researcher confronts an almost insurmountable obstacle -- apparently the Prophet left no written instructions, directions, or outlines of the ceremonies. Such a situation is not unexpected, however, because he told those whom he initiated that they should not write about the ceremonies.(11) Although the Prophet often publicly discussed the doctrinal basis of the ordinances, his private conversations concerning their administration, if written down, have not been available for scrutiny.(12) A revelation given to Joseph Smith in January 1841 contains wording indicating the range and variety of temple worship.(13) This document includes such words and phrases as: fullness of the priesthood; baptisms for the dead; keys of the holy priesthood; washings; anointings, solemn assemblies, memorials for the sacrifices by the Sons of Levi, oracles in your most holy places wherein you receive conversations, statutes and judgments, and endowment; keys whereby he may ask and receive blessings; and sealing blessings of the church even the Holy Spirit of promise.(14) While these words and phrases certainly convey expressive nuances of temple worship to modern Latter-day Saints, by themselves they provide little evidence of the specific nature of the ceremonies as administered by Joseph Smith. To broaden the picture, other sources need to be consulted. These sources include letters, diaries, and later reminiscences of the Prophet and his associates whom he initiated into the ceremonies.

Baptism for the Dead

The first temple ordinance administered in Nauvoo was vicarious baptism for the dead. The first such baptism occurred on August 15, 1840, following a funeral sermon by Joseph Smith in which he stated that a baptism for the deceased person could be performed vicariously. When such a baptism was done at the behest of the mother for her deceased son in the Mississippi River, the Prophet approved the ordinance's administration after determining that the wording of the prayers were appropriate.(15) Willard Richards explained the basic policy for vicarious baptisms at that time:

> You have the privilege of being baptized for your relations who are deceased, & be confirmed for them. Also you may be baptized for any of your friends who you believe would have embraced the Gospel had they been privileged with hearing it. This might be more particularly confined to this place but not exclusively. If you should desire to be baptized for any of your friends you can do so, but [it] would allow you to do it privately & keep a record of the same & send it to the General Church Clerk where all such Baptisms are recorded.(16)

Until the completion of the font in the basement of the Nauvoo Temple, the Saints used the Mississippi River for proxy baptisms. The Saints dedicated the completed font on November 8, 1841 and used it for the first vicarious ordinances thirteen days later.(17) Eventually the Saints performed 15,626 baptisms for the dead in the Nauvoo Temple font.(18)

In 1843 Willard Richards provided written instructions, concerning the form of the prayers for vicarious baptisms and confirmations:

> The following is the form [of the baptismal prayer,] calling the candidate by name[,] I baptize you for & in behalf of (candidate by name[,] your mother or as the case may be) in the name of the Father and of the Son &c [and of the Holy Ghost].
>
> The order of confirmation. I lay my hands on your head in the name of Jesus Christ & confirm you a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of L[atter] D[ay] Saints for & in behalf of &c [who is dead, and say unto you: receive the Holy Ghost].(19)

Restoration of Temple Ordinances

An important entry in Joseph Smith's history recorded the introduction of the temple rites, especially those ceremonies associated with the endowment, on May 4, 1842.(20) The entry was not drafted by Joseph Smith, nor was it contemporary with the event, but was apparently written by Willard Richards in April 1845.(21) Nonetheless it reflected succinctly the nature and thrust of the day's activities. The pertinent part of the entry read:

> [Joseph Smith instructed the assembled brethren] in the principles and order of the Priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order of the Ancient of Days, and all those plans and principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the First Born, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds.(22)

Endowed twentieth century Latter-day Saints have little trouble correlating this statement with their own temple experiences. However, did the ceremonies introduced by the Prophet on that day, correspond to the endowment given to the members of the Church today? Did the men initiated by Joseph Smith receive the same promises, blessings, covenants, and instructions, that the Saints receive today? While the entry above is eloquent, it is not sufficiently amplified to the point that these questions can be answered conclusively. Other sources need to be consulted.

Washing and Anointing

In 1877 Brigham Young explained that in the red brick store Joseph Smith used his small office at the rear of the building on the second floor for the initiatory ordinances, "We were washed and anointed, had our garments placed on us, and received our new name."(23) President Young's statement, which presumably referred to the services in May 1842, indicated the ceremonies included four basic components of ritual initiation: a washing ceremony; an anointing ceremony; the clothing in a special garment; and the receiving of a new name.

A few of the participants also left brief accounts of the day's activities. Bishop George Miller wrote in 1855, "Many of the Apostles and Elders having returned from England, Joseph washed and anointed us Kings and Priests to God, and over the House of Israel."(24) Heber C. Kimball noted in his journal, "I was aniciated into the ancient order[,] was washed and annointed and Sealled and ordained a Preast and so forth in company with nine others."(25)

Clearly in the washing and anointing ceremonies Joseph Smith ritually cleansed the participants and anointed them Kings and Priests to the Most High and over the House of Israel. Later these same ceremonies were administered to women, first to Emma Smith and then to other females.(26) Bathsheba W. Smith stated, "I received the ordinance of anointing in a room in Sister Emma Smith's house in Nauvoo."(27) At first Emma Smith performed the ceremonies, but later other sisters also administered them. For example, Mary Smith, wife of Hyrum Smith, washed and anointed Bathsheba W. Smith.(28) Obviously, if men were anointed Kings and Priests, then their wives were anointed Queens and Priestesses.

Furthermore persons, who received their washings and anointings under Joseph Smith's directions, understood that participation in the ceremonies brought them into a special priesthood quorum. Heber C. Kimball listed the quorum members in 1845, stating they were "members of the Holy order of the Holy Preasthood having received it in the Life time of Joseph and Hirum the Prophets."(29) Naturally, this priesthood body included those "anointed" persons, who had received the fullness of the priesthood anointing. Moreover, when individuals received the initiatory anointing, they also became quorum members perhaps in a provisional capacity.(30) Hence, William Clayton wrote in his journal, "[I] was permitted to [receive] the ordinance of washing and anointing, and was received into the Quorum of the Priesthood."(31) Quite understandably persons who received their anointings at Joseph Smith's direction called themselves the Anointed Quorum.(32)

Even women who received these ordinances became members of this priesthood quorum. Brigham Young noted on October 29, 1843 two sisters were "taken into the order of the Priesthood," and a few days later his own wife was also "admitted into the priest order or Preasthood [sic]."(33) The phrase "priest order" obviously referred to the anointing in which men and women were anointed Kings and Priests or Queens and Priestesses.

The third item mentioned by Brigham Young, after the washings and anointings, concerned the clothing in a special undergarment. Marian Woodward, who worked briefly in the Nauvoo House, stated that she knew Joseph "had had his endowments and wore garments, for the woman who washed for the family showed them to [her]."(34) One of those endowed by the Prophet mentioned that a garment had to be prepared for him before he received the ordinances.(35)

A seamstress prepared the original garment following Joseph Smith's specifications. Reportedly she had to cut out three copies before he was satisfied.(36) The original garments were made from either cotton or muslin, and were full length, reaching to the ankles and the wrists. The first garments did not have collars, but they were later added at Emma Smith's suggestion.(37) A description of the original garment indicated that it "had a collar and it had strings to tie it and sleeves that came to the wrist, not to the hand, but about an inch above, and the leg came down to the ankle joint."(38) Certain "marks" were cut into the material.(39) An individual described these marks: "On the right breast is a square, on the left [breast]

a compass, in the center a small hole, and on the knee a large hole."(40)

The last item mentioned by Brigham Young in his 1877 statement was the giving of a new name as part of the ceremonies preceding the endowment. Joseph Smith also mentioned a new name and indicated it was a key word.(41) Charles C. Rich, an associate of the Prophet, said that Joseph Smith taught that "this new name [was] a keyword, which [could] only be obtained through the endowments," showing its relationship to temple rites.(42) The new name, described by Brigham Young, constituted a type or shadow of the new name given by the Lord to those who enter the Celestial Kingdom.(43)

In summary, the ordinances administered in Joseph Smith's small office consisted of:

1. A washing with water for men and women.
2. An anointing with oil for men as Kings and Priests to God and over the House of Israel.
3. An anointing with oil for women as Queens and Priestesses.
5. The clothing of men and women in a garment with four geometric marks.
6. The receiving of a new name.

The Endowment

Concerning the May 1842 meeting, Willard Richards wrote that a portion of the day's activities included the "communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood," which he called "the order of Ancient of Days".(44) In 1877 Brigham Young gave a more expanded description of the day's activities:

> Joseph divided up the [large upper] room [in his store] the best that he could, hung up the veil, marked it [and] gave us our instructions as we passed along from one department to another, giving us signs, tokens, penalties, with the key words pertaining to those signs.(45)

The men who assisted the Prophet to prepare the room indicated that it "was arranged representing the interior of a temple as much as the circumstances would permit."(46) Mercy R. Thompson indicated that "there were always three rooms . . . where we took our endowments. Two of these were anterooms, and the other [one] was where the main ceremonies were conducted. There was a place in one of the anteroom where we were washed and anointed with oil."(47) One compartment contained potted plants and was called the "Garden Room."(48) At least one altar was provided.(49) Bathsheba W. Smith stated that in the main hall where the men and women assembled together for the endowment: "There was no curtain separating the ladies from the gentlemen." She stressed, "We did not have any curtain [separating us] at all."(50) By this description she did not exclude a veil, because on another occasion she stated that in the hall "they had a sheet hung up as a vail, and the first endowments were given there."(51) Not only was the room prepared for ordinance work, but special ritual clothing was also prepared.(52) Maria Jane Johnston left a personal testimony of the existence of this ritual clothing:

> I was living with Father [John] Smith, the Prophet's uncle and on one occasion the Prophet wrote a letter to his uncle [asking] him to meet him the next morning in Nauvoo, [they lived] twenty-five miles from [Nauvoo]. Mother [Clarissa] Smith, . . . was sick and [since] I was the hired girl I had to get these clothes and fix them in time for Father Smith to meet the Prophet Joseph in Nauvoo. Mother Smith told Father Smith to explain to me about this clothing, what they were for and what they did with them, the reason he had to have them and have them in good condition, before I got them out, and he did so. That was the first I knew about endowment clothes but they were the same as they are now. Sister Smith told me where they were and how to prepare them for him. They were in a chest locked up, inside of a little cotton bag made for the purpose and were all together. Then I got the clothes and pressed them out and put them in good condition and he went to meet the Prophet. These clothes were never put out publicly, in the washing or in any other way. When we washed them we hung them out between sheets, because we were in the midst of the Gentiles.(53) The temple clothing included a long white robe.(54) This robe could be changed from shoulder to shoulder.(55) A girdle or sash fastened the robe at the waist.(56) Besides the sash a white lamb-skin apron, upon which were painted a number of green fig leaves, was tied around the waist.(57) Joseph Smith reportedly directed that aprons when "they could be, they should be made of lambskin with three, nine, five or seven leaves on--an odd number anyway."(58) A hat, resembling a baker's cap, was worn by the men.(59) The sisters also wore a "cap," which was also called a veil.(60) White lamb-skin moccasins completed the temple clothing.(61) Joseph Smith indicated that this ceremonial attire represented the restoration of the robes worn by the priestly officiators in the tabernacle of Moses and the later temples in Jerusalem.(62)

Concerning the instructions which Brigham Young mentioned in his 1877 statement, the participants recorded little about the nature of the teachings given during the endowment services. Typical of the Prophet's terse descriptions was an entry in his diary, which indicated that he "gave them their endowments and also instructions in the priesthood on the new and everlasting covenant."(63) On another occasion Joseph Smith simply recorded that he was in his store's upper room where he "attended to ordinances and counselled."(64) Those the Prophet endowed were equally reticent about describing the nature of these instructions. Bathsheba W. Smith only stated that after receiving the washing and anointing, those to be endowed "went in the lodge room over Joseph's store and he gave us lectures--lectures on religious subjects."(65)

However, the participants' descriptions of the endowment teachings often mentioned the priesthood. An 1841 revelation identified the temple as the place wherein "the keys of the holy priesthood [would be] ordained, that you may receive honor and glory."(66) Willard Richards' statement on the activities of May 4, 1842, indicated that some of these keys pertained to the Aaronic Priesthood and others to the Melchizedek Priesthood. He then explained that they resided in the order of the Ancient of Days, or the Patriarchal Priesthood.(67) According to George Miller, during the May 1842 meeting Joseph Smith "conferred on [the men] the Patriarchal Priesthood."(68) During a funeral discourse for James Adams, another of the men who first received the temple rites, the Prophet indicated that "he [had] anointed him to the Patriarchal power -- to receive the keys of knowledge, and power, by revelation to himself."(69) Joseph Smith himself stated that "patriarchal authority" would include part of the restored temple ritual system, and that when the Saints finished the temple "God [would] fill it with power."(70) Prior to the administration of second anointings Joseph Smith affirmed that he had administered the ordinances of "Abraham's Patriarchal power which [was] the greatest yet experienced in this church."(71) The Prophet's statement indicated that the temple ordinances administered between May 4, 1842 and August 27, 1843 (washings and anointings, and the endowment) fell within the penumbra of Abraham's patriarchal power or the Patriarchal Priesthood, but that additional priesthood power would also be exercised in the temple. Even at this early date in the restoration of temple rites, those who received their washings and anointings, and endowments understood that these rites were only, as Wilford Woodruff phrased it, "preparatory for further blessings."(72)

While Joseph Smith often publicly discussed the doctrinal ramifications of the sign and tokens, key words and penalties, mentioned by Brigham Young in 1877, none of those he endowed left written descriptions for administering them. This was not unexpected, because a revelation to the Prophet indicated that the temple rites included "things which [had] been kept hid from before the foundation of the world, things that pertain[ed] to the dispensation of the fullness of times."(73) This same revelation described these hidden things as the "keys of the holy priesthood."(74) One Latter-day Saint historian demonstrated recently that these hidden keys related to two temple concepts: a particular procedure for praying and a way for differentiating between righteous and evil spirits.(75)

In connection with the endowment services Joseph Smith included instructions on a special type of prayer. One of those so taught stated, "When I and my husband had our endowments. . ., Joseph Smith presiding, he taught us the true order of prayer."(76) Apparently, the true order of prayer was taught by Joseph Smith at the completion of the ritual services.(77) After teaching this prayer form to his associates, Joseph Smith organized a "prayer circle," whose members "met many times with Brother Joseph and others who had received their endowments . . . in an upper room dedicated for that purpose, and [he] prayed with them repeatedly in those meetings."(78) Understandably, the meetings were usually called prayer meetings.(79) In these meetings the members prayed after the true order by clothing themselves in their temple robes, forming a circle, offering up the signs of the priesthood, and uniting in a solemn vocal prayer.(80)

The second item of instruction, the identification of evil and righteous spirits, was one of Joseph Smith's most important teachings during the endowment services.(81) The Prophet explained, "The keys [of the priesthood] are certain signs and words by which false spirits and personages may be detected from true, which cannot be revealed to the Elders till the Temple is completed."(82) When Joseph Smith began administering the endowment in his store, he conveyed these important keys to his brethren.(83)

By the time of his death the Prophet had endowed about sixty of his closest associates.(84) In general the features of the endowment services introduced by Joseph Smith to these men and women included the following:

1. A special room was divided into compartments in which the endowment was administered.
2. A veil was used.
3. The participants wore special clothing, called temple robes.
4. They received instructions on the priesthood and its ordinances.
5. They were taught about signs, tokens, key words and penalties, receiving the keys of the priesthood which pertain to the Aaronic and Melchizedek Priesthoods, including how to identify spirit messengers.
6. They were taught a special order of prayer.

Holy Order of Matrimony

Joseph Smith introduced other temple ordinances besides the endowment. One of these was the sealing in the holy order of matrimony, which included the plurality of wives. A number of recent studies on the origins of eternal marriage and plural marriage have appeared, which document the history of these principles and practices among the early Latter-day Saints.(85)

The first sealings in celestial marriage occurred on May 28, 1843, when Joseph Smith and his wife Emma were sealed for time and eternity.(86) Thereafter the Prophet began sealing other married couples for time and eternity.(87) Apparently the Prophet made no record of the wording or form used in these first sealings in eternal marriage.

However, with plural marriages some limited evidence concerning the wording for the marriage ceremony has survived. Neither the Prophet nor his associates recorded any plural marriage ceremony prior to 1841, although clearly Joseph Smith took plural wives in the 1830's.(88) The first actual evidence of a marriage ceremony between Joseph Smith and a plural wife occurred in April 1841 with the Prophet's marriage to Louisa Beaman. Joseph B. Noble performed the marriage, Joseph Smith giving "the form of the ceremony, [and] Elder Noble repeating the words after him."(89) This marriage ceremony was never recorded. However, in a similar situation, Joseph Smith's marriage to Sarah Ann Whitney, the Prophet recorded a revelation, which included the wording of the ceremony:

> These are the words which you [Newel K. Whitney] shall pronounce upon my servant Joseph and your daughter Sarah Ann Whitney. They shall take each other by the hand and you shall say, You both mutually agree, calling them by name, to be each other's companion so long as you both shall live, preserving yourselves for each other and from all others, and also throughout all eternity, reserving only those rights which have been given to my servant Joseph by revelation and commandment and by legal authority in times past. If you both agree to covenant and do this, then I give you Sarah Ann Whitney, my daughter, to Joseph Smith, to be his wife, to observe all the rights between you both that belong to that condition. I do it in my own name and in the name of my wife, your mother, and in the name of my holy progenitors, by right of birth which is of [the] priesthood, vested in me by revelation and commandment and promise of the living God, obtained by the Holy Melchizedek[,] Jethro and other of the Holy Fathers commanding in the name of the Lord all those powers to concentrate in you and through [you] to your posterity forever. All these things I do in the name of Jesus Christ, that through this order he may be glorified and [that] through the power of anointing David may reign King over Israel, which shall hereafter be revealed. Let immortality and eternal life hence forth be sealed upon your heads forever and ever.(90)

Joseph Smith left no record whether this ceremony was analogous to that used on other occasions. However, the recollections of Melissa Lot, one of Joseph Smith's plural wives, contained similarities:

> As near as I can remember or understand it, the marriage ceremony at the time I married Joseph Smith is as follows: 'You both mutually agree to be each others companion, husband and wife, observing the legal rights belonging to this condition that is, keeping yourselves wholly for each other, and from all others, during your lives.'(91)

Although these two marriage ceremonies did not follow precisely the wording of each other, they shared a number of features common to such rituals:

1. The couple held hands.
2. They were called by name.
3. They covenanted to reserve themselves for each other for time and eternity.
4. The woman was given to the man as his wife.
5. The couple were blessed with immortality and eternal life.
6. The blessings they received were passed on to their posterity.
7. The officiator performed the ceremony by proper priesthood authority.
8. The ordinance was administered in the name of the Savior.

Finally, the sealings in matrimony administered during the lifetime of Joseph Smith were for living persons only with one known exception. On October 26, 1843, the Prophet sealed eleven women, all dead, to his close friend John M. Bernhisel.(92) There was no mention of any proxies standing for these women. Clearly, such an administration was a clear exception to the general rule that sealings of deceased persons required a temple for their administration.

Second Anointing

The final temple ordinance introduced by Joseph Smith was a ceremony called the second anointing, which distinguished it from the initiatory anointing first administered in May 1842. Joseph Smith "taught that but one King and Priest could be anointed at one meeting in a private place dedicated by permission to anoint in" when no temple was available.(93) The first persons to receive this ordinance were Joseph Smith and Emma Smith on September 28, 1843, in the red brick store. On that occasion the Prophet was "anointed and ord[ained] to the highest and holiest order of the priesthood & (Companion [Emma] d[itt]o)(94) According to Willard Richards, on that occasion the Prophet "received his second Anointing of the Highest & Holiest order."(95)

In this ordinance a man and his wife were anointed and ordained a King and Priest and a Queen and Priestess, fulfilling the promises made in the initiatory anointing.(96) This ordinance also bestowed the fullness of the priesthood upon the recipients. Indeed, it was revealed to Joseph Smith as early as 1831, "The wisdom of man in his fallen state, knoweth not the purposes of my holy priesthood, but ye shall know when ye receive a fullness by the reason of the anointing."(97) Brigham Young affirmed in 1843, "For any person to have the fullness of the Priesthood, he must be a king and priest. . . . A person may be anointed a king and priest long before he receives his kingdom."(98) Orson Hyde confirmed this principle, when he said that the "fullness of the priesthood included the authority of both king and priest."(99)

Washing and Anointed for Burial

The second anointing, introduced by Joseph Smith, was actually a two-part ordinance, the concluding part taking place in the privacy of the newly anointed couple's own home. In this ritual the wife washed and anointed her husband's body. After receiving these ministrations from his wife, Heber C. Kimball wrote in his journal:

> Apreil the first day 1844. I Heber C. Kimball received the washing of my feet, and was annointed by my wife Vilate fore my burial, that is my feet head Stomach, even as Mary did Jesus, that she mite have a claim on Him in the Resurrection. In the City of Nauvoo.

Vilate Kimball added her own written attestation:

> I Vilate Kimball do hereby certify that on the first day of April 1844 I attended to washing and anointing the head Stomach and feet of my dear companion Heber C. Kimball, that I may have a claim upon him in the morning of the first Resurrection.(100)

Other couples who received their second anointings also left written accounts of attending to that part of the ceremony.(101) The washing of feet culminated the ordinances available to the Saints. Franklin D. Richards noted in a Nauvoo Temple record that Willard Richards and his wife, Jennette, had "attended to all the ordinances pertaining to the House of the Lord -- to & including the washing of feet in the days of Pres. Joseph Smith, Jr."(102)

Sealing of Children and Adoption of Men

There also was an additional temple ordinance that may have been or may not have been administered during Joseph Smith's lifetime. This was the law of adoption, or the sealing of parents to children, including the adoption of men to fathers in the priesthood.(103) No source contemporary with Joseph Smith indicated that he administered this ordinance during his lifetime. The existing evidence was only hearsay, and it dated many years after the Saints left Nauvoo.(104) For example, William Hall claimed that "Joseph Smith was of the seed of Abraham, the Twelve were adopted to him, and others to the Twelve."(105)

Likely Joseph Smith instructed those he endowed about the sealing of parents to children and men to fathers in the priesthood. However, he probably refrained from administering such rites, because, as Brigham Young later stressed, that ordinance was only to be administered in a temple. Not even such a specially dedicated structure as the Endowment House in Salt Lake City was suitable for its performance; the ordinance required a temple.(106) While the Prophet may have sealed men to fathers in the priesthood, neither he nor his closest associates left any evidence that children were sealed to their parents during his lifetime.

Conclusion

In conclusion there exists a small, but fairly comprehensive body of evidence showing that the temple ceremonies introduced by Joseph Smith in the 1840's included those ceremonies which twentieth century Latter-day Saints expect to find in the temple: baptism for the dead, washings and anointings, the endowment, sealing in the holy order of matrimony, and second anointings, including the washing and anointing for burial. Although the Prophet did not seal any children to their parents, he may or may not have sealed men to fathers in the priesthood. Furthermore, excluding baptisms for the dead, he conducted no vicarious ordinances, except in one isolated case where he sealed some deceased women to a man, apparently without using proxies. The next two parts of this paper examine how the Twelve Apostles, under Brigham Young's direction, successfully transferred the Prophet's sacral teachings and ceremonies to a bona fide temple environment.

TEMPLE ORDINANCES AS ADMINISTERED IN NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, 1840-1846

By

Lisle G Brown

Part Three - The Nauvoo Temple(107)

If only a minimum amount of information exists on the nature of temple worship in Nauvoo during Joseph Smith's life-time, the situation is reversed concerning the administration of ordinances in the Nauvoo Temple under the direction of Brigham Young and the Twelve Apostles. The picture given by these sources is quite complete and surprisingly forthright. The documents fall within three categories: official temple record books; personal writings, such as diaries, letters, and reminiscences of participants; and published exposes by apostate Mormons who received the ordinances.

The official Nauvoo Temple records, which are all housed in the Church Archives or on microfilm format at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City, include volumes on baptisms for the dead, endowments, sealing of living couples and sealings of a living spouse to a deceased spouse, sealing of children to parents and men to fathers in the priesthood, and second anointings.(108) These volumes often include brief descriptions or "patterns" of the various ceremonies. Writings of individuals who participated in the ordinances often provide additional details, particularly Heber C. Kimball's 1845-1846 journal, which contains an unofficial endowment record.(109) There are a small number of published exposes of the Nauvoo Temple rites, dating from 1846.(110) These exposes can be of some, limited value in an examination of the Nauvoo Temple rites, but only if used as supplements, and then in a judicious and comparative manner with other sources of more veracity.

After Joseph Smith's death in June 1844 proxy baptisms continued as before. The only substantive change occurred in April 1845 when Brigham Young directed that from then on all proxy work done in the temple would follow "a perfect system of order, male and female in their individual capacity and conjointly as husband and wife, a man acting for and in behalf of his male relatives, and a woman acting for and in behalf of her female relatives."(111) Prior to this time persons had been baptismal proxies for their deceased relatives with our regard for sex, men standing for women and women for men. With the approaching time for the administration of temple ordinances President Young changed the policy for better order in conducting proxy rites. Brigham Young explained the reason for this change:

> You can readily understand that the woman could not be ordained for her male relations [in the temple] and thereby could not finish the work which she has begun in being baptized for them, but she can perform proxy duties for her female dead and finish the work which the Lord has given her to do, while the man holding the keys of the priesthood can finish the work relating to the male portion of their dead in being ordained for them to the possession of the Holy Priesthood, and the man and the woman conjointly in being sealed before the alter [sic] for the male and female dead that they may appear perfect before the Lord and be entitled to all the blessings of the sanctified in the celestial world, the same as though they had lived to perform these works for themselves in the flesh.(112)

The Nauvoo Temple Attic

As the Nauvoo Temple neared completion the Twelve Apostles and others, under Brigham Young's direction, undertook provisions for administering the ordinances which Joseph Smith had introduced earlier. The Nauvoo Temple's interior followed the general design of the Kirtland Temple: a basement with a font and its ancillary dressing rooms; two spacious, arched meeting halls on the first and second floors; two mezzanine floors with a number of small rooms; and an attic story.(113) Apparently, the original plans for the temple provided no separate rooms for ritual ordinance work. Instead, Brigham Young decided to follow the approach used by Joseph Smith in his store. President Young divided up the large council room in the temple attic for endowment work, using the same method of canvas partitions, and set aside two small office rooms for the initiatory ordinances, in which there were two large wooden bath tubs for washings and two stools for anointings.(114) Heber C. Kimball left a brief description of the large hall's arrangement: "The big Hall is converted into six Sepret rooms for the convenience of the Holy Preasthood[,] two large ones and fore small [ones] and a Hall[way] pasing through betwen the small ones, pasing from the west done through the Center, and dores into each Room."(115) Five of the six rooms corresponded exactly to the same rooms in later temples, even having the same names: Creation Room, Garden Room, Telestial Room, Terrestrial Room and Celestial Room.(116) These six rooms were all nicely decorated and furnished. The decorations included potted plants and shrubs in the room representing the Garden of Eden. Altars were placed in the Garden, Telestial and Terrestrial Rooms. An opening in the partition connected the Terrestrial and Celestial Rooms, in which the veil hung. The veil was shielded from view by a curtain in the Terrestrial Room and by a screen in the Celestial Room. The largest of the partitioned rooms was the Celestial Room which was furnished with chairs and tables, and mirrors and portraits of Church leaders on the walls.(117)

Washing and Anointing

Gospel Mysteries

Once the attic was properly prepared into the "sacred departments," ordinance work commenced on December 10, 1845. The officiators, initially those whom Joseph Smith had earlier endowed and then later others whom the Twelve endowed, followed closely the patterns established by the Prophet. Upon entering the temple, the men and women first received the ordinances of washing and anointing. Among the first to receive them was Norton Jacob who stated that he and his wife "were washed and anointed in the House of the Lord."(118) In these initiatory rites men ministered to men, and women to women, the same as in Joseph Smith's day.(119) Available sources permit an examination of the Nauvoo Temple initiatory rites in greater detail than the similar rites administered during Joseph Smith's lifetime.

In the Nauvoo Temple washing ceremony two officiators first washed the candidate, while he or she stood in a large wooden bath tub, and pronounced blessings on the person in the process.(120) In this ceremony all of the men were washed clean before receiving their endowments, while only a few were "pronounced clean from the blood of this generation."(121) When addressing a company of newly endowed persons, Heber C. Kimball noted this distinction in the washing blessings, "You are pronounced clean, but were you pronounced clean from the blood of this generation? No! not all of you, only some few who have deserved it."(122)

Likewise during the anointing ceremony two officiators anointed the candidate.(123) They used pure olive oil, scented with perfume, which was especially consecrated for the anointings.(124) One officiator anointed, while the other assisted him (or her) by holding the horn of oil.(125) The officiator anointed the man to be a king in Israel and a priest unto God and the woman to be a queen and priestess to her husband.(126) John Spiers stated that he was "anointed with oil [and] ordained to be a King and Priest unto God, in his own due time."(127) When addressing a group of newly endowed men, Heber C. Kimball described the distinction between being anointed to be a king and priest and actually being ordained as such, "You have been anointed kings & priests, but you have not been ordained yet -- and you got get it by being faithful."(128) Amasa M. Lyman also reaffirmed this principle to the same men, "You have not yet been ordained to anything, but [you] will be by and by."(129) These statements suggest that there is another, or second anointing, following the first. President Young once outlined the sequential nature of the Nauvoo Temple anointings: "Those who have come in here [to the Nauvoo Temple] and have received their washing & anointing [as Kings and Priests] will [later, if faithful] be ordained Kings and Priests and will then have received the fullness of the Priesthood, all that can be given on the earth."(130) So as there could be no misunderstanding on the part of his listeners, Heber C. Kimball reemphasized it in these words to a group of newly endowed men: "You have not yet been ordained to anything."(131)

There were also a few washings and anointings of children conducted in the temple. These ordinances occurred under two circumstances. One was for health. On December 28, 1845, Brigham Young and Heber C. Kimball, assisted by their wives, "washed and anointed for their health their three children."(132) The other occasion for such washings and anointings of children was as an initiatory ordinance prior to the sealing of children to their parents. Bishop Newel K. Whitney and his wife washed, anointed, and clothed their children in white before the sealing ceremony.(133)

As in the adult initiatory ordinances administered by Joseph Smith, those persons washed and anointed in the Nauvoo Temple also received a special undergarment.(134) The garment contained special "marks," the same as the garment given during Joseph Smith's lifetime.(135) Heber C. Kimball stated that the Saints could make their own garments of fine linen, bleached cotton, or sheeting.(136) The garment presented in the Nauvoo Temple was described similar to pre-Nauvoo Temple garment, as having "a tight fit, [being] made of white cotton cloth, with . . . marks on it."(137)

In connection with the garment the candidate also received a new name.(138) One writer stated that she was told "not to reveal [the new name] to any living creature, save the man to whom she should be sealed for eternity, or after the resurrection."(139) Another woman indicated that the candidates were admonished "never to pronounce this name on earth but once: and that, when [they] came to enter within the 'Veil'."(140) Another woman stated that the officiator told her that the new name "must never be spoken above the sound of your breath."(141)

Over the garment the candidates put on white outer clothing. For the men it consisted of a white shirt, stockings and trousers or drawers. The sisters wore a long white nightgown and white stockings. Both put on shoes made of bleached drilling.(142) One sister noted, "It is required that each candidate be clean in dress and person, and a filthy thing is here [in the temple] regarded as an abomination."(143) Once so attired the candidates were prepared to continue with the rest of the temple services.

In summary, we can now list those features of the Nauvoo Temple initiatory ordinances:

1. There was a washing ceremony in which the candidates was washed and pronounced clean, and some brethren were also pronounced clean from the blood of this generation.
2. There was an anointing ceremony in which the candidate was anointed with oil, and he was anointed to become a king and a priest unto God and over Israel (or queen and priestess to her husband, if a female).
3. The candidates were clothed in a special garment.
4. The candidates also received a new name, which they were never to reveal except at the veil, the man to the Lord and the woman to her husband.
5. After receiving their washings and anointings the candidates dressed in white clothing before proceeding with the rest of the ceremonies.

The Endowment

Having passed through the initiatory ordinances the candidates next received the endowment. In the Nauvoo Temple 5,083 persons received their endowments, including their washing and anointings, between December 10, 1845 and February 7, 1846.(144)

Sources on the administration of the endowment as conducted by Joseph Smith provide no information on the number or roles of the officiators. This situation changes when we turn to sources on the Nauvoo Temple. When temple ordinance work commenced on December 10, 1845, four officiators conducted the services, taking the roles of Elohim, Jehovah, Michael and the Tempter (also called the Serpent).(145) This was likely the number of ordinance workers who conducted the endowment during Joseph Smith's lifetime. On December 13 Brigham Young expanded the number of officiators by three: Peter, James and John, "establishing better order in conducting the endowment."(146) On that same day ordinance workers first began to refer to the various roles by number, instead of by name: Elohim becoming number one, Jehovah number two, etc.(147)

After the inclusion of the roles of Peter, James and John in the ceremony a typical endowment session required over thirty officiators and workers: seven male ordinance officiators (Elohim, Jehovah, Michael, the Tempter, Peter, James and John); three prompters (a male and female, and one male at the Veil); seven men as initiatory officiators; seven women as initiatory officiators; four wardrobe attendants; five men to attend to the fires and water in the initiatory rooms; one doorkeeper; one fireman to attend the stoves in the endowment rooms; and two recording clerks in the initiatory rooms.(148) One of these assistants may have taken the role of Cherubim and

Although the various ordinance rooms had names, such as Garden Room, Telestial Room and Terrestrial Room, it was more common, once those who labored in the temple began to refer to the ordinance officiators by number, for the workers to also refer to the rooms as departments. The sources mention three departments: the Upper Department, the Middle Department, and the Lower Department. Elohim, Jehovah and Michael officiated in the Upper Department, and Peter, James, John and the Tempter officiated in the Lower and Middle Departments.(150)

Part Two of this study showed that the available sources provided little information on the nature of this ceremony during Joseph Smith's lifetime. However the sources on the Nauvoo Temple, left a rather clear picture of the ordinances administered in the temple. Heber C. Kimball wrote a brief synopsis of the ceremony in his journal:

> [In the endowment] it is the province of Eloheem, Jehovah and Michael to create the world, plant the Garden and create man and give [him] his help meet. Eloheem gives the charge to Adam in the Garden and thrusts them in[to] the Telestial Kingdom or world. There Peter assisted by James and John conducts them through the Telestial [Kingdom] and Terrestrial Kingdom administering the charges and tokens in each and conducts them to the vail where they are received by the Eloheem and after talking with him by words and tokens are admitted by him into the Celestial Kingdom.(151)

Any modern, endowed Latter-day Saint will instantly recognize the similarities of Elder Kimball's description of the endowment with his own temple experience. However, some differences exists between the two ceremonies. These differences only become obvious upon examining the Nauvoo Temple rituals in greater detail. Another more lengthy and detail description of the endowment ceremony found in the Heber C. Kimball's journal, provides the framework for this examination.(152) This source, as well as others less detailed, will be the basis for the following discussion.

Husbands and wives generally went through the Nauvoo Temple endowment ceremony together, although single persons were also endowed.(153) Upon entering the attic, the couple went into separate rooms where they received the initiatory ordinances described previously. The Nauvoo Temple endowment formally began in the Creation Room with the ringing of the temple bell, which announced each session.(154) After receiving the initiatory ordinances, the male candidates were ushered into this room which was devoid of any furnishings, where they heard the voices of three officiators, "Eloheem, Jehovah and Michael, create the world."(155) The climax of the creation occurred when the officiators entered the Creation Room and "the man [was] created and a help mate [sic] given to him."(156) While the husbands participated in the creation portion of the endowment, their wives, after receiving the initiatory ordinances, waited in a small room across the hall from the Creation Room where they could also hear the creation portion of the ritual.(157) Upon the creation of Adam's helpmeet "the doors were opened to the men's and women's rooms, and the women [were] called for; who proceeded to the men's room [where they] selected their companion, each for herself."(158) Once reunited the husband and wife represented Adam and Eve.(159)

The couples next entered the Garden Room. In this room "the man and woman [were] placed & commandments [were] given to them [by Elohim] in addition to what [had been] given in the creation [room]."(160) After Elohim retired, another worker entered "representing Satan in the form of a man, not as a serpent."(161) He tempted the couples and at length these Adams and Eves "fell" by eating the forbidden fruit, usually a bunch of raisins hung from one of the potted plants.(162) When the couples discovered their "nakedness," temple workers brought in aprons, approximately eighteen inches square and made of white cloth, upon which were sewn green cloth leaves, and the candidates put them on.(163) They next heard the voice of God through the canvas partition and they hid among the trees in the garden.(164) Elohim returned and the couples confessed to their transgression.(165) Whereupon "the fellow in the black cap present[ed] himself before the Lord and engage[d] in a controversy, boasting of what he had done."(166) The Lord pronounced a curse upon Satan and he departed, crawling on his hands and knees.(167) The Lord commanded Cherubim and a flaming sword to guard the Tree of Life, at which point "a sword was shook...through the partition of the room."(168) After the couples had curses pronounced upon them, the same as those given to Adam and Eve in the Book of Genesis, there was "given to them a charge at the altar and the first and second tokens of the Aaronic Priesthood."(169)

Upon the completion of the Garden Room ceremonies, the couples were "thrust out into a room . . . which represent[ed] the Telestial Kingdom or the world."(170) The Tempter returned and tried to lead the couples astray by teaching them false and misleading doctrines.(171) Peter, James and John arrived and contented with him, finally casting him out.(172) Peter, assisted by James and John, conducted the couples through the rest of the endowment.(173)

The couples now dressed themselves in their temple robes.(174) These robes consisted of the same articles as those worn during Joseph Smith's lifetime: robe, sash, cap for men and veil for women, moccasins, worn with the garment and apron previously put on before donning the robes.(175) They also followed the same pattern as those worn during Joseph Smith's lifetime. One woman left the following description:

> The 'robe'. . . is a strip of white muslin, say three-fourths of a yard wide, and long enough to reach to the feet, gathered at the middle, and tied by a bow to the left shoulder, and brought across the body, and the edges fastened on the right side, with a belt around the waist of the same [material]. Over this was put the apron we had [previously] received . . . and the women wore what is called a veil made of a piece of book muslin, reaching nearly to the floor, and gathered up at one corner to fit the head. The men wore a kind of turban, made of the same material, otherwise the men and women were dressed alike.(176)

Once the couples were dressed in the robes, the ceremony continued. After each "man [had] proven himself faithful he receive[d] the first signs & tokens of the Melchizedek priesthood and an additional charge. Here he also vouch[ed] for the conduct of his companion. They [were] then left [alone] to prove themselves faithful, after which they [were] admitted into the Terrestrial Kingdom."(177)

In the Terrestrial Room there stood an altar upon which rested the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants.(178) At this altar the couples "receive[d] an additional charge and the second token of the Melchizedek Priesthood, and also the key word or the five points of fellowship."(179) Between the Terrestrial Room and the Celestial Room hung the veil. "After receiving all the tokens and [key]words and signs [of the priesthood] they [were] led to the vail where they [gave] each back to Elohim through the vail and [were] then admitted into the Celestial Room."(180) One writer indicated that prior to entering the Celestial Room, the candidates changed their robes from the left shoulder to the right should, because "everything appears wrong end foremost in the other world."(181) If this statement is accurate, this was apparently the only robe change in the ceremony.

Each husband, after entering the Celestial Room through the doorway next to the veil, turned and received "his own wife through [the veil] after he himself [had been] admitted."(182) Heber C. Kimball referred to this procedure, saying, "When the man came to the vail, God gave the key word to the man, and the man gave it to the woman."(183) Thus, the candidates entered the Celestial Room: "We come in turn, two at a time . . . here we remain as long as we please, sometimes numbering hundreds[?], all in white . . ., male and female, with crowns on our heads, all conversing of course on the singular and unexpected blessing just received."(184) While in the Celestial Room, the candidates had their clothes brought to them, and, after changing, they left the temple by a different way than through the ordinance rooms.(185) These were the essential features of the endowment, as administered in the Nauvoo Temple. However, a better understanding of the ceremony can be developed by examining some of the features of the ritual in greater in greater detail.

The Endowment Covenants

Our sources indicated that the candidates received "charges" at altars in each of three rooms: Garden Room, Telestial Room and Terrestrial Room. They contracted these covenants as couples, each pair kneeling at the altar in turn. One published source indicated the manner in which the covenants were taken: "The obligation or oath was taken by us by pairs -- two and two -- male and female, the husband and wife, if he had one, if not with his betrothed; and if he had none, with some young woman."(186) There were no "witness couples" in the contemporary sense in the Nauvoo Temple ceremony: "The Lord, his holy angels, and all that are in the [ordinance] room are called on to witness the solemn covenant[s] we here make."(187) Brigham Young described the solemn manner in which these covenants were made, "In this congregation there are men and women who, with up lifted hands to heaven, before the Father and the Son, and all the Holy Angels, have made solemn covenants."(188)

There is sufficient evidence from extent sources to allow the identification of these various covenants. The exact order of the specific charges and rooms in which the candidates received them is not uniformly specified in the sources, except in two cases.(189) What follows is an attempt to place them in an order which is consistent with later practices. While the order or arrangement of the charges in this discussion may not be accurate, the number and type of covenants made in the Nauvoo Temple is clearly defined in the available documents.

Since the first and second tokens of the Aaronic Priesthood were given in the Garden Room, there were likely two charges associated with this part of the service. Amasa M. Lyman defined the first charge which was probably administered in the Garden Room as follows, "We want the man to remember that he has covenanted to keep the law of God, and the woman to obey her husband and if you keep your covenants you will not be guilty of transgression."(190) Heber C. Kimball explained the ramifications of this covenant to a group of newly endowed Saints, "I am subject to my God, my wife is in subjection to me and will reverence me in my place and I will make her happy. I do not want her to step forward and dictate to me any more than I dictate to Pres. [Brigham] Young."(191) Brigham Young defined the covenant in these terms, "The man must love his God & the woman must love her husband."(192)

Most likely the second charge given in the Garden Room was to reverence the priesthood and its leaders. Heber C. Kimball used these words, "It is not for you to reproach the Lord's anointed nor to speak evil of him. You have covenanted not to do it."(193) He also counseled, "You have got to honor and reverence your brethren, for if you do not you can never honor God."(194) Finally he admonished the Saints, "Shall we cease from loud laughter & mirth? Will you never slander your brother and sister? I will refer your minds to the covenants you have made."(195) One candidate stated that the Saints obligated themselves "to hold up the heads of the Church, and obey them in all things, and at all times."(196) Brigham Young also addressed this covenant, "Remember the covenants that we have entered into. No man is to be filled with light[minded]ness -- no brother or sister will be allowed to speak evil of his brother or sister -- or speak against them."(197) After being endowed and hearing such instructions, one brother wrote in his journal, "Now I say, he that knows his fellow who is anointed to be a king in Israel and a priest unto God, be ware to touch not the Lord's anointed Least [sic] you touch the apple of his Eye, Least thou be cut asunder. Neither speak Evil of Such, etc., Least thou say aught agains[t] his children."(198)

Brigham Young defined the charge likely given in the Garden Room, "I will never have anything to do with the daughters of Eve, unless they are given me of the Lord [through the Lord's anointed]."(199) One individual phrased this covenant in these terms, "I will not touch a daughter of Adam unless give me of the Lord" for males, and for females, "I will not have any man but my husband."(200) Heber C. Kimball framed the meaning of this covenant in more contemporary terms, "Both men and women have also covenanted that they will have no unlawful intercourse with each other."(201) Also in connection with the second charge the husband "vouched for the conduct of his wife."(202) Amasa M. Lyman stated that because of the second charge with its obligation concerning the wife's conduct, "a man becomes responsible for his own conduct and of his wife, if he has one."(203)

A charge, given in the Terrestrial Room, was the so-called law of retribution, or oath of vengeance, in which the candidates swore "to avenge the blood of the anointed ones" who had been martyred.(204) Undoubtedly this charge was not part of the endowment as administered by Joseph Smith, but it was added as the natural response to the murder of Joseph Smith and Hyrum Smith.(205) Heber C. Kimball left a clear explanation of this charge, "I have covenanted, and will never rest nor my posterity after me until those men who killed Joseph and Hyrum have been wiped out of the earth."(206) That such an oath was required by those who received the Nauvoo Temple endowment was the understanding of George Q. Cannon, who stated, "when he had his Endowments in Nauvoo that he took an oath against the murders of the Prophet Joseph Smith, as well as other prophets."(207) Evidently this oath was eliminated after the Nauvoo Period, but the Saints continued to pray in the endowment prayer circle for the Lord to avenge the blood of the prophets, without mentioning Joseph or Hyrum Smith specifically.(208)

A final covenant, apparently made following the law of retribution, was the obligation not to divulge anything that occurred in the temple to outsiders. During Joseph Smith's lifetime this charge was probably the only one given in the Terrestrial Room portion of the endowment. Concerning this last covenant, one candidate stated, "We are also all sworn at this altar [in the Terrestrial Room], by a solemn oath, that we will never reveal to any person what we do and see in the temple . . . from first to last."(209) Heber C. Kimball indicated that this was one of the reasons why women received the endowment, "One reason why we bring our wives with us [to the temple] is [so] that they may make a covenant with us to keep these things sacred."(210) Brigham Young even counseled the brethren in one meeting in the temple to refrain from telling their wives of all that occurred in that building, saying, "All that are in favor of this signify it by holding your tongue when you go away from here;" to which Parley P. Pratt humorously added, "Contrary by the same sign."(211)

These charges of the law of obedience, reverencing he Lord's anointed, law of chastity, law of retribution and holding the temple worship inviolate provided the means for the Saints to make covenants concerning the fundamental laws of heaven. Joseph Smith taught that it was "necessary for men to receive an understanding concerning the laws of the heavenly kingdom, before permitted to enter it."(212) Brigham Young taught that the Saints would "be made acquainted with the laws of angels and of the kingdom of our Father and our God" in the temple ordinances.(213)

The Endowment Keys of the Priesthood and the Order of Prayer

Just as Joseph Smith felt that the signs and tokens of the priesthood were among the important, if not the most significant, aspects of the endowment, Brigham Young and the Apostles were also anxious to have these important keys bestowed on the Saints in the Nauvoo Temple rites. To the Twelve these keys were of such singular significance, the Apostles felt their bestowal was worthy of nearly every sacrifice required. Heber C. Kimball stated, "We cannot rest day nor night until we put you in possession of the [keys of the] priesthood."(214) Brigham Young also wrote in his diary that "such was the anxiety manifested by the Saints to receive the ordinances of Endowment & no less on [the Twelve's] part to have them get the keys of the Priesthood, that [he] gave [himself] up entirely to the work of the Lord in the Temple almost night & day."(215) What was it about the keys of the priesthood that so motivated the Twelve in their tireless labors? Fortunately our sources provide a forthright and clear answer to this question.

When we discussed the endowment as Joseph Smith gave it in his store, we learned that the keys of the priesthood pertain to the Aaronic and Melchizedek Priesthood. So far in our discussion of the endowment as administered in the Nauvoo Temple we have seen that there were actually four such keys, two each to each priesthood order.(216) Amasa M. Lyman explained the relation of these four signs and tokens to the charges given in the endowment:

> This is why you are required to be sober -- to be honest, [so] that you could ask and receive, knock and it should be opened, and that when you sought for things you would find them. It is putting you in possession of those keys by which you can ask for things you need and obtain them.(217)

In a revelation to Joseph Smith these keys were called the "keys whereby [one] may ask and receive blessings."(218) Orson Pratt called these keys the "order of God for receiving revelations."(219) No wonder Joseph Smith once told the Saints that they "did not know how to pray to have [their] prayers answered," until he "taught [them] the true order of prayer."(220) The importance of the signs and tokens of the priesthood was that they were the keys by which the heavens could be opened and the Saints receive revelations. In teaching this aspect of the signs and tokens to the Saints in the Nauvoo Temple no other Apostle was more forthright in his remarks than George A. Smith, "When we pray to the Lord we ought to come together clad in proper garments, and when we do so, and unite our hearts and hands together, and act as one mind, the Lord will hear and answer our prayers."(221) He testified that when he and his fellow Apostles "did so and offered up the signs, [they] were always answered."(222) In fact he counseled the Saints, "It would be a good thing for us to put on our garments everyday and [individually] pray to God, and [also] in private circles, when we can do so with safety."(223)

An expressive example of such a circle and its effect on the members is found in the journal of Samuel W. Richards, who wrote of a prayer circle held in the Nauvoo Temple after the building was closed for ordinance work: "Dressing ourselves in the order of the Priesthood we called upon the Lord, his spirit attended us, and the visions of heaven were opened to our view...I beheld other things which were glorious while the power of God rested upon me. Others also beheld angels, and the glory of God." When one member proposed that the circle pray for "the Prophet Joseph to come into [their] midst and converse with them," it was seriously considered, but then the president of the circle decided they "had no right to pray for such a thing."(224) Note that there was no question among the participants whether or not the Prophet would appear to them, only whether it was appropriate to request such a visitation. Such was the understanding of the Saints about the potential of true order of prayer.

The Twelve also conveyed to the newly endowed members those teachings concerning the discerning of spirits, which Joseph Smith had so forcefully taught both publicly and privately before his death. In the endowment the Saints received the keys to test spiritual beings. Orson Pratt summarized the connection between the endowment being given to the Saints in the Nauvoo Temple and the identification of good and evil spirits, "Perhaps some may enquire, how the Saints can distinguish between angels of authority, and such as have no authority, seeing there are so many different classes. We answer, that no one can distinguish correctly without the keys of the priesthood, obtained through the ordinances of endowment."(225)

The Endowment Lecture

The instructions concerning the true order of prayer, discerning of spirits, and the formation of a prayer circle were not part of the endowment ceremony as such in the Nauvoo Temple.(226) This information was conveyed in the Celestial Room either at the conclusion of the ceremony or on special Sabbath day meetings in the temple for those who had been endowed.(227) One candidate noted he and his wife after the ordinances took their "seats in the celestial department of the [Nauvoo] Temple and heard a number of lectures from the brethren on the principles of the Priesthood pertaining to exaltation."(228) Another brother attended a Sabbath meeting, "which was the first time [he had] ever met in a meeting of the Holy Order."(229) Norton Jacob also noted that he and his wife "had the exquisite pleasure of meeting with the holy order of the Lord's anointed."(230)

It was in these meetings that the Twelve taught the Saints about the significance of the endowment and how to pray after the true order by allowing them to experience what they had learned in the endowment. Hosea Stout noted that such a meeting "was the first time [he and his wife had] ever met to pray according to the order of the priesthood."(231) Heber C. Kimball described such a solemn occasion after the Twelve had instructed the Saints, "The whole assembly were then formed into 2 circles one within the other. The signs and tokens were given, the proper attitude for prayer assumed, and Elder Taylor being mouth the whole congregation united with him in prayer to God."(232)

Not only were the signs and tokens given to the Saints in the Nauvoo Temple important as the keys of prayer and as the means to identify spiritual beings, but the Apostles also taught an additional significant aspect concerning them. Amasa M. Lyman explained that these signs and tokens were "the [very] key by which [they] approach[ed] God." "This is the key," he continued, "by which to obtain all the glory and felicity of eternal life."(233) It was this aspect of the signs and tokens that prompted Brigham Young later to tell the Saints that they must "receive the endowments in store for [them] and possess the keys of the eternal Priesthood, that [they] may receive every word, sign and token, and be made acquainted with the laws of angels and the knowledge of our Father and God, and [thereby] know how to pass from one degree to another, and enter fully into the joy of the Lord."(234) It was by receiving the endowment, President Young taught, that allowed the Saints to obtain the knowledge that enabled them "to walk back into the presence of the Father, being able to give them the keys words, the signs, and tokens, pertaining to the Holy Priesthood, and gain [their] exaltation in spite of earth and hell."(235) Amasa M. Lyman summarized the importance of the endowment to the Saints gathered in the Nauvoo Temple:

> The scenery through which you have passed is actually laying before you a picture or map by which you are to travel through life, and obtain an entrance into the celestial kingdom hereafter. If you are tempted in regard to these things here, you will be tempted when you approach the presence of God hereafter -- You have, being faithful, been brought to this point, by maintaining the things which have been entrusted to you. This is a representation of the Celestial Kingdom. It is not merely for the sake of talking over these things that they are given to you, but for you benefit, and for your triumph over the powers of darkness hereafter.(236)

No wonder Joseph Smith, Brigham Young and the Twelve were so exercised about the necessity of the Saints obtaining their endowments, for the keys of the priesthood revealed in that ceremony gave them the knowledge of how to "obtain the felicity of eternal life."

We can now summarize the endowment as administered in the Nauvoo Temple:

1. The creation of the world by the Gods was portrayed.
2. The formation of Adam and Eve was also portrayed.
3. The couple were placed in a garden and given commandments by God.
4. The Tempter entered the garden and tempted Adam and Eve, who broke the commandments, ate the forbidden fruit, and fell.
5. Elohim cursed the Tempter and cast him out; He also cursed Adam and Eve, and thrust them into the Telestial Kingdom. Before doing so, however, He gave them a charge and the first two tokens of the Aaronic Priesthood.
6. The Tempter returned and attempted to lead the couple astray by teaching false doctrine, but he was exposed by Peter, James and John, who cast him out. 7. Peter, James and John conducted the couple through the rest of ceremony, giving them another charge in the Telestial Room, dressing them in the robes of the priesthood, and giving them the first token of the Melchizedek Priesthood before ushering them into the Terrestrial Room.
8. In the Terrestrial Room the couple received a third charge and the second token of the Melchizedek Priesthood from Peter, after which the man passed through the veil, he then admitted his wife through the veil into the Celestial Room.
9. In the Celestial Room the couple received further instructions on the ceremony, including the true order of prayer.

These elements include all those mentioned in Part Two as given in Joseph Smith's store, suggesting that in all essentials the two ceremonies were the same. It is apparent that after Joseph Smith's death Brigham Young and the Twelve closely adhered to the Prophet's procedure of administering the endowment. The next installment of this study continues the examination of the ordinances administered in the Nauvoo Temple, surveying those ceremonies given sequentially after the endowment. These rites include the holy order of matrimony, the sealing of children to parents, the adoption of men to men in the priesthood, and the second anointing.

TEMPLE ORDINANCES
AS ADMINISTERED IN NAUVOO, ILLINOIS,
1840-1846

After receiving the endowment in the Nauvoo Temple, many couples also received additional ordinances, inlcuding the sealing in the holy order of matrimony, sealing of chidren to parents, adoptions of men to fathers in the priesthood, and second anointings. These ordinances consitituted the higher, sealing ordinances of the temple.

Holy Order of Matrimony

Heber C. Kimball explained to a group of newly endowed men and women why it was necessary for previously married couples to be sealed in the holy order opf matrimony, "We have now come to this place [in the temple], and all your former covenants [in marriage] are of no account. And here is the place where we have to enter in[to] a new covenant, and be sealed, and have it recorded."(237) Rumors of this principle rapidly spread among the non-Mormon community. The Warsaw Signal reported: "The doctrine is that to those who have received their endowment, all old things are done away and everything has become new. This is taken literally and applied to marriage and all other contracts."(238) One member indicated the practical implications of this situation:

> We are told that this [marriage] ceremony is the commencement of the law of God, and the laws of the land are no more binding on us; all our former ties in marriage, &c., are now cut asunder, and we are all thrown loose upon the world as if never married. It is now the woman's privilege to choose whom sees fit; if she likes the one she has been living with, she can keep him; if not, she is at liberty to ship him and take another.(239)

Naturally, most women selected their own mates, but a few chose to be sealed to someone other than their original husbands.(240)

Although two sealings in marriage were conducted on January 1, 1846, the general administration of such sealings commenced after January 7, 1846, with the dedication of a special altar in Brigham Young's room:

> The altar is about two and one-half feet high and two and one-half feet long and about one foot wide, rising from a platform about 8 or 9 inches high, and extending out on all sides about a foot, forming a convenient place to kneel upon. The top of the altar and the platform for kneeling are covered with cushions of scarlet damask cloth; the side of the upright part or body of the altar are covered with white linen.(241)

Two varieties of sealings in marriage occurred in the Nauvoo Temple. One was the sealing of couples where both spouses were living (2,420 couples received this ordinance).(242) The other was the sealing of one living spouse to a deceased spouse, a proxy standing in for the latter (369 sealings of this type occurred).(243) There were no sealings for deceased couples in the Nauvoo Temple. Both monogamous and polygamous sealings took place.(244) However, regardless of the sealing, whether monogamous or polygamous, the ceremony was the same, except for a necessary additional preliminary step in the plural marriage rite.

A sealing in the holy order of matrimony required an officiator -- Brigham Young labored chiefly in that capacity in the Nauvoo Temple, but other members of the Twelve also performed sealings in marriage -- the husband and wife to be sealed, and two or more witnesses.(245) While the couple dressed in their temple robes, the officiator and witnesses were not so required.(246) After having the required information, such as names, birth dates, etc., entered in the sealing record, the ceremony commenced.(247)

As preliminaries to the sealing ceremony the officiator asked both the man and woman if it was their understanding that they were about to be married for time and eternity. The couple acknowledged the question affirmatively. In the case of marriages of young adults, if the parents of the couple were present, they were asked if they approved of the union.(248)

If the sealing was a plural marriage, there was an additional preliminary question asked the first wife. In such a situation the first wife, following her own sealing to her husband, stood at her husband's left and agreed to give the other woman to him as a wife.(249) She did this by responding affirmatively to the following question of the officiator, "Are you willing to give this woman to your husband to be his lawful wife for time and eternity? If you are, you will manifest it by placing her right hand within the right hand of your husband."(250) She then took her husbands left arm, as if in the attitude of walking, while the officiator conducted the ceremony.(251) Orson Pratt in a letter to his first wife, Sarah, mentioned this procedure:

"You, at several times, did put the hands of others into my hand, and did give them unto me as wives immediately before the marriage ceremony was pronounced. Those women I took with all confidence, and with your consent."(252)

The sealing commenced as the coupled kneeled opposite each other and with their right hands joined over the altar.(253) Once the couple had assumed the proper attitude at the altar, Brigham Young addressed the man, saying, "You take [woman's name] by the right hand to be your lawful wedded wife, and promise, in the presence of God and Angels, and these Witnesses, to observe all the laws and obligations and duties pertaining or belonging to this order of the Priesthood, do you?"(254) After the man responded in the affirmative, President Young asked the woman essentially the same question, only indicating that she was giving herself to the man to be his wife. The woman replied, yes.(255)

The ceremony concluded with President Young pronouncing "them Husband and Wife, and [he] sealed them together as such for time and for all eternity;" he also "pronounced various blessings upon them."(256) Among those blessings was the charge for the couple to multiple and "fill up the measure of [their] creation."(257) He also "sealed [them] unto Eternal Lives, to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection."(258)

As a part of the marriage ceremony Brigham Young also "sealed them up to eternal life, against all sins, except sin against the Holy Ghost, which is the shedding of innocent blood."(259) Such sealings are mentioned in the diaries of those who were sealed in the Nauvoo Temple. Norton Jacob used almost the exact wording, writing that he and his wife were "sealed up unto eternal life and against all sin except the sin against the Holy Ghost."(260) George Laub stated that there was "nothing to prevent [him and his wife from receiving their sealing blessings], only the sin against the Holy Ghost, which is the shedding of innocent blood or consenting there unto."(261)

At the conclusion of the ceremony, President Young directed the man to "kiss his wife."(262) This ended the ordinance of sealing in the holy order of matrimony.

We can also infer that this ceremony was likely used during Joseph Smith's lifetime, as well. Although, in Part Two evidence was presented that in some cases a different wording was used in plural marriage sealings, it is likely that before the Martyrdom the ceremony used in the Nauvoo Temple was also the one used by Joseph Smith. We can reasonably assume this, because all available evidence, which we have examined thus far and which we will also examine throughout the rest of this paper, points to the fact that Brigham Young followed faithfully the patterns of the ceremonies used by the Prophet when he conducted them in the Nauvoo Temple. There is no reason to suspect that only in the case of the marriage ceremony would Brigham Young vary from this practice and introduce a new ceremony.

Sealing of Children and Adoption of Men

After being sealed as husband and wife, some couples were also allowed to have their children sealed to them in the law of adoption. Brigham Young authorized the commencement of the ordinances of this law, first the sealing of children to their natural parents beginning on January 11, 1846, and the adoption of men to fathers in the priesthood on January 25. By the conclusion of such ordinances on February 6, 1846, eighty-nine children had been sealed to their parents (This number includes twenty-four of the children's wives who were also considered as being sealed to their husband's parents), and 168 men adopted to fathers in the priesthood.(263) There was a natural tendency among Latter-day Saints, both in Nauvoo and now, to differentiate between sealings of children and adoption of men to fathers in the priesthood.(264) However, there was no such difference in the ceremony as administered in the Nauvoo Temple, indicating that the sealing of children and adoption of men were both dual aspects of one principle, which was called the law of

adoption.(265)

Brigham Young stated that the ceremony of the law of adoption was "a more solemn ordinance than that by which women were seal to men, and [ideally] in a room over that in which women were sealed to man in the temple of the Lord."(266) In the Nauvoo Temple there was no higher room in which the ordinances of adoption could be performed. Also President Young's office was too small to hold a large company, thus the altar was moved into "the Celestial Room the better to sit [suit] the conveneance of all present."(267)

Prior to the ceremony itself, adults had to have received their own endowments, whether being sealed to their parents or adopted to a father in the priesthood. Young children were first washed and anointed by their parents, who then clothed them in white before the ceremony.(268) In these services the children were anointed to the "birthright."(269) After the father and mother kneeled at the altar, Brigham Young asked the following question, addressing the man and woman by name:

> Do you both covenant and promise in the presence of God, Holy Angels and these witnesses upon this sacred altar that you will use all diligence in faithfulness to teach these your children in all the principles of righteousness and truth and so secure them eternal salvation in the Celestial Kingdom of God and promote their happiness in time and eternity that they may share all your blessings, that shall be given unto you both in this heir and in the world to come?(270)

Upon the affirmative response of both parents, Brigham Young next addressed the children (or adoptive candidates):

> Do you covenant and agree to receive and obey the counsel and instructions of these your parents that you may obtain salvation and eternal life.(271)

These affirmative responses by both the parents and children were viewed as a binding covenant. George Laub, who was adopted to John D. Lee, indicated that participants entered into a "covenant ...made before God, angels and the present witnesses." He then recorded the nature of the covenant (while specifically relating in Laub's case to an adoption, the same covenant applied to children sealed to their parents): "We covenant[ed] together for him to be a father unto those who were sealed to him, to do unto them as he would his own children & to counsel them in righteousness & to teach them all the principles of salvation & to share unto them of the blessings of comfort. These & all that are calculated to make them both happy in time & eternity."(272)

Upon the affirmative responses of all participants to his questions, Brigham Young then sealed the children to the couple "for time and eternity to bear their name and be numbered with them in their inheritance & kingdoms which may be given [to them]."(273) In the case of adoptions this sealing was performed "with the usual reservation in the case of mutual disagreement," in which case the sealing could be annulled by the President of the Church.(274)

In this ordinance the children were also sealed up unto eternal life.(275) For example, the Nauvoo Temple adoption records indicate that John and Clarissa Smith's children were "sealed unto eternal life &c."(276) The record of Newel and Elizabeth Ann Whitney's sealing of children indicated what the "&c" stood for in the previous quotation. The Whitney children "were also sealed unto eternal life against all sins and blasphemies, except the sin against the Holy Ghost which is the shedding of innocent blood, or the consenting thereunto.(277)

By this sealing ordinance each child, or adoptive candidate, "became a legal heir to all the blessings bestowed upon [the father] pertaining to exaltations, even to the eternal Godhead," both parties having entered into "a solemn covenant to observe all the rights and ordinances pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, as far as it shall be made known unto [them]."(278) These promises and blessings were all based "on conditions of keeping their covenants at [the] altar."(279)

Second Anointing

The final ordinance administered by Brigham Young in the Nauvoo Temple was second anointings. He commenced these ceremonies on January 8, 1846. Eventually 591 individuals received their anointings, all for the living except for a few deceased men who received their anointings by proxy (including Joseph Smith and Hyrum Smith who received proxy reconfirmations of their anointings).(280) Initially these ordinances were conducted in Brigham Young's room. The altar in his room was also designed for the use of "second washings & anointings."(281) However, when the pressure for the sealings ordinance in marriage became too great, Brigham Young assigned two rooms, number two and number four, on the opposite side of the Celestial Room for the administration of this rite.(282) There is no evidence, however, that either of these room had altars in them. Apparently the ceremony did not include the altar when conducted in those rooms.

As noted in the section on the initiatory ordinance of anointing to be a king and a priest or a queen and priestess, that rite anticipated another or second anointing, in which the man or woman would actually be anointed and ordained as such. Brigham Young stated that "a person may be ordained a king and a priest long before he receives his kingdom."(283)

In the Nauvoo Temple the second anointing ceremony commenced with "form[ing] a Quorum of the Priesthood to the receiving of the second ordinance."(284) This quorum consisted of two officiators, the couple to be anointed and a "number of others."(285) The chief officiator was the man who anointed and pronounced the blessings upon the candidates, as one brother described, "We were conducted to Room no. 2 where we received our anointings. . . under the hands of Orson Hyde."(286) Another officiator was a man who assisted the chief officiator with the horn of oil, in the same manner as in the initiatory anointing described previously.(287) The other men participating in the quorum were invited witnesses to the ceremony.(288) The couple was, of course, a man and his wife or wives.(289) All of the members of the second anointing quorum dressed in their temple robes.(290)

Each second anointing service was a separate meeting. In this matter the Twelve followed precisely the instructions of Joseph Smith, who stated that "in the Temple several [couples] could be anointed in a day, but at each anointing the meeting was [to be] dismissed and then [to] come to together again."(291)

Each second anointing meeting commenced with "the usual ceremony prerequisite to the ordinance of anointing."(292) The first part of these preliminaries consisted of an invocation. The clerk keeping the record of second anointings noted the important place of this invocation, "[The] Council convened in Room no. 2. Prayer having been offered by William Davis, it being a prerequisite to the anointing in all cases where a candidate is presented for anointing. This is required to offer up a prayer before the ordinance of anointing can be administered."(293) One participant in the second anointing quorum expressed his feelings at being called upon to offer the invocation, "I was called upon by the President [of the High Priests Quorum, George Miller] to open [the] meeting by prayer which I compiled with feelings of much gratitude to my heavenly Father and my brethren that surrounded us."(294) As expected, at the conclusion of the meeting a benediction was also offered.(295)

and offered up the signs of the priesthood, as noted in record of second anointings, "The Council all being arrayed in priestly robes (previous to [the anointing] prayer) a circle was formed [and] the signs [of the priesthood] were offered."(296)

After offering up the signs the chief officiator, assisted by the man who held the horn of oil, anointed the male candidate's head and various sense organs (eyes, ears, nose, mouth, etc.), with consecrated oil, pronouncing a blessing upon each, similar to the initiatory anointings.(297) In this ministration the officiator "anointed [him] a King and Priest unto God."(298) In this ordination the candidate was anointed not only a King and Priest unto the Most High God, but also "over," "in and over," or "in" the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the House of Israel.(299) These slight prepositional variations may appear minor, but they reflected significant delineations between the status of the candidates. Only one man, the President of the Church, received the anointing as a King and Priest over the Church; this was, of course, Brigham Young.(300) The next in line to the presidency was Heber C. Kimball and he was anointed a King and Priest in and over the Church.(301) All other men were anointed as Kings and Priests in the Church.(302) Clearly these differences indicated the position of the candidate's responsibility in the Kingdom of God at the time of the anointing.

In addition to the anointing (also referred to as an ordination) as a King and Priest the officiator also pronounced other blessings upon the man. A comparison of the two verbatim second anointing blessings in the Book of Anointings indicates that there was no set wording of the ordinance in the Nauvoo Temple.(303) This suggests that the officiator had the latitude to follow the Spirit in giving the blessings. Nonetheless, each blessing contained corresponding elements, although the wording for each varied. These similar features included the following:

1. The anointing as a King and Priest unto the Most High God and over/in the Church and the House of Israel.
2. The anointing and blessing of the head and sense organs.
3. The bestowal of the sealing power of the priesthood.
4. The blessings pertaining to the resurrection and the Godhead.
5. The sealing up unto eternal life.
6. The blessing of asking and receiving.
7. No blessings to be withheld.
8. The ordinance performed in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

Let us look at each of the elements, omitting the first two because we have discussed them above.

The bestowal of the sealing power in the second anointings given in the Nauvoo Temple, adhered closely to the scriptural language commonly associated with that authority. Thus the candidate was told that "whoever he blesses shall be blessed, and whoever he curses shall be cursed; that whatsoever he shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever he looses on earth shall be loosed in heaven."(304) Although the keys of this sealing power reside in only one man on the earth at a time, such sealing authority can be bestowed upon others.(305) Joseph Smith once indicated that upon receiving the sealing power, it gave the man the authority to act for the salvation of his own family, both the living and the dead:

> Again the doctrin[e] or sealing power of Elijah is as follows if you have power to seal on earth & in heaven then we should be Crafty, the first thing you do [is] go & seal on earth your sons & daughters unto yourself, & yourself unto your fathers in eternal glory, & go ahead and not go back, but use a little Craftiness & seal all you can; & when you get to heaven tell your father that what you seal on earth should be sealed in heaven[.] I will walk through the gate of heaven and Claim what I seal &

those that follow me & my Council.(306)

It was this very power the officiator bestowed upon the man in his second anointings.

The blessing given in the second anointings concerning the resurrection was similar in nature to that promise given in the scriptures: "Ye shall come forth in the first resurrection; and if it be after the first resurrection, in the next resurrection; and shall inherit thrones, kingdoms, principalities, and powers, dominions, all heights and depths."(307) The two second anointing blessings in the Nauvoo Temple records indicated that these powers pertained to the eternities, even unto the Godhead, and the candidate was told that he would attain to that position. Brigham Young explained to the Saints how such a transcendent blessing could be possible, thus preparing them for their anointings: "The Lord has led this people all the while in this way, by giving them here a little and there a little, and thus he increases their wisdom, and he that receives a little and is thankful for that shall receive more and more, even unto the fulness of the Godhead."(308) He affirmed, "We talk a great deal about our religion....It is the only system know in heaven, or on the earth that can exalt man to the Godhead."(309) At Nauvoo Brigham Young was the only one who held these keys and "when he sealed a man up to eternal life, he bestowed upon him the blessings pertaining to eternity and to the Godhead, or when he delegated others to do it in his stead, God in the eternal world recorded the act."(310)

As mentioned in the previous paragraph, when the officiator in the second anointings "sealed a man up to eternal life, he bestowed upon him the blessings pertaining to the eternities." In preparing the Saints for their ordinances in the Nauvoo Temple John Taylor indicated that one of the unique aspects of the "Mormon religion [was that it was] made up of 'obedience,' come life or death with crowns for crosses; being ordained to eternal life after sin [was] overcome. Therefore, brethren, [he counseled], endure like good soldiers, to the end, and you will be ordained to this highest honor in the priesthood."(311) To be ordained to eternal life, using Elder Taylor's wording, referred to the anointings and ordainings that the Saints would receive in the temple when it was finished. It was to this sacral experience that Joseph Smith also referred when he said that a man could be "sealed up unto eternal life, [either] by revelation and the spirit of prophecy, [or] through the power of the Holy Priesthood."(312) Many of the Saints were thus sealed up to eternal life through the power of the priesthood when the officiator was moved by the Holy Spirit to give this assurance.

Moreover, the Nauvoo Temple sources indicate that those sealed up unto eternal life, either in the marriage sealing, or in adoptive sealings, or in the second anointing, were also told that there was only one reservation by which they could forfeit the realization of that blessing; they were told that they were "sealed unto eternal life and against all sin except sin against the Holy Ghost."(313) In many cases the candidate was told that the "sin against the Holy Ghost...[was] shedding Innocent blood or consenting there unto."(314) Those who committed such a serious transgression stand in great peril: "It was explained that only such can become sons of Perdition, who receive a testimony of the Gospel -- who receive the Holy Ghost and the highest blessings of the Church, and then wilfully deny the Light they have obtained. [They become] murders who crucify Christ anew, or consent to His death, in that they shed innocent blood knowing at the time they are preventing the spread of truth, will be subject to this penalty."(315)

The two second anointing blessings also indicated that the candidate was given the promise of whatever he desired in righteousness, he would receive it. This blessing referred to the scripture, which stated that "if ye are purified and cleansed from sin, ye shall ask whatsoever you will in the name of Jesus and it shall be done."(316) Those so blessed "shall have according to their desires."(317) To receive this promise also carried with it a great responsibility. Joseph Smith explained, "The Lord told me once that what I asked for I should have [D&C 132:40], I have been afraid to ask God to kill my enemies lest some of them should peradventure repent[.] I ask a short time, since for the Lord to deliver me out of the hands of the Governor of Missouri & if it needs be to accomplish it to take him away, & the next news that came pouring down from their [sic] was Governor Reynolds had shot himself, and I would say beware O earth how you fight against the saints of God & shed innocent Blood, for in the days of Elijah his enemies came upon him & fire was called down from heaven & destroyed them."(318) The Lord told Joseph Smith that this power was one of the signs of the last days, "In that day whatsoever any man shall ask, it shall be given to him."(319) By receiving their washings and anointings, being "purified and cleansed from all sin," many men received this great promise in the second anointings in the Nauvoo Temple.

Finally the candidate was told that no blessing that he could think of would be withheld from him. This was an expression of the promise found in the scriptures of those who inherit the Celestial Kingdom, for "they are they into whose hands the father has given all things."(320)

Not only were these transcendent blessings pronounced, but the officiator added personal blessings as well. William Clayton noted he and his wives "received [their second] anointing by Heber C. kimball and a number of others, and afterward Heber blessed [them]."(321) For instance in his anointing Heber C. Kimball was blessed to live to a good age, even more than three score and ten if he desired.(322) Brigham Young was told that princes wold lay their treasures before him and he would teach them the gospel; and he would create worlds and redeem them.(323)

The wives of men who received these great promises in the Nauvoo Temple were likewise given similar blessings. The wife of the male candidate was anointed a Queen and Priestess.(324) Whereas the husband was anointed a King and Priest unto the Most High God, his wife was anointed a Queen and Priestess unto her husband.(325) In those cases where a man had more than one woman sealed to him, his wives were anointed to him in the order of their marriages as "queens [and] priestesses to their husband."(326) The wife also received the same anointing as a Queen and Priestess "over" or "in" the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the House of Israel, sharing with him the same blessings.(327) Mary Ann Young was anointed a Queen and Priestess over the Church, the same as Brigham Young.(328)

In the anointing women had "sealed upon [them] all the blessings of the everlasting priesthood, in conjunction with [their] husband," and they would thereby "be heir to all the blessings which [were] sealed upon him, inasmuch as [they] obey[ed] his counsel."(329) The same as their husbands, they were sealed up to eternal life, and also blessed to come forth in the morning of the resurrection clothed in power and glory, even unto the Godhead.(330) To these blessing the officiator also added personal blessings, as in the husband's anointings. For example, Brigham Young's wife, Mary Ann, was blessed that angels would minister and comfort her in her husband's absence, that she would be noted for her generosity in relieving the wants of the needy, and that she would act with discretion in all things.(331)

Because of the close relationship between the anointings of husband and wife, one man wrote in his journal that he and his companion "were anointed [as] King and Queen, Priest and Priestess [un]to the Most High God and throughout all Eternity."(332)

Washing and Anointing for Burial

Having received their second anointings in the Nauvoo Temple, the couple were then prepared to officiate in the second part of the ceremony, "the ordinance of the washing & anointing of feet for burial."(333) One couple's experience indicated the progression through the ordinances of the temple to that point: "On December 15, 1845, we received our endowments and on the 19th of January, 1846, in the Temple of the Lord at Nauvoo we received our second anointings and ordination and the next day, the 20th of January we attended to the last anointings, that of the feet."(334) Another source provides more detail concerning the ritual. The husband "was washed in salaratus [i.e., baking soda] and water from head to foot, afterward in spirits, then anointed in like manner by [his wife]...preparatory to [his] burial."(335) As a part of the ceremony the wife "wash[ed] the feet of her husband and anoint[ed] him to be her king and priest and savior, that she might have claim on him in the resurrection."(336)

Conclusion

By way of summary it might be instructive to follow the progress of one couple through the ordinances from the time of their induction into the ceremonies by Joseph Smith to the eventual culmination of the rituals at the hands of the Twelve Apostles in the Nauvoo Temple.

On December 9, 1843, Joseph Fielding received his endowments in the company of three other men from the Prophet Joseph Smith.(337) His wife, Hannah Greenwood Fielding, had earlier received her endowments on November 1, 1843, in company with four other women.(338) After receiving these ordinances Joseph Fielding wrote in his journal, "I have felt well increasing in Light and Knowledge and also Joy having the Good Will and Confidence of my Brethren and feeling myself to be one with [them] in these things I feel myself blessed and honoured."(339) When the Nauvoo Temple was opened for ordinance work Joseph and Hannah had their endowments reconfirmed: "On Friday, the 12th [of December, 1845] I and my Wife received our Endowment having formerly received it in the Days of Joseph and Hyrum."(340) Joseph had taken a plural wife, Mary Ann Peake, some time prior to July 1845 and he took her to the temple for her endowments: "On the 3rd of Jan[uar]y Mary-Ann received her Endowment in the Temple."(341) Later in the month Joseph returned to the temple with his two wives for the fulness of their ordinances: "Friday the 23 of Jan[uar]y 1846 we [Joseph, Hannah and Mary Ann] were sealed [in the holy order of matrimony] in the Temple by Heber C. Kimball and on the same Day we were also anointed [to their second anointings] by Parley P. Pratt. Monday 26 our 4 children were washed, anointed and Sealed to Jos[ep]h and Hannah Fielding And we (Joseph & Hannah) were sealed to Hyrum Smith for time and Eternity by Elders B. Young and H. C. Kimball."(342) Joseph Fielding was an eye witness to the restoration of the ordinances in Nauvoo. He personally experienced Joseph Smith's ceremonies in the red brick store, and the ceremonies as administered by the Twelve in the Nauvoo Temple. Thus, he was uniquely qualified to testify that the ordinances given in the temple were "now given in a more perfect Manner because of better Convenience, the 12 [were] very strict in attending to the true and proper form."(343)

Part Three of this paper has demonstrated that there exists a sizeable body of evidence which shows that the temple ceremonies that Joseph Smith introduced to his close associates in his store were successfully and fully transferred to the Nauvoo Temple. There is ample evidence that Brigham Young and the Twelve Apostles sought to completely implement the Prophet's sacerdotal rituals.

Part Four - Concluding Thoughts

This paper has shown that while there are a large number of similarities between the Nauvoo Temple rites and the contemporary ordinances, a number of differences also exist. Clearly, one of the principle reasons for variations between the 1840's and 1990's ceremonies is that the extend records from Nauvoo make it obvious the ordinance formats were still largely fluid, without a set form. It is indisputable that men and women were called to function as temple workers soon after having received the ordinances, some within just a matter of days after their initiation. Erastus Snow and his wife, for example, "received the first ordinance of endowments and were called to labour & administer in the temple from that time forth.(344) Contemporary sources indicate that Snow received his endowments on December 12, 1845 and three days later he conducted an endowment session, taking the part of Elohim.(345)

In a complex ritual system, such as that found in the temple, no person could have memorized the ceremonies in so short of time, such as is required presently in the live-action sessions.(346) In Nauvoo there must have been some verbalized, general guidelines, since little was actually written down, which the workers followed in conducting the ceremonies. Naturally, this allowed for a range of personal interpretation. There were no set ceremonies in the sense of today's rites. It was only later in Utah under Brigham Young's direction that the rituals were written down, so that there might be uniformity among the various temples. To expect such uniformity in the Nauvoo Temple was impractical, because of the circumstances in which the Saints found themselves.

It is also clear that Church leaders have on occasion refined, altered and adapted the temple ceremonies, particularly the endowment. As noted the ceremony was first partially transcribed in Spring of 1877 at Brigham Young's direction. Wilford Woodruff noted that by March of that year the men working on this project had prepared as "perfect form of Endowments as far as possible."(347) Following this initial attempt at recording the ceremony, later General Authorities continued to perfect the temple rites. After the completion of the Salt Lake Temple, Wilford Woodruff met with the Twelve and Church's four temple presidents in a three hour meeting" harmonizing the Different M[odes] of the Ceremonies in giving Endowments."(348) An apostolic committee under a much more extensive modification of the endowment during the 1920's. This committee, chaired by George F. Richards, convinced the First President to have the entire endowment ceremony written down, including those portions, "the covenants and instructions given in forming the [prayer] circle and at the Veil," which had never been recorded.(349)

Among the changes approved during period was the streamlining of endowment sessions, reducing the time from approximately six hours to three hours. The explicit wording of penalties were softened. The temple garment was modified to conform to modern fashions. The petition to avenge the blood of the prophets was eliminated from the prayer circle and summary lecture. The present temple rites are based on this committee's labors. The refining process continues today. Later changes include omitting the reference to Satan's black skin, omitting the congregational singing led by the preacher, and not specifying the preacher's salary.(350) Other changes could also be listed.

Nonetheless, it is remarkable how much similarity exists between the contemporary ceremonies and those of the Nauvoo period. Although changes have been made to the ceremonies, the basic underpinning of them remains the Nauvoo rites, which provided the framework upon which the modern ceremonies rest. The fundamental essence of the temple ordinances has not been altered. Indeed, Hugh Nibley was correct when he said that temple rites were a "remarkably stable model".

Latter-day Saints can rest assured that the temple ceremonies of today, while different in certain respects from those administered in Nauvoo, are still sufficiently similar in number, type, and form. Indeed, these ceremonies are the direct legacy of the Joseph Smith and Brigham Young to all Latter-day Saints. Both of these prophets were instrumental in seeing that these important rituals were made available for the Saints of this dispensation. The temples with their transcendent rites, which are now beginning to dot the earth, are the visible monuments of these two Brethren successfully carrying out the mandate given them of the Lord, so that the Saints might be endowed with power from on High.

Addendum - The Washing of Feet

Before completing this discussion of temple ordinances administered in Nauvoo, an exmination of a ritual not performed in Nauvoo, but which was later added to the temple ritual corpus. This ordinance is known as the washing of feet. Joseph Smith introduced this ceremony in 1833:

> On the 23rd of January, we again assembled in conference...we proceeded to wash the feet (according to the practice recorded in the 13th chapter of John's gospel), as commanded of the Lord. Each Elder washed his own feet first, after which I girded my self with a towel and washed the feet of them all, wiping them with the towel with which I was girded....I then said to the Elders, As I have done so do ye; wash ye, therefore, one another's feet; and by the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation; but if any of them should sin wilfully after they had been thus cleansed, and sealed up unto eternal life, they should be given over unto the buffetings of Satan until the day of redemption."(351)

The washing of feet was also one of the ordinances administered in the Kirtland Temple in 1836 and 1837.(352) There is, however, no record of it being performed in the Nauvoo Temple. The reference made above in this paper to the altar in Brigham Young's office being prepared for second washings and anointings perhaps suggests that there was initially a plan for a washing ceremony -- the washing of feet? -- to accompany second anointings in the Nauvoo Temple.(353) If such was the case, however, no such evidence of any such lustrations is found in the available Nauvoo Temple records.

The change in the status of the washing of feet apparently occurred in Utah four decades after the Saints left Nauvoo. At least as early as the 1880's men in the initiatory washing ceremony were likely being washed that they might become clean from the blood of this generation, instead of actually being pronounced clean in that capacity.(354) Such a contingent blessing anticipated another washing ordinance which would actually cleanse the men in that capacity. This rite was the washing of feet, "for unto this end was the ordinance of washing of feet instituted."(355) Apparently it was first reinstituted in 1883, initially as one of the introductory rites of the newly resumed school of the prophets and then later as a temple rite.(356) In fact, in the 1890's provisions were made in the interior of the Salt Lake Temple for its administration; a anteroom with a wash basin being included adjacent to the Holy of Holies for its administration.(357) The account of Joseph Smith administering the rite, quoted previously, indicates the basic method of conducting the ceremony. While washing the candidate's feet, the officiator also pronounced a blessing upon him, similar in wording to this blessing used in the School of the Prophets:

> By virtue of the Priesthood and in the name of Jesus Christ I wash thy feet according to the Holy Ordinance introduced by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ with this disciples when he washed their feet and told them to wash one another, and also by Joseph Smith, the Prophet of the Lord [as] an introductory ordinance of the School of the Prophets, and pronounce thee clean from the blood of this generation, and say unto thee, thy sins are forgiven thee, and seal and confirm upon thee all the rights, powers, and privileges associated with this ordinance in the authority of the Holy Priesthood and in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.(358)

As a result of this blessing the candidate was considered to be "clean every whit."(359)

As long as the initiatory washing met the requirement of cleansing the candidate from the blood of this generation, as mentioned previously, there was, apparently, no need for the washing of feet. When the initiatory washing became a wholly contingent ordinance, (apparently after the turn of the century), in which the male candidate was blessed to become clean through his faithfulness, there arose a need to have an ordinance which actually cleansed a man from the blood of his generation, fulfilling the promise of the first anointing. The washing of feet met this requirement. With the change in the initiatory washing, the washing of feet was included as a preliminary rite to the second anointing ceremonies in order to pronounce a man clean from the blood of his generation.(360)

Before concluding this discussion of the washing of feet, it must also be noted that the rite is only required for men, not women. This is because the man is held responsible for the sins of the world, not the woman. Brigham Young explained this principle, "Pertaining to his children on this earth, she [the woman] is not accountable for the sins that are in the world. God requires obedience from the man, he is Lord of Creation, and at his hands the sins of the world will be required."(361) President Young mentioned no such obligation placed on the woman. Hence, Joseph Smith stated that every elder "must go forth and clear his skirts from the blood of this generation," but he did not require that of the sisters.(362) Women are washed clean from the blood of this generation in the initiatory washing, and as long as they remain faithful their sins are forgiven and they are clean every whit.(363) They have, therefore, no need to receive the washing of feet like the brethren.

----------NOTES----------

(1)Brigham Young said that after Joseph Smith had administered the ordinances, he turned to him and said, "Bro[ther] Brigham this is not arranged right but we have done the best we could under the circumstance in which we are placed." (L. John Nuttall Journal, Feb. 7, 1877, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University. Hereafter cited as Lee Library, BYU.)

(2)Brigham Young represented Joseph Smith as saying, "I wish you to take this matter in hand and organize and systemize all these ceremonies with the signs, tokens, penalties and key words." (Ibid.)

(3)President Young stated that as he helped the Prophet administer the ceremonies in Nauvoo, "Each time I got something more, so that when we went through the Temple at Nauvoo I understood and knew how to place them. We had our ceremonies pretty correct [by then]." (Ibid.)

(4)In January and February 1877 Brigham Young assigned Wilford Woodruff to write out the ceremonies with the assistance of Brigham Young, Jr., L. John Nuttall and John D. T. McAllister. In a letter to the First Presidency Brother Nuttall explained, "President Brigham Young, in following up in the Endowments, became convinced that it was necessary to have the formula of the Endowments written, and he gave directions for the same to be put in writing." (Nuttall to First Presidency, June 3, 1892, Nuttall Papers, Lee Library, BYU.) President Young's intention was to leave a guide for future temple workers, as Wilford Woodruff explained, "...before his [Brigham Young] death he required me to write in a book, every ordinance in the Church and Kingdom of God, from the first to the last, beginning with baptism, to the last ordinance performed, through every department of the Endowments. I was several weeks doing this writing, and President Young corrected it all, until he got through. Then he said to me, 'Now, there you have a pattern of all the ordinances or Endowments for every temple we shall build, until the coming of the Son of Man.'" (6)In 1923 George F. Richards requested of the First Presidency "if all the ceremonies could not be written, revised and approved and go into the Presidents' Book held only by the Temple Presidents." The Presidency approved this request. (George F. Richards Journal, Apr. 14, 1923, Church Archives.) After two-years labor on the ceremonies, Elder Richards recorded, "...we have re-written those temple ceremonies and ordinances which have been heretofore written, first at the time of the Dedication of the St. George Temple [in 1877]....Later those ceremonies known as unwritten ceremonies i.e., the covenants and the instructions given in forming the circle and at the veil, were written and copies furnished on loose leaf sheets for the Presidents of Temples book." (Ibid., Jul. 12, 1924.) This work was done so that there might be "a standard to go by that these ceremonies might be kept uniform." (Ibid., Apr. 14, 1923.)

(7)Some of the changes that I have observed include the elimination of the hymn in the World Room, the omission of Satan's black skin in the preacher's description of the Devil, the deletion of Satan's pantomime of the nature of the Devil to the preacher, the change in the wording of the Law of Chastity, the permission for patrons to wear their everyday garments in the temple instead of the so-called ceremonial garment, and most recently the subtle change in the pronunciation of the wording in the sign of the final token of the priesthood.

Elder Kimball in this letter wrote, "We have received some pressious things through the Prophet on the preasthood that would caus your Soul to rejoice I can not give them to you on paper fore they are not to be riten. So you must come and get them fore your Self." This statement should not be taken as a general proscription against recording the ceremonies at all. Likely it reflected the Prophet's desire for those he initiated to refrain from discussing the ceremonies in letters which could fall into the hands of his enemies.

Ehat and Lyndon Cook, eds. The Words of Joseph Smith (Provo: Brigham Young University Press, 1984). The latter volume has an extensive commentary which is helpful in relating and correlating the Prophet's remarks.

(39)History of Eliza Monson, p. 1. A pair of Hyrum Smith's garments were reportedly in the possession of George Albert Smith. According to the description of Henry D. Richards, these garments conformed to the above description, except that they were a two-piece garment, with tops and bottoms. The marks on them were the same as marks on contemporary garments. (See description in Duane Jeffery card file on Mormonism, card entitled "Garments", Copy in author's collection.) A shirt-like garment, also said to belong to Hyrum Smith, is reportedly in the possession of Eldred G. Smith. It also follows the general pattern of the above description. (See description and drawing in Fred Collier, Notebook, pp. 247-249, copy in author's collection. Collier made his notes as he personally examined the garment in Patriarch Smith's office. He also made another drawing of this garment in a copy of Max J. Anderson, "Mormon Fundamentalism," Chapter 18 on the Garment, unpublished manuscript, copy in author's collection.) The First Presidency formally issued two-piece garments in 1979. (First Presidency Circular Letter, Dec. 15, 1979, copy in author's collection.)

Smith's garments, as described in footnote 41.

(43)Latter-day Saints usually identify the new name received in the initiatory ordinances with the new name mentioned in Rev. 2:17 and D&C 130:10-11, as well as by Elder Rich in the Journal of Discourses. A close reading of these sources shows that the new name, given as part of the washing and anointing, could not be the new name mentioned in the scriptures. This scriptural new name is one "which no man knoweth save he that receiveth it." Obviously, the new name given to the patron during the clothing ceremony is known by the officiator. As a matter of fact, persons standing proxy for the dead know the deceased's new name, because all patrons are told the new name in the new name booth. Without getting into a theological discussion beyond the scope of this paper, the new name in Rev. 2:17 and D&C 130:10-11 is that received by those who receive the full endowment, that is, all the ordinances of the temple. This new name is given by the Lord to the person who is sealed to eternal life, and it is, thus, only known by the person who receives it. This bestowal is symbolically portrayed at the temple veil, which prefigures the occasion when the person will actually receive the new name from the Lord.

(47)Testimony of Mercy R. Thompson in Abstract of Temple Lot Case, p. 354. The upper floor of Joseph Smith's store had two small rooms adjacent to the landing of the stairs. A door on the west opened into a small store room. A door on the north opened into the Prophet's private office, where washings and anointings were conducted. A third door, on the east, opened into the large hall where endowments were given. Although Sister Thompson mentioned the three rooms, apparently only two were actually used for temple ordinances, although the third room may have been used to store participants's everyday clothing during the services.

(48)Dimick B. Huntington, Statement dated Dec. 12, 1878, Zina Y. Card Papers, Lee Library, BYU. There is also archaeological evidence that a mural was once painted on the wall in the upper room's northwest corner. This mural was pastoral in nature. (Robert T. Bray, Archaeological Investigations at the Joseph Smith Red Brick Store, Nauvoo, Illinois [Columbia: University of Missouri, 1973], pp. 73-74.) Whether this mural was associated with the endowment ceremonies cannot be conclusively determined, It is suggestive that a mural, perhaps similar in nature to the more elaborate murals in later Mormon temples, existed in the very room where the endowment was first administered.

(69)Ehat and Cook, Words of Joseph Smith, p. 253. Joseph Smith's reference to an anointing in connection with the bestowal of patriarchal authority must have referred to rituals he conducted during the May 1842 meeting, not to the second anointing which was first administered in September 1843, because Adams died on 11 August 1843. (Smith, History of the Church, 5:527-528.) Hence the only temple related anointing Adams received were the rites administered in May 1842.

(71)Ehat and Cook, Words of Joseph Smith, p. 245. Joseph Smith made this statement on August 27, 1843. The washings and anointings, and the endowment, administered by Joseph Smith in May 1842, restored the exercise of patriarchal authority among the Saints. It has become customary among some LDS authors to ascribe the sealing in celestial marriage to Abraham's patriarchal authority. (Ibid., pp. 303-304.) Yet, nowhere did Joseph Smith ever equate the two. Instead, he stated that Abraham's patriarchal priesthood consisted of "the keys of knowledge, and power, by revelation to [oneself]." (Ibid., 245.) Indeed, he stated that by this authority a man could "walk and talk with God," (Ibid., p. 246.) These statements compare favorably with the definition of the keys of the priesthood given in the endowment, as the keys of how to ask and receive blessings. (D&C 124: 34,95,97.) On the other hand, he stated that celestial marriage was one of two seals in the everlasting covenant of the priesthood; the second anointing was the second seal, in which the couple received their allotted heavenly mansion. (William Clayton Journal, Oct. 20, 1843, typescript.) For a discussion of this aspect of the priesthood, see Richard Ware, "The Holy Priesthood after the Order of the Son of God," in this issue of The Research Review.

The Prophet's August 27, 1843, statement also falls within a definite historical context. He first administered the ordinances of patriarchal authority (washings and anointings, and the endowment) on May 4, 1842. (Smith, History of the Church, 5:1-2.) These three ordinances constituted Abraham's patriarchal power, which was restored by Elias in the Kirtland Temple in 1836. (D&C 110:12.) Yet additional authority needed to be administered, in order for the fullness of the priesthood to be restored (D&C 124:28.) Thus on August 6, 1843, Brigham Young correctly stated that, "if any in the church have the fullness of the Melchizedec Priesthood he did not know it." (Smith. History of the Church, 5:527.) On September 28, 1843, Joseph Smith performed the ordinance of the fullness of the priesthood for the first time. (87)On the day following Joseph and Emma Smith's sealing in celestial marriage, the Prophet sealed Hyrum Smith, Brigham Young, and Willard Richards and their wives. (Joseph Smith 1843–44 Journal, May 29, 1843, Church Archives; see also Faulring, An American Prophet's Record, p. 381.) The Prophet also sealed those outside the Twelve, such as William Clayton and Benjamin F. Johnson and their wives. (William Clayton Journal, July 22, Oct. 20, 1843, typescript, see also Faulring, An American Prophet's Record, p. 396.)

(88)Concerning the question of formal ceremonies in Joseph Smith's plural marriages before 1841, Lawrence Foster observed, "Exactly what constituted a 'marriage' is unclear in this [Joseph Smith's marriage to Fanny Alger in Kirtland, Ohio] as in many other early instances in which Smith is said to have taken plural wives." (Religion and Sexuality, pp. 301-302.) However, lack of information on a formal ceremony is not evidence that such a rite was not performed. Yet, it is also clear that a marriage ceremony, exercising the sealing keys restored in the Kirtland Temple in 1836 (D&C 110), could not have been performed prior to that occasion.

(William Clayton Journal, Oct. 19, 1843, Typescript.) Heber C. Kimball noted that in his second anointing he and his wife, Vilate, were "annointed Preast and Preastest." (Heber C. Kimball Journal, "Strange Events" entry, Church Archives; see also Kimball, On the Potter's Wheel, p. 56.) This indicates that in this ordinance individuals are anointed Priests and Kings, and Queens and Priestesses, although the Prophet and Elder Kimball chose to emphasize particular aspects of the ceremony.

(106)Brigham Young explained in an 1873 discourse: "We can, at the present time, go into the Endowment House and be baptized for the dead, receive our washings and anointing, etc., for there we have a font that has been erected, dedicated expressly for baptizing people for the remission of sins, for their health and for their dead relatives; in this the Saints have the privilege of being baptized for their dead friends. We also have the privilege of sealing women to men, without a Temple. This we can do in the Endowment House; but when it comes to other sealing ordinances, ordinances pertaining to the holy Priesthood, to connect the chain of the Priesthood from father Adam until now, by sealing children to their parents, being sealed for our forefathers, etc., they cannot be done without a Temple. But we can seal women to men, but not men to men, without a Temple. When the ordinances are carried out in the Temples that will be erected, men will be sealed to their fathers, and those who have slept clear up to father Adam. (Journal of Discourses, 16:186.) At a later time the information in these books was compiled into alphabetical volumes, which were then microfilmed and copies of the film placed in the Special Collections section of the Family History Library. These volumes include: "Baptisms for the Dead," Books A-D; "Endowments, 1845-1846" [a partial record only]; "Washings and Anointings," Book A [complete record of endowments]; "Sealings and Adoptions, 1845-1846," Book A; and there are also index volumes for the baptismal and sealing records. Another useful bibliography for manuscript sources on Nauvoo is Hyrum L. Andrus and Richard E. Bennett, eds., Mormon Manuscripts to 1846: A Guide to the Holdings of the Harold B. (110)An Authentic History of Remarkable Persons...including a Full Exposure of the Seven Degrees of the Mormon Temple... (New York: Wilson and Co., Brother Jonathan Press, 1849), pp. 8-17. This account is supposedly based on the experience of one Thomas White, but it is actually the fanciful musings of a fraud, who embellished the endowment ceremony with trap doors, fountains and springs, fanfares of trumpets, barren wastes, etc.! There is no listing of a Thomas White in the "Nauvoo Temple Endowment Register."

"Mormon Endowments," Warsaw Signal (Apr. 15, 1846): 2. This is a letter written by one Emeline to the editor, repudiating certain statements about the temple ordinances made in the newspaper.

Increase McGee Van Dusen and Maria Van Dusen. The Mormon Endowment: a Secret Drama, or Conspiracy, in the Nauvoo-Temple in 1846 (Syracuse: N.M.D. Lathrop, 1847); and Increase McGee Van Dusen. A Dialogue between Adam and Eve, the Lord and the Devil, called the Endowment (Albany: C. Killmer, 1847). The Van Dusen's were endowed on January 29, 1846. (Temple Index Bureau, "Nauvoo Temple Endowment Register," p. 222.) Increase Van Dusen later published a large number of pamphlets on the Nauvoo Temple ceremonies. The standard bibliography for early Mormon imprints, has twenty-three entries. (See: Chad J. Flake, ed. A Mormon Bibliography, 1830-1930 [Salt Lake City: University of Utah Press, 1978], pp. 743-744.) Other authors also reprinted Van Dusen's work in their own books. (See: John Bowes. Mormonism Exposed [London: E. Ward, 1850?], pp. 17-22; John Thomas. Sketch of the Rise, Progress and Dispersion of the Mormons [London: Arthur Hall, 1849], pp. 12-22; and Andrew B Hepburn, An Exposition of the Blasphemous Doctrines and Delusion of the So-Called Latter-day Saints, or Mormons [Sheffield: M. Thomas & Son, 1852], pp. 60-61.) Each succeeding edition of Van Dusen's pamphlets was more sensational than the last. However, the two 1847 pamphlets lacked much of the later sensationalism and contained some useful information, when compared to other sources. For a detailed analysis of the Van Dusen pamphlets, see: Asael C. Lambert Papers, Willard J. Marriott Library, University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah. Hereafter cited as Marriott Library, UU.

Kimball's description matches that of Catherine Lewis, "We went up three or four flights of stairs to the upper story, called the 'upper room of the Temple,' which is a large Hall with six rooms on either side, for the Apostles; and the Hall for the purpose of Initiation or Endowment, is divided by canvass into six rooms more, making eighteen rooms in the whole. Two of these rooms, separated by canvass, are received for dressing-rooms,-- one for males, the other for females: and one of the Apostle's rooms on the right of the entrance, another on them left, are used for washing and anointing rooms. The right hand room for males, the left for females, with a large entry separating by canvas. . .

(116)Brown, "Sacred Departments," pp. 371-372. The sixth room had no corresponding room in modern temples; it was simply a small waiting room, where women waited after receiving their washings and anointings before joining their husbands in he Creation Room.

(119)During the first day of ordinance work Heber C. Kimball noted that the sisters "commenced washing each other," and the brethren likewise also "commenced washing." (Heber C. Kimball Journal, Dec. 10, 1845, Church Archives.) This was the pattern used throughout the time the temple was used for temple work. When the Warsaw Signal charged in its February 18, 1846, issue that men and women mingled together "in a state of nudity" during the ceremonies, Emeline stated categorically that in her washing "all was done by the sisters of the church -- none others were present -- it is false to say that men and women are admitted together in an indecent manner." ("Mormon Endowments," Warsaw Signal, Apr. 15, 1846.) Likewise, Mary E. V. Smith noted that in the female initiatory room "mo men were in this room, and no women were in the room at the right," where the brethren received their washings and anointings. (Green, Mormonism, p. 43.) Catherine Lewis also stressed that women officiated for women and men for men. (Lewis. Narrative of Some Proceedings of the Mormons, p. 8.)

(120)Heber C. Kimball 1845-1846 Journal, passim, Church Archives. Typically in recording washings the Kimball journal will give a list of men's names and then state that these "were washed by George Miller & G. A. Smith [or which ever two men conducted the washing]." (Entry for Dec. 12, 1845.) The journal records the same information on washing of women.

Increase Van Dusen also mentioned the washing and the blessings. (Van Dusen, Mormon Endowment, p. 3; and Van Dusen, Dialogue with Adam and Eve, p. 6) In a later edition of this pamphlet Van Dusen emphasized that the blessings were pronounced on both him and his wife. (Increase M. Van Dusen, Startling Disclosures of the Mormon Spiritual-Wife System and Wonderful Ceremonies of the Celebrated Endowment [New York: 1864], pp. 7-8.) Mary E. V. Smith also stated that in the washing "every part of the body [was] in turn subject to a special prayer." (Green, Mormonism, p. 43.)

(121)William Clayton, Dec. 11, 1845, typescript of extracts, original reportedly in the First Presidency's vault, Church Office Building, Salt Lake City, Utah. Heber C. Kimball stated that the washings had "made [some of] you clean every whit." (Heber C. Kimball Journal, Dec. 21, 1845, Church Archives.)

(122)Heber C. Kimball Journal, Dec. 21, 1845, Church Archives.

Henry Herriman, Zerah Pulsipher, Jedediah M. Grant, Albert P. Lockwood, Benjamin L. Clapp were...anointed by B. Young and H. C. Kimball." (Dec. 12, 1845.)

(124)Heber C. Kimball Journal, Dec. 11, 17, 30, 1845, Church Archives. One source indicated that the perfume added to the consecrated oil for sisters was a lavender scent. ("Mormon Endowments," Warsaw Signal, Apr. 15, 1846.)

(125)Heber C. Kimball noted the consecration of a new horn, "[The brethren] consecrated & dedicated a new horn which had been prepared for the anointing, praying that [they] may be permitted to use it for this purpose for many years to come and that the spirit and power of God may attend it wherever it shall be used." (Heber C. Kimball Journal, Dec. 20, 1845, Church Archives.)

One writer indicated how the two officiators functioned. As the officiator "begins to anoint, another stands by with a horn containing consecrated oil, which she gives to the [officiator] from a wooden spoon, in such quantity and at such times [as] she is directed." (Lewis. Narrative of Some of the Proceedings of the Mormons, p. 8.) Mary E. V. Smith stated that in her anointing "a lengthy prayer was said over us." (Green, Mormonism, p. 43. Likewise John D. Lee wrote that he officiated as Elohim. (John D. Lee Journal, Jan. 7, 8, 12, 1845, Church Archives.) Samuel Richards identified Elohim as one of the Characters in the endowment. (Samuel W. Richards Journal, Jan. 7, 1845, Lee Library, BYU.) John D. Lee also noted two occasion when he took the part of the Serpent. (John D. ("Mormon Endowments," Warsaw Signal, Apr. 15, 1845.) Interestingly there is evidence that such a role was part of the endowment as administered in Joseph's store. Ebenezer Robinson surprised John Taylor in the hallway outside the upper room while ordinances were being conducted. He said that Taylor was dressed "in a long white garment, with drawn sword in his hand, evidently representing the 'cherubims and flaming sword which was placed at the east end of the garden of Eden, to guard the tree of life.'" (152)Ibid., Dec. 11, 1845. This description is actually the work of William Clayton, who maintained Heber C. Kimball's personal diary during the time the Nauvoo Temple was open for ordinance work. Since he was one of the temple clerks, Clayton's entries are a semi-official temple record, because he listed the names of all those who received their endowments between Dec. 10, 1845 and Jan. 7, 1846, at which point the diary stops.

(155)Heber C. Kimball Journal, Dec. 13, 1845. One writer said he heard these temple workers from "behind the curtain [canvas partition]...create the heavens and the earth, cattle, beasts, creeping things, fowls of the air, fishes of the sea, etc." (Van Dusen, Mormon Endowment, p. 4.) Another man indicated that upon the creation of light, a window was thrown open. (Hall, Abominations of Mormonism, p. 47.)

(156)Heber C. Kimball Journal, Dec. 11, 1845, Church Archives. One writer stated that the officiator taking the role of Elohim "made a few passes... above another man [selected from among the male candidates], and breathed in his face; and the man was seen to be animated." After the creation of man

Elohim stated, "It is not good for man to be alone," and the officiators "pretended to cause a deep sleep to fall on one of the company present," and they feigned that "a rib was taken from his side and the flesh closed up." (Hall, Abominations of Mormonism, p. 47.)

(159) When Heber C. Kimball asked the rhetorical question, "What is it [the endowment]?" he answered, "It is to personify Adam." (Heber C. Kimball Journal, Dec. 21, 1845, Church Archives.) ("Mormon Endowments," Warsaw Signal, Apr. 15, 1846.) Although the Tempter wore a "black suit", as is the current custom in the live endowment, there was no mention that he worn an apron. Apparently an apron was added to Satan's attire during the Endowment House phase. (See: "Lifting the Vail," Salt Lake Daily Tribune, Sept. 28, 1879.)

Lewis, Narrative of Some of the Proceedings of the Mormons, p. 9, also indicates that the tokens of the Aaronic Priesthood were given in the Garden Room, but Hall, Abominations of the Mormons, p. 49, states that the second of the Aaronic Priesthood tokens were given in the World Room. It may be that a change in the ceremony in this regard was made during the course of administering the endowment.

Van Dusen also noted that persons could enter the Celestial Room from an entrance other than the so-called Door to the Celestial Kingdom. (Van Dusen, Dialogue with Adam and Eve, p. 15.)

(242)Cowan, Temple Building, p. 29. George A. Smith noted such a union, "I went to the house of the Lord with my wife Bathsheba W. [Smith], and [we] were sealed by President Brigham Young." (George A. Smith Journal, Jan. 13, 1846, Church Archives.)

(243)Cowan, Temple Building, p. 29. An example of this type sealing was that of Willard Richards and his deceased wife Jennette. They "were sealed [as] husband and wife for time & all eternity[,] Amelia Elizabeth Pierson acting for & in behalf of the [deceased] who died at Nauvoo." (A Book of Proxey, p. 31, Church Archives.)

(244)An example of a plural marriage sealing can be found in Erastus Snow's journal, "I received with Artimesia and Minerva the sealings [in marriage] and further endowments [second anointings]." (Erastus Snow Journal, Jan. 23, 1846, as quoted in Andrew K. Larsen, Erastus Snow [Salt Lake City: University of Utah Press, 1971], p. 96.)

(245)Once the altar was in place and properly dedicated, Brigham Young labored almost continuously in officiating in sealing ceremonies, both marriage and adoptions. A typical entry in his diary reads, "I spent the day officiating at the Holy Altar, or most of the time." (Brigham Young Journal, Jan. 29, 1846, Church Archives.) Concerning the need for witnesses, George A. Smith mentioned that he was sealed to his wife "in the presence of witnesses." (George A, Smith Journal, Jan. 13, 1846, Church Archives.) Likewise John D. Lee noted that witnesses attended his sealings to his wives. (John D. Lee Journal, Jan. 14, 1846, Church Archives.)

(253)John D Lee wrote that he and his wife "kneeled over the altar." (John D. Lee Journal, Jan. 14, 1846, Church Archives.)

(254)Heber C. Kimball Journal, Jan. 1, 1846, Church Archives. This entry recorded the marriage of William B. Young and Adelia C. Clark, the second marriage and sealing performed in the Nauvoo Temple, the first marriage being the sealing of Truman Leonard, Jr., and Ortensia White performed earlier the same day. The Leonard/White sealing was conducted in Brigham Young's office with just two witnesses present, but a larger number of friends attended the Young/Clark sealing, which necessitated moving the ceremony into the Celestial Room. The sealing altar was not yet finished, so the couple stood during the ceremony. All other marriages in the temple were those of couples already married civilly (or in previous polygamous sealings) and were now receiving their sealings. Some women, who had not been sealed as plural wives, were also so sealed in the temple.

(256)Ibid. Norton Jacob noted that he and his wife, Emily, "according to the holy order of the Priesthood, [were] sealed together for time and all eternity." (Jacob, Record of Norton Jacob, p. 15) Likewise, George Laub stated that his wife, Mary Jane, "was sealed to me [as] a wife for time & eternity, to be my companion & comfert." (263)Nauvoo Sealings and Adoptions, 1846-1847, microfilm copy, Library, Salt Lake Genealogical Society, Salt Lake City, Utah. Hereafter cited as Library, SLGS. The figures gathered from this volume may not be totally accurate, because they do not include the sealings of John D. Lee's children, nor the adoptions of men to him. Since this volume is a compilation from the original records, there may be other inaccuracies. Moreover, these figures do not agree with those published by Richard Cowan, who listed 71 children sealed to their parents and 130 men adopted to fathers in the priesthood. (Temple Building, p. 29.)

(264)Brigham Young once observed that "the ordinance of sealing must be performed here [in a temple], man to man, and woman to man, and children to parents." (Journal of Discourses, 12:165.) In the dedicatory prayer of the sealing room in the St. George Temple, the first dedicated after the Nauvoo Temple, Brigham Young, Jr., stated that the Saints "anticipate[d] performing the ordinances of sealing woman to man, children to parents. and man to his fellow man." (Kirk M. Curtis, "History of the St. George Temple," M.A. Thesis, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, 1964, p. 90.) However, Joseph Fielding Smith stressed that "the power to seal children to [their] parents [is by] the key of adoption." (Joseph Fielding Smith, Doctrines of Salvation, 3 vols. [Salt Lake City: Bookcraft, 1954-1956], 2:119.)

(265)George Miller's children "[were] adopted...with the full ceremony." (Nauvoo Sealings and Adoptions, pp. 415-416, Library, SLGS.) Thus later Orson Pratt stressed that children were sealed by the law of adoption, "All who are born before their parents entered that new and everlasting covenant [of marriage] have to be made legitimate heirs. 'In what way?' According to the ordinance and law of adoption."(Journal of Discourses, 16:258.) Likewise James E. Talmage Wrote, "The offspring of parents not joined in celestial marriage are thus sealed or adopted by their parents as members of the family organization which shall endure through eternity." (Talmage, House of the Lord, p. 109.)

(268)Newel K. Whitney sealing records states, "The children having been washed and anointed by their parents (at the altar, in the Holy Order, clad in white) [were] sealed up unto their parents." (Nauvoo Sealings and Adoptions, pp. 561-562, Library, SLGS.) Likewise the entry for George Miller stated that his children were "adopted...with the full ceremony of washing and anointing, clothing, &c." (Ibid., pp. 415-416.)

(269)George A. Smith recorded, "We went to the temple and anointed our children, George Albert Smith and Bathsheba, to the birthright and they were sealed to us upon the altar by President Young." (George A. Smith Journal, Jan. 25, 1846, Church Archives.)

(273)Nauvoo Sealings & Adoptions, pp. 517-518, Library, SLGS. George Miller's children were sealed "unto their parents for time and for all eternity &c." (Ibid., pp. 415-416.)

(274)Ibid., pp. 561-562. John D. Lee had a number of men adopted into his family in the Nauvoo Temple, but just over a year later he lost the confidence and respect of a number of his adopted children. In 1847 Brigham Young approved the release of a some of these men and their families from John D. Lee. (Brooks, On the Mormon Frontier - The Diary of Hosea Stout, 1:290; and Juanita Brooks, John D. Lee [Glendale: Arthur Clark Co., 1962], pp. 73-74.)

(275)Whether men adopted to fathers in the priesthood were also sealed up unto eternal life is not clearly specified in the "Nauvoo Sealings and Adoptions." However, it was likely that they were, because the ceremony was the same for both varieties of these sealing rites.

(281)Heber C. Kimball Journal, Jan. 6, 1846, Church Archives. Just in what manner the term "second washings" should be understood is not clear, since the Nauvoo Temple records have no indication that there was any washing ceremony associated with the administration of second anointings.

(282)Brigham Young noted that on January 27, 1846, besides sealings in marriage being administered in his room, which was number one, "the 2nd anointings likewise [were being] carried on in Room 2 & 4." (Brigham Young Journal, Jan. 27, 1846, Church Archives.) John D. Lee noted that he and his wives were "conducted into Room no. 2 where [they] received [their] anointings, yea Holy Anointings in the Temple of the Lord." (John D. Lee Journal, Jan. 14, 1846, Church Archives.) Norton Jacob indicated that he "received [his] second anointing [and] was ordained a King and Priest unto God in room no. 4." (286)John D. Lee Journal, Jan. 14, 1846, Church Archives. Most of the second anointings given in the Nauvoo Temple were administered by the Twelve. Brigham Young noted, "The 2nd Anointings [were] likewise carried on in Room[s] 2 & 4, O. Hyde, P.P. Pratt, [and] O. Pratt officiating in no. 2 & 4." (Brigham Young Journal, Jan. 27, 1846, Church Archives.) However, approximately ten men other than the Twelve also conducted second anointings. (See: Book of Anointings, typescript.)

(288)While up to a dozen men often witnessed the Nauvoo Temple ceremonies, this number was later reduced to the minimum number of two witnesses for the sake of confidentiality: "Father [George Q. Cannon] anointed, and John D. T. McAllister held the horn, and Lorenzo Snow and John R. Winder were witnesses." (Abraham H. Cannon Journal, Jan. 7, 1893, Lee Library, BYU.)

Kimball's was the first conducted in the Nauvoo Temple

Young assisted by Aaron Johnson anointed John Taylor, King [and] Priest [and] Leonora Taylor, Elizabeth Taylor, Jane Taylor, Mary Ann Taylor, queens [and] priestesses &c to their husband." This entry indicates that the wives of President Taylor received their anointings in the order of their marriages: Leonora Cannon (Jan 23, 1833), Elizabeth Kaighin (Dec. 12, 1843), Jane Ballantyne (Feb. 4, 1844), and Mary Ann Oakley (Apr., 1845). (Brigham H. Roberts, The Life of John Taylor [Salt Lake City: George Q. Cannon and Sons, 1892], p. 466.) This custom was also followed in second anointings given in Utah. Abraham, H. Cannon stated, "I then received mine [second anointings] and my wives followed in the order of their marriages." (Abraham H. Cannon Journal, June 7, 1893, Lee Library, BYU.) (338)Ibid., Nov. 1, 1843. The other women were all wives of apostles, Jennetta Richards, Leonora Taylor, Mary Ann Young and Vilate Kimball. Normally a husband received his endowments before his wife; the case of Hannah receiving them before Joseph was not typical. The records give no reason for this anomaly.

(356)Salt Lake City School of the Prophets, Minutes, 1883, Church Archives. Although the ordinance was apparently not administered until the 1880's, that did not mean that it was not discussed on a doctrinal level. The Latter-day Saint Millennial Star editorialized in 1854 that "the ordinance of washing of feet [was] essential in its place." In 1861 Brigham Young stated, "In this connection there is an item of doctrine, faith, belief, and practice that the elders should understand, especially those whose duty calls them to preach. When are they clean from the [sins of the] nations, when [are they] ready to go have their feet washed, and receive the blessings of the house of God? When the diligence of those who have heard them is equal to their own, and not until then. (Discourse, Mar. 31, 1861, Church Archives.) Notice that in these remarks President Young seemed to distinguish the washing of feet from the ordinances of the temple, perhaps indicating that in his mind the washing of feet was an ordinance administered prior to the elders receiving their temple blessings. At some point the washing of feet was reincorporated into the temple services. Bruce R. McConkie wrote, "Thus the knowledge relative to the washing of feet has been revealed step by step in this day until a full knowledge is now incorporated in the revealed ordinances of the House of the Lord. (Mormon Doctrine, 2nd ed. [Salt Lake City: Bookcraft, 1966], p. 832.)

There is yet another version in Henry Eyring Journal, Oct. 11, 1883, Lee Library, BYU. These prayers all vary in wording to a minor degree while containing the fundamental part of cleansing the man from the blood of this generation.

There also exist another washing of the feet prayer of unsubstantiated origin, purporting to be the prayer used during the second anointing services. It reads: "_____, having authority of Jesus Christ, I wash your right foot that you may forever step forward in the cause of truth and righteousness, and your left foot that you may forever stand fast in defense of the faith and testimony of Jesus; and I pronounce you clean from the blood and sins of this generation, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen." (Typescript in author's collection.) The author cautions the reader concerning the authenticity of this document.

(360)It should be noted here that there is scant written evidence for the washing of feet preceding the contemporary second anointing ceremony. All references to the washing of feet in available sources on the ordinance, refer to the washing and anointing for burial, administered by the wife for her husband. All evidence, such as it is, is only verbal.

(363)A temple expose of the 1870's stated that the initiatory washing of sisters included these words: "Sister, I wash you clean from the blood of this generation...and now, I pronounce you clean from the blood of this generation, and your body an acceptable temple for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit." (Beadle, Life in Utah, pp. 487-488.) A more recent version of the prayer, includes these words, "Sister...having authority, I wash you preparatory to receiving your anointings that you might be clean from the blood and sins of this generation. And whereas you have obeyed the principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ with a true heart, and been faithful in keeping you covenants, your sins are forgiven you and you are clean every whit." NAUVOO TEMPLE HISTORY JOURNAL

[The whole document is in the handwriting of William Clayton except for signatures at the back as indicated. The document is located at Church Archives but as yet has no Ms/d number (15 January 1979). The journal was published in the Juvenile Instructor in 1886. The last entry was recorded on 31 May 1845.]

The Latter-day Saints were expelled from the State of Missouri, under the exterminating order of Governor Boggs in the Fall and Winter of the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-eight. Having been plundered of all their property, they settled in this place--then called Commerce but subsequently named Nauvoo; while they were in a stripped and destitute condition. Nearly all of the Saints were sick, and many of them died in consequence of exposure and the lack of the necessaries of life. There were then but two or three houses in the place; and, therefore, the majority of the people dwelt in tents and in the open air, exposed to all the rigors of an inclement season..

In September, 1839, the Apostles started the second time for England. They, themselves, were ill and they left their families in sickness and poverty. The Apostles who took this trying journey at that time were Brigham Young, Heber C Kimball, Parley P. Pratt, Orson Pratt, John Taylor, Wilford Woodruff and George A. Smith. Elder Richards was already in Great Britain; and he was ordained to the Apostleship when the others of the Twelve reached their destination.

During the Winter and Spring of 1839, nearly all of the Saints moved into Nauvoo, the only exceptions being some few families who scattered about among the people of the State of Illinois.

As soon as the health of the brethren would in anywise permit, they began the work of putting up log cabins for shelter. In the course of the season the majority were made tolerably comfortable in this respect, though many still suffered greatly for want of food.

The spot of land on which the Saints located was very wet and consequently very unhealthy; but by the blessing of God the health of the Saints improved, and they learned the necessary course of life in this trying region, and were able to improve the character of the soil which they cultivated.

Before even this state of comfort was achieved, the authorities began to talk upon the subject of building a temple, wherein to administer the ordinances of God's house. Several councils were held and a place selected whereon the temple was contemplated to be built. The matter was laid before the conference on the 6th of October, in the year 1840; and the Church voted to commence the work immediately. On this day the conference appointed a committee of three, viz: Alpheus Cutler, Elias Higbee and Reynolds Cahoon, to carry the business into operation and to oversee the work.

During conference President Joseph Smith explained to the Saints the law of tithing and the plan upon which the building of the temple was to be conducted.

Several plans for a temple were made and submitted by various individuals, but the only one which was satisfactory to the Prophet was the one drawn and presented by William Weeks.

On the twelfth day of the same month, the brethren commenced the opening of a quarry from which to obtain stone for the building. Brother Elisha Everet was the man who struck the first blow on the works. He has continued in this labor from that time on until the present, and has proved himself a faithful worker and a worthy man.

This committee contracted with Daniel H. Wells, Esq., for the land whereon to build the temple; and on the nineteenth day of January, in the year 1841, the Lord, through His servant Joseph, gave a revelation approving the selection of a temple site and commanding the erection of the sacred structure upon that spot.

In the month of February, 1841, Elder Alpheus Cutler, assisted by Elder Cahoon and others, laid out the foundation of the temple. On the eighteenth day of that month the brethren began to dig the cellar. As it was the wish of President Joseph that the corner stones of the temple should be laid on the sixth day of the next April, the corners for the foundation were first excavated; and about the first day of March the cellar walls were commenced.

On February 22nd the committee organized the city into Wards and called upon the brethren to come forward and labor every tenth day. By this means they were enabled to rush on the work so rapidly that by the sixth day of April the walls were sufficiently high at the corners to admit of the laying of the corner stones. And notwithstanding the extreme poverty of the Church, the labor moved on quickly and the prospect seemed very cheering and pleasing.

I will now extract from the Times and Seasons of April 15, 1841, as follows:
"At an early hour on the sixth inst. the several companies constituting the Nauvoo Legion, with two volunteer companies from Iowa Territory, making sixteen companies in all, assembled at their several places of rendezvous, and were conducted in due order to the ground assigned for general review. The appearance, order and movements of the Legion were chaste, grand and imposing, and reflect great credit upon the taste, skill and tact of the men comprising said Legion, especially the chief officer of the day, Major General Bennett. We doubt whether the like can be presented in any city in the western country.
"At half past 7 o'clock, a.m. the fire of artillery announced the arrival of Brigadier Generals Law and Smith at the front of their respective cohorts; and at 8 o'clock Major General Bennett was conducted to his post under the discharge of cannon and took command of the Legion.
"At half past 9 o'clock, a.m. Lieutenant General Smith with his guard, staff and field officers, arrived at the ground and were presented with a beautiful silk national flag by the ladies of Nauvoo, which was respectfully received and hailed by the firing of cannon, and borne off by Colonel Robinson, the cornet, to the appropriate position in the line; after which the lieutenant general, with his suite, passed the lines in review. At 12. m. the procession arrived upon the temple ground, enclosing the same in a hollow square, with Lieutenant General Smith, Major General Bennet, Brigadier Generals Law and Smith, their respective staffs, guard, field officers, distinguished visitors, choir, band, etc., in the enter and the ladies and gentlemen citizens surrounding the interior. The superior officers, together with the banner, architects, principal speaker, etc., were duly conducted to the stand at the principal corner stone, and the religious services were commenced by singing from page 65 of the new hymn book."
President Sidney Rigdon addressed the assemblage at some length, after which a hymn was sung under page 205, and the closing prayer was offered.
The architects then, by the direction of the First Presidency, lowered the first (S.-E. corner) stone to its place, and President Joseph Smith pronounced the benediction as follows:
"'This principal corner stone, in representation of the First Presidency, is now duly laid in honor of the great God; and may it there remain until the whole fabric is completed; and may the same be accomplished speedily, that the Saints may have a place to worship God, and the Son of Man have where to lay His head.'
"President Sidney Rigdon then pronounced the following: "'May the persons employed in the erection of this house be preserved from all harm while engaged in its construction, till the whole is completed: in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost; even so. Amen.'
Adjourned for one hour.
"Assembled according to adjournment and proceeded to lay the remaining corner stones according to previous order.
"The second (S.-W. corner) stone, by the direction of the President of the High Priesthood, with his Council and President Marks, was lowered to its place, when the President of the High Priesthood pronounced the following:
"The second corner stone of the temple now building by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in honor to the great God, is duly laid, and may the same unanimity that has been manifested on this occasion continue till the whole is completed; that peace may rest upon it to the laying of the top stone thereof, and the turning of the key thereof; that the Saints may participate in the blessings of Israel's God within the walls, and the glory of God rest upon the same. Amen.'

NAUVOO TEMPLE HISTORY JOURNAL - William Clayton, 5

"The third (N.-W. corner) stone, superintended by the High Council, as representatives of the Twelve (they being in Europe), was then lowered to its place, with the benediction of Elias Higbee as follows:
"'The third corner stone, in representation of the Twelve, is now duly laid; and as they are, in some measure, the support of the Church, so may this stone be a firm support to the corner, that the whole may be completed as before proposed, and according to the order of the priesthood.'
"The fourth (N.-E. corner) stone, superintended by the Bishops, was then lowered to its place, and Bishop Whitney pronounced the following:
"'The fourth and last corner stone, expressive of the Lesser Priesthood, is now duly laid; and may the blessings before pronounced, with all others desirable, rest upon the same forever. Amen.'"
After the corner stones were laid and the conference was over, the work upon the temple seemed to progress more rapidly. There were about eighteen stone cutters engaged to dress the rock for the building. Up to this time the work performed was nearly all done by tenth days' labor. But after this the Saints began to bring in some provisions, property and money; and the committee was enabled to employ a number of stone cutters and keep them constantly at work. The tithing labor also increased through the continued immigration of Saints from abroad.
When the Winter season set in toward the close of the year 1841, the walls on the south side were built up to the water table, a part of which also was laid. On the north side the walls were only about two feet high. In this state the structure remained until the Spring of 1842.
During all this time there had been no general tithing record opened. The money and other property contributed had all been paid over to the committee, and receipts were issued tb the several donors. Elias Higbee kept the books and work accounts, and generally wrote the receipts for tithing. This branch of the business occupied nearly the whole of his time. Elders Cahoon and Cutler hired the laborers, superintended the work and kept an oversight of the entire business.
On the 25th day of September, 1841, Elders Alpheus Cutler and Peter Haws, started for the pine country to obtain lumber for the Temple and Nauvoo House. They took with them, Tarleton Lewis, Jabez Durfee, Hardin Wilson, Wm. L. Cutler, Horace Owens, Octavius Pauket, Blakely B. Anderson, James M. Flack, Nathaniel Child, Brother Child's wife and daughter, and Peter W. Conover. These brethren spent the Winter in the pine forests, and toiled diligently in their appointed work. They suffered some because of the cold in that northern region, but they made good progress. By the following July, they had succeeded in making up and bringing to Nauvoo a large raft of first-rate pine timber. By this means the prospect of the work was much brightened.
On the 13th day of December, 1841, the Prophet Joseph appointed Apostle Willard Richards to be recorder for the temple and scribe for the private office of the President.
The recorder opened his office in the counting room of President Joseph's new brick store on Water Street, and he immediately began to record the tithings on the Book of the Law of the Lord, page 27. The first record was made under the date of December 1, 1841. It was one gold sovereign, valued at $5.00, to the credit of John Sanders, late from Cumberland, on the borders of Scotland, Europe.
A short time previous to this Joseph had been appointed "Sole Trustee-inTrust for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints" and, consequently, it became his prerogative to receive all the donations for the Church and the temple. Late in the evening of the 11th of December, the Trustee-in-Trust instructed Brigham Young, president of the quorum of the Twelve Apostles, to visit the members of the building committee and inform them more fully regarding their duties--to notify them not to accept any more tithes and consecrations, except such as were received from him. On the morning of the 13th, this message was delivered by Brigham to the committee in the presence of Elders Kimball, Woodruff and Willard Richards.

When this order was understood by the Saints, the business of the recorder increased rapidly, and having many important matters crowding upon him, he found it necessary to appoint Saturday of each week as the time for receiving and recording the tithings of the brethren. He published a notice under date of January 12, 1842, informing the Saints of this regulation; and it was subsequently carried into effect. But the business increased so rapidly that he could not keep pace with the work. He therefore counseled with his brethren of the Twelve; and, having received permission from President Joseph, he called Elder William Clayton, lately from England, to assist him. Elder Clayton accordingly entered the recorder's office on the lOth day of February, 1842, and continued therein from that time forward.

I will now copy an extract from the revelation of January 19, 1841, concerning a baptismal font:

"For there is not a place found on earth that he may come and restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fullness of the Priesthood; "For a baptismal font there is not upon the earth, that they, my saints, may be baptized for those who are dead;'

"For this ordinance belongeth to my house, and cannot be acceptable to me, only in the days of your poverty, wherein ye are not able to build a house unto me.

But I command you, all ye my saints, to build a house unto me; and I grant unto you a sufficient time to build a house unto me, and during this time your baptisms shall be acceptable unto me."

In conformity with the foregoing item of law, in the Summer and Fall of the year 1841, the brethren entered into measures to build a baptismal font in the cellar floor near the east end of the temple. President Joseph approved and accepted a draft for the font, made by Brother William Weeks; and on the 18th day of August of that year, Elder Weeks began to labor on the construction of the font with his own hands. He labored six days and then committed the work to the carpenters. On the llth day of August, Brother Weeks began carving the oxen, twelve in number, upon which the font was to stand. After carving for six days, he consigned this branch to Brother Elijah Fordham, the principal carver, who continued until they were finished. They were completed about two months after their commencement.

At 5 o'clock in the evening, the 8th day of November, 1841, the font was dedicated by Joseph Smith the Prophet. After the dedication Brother Reuben McBride was the first person baptized, under the direction of the President. Brother Samuel Rolfe, who was seriously afflicted with a felon upon one of his hands, was present. President Joseph instructed him to wash in the font and told him that the hand would be healed. The doctors had told him that he could not recover before Spring, and had advised him to have his hand cut. He dipped his hand in the font, and within a week he was perfectly healed.

After this time baptisms were continued in the font, and many Saints realized great blessings--both spiritually and bodily.

I will here state that on the 25th day of September, 1841, a deposit was made in the south-east corner stone of the temple.

It was late in the Spring of 1842, when work was opened upon the walls, and little was done until Brother William Player came in June. He had just arrived from England, and had come with the full intention of working on the temple. He began to labor about the 8th day of June: and he spent some time in regulating the stone work already set which had not been done very well. About the llth of the same month he set the first plinth on the south-west corner of the south side.

During the Summer he lost two weeks of work, having to wait for Elder Cahoon's sons' plinths, which they were cutting, they playing in the stone shop much of their time.
The work progressed but slowly during this season, as there was but one crane; but the delay arose through the stones not being cut fast enough. By the Fall, however, Brother Player had got all the rock-work laid around as high as the window sills, together with all the window sills including that of the large east Venetian window. He had also two courses of pilaster stones on the plinths all around.
During the greater part of the time in the Fall, and especially toward the season when the work ceased, when Winter set in, Brother Player was very sick. He nearly lost the use of his hands and feet, and several time. he fell, through weakness, while on his way home. He considered that hi. sickness was caused by the change of climate and by his having drank bad water while coming up the river.
On May 11, 1842, General John C. Bennett was cut off from the Church for adultery and other wicked conduct. He soon after turned to be a very bitter enemy of the Church, generally, and of President Joseph, especially. He labored hard to create excitement and bring a mob upon the Church.
On the 14th day of May, a report came into the city that Ex-Governor Boggs, of Missouri, had been shot; and, upon the morning following, the report seemed confirmed. The Quincy Whig published an article in which the Prophet was charged with being accessory to the assassination of Boggs. Soon after this time, John C. Bennett left Nauvoo, and, taking advantage of the shooting, he used every effort to eliminate President Joseph.
On the 8th day of August following, the sheriff of Quincy came with a writ and arrested the President at the gate of his own premises. Joseph immediately took out a writ of habeas corpus from the Municipal court of the city of Nauvoo. The sheriffs were unwilling to listen to it; but, fearing to attempt taking him away by force, they agreed to leave him in the hands of the city marshal, while they went to consult Governor Carlin upon the subject. On the llth, the sheriffs returned, but the Prophet had concluded to keep out of their reach; and, consequently, they could not find him. The sheriff tarried in Nauvoo seVeral days, frequently uttering heavy threats to be executed if the President failed to give himself up, but the officer finally concluded to leave the city. The President remained secure at Brother Sayers on the north of the city, about a mile from the corporation, where he was visited frequently by Sister Emma and his brethren. As soon as it was satisfactorily ascertained that the sheriff had gone away, Joseph returned home and remained in.the city, but not coming out before the public.
Many rumors were constantly in circulation concerning the threats of the Governor and the Missourians; and considerable excitement was manifested throughout the country. Governor Carlin offered a reward for the apprehension of the President, as, also, for 0. P. Rockwe11 who was charged as being the principal in the assassination of Boggs.
On Saturday the 3rd day of September, the sheriff (Pitman) came again, with another writ, and entered the house while the Prophet was at dinner; but Joseph succeeded in getting away undiscovered. At night he went to Brother Edward Hunter's house, and remained there for some time, in perfect security. After the officers returned to Quincy, the President came home; but yet kept himself close and out of sight.
On Friday, October 7th, several reports came to Nauvoo, showing Governor Carlin's determination to have Joseph taken to Missouri. The Prophet concluded that it would be wisdom to be still more careful, and in order the more effectually to secure himself from the grasp of the enemy, he left the city that same evening, accompanied by John Taylor, Wilson Law and John D. Parker. They traveled all night up the country to the north, and went to the house of Elder John Taylor's father, where Joseph stayed for some time. By these means, the plans of his enemies were completely frustrated, and the officers gave up the chase. He was, however, at any time liable to be arrested both by virtue of the writ and the proclamation offering a reward of $200 for his capture.

On Monday, December 26th, he suffered himself to be arrested by Wilson Law, on the proclamation, and on the following morning started for Springfield, accompanied by about sixteen of the brethren. His object was to stand trial before Judge Pope on habeas corpus. This was consented to, at the suggestion of Mr. Butterfield, U. S. District Attorney, who had been consulted in relation to the matter and had expressed assurance that the President would be acquitted.

The company arrived at Springfield on Friday the 30th, and on the following morning application was made for a writ of habeas corpus from the U. S. District Court. The writ was granted and Monday morning, January 2, 1843, was appointed as the time to try the validity of the arrest. On Monday the company repaired to the court; but Mr. Lamborn, the State's attorney, pleaded that he was not ready for trial, and the case was postponed until Wednesday. Accordingly, on Wednesday at 9 a. m. the trial was opened. Its result was the release and discharge of Joseph both from the writ and proclamation.

This was a source of great rejoicing to the brethren and, on our return to Nauvoo, it gave gladness to the whole Church. The Saints regarded this as another interposition of the Almighty in behalf of His persecuted people; and great joy prevailed to see our Prophet once more freed rom his enemies.

During all these troubles and excitement the Saint did not cease in the least their exertions to build the temple. The work continued to move on with the usual vigor.

Several circumstances pertaining to the temple occurred during this time, which I now proceed to notice:

Willard Richards, the recorder, having in the early part of June obtained permission from the President to go to the East to get his family, made preparations to depart upon this journey. On the 29th of June he transferred the "Law of the Lord" and books belonging to the temple to the care and charge of William Clayton. One or two days later Elder Richards started away.

About nine o'clock on the evening of Saturday, September 3rd, the President was at Bishop N. K. Whitney's, but was about to .eave that place to go to Edward Hunter's. He called William Clayton to him and said: "Brother Clayton, I want you to take care of the records and papers; and from this time I appoint you Temple Recorder; and when revelations are to be transcribed, you shall write them."

This was done because Elder Richards had more work than he could attend to, he being engaged upon the Church History, which the President was anxious should Progress as fast as possible.

While President Joseph was concealed at Father Taylor's, Elder Cahoon and some others went to visit him. He gave them many glorious instructions, and in his conversation requested Brother Cahoon, as soon as he should return home, to call upon the Saints to put a temporary floor in the temple, that we might be enabled to hold our meetings within its sacred walls.

Accordingly, on Sunday, the 23rd day of October, the committee laid before the Saints the President's request and called upon them to begin work on the morrow to accomplish this object.

On the following day the brethren began their labor on this temporary floor; and on Friday, the 28th, the floor was laid and seats were fixed ready for meeting.
On Sunday, the 30th, the Saints held the first meeting in the temple, and were addressed by Elder John Taylor, one of the Twelve Apostles. It was expected that the President would be there himself; but he was sick and unable to attend.
This movement added a new stimulus to the work; and the hearts of all the Saints seemed to be filled with joy and gratitude for this privilege.
The Prophet, before he went up the river, had called upon the members of the Temple Committee to come together to have a settlement.
On Saturday, October lst, they met at the President's house, he being sick. The recorder and Bishop N. K. Whitney were present.
Some reports had been circulated to the effect that the committee was not making a righteous disposition of property consecrated to the building of the temple, and there appeared to be some dissatisfaction among the laborers on account of these reports..
After carefully examining the books and making inquiry into the entire proceeding of the committee, President Joseph expressed himself as being perfectly satisfied with the committee and its work.
The books were balanced between the Trustee-in-Trust and the committee, and also each individual account was carefully examined. The wages of the Trustee-in-Trust, the members of the committee and the recorder were also fixed by the President, and it was agreed that each should receive two dollars per day for his services.
The President remarked that he was amenable to the State for the faithful discharge of his duties as Trustee-in-Trust, and that the Temple Committee was accountable to him and to no other authority; and that no notice must be taken of any complaint unless it were properly brought to him, when he would make things right if any change were needed.
The parties separated perfectly satisfied, and the President said that he would have a notice published stating that he had examined the accounts and was satisfied. This notice appeared in the Times and Seasons of October 15th, 1842.
At this council it was also agreed that the recorder's office should be removed to the Committee House near the temple for the better accommodation of the business.
Accordingly the committee built a small brick office for the recorder; and on Wednesday, November 2nd, the recorder moved his records, books, papers, etc. to the new office and began business there forthwith.
Brother James Whitehead was called into the office on the llth of June to assist in keeping the books; and from this time forward the business continued to increase and contributions came in plentifully.
After the work ceased upon the walls of the temple, in the Fa11 of 1842, the rock-cutters continued their labor with the intention of having a goodly number of the stones ready for the Spring.
Some time in the month of November a feeling against the committee arose among the stone-cutters, who finally presented a charge to the First Presidency against Elders Cahoon and Higbee for oppressive and unchristian conduct, and against the committee for an unequal distribution of provisions, iron, steel, tools, etc.; also alleging that favors were shown by the committee to the sons of its members.
The trial began about 11 o'clock in the day and continued until 9 at night. Henry G. Sherwood made a plea on the side of Justice and the Patriarch Hyrum on the side of Mercy. The decision was given by the President. He decided that the members of the committee should retain their standing and gave much good instruction to all parties, correcting the errors of each in kindness. The decision was marked by judgment and wisdom and cannot fail to produce a good effect.

On Sunday, May 21, 1843, President Joseph preached in the temple from the first chapter of Peter`s second epistle. In the afternoon of that day the ordinance of partaking of bread and water, as the sacrament, was administered to the Saints for the first time in this temple.
The work on the building was delayed considerably this Spring, on account of the necessity for fixing runways for the crane. Brother Player had been sick during the entire Winter, and he continued in a very feeble state until the time when he commenced again to lay the stone on the walls, which was on the.21st day of April, 1843.
From this time the work progressed steadily but slowly. There was no other hindrance until the next Winter set in, which was rather early, and at which time the walls were up as high as the arches of the first tier of windows all around. In this state the building was left through the Winter and until the Spring of 1844.
Early in the morning on the 8th day of June, 1843, Elder Elias Higbee, one of the temple committee, died after an illness of only five days. His death was unexpected and deeply lamented by all his brethren. He had proved himself a worthy man, and was much respected by all who knew him.
After this event several applications were made by men to be appointed to fill the vacant place of Elder Higbee. Elder Jared Carter was very anxious to have the appointment and, for some cause or other, claimed it as his right. But the Spirit whispered that it would not be wisdom to appoint him. After some delay and consultation on the subject, the Patriarch Hyrum Smith was appointed by the Trustee-in-Trust, with the consent of the other committee; and on the morning of the 23rd day of October, 1843, he entered upon the duties of his office, amidst the greetings and good feelings of the workers universally.
On the 6th day of October, 1843, the special conference was held in the temple. This was the first time a conference was held in the building.
At this conference charges were again preferred against the temple committee, and a public investigation was entered into; and it was again voted that the members of the committee should be retained in their standing.
On this occasion the President proposed to the people to place under bonds a11 agents who were sent out to collect funds for the temple and Nauvoo House. He showed that some of the Elders, when they were away, received contributions to the temple; but as they sometimes devoted a portion of the money in other channels, they did not make proper returns at Nauvoo and the accounts did not, therefore, accurately balance.
He stated that the Twelve Apostles were now about to go East to raise means for the temple and also for the Nauvoo House. He suggested that they give bonds to the amount of the two thousand dollars each; and that this rule be enforced upon all the Elders from this time forward. An action was taken by the Conference and it was decided by unanimous vote to carry this proposition into effect. The Twelve gave bonds in the required amount previous to their going East, which bonds were filed in the office of the Trustee-in-Trust.
Thus the Twelve were the first agents who were ever placed under bonds, when sent to collect funds for the Church. The wisdom of this order was soon manifest; for, although it was well understood and universally believed that the Twelve would invariably make correct returns, there were others who might not be so careful or scrupulous. And, inasmuch as members of this first quorum were required to give bonds, no other man could justly complain if he were brought under the same rule.
At this conference the Saints again voted to renew their exertions and double their diligence in order that the temple might be speedily finished.
During this conference, also, Elder Sidney Rigdon was tried for his fellowship, charged with a long course of conduct which rendered him unworthy of a place in the Church. President Joseph told the Saints that he had carried Elder Rigdon long enough and that he should do so no more. But, notwithstanding this' the Patriarch Hyrum pleaded for mercy in Sidney's behalf; and the conference voted to sustain Elder Rigdon in his position as counsellor to the First Presidency.

Some time in the Winter or Spring of the year 1844, the Patriarch Hyrum made a proclamation to the women of the Church, asking them to subscribe in money one cent each per week, for the purpose of buying the glass and nails for the temple. He represented to them that by this means he would be able to meet all the requirements in this regard. He also gave a promise that all the sisters who would comply with this call should have the first privilege of seats in the temple when it was finished.

He opened a record of these contributions, which he kept, with the aid of Sister Mercy R. Thompson, until his death.

Afterwards Brother Cutler was appointed to receive these offerings, assisted by Sister Thompson. There was soon a great anxiety manifest among the sisters to pay their portion and nearly all paid a year's subscription in advance. Since that time many have given the donation for the second year; and there has been already realized nearly two thousand dollars which will do much towards accomplishing the desired object. These contributions yet continue to come in each day.

Early in the Spring of 1844, the committee commenced the construction of a second crane in order to expedite the work, the labor having all been performed with but one crane up to this time. During the month of March the new crane was and immediately after the April conference Brother Player again began work on the walls. It was on the llth of the month when he resumed this labor.

Soon after this time there was a considerable excitement in this county especially, and also in the counties adjoining apostates who threatened destruction and extermination to the whole Church. Among these apostates were: William Law, Wilson Law, Robert D. Foster, Francis M. Higbee, Chauney L. Higbee.

These men conspired with others who had been citizens of Nauvoo to bring on a mob.

The names of the principal persons in this business were: Joseph H. Jackson, Austin Cowles (an apostate). John M. William H. Rolloson, Wi1liam H. I. Marr, Silvester Emmons, Alexander Simpson, S. M. Marr, John Egle, Henry Norton, Augustine Spencer, Charles Ivens, P. T. Rolfe, William I. Higbee, James Blakeslee.

In order to effect their purposes the more speedily the apostates obtained a printing press; and on Friday, June 7th, the first number of a paper called the Nauvoo Expositor was issued. The paper was full of the most libellous and slanderous matter against the President, imaginable, and was designed as an engine to bring destruction upon the city.

On the lOth, the city council passed a resolution ordering the press to be abated as a nuisance, which was done the same evening.

The following day there was great excitement concerning the destruction of the press; and Foster and the Higbees threatened vengeance. Some of them said that in a few weeks there should not be left one stone of the temple standing upon another.

On the 12th, a number of writs, or rather one writ for a number of the brethren, was brought in and served by a constable of the name of Bettisworth. Among the number were Joseph and Hyrum.

Joseph immediately procured a writ of habeas corpus from the municipal court; and after a lengthy examination was discharged.

This constable returned and stated that he had been resisted. The mob took advantage of the circumstance to fan the flame of excitement and threatened terrible vengeance. They also went to the Morley settlement and branches around, demanded the arms of the brethren and ordered them to leave their homes within a few days.

The excitement continued to increase and the enemy circulated a11 manner of inflammatory reports, and also sent messages to the governor, which had the effect of bringing him to Carthage, where he arrived about the 21st.
The governor immediately sent a messenger with a letter, requesting those named in the writ to go to Carthage for trial. An answer was sent explaining the reasons why they had not gone.
On the following evening the governor sent in a posse of about thirty men, bearing a letter in which he made use of severe threats, and said that if the prisoners did not appear at Carthage on the morrow, he should take it as a resistance to the law and should immediately ca11 in force sufficient to take them, even if it required all the militia of the State.
On receiving this information the President and one or two others concluded to leave the city and go over to Iowa in the night.
During the day following some of the brethren, with Sister Emma Smith, despatched messengers to request the President and those with him to come and give themselves up, fearing that the city would be destroyed and the people massacred if they did not do it.
About five o'clock p.m., the little party returned and concluded to surrender, although it was contrary to the President's feelings to do so. On Monday the 24th, the prisoners started for Carthage but within about four miles of the place they were met by a messenger from the governor with an order for the State arms. The company immediately returned to collect the arms, which took some time.
About six o'clock the company started again and went through -- Carthage. While there a great many threats were offered and they suffered considerable abuse from the mob. They, however, succeeded in obtaining a pledge from the governor, in the name of the State, for their safety before they went out. About two days after they arrived in Carthage they were thrust in jail without lawful process.
On the afternoon of the 27th, the governor disbanded his troops except his body-guard; and, leaving the brethren in jail under charge of the Carthage Greys, some of their bitterest enemies, he came out to Nauvoo and made a harsh address to the people.
When he left Carthage a body of men collected from Nauvoo and started for Carthage, and when within a few miles they stopped to black their faces. They proceeded through the woods to the north side of Carthage; then, leaving the woods, they went to the jail, and the doors being open, they rushed upstairs with their rifles and muskets and commenced firing into the room. The brethren defended themselves as well as they could; but, having no arms, they were soon over [---------] Hyrum was shot through the head and fell backwards dead. John Taylor had four balls shot into him. Joseph [------] through the window and was immediately surrounded by the mob. They raised him up and set him against the well [----] but as yet it appears he had not been hit with a ball. However, four of the mob immediately drew up their guns and shot him dead. This was all the work of about two minutes. The mob then fled as fast as possible. A messenger was dispatched to bring the news to Nauvoo, but was met by the governor and taken back for fear the whole city would rush out and desolate the country.
The painful news reached the city the following morning, which filled the hearts of the Saints with the most intense gloom and sorrow.
On the 28th, at half past two, p.m., the bodies were brought to the city in two wagons and were taken to the mansion to be prepared for burial.
On the following day the Saints were permitted to go and see them; and at night they were secretly buried near the mansion.
The foregoing is but a mere sketch of the massacre, designed to show the date of the martyrdom and also the means by which it was brought about.
During this excitement the works on the temple ceased for about two weeks, all the hands having to watch and stand on guard night and day. The works were suspended about the 20th of June. On the second Sabbath after the murder, the subject of the temple was brought into consideration, and the Church voted to commence work again and finish it as speedily as possible.

On the 8th of July the laborers resumed their work, although the committee had not so much as a bushel of meal nor a pound of flour, nor a pound of meat to feed the hands with; but all seemed determined to go to work and trust in God for the means.
At this time the majority of the quorum of the Twelve were away in the East. Only P. P. Pratt, John Taylor and W. Richards were here. Elder Taylor was very sick and for some time in a dangerous state, through the wounds he received at Carthage. He had four balls shot into him and another ball struck his watch and broke it to pieces. To this small shield he may truly be said to owe his life; for but for that the ball doubtless would have gone through his heart. Dr. Richards was not hurt, although he was in the room where Hyrum was killed all the time the firing continued.
This sorrowful circumstance had a tendency to cement the hearts of the Saints more closely than ever. No threats were offered, no disposition for revenge; all concluded to leave the case in the hands of the governor, who had pledged himself that the murderers should be brought to justice; and if he failed, the Saints were wi11ing to leave it in the hands of God.
On Friday, the 5th day of July, a large raft of pine lumber, containing 87,732 feet, was landed at the city for the temple. The brethren turned out liberally with their teams to haul it to the temple, where it was secured in a few days.
In a few days afterwards another raft, of 67,952 feet was received and hauled to the temple. This gladdened the hearts of the Saints. Soon after this period the Saints were again made to sorrow on account of the death of Brother Samuel H. Smith, which took place on Tuesday evening, the 30th of July, after a very short illness; this being the third death in the family within five weeks.
There is now only one brother left of the family, viz: William. He was in the East during the progress of these afflicting events.
About the middle of July, the sisters of the branches of LaHarpe and Macedonia sent word to the temple committee and stated their anxiety to see this building progress still more rapidly.
They proposed if the committee would build another crane, they would furnish the means to build it with, and seemed wishful to go ahead with it immediately. The committee and recorder councilled on the subject and it was decided to comply with the wishes of the sisters.
Sister Clark, wife of Raymond Clark, was authorized to collect the contributions. She immediately started, and returned on the 29th with money and other property, amounting in whole to $194, which was more than sufficient to build a new crane.
The committee immediately set the carpenters to work, and on the 3rd of August the crane was put in operation under the management of Joshua Armstrong, the setter, and Horace Owens to back up, and W. W. Dryer, Wm. Austin and Archibald Hill to attend to the crane.
They commenced work on the north side and very soon satisfied the Saints of the utility of the movement. The works now progressed rapidly.
On the 4th of August, Elder Rigdon returned from Pittsburg and laid a plan to draw away the minds of the Saints by proposing or instructing the Saints that they must now choose a guardian--intimating that he himself was the proper person.
Fortunately, on Tuesday, the 6th of August, five of the Twelve returned home, viz: Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Lyman Wight, Orson Pratt and Wilford Woodruff. This event appeared very providential. They were just in time to frustrate Elder Rigdon's plans. This they did effectually.
On Thursday, the 8th, the Church voted to sustain the Twelve as the proper authority to govern the Church. The result was the open apostasy of Elder Rigdon and some others, who immediately left for Pittsburg.

After this event the Saints seemed more and more united, and a better feeling prevailed. The works of the temple moved on with astonishing rapidity, and on the 23rd of September the first capital was put up.
The stone weighed about two tons and when the stone was at its height, and the men were attempting to draw it to the wall, the crane gave way at the foot of the wing or angle, which circumstance caused considerable danger. By great care the stone was safely landed and set without any further accident.
On Wednesday, the 25th, as the brethren were beginning to raise one of the capitals having neglected to fasten the guys, the crane fell over with a tremendous crash, breaking it considerably. As soon as it was perceived that the crane was falling, the hands fled to get out of the way. One of the brethren, Thomas Jaap, running directly in the course of the falling crane, barely escaped being killed. The crane struck the ground and was within a foot of striking his head. This circumstance hindered the workmen some; but in a few days the crane was mended, reared and the brethren again went to work on it.
About this time, Ira T. Miles came down from Lyman Wight's company, who were then in the north, having left the city, as was supposed, through cowardice, as they expected we should be routed and the city destroyed.
About the same time, Jacob Morris came down from the same company and stated that Miles had come with the intention of setting fire to the lumber, that the building might be hindered, as Lyman Wight had said the temple never would be built. Whether this was the intention of Brother Miles or not we could not learn satisfactorily. However, enough was known to induce the authorities of the Church to advise the committee to have some of the old police guard the lumber and the temple night and day. The police have continued to guard it to this time. There has since that been many threats thrown out from the Rigdonites and other sources that the temple never should be built, and no doubt an attempt would have been made to set fire to it if it had not been well guarded all the time.
The workmen continued raising the capitals until December, when, on the 6th of that month, the last one was safely deposited in its place; which was a source of great joy to the Saints. Many fears had been entertained that Brother Player would not be able to finish them before Winter set in, but it seemed as though the Lord held up the weather until this important piece of work was accomplished. About two hours after the capital was set it commenced snowing very briskly, and at night the ground was covered about four inches, and it froze very keenly.
There were then twelve of the capitals without the trumpet stones; and they remained in this state until the following Spring.
The cost of each of the capitals was about $300. The first and last of the capitals were cut by Charles Lambert and Harvey Stanley.
I will further say that when the hands were raising the last capital, and had got it about half-way up, one of the block shives in the tackle broke and rendered it impossible in the situation either to raise or lower the stone. This circumstance presented a great difficulty, but after some consultation the hands fastened the rope below the tackle, so that it could not slip, and left the stone suspended while they took down the blocks, put in a new shive and fixed the blocks again.
The stone was then raised without further difficulty, and was set precisely at twenty minutes before one o'clock. This was the heaviest stone among the whole number.
After the death of President Joseph and Patriarch Hyrum, Joseph having been sole Trustee-in-Trust, when the Twelve returned home they held a council and appointed Newel K. Whitney and George Miller, the two presiding bishops, Trustees-in-Trust. This was on the 9th of August, and a few days afterwards, the trustees entered upon the duties of their office.

In the early part of December the trustees and Twelve held a counci1 to talk on the propriety of employing a suitable number of carpenters this winter to prepare the timberworks for the temple, so as to have it a11 ready when the stone work is finished. It was decided to employ fifteen persons as steady carpenters; and the architect was authorized to select such men as he may have confidence in--men who are well qualified to do the work that is wanted.
It was also concluded to fix up a shop in the temple for the carpenters to work in. Accordingly the south side of the lower story of the temple was weather-boarded around. A very good shop was made by this means, which was completed on the following Saturday; and on Monday, the 16th, the men selected went to work in their new shop. Their names are as follows:
Truman 0. Angell, William Felshaw, William F. Cahoon, Joseph Schofield, Samuel Rolfe, Zimri H. Baxter, Adison Everett, John Stiles, Hugh Riding, Miles Romney, Jabez Durfee, Stephen Longstroth, Benjamin Rolfe, Nicolas T. Silcock and Wi11iam Carmichael. Hiram Mace, Wandel Mace and Gideon Gibbs were appointed to attended the saw-mi11 and Daniel Avery to turn grindstone for the carpenters, keep the shop clean and take care of strangers who might visit the building.
During the early part of January, 1845, the High Priest quorum entered into an investigation of the propriety of building a hall for their accommodation. On the 26th, President Young and some others of the quorum of the Twelve attended the meeting of the quorum, when the subject was again discussed. President Young made some remarks on the subject and concluded by advising them, instead of building a hall to go to work and finish the upper room of the temple, and by this means they would soon have a room to attend to the ordinances and save much expense.
A vote was taken on accepting President Young's proposition, which was carried without a dissenting voice. The brethren immediately commenced bringing in their donations to the bishops for that purpose. This matter served as a new stimulus among the Saints to use every exertion to finish the temple as speedily as possible. .
On Wednesday, the 12th of March, Brother William W. Player commenced work again on the walls. He got one stone up just as the bell rang for dinner.
On Friday, the 14th, there was a man killed on the stone quarry by a stone falling on his head while the brethren were blasting rocks. This is the only accident of any moment that has ever happened on the temple or any of the works connected with it.
On Thursday, the 27th of March, 1845, Brother Player put up the last trumpet stone, at about three o'clock, p.m. He also laid the first-stringer for the large upper Venetian window in the east side.
On Monday, April 21st, Brother Player put up the first star in the architrave. At half past two o'clock, p.m., he notified me that they were about to begin to raise it. I immediately went to the east end of the temple. On my way I met Elder Heber C. Kimball, one of the Twelve, and we went and sat down together on Brother Cutler's fence. opposite where the stone stood.
We entered into conversation together on various matters, chiefly pertaining to our spiritual interests. We watched the slow upward progress of the star with great pleasure. At precisely a quarter before three o'clock, it was properly set in its place; and the instant it was set, Brother Edward Miller and Elisha Everett sprung for the top; but Brother Miller being a little the smartest he was on first and stood erect, viewing with pride the surrounding scenery. After he got down Brother Everett also mounted the stone and stood on it for some time. The top of the star is fifty-five feet above the ground. The first star was put up on Joseph's corner, being the first one north of the south-east corner.
On the morning of Tuesday, the 29th of April, the first upper circular window was finished setting by Brother Player.

On Friday, May 16th, a little after two o'clock, p.m., having been notified, I went on the temple and sat down on the top of the south-west .corner stairway, on the highest part of the stone work. I then watched Brother Player set the last star, being on the west end and the second one from the south-west corner. It was .set exactly at three o'clock, p.m.

At this time the carpenters were very busy raising the timbers for the upper floor of the temple, having them all framed and quite a large amount was already upon the walls and body of the building.

On Monday, the 19th of May, while I was sitting on the temple, Brother Stephen H. Goddard met with an accident which was very near proving fatal. He was standing on the wall on the north side of the temple, assisting some others to take down one of the scaffolding poles. By some accident the foot of the pole slipped and struck him on the left side of the head. He fell head foremost, being stunned by the blow. Fortunately they had just got two joists in the floor and he fell across them, which prevented him from going down into the cellar, a distance of about sixty-two feet. And in all probability, if he had fallen down he would have been killed. The brethren raised him up and on examination found that he had received a cut on the upper corner of his left eye. His face was also much bruised. He bled profusely. I laid hands on him with two other brethren and he went home. He suffered considerable pain until evening, when it cease, and in two days afterwards he was at work again, as usual.

On Friday, the 23rd, all the stone on the outside of the wall was laid, except the south-east corner stone. This progress was a great rejoicing to the Saints.

The Rigdonites have prophesied that the walls would never be built; but through the blessing of God we have lived to see the prediction come to naught.

On Saturday the 24th, at a quarter before six o'clock a.m., was the time appointed for the laying of the capstone of the temple. Quite a number of the Saints had assembled to witness the interesting ceremony. There were present, of the quorum of the Twelve; President Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, John Taylor, Willard Richards, Amasa Lyman, George A. Smith, John E. Page, Orson Hyde, and Orson Pratt; also Newel K. Whitney, and George Miller, Trustees-in-Trust; Alpheus Cutler and Raymond Cahoon, building committee; William Clayton, temple recorder; John Smith, Patriarch and president of the Stake, and Charles C. Rich his counselor. Of the High Council William Huntington, Sr., Aaron Johnson, George W. Harris, James Allred, David Fullmer, William Weeks, architect, and Wi11iam W. Phelps.

A few minutes before six, the band came up and arranged themselves on the platform in a circle a 1ittle .back from the corner.

The names of the band who were present are as follows: Wi11iam Pitt, leader, Stephen Hales, Wi11iam F. Cahoon, Robert T. Burton, John Kay, James Smithies, Daniel F. Cahoon, Andrew Cahoon, Charles H. Hales, Martin H. Peck, J. T. Hutchinson, James Standing, William D. Huntington. Charles Smith and Charles C. Robbins, also William H. Kimba11, color bearer.

At six o'clock the band played "The Nightingale;" and afterwards while the people were collecting, they played another tune. At eight minutes after six Brother William W. Player commenced spreading his mortar, perfect silence prevailing.

President Young stood on the wa11 immediately north o the corner stone, with Elder Heber C. Kimball at his right hand.

When the mortar was spread, the stone was lifted to i s place by President Brigham Young, William W. Player, Tarlton Lewis, Elisha Everett, John Hi11, Edward Miller, Charles W. Patten, Samuel Hodge, Hans C. Hanson, and Thomas Jaap.

President Young then stepped on the stone, and taking a large peatle began beating it to its place. He finished laying the stone with the assistance and direction of Brother Player precisely at twenty-two minutes after six o'clock. The band then struck up the "Capstone March," composed and arranged by William Pitt, the leader, for the occasion.

President Young then spoke to the congregation, instructing them with regard to shouting the "Hossannah."
He then said, "The last stone is laid upon the temple, and I pray the Almighty in the name of Jesus to defend us in this place, and sustain us until the temple is finished and have all got our endowments."
The whole congregation then, following the motion of President Young, shouted as loud as possible: "Hossannah, hossannah, hossannah, to God and the Lamb! Amen, amen and amen!"
This was repeated a second and third time.
The President concluded by saying; "So let it be, thou Lord Almighty!" He continued and said: "This is the seventh day of the week, or the Jewish Sabbath. It is the day on which the Almighty finished His work and rested from His labors. We have now finished the walls of the temple, and we may rest to day from our labors."
He said he would take it upon him to dismiss the workmen for the day; and requested the people to hallow the day, and spend it giving thanks to God.
He then dismissed the congregation, and in company with the brethren of the Twelve retired to the place of their retreat, where they can be safe from arrest by constables, and other officers who are prowling around the city from Carthage. The people began to move away, but the band continued playing. John Kay also went on the corner stone and sang a song composed by Elder William W. Phelps, called the "Capstone Song." The morning was very cold and chilly. The Saints seemed highly interested and leased with the morning's performance. According to the request of Preside t Young all works were suspended and the day was kept as a holiday.
A few minutes after the Twelve left the temple a constable came up with a summons for several of the brethren, but he could not find them. He had also a summons for Daniel Avery, and we had notified Avery of it and he was counseled to keep out of the way; but contrary to counsel he unwisely went and made himself known to the officer, who immediately served the process upon him. For this piece of conduct, and others as bad, a council of the Twelve .nd trustees dismissed him from the wo.k and took Jesse P. Harmon, one of the old police in his stead.
0n Wednesday the 28th day of May the first "bent" of the attic story of the temple was raised by the carpenters, and up to this time they continued to raise the timber works with pleasing rapidity.
Thus the work of this temple has progressed from the beginning to the present time without any serious accident except in the incident which happened at the stone quarry. The blessing of God has attended the whole progress:. of the work, and it has advanced beyond our most sanguine expectations. Our enemies have threatened a11 the time, and for the last two years we have had very 1ittle cessation from writs and other efforts of the enemy to prevent our finishing it. Many prophecies have been uttered against it; but the Saints have invariably pursued a steady course of perseverance. As the building has progressed, the Saints have increased their donations and tithings; and this Spring has exceeded all past times for liberality and donations from the brethren.
This being Saturday, the 31st of May, 1845, I will now say the circuit court of this county (Hancock) has been in session the past two weeks. Nearly the whole of the time has been occupied in that trial of Jacob C. Davis, senator for this county, Thomas C. Sharp, editor of the Warsaw Signal, Levi Williams, a colonel of the militia, Mark Aldrich and a Mr. Grover, before Richard M. Young, for the murder of Generals Joseph and Hyrum Smith on the 27th of June, 1844. The verdict was brought in yesterday and returned "Not guilty."
Thus the whole State of Illinois has made itself guilty of shedding the blood of the Prophets by acquitting those who to take committed the horrid deed, and it is now left to God to take vengeance in His own way and in His own time.

On the 16th of December, 1840, the State of Illinois granted us a liberal charter. The principal officers o, the State being as follows: Thomas Carlin, governor, William Wilson, chief justice; Samuel D. Lockwood, Thomas C. Brown, Walter B. Scates, associate justices. These men formed the council of revision. On the 21st of January, 1845, the State took away all our chartered right and left us entirely destitute of protection.
The council of revision then stood as follows: Thomas Ford, governor, William Wilson, chief justice; and Samuel D. Lockwood, Thomas C. Brown, Walter B. Scates, Samuel H. Treat, Richard M. Young, James Shields, Jesse B. Thomas, and John D. Caton.
President Joseph Smith, first President and sole Trustee-in-Trust for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, together with Hyrum Smith his councilor and Patriarch to the whole Church, was martyred on the 27th of June, 1844.
They died firm in the faith and favor of God and universally respected and beloved by all the Saints. Their death was universally lamented, and their names wi11 ever be held sacred by a11 the faithful in time and to all eternity.
William Law, who was appointed councilor in the stead of Hyrum when the latter was ordained a Patriarch, apostatized in the Spring or early in the year of 1844. And was a principal agent in causing the massacre of the President and Patriarch.
Sidney Rigdon, the other councilor, was rejected by the Saints in September last, for endeavoring to deceive the people and lead them to ruin. He has since denied the Church and organized a new one under another title, and from evidence before us has sought diligently to bring trouble and destruction upon the Saints of Nauvoo.

TEMPLE ORIENTED QU ESTIONS & ANSWERS

by Richard A. Ware

1. Q: What is the meaning of the three taps at the veil?

   A: "Father, Son & Holy Ghost"

   Ref: Manti Temple Historical Record, 1934-1974; CHO, CR/348/11/#1; August, 1934 Meeting of Temple Workers. Statement made by Temple President Robert D. Young.

2. Q: Why does everyone dress in white in the temple?

   A: "In the temples all are dressed alike in white. White is the symbol of purity. No unclean person has the right to enter God's house."

   Ref: Improvement Era Publication of Temples of the Latter-day Saints, p. 20; Elder John A. Widtsoe, "Looking Toward the Temple".

   A: "Here [in the temple] we will not only lay aside the clothing of the street, but the thoughts of the street, and will try not only to clothe our bodies in clean white linen but our minds in purity of thought."

Ref:Ensign/January 1972, pp. 65-66; "Some Things You Need To Know About The Temple", Elder Elray L. Christiansen.

3.Q:Why is everyone dressed in the same kind of clothing?

A:"The uniform dress symbolizes that before God our Father in heaven all men are equal. The beggar and the banker, the learned and the unlearned, the prince and the pauper sit side by side in the temple and are of equal importance if they live righteously before the Lord God, the Father of their spirits. It is spiritual fitness and understanding that one receives in the temple. All such have an equal place before the Lord.

Ref:Improvement Era Publication of Temples of the Latter-day Saints, p. 20; Elder John A. Widtsoe, "Looking Toward the Temple".

4.Q:How many leaves can there be on the apron?
A:"Some question now arose as to temple aprons, the shape and number of the leaves, and so on. Answer: Joseph [Smith] said when they could be, they should be made of lambskin with three, nine, five or seven leaves on--an odd number [of leaves] anyway."

Ref:Salt Lake Temple, Sisters Meeting Minutes, p. 67; Church Archives, CR/306/66/fd 1; 16 June 1899. [Note: In early church history many of the brethren had as many as 15 leaves on their aprons.]

5.Q:Why is the veil placed over the woman's face when the coffin is closed?

A:"It was agreed that when the coffin is closed containing the body of a sister who has been through the temple, her veil should be placed so as to hide her face, so that when her husband meets her on the other side he may lift the same from her countenance. This is in accordance with the instructions which President Young gave during his life."

Ref:Journal of Apostle Abraham H. Cannon; Thursday, January 7, 1892

6.Q:Why do we remove our shoes after entering the temple?

A:"We should take off our shoes [upon] entering this house for it is a holy place. This is the Lord's House. He said to Moses when Moses drew near to Him on the Mount: Moses, 'take off thy shoes for the ground whereon thou stands is holy.'"

Ref:St. George Temple Minute Book, K9368R, p. 202, 7 March 1902, President David H. Cannon, Temple President.

7.Q:If the creation account of Adam's body is figurative, then how was he created?

A:"Adam...took upon himself an appropriate body, the body of a man, and so became a 'living soul.' . . .all who have inhabited the earth since Adam have taken bodies and become souls in like manner."

Ref:Statement of the First Presidency, November 1909; Improvement Era, Vol. 13:75-81. (See also Mormon Doctrine, p. 17)

A:"Thus Adam was created from the dust of the ground meaning that the physical body which he received was created from the elements of the earth. Similarly all men are created from the dust of the earth; that is, the elements organized into a mortal body are assembled together through the birth process. (Moses 6:59)"

Ref:Mormon Doctrine, p. 209, Elder Bruce R. McConkie

8.Q:If Adam received his body through the birth process, then who was his Father?

A:"The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, basing its belief on divine revelation, ancient and modern, proclaims man to be the direct and lineal offspring of deity."

Ref:Statement of the First Presidency, November 1909; Improvement Era, Vol. 13:75-81. (See also Messages of the First Presidency, James R. Clark, Vol. 4:206; Luke 3:38)

9.Q:Why does the woman veil her face when at prayer in the temple?

10.Q:Since Peter, James, and John were not embodied at the time of Adam and Eve, who were the three beings that came to Adam and shook hands with him?

11.Q:Why do the brethren stand up when Adam is commanded to awake and arise?

12.Q:Why does the person at the altar use a sign when he prays? And why is it always the same one?

13.Q:What does the garment represent?

14.Q:Do the blessings we receive in the initiatory pertain to this life, or the next, or both?

15.Q:Why is there a string tied to the robes?

16.Q:What do the loops on the robe represent?

17.Q:Why is there a bow on the cap?

18.Q:Why does satan lose his apron after the fall?

19.Q:Why are we shown the creation of the earth in such detail?

RULES FOR THE REGULATION OF TEMPLE WORK

[p. 107]
Adopted by the First Presidency and Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, at a meeting held in the Salt Lake Temple; April 24th, 1902.

(1) Males of 21 and females of 18 years of age can receive their endowments, provided they are properly recommended.

(2) A deceased female who has attained, in life, the age of 10 or 12 years, may be sealed to a male as a wife.

The same rule applies in the case of a male having a wife sealed to him.

(3) Males should possess the Melchizedek Priesthood before coming to the Temple to receive their Endowments.

(4) No male over the age of 21 years can be admitted to the Temple, to do ordinance work, except baptisms, until he has received his endowments.

The same rule applies to females over the age of 18 years.

(5) Males under 21 and females under 18 can be baptized for their health. They can also be baptized for the dead, and sealed to their parents. All over 8 years old must be properly recommended by the Bishop of the Ward and the President of the Stake in which they reside.

(6) A female who has a husband or marries a man not in the Church cannot be admitted to the Temple to receive her endowments. The same rule applies to a Man who marries a wife not in the Church.

(7) Couples who come to the Temple to be married must bring licenses issued by County Clerks of the State of Utah.

Those who have already been legally married do not, in order to be sealed, need licenses.

(8) If of a naturally ripe and early development, of mind and body, living children may receive endowments at the age of twelve years; but as a rule, fifteen years old is sufficiently early.
(9) A dead female, in order to be baptized and endowed must have in life attained at least to the age of 8 years.

The same applies to dead males.

[p. 108]

(10) Children who die under the age of 8 years, not born in the covenant, should receive no other Temple Ordinances than to be sealed to their parents.

(11) Still born children who, their mothers state, have been quickened, are all right without having anything done for them.

(12) Children who were born out of the marriage relation, and are dead, should be sealed to the parent who has received the Gospel and lived it. In either case the parent must be sealed to a husband or wife.

(13) Children who were born to parents who had been sealed but not endowed, should be sealed to their parents, provided the opportunity should ever be given them to be sealed over an altar. Otherwise the first sealing would stand.

(14) It is necessary (when possible) that all children, married or single, born out of the covenant, should be present at the same time, to be sealed to their parents.

(15) A woman who has been born out of the Covenant, and who is married should be sealed to her parents, unless they yield up their right to her as a daughter and wish to surrender her to some other family.

(16) Where a woman has been sealed to two men and had children by both, and each of the men have a good standing in the Church the children go to their respective fathers. Why? Because the children were born under the covenant to their respective fathers and bear their respective names.

(17) When desired by children who are in the Church, it is proper that they should be sealed to parents who did not hear the Gospel in life and consequently did not embrace it, unless there is some special reason why it should not be done.

(18) In cases where the heads of families (deceased) have had the necessary ordinance work done for them and they have been adopted into a family whose relationship in the covenant connects with the Prophet Joseph Smith, the children of said parents can be sealed to their own parents without annulling the ordinance first performed. This rule includes children in the Church and their parents were not.

(19) Where a husband and wife are both members of the Church and they have children; the husband dies; the wife afterwards marries another man, is sealed to her deceased husband and has children by the second, all of the children should go the first husband.

(20) No person, male or female, living or dead, can receive the highest blessings in the House of the Lord without a special recommend for this purpose, signed by the President of the Stake and endorsed by the President of the Church. The recommend, for dead as well as living, should be based on competent evidence of faithfulness, and, in cases of those who were not members of the church at their death,on evidence of their chaste and moral conduct in life. Any woman who has been sealed (in life or by proxy) to a worthy man, whether she has lived with him or not, may have the privilege of being anointed to him, provided he has had his second blessings.

MISCELLANEOUS

(21) Persons who die without having been endowed may be buried (if their friends choose) with un-marked garments, but not with robes or other Temple clothing.

(22) Unmarried people, who have been endowed, can act in sealing for the dead. Those who have been endowed may act for the dead in any of the ordinances of the House of the Lord, except Second Anointings.

(23) If, by mistake, a person is sealed in the Temple before being endowed, it is not necessary for the sealing to be cancelled. All that is necessary is for the person to be endowed, unless he or she representing him or her is dissatisfied.

(24) Words used in baptizing for the dead:

"Having been commissioned of Jesus Christ, I baptize you _____ for and in behalf of _____who is dead, in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

CASES WHICH NEED NO CANCELLATION

(25) In cases where women have been sealed to other men than their husbands. (The latter having died without having embraced the Gospel) and they are afterwards sealed to their husbands, it is unnecessary to cancel the first transaction. Both may stand on record.

[p. 110]

(25 Concluded) The same rule applies to cases of sealing children to parents who have heretofore been sealed to men who were not their natural fathers.

(26) All who come to the Temple to perform ordinance work are expected to make donations, according to their circumstances, to aid in meeting necessary expenses; but the poor who have nothing to give are equally welcome.

(27) No person, male or female, who has not had his or her endowments shall be permitted to witness the sealing, or any other Temple ordinance. ("Excepting that of Baptism.") The Clause in Brackets, Requested by First Presidency in letter of date 16th. July 1902 to President J.D.T. McAllister.

Adopted by the First Presidency and quorum of the Twelve Apostles, at a meeting held in the Salt Lake Temple: April 24th., 1902.

[p. 111]

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 16, 1902.

Elder John D. T. McAllister.
President Manti Temple.

Dear Brother.

We mailed you last evening a copy of certain rules applicable to Temple work, adopted by the Council of First Presidency and Apostles at their meeting in the Salt Lake Temple on the 24th of April last, which you will please receive with all others heretofore made which may be in your possession. We would like you to add to the last rule (No. 27) the following words; "excepting that of baptism."

Your Brethren,
/s/ Jos. F. Smith.
/s/ John R. Winder.

Monday, 19 May 1856

G. S. L. City, May 19, 1856

Bishop Evans, Dry Creek, Utah
I want you to forward 20 persons to receive their endowments to be at the Endowment House next Friday, 23rd inst., at 7 o'clock in the morning precisely.
Also Bishop Hamington of American Fork to forward 20, to be at the Endowment House at the same time on Friday.
Bishop Henson Walker of Pleasant Grove is also requested to send 20 to be at the Endowment House Tuesday following (27) at 7 o'clock in the morning. And Bishop Blackburn of Provo to send 20 to be here at the same day and hour.
Bishop Aaron Johnson to send 40 on Friday 30th to be on hand by seven o'clock in the morning.
These men and women whom you recommend, must be individuals, who pay their tithing from year to year; who pray in their families, and do not speak against the authorities of the Church and Kingdom of God; nor steal; nor lie; nor interfere with their neighbors things; nor their neighbors wives or husbands; who attend strictly to meetings and prayer meetings, and those who pay due respect to their presiding officers, and Bishops and those who do not swear.
We shall expect you to Pickup the old and infirm; the lame and blind and the righteous poor, but not the devils poor.
We would like to see many of the young and sprightly young persons who are strict to obey their parents.
We shall require the Bishops to send their names in a letter fully recommended and tell them to qualify themselves by washing their bodies in pure water and bringing Temple clothing and oil for their anointings. As they live in the country, we want them to bring their eggs, butter, meat, bread and flour, and the luxuries of [the farm] fit to grace the tables of the House of the Lord, to feed the men and women who administer unto them; and if there should be any left, that we may give it to the poor; and in so doing God will bless you and we will bless you. This by order of the First Presidency.

THE IMPORTANCE AND NEED FOR MODERN TEMPLES

by Richard Ware
1983

I am grateful for this opportunity to be with you today. I most humbly pray that the spirit of the Lord will be with both you and I, that as we discuss the importance of temple work together, the spirit of the Lord will attend us and enlighten our minds regarding this sacred work.

President Spencer W. Kimball said:

> Most members of the Church are aware of our intense interest in the missionary work of the Church and the appeals we have made in many lands for a rededication to preaching the gospel and preparing missionaries to carry the good news of the restoration to people everywhere. I feel the same sense of urgency about temple work for the dead as I do about missionary work, since they are basically one and the same. I have told my brethren of the General Authorities that this work for the dead is constantly on my mind. * * * Upon us rests the full responsibility to do [the] temple work [for the spirits of men and women in the spirit world, and], to perform the ordinances that will provide for them entrance into the Kingdom of God and bind their family ties throughout the eternity. (Ensign/October 1977, p. 82; Remarks made at the 12th Annual Priesthood Genealogy Seminar at BYU in August, 1977)

Now, with this thought in mind, let us discuss some aspects of temple work that are of great importance to us, and important that we should understand.

I. THE TEMPLE IS A PLACE WHERE WE CAN GROW IN LIGHT & KNOWLEDGE

The temple is a place where an individual can receive instruction relative to the plan of salvation and to find where he is in relationship to that plan.

The Prophet Joseph Smith said:

We consider that God has created man with a mind capable of instruction, and a faculty which may be enlarged in proportion to the heed and diligence given to the light communicated from heaven to the intellect; and that the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients, arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker and is caught up to dwell with Him. But we consider that this is a station to which no man ever arrived in a moment; he must have been instructed in the government and laws of that kingdom by proper degrees, until his mind is capable in some measure of comprehending the propriety, justice, equality, and consistency of the same. It is necessary for men to receive an understanding concerning the laws of the [celestial] kingdom, before they are permitted to enter it. . . . (TPJS, p. 51; Joseph Smith, Jr.; January 22, 1834; From an epistle to the Elders of the Church, in Kirtland, to their brethren abroad.)

Gospel Mysteries

II. THE TEMPLE IS WHERE GOD ENDOWS HIS CHILDREN WITH POWER

A Temple is a house of God, set apart from all other edifices and dedicated to a sacred purpose. By Latter-day Saints, a temple is considered as a connecting link between earth and heaven. "The temple of the Lord," said President Franklin D. Richards, "is as the gate to heaven, located upon the strait and narrow path which leads to eternal life." (Utah Gen & Hist Mag, Vol 11:145; Saviors On Mount Zion, 1955 SS manual, p. 128)

Elder John A. Widtsoe described the temple as:

. . . a place where God will come; a place where the pure in heart shall see God; a place where baptisms for the dead are performed; a place where sealings for time and for eternity are done; a place where the endowment of the priesthood is given; a place where the keys of the priesthood are committed in abundance; and a place where many other wonderful things may occur and should occur and in fact do occur." (JAW, Utah Gen & Hist Mag, Apr 1921, Vol 12:55-56)
Temples are built expressly for the bestowal of the highest blessings of God upon his faithful children [whether they have passed on from this sphere of action or not]. (Saviors On Mt Zion, p. 205).

III. TEMPLE ORDINANCES WILL LINK THE GENERATIONS BACK TO ADAM

All people must receive the ordinances of the house of the Lord if they expect to gain the fulness of celestial reward. And since the dead cannot receive these ordinances unless we go to the temple and do the work for them, it is our grave responsibility to see that the work for them is done. In fact, the Prophet Joseph said it was the greatest responsibility that rested upon us as individuals. (TPJS)
"When sealings for a family group are performed in a temple, there is being welded one shining link in a chain of celestial pattern. When each parent in turn is sealed, with brothers and sisters, to his parents, two additional links are forged. This process must be continued on back to the beginning, family group by family group, till the chain of patriarchal authority is complete, with no missing link. The Prophet has taught that the Saints are to be sealed up to "all their progenitors who are dead, and redeem them that they may come forth in the first resurrection and be exalted to thrones of glory with them; and herein is the chain that binds the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers, which fulfills the mission of Elijah. Likewise, when all temple work is completed each faithful person will have joined to him by sealing ordinances every one of his faithful descendants to the end of time, so that they with him, and he with his fathers, in the order of their generations clear back to Adam, are united in a perfect chain of Patriarchal Priesthood, welded indissolubly by divine authority in the temples. President Brigham Young explained that sealing ordinances, "ordinances pertaining to the holy Priesthood, to connect the chain of Priesthood from Father Adam until now, by sealing children to their parents, being sealed to our forefathers, etc., they cannot be done without a temple. When the ordinances are carried out in the temples that will be erected, men will be sealed to their fathers, and those who have slept, clear to Father Adam. This will have to be done, because of the chain of Priesthood being broken upon the earth. . . . This Priesthood has been restored again, and by its authority we shall be connected with our fathers, by the ordinance of sealing, until we form a perfect chain from Father Adam down to the closing up scene.

It is for this reason that it is the inescapable duty of each Latter-day Saint to trace his lineage, and be sealed to his forefathers, that our lineage may be preserved, and the chain of sealing carried back until we come to the time when our ancestors held the Priesthood in life and attended to these sealing ordinances themselves, or were born in the covenant. * * * The obligation rests squarely upon us. To neglect it is to imperil our own salvation."
(Saviors On Mt Zion, pp 197-98; TPJS, p. 193)

IV. TEMPLES ARE PLACES OF REVELATION

In addition to being a place where ordinances of exaltation are performed for the living and the dead, it is also a place of revelation. Elder Widtsoe explained:
If we are correct in believing that the blessings obtained in the temples of the Lord are a partial fulfillment, at least, of the promises made when the Holy Ghost, which is a Revelator, is conferred upon man, it would be expected that temple ordinances would be in the nature of a revelation to those who participate. Certainly the temple is a place where revelations may be expected.
But, whether in the temple or elsewhere, how do men receive revelations? How did the Prophet Joseph Smith obtain his first revelation, his first vision? He desired something. In the woods, away from human confusion, he summoned all the strength of his nature; there he fought the demon of evil, and, at length, because of the strength of his desire and the great effort that he made, the Father and the Son descended out of the heavens and spoke eternal truth to him. So, revelation always comes; it is not imposed upon a person; it must be drawn to us by faith, seeking and working. Just so; to the man or woman who goes through the temple, with open eyes, heeding the symbols and the covenants, and making a steady, continuous effort to understand the full meaning, God speaks his word, and revelations come. The endowment is so richly symbolic that only a fool would attempt to describe it; it is so packed full of revelations to those who exercise their strength to seek and see, that no human words can explain or make clear the possibilities that reside in the temple service. The endowment which was given by revelation can best be understood by revelation; and to those who seek most vigorously, with pure hearts, will the revelation be greatest. I believe that the busy person on the farm, in the shop, in the office, or in the household, who has his worries and troubles, can solve his problems better and more quickly in the house of the Lord than anywhere else. If he will leave his problems behind and in the temple work for himself and for his dead, he will confer a mighty blessing upon those who have gone before, and quite as large a blessing will come to him, for at the most unexpected moments, in or out of the temple will come to him, as a revelation, the solution of the problems that vex his life. That is the gift that comes to those who enter the temple properly, because it is a place where revelations may be expected.
In temple worship, as in all else, we probably gain understanding according to our differing knowledge and capacity; but I believe that we can increase in knowledge and enlarge our capacity, and in that way receive greater gifts from God. I would therefore urge upon you that we teach those who go into the temples to do so with a strong desire to have God's will revealed to them, for comfort, peace, and success in our daily lives, not for publication, or for conversation, but for our own good, for the satisfying of our hearts."
If temple service ever becomes uninteresting or tiresome or monotonous, may it not be that the individual so affected has gone there unprepared and therefore has failed to catch the real meaning and purpose of those symbols, or catching a ray of light, has ceased to reach out for more and thereby develop in line with the purpose of those symbols. One person may explain or show a symbol to another, and this thing is common, everyday practice, but no man can reveal to another the sublime, deep inner meaning of those symbols presented in the House of the Lord, for it is an individual matter, and every soul must seek and obtain it for himself, and that alone, with God's help only. Nor can anyone acquire this knowledge outside of the House of the Lord, for there we must go to commune with him about these vital things. Going there once or twice can be of little value to us, comparatively, for what can we know about those things with so little thought and contact. Those symbols have an eternity of meaning, therefore an eternity of study and diligent application thereto is necessary in order to comprehend them fully and to make the purpose of them our own. The gifts of God are to those only who seek, and seek aright, until they find. God helps those only who seek diligently and prayerfully. * * * No man or woman can come out of the temple endowed as he should be, unless he has seen, beyond the symbol, the mighty realities for which the symbols stand." (Utah Gen & Hist Mag, Vol 12:62, Elder John A. Widtsoe; Power From On High, by Elder David R. Roberts, 1937)

V. THE HIGHEST BLESSINGS CAN BE OBTAINED ONLY IN TEMPLES

Temples are built expressly for the bestowal of the highest blessings of God upon his faithful children." (Saviors On Mt Zion, p. 205)

President Joseph Fielding Smith said:

There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God without the fulness of [the] Priesthood. * * * These blessings are obtained through obedience to the ordinances and covenants of the House of the Lord. The Prophet Joseph Smith once said: "If a man gets a fulness of the Priesthood of God, he has to get it . . . by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord." To obtain the fulness of [the] Priesthood does not mean that a man must become President of the Church. Every man who is faithful and will receive these ordinances and blessings obtains a fulness of the Priesthood, and the Lord has said that 'he makes them equal in power, and in might, and in dominion.' * * * . . . the Lord has made it possible for every man in the Church, through his obedience, to receive the fulness of the Priesthood through the ordinances of the Temple of the Lord. This cannot be received anywhere else.
So being ordained an Elder, or a High Priest, or an Apostle, or even President of the Church, is not the thing that brings exaltation, but obedience to the laws and ordinances and the covenants required of those who desire to become members of the Church of the First Born as these are administered in the House of the Lord." (Saviors On Mt Zion, p. 159)

President Smith went on to say:

Let me put this a little different way. I do not care what office you hold in the Church---you may be an apostle you may be a patriarch, a high priest, or anything else---but you cannot receive the fullness of the priesthood and the fullness of eternal reward unless you receive the ordinances of the house of the Lord; and when you receive these ordinances, the door is then open so you can obtain all the blessings which any man can gain.
Do not think because someone has a higher office in the Church than you have that you are barred from receiving the fullness of the Lord's blessings. You can have them sealed upon you as an elder if you are faithful; and when you receive them, and live faithfully and keep these covenants, you then have all that any man can get.

There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God without the fullness of the priesthood. . . . (ERA, June, 1970, pp 65-66; Oct. General Conference, Priesthood session address, April 1970)

VI. THE PROMISE OF ETERNAL LIFE GROWS OUT OF TEMPLE MARRIAGE

Elder Bruce R. McConkie indicated our need to continue forward in our efforts to gain eternal life, even beyond temple marriage:

That is to say, after celestial marriage; after entering into sacred covenants in the house of the Lord; after receiving the conditional promise of the continuation of the family unit in eternity; after receiving power to gain kingdoms and thrones--we must so live as to receive the guarantees to which we have thus been called, and the assurances that appertain to our election, and which are given on a conditional basis only in celestial marriage. As with baptism, so with celestial marriage; after the glorious promise of eternal life that is part of each of these covenants, we must press forward in righteousness until our calling and election is made sure; and this high achievement grows out of and is the crowning reward of celestial marriage." (DNTC 3:333)

VII. WE MUST KEEP THE VISION OF THE WORK BEFORE OUR EYES

Whether or not we are successful in achieving these high blessings depends upon whether or not we are able to keep the vision of where we are going constantly before our eyes, and then to act upon that vision. There are three basic elements that deal with this important concept:

(1) We must envision the goal and keep it continually in mind.
(2) We must know what to do to reach it.
(3) We must then do what is necessary to reach it.

The apostle Peter knew that our vision becomes dim unless we keep the goal constantly in mind. He also knew that when our vision grows dim so does our resolve to endure to the end, especially in the face of continual tribulation and opposition. If we are to attain the goal of eternal life, we must properly envision it, know what we need to do to obtain it, and then do whatever is necessary. We have accepted the gospel because we do see and know. To be sure that we overcome all things, we must be obedient, exercising faith, and strive diligently to make our calling and election sure. No goal is more worthy, no blessing greater. This challenge was the high point in Peter's writings. (The New Testament Gospel Doctrine Teachers Supplement, 1983, pp. 157-160)

In regards to what this vision could do for us, President David 0. McKay said:

I believe there are few, even temple workers, who comprehend the full meaning and power of the temple endowment. Seen for what it is, it is the step-by-step ascent into the eternal Presence. If our young people could but glimpse it, it would be the most powerful spiritual motivation of their lives." ("House of Glory", by Truman Madsen, March 5, 1972, BYU Ten Stake Fireside).

VIII. WE MUST PAY THE PRICE IN ORDER TO OBTAIN EXALTATION

Sometimes, however, because of our lack of understanding and appreciation" of these blessings, [said Elder Marion G. Romney], I am persuaded that we take too much for granted. We assume that because we are members of the Church, we shall receive as a matter of course all the blessings of the gospel. I have heard people contend that they have a claim upon them because they have been through the temple, even though they are not careful to keep the covenants they there made. I do not think this will be the case.

We might take a lesson from an account given by the Prophet of a vision of the resurrection, in which he records that one of the saddest things he had ever witnessed was the sorrow of members of the Church who came forth to a resurrection below that which they had taken for granted they would receive. I conceive the blessings of the gospel to be of such inestimable worth that the price for them must be very exacting, and if I correctly understand what the Lord has said on the subject, it is. The price, however, is within the reach of us all, because it is not to be paid in money nor in any of this world's goods but in righteous living." (M.G.Romney, I.E., November 1949, p. 754)

IX. THE SCRIPTURES TEACH US MANY TEMPLE-RELATED TRUTHS

The scriptures are full of temple oriented concepts that if we could see would give us a new insight and understanding into the gospel, and increase our ability and our commitment to keep on the strait and narrow path.
The parable of the Good Samaritan is about a man who was in a fallen condition, who was washed and anointed that his wounds (or sins) might be healed, and who was then lifted up and taken to a place of peace and rest where he could fully recover from the blows of death. The Good Samaritan (or Christ) paid the price, in full, through his atoning sacrifice, that the man might fully regain a life which he had lost.
The parable of the Prodigal Son talks about a young man who left his Fathers presence and descended to the wickedness of the world. After becoming tired of living a miserable life, he strongly felt the desire to go home again. And while he was still afar off his Father ran to greet him, and the Father embraced him, and placed a robe upon his shoulders and brought him into a feast that had been prepared for him. The first son who had never sinned was the heir of the Father, while the other became an heir through the firstborn son.
In Matthew 22 the Savior speaks of a wedding feast to which all are invited. But the guests must wear their wedding garment in order to attend. All those who try to attend the wedding feast without a garment will be cast out of the presence of the Father.
lst John speaks of an anointing which a person must receive, and which anointing will teach him of all things.
Revelations speaks of becoming kings and priests unto God, and of a white stone upon which a new name is written. This is further spoken about in Section 130 of the Doctrine and Covenants. Consider, for instance: "For I was an hungered and ye gave me meat [the meat of the gospel of redemption]; I was thirsty, and ye gave me [to] drink [from the well of living water]; I was a stranger and ye took me in [and fellowshipped me, and became my friend]; Naked, and ye clothed me [with a garment]; I was sick [with wounds or sin], and ye visited me [with healing water and oil]; I was in [spirit] prison, and ye came unto me [and delivered me through the vicarious ordinances of the temple].

This kind of scriptural relationship with temple concepts could be continued on throughout the four standard works.

IN CONCLUSION

The Lord is waiting to share some of the grandest and mightiest concepts about the eternities to us. He is waiting for us to attend the temple, not once, not twice, but regularly. How would you know what blessings would be yours if you did not go often and wait there upon the Lord? No one would know what the Lord had for him, unless he paid the price. It is worthy of our full effort, not only because of the blessings that will come to those who have passed on beyond the veil, but also because of the blessings that will come to you personally as you seek to know and understand what the Lord has in store for you.

The Importance of the Temple

by Richard A. Ware
September, 1988

SUBJECT: How does temple activity benefit me as an individual?

I. Introduction

Most members of the Church are aware of our intense interest in the missionary work of the Church and the appeals we have made in many lands for a rededication to preaching the gospel and preparing missionaries to carry the good news of the restoration to people everywhere. I feel the same sense of urgency about temple work for the dead as I do about mission- ary work, since they are basically one and the same. I have told my brethren of the General Authorities that this work for the dead is constantly on my mind. * * * Upon us rests the full responsibility to do temple work, to perform the ordinances that will provide for them [the dead] entrance into the Kingdom of God and bind their family ties throughout the eternity. ((1))

A Temple is a house of God, set apart from all other edifices and dedicated to the sacred purpose. By Latter-day Saints, a temple is considered as a con- necting link between earth and heaven. "The temple of the Lord," said President Franklin D. Richards, "is as the gate to heaven, located upon the strait and narrow path which leads to eternal life." ((2))

II. Ordinances Necessary For Salvation & Exaltation

1. Baptism
2. Gift of the Holy Ghost
3. Melchizedek Priesthood (Brethren)
4. Washings & Anointings
5. Endowment
6. Temple Marriage ((3))
7. Fulness of the Priesthood ((4)) III. Blessings Derived From Obtaining Temple Ordinances

1. Eternal family units are created and will endure into eternity if the family is faithful.
2. Endowed members have power to save their kindred dead. There is no individual or family salvation without our dead.
3. Generations are linked by the sealing power. This linking binds families back to Adam.

Gospel Mysteries

4. Teaches the faithful what is necessary for entrance into God's presence.
5. Gives members the keys of knowledge and power.
6. Blessings of exaltation promised in temple marriage. These blessings are based upon subsequent faithfulness.

IV. Blessings of Continued Temple Activity
1. A person can receive greater revelation each time he or she attends the temple and seeks to know the meaning of the symbols given there. ((5))
2. Revelation can also be given regarding decisions we must make that affect our lives.
3. The peace of the spirit can be felt in the temple and carried with us to our homes.
4. We gain greater strength to combat the evils of the world and to be true and faithful in all things.
5. We set a proper example for our children, thereby teaching them to attend the temple regularly when they are old enough.
6. Selfless service is rendered to those deceased who cannot help themselves, since the ordinances must be performed upon the earth. We learn godlike attributes through service.
7. The goal of eternal life can be better pursued by frequently attending the temple.
8. All the pure in heart "shall see God" in the temple. ((6))

V. We Must Not Neglect This Work
1. Temple work for the dead has largely been reserved for our generation. We are the ones God has called upon to do this work. If we neglect this work we do so at the peril of losing our own salvation and exaltation.
2. We have the opportunity to receive our own temple ordinances and to save our dead. If we fail to do this work, we may have to wait until everyone else has had their chance to do the work before we would be allowed to do our work. And this may not be until the end of the millennium.

VI. Be True and Faithful In All Things

> Now, there is a lifetime goal---to walk in his steps, to perfect ourselves in every virtue as he has done, to seek his face, and to work to make our calling and election sure. ((7))

> As with baptism, so with celestial marriage; after the glorious promise of eternal life that is part of each of these covenants, we must press forward in righteousness until our calling and election is made sure; and this high achievement grows out of and is the crowning reward of celestial marriage. ((8))

> The apostle Peter knew that our vision becomes dim unless we keep the goal constantly in mind. He also knew that when our vision grows dim so does our resolve to endure to the end, especially in the face of continual tribulation and opposition. If we are to attain the goal of eternal life, we must properly envision it, know what we need to do to obtain it, and then do whatever is necessary. We have accepted the gospel because we do see and know. To be sure that we overcome all things, we must be obedient, exercising faith, and strive diligently to make our calling and election sure. No goal is more worthy, no blessing greater. This challenge was the high point in Peter's writings. ((9))

Temple marriage is not the end, rather it is the beginning of opportunities and blessings which can only be ours by attending the temple.

TEMPLES

1. D.H.C. 4:331; TPJS, p. 183, 4th & 5th para. April 6, 1841.

If the strict order of the Priesthood were carried out in the building of Temples, the first stone would be laid at the southeast corner, by the First Presidency of the Church. The south-west corner should be laid next. The third, or north-west corner next; and the fourth, or north-east corner last. The First Presidency should lay the south-east corner stone and dictate who are the proper persons to lay the other corner stones.

If a Temple is built at a distance, and the First Presidency are not present, then the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles are the persons to dictate the order for that Temple; and in the absence of the Twelve Apostles, then the Presidency of the Stake will lay the south-east corner stone; the Melchizedek Priesthood laying the corner stones on the east side of the Temple, and the Lesser Priesthood those on the west side.

I will venture to say, that Brother Parley P. Pratt has got a job on hand infinitely more extensive than the walling in of the whole territory of Utah. His work was given to him sixteen years ago, by the Prophet Joseph Smith, in the Kirtland Temple. Parley P. Pratt has yet to build temples in old Scotland. The Scotch brethren might say, "What is the use then of our coming to these distant valleys, so far from our native country?" Had you not better write to your brethren who are still in Scotland to stay where they are, think you? He has to build temples there of greater magnitude than we have yet contemplated. When he will do it I do not know; it is certain he will do it if he is faithful; but whether he will do it after the earth is glorified, or before that time, I do not know.

As has been already said, Elder M. Smith, of the Mormon Church, built the first frame house, in 1840, on Section 15, and in 1842 several hundred of his co-religionists had located here. They designed building a temple, on Section 5, but, before carrying out their plans, left for Hancock County, on the advice of Joseph Smith.

I think I heard your spokesman say something about a temple, or was I mistaken? Well, when I see what you have accomplished since I was here thirty-four years ago, I am pretty sure that sometime in the near future somewhere in the South Seas, convenient to you, there may be a temple. And this much too, I will tell you, on this sacred occasion, the time has arrived in the history of the Church when temples will be taken to the people so that the faithful members of the Church may receive all the blessings of the Church and remain in their own environment to complete family lives, to be associated with those whom they love and without sacrificing their life's savings to go to the House of the Lord and receive all the blessings that any other member of the Church may have.

Historical Record

Manti Temple
Wednesday, 16 May 1888

Meeting held in the Celestial Room of the Manti Temple at 10. o'clock A.M. The following were present. President Wilford Woodruff, Apostles, Lorenzo Snow, Franklin D. Richards, George Q. Cannon, Brigham Young, Francis M. Lyman, John Henry Smith, Heber J. Grant, Counsellor Daniel H. Wells. Elders

Jacob Gates and John Morgan of the first seven presidents of seventies. Elders John D.T. McAllister, Daniel D. McArther, James G. Bleak Moses F. Farnsworth from St. George Stake. Counsellor John B. Maiden of San Pete Stake, also elders John Sharp, Robert Can, Charles H. Wilcken, Woolen H. Folsom. Edward L. Perry, George Reynolds, and Authur Winter, also Patriarch John Smith. By direction of President Wilford Woodruff, Elder George Reynolds read the Dedicatory Prayer, to be offered in the dedication of the Manti Temple.

Elder Francis M. Lyman moved that the prayer be accepted and proved as read, seconded and carried unanimously. President Wilford Woodruff, then introduced the subject of the organization of the workers for this temple, and other details in regard to the work. He stated that the apostles and their council, had considered the subject of who should be the president of this temple, and their choice had unanimously decided upon Brother Daniel H. Wells, and Brother Anthon H. Lund as his assistant. He had sent for Brother Moses F. Farnsworth of St. George Temple., and he was qualified and could take hold of the duties of the Recordership.

By request, prest John D.T. McAllister of the St. George Temple, made a statement of the number of workers that would be required, that there being nine washrooms in the Manti Temple, it all be used, about 45 persons would be wanted, but they could do with less.

On motion of Elder Franklin D. Richards, Elder Daniel H. Wells, was unanimously chosen president of the Manti Temple. On motion of Elder George Q. Cannon, Elder Moses F. Farnsworth chosen recorder of the Manti Temple. On motion, Thomas Higgs was unanimously chosen Engineer. On motion, Christian Anderson and Jacob Reusch, were unanimously chosen as day and night watchman. Meeting then took recess till 2:30. P.M.

Afternoon Session
Wednesday 16th, 1888. 2.30 P.M.

Elder Luther T. Tuttle was present, in addition to those who were in attendance at the morning meeting.

President Wilford Woodruff gave notice that he would like to meet the Brethren in a prayer circle at 10. o'clock. A.M.tomorrow morning, and that the private Dedication of the Temple would take place at noon. Between the two meetings any necessary business could be attended to: by request Elder John B. Maiben read the balance sheet of the Temple account as it stood on the numerical 30th of April last. At this point Prest. Canute Petersen, Henry Beal and Anthon H. Lund entered the meeting., they having been Telegraphed for, that their advise might be obtained in regard to the further selection or workers and officers for this temple. On motion, Elder Anthon H. Lund was unanimously chosen, assistant to Prest. Daniel H. Wells in presiding over the Temple. After due consideration, the getting up of a corps [sic] of workers was left to a committee to select and present, consisting of prest. Daniel H. Wells, Anthon H. Lund, Prest. Canute Petersen, John B. Maiben, Henry Beal, Prest. John D. T. McAllister and Moses F. Farnsworth with instructions to report at the next meeting.

A general conversation ensued in regard to detail, and it was decided for the Temple to be opened for ordinance work on Monday 28th inst.

The meeting sang "may the grace of Christ our Savior." &c adjourned to 10 o'clock A.M.tomorrow. Dismissed with Benediction by Prest. Wilford Woodruff.

Richards, George Q. Cannon, Brigham Young, Francis M. Lyman, John Henry Smith, Hebrew J. Grant, Daniel H. Wells, Seymour B. Young, John Morgan, George Reynolds, Charles H. Wilcken, Canute Petersen, Henry Beal, John B. Mailben, Anthon H. Lund, John D. T. McAllister, Daniel D. McArthur and James G. Bleak. The following were present, but not clothed in Priestly robes, Jacob Gates, Robert Campbell, Moses F. Farnsworth. [p. 3] William H. Fullsome, John Sharp, Arthur Winter, Edward L. Perry, Patriarch John Smith, and Warren S. Snow. The opening prayer was by Brigham Young, Prest. Wilford Woodruff was mouth in the Circle.

After the conclusion of the prayer, the brethren proceeded to change their clothing, after which they assembled again in the celestial room.

Meeting called to order at noon. Prest. Wilford Woodruff presiding. Brethren sang. "The morning breaks, the shadows flee."

President Wilford Woodruff offered the following Dedication Prayer.

Almighty and Eternal Father, Creator of heaven and earth and all that they contain, thou who art the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and of the spirits of all living; to thee, they believing children here present.bring our offering, and beseech thee to grant they listening ear while we dedicate this Temple unto they most holy name.

We realize our weakness, our utter feebleness and inability to advance the interest and honor of thy name upon the earth except thou dost guide us by thy Holy Spirit; therefore, we humble ourselves in thy presence and earnestly entreat thee to forgive us our sins and all vanity and unworthiness which thy purity and perfection have discovered in any one of us, inasmuch as we are truly penitent therefor, and are ready to forgive those who trespass against us.

We praise and adore thee for having restored to earth again the fulness of the Everlasting Gospel, wherein thou didst break the silence of ages by speaking to thy servant Joseph Smith, while yet in the days of his youth, and by thy presence and thine own voice didst teach, discipline and empower him to bring forth thy glorious latter-day work--the dispensation of the fulness of times.

With the record of the Prophet Mormon thou didst entrust him with the Urim and Thummim, by which the unlettered youth was enabled to translate the language in which it was engraven, though long since lost to the human family, and thereby revealed the origin, prosperity and downfall of the mighty nations that inhabited this hemisphere for more than twenty-five centuries of time, and also informing us that the pure Gospel of a crucified and risen Redeemer had been delivered to, and his church established among, them.

We praise thy name for revealing this knowledge, which the wisdom of the world was unable to discover. Also that thou didst authorize thy servant Joseph to baptize for the remission of sin, by sending John the Baptist to ordain Joseph to that power; giving him also a promise that this ministry should abide in the earth until the sons of Levi shall again offer unto thee, 0 Lord, an offering in righteousness.

In the plenitude of thine everlasting love thou didst also send thine Apostles. Peter, James and John, who conferred the Melchisedec Priesthood and apostleship, which enabled the Prophet Joseph to organize thy church and set in order all its appointments, offices and ordinances, with its gifts and blessings, as in the former dispensations.

Everlasting praise tho thy holy name for sending line upon line and precept upon precept and continuing to reveal the abundance of peace an truth by sending Moses to confer the spirit with power to gather the House of Israel and Elijah to turn the hearts of the fathers to their children and the hearts of the children to their fathers, that the whole earth might not be smitten with a curse.

When these manifestations of thine unfathomable love to thy Saints stirred up the envious hate of the ungodly to bloody persecution, imprisonment of thy servants, and finally to extermination from the State of their chosen homes, thine own right hand brought deliverance to thy Saints, and gave them a happy respite while they built the beautiful Nauvoo. But there the wrath of the ungodly waxed furious again while thou didst fill thy servant Joseph with revelations of thy will for the upbuilding of Zion and the exaltation of the righteous, until nothing could subdue their insatiable fury but the life-blood of Joseph and Hyrum and the expulsion of thy people from the nation; yet thy loving kindness failed not and the heart of the savage Indians, was moved to give us a kindly welcome.

We glorify thy great and holy name, Almighty Father, for these communications of intelligence and power to man in the flesh again, and that the Spirit, foreseeing the hatred of the wicked that would be aroused by the developments thereof, moved thy servant Joseph to seal all these keys of power and intelligence which he had received upon the heads of his brethren the Apostles, with commandment that they should build up thy kingdom and establish its righteousness in the earth till thy Son, our Savior, shall come.

Thy people being under a sense of these weighty obligations, and being driven out from among men, it seemed proper to thee to make thy servant Brigham mighty in wisdom and strength to lead forth thy people in safety, and after a year and a half's journey in the desert among savage tribes, thou didst give us rest in these valleys of the Rocky Mountains. In all these tribulations thine ear heard and thine own arm brought answers of deliverance to the supplications of thine afflicted children. Nor wast thou weary of their necessities and entreaties, but didst soften the rigor of unfriendly elements and didst cause the clouds to scatter refreshing showers, the hills to yield their treasures of snow and springs of living water to come forth from the dry and parched ground.The labor of the husbandman has been crowned with plenty for man and beast, and much wherewith to bless the stranger. The everlasting hills have yielded their rich treasures of iron, lead, silver and gold, while lightning and steam have contributed to gather thy sons from afar and thy daughters from the ends of the earth in swiftest ships, and without disaster.

How can we declare the multitude of all thy mercies which thou has shown to thy dependent covenant children who have put their trust in thee! for time would fail to mention the threatening famine by reason of the cricket, the locust and the grasshopper, when thou didst send the gulls that swallowed them up, and the lives of thy people were saved; or of the earthquakes which have engulfed islands, provinces and cities, with the multitudes of their inhabitants, while thy people have dwelt safely in this volcanic region, unharmed and undisturbed thereby; neither is the din of war heard in all our borders.

We praise thy holy name for all the mighty work thou didst enable thy chief apostle, Brigham, to perform; that he was moved to build and to appoint Temples according to thy holy commandment in various cities of the land, and to designate that one should occupy this delightful spot. Since it has pleased thee to take him to thyself, thine other chief apostle, john Taylor, was inspired and with his brethren did lay the foundations of this House, and with the free-will offerings of thy Saints had reared it nearly to completion when his precious life was cut short by cruel persecution. We who are spared and are permitted to come together now dedicate this Temple unto thee. We most earnestly pray that thou wilt accept of this our offering in the all-prevailing name of thy Son Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior.

We dedicate the ground and the hill on which it stands, that the same may be holy unto the Lord our God; that its steps, its terraces, its trees and shrubbery, with all its adornments and its approaches, may be the pathways of the just to the House of the Lord, the Temple of our God. Let the foundation of this House be made permanent and never be moved from its place. May the stones and the cement of which the building is composed become compact and strong as if it were one solid rock.

We consecrate the basement on the lower story, which is in likeness of the home of the dead, with its baptismal font, for the service of the living and the dead, with its steps, the oxen on which the font rests, its seats, its rooms for changes, with all its doors and windows, their hangings and fastenings, the furniture and all that appertains to it. May the fountain which supplies it continue a living spring that shall never fail, and the stream become as the river of life to thy believing penitent children; that they who shall be buried therein may effectually die unto sin, and in coming forth may as certainly arise to lives of righteousness and faith, the spirit bearing witness of the blood of Christ which cleanseth from all sin; and when the ordinance is performed for the dead, that they may realize its efficacy as if they had received it themselves while in the flesh, and be judged in like manner.

We dedicate and consecrate unto thee and the service of thy Saints, the lower and upper main courts, with all other apartments in this building which are sheltered by its roof, according to the various uses for which they have been designed, with their stands, their altars, their desks, the stairs by which they are reached, their doors and windows, their hangings and fastenings, together with their floors, partitions, ceilings, finishings, furnishings and ornamentations, also all apparatus and fixtures for ventilating, warming, lighting and seating the same, whether they are for public worship, administering in the holy sacraments and ordinances of thy holy Temple, or for private prayer and secret devotion; also all rooms that are used for study and learning words of wisdom from the best books, or by lectures and the experience of righteous and learned men able to teach the will and ways of the Lord,--all these we dedicate unto thee, that all may be most holy and acceptable unto the Lord our God.

Wilt thou accept and bless these sacred altars which have been erected by the offerings of thy devoted Saints? and when thy people shall approach thee in thine own appointed way, then do thou hearken and hear their supplications; grant them deliverance from their adversaries; succor them in their temptations; give them knowledge of the ancestry of their generations, that they may go forth in the holiness and power of thine ordinances and as saviors on Mount Zion redeem the generations of their dead and bring many sons and daughters unto thee in thy kingdom.

When thy sons and daughters shall desire to plight for faith with each other unto thee in a covenant of everlasting life and shall obtain admittance here in thy holy courts, then, 0 Lord, be pleased to accept their offerings; sanctify them, that they may be clean from all unrighteousness; clothe thy servants with the habiliments of the Priesthood, and here at the shrine of thy love seal them thine by thy Holy Spirit of promise until the day of their redemption, the resurrection of their bodies, as purchased by the blood of Christ thy Son. May this holy Temple be to them as one of the gates of heaven, opening into the straight and narrow path that leads to endless lives and eternal dominion.

We dedicate the stands in the eastern portion of the building for the occupancy and ministration of the holy Melchizedek Priesthood, which has the keys of all spiritual blessings is of the order of thy Son Jesus Christ, and holds the power of endless lives.

We also consecrate the stands in the west of the building for the occupancy and ministration of the Aaronic Priesthood, which is an appendage to the Melchisedec Priesthood and holds the keys to temporal blessings.

We beseech thee, our Heavenly Father, to inspire thy ministering servants who shall instruct thy people from these stands, that they may rightly divide the words of truth and give to each member of thine household his portion of meat in due season, that from the treasures of thy storehouse the riches of eternal life may exalt thy children to a knowledge of thyself.

May he who shall preside over the ministrations in this holy Temple, and all who labor with him, be greatly blessed with the understanding of thy perfect law and all the applications thereof to the condition of thy people. When any difficult matter shall require his consideration, may the voice of thy Holy Spirit give to him the revelations of they will, that all the ministration in this thy house and all the ordinances performed may be according to thy holy will and be accepted and be sanctioned in heaven, thy holy habitation.

We dedicate to thee the records which are and shall be kept of all the ordinances administered here in this Temple. May the recorders who shall have the care and labor of making and keeping them be abundantly blessed with wisdom and knowledge, that the same may be truthfully and faithfully kept and be found worthy of all acceptation, that thy people may be righteously judged according to all that shall be written therein. We earnestly pray that they may be preserved most holy unto thee, from all violence and desecration, until they shall have accomplished the full object and purpose of their creation.

0 Lord God of our fathers, of the prophets, and of thy people, we beseech thee to accept the dedication of this Temple, with all that appertains to it, including the foundation and the towers thereof, unto thyself.

May this delightful location be known as a holy hill of Zion, among thy people. Graciously be pleased to place thy name upon this House. Let the power of thy Spirit be felt by all who shall enter within its portals. Give thine angels charge concerning it, that it shall never be possessed by thine enemies, neither be defiled by the wicked and ungodly, nor ever be injured by any destructive elements; but grant that it may stand and endure as a monument of the obedience and love of thy people, and to the honor of thy holy name, for ages yet to come in holiness to the Lord.

Have thou mercy upon Judah and Jerusalem; hasten the going forth of this sacred record to the Hebrews of all nations; raise up men and means to carry the glad tidings of thy returning favor to that afflicted people. Wilt thou hear and answer the prayers of thy servants and turn away the barrenness of their land? Make it very fertile as in days of old; turn the hearts of the exiles to thy promises made to their fathers, and let the land of Jerusalem become inhabited as towns without walls for the multitude of men and cattle therein, that they may rebuild their city and temple, that the glory of the latter house may be greater than that of the former house.

We render thanks and praise to thy holy name for the measure of thy Spirit sent forth among the scattered remnants of the seed of Joseph; that they are pleased and comforted at hearing of the record of their fathers, that, where they have opportunity, they incline to the arts of peace and self-support. 0, may the power of the gospel, through obedience, enable them to be relieved from the terrible curse which is upon them, break forth into the light of Zion, and obtain a fulfillment of the promises made unto their fathers.

We beseech thee, let thy peculiar blessings rest upon thy servants the Twelve Apostles, according to the arduous and important labor and presidency which have devolved upon them by the death of thy servant President John Taylor. Wilt thou strengthen thy servant who is called to preside over them and the Church with continual inspiration of the Holy Spirit; preserve him in health, accept the labors of his life and fill him with the spirit and power of his holy Apostleship. May the Apostles be united in the bond of perfectness with each other and prevail with thee for the abundance and richness of thy word, to dispense to thy people. Preserve them from the hands of their enemies until they shall accomplish their work. Give them power to send thy Gospel to all nations, kindreds, tongues and peoples, to gather thine elect from all lands, to build up thy Zion and establish thy righteousness in the earth, and to attain to the power of their calling and Apostleship in the flesh.

0 Lord, bless the Patriarchs whom thou hast appointed in the land of Zion. May they have power to seal blessings upon thy people by inspiration, as did the ancient fathers, that their blessings may be fulfilled upon the heads of their descendants and of thy people.

Bless the Seventies with their Presidency, to magnify their calling in all lands where their lots may be cast, or where they may be appointed to labor, that thine Elders may praise thee and all the ends of the earth hear of the salvation of our God.

Bless those who preside over the various missions in all the earth, that they may dispense the Gospel by all proper means within their reach, by writing, by publishing, by sending thine Elders to all places where the word of God may have free course and be glorified by the obedience of the honest in heart.

Endow thou thy servants the High Priests with all the gifts and qualifications of their holy calling.

We pray thee to bless the Stakes of Zion which thou hast established. May their Presidents, Counselors, High Councils, with the High Priests, the Seventies, the Elders and all that constitute the authorities of thy church, abide in the revelations of thy will, that Zion may lengthen her cords and strengthen her stakes in all righteousness.

Enable the Bishops and High Councils to decree justice and judgment in equity and truth, that the Wards and Stakes of Zion may be built up in holiness, that we may be thy people and thou be our God. Bless with them the Priests, Teachers and Deacons, the standing ministry to thy Church, that they may be vigilant to put away iniquity from thy Church, that thou mayest bestow upon thy people the fulness of thy favor, thine everlasting love.

We pray for thy blessing upon the Relief Societies, the Young Ladies; and Young Men's Associations, the Sabbath Schools, and the Primaries, with all those who are appointed to superintend and preside over them; that they may be abundantly blessed in relieving the sufferings of the destitute and sorrowful, arresting the wayward, and inspiring them with love for pure intelligence, and educating them in the ways of life and faith, that our youth may find thee early, and the aged be established in thy righteousness forever.

We dedicate ourselves, with our wives, our children, our houses and lands, our flocks and herds, our gardens and vineyards, with all that we are and have, unto thee, the Lord our God, for time and for all eternity, and for the accomplishment of the work which thou hast given us to do.

Heavenly Father, thou hast seen the labors of thy Saints in the building of this House. Their motives and their exertions are all known to thee. The hearts of the children of men and every thought thereof are open to thy sight. Thy people have sought to do thy will in rearing and adorning this great structure.

They have contributed freely of the means which thou hast given them for its erection, and the hands of the committee and of the superintendent and assistant superintendent have been strengthened and their hearts been gladdened thereby. Even the children of thy people have shown delight in helping to purchase the curtains, the carpets and the furniture of this House. We this day present it to thee, 0 Lord our God, as the fruit of the tithing and free will offerings of thy people. Accept this we beseech thee, and let thy choice blessings rest down upon every man, woman and child who has [---] to the building and adorning of this Temple. Bless them with increased faith and with all the blessings of heaven and earth in due season; that in heavenly gifts, in their basket and in their store, in their children, in their flocks and in their herds, in the fruits of the earth, and in the conveniences and comforts of life, they may abound and ever increase. If there are any of thy people, 0 Father, who have not had the means to assist in this work, but have felt in their hearts to sustain it and to say that they gave not because they had not, but would gladly give if they had, let these same blessings rest down upon them also, and condescend to accept the desires of their hearts as free-will offerings unto thee. Show favor unto all who have helped to forward this work by good wishes, good words or good deeds. Remember thou and bless, we entreat thee, the committee, and the architect and superintendent, and his assistant architects and assistant superintendent, and all the workmen and their foremen in every department who have labored in preparing the ground upon which the House stands, or the materials of which it is composed, or in constructing and bringing it to completion. Reward them, we ask thee, for their faithfulness and diligence, and grant that the recollection of their labors may be a source of pleasure to them and their children after them.

0 Lord God, who dwellest in the heaven of heavens, look down from thy holy habitation, we beseech thee, in great mercy and tender compassion upon thy Zion which thou hast founded. We turn to thee with all our hearts for that help and succor which thou alone canst give. We are beset with peril. We are surrounded with danger. The powers of evil are aroused against us. The foes of thy Zion are numerous and mighty, while thy people are but few and feeble. Floods of falsehood, slander and unjust accusations sweep over the land, concerning thy Saints. By these means many of our fellow-citizens have been poisoned against us. They have urged the enactment of laws to ensnare us, to confiscate the property which we have consecrated unto thee, and to overthrow the plan of salvation which thou hast revealed to us. Through the delusion of lies and the blinding effect of prejudice, our fellow-citizens would deny us our rights, would consign us to prison, would wrest from us our property, would threaten us with utter destruction.

Holy Father, thou knowest how false are the accusations against us. We appeal to thee for deliverance. Turn aside the wrath of man. Break the bands which encircle us. Destroy the traps which are spread for our feet. Let the light of eternal truth shine upon us and illumine our pathway. Vindicate us by thy power, and let not the wicked aspersions of our enemies prevail. Show to the world, and especially to our nation, the true character of thy people. Enlighten the minds of the officers of our government, soften their hearts, and give them power to check all spirit of persecution and disposition to justify oppression and approve of unjust judgments. Help them to comprehend the true principles of liberty and to enforce the same for the benefit of all people throughout the land. Open their eyes to see the wrongs that are being committed against thy people. Awaken them to a sense of justice. Give to the Chief Executive, to his cabinet and to the Congress and the courts of our nation, the firmness, courage and comprehension of justice necessary to maintain just and righteous government in the land, that the people may rejoice.

Restrain and control the words and acts of preachers, lecturers and writers who endeavor to create anger and hostility against thy people. Take from all such the power to blind the eyes of the nation by misrepresentation and falsehood, or to inflame the people to sanction acts of anger against the innocent.

As thou hast in the past overruled the violence of mobs and the cruelty of the wicked for the glory of thy name and the salvation of thy people, we ask thee, Righteous Father, to so control this present persecution that thy purposes may be accomplished in the redemption of thy Zion. Be with and sustain thy people in their afflictions. In their imprisonments, in their exile, in the unjust confiscation of their property and in the endurance of all the wrongs to which they are subjected, give them grace and patience and fortitude. May no murmuring at thy providences ever escape their lips. Reveal to thy people the salvation which awaits us.

0 God, before thee in this thy holy House, do we this day confess our sins. We acknowledge our shortcomings and imperfections. We are full of faults and errors. We accept the afflictions which we are now enduring as [---------] permitted by thee to make us more worthy of our high calling. We humbly pray thee to forgive us. Blot out our transgressions, that they shall not appear against us any more. Condescend to let thy favor and the light of thy countenance rest upon us. Make known thy will more and more plainly unto all thy Saints. Uphold us in all righteousness as the people whom thou hast chosen. Suffer us not to be put to shame; but show the inhabitants of the earth the truth of our testimony concerning thee and thy work.

Now, Holy Father, we ask thee in the name of Jesus Christ, thy beloved Son, to hear and answer this our prayer. We entreat thee to accept this dedication of this House. Sanctify it and make it holy. The ordinances performed therein by thy servants and handmaids, may they be in thy sight as though performed by thyself.

And to thy name be the honor and glory and praise for ever and ever, through Jesus Christ, our Redeemer, Amen.

After the rendering of the prayer, the brethren all rose to their feet in response to a call from Prest. Woodruff and rendered the "Shout Hosanna." Prest. Woodruff then addressed the meeting.

Brethren sang "Come All ye Sons of Zion." The meeting was then address by Elders Lorenzo Snow, George Q. Cannon, Brigham Young and F.M. Lyman. Brethren sang "Oh Give Me Back My Prophet Dear."

Benediction by Prest. Wilford Woodruff. Adjourned to 10 A.M. tomorrow morning.

[On page 14 is a letter of appointment which was received 6 June, 1888 from President Wilford Woodruff's office appointing Daniel H. Wells to be president of the Manti Temple. In the letter it indicates that Daniel H. Wells was decided upon as president of the Temple "at a meeting of the Council of the Apostles, held on May 7th, (1888)" because of his "lengthened experience in the Endowment House in this city (Salt Lake City), and your familiarity with the administration of the ordinances in that House of the Lord, caused all the brethren to feel that you are particularly well-fitted for this important position."]

Choir sang. "Lord We Come Before the Sick Now."
The Dedicatory Prayer was offered by Elder Lorenzo Snow, previous to which, he offered a few introductory remarks, saying, the prayer given in the Kirtland Temple, 27 Mar 1836, was given by Revelation from the Lord, to the Prophet Joseph Smith. The Prayer we are now about to offer is inspired and was written by Holy Men who now live, and whom we know. Let all the people bow the head, and join with us while we offer the prayer.
He then offered the prayer.
Choir sang, dedication hymn,
"Righteous God, Eternal Father, (written by C. L. Walker of St. George. [sic]

Patriarch John Smith was the first speaker. He said, I stand before you for a few moments. It is with peculiar feelings. This is a happy time for us assembled here. I assure you I feel glad to be with you today, to be here at the dedication of this Temple. I can go back to the dedications of the Temples of Kirtland, Nauvoo, St. George, and Logan. For over 55 years I have been with the Church and I can testify, that this is the work of God, that we are His people and that He will guide and direct us and give us strength to overcome the evils of our natures, as we strive to do so and keep each known commandment, as long as we are found discharging our duty, no power on earth can prevail against us. I feel to ask God, that His blessing may rest upon all Israel, and that we may walk in His way. May we possess His Spirit and be worthy of that which He has promised us, is my prayer.
Apostle John Henry Smith said. It is with a heart feeled with gratitude, that I arise to my feet. Brother John Smith who has just spoken, is the heir of our race, representing the oldest branch of our family in the Church. As I see the hairs of those gone gray in service of Temples of God who have been firm and true in their duties: as I see those of middle age, and still younger mingling with them, my heart is too feel for utterance.
And as I see the people coming from the various quarters of the earth to this place in obedience to the requirements of God's words, my mind goes back to the promise that God would turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers, and my heart is indeed glad to see its fulfillment.
It is my testimony, that God will accept this blessing and seal its dedication with his approval in the release of our dead, that they may partake of the power of that Gospel. This is the habitation of God. It is sacred to God, it should be sacred to us. May all the servants of God be filled with light and understanding. Grow unto the knowledge that God approves of our lives, that we may lie down in peace with the blessing of God upon us, and receive the approval of the Eternal Father, is my prayer in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.
Elder John Morgan, said, I feel to echo the words of the preceeding speaker. I cannot find words to express the feelings that swell up in the heart today. In by-gone times, God saw fit to open the vision before one of his servants, who prophecied that God's House should be established on the tops of the mountains, and that all nations should flow to it. In fulfillment of this Ancient Prophecy, I see those assembled here to-day, gathered [page 17] from all nations of the earth. I trust that we will feel today to honor God as He has seen fit to honor us. The thought doubtless comes to many of us, that in this gathering there can be found numerous instances where but one of us is here to represent a family, and beyond the grave, there are those waiting for this one to take upon him the work of their redemption, by performing the ordinances, that will free them from the power which holds them in prison. This incentive should make us feel that we had rather go down to the grave, than that we would relinquish the power of eternal life placed within our reach, by neglecting to save and redeem our dead.

Elder Jacob Gates bore his testimony, that this is the work of God, that Joseph Smith was a prophet of the Most High God, that he accomplished more in the shortest time than any prophet he knew of, he said, I have personally known Joseph Smith, Brigham Young, John Taylor and the first twelve. I thank God that I have had the privilege of attending the dedication of four Temples, erected to His holy name. Let us live so as to be worthy of the blessings opened up to us this day. May we be humble, live the lives of Latter-day Saints, honor the Priesthood, and be prepared to come forth in the first resurrection.

Elder Joseph B. C. Young, bore his testimony to the truth of the word, as God made it known to him. I remember the joy I had in my youth, when my mother read to me from the Book of Mormon. I know this testimony I have was planted in my heart, and that it has gone through the instrumentality of that book, and I have tried, in my weak way, to fit myself for whatever duty may come to me. I used to think there was no work for the young, but I find I was mistaken. I pray that the peace of God may ever be in this building, that his power may go with us, that we may build up other edifices to Him. Do we build in idleness? No. We cast away our selfishness, and we see the result in this building, and it is so with our lives.

Elder William F. Cahoon with tears in his eyes, said, this was the fourth Temple he had attended the dedication of, the Kirtland, Nauvoo, Logan, and now this Temple at Manti. I have a testimony to bear that what is called Mormonism is the truth, I was permitted to know the Prophet Joseph and his family, and from that acquaintance, I can testify that I know that he was a prophet of God. I was baptized, October 16th 1830, the year the Church was organized, and I have tried to do God's will in my weak way since there. I know the Book of Mormon is true. It was made manifest to me by the Lord and I am not deceived. May God help me to remain faithful to the remainder of my days, that I may enjoy the [page 18] reward promised those who have endured to the end.

Elder Robert Campbell said, Those who have been privilege to witness the dedication of Temples can lift their heads and exclaim, "what has God wrought? He has brought about the work for the redemption of the dead. Inasmuch as we keep this duty, the power of God will be with us till the end, and we can help to bring about the work of His great will, and we shall not only stand in holy places, but we shall see the ever-rising glory of God.

Elder John W. Taylor, was thankful to be present at this dedication. My father's family is almost cut off so far as we have been able to get his genealogy is concerned. I trust, my brethren and sisters, I may live worthy to receive revelations, --to receive the names of those who have passed away of my family. My brother David John, appeared to me one night and I had the longest talk with him, I ever had with any person not in the flesh.

I see that you have taken pleasure in building this house to this end, and I feel that I have a testimony that God has accepted this at our hands. It is my prayer that you may from this day, dedicate also your lives and all that you have to the Lord, the humble and the meek of the earth withstanding the day of the Lord's coming. Who has built this house?" the humble." I have heard it testified that Joseph Smith was a prophet, and I wish also to testify that I know Brigham Young was a prophet of God, and feel with the Holy Spirit. While with the guard over the body of Brigham Young, and while it was my turn to sleep, I saw in a vision his funeral. I saw his tomb. I saw him sitting in his tomb. He came out, called me by name, put his hands on my head and blessed me, he asked me to go with him. I thought he took me by the arm and lead me to the spot where an aged man stood watching the funeral but with tears in his eyes, and he stood close before the eighth one, and I marveled that the old man did not see him as I did. Brother Brigham said to me "this one is humble, and he will receive the reward of the humble and the faithful." And we came to a man who watched the passing funeral with a face that told of indifference and pride, and the Prophet stood close to this man also and said, "this man is filled with pride and hypocracy; he will go to hell and be damned." The next day as I marched in the funeral, I looked and saw, at the spot where in the vision the aged and the proud man stood, and behold they were there in very deed, as in my dream. The old man on his staff, with tears in his eyes [page 19] and the other in his pride, and I seemed to feel the spirit of President Young was with me, judging of all who passed, and that I too was judged of him. I tell you that this work will go on, in that the Jews will rebuild Jerusalem, that Christ will come, that the Mouth of Olives will cleave in twain, that the river of Life will flow between, and that all the purposes of God will be brought to pass. My prayer is, that the spirits of our fathers and mothers may rest upon us, that we may so live that the spirit of God may move from heart to heart among the Saints and His oil from vessel to vessel.

Prest. A. O. Smoot then spoke, "I feel a great privilege to attend the dedication of another temple, the third in my life, I can say of a truth I have a testimony that the Lord has accepted of this dedication, that Israel will be blessed in this structure, and that thousands upon thousands who have cause to rejoice in their deliverance in this house. For 53 years, I have known that Joseph Smith was a prophet, and that Brigham Young and John Taylor were prophets. I knew this Church when it had but one small stake, and I have a testimony that God is with Zion and that all Zion never will be moved out of her place, but that she will triumph when purified. So far I have lived 54 years without doubts and fears, and I trust that I may continue to live without any misgivings. God's kingdom err long, will take its place and the law will go forth from Zion and the word of the Lord out of Jerusalem, and this land will be blessed with the presence of our Savior. This is a blessed land and God will protect His people upon it, inasmuch as we do His will. I have heard Joseph and Brigham say that there would be hundred and hundreds of temples on this continent, so our work is not done.

Apostle Franklin D. Richards said, My heart is full of praise and thanksgiving to God, who has enabled us to see this glorious day and hour. The things from above are sacred and should be spoken by restraint of the spirit, on 3d of next March it will be fifty years since I was baptized into the Church. For half a century I have been searching for the truth and trying to keep God's commandments. Soon after being baptized, I was blessed with a testimony, which so firmly settled my mind I have never since doubted, but my greatest sorrow has been due to my own imperfections. The more I learn of this great work, the more I see and to admire and to call for greater exertions than ever before. I have been permitted to be present at the dedication of four Temples. On such occasions as this are centralized many great and far-reaching truths. We have here the organization of the Church by which it is now represented before the Lord. The object and use of this Temple are largely for the salvation of those who have departed, whose [page 20] desires must be centered upon the opportunity here afforded to bring about their release. This work has been going on for some ten or twelve years. During which time the eyes of many of the saints have been turned to view its completion. Why all this? Because we have a multitude of our kindred dead, who are waiting for work in their behalf, by other living relations. To many this may look foolish, but we have learned that no man liveth or dieth to himself. If we have been so anxious for the completion of this building, how much more so are the countless blood relations waiting for their living children to do the work of the redemption for them. We know that Christ died and rose that we might become the lord of the dead., so Joseph, when he was taken away, resumed his work that he may be the prophet of the dead and the living. He has a whole quorum of apostles following Him now. If we could realise how anxious our dead are for the performance of this work, that they may find deliverance, our energies would be materially intensified. The work is very great and it needed this Temple, we have a right to believe that the Prophet Joseph, Brigham and John Taylor are with us today to lead us to daily righteousness. How sad it will seem, if we are taken away and are met at the other side by our relations, who ask, "Have you done this work for us"? And we say, "no." But if we can meet them and say "yes." we have done the work for you." How joyful will that consciousness be to us. There are many who would give all they hope to gain, if, when they are gone, they could return to the earth here for one year, to do the work for their dead which they neglected while living. In the progress of events, do not make up your minds that a certain thing will come to pass at a certain time. Let us do from day to day what is required of us and be prepared for the things that God brings about. His work will roll on fast enough for us, and too fast for some. I wish to testify that I knew the Prophet Joseph Smith, I knew that the power of God was with him, and that God gave the revelations we have through him, and that when he passed away Brigham Young was his rightful successor by revelation of God, so, also with the Prophet John Taylor, and I want to testify that President Woodruff, of the Twelve, is filled with the power and spirit of God, and that the Twelve are increasing in knowledge and love, and the power of God. I believe the Savior and the holy men of old, and those known to us, will visit these Temples, giving light where there is darkness and filling our hearts with peace.

Choir sang an anthem. Page 21. Prest. Canute Petersen, president of the Sanpete Stake, said, This is one of the happiest days I have ever experienced in my life, he believe that God had his eyes upon this spot of ground on which this Temple stands, long before it was dedicated for this purpose, he also believes certain other spots of ground have been selected by the Lord at certain times, upon the same principle of certainment are born into the world at certain periods of time. I have watched the growth of this house as a mother watches the growth of her children, and I am proud now that it is so far completed as to be dedicated, and I am satisfied the Lord will accept of it, may the blessings of the Lord rest upon the saints, Amen.

Elder Francis M. Lyman said. I am much rejoiced my brethren and sisters of the privilege we enjoy in this House built by the Latter-day Saints. It is pleasing to hear the testimony of the brethren. It is pleasing to the Latter-day Saints for the testimonies are true, if they were not true, you would not be pleased with them. God is pleased with this House, and its Dedication to Him. It is a good work and it brings joy to the hearts of those who are living and joy to those who are dead.--The dead are more numerous than the living, that is, those who are not mortal but who are on the other side. God has planted our feet on this land and has established us to build Temples, and we will become renowned for such, and all that has been built to the present, will sink into smallness in comparison to those which will be built in the future. Most men and most women will be saved, not many will be lost. I want to testify that the Latter-day Saints are not Apostatizing, the favor and blessing of God is with them and will increase with them from this time forth, we need not be afraid, it is God's work and he has established his testimony in the hearts of this people and it will not be taken away. God has made no mistake, He has established His kingdom, and He will not forget any of his children, we may forget but he will not. Our Father will not cast any of them away.--Everyone will be saved except the Sons of Perdition, the Eternal Life He gave must be saved and brought back. Where is the father and mother who every gave up a child? Where is the child that every gave up its parents? God will save to the uttermost, the hearts of the fathers to turn to us, and the Lord will accomplish the redemption of the whole of it. We are not Gods but the children of Gods, and we are destined to be like Him. May we be more devoted to Him from this very hour God will preserve us, what if we had to die"? It is just as necessary for men to die as [page 22] to be born.--We are charged to preach the gospel and save men. I want to say of our Presidents of Stakes, they are good men generally, and God is pleased with them He is pleased with our High Councillors, our Patriarchs, our Bishops and all men who are endeavoring to bring about righteousness. May God bless us and save us through Jesus Christ Amen.

Elder William H. Fullsome, the Architect, said, My Brethren and Sisters, in rising to speak, I desire liberty to give expression to my feelings, words are inadequate to express the joy of being present on this occasion. Little did I think five or six years ago, that I should be here, but through the blessings of God, I have been spared, and privileged to be here today. I have had joy in my labors here, have looked forth with joy, and anticipation to the future [-------] blessings that are in store for this people. They have not reserved anything to themselves, but have given the last dollar to help this work. God has upheld me in my labors, and the Saints have sustained me with the necessary means, for the erection of this House.

President Daniel H. Wells said: "I am gratified for the privilege of bearing my testimony with the rest. I have been thinking of what we have learned in this gospel. I have learned that God exists, a knowledge I did not possess until I became acquainted with Mormonism. The world had forgotten God, and knew nothing of him till He revealed Himself to the Prophet Joseph when we began to learn something concerning God; we also began to learn something of ourselves. I have learned that I existed back in the eternities before the foundations of the earth were laid; that when the time came around, and this earth was made habitable for man, it came our turn to take mortal habitations upon ourselves, that we were reserved for this time, that God's purposes might be brought to pass. I have learned that we are children of God. I have learned to repent, to be baptized, I have learned the principles of baptism for the dead, of the preaching to the spirits in prison, and of the great-plan of Salvation, devised for the God of Heaven. That we are sent here to be tried, and endure, and by the power of the redemption of the Savior, be brought and attain power and dominion without end. Do you imagine that God has sent forth this countless children of men that they might be eternally lost? Is God's arm shortened, that He cannot save His children? All will be saved who will let the gospel save them in one glory, or another, at one time or another.

Apostle Heber J. Grant said: "This is the first time I have had the privilege of speaking in a Temple of God, and I embrace it with the thanksgiving of gratitude, there is no [page 23] I have ever performed that gives me the joy I have experienced in my work for the Lord. Our work is being forwarded by the outside world as well as by ourselves. We find men compiling genealogies without definite reason for it, and then forgetting them when the work is completed. Unwittingly they are contributing to the redemption of the dead, by gathering genealogies that we are unable to do. All things are conspiring to the forwarding of God's work.

The choir then sang Mozart's Hymn of Praise. Apostle Snow then called upon the congregation to join in with him in repeating in a loud voice, "Hosanna, hosanna, hosanna, to God and the Lamb forever and forever, Amen, Amen, and Amen." The congregation rose to its feet and admist the waving of hundreds of hankerchiefs, and in unison, repeated three times the quotation above given, and in a long and loud voice that must have been heard for a great distance.

The choir then sang a Dedication Anthem, composed by Prof. A. C. Smyth, the words being from 1 St. Kings, chapter 8. Prayer of Solomon.

Benediction was pronounced by John Henry Smith, when those present were permitted to go through the building. 5 o'clock, children were permitted to go through the Temple.

2ND DAY

DEDICATORY SERVICES

Manti Temple, Tuesday 22 May 1888. Elder Lorenzo Snow Presiding, house called to order at 10.45 A.M. When he announced, that the same order would be observed today as on yesterday; and that the Dedicatory Prayer would be offered by Elder Franklin D. Richards.

The following persons occupied the stands.

East End 1st Seat; Elder Lorenzo Snow, Franklin D. Richards, F. M. Lyman, John Henry Smith, Heber J. Grant, John W. Taylor, and Daniel H. Wells. 2d Seat, Canute Petersen, Henry Beal, John B. Maiben, Anson Call, Joseph B. Noble, Cyrus H. Wheelock, and William H. Poulsen. 3d Seat, Elias Morris, James A. Allred, George Taylor, Thomas E. Ricks, Angus M. Cannon, James Whareham, and Anton H. Lund. 4th Seat. Rasmus W. Rasmussen, John A. Morver, John R. Backster, J. LeMaster, Fredk. J. Christiansen, Seventy Dastoup and H. J. Gottfredsen.

Choir sang "Lord We Come Before Thee Now."

Dedicatory prayer offered by Elder Franklin D. Richards, the people bowing their heads in solemn reverence, and repeating in their hearts, the prayer as it was being offered.

Choir sang "Righteous God Eternal Father" (Dedication Hymn) Elder John W. Taylor said: "That while passing through the Temple in company with some of his friends he had the spirit of prophecy upon him and had it been appropriate he could have prophesied of things which are coming to pass. Was glad to hear President Smoot testify yesterday that Zion would never be removed out of its place. Could testify the same. Read a portion of the seventh section of the Doctrine and Covenants, and related that during the missionary experience in the Southern States he had been led by a dream to go northward into Georgia and there found a people who were ready to receive himself and companion and who told them that their coming had been predicted by a mysterious personage who had visited them a year and a half previously, marked certain passages in their Bibles, and told them that one year and a half from that time men having authority to administer the ordinances of the Gospel unto them and teach them the way of salvation would appear among them. Former Apostles of the Savior who had received a promise that they should remain to minister among men, were laboring among the Lamanites, millions of whom would yet embrace the Gospel and become the defense of the Saints, who would continue to build Temples and administer therein.

President Anson Call and the Saints were living in the time which prophets in past ages had spoken of. The Prophet Joseph had predicted the things which the Saints were now enjoying. Had known Father Morley, the first man to locate in Manti, and knew him to be a man of God, who, he doubted not, had left his blessing upon the land, the benefit of which was now being realized. The fruitfulness of the land might be attributed to the blessings of God bestowed in response to the obedience of the Saints.

President Angus M. Cannon felt unable to portray his feelings since attending the dedication of the Temple. Related a vision he had some months ago in which he was told it was his privilege to appear before the Lord. Felt his unworthiness to do so then and the same upon the present occasion. Had since that experience felt constrained to declare the truth in earnestncst and simplicity. Also related a dream which he had while confined in the penitentiary for conscience's sake, in which was portrayed to him the threatened destruction of the world. He had an assurance given him that the Lord would be glorified and His cause advanced by the efforts of the evil one. Exhorted the Saints to labor with their children for their salvation. Testified that the Temple had been accepted of the Lord, and that he had experienced the presence of His Spirit within the building like a consuming fire. Had it made known to him many years before it came to pass that President Taylor would become the leader of the people and had received testimonies that the people of God would triumph and that the leaders of nations would yet acknowledge that God was with them.

Bishop A. M'Rae said he had previously attended the dedication of the Temples. Rejoiced in having kept the faith since embracing it, fifty-one years ago. Related a dream which he had many years ago in which he saw numerous Indians coming in tribes for the protection of the Saints, and was impressed that any one of them was equal to two white men in point of prowess. Found it difficult to love his enemies, or rather the enemies of the work of God. Rejoiced in his young days in being imprisoned with the Prophet Joseph Smith. The Saints and their religion had been rejected by the world, but it would yet be found, as in the case of the Savior, that the rejected stone should become the chief corner. Had seen the power of God made manifest through the Prophet Joseph while in prison to a wonderful degree --to such an extent he had been made to quake while witnessing it. Testified to his having been inspired and to the truth of the Gospel.

Bishop F. Kesler said he felt unable to express his feelings. Though he had been a member of the Church for almost half a century he had never before been called to speak at the dedication of a Temple. Became acquainted with the Prophet Joseph Smith in 1839, and was familar with h|m from that time until the day of his death. Knew of no difference between the principles of the Gospel as taught by him and practiced by the Saints in this age. Was pleased with the appearance of the Temple. Had thought . . . . inconsistent it would be for a person to enter its portals with the smell of tobacco or spirituous liquors upon his breath. Had observed the Word of Wisdom as nearly as possible since it was made known to him. Exhorted his hearers to do likewise. Felt sure the Lord had accepted of the Temple, and that the Saints would enjoy His Spirit in laboring in it.

Counselor J. B. Maiben said he felt to thank God for what he beheld to day in the completion and dedication of the Temple. Could testify that President Young was inspired in the selection and dedication of the site of the Temple, that the Saints had been blessed in its erection, and that its present dedication was accepted of the Lord. Reminded his hearers of the ancient exhortation: "Be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord."

Elder C. H. Wheslock said when he was nine years of age a congregation of worshippers assembled in his father's house, representing various denominations After listening to their differing expressions on the subject of religion he retired to bed and had a dream in which a personage appeared to him and showed him the interior of a Temple, told him that he was a Levite and that it was the duty of the Levites to officiate in such places. That dream was repeated when he had grown to manhood. When, after embracing the Gospel, he received a patriarchal blessing, he was informed that he was a literal descendant of Levi, and that he would be a savior to his father's family. Was the only one of his family who had joined the Church. Expected to devote himself to hunting up the genealogy of his forefathers and to a work for them. Visited the Prophet Joseph in prison just before his martyrdom and heard him say that he felt like rebuking the ungodly, but that it was necessary for him to restrain himself. Related how he was impelled by a vision he received to go upon a mission to which he had been called, when he felt in his heart to resist the call. What was shown him in that vision as to the work he would accomplish in bringing people to a knowledge of the truth was afterwards literally fulfilled. Heard a sister say who had subscribed much of her substance to the building of the Temple that she felt already repaid in witnessing the dedication of the House.

Elder J. B. Noble said that the people who had built the Temple had done a great and noble work, and that if they would continue faithful no good thing should be withheld from them. Could testify that the Lord had accepted of the Temple. Was present in the Kirtland Temple when it was dedicated. When he was blessed therein the vision of his mind was opened and he saw what would transpire in the future. Was there promised that he should witness the winding up scene, and had blessings pronounced upon his head which caused a flood of tears to flow from his eyes. Predicted that the present persecutions of the Saints would result in greater power being given unto them. We should forgive our enemies as we hoped to be forgiven.

The "Dedication Anthem" was sung by the choir.

Dr. Isaacson being called upon to speak, said he realized the responsibility resting upon him in testifying as to the feelings of his heart. His thoughts while listening to the remarks of his brethren had been directed towards the Jewish people and the ancient city of God where around the ruined temple of Solomon they assemble night and morning and appeal to the Lord to again build their house and restore to them their inheritance. Wished all Israel could be before him in this Temple that he could testify before them as he did before the Saints that Jesus is the Son and Joseph Smith a true Prophet of God, and that the Latter-day Saints have the Gospel. Stood as the representative of his people today to raise his voice in their behalf and appeal for the blessings of the Gospel to be extended unto them. Predicted that the time would come when the faithful Saints would stand as saviors among their relatives who had rejected and despised them. Testified to the divinity of the work in which the Saints were engaged, the inspiration of their leaders past and present and the fact that salvation only could be obtained through obedience to the Gospel.

The choir sang the "Hymn of Praise."

Apostle Lorenzo Snow spoke of the glorious time enjoyed and the rich outpouring of the Holy Spirit manifested. Reminded the Saints of the visits of the Savior and of angels to the Kirtland Temple, and that there was no reason why such visits should not be received here. Was assured that the Lord had accepted of the present Temple. Exhorted his hearers to make new resolves to be faithful, to humble themselves and to shun temptation. Read from the Doctrine and Covenants a description of the visions beheld in the Kirtland Temple, and said that the promises made by the Savior upon that occasion were equally applicable to the Latter-day Saints, and the present occasion. Assured the Saints that the Lord was pleased with their offering and that His blessings would be showered upon them in great abundance than ever before. The Congregation then united in shouting "Hosannah to God and the Lamb, forever and ever, Amen." with an effect that was fairly electrifying, after which they were dismissed and allowed to proceed through the various rooms of the Temple and view the rich and beautiful workmanship with which the interior is endowed, which all acknowledged to equal if not surpass anything of the kind they had ever seen.

During the services today many persons in the audience witnessed similar miraculous manifestations to those seen yesterday, and though all present did not behold the same every person doubtless felt the presence of the Holy Spirit, was assured that the speakers were prompted thereby, and that the erection and dedication of the Temple was pleasing to the Almighty. It was truly a day of spiritual feasting.

It is expected that the dedicatory services will not be continued after tomorrow though it is extremely doubtful whether the building will contain all who are expected to attend.

Choir sang "Lord we come before thee Now."

Dedicatory Prayer offered by Elder F. M. Lyman.

Choir sang "Righteous God the Eternal Father."

After the opening musical exercises the reading of Dedicatory Prayer, Apostle Lorenzo Snow reminded the assembled saints that the services would be concluded today and that the spirit of God had been enjoyed to a marked degree during the past two days. He said it was their privilege to have another spiritual feast to day.

President Daniel H. Wells read from the Scriptures, "Behold it is good for brethren to dwell together in unity," etc. He said it was the privilege of faithful Saints to enter this house and receive endowments, keys, powers, and blessings which the Prophets in past ages had loved to contemplate. He felt that praise and gratitude should continually ascend to God for revealing unto His servants the use and purpose of Temples and in inspiring His Saints with such hopes and assurances. He reminded his hearers of the promise that they who were faithful over a few things should be made rulers over many.

Counselor Henry Beal said he felt the present was the greatest privilege he had ever enjoyed. He had been numbered with the Saints for forty years, but never before felt the power of God to so great an extent as during the past few days, within the walls of the Temple. He felt to testify as others had done, that the kingdom of God was truly established, never more to be thrown down. The enemies of the Saints had no power to deprive them of the Spirit of God. [They could im]prison them, but could not build walls high enough to shut out the light of the Spirit, nor to exclude hope from their hearts. He could testify that the Saints of Sanpete had never been so full of faith as today. President Brigham Young had promised them that if they assisted with willing hands to erect the Temple they would be increased in substance and strengthened in spirit and his words had been fulfilled If the Saints would continue in the work, and built institutions of learning, in which their children could be taught principles of religion as well as science, they would be even more blessed.

Elder Lorin Farr said he felt very thankful for the present privilege. For a year and a half he had not been able to stand before a congregation. For over fifty-six years he had been connected with the Church, and when a youth he was intimately assoicated with the Prophet Joseph Smith. He never saw a man who manifested greater kindness and consideration towards his family than Joseph did. He knew him then to be a Prophet of God. A greater Prophet never lived. He held the keys of all dispensations, and conferred the same upon the Apostles. Temples would yet be built, not only throughout America but in the various nations of Europe and Asia as well. He could promise the Saints that if they would be faithful the present Temple never should be taken from then nor destroyed. Faithful men who had died in the past ages were engaged in the work of redemption in other spheres, which work would be connected with that performed by the living, in their behalf. He could testify that the Latter-day Saints were the people of God. It was the little stone cut out of the mountain without hands, which was destined to fill the whole earth.
Apostle John W. Taylor said he noticed a large proportion of young people in the congregation. He had listened with pleasure to the testimonies of his aged brethren, and he felt also to bear his. When about eighteen years of age he was employed at a saw mill. At that time he made a resolution to break away from the restraints of religion. Before retiring to rest he was asked by his companions to pray, and did so in a formal manner. After lying down he was carried in a vision to the place where he had made the resolution. The Spirit of God came upon him and passed through his system. He beheld a brilliant light, and also a number of personages coming towards him, accompanied by an influence which could scarcely be withstood. He clung to a tree stump to prevent himself being forced backward, and saw a being whom he was informed was Jesus Christ, whose power was great but whose voice was pleasant to hear. His father was present also, and encouraged him to hold on, which he did with difficulty. He afterwards related the dream or vision to his father, and had it interpreted by him, telling him that the stump of tree represented the teachings of his parents, which he had been tempted to break away from, thinking there was greater liberty in sin; his father charged him to be faithful in following their counsel and example; that it would have been better for him to be dashed in a thousand pieces, as it seemed he would have been if he had lost hold of the stump, than that he should incur the displeasure of the Almighty, who had the power of God, and that Jesus was the Redeemer. He bore an earnest and powerful testimony to the truth of the Gospel, and predicted that the time would come when the kings of the earth would come bending and pleading for the blessings of the Temple; that it would not be long before President Brigham Young and many others who had died would come to the Temple; that many of the Saints would have the testimony of dead relatives revealed unto them, and also many other precious things.
Elder Milando Pratt said Solomon was divinely permitted to build a temple, in the dedication of which the power of God was made manifest. Fire came from heaven and consumed the sacrifice on the altar. He felt to exclaim when he came into this valley and saw the Temple on the hill, Surely this is the mountain of the Lord's house. The purposes of the Lord were ripening fast and all would be fulfilled. The Saints should see all the opportunities to obtain the records of their dead. He had a record of his ancestors for thirteen generations. He had received a letter from a relative in the east, inquiring about his mother's relations, and received from him a long list, for seven generations back. He returned to 300 or 400 names of relatives in Utah.
Elder Pratt testified that the Saints were engaged in the work of God. He also testified to the divinity of the calling of the calling of Joseph Smith, Brigham Young, John Taylor and the present Apostles.
Apostle H. J. Grant testified that the Patriarchs of the Church ministered by the Spirit and power of God, also that work in temples was efficacious in redeeming the living and the dead. He read from the Doctrine and Covenants the vision to Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon.

Elder Anthon H. Lund said his heart was too full for him to express his feelings He admired the beautiful Temple, but considered it not so beautiful as the principles of the Gospel and the plan of salvation. He had joy in engaging in the dedication ceremony.

Apostle F. D. Richards said when he contemplated what God. had done in the past, his mind materially turned to what might be developed in the future. When the Saints came to Sanpete, now called the granary of Utah, it was called barren and desolate. Some of the early settlers returned and reported in discouraging terms. Now see what the Lord has done. Where frosts prevailed every month in the year we find thrify, full bearing fruit trees, and all kinds of grain. The climate had moderated, and the happy homes of the inhabitants now blossom with luxurious life. He referred to the blessings which the European Saints had enjoyed in journeying across the Atlantic, so that even Gentile ship owners were anxious to get them as passengers, feeling that thereby ships were more safe. He prophesied that the Book of Mormon would be translated into the Hebrew, and when the Gentiles should more fully reject the Gospel it should be turned to Judah and the day of deliverance for Judah was at hand. God had not forgotten His promises to that part of His ancient covenant people, and all should be fulfilled. The Saints sometimes felt that patriarchal blessings were not likely to be fulfilled, but when the spirit of revelation rested upon the Patriarchs, and they spoke according to it, much was foretold that reached beyond the veil. The Saints did not live in mortality long enough to realize all the promises made unto them. As an instance, in Abraham's experience God gave him a patriarchal blessing that he should receive a land; but the Scriptures record that he died without having as much of it as to set his foot upon. He would receive it with his generations in the resurrection. The speaker testified to the divinity of the mission of Joseph Smith, and blessed the people, that the spirit of this dedication might go with them.

Chief Mason Edward L. Parry rejoiced in the privilege of mingling his voice with those of inspired men, whose testimonies had revived his memories of similar testimonies he had received during the past forty years. Daniel said, generations since, that the God of heaven should set up His Kingdom in the latter days. There were no ifs nor buts about it. It has been fulfilled and has been given to the Saints of the Most High, and they shall possess it forever.

Counseler W. H. Seegmiller, of Sevier Stake, said it was not necessary for fire to come from heaven to consume the offering on the altar to show him that God had accepted the Dedication of the Temple. He had the testimony of the Spirit of God that it was accepted. He testified to the divinity of the work in which the Saints were engaged and encouraged the youth of Zion to be diligent and faithful, that they might be prepared to take an active part in the work of God.

Apostle J. H. Smith said he felt impressed to read the testimony of Oliver Cowdery, as contained in the Pearl of Great Price. He then read Oliver's description of his experience with the Prophet while he was translating the Book of Mormon, and of the visit of John the Baptist to ordain Joseph and himself to the Aaronic Priesthood. Elder Smith said the statement read should impress every heart. It was true. It was indeed a joyous day when God again revealed His will to humanity. It was an impressive spectacle to see aged men testifying in this Temple that God had made it known to them that the Gospel was true. The testators in this age are a grand galaxy, who should command admiration of the world. He invoked blessings upon the architects, master builder, mechanics, painters, and all whose industry, genius and liberality were manifest in building the Temple.

David M. Stuart said when an orphan boy in his native land, he had embraced the Gospel and received a testimony of the truth. He had felt impressed to come to this dedication. While coming he had strange reflections. The Spirit of God seemed to brood over the valley. He felt that the spirits of the dead were anxiously awaiting their redemption. The Prophet Job, after being tempted and stripped of his property and children, testified that he knew that His Redeemer lived. This was among his last utterances before the change came and the blessings of God were showered upon him. That testimony had descended through ages and was with the Saints today. They obtained it through obedience, as Job obtained it. He could read it in the faces of the Saints whom he yesterday met returning from the dedicatory services. He testified that he knew in a thousand ways that he was engaged in the work of God; that it would continue in power and that no power could overthrow it.

Apostle L. Snow said he had been thinking of the wonderful events which had transpired since January, 1849, when he and Apostles Erastus Snow and Richards were ordained. All who were Apostles then, except President Woodruff, were dead, who were in Kirtland. Three received the Gospel and were baptized by an Apostle who afterwards apostatized. He had known Joseph Smith and other prominent men and obtained a testimony before he embraced the truth. Father Joseph Smith blessed him, called him brother, and told him he should join the Church. At that time he had good prospects in life before him. Nothing but his desire for salvation could have induced him to embrace so unpopular a faith. He saw the manifestations of God's power before doing so. He had heard speaking of tongues, and the interpretation, prophetic in its nature. He made up his mind to withhold no longer. God made it known to him that the Gospel was true. The heavens were opened to him and the knowledge unfolded that God lived, and that Jesus Christ was His Son. This testimony had continued with him and had been added unto.

Counselor Wells said that the people of this Temple district had been greatly blessed, and if they would continue faithful the blessings of the Almighty would be poured out upon them in the future. The blessings were not alone due to the faithfulness of the people, but also because of promises made anciently, which were now being fulfilled. The Saints had abundant proof that God had been with them and favored them as marvelously as any pepple in past ages. It would not be long before the work required of the Saints in mortality would be finished. They were no doubtless performing labors which they agreed to before coming here. This was the fifth Temple which he had attended the dedication of, and might live to attend many more.

The musical exercises today were the same as the past two days and the shouting of "Hallelujah to the Lamb!" etc. as effective.

The closing prayer was offered by Apostle Lorenzo Snow. No summary could do justice to the discourses, which were inspired by the Holy Spirit and delivered with great power. Many persons shed tears of joy while listening. The shower which had been threatening for days and which was much needed, commenced descending soon after the close of the services. All the visitors united in praise to the architects, the mechanics and the painter, Brother Morris, for the grandeur of the building, which far surpassed any other in the Territory. Many visitors from a distance will start to their homes this evening; others go tomorrow.

Spiritual Manifestations

There were many manifestations of God's power and pleasure seen and heard on these memorial days. The following testimonies were casually obtained. On the 21st [of] May, before the opening exercises commence, Bro A. C. Smyth, the chorister, seated himself at the organ and rendered a piece of sacred music, a selection from Mendelssohn, at the conclusion of which persons sitting near the centre of the call, and also, on the stand at the west end, heard most heavenly voices and singing which sounded to them most angelic, and appeared to be behind and, above them. They turned their heads in the direction of the sound, wondering if there was another choir in some other part of the Temple. The following persons, and no doubt many others, heard the singing and voices, Mary A. Freeze Salt Lake City, Maggie C. Shipp Salt Lake City, B. P. Culbert King Marian Ward, Garfield County, N. P. Shipp, Salt Lake City, Christian Williardson, Ephraim, Prest. John T. D. [sic] McAllister, St. George, William H. Folsome, Manti, Amilia F. Young, Salt Lake City, Elizabeth Folsome, Salt Lake City, Sarah A. Peterson, Ephraim, Henry Beal, Ephraim, Peter F. Madsen, Brigham City, Henry Gardner, Salt Lake City and Edwin Standring, Lehi. A bright halo of light was seen by a number of persons over and around the heads of the following speakers, viz. Lorenzo Snow, Jacob Gates, Robert Campbell, John Henry Smith, Francis M. Lyman, John W. Taylor and A. M. Cannon. Bro Canute Petersen of Ephraim observed this halo around the heads of all the speakers, while the Dedicatory Prayer was being offered by Bro. Lorenzo Snow Near the middle of the prayer, during a pause, the words "Hallelujah, Hallelujah the Lord be praised" were uttered by a voice in a very soft melodious tone "heard by Bro Louis Anderson, one of our assistant recorders. On the 22d May, Bro John W. Taylor was speaking, a bright halo surrounded him in which the personages of Prests. Brigham Young, John Taylor, and a third personage whom he believed to be the Prophet Joseph were seen by Sister Emma G. Bull of Salt Lake City, also the personage of Bro. Jedediah M. Grant was seen by her, standing by his son Bro. Heber J. Grant, looking towards him, while he was speaking. They were surrounded by a bright halo. Sister Jane S. Richards, wife of Bro. Franklin, saw five personages, but she could not tell who they were. A bright halo was seen by Sisters Emma G. Bull, Ellen B. Mathery and Elizabeth H. Ship around Bros. John Henry Smith and Francis M. Lyman while they were speaking. On the 23rd the signing and voices were heard by a number of the members of the choir, and a halo of light was seen around the Bros. John W. Taylor and Heber J. Grant by Sisters Amilia F. Young and Elizabeth Fulsome [page 37] I was sitting at the foot, of the East Stand taking notes of the services. I looked up while Bro. Heber J. Grant was speaking, and saw a bright halo surrounded him which swayed to and fro as he moved his body. I laid down my pencil and gazed steadily at him for a few moments. Sister Rhonda W. Smyth writes me the following under, date of May 23rd 1888. "Our beautiful temple has been dedicated to the Lord, the long anticipated time has come and gone, how my heart swelled and beat with gratitude as I entered its holy walls, and took my seat in front of the stand. The many manifestations of the Holy Spirit that I saw and heard will never, no never be forgotten. When Apostle Lorenzo Snow rose a beautiful heavenly light enveloped his head and shoulders. He looked angelic. In the same manner did the Holy Spirit fall on Bro. Wells, Lyman, Grant and others whose names I did not know; particularly was the spirit manifest through Apostle John W. Taylor when he first arose to speak; the same light surrounded him as did the others, then a light brighter than the noon-day sun surrounded him from the tips of the fingers, on the right hand, up the arm, over the head and shoulders, and down the left arm. It was a glorious bright yellow light and stood out from three to five inches wide, and the rays from the light formed a glorious soft halo of milky white light all around him; there was also a column of light receding obliquely from the back of his head toward the cealing; it appeared like a beautiful light sunbeam; his form was reflected on the earth behind, like the sunlight pouring in a closed room through a window, and when he was relating his vision, at his father's deathbed, there were two other bright reflections on the wall. I saw not the substance but the bright reflections were there, and appeared to be inclining toward him, as thought bending over him from either side, in fact he appeared to be transformed into a heavenly being, and it did not leave him when he took his seat or moved about the stand. I asked Sister Squire who sat by me if she saw it. She said she saw the cloud of white vapor, but not the bright light." When Apostle Lyman was speaking I heard strains of heavenly music coming from above, sometimes soft, sometimes louder, as though it might be a choir with music wafting to and fro in the air. These manifestations I saw and heard during the Dedicatory services, Wednesday May 23rd," now, my dear brother you can realize to the full, the great and rich blessings that were poured out upon us here, and that, full, free flow the spirit of God has been with us ever since, and I trust may always remain here. You and I have been together in holy places in the St. George Temple, wherein the holy communion the [page 38] power of God was felt even to the marrow of the bone, and I am persuaded that the day is near, when those very sacred things will be done here. God will provindicate Israel, and whether our enemies are on the earth or in the Spirit World, they must meet the actions of this life, and verily they will get their reward. The world will say the manifestations of the power of God are delusions, we are fanatical &c, but we know better and we know in whom we trust.

The foregoing is an extract from a letter written to Elder George Teasdale by M. F. Farnsworth, and gives the testimony as taken at the time of the dedication.

(The remainder of this page and the starting of page 39 is a second copy of Daniel H. Well's letter of appointment as president of the Manti Temple with the same as if found on page 14. Pages 39 through 49 give detail information of the calling and setting apart of various Temrle workers between the period of the beginning of ordinance work and Temple worder meetings on 22 May 1888 through 19 July 1889. However, on pages 50-70 is found the text of the discourses given in the Manti Temple at the private Dedicatory Services 17 May, 1888. Moses F. Farnsworth the Recorder of the Manti Temple, had indicated on page 12 of this original manuscript that the text of the remarks made by the various brethren at the private Dedicatory Services had not been transcribed by Arthur Winter early enough so they could be included in the record. They did not come into the hands of Emma Farnsworth until 20 July, 1889 and so he chose those pages of the book in order to record that information.)

Remarks made at Dedication Services: 17 May 1888

President Wilford Woodruff said. I certainly rejoice that I have lived to see this hour; that I have the privilege of again entering into a Temple of the Lord our God, which has been reared to His Holy Name in these mountains of Israel. This has brought forceably to my mind what Joseph Smith, said the first time I ever heard him speak, in the spring of 1834. There was no Quorum of the Apostles then. It was a testimony meeting, and Joseph called upon the elders to speak. All who were present bore their testimony--Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, John Bownton, Lyman Johnson, Hyrum Smith, Oliver Cowdery, Joseph Smith, and a number of other, who I do not not now recall. When Joseph got up to speak, he said, "Brethren you know no more about the extent or the nature of this work of which you have been testifying than a babe in its mother's arm." Well it rather startled the brethren. Then, you understand, little Log Cabin 12 feet square, held all the Elders of the Church who were present and they were then going up to Zion. Now, see this work, said he, that you have ccmmenced, this little mustard seed, it is going to fill the whole earth. It will fill North and South America. And among other things, he said, "it will fill the Rocky Mountains; the Rocky Mountains will be filled with tens of thousands of Latter-day Saints, and they will stand associated with thousands of Lamanites of the blood of Joseph."

Gospel Mysteries

I was thinking to day, and when I arose to my feet, of the remarks of that prophet. Here I am, today, 54 years after that saying surrounded with my brethren in this Temple, built here in the Rocky Mountains by the people of God. And this position that we are in today, in dedicating this house, in our little circle, is in a programme of the purposes of God in the last days. Look at the beginning of this, and the manner in which the God of Heaven commenced His work of this great and last dispensation in the fullness of times by inspiring Joseph Smith, an illiterate youth, who, in answer to his prayers, saw God the Father and God the Son. Then, Moroni and other Angels were sent to him, to teach him how to begin to lay the foundation of this Church, and from that small beginning, the Church has attained its present dimension. We have before us, its history, some of us have shared in this history, and what have we seen? We have seen persecution. We have seen persecution. We have seen earth and hell united against this great Kingdom of God. We have have been [page 51] through this. We have lived through it until the present hour. And, to my mind, it is a striking manifestation of the determination of the God of Heaven, to carry out and fulfill all his purposes with regard to this dispensation.

I have no fears, I have no doubt at all in my mind, with regard to this work. It will arrive to its perfection. There is no power beneath the heavens, that can stay this work. We are now in the midst of another scene of persecution or the millions of Jews scattered throughout the world, and felt to appeal in their behalf that the blessings enjoyed by the Latter-day Saints be extended also to them. Felt that they more than any others were the people to enjoy the blessings to be obtained in Temples. Testified to the presence of the Holy Spirit and to the truth of the Gospel. Earnestly implored the Saints to pray for Israel and to sustain him by their faith inasmuch as he stood alone; his own parents even having rejected him for his belief.

Apostle Heber J. Grant said he had enjoyed the feast yesterday and today more than he had power to express. To listen to the testimony of brethren whose life had been spent in the service of God and who were now tottering on the brink of the grave caused him joy unspeakable. Felt encouraged with the assurance that there were so many faithful men and women among the Saints. Exhorted his hearers to be more diligent in looking after the welfare of their children, teaching them the principles of the Gospel guarding them from temptation and setting them good examples. While believing in the Lord having foreordained what is taking place, was impressed with the fact that every person had his agency and that his reward or punishment hereafter would be in accordance with the use he made of that agency. Referred to the work to be done in Temples and illustrated how the Lord was operating upon the hearts of unbelievers to lead them to assist in the work. Apostle John Henry Smith said he was too happy to speak. As he thought of the past and remembered the efforts made to gather the people assembled from the nations of the earth; how their hearts had bled when fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters had turned their backs upon them because of their embracing the truth and testifying of the restoration of the Gospel, he felt they now had their reward-that their hopes were realized. The present was a day of gladness to the dead, to think that they had been remembered and that the way had been opened up for their redemption. Israel should also rejoice that they had a representative among this oppression, or opposition to the work of God, in the presumption of our Government to take away our property.

THE PURPOSE OF THE TEMPLE ORDINANCES

Gospel Mysteries

Too often we go to the temple and do not really understand what it is all about except to know that we are doing work either for the living or the dead. Too often the rest of what goes on in there is clouded in mystery and symbolism which seems eternally impenetrable. But we must realize that salvation is an individual affair, meaning, that everyone must be saved upon the same conditions. None will receive exaltation except through obedience to the laws and ordinances ordained for that purpose. With this concept in mind, the temple can become an intensely personal experience. All that goes on in there is for your own exaltation, as well as for those who have passed on. In order for us to understand what the ordinances do for us we must understand the fall of mankind and the plan of redemption which was designed by God to bring man back to him. We are in a fallen condition, both physically and spiritually. We have sins that prevent us from coming into His presence. How do the ordinances help us to return to God's presence? How do they help us gain eternal life? How do they help us gain the blessings and spiritual experiences that we need and desire? Each of the ordinances build upon the prior ordinance received, until the recipient has received a fulness of the ordinances and has received the crown of eternal life.

Baptism & The Holy Ghost

We must first begin with the ordinance of baptism of water since this is the first ordinance which a person receives in this world. Through this ordinance the individual is promised a forgiveness of sins upon conditions of repentance. The first two principles of the gospel are faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and second, repentance. If the baptized person did not repent of his sins prior to baptism then he must still do so if he desires to receive a remission of his sins through the waters of baptism. The ordinance of baptism itself is a sign before heaven and earth, that the person is willing to take upon himself the name of Jesus Christ and to fulfill the terms and conditions of the covenant of baptism as outlined in Mosiah 18:8-10. This ordinance justifies the person. It does not sanctify the person. That is the mission of the Holy Ghost which is received through the next ordinance of the laying on of hands. In that ordinance the person is commanded to receive the Holy Ghost. If that third member of the Godhead is not sought for by the individual he may never really receive His influence in this life. Having been justified and made clean through watery baptism, the Holy Ghost (if diligently sought for) can now begin the process of "sanctification" through the powers of the holy spirit. His blood becomes of the blood of Abraham (TPJS, pp. 149-150) and the person becomes eligible for the reception of the gifts of the Holy Ghost and persona! revelation on a continual basis. His body becomes spiritually renewed and sanctified as he grows in the experiences of the spirit, and in the attributes of godliness mentioned in II Peter 1:5-7.

Oath & Covenant Of The Priesthood

After the man is cleansed of his sins and is being sanctified, he is ready to receive the covenant of eternal life the covenant which will make of him an heir to all that the Father hath; a joint-heir with Christ; a son of God. It is the oath and covenant of the priesthood. And all those who are faithful unto the magnifying of these two priesthoods (Aaronic & Melchizedek) are sanctified unto the renewing of their bodies; they become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, the Church and Kingdom and the elect of God. Through faithfulness they may receive the Savior himself, and then the Father. Then, the Father promises that all that he has shall be given to him he becomes an heir to all that the Father has through his Son, Jesus Christ. Without this oath and covenant of the priesthood, the man would not inherit anything. But because of this covenant, the brethren can receive their own kingdoms for eternity, and their wives that are sealed to them become heirs to the blessings of the kingdom through their husbands. They receive all that their husbands receive, be it large or small, whether 2, 5 or 10 talents.

But whether or not the brethren actually becomes heirs to all that the Father has, depends entirely upon whether or not they magnify their callings in the priesthood. First, they are called to be fathers and husbands in Israel. They must magnify those callings with all diligence and care. Then, they are called to minister to others outside of their family, to the inhabitants of the earth, as their assignments designate. The three overall missions which priesthood holders have are to (1) preach the gospel (2) perfect the saints, and (3) redeem the dead. As priesthood holders they are "servants" of the Lord, (The sisters are called "handmaidens") which is preparatory to becoming a "son". As "servants" they become responsible for the blood and sins of those they are called upon to serve. If they are true and faithful to their priesthood callings, after a season of testing and proving, the voice of the Lord will call them (D&C 88:85) and declare that they are clean from the blood and sins of this generation. They are then eligible for the ordinance, which comes later, which will make the priesthood holder clean "every whit" from the sins of the generation he was called upon to serve. Through baptism he is cleansed from his own sins. Through the ordinance of the washing of the feet he is cleansed from the sins of those he held priesthood responsibility for. Thus, it matters not whether you are a bishop, a teacher, a counselor, a home teacher, or an apostle. It is not WHERE one serves that determines his worthiness, but HOW. The covenant says he must magnify his callings in the priesthood. It does not stipulate, nor is it important what the calling may be, for the body of Christ needs all of it members, the hands, the eyes, the feet and the legs, in order to function properly. In fact, the greater the responsibility of the calling, the greater the condemnation that will come to the person if he does not magnify it properly. But in the end there is only one celestial kingdom, to which we will go if we prove faithful in our callings. Thus we should not seek for positions within the kingdom. The desire for position seems to stem from the desire to have status and power among the people, which desire is of the world and is not of God.

Initiatory Ordinances

Next, the person must go to the temple to continue his quest for eternal life. The next essential ordinances are those labeled "initiatory". These ordinances promise to the individual that if he is faithful he might become clean from the blood and sins of this generation. It also states that he will be made a king and a priest if he remains faithful. The sisters are pronounced clean from the sins of this generation because they do not hold the priesthood responsibilities within the Church. Because of this they are not primarily responsible for the actions of this generation. Therefore they are not responsible for the sins of this generation. They do assist the priesthood brethren however, as auxiliaries to the priesthood and are accountable to them for the work they are called upon to do. The sisters are promised that they will become queens and priestesses unto their husbands if they are faithful in magnifying their callings as wives, mothers, and as auxiliary leaders in the kingdom.

A Shield

At this point the person is given a garment which is designed to be a shield and a protection against the power of the destroyer until the person's work on earth is completed. As each person comes closer to the Lord, the garment becomes a shield against the powers of the destroyer, and thus each person is able to approach the Lord without fear of being destroyed by Satan.

Endowment

So far, the person has been forgiven of his sins, is on the road to sanctification, has been promised further blessings if faithful, and has received a shield that will be used later in conjunction with the keys of the priesthood. The endowment now bestows those keys of the priesthood upon both men and women. They are put under covenant to obey certain laws of the gospel. By faithfully observing these laws they prove that they are true and faithful and can therefore receive further blessings.

The person is now ready to receive the keys of the priesthood, which are the keys of how to ask and receive an answer. The signs and tokens, etc., constitute the keys of the priesthood mentioned in the lecture at veil. These keys are revealed to both the men and the women. With these keys the person may begin to learn how to approach God in the proper manner. The shield which was received earlier now is an important part of prayer.

Marriage Sealing

At this point a new kingdom is formed for time, with the promise that if the couple endures faithfully in this life, the kingdom will have a seal placed upon it so that it can endure for all the eternities.

It is at this point where the couple receives the command to bear children, to multiple & replenish the earth. Up to this point in their lives they had no right to have sexual relations and to bear children, lawfully, before the Lord. However, because of the kind of a world we live in, the Lord tolerate or endures the system we live under. But if we were to do things the Lord's way, all on earth would be married in the temple, and it is there where they would receive the command from the Lord to bear children. But because of the rebelliousness of mankind, they have turned from the Lord and do what they want in spite of him. Nevertheless, those who marry in the temple are not only legally married (in the eyes of the land), but lawfully as well (in the eyes of God).

The wife promised to obey her husband in righteousness, and thus the husband takes the lead in the home. The keys of the priesthood which were received in the endowment must be observed by the couple if they expect to come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds.

Washing Of The Feet

This ordinance is performed upon the brethren after they have proven that they have been true and faithful in their assigned priesthood responsibilities. If the wife desires to receive the fulness of the priesthood, she should encourage, inspire and assist her husband to magnify his callings in the priesthood, for only in this way can she ever hope to gain the reward, because the blessings & rewards will come to her only as her husband inherits them.

Fulness Of The Priesthood

The kingdom which was formally organized in temple marriage now becomes permanent throughout all eternity. They are actually made kings and queens, priests and priestesses for all the eternities to come. This ordinance also seals them up to eternal life and bestows many other blessings upon the couple.
The keys of the priesthood which were given in the endowment are operable for the benefit of the husband and wife and they are able to receive all necessary revelations for themselves and their kingdom, and all prayers are answered.

THE MEANING & USE OF THE SIGNS

Signs & Tokens To Be Used After This Life

On April 6, 1853, President Brigham Young made the following comments about the endowment after the First Presidency and the Patriarch had laid the Southeast corner stone of the Salt Lake Temple:

Your endowment is, to receive all those ordinances in the House of the Lord, which are necessary for you, after you have departed this life, to enable you to walk back to the presence of the Father, passing the angels who stand as sentinels, being enabled to give them the key words, the signs and tokens, pertaining to the Holy Priesthood, and gain your eternal exaltation in spite of earth and hell. (J.D. 2:31; See also 12:163; 2:315; 10:172; 6:63; 6:154-55)

The Signs As They Relate to Prayer

Certainly as President Young explained, the signs and tokens will have to be used, after this life, by those who desire to gain their exaltation. But this is not the only reason the Lord has given the keys of the priesthood to the saints.
In a discourse given in the Nauvoo Temple, December 28, 1845, President Brigham Young explained further concerning the signs:

...the name that was given to Adam was more ancient than he was the first man--but his New Name pertained to the Holy Priesthood & as I before stated is more ancient than he was--there are 4 Penal Signs & 4 Penal Tokens and should I want to address the Thorone (sic) to enquire after ancient things which transpired on Plannets that roled away before this Plannet came into existence, I should use my New Name which is Ancient & refers to Ancient things--Should I wish to Enquire for Present things I should use my own Name which refers to present things & should I want to Enquire for Future things I would use the 3rd Name which refers to the first token of the Melchizedek Priesthood-- or is the 3rd token that is given--& refers to the son--the 2nd Token of the M. Priesthood is to be given only in one place and nowhere else--but these signs & tokens that pertain to the Priesthood should never be given any where only in such places as belong to the P.H. & that too by none but such as belong to the order of the Priesthood. (General Record of the Seventies, Book B, 28 Dec 1845)

The use of the fourth sign and token was never mentioned by President Young in this discourse as far as we have record. However, from several other LDS sources and documents, and as it is portrayed in the temple, we know that the fourth sign is used specifically to petition for messengers.

Evidences of the Use of the Fourth Sign

After Adam and Eve were cast into the lone and dreary world they built an altar and offered prayer. After offering up the signs he used the last one, petitioning the Father for messengers. Before "Peter, James and John" are able to appear, Satan and one of his ministers appear. Then 3 angelic messengers with physical bodies appear. After finding him true and faithful in all things they are able to give him the additional light and knowledge which he desired. This same sign was apparently used by Abraham to free himself from the altar as he was about to be slain by the idolatrous priest. The facsimile itself shows Abraham with his arms raised with an angel of the Lord appearing to free him. At the early meetings of the School of the Prophets, 1833, Zebedee Coltrin describes what happened on several instances while praying with uplifted hands: First, the Savior appeared, then the Father. Others, desiring to see an angel joined at the altar in prayer. "When the vision came, two of the brethren shrank and called for the vision to close or they would perish. When the Prophet came in they told him what they had done and Joseph said the angel was no further off than the roof of the house, and a moment more he would have been in their midst." Mary Lightner used the last sign as she knelt between 3 haystacks endeavoring to find an answer to her prayer concerning a difficult situation which she faced.

The Signs and The Crucifixion

The significance of what the tokens and signs represent is deepened as one gains a greater awareness of their relationship to the atonement. The last two tokens relate directly to the wounds the Savior received while on the cross. The first two tokens are not explained, but possibly refer to the wounds received by the Savior in the feet and the side. The signs are the positions of the Savior's arms while on the cross which would form both the square and compass. The cup which is scripturally spoken of, while Christ was in the Garden of Gethsemane, and which he desired that it should pass from him, corresponds to his cupped hands as the nails were driven through causing the muscles to cramp into a cup shape. The penalties make reference to the ways in which the sacrifices were made in ancient times, and which referred to the crucifixion of Christ which was to come.

Through the endowment, the saints receive the wounds of the crucifixion in symbolic imagery into their own body. Thus Paul could say that he had the marks of the crucifixion in his body. If we are true and faithful, we will not have to suffer in the manner in which the Savior did for our sins. The signs and tokens remind us of the awful price he had to pay for our sins, that we might not have to suffer as he did.

There are basically five wounds which the Savior received in the crucifixion:

1. Hands
2. Wrists
3. Side
4. Feet
5. Head (crown)

Concerning three of the wounds, President Kimball said:

He [Christ] goes his way alone. The nails are hammered into his hands and feet, through soft and quivering flesh. The agony increases. The cross is dropped in the hole; the flesh tears. What excruciating pain! Then new nails are placed in the wrist to make sure that the body will not fall to the ground and recover. (The Ensign/December 1984, p. 7; Also The Ensign/December 1980,

In like manner there are temple paralells where we might receive those same wounds symbolically through the ordinances of the temple:

1. Hands 1. Token
2. Wrists 2. Token
3. Side 3. Eternal Marriage--
Power of procreation
4. Feet 4. Washing of feet
5. Head (crown) 5. Anointed & Ordained
King & Priest (on the crown)

General Knowledge of the Signs & Marks Among Saints Today

The meaning of these signs and tokens were fully explained to the saints in the early days of the church. But after 1890 the knowledge of their meanings slowly slipped away as the church members died away, until we generally do not know the meanings of the signs and tokens.
In a meeting of Manti Temple workers, May 1st, 1938, Sister Young (the temple Matron) told the group of a meeting held in the Logan Temple where the late President Ivins stated that the full meaning of the marks of the garment has not been revealed (Manti Temple Historical Record, May 1, 1938). In the 1930's it was recommended by a temple committee that the temples give an explanation of the marks in the garment. Elder David 0. McKay at that time had given an explanation that this committee approved of, and which was approved by the First Presidency and implemented in all the existing temples. The meanings of the marks which we currently receive in the temple are the same ones which were approved of in the 30's. However, it does not necessarily mean that the explanation currently given in the temple today is what the Lord really had in mind when he first gave them to Adam and Eve. By October of 1955, it was necessary for President David 0. McKay to meet with all the General Authorities and temple presidencies of the church to give to them the proper translation of the fourth sign, which was apparently being pronounced incorrectly.

How The Signs Are Used In Prayer

When an individual receives the signs, and all that goes along with them, he has received his endowment. All the rest that occurs in the endowment room is instructive in nature, and designed to put man under covenant to obey certain laws. The keys of the priesthood, mentioned in the lecture at the veil, are the signs, etc., which are received in the endowment. Thus both the man and the woman are endowed with the keys of the priesthood, or, the keys of how to ask and receive an answer. The second sign is always given at the altar because "present" things are always being prayed for. However, if other signs were used, they would be for the purpose of inquiring or asking for past or future things. If the last sign were to be used, it would be for the purpose of petitioning for messengers. The women veil their faces in the circle because they receive their revelations through their husbands, who receives them from God. The veil acts as a symbol to God and angels that the person wearing it is not desirous of receiving direct revelation, rather to only be a participant in it with her husband.
In the endowment, all who desire are allowed to pray in the true order of prayer. The participants in this kind of prayer actually approach the Lord at the veil because the dedicated altar is where the real veil is located, regardless of where that altar might be located. At the veil (the altar) the person who is supplicating the Lord uses the signs of the priesthood. Those signs are designed to give revelation concerning all things past, present and future, or to open the heavens, depending upon the one which is used. The experience of going through the temple veil symbolically teaches the person what must be done in order to go through the real veil.

Prayer at an altar should also be given as depicted at the prayer circle in the temple. First a dedicated altar exists; then the person presents himself there in the robes of the priesthood; then the signs are offered up; then the individual prays with one of the signs, usually the second. When the signs are offered up it should be remembered what they represent---the Savior's positions while on the cross. Some individuals were not depicting the fourth sign correctly in the 1930's and therefore instruction was given to them by temple president Robert D. Young that the sign should be improved by raising the hands as high as conveniently possible, then down to the square, and then dropping the hands to the side. (Manti Temple Historical Record, 15 December 1936)

The Process of Going Through The Real Veil

The 2nd sign is used in the temple at the circle because that is the one individuals should use in their homes. It is the example of which one to use. Out of the 4 signs, the second is the only one which is operable for those who have not yet received the fulness of the priesthood, or had their calling and election made sure. The second sign will allow a person to converse through the veil. After this has been accomplished, and the person secures the name of the last token by conversing with the Lord through the veil, then he is able to use the fourth sign (which now becomes operable) to go through the veil and enter the Lord's presence. Once the person has received the fulness of the priesthood and has made his calling and election sure, the signs can then be used to reveal all things past, present, future, and to hold converse with the angels and just men made perfect.
Interestingly enough, the second sign is the last of the Aaronic order. The Aaronic order will allow a person to come to the veil of the temple, but will not allow him to enter. The ancient Israelites would ritually come to the veil of the temple annually, but they were never permitted to enter through the veil because they did not have the Melchizedek portion of the endowment. The fourth sign is the fulness of the Melchizedek order, and thus will allow the person to enter through the veil into the Lord's presence. And so it is in real life. We must first learn to converse with the Lord through the veil. Then we will have the knowledge necessary to open the veil and enter his presence. Until we have been able to converse with the Lord through the veil, use of any of the other signs will do us little good.
I have come to believe now, that the three taps at the veil symbolically represent our own prayers which we should do three times daily. As we pray in the true order in the morning, the first tap is made in heaven by a worker. At noon when prayers in the true order are done again, another tap is heard, and at the end of the day the third tap is heard in heaven. We should pray at the veil three times daily so that our prayers will be heard. Only through prayer, fasting and diligent effort will we be able to finally come to hear the voice of the Lord through the veil.
Also of importance is the thought that when Adam approaches the veil he has already been judged "true and faithful in all things", and he now "desires further light and knowledge by conversing with the Lord through the veil." We are told in the endowment session that if we are true and faithful the day will come when we will be called up and anointed kings & queens, priests & priestesses, whereas we are now anointed only to become such. The fact that we are true and faithful at that point indicates that a judgment has taken place. Enos was judged clean and his sins were forgiven. This is apparently the judgement for which we seek, that we might be pronounced clean from our own sins, as happened to Enos, Alma the Younger, and other Book of Mormon characters. This was their 3 day experience in which they were being born again through the blood of Christ. The rebirth process makes them sons and daughters of God. clean and pure, having proven themselves to be true and faithful in keeping all the commandments and covenants made.

In addition to being cleansed from our own sins, we will have to be proven worthy in the areas of (1) sharing the gospel to non-members around us; (2) helping to perfect the saints through our assigned callings; and (3) in doing temple work for the dead. Now the scripture in D&C 88 makes sense:

> Verily I say unto you, let those who are not the first elders [all of us] continue in the vineyard [in our assigned callings] until the mouth of the Lord shall call them [the voice of the Lord is heard], for their time is not yet come; [our period of probation is not yet complete] their garments are not clean from the blood [and sins] of this generation. (85)

After we have proven ourselves true and faithful in keeping all the commandments, and in living up to the covenants we have made, and the priesthood assignments which we have received, then if we will endure in this kind of righteous living, the judgement will come, and then we will be able to begin conversing with the Lord through the veil. Then after we have conversed with the Lord through the veil, and we have received the name of the last token, then we will be able to approach the veil and have it said: Adam, having conversed with the Lord through the veil, desires now to enter his presence. "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." (Rev 3:20) We will then be able to open the door (the veil) and allow the Savior to come in and minister unto us.

Keys Must Be Used To Obtain Blessings

The endowment is designed to "enable one 'to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Eloheim in the eternal worlds.' (TPJS, p. 237)" But in order to do so there are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing of the fulness of the priesthood (Mormon Doctrine, p. 482). If the saints are to ever obtain the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood, they will have to exercise their faith and approach the throne of grace and petition for his mercy and blessings, in the true order.

TRADITION vs REVELATION

Some years ago when President N. Eldon Tanner was in New Zealand to install a new president of the temple, he told of the events leading up to the negro being able to hold the Priesthood. The point he made was that President Kimball had defended the position of the Church for some 30 years as a member of the Twelve (concerning the negroes and the Priesthood), yet when the revelation came, he immediately reversed himself.

What made the difference? Modern revelation. Continuous revelation. President Kimball was not committed to any particular issue, but instead he was committed to following and obeying the mind and will of the Lord through continuous revelation. "We believe all that God has revealed, all that He does now reveal, and we believe that He will yet reveal many great and important things pertaining to the Kingdom of God. (Ninth Article of Faith).

President Tanner then made the point that we need to keep ourselves as flexible as President Kimball and when the Lord desires to take the Church in a little different direction, we must be committed to the principle of continuous revelation and not the traditions of how things were done in the past. The Church has come a long way in the last 150 years. From very humble beginnings we now have stakes and wards and beautiful chapels and a rate of growth that is steadily increasing. Faithful pioneers helped the Church through those early days of small congregations and much persecution. We must be careful, however, least the procedures of the past, which were right for their day, become the traditions of today and which more than likely will be wrong for our day. Priesthood and auxiliary leaders at every level need to lead by virtue of the Priesthood direction and continuous revelation to the Church and not necessarily by how it was done by the people who held that position previously. These traditions sometimes become more important than Church priesthood leadership. Read Helaman chapter 15:7, 8 for a denunciation of tradition as compared with ongoing revelation.

We face the same things today. Traditions can creep in over the years and can impede the work. We don't think the people outwardly realize this or are trying to create problems, but the traditions are there and must be dealt with by each of us and the other Priesthood leaders, who serve under your wise direction. The re-emphasis on "Come Unto Christ" and the three-fold mission of the Church as taught in the last general conference could be held back by local traditions.

The following are some signs of traditional activity that might receive our attention:

1. The tradition of calling a person to more than one calling in the Church. This has grown up from the early days when there were just a few "who could be counted on," so leadership positions were passed back and forth between just a handful. It was also carried on by those who believed in the tradition of apprenticeship in the Church. It is the feeling of some that a person cannot be called to leadership until he has served a sort of apprenticeship in a whole variety of lesser positions. This was how they had to do it and they believe everyone else has to do it the same way. It disregards the principle of "We believe a man must be called of God, by prophecy . . ." (Fifth Article of Faith). A man must be called by revelation and not by tradition. Teach priesthood leaders this and help them to call every soul in the ward or branch to one calling, before they call anyone to two callings. The Lord will have a calling for every member, even the inactive. In this manner, the Lord expects us to fill every position in the ward or branch by seeking the spirit and starting with the best we have and by using every single soul. Tradition has it that certain positions require special training and abilities and it is better to leave a position vacant if the "right" person is not available or to place the call on someone who has other callings. Revelation requires that we seek the spirit and start with the best we have and fill every position, beginning with one man, one job.

2. The tradition of Priesthood leaders representing their people as if they were elected by them. In the Priesthood of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the direction comes from the top down. In a man-made organization, the direction comes by elected leaders and is generated from the bottom up. The Lord organized His Church first, with a prophet and then came the other officers. In John 15:16 Jesus told His disciples.. "Ye have not chosen me" but I have chosen you, and ordained you..." The Savior was making it clear to His disciples that they did not choose Him, but He chose them and gave them the authority through ordination to act in the name of the Savior. The disciples were no longer expected to teach their own doctrine or represent themselves. They now had the calling and priority to represent the Lord to the people. They learned what every Priesthood leader must learn and that is his first responsibility and loyalty is to the Lord through his immediate Priesthood leaders. His first call is to represent the Lord, the Church and his Priesthood leaders to the people he presides over, and not to represent himself or his people to the Priesthood leadership. "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you..." The Area Presidency has been called to represent the Lord and the General Authorities. Regional Representatives represent the Lord and the Area Presidency. Mission presidents represent the Lord and the General Authorities (Area Presidency) to their mission organization. Stake presidencies represent the Lord and the General Authorities (Area Presidency) to the High Council, stake leaders, quorum presidents and bishoprics. Bishoprics represent the Lord and the stake presidency to the ward members. This is the proper method of administration according to the holy Priesthood.

In opposition to this is the bishop who contends with the stake presidency, because he believes himself to be the elected representative of the people of his ward, rather than the Priesthood representative of the Lord and the stake presidency to his people. The bishop is answerable for his people, but is not answerable to them. Stake presidents may become the captive of their high councils, because they don't understand that the high council has no authority to act on its own. A high council is not a quorum and, therefore, has no independent authority or seniority within its ranks. All its authority comes from the stake presidency and it has authority act by the direction and authority of the stake presidency. It counsels with the stake presidency when invited to do so, represents the stake presidency on special assignments and even gives approval to names nominated by the stake presidency. Approval means neither acceptance or rejection, but merely voicing everything pertinent they know about the individual and then it is handed back to the stake presidency for final action.

We all must make sure that we keep those above us informed as to what is going on, but at the same time, the proper procedure is to represent our Priesthood leaders to the people, not the people to our Priesthood leaders. Of course it must be done in the spirit of love and service. Please help this to be understood and practiced.

3. The tradition of believing that the program was not written with us in mind. There are over 1,600 stakes in the Church in many different languages. These stakes are scattered around the face of the earth in every kind of economic and cultural situation imaginable. Yet the one characteristic that each of these stakes of Zion has in common is that they have the same general basic stake program. There are hundreds of member districts in the world and each usually has its own program. A district becomes a stake when it is large enough, has enough Priesthood, and can operate the basic stake program. We must help our people to adopt the Church program before they adapt it and to understand that it truly is written with them in mind. There is usually enough latitude in the basic program to meet most every need.

Whenever a person is called and allowed to run his own program, he may do well for a while, but when he is released the next person will have to start over again. Priesthood leaders then begin to wonder why they can't seem to get things started. If the Church program is this * and at present the local unit can do only a part of this * then let them proceed with that part of the Church program until they are strong enough to do this *. In this way they can build on each other and will not have to start over each time because they thought the Church program was not written with them in mind. Again, encourage leaders to adopt before they adapt.

4. The tradition of having people turn down Church Calls. Where you find people turning down Church calls, you find a situation where the people do not understand that Priesthood leaders are speaking under the inspiration of the Lord. Encourage leaders to extend a call so the people involved will feel and realize that they have been truly called of God by revelation. In order to do this, leaders need to be helped to know how one goes about finding who the Lord wants to serve in a position, how to receive a confirmation of the Spirit, how to prepare oneself to extend the call and how to extend the call. When a man knows he has been called of God by revelation he responds to the call.

5. The tradition of those who say "but under President so-and-so we did it differently." These are people who are keyed to the personality of one particular leader and his way of doing things and not to the principle of Priesthood leadership and ongoing revelation. They tend to live in the past, because for some of them the Church stopped when their "favorite person" was released. Because they are personality and not Priesthood oriented, they tend to try and stand still and wait until President or Bishop so-and-so is released, rather than change and enjoy the benefits of the current, ongoing Church. To wait until so-and-so goes away is not the answer.

6. The tradition of those who say "we tried it before and it didn't work". This is one sign that perhaps a person has served too long in a particular position. The calling of Priesthood and auxiliary leaders is to find ways to make things work and to not be the one whose only contribution is why things can't work. This attitude destroys faith and without faith the spirit withdraws. While the principles of salvation will never change, the principles of administering the Lord's Church will change as people become stronger and local circumstances change. What inspiration requires of us today has no connection with what went on in the past, whether tried before or not. This is one of the blessings of continuous revelation.

7. The tradition of singing and Church songs. We notice that some people will bring a sectarian background into the singing of the Church; seeking out the sectarian hymns in the song book, rather than the songs of the restoration, and then singing them at the same slow beat no matter what the designated tempo is.

8. The tradition of sitting in the same place during meeting. There have been instances of people becoming very upset if someone was found sitting in the place where they have been sitting Sunday after Sunday. This suggests the Protestant practice of assigned pews.

9. The tradition of looking on the missionaries as just boys (or girls) and assuming no responsibility for their success. A long-standing practice among some is to let the full-time missionaries go their way and if non members or members have any complaints against them, either in fact or in rumor, to take the side in opposition to the missionaries. As a general principle, uphold the missionaries. If an occasional problem is observed, then pass it through the Priesthood line, so the Mission president can make the necessary adjustment. Encourage priesthood leaders to work with members who don't have a proper understanding or appreciation of the missionaries. Members are under the sacred responsibility of saving the souls of all in their ward and stake through Priesthood missionary work. Missionaries are called to teach and preach and expound the Gospel. Help members and missionaries to uphold and support each other in this great work, so the purposes of the Lord can be accomplished and souls saved.

Brethren, these are traditions that affect the spirit and the proper operation of the Priesthood in the Lord's Church. If we can deal with them, the work of the Kingdom in this portion of the Lord's vineyard will be enhanced.

The Lord has called us to stand in our own offices and to labor in our own callings. As we represent the Brethren, let us prayerfully do so in our own right and show that we personally approve that which the Priesthood is asking us to do. While teaching the principle, you may wish to cite the Priesthood leaders and scriptures to help make each point, but be sure to put your own stamp of approval on it and your own seal of testimony.

9. The tradition of looking on the missionaries as just boys (or girls) and assuming no responsibility for their success. A long-standing practice among some is to let the full-time missionaries go their way and if non members or members have any complaints against them, either in fact or in rumor, to take the side in opposition to the missionaries. As a general principle, uphold the missionaries. If an occasional problem is observed, then pass it through the Priesthood line, so the Mission president can make the necessary adjustment. Encourage priesthood leaders to work with members who don't have a proper understanding or appreciation of the missionaries. Members are under the sacred responsibility of saving the souls of all in their ward and stake through Priesthood missionary work. Missionaries are called to teach and preach and expound the Gospel. Help members and missionaries to uphold and support each other in this great work, so the purposes of the Lord can be accomplished and souls saved.

Brethren, these are traditions that affect the spirit and the proper operation of the Priesthood in the Lord's Church. If we can deal with them, the work of the Kingdom in this portion of the Lord's vineyard will be enhanced.

The Lord has called us to stand in our own offices and to labor in our own callings. As we represent the Brethren, let us prayerfully do so in our own right and show that we personally approve that which the Priesthood is asking us to do. While teaching the principle, you may wish to cite the Priesthood leaders and scriptures to help make each point, but be sure to put your own stamp of approval on it and your own seal of testimony.

Gospel Mysteries

Nauvoo After the Exodus
Comments by Andy Ehat
18 April 1978

Though the body of the Church, with the Quorum of Twelve Apostles leading the way, were leaving Nauvoo, the site of their Temple, some selected men were to stay behind to supervise the continued construction of the temple. The saints were obligated to finish the temple as they were commanded of the Lord in revelation to Joseph Smith and so they pressed forward knowing full well that already it had served its purpose.

Some brethren having been called on missions to England, notably Orson Hyde of the Quorum of the Twelve, were among those selected to remain. Samuel W. Richards was one of those who remained. Born in Massachussetts in 1824 and baptized in 1838, he came to Nauvoo in November of 1843. On January of 1844, before the death of Joseph and Hyrum he was ordained a seventy. In his role as a seventy, he was called to serve his mission. But before departing he helped turn Nauvoo into a beautiful ghost town---and that too with fireworks!

When Richards received his endowment, he learned as all initiares learned, the "true order of prayer." And while the body of the Church remained, the separate quorums would meet daily near dusk to pray "after the order of the Priesthood." This same pattern was continued when as Samuel records in his journal, February 12th, 1846, a week after the exodus: "[we] commenced a regular meeting with the brethren in the temple for prayers, to continue so long as we stayed in Nauvoo. The prayer meeting would begin near the hour of sunset. Samuel was in the first Quorum for prayer which had fifteen participants. This "quorum regulated the order of the various prayer meetings that would be held in the temple since Orson Hyde and Joseph Young would be members of this Quorum and would be responsible for supervising all prayer quorums.

The first of March is when Samuel records for the first time some of the spiritual blessings that attended faithful participation in the prayer circle. "...at sundown [I went] to the temple, where we spent the evening in holy conversation, administering the sacrament, and speaking in other tongues, enjoying the blessings of the Gospel." Two weeks later druing the special Sunday evening prayer circle when the Sacrament was administered, Samuel recorded: "In the evening [I] was with the Quorum in the temple until 12 o'clock. The sacrament was administered and great blessing were enjoyed: tongues, prophesying; the angels attended us, [and] their glory filled the house insomuch that many witnessed [the light of the temple] throughout the city and testified thereof, that it was the brightness of fire."

The following Wednesday evening similar spiritual blessings were poured out by the spirit of the Lord. For he records: [In the] evening with the Quorum in the temple. I was presiding. It was testified during the meeting that there had not been so great faith manifested at any time before. It was testified by many outside the temple that the temple was filled with exceeding bright light. [During the meeting] the gift of tongues and prophecy was much enjoyed."

However, these blessings were not to be gained without obedience to the order of prayer. During the next evening's circle meeting this is well illustrated. "I carried a ticket to Uncle Levi [Richards] so he could had admitance into the prayer quorum with us. In the evening he was present with us for the first time. [However], the evening resulted in an unpleasant manner to the company, [for] a censuring spirit arose which took several hours to quell, and for a time [this] seemed as if to destroy the [unity oi] the Quorum. But through faith and perseverance it was overcome, and union restored.

On Sunday the 22nd of March, Samuel gives the names of the Quorum members: Zebedee Coltrin, Phineas Richards, Levi Richards, Graham Coltrin, John

Coltrin, F.D. Richards, Abel Lamb, Benjamin Brown, Wandle Mace, Thomas B. Richards, Charles Patten, Curtis E. Bolton, William Anderson, John Loveless and, of course, himself. "Dressing ourselves in the order of the Priesthood we called upon the Lord, his spirit attended us, and the visions of heaven were opened to our view. I was, as it were, lost to myself. I beheld the earth reel to and fro, and was moved out of its place. Men fell to the earth and their life departed from them. Great was the scene of destruction upon all the face of the land. At the close of the vision, there appeared a great company of saints coming from the west as I stood with my back to the north, and they were passing to the east, and the scripture was fulfilled which saith, 'Come see the desolation which the Lord hath made in the earth.' The company of saints, who had been hid as it were from the earth, walked in the light for the glory of the Lord was round about them, while darkness was upon the face of the earth. I behold other things which were glorious while the power of God rested down upon me. Others also beheld angels and the glory of God. Having had this season of enjoyment, [their faith no doubt peaking], it was proposed by Curtis E. Bolton that we pray for the prophet Joseph to come into our midst and converse with us. Some of the quorum members consented so to do, but the idea was first objected to as being unwise by Brother Levi Richards. He received a reprimand by way of hint to leave the room by Brother Bolton [for] not being agreed with the Quorum. [However], the matter was taken up, and after some remarks from several of the brethren, it was decided by the president, that we had no right to pray for that thing, and all was again right. The sacrament was administered and our joy increased by the gift of tongues and prophecy by which great things were spoken and made know to us."
During the sunday meeting "at the stand" 5 April, Joseph Young said: "pray for our enemies for Paul said, the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual."
[pps 10-12 all on vengeance and prayer].
During the April 12th Sunday evening prayer circle "several dreams were told, and the interpretations given in tongues, where some of the principles of the resurrection were explained and much good instruction given."
On the 27th of April Samuel read a couple of letters from the Camp where the Twelve and rest of the church were based and found that he was directed to leave immediately for England. "That orders had been received from the camp, for those who had been appointed several months before, to take their mission immediately to England, Bro Franklin [D. Richards] with myself being the first two on the list. In the afternoon met in the attic story of the temple..."

DETECTING TRUE & FALSE MESSENGERS
By Richard A. Ware
9 November 1982

In a revelation given to Joseph Smith in May of 1831, the Lord revealed that if after prayer a spirit would not manifest itself, then the person would have power to rebuke the spirit (D&C 50:30-35) . Early in Joseph's life he had a manifestation from a messenger on the banks of the Susquehanna River. Michael had to come and intervene and expose the devil while he appeared as an angel of light (D&C 128:20). Satan has also appeared to several others as an angel of light (Alma 30:53; Moses 1:9-23; 2 Cor 11:14) . In April of 1833 the Prophet warned Jared Carter and other saints, that "if any person have a vision or a visitation from a heavenly messenger, it must be for his own benefit and instruction," and not for those in authority above him (TPJS p.

21). In July of 1839 Joseph expanded the saints understanding in regards to detecting messengers. In summary he said:

1. We must prove all spirits as they come to us.

2. If you see a vision, pray for the interpretation; and "if you get not this, shut it up."

3. "An open vision will manifest that which is more important."

4. There are lying spirits going around giving great manifestations, but they are not all of God.

5. A spirit cannot come except in his glory because it has no physical body to hide his glory.

6. An angel has flesh and bones; and the devil may appear as an angel of light.

7. If you receive a messenger, "ask God to reveal it; if it be of the devil he will flee from you; if of God, He will manifest Himself, or make it manifest."

8. God will adapt himself to your capacity.

9. The devil can speak in tongues.

10. Every spirit or vision or singing is not of God. (July 2, 1839; TPJS pp. 155-162)

In December of 1840, William Clayton recorded some comments which the Prophet had made concerning detection:

1. If an angel [embodied] or spirit [unembodied] appears, offer him your hand, and when you do:

A. the spirit from God will stand still and not offer you his hand. A good spirit will not deceive.

B. "If from the Devil he will either shrink back from you or offer his hand and you will feel nothing."

2. Angels are beings who have bodies and appear to men in the form of man. (Journal of William Clayton, under date given)

A month before the endowment was given by Joseph to the Saints, he gave another lengthy discourse on how to "try the spirits". A summary of that discourse follows:

1. Men are ignorant of the nature of spirits and are thus more easily deceived.

2. No one can detect false spirits without the priesthood.

3. Satan and false spirits use angelic form; a sanctified look and gesture; zeal for the glory of God; a prophetic spirit; gracious influence; godly appearance; holy garb, etc.

4. A man must have the discerning of spirits before he can expose a false spirit.

5. Some are under a false spirit when they think they are under the spirit of God.

6. It requires the spirit of God to understand revelation from God and satan.

7. Spirits are governed by the priesthood.

8. Wicked spirits have their bounds, limits, and laws by which they are governed and controlled.

9. False spirits have sandy colored hair.

10. False spirits will usually appear when the priesthood authority who can detect them are away.

11. By the messenger contradicting a former revelation. (1 Apr 1842; TPJS pp. 202-215)

Speaking to the Relief Society on April 28th, 1842, Joseph told the sisters that "the devil has great power to deceive" and can "so transform things as to make one gape at those who are doing the will of God" (TPJS p. 227). Then on May lst, Joseph told the assembled saints that there are "certain words by which false spirits and personages may be detected from true" and that these keys would be given them in the temple as soon as it was finished. He went on to say that "there are signs in heaven, earth and hell;" and that "the elders must know them all," in order "to be endowed with power," and "to finish their work and prevent imposition." The devil apparently knows many signs, but he does not know the sign of the Son of Man (1 May 1842). Three days later, on May 4th, Joseph gave for the first time the endowment ceremony to nine men, and passed on to them the keys of how to detect messengers.

On February 9, 1843, while in Nauvoo, Joseph again elaborated upon the keys of how to detect messengers:

1. There are two kinds of beings in heaven---

A. angels who are resurrected personages;

B. spirits of just men made perfect, who are not yet resurrected.

2. When a messenger comes, saying he is of God, offer him your hand and request him to shake hands with you.

A. If he is an angel he will shake hands, and you will feel his hand.

B. If he is a just man made perfect, he will appear in his glory, but will not move, and will deliver his message anyway.

C. If he is the devil as an angel of light, when you ask him to shake hands, he will offer you his, but you will not feel anything (D&C 129).

One of Joseph's final comments about detection came on October 9, 1843, while giving a funeral address at the services of Judge James Adams who had been a close friend of his for years and who was one of the nine men who had received their endowments on May 4th, 1842. In his sermon, Joseph commented that "spirits [of just men made perfect] can only be revealed in flaming fire or glory," but that angels have advanced further and their light and glory can be tabernacled (TPJS p. 325). The mission of the spirits of just men made perfect is to minister to those on earth who are sealed up unto eternal life, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down (TPJS p. 325).

During the Nauvoo, Illinois days, Elder Parley P. Pratt wrote a book entitled Key to the Science of Theology which was later revised and published under permission of the First Presidency. In his treatise on spirits, he elaborates on some concepts which were only touched upon by the Prophet:

> The good spirits are they who in this life partook of the Holy Priesthood, and of the fulness of the gospel. This class of spirits minister to the heirs of salvation, both in this world and in the world of spirits. They can appear unto men, when permitted; but not having a fleshly tabernacle, they cannot hide their glory. Hence, an unembodied spirit, if it be a holy personage, will be surrounded with a halo of resplendent glory, or brightness, above the brightness of the sun.
>
> Whereas, spirits not worthy to be glorified will appear without this brilliant halo; and, although they often attempt to pass as angels of light there is more or less of darkness about them. So it is with Satan and his hosts who have not been embodied. (1965)

THE TRUE ORDER OF PRAYER
FROM AN HISTORICAL AND SCRIPTURAL PERSPECTIVE

By Richard A. Ware

THE KEYS OF THE TRUE ORDER OF PRAYER

December 1986

It seemed to be understood by the saints of the 1800's that the keys of the priesthood, meaning the keys of how to ask and receive an answer, belonged to the fulness of the priesthood, and were exercised by those who had received their fulness blessings. Harrison Burgess records in his journal that they received their "washing and anointing preparatory to the fulness of the priesthood with the signs and tokens belonging to the same."(1) This highest and holiest of all ordinances gave individuals the power to approach God and receive answers to their petitions. Answers to such prayers came in a number of different ways. Light and knowledge dealing with things past, present and future, as well as requesting messengers were given at their request.(2) This, however, was not true of those who had not yet received the fulness of the priesthood ordinance, even though they had been endowed and had entered into the eternal marriage covenant. Although there were many prayer circles composed of those who had received the fulness blessings, there were also prayer circles that were attended and composed of those who had not been recipients of the fulness blessings.(3) What was Joseph's intention when he revealed the keys of how to ask and receive an answer?

The Prophet Joseph recognized the importance of the "keys of prayer" and how the proper use of them would bless the saints. When he administered the endowment for the first time in this dispensation, on May 4th, 1842, he stated the reason why this ancient order was so important, commenting that he had restored again to the earth the...

> ...principles and order of the priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of Days, and all those plans and principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds."(4)

The early saints were taught that it was through the use of the keys of the priesthood, which were received in the endowment, that they were thereby "enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn" and thus obtain the promise of eternal life. Commenting on the above passage, Elder Bruce R. McConkie said:

> The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings [which come through the reception of the second anointings] are found only in the temples of God. "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing. These [key words and signs], of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communication of keys," the Prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds.(5)

Thus, for those who have been endowed and entered into the eternal marriage covenant, it is possible to petition(6) the heavens to obtain the fulness of the priesthood. Obtaining the fulness of the priesthood, then, becomes the next step for such persons. The ordinances of the temple and the reception of the keys of prayer are essential in order to give a person the power to petition God for the highest of all blessings wherein a person makes his calling and election sure and is sealed up to eternal life. Through this ordinance the person also receives the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood which includes the sealing power.(7) Thus Joseph stated that we should seek diligently to make our calling and election sure, and then "wait patiently for the promise until you obtain it."(8) Then, after the person has come this far, he can then obtain the blessings of the second comforter,(9) and have both the Father and the Son minister to him.

In a very interesting article written by President Joseph F. Smith in 1906, then President of the Church, the importance of using the keys of prayer was emphasized:

> The Lord Almighty has revealed unto us truths, and principles. He has given us commandments, shown and taught us the order of prayer, and how to worship in spirit and in truth. He has given us signs which it is our privilege to use to indicate our determination before him, to remember him, and to witness unto him that we are willing to keep the commandments that he has given, that we may always have his spirit to be with us, even unto the end.'(10)

In the minutes of meetings held in Provo, Utah in 1868, Bishop A. 0. Smoot said that the Savior "gave signs and tokens whereby we can approach him", and that "the Prophet Joseph regretted that the Elders of Israel did not seek wisdom more eagerly."(11)

In summary, the literature makes it very evident that the saints were taught the true order of prayer so that they could go to him in their secret places and pour out their petitions to him, asking that they too might be sealed up to eternal life. Once sealed, the person could then use the signs to obtain light and knowledge concerning all things past, present and future, and even request messengers to appear and minister, if desired. Thus we see the use and importance of the keys of prayer, and why it was so important for the prophet Joseph to reveal them in sacred places. And as we learn more and more about God, we become as the brother of Jared and acquire greater faith because we have greater knowledge, and by "having a knowledge of God, we begin to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer. When we understand the character of God, and know how to come to him, he begins to unfold the heavens to us, and to tell us all about it. When we are ready to come to him, he is ready to come to us."(12) And thus in this manner will the statement of Joseph be realized wherein he said:

> ...the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients, arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker and is caught up to dwell with Him.(13)

This is the purpose of the ordinances of the temple---to help us to become pure enough to where we can finally obtain the fulness blessings and thereby come to "enjoy the words of eternal life in this world, and eternal life in the world to come, even immortal glory."(14)

GENERAL CONCEPTS REGARDING THE TRUE ORDER
November 1986

The following is a summary of the concepts which the Latter-day Saints had regarding the true order of prayer, during the 1800's.

1. The home was the most sacred place on earth next to the temple.
2. Homes were blessed and dedicated by Melchizedek Priesthood holders so that the spirit of the Lord may reside there. Homes and lands upon which the homes stood were normally paid for before dedication. [The policy today now is that the home can be dedicated and blessed without being paid for.]
3. A room and an altar were selected and dedicated for prayer. Occasionally there were locations in nature which were also dedicated for prayer. Some of these locations were near the home while others were on mountain tops or in groves.
4. Those who were endowed had a set of their robes at home to use in prayer. However, many times prayers were offered up without using the robes, as long as the garments were worn.
5. When praying at the altar, the participants remembered the sick and prayed for things "present".
6. There were many types of prayer circles in use: (1) one individual, alone; (2) husband and wife together; (3) a group of brethren or a group of sisters; (4) a mixed group of couples; (5) a family group, including children.

7. When prayer was engaged in as a family, normally the robes were not worn, especially with the children present. However, most children knew of the robes and garments and had seen them.

8. Family prayer circles were not uncommon in the church. Parents and children would kneel in a circle and either hold hands or put their arms around each other during prayer. Many times they would pray with a small table or object in the center.

9. It was considered vital that the participants not have ill feelings towards each other. Thus it was important for husbands and wives to reconcile themselves, if necessary, before prayer.

10. It was understood that anyone who used the signs of the priesthood prayed in the true order. If the robes were not available, they were instructed to have on the garment before entering prayer since it was considered to be a shield and a protection against the seen and unseen powers of the destroyer.

11. The true order was always conducted as it is today in the temples.

12. Prayers were uttered as prompted by the spirit.

13. Use of the true order was not confined to the temple or to a home. Many went to secluded spots in nature such as mountain tops, groves, canyons, deserts, upper rooms or wildernesses.

14. Different objects have also served as altars: boulders, uncut stones (12), sculptured wood objects, and other objects in nature. Whatever was used, it was always dedicated first as an altar.

15. Symbolism was also used by the saints in prayer. At prayer time the saints would face the direction of the nearest source of light. If an individual was nearest the celestial room inside a temple, then the altar would face the celestial room, and the person would pray in that direction. If the person was outside the temple, then he would face the direction of the nearest temple. Otherwise, he would face the southeast direction, since that is where the source of light is in the morning hours. Facing the source of light symbolized looking to God for light.

16. Prayers in the true order were said out loud with others in the circle repeating vocally. However, the saints were also taught that they should repeat in their minds the words of prayers which were said in public.

17. The early saints were taught that the husband was the "lord" of the wife and that he was responsible for her salvation. Therefore, all messengers visiting the family kingdom would present their message through the head of the family, as portrayed by Peter who speaks to Adam.

Veils were used by the sisters to indicate to the angels of heaven that they were not to be approached directly, but through their husbands. Anciently it was used as a "shield" of modesty which was only taken off in front of her husband.

At Joseph Smith's request, Mary Lightner prayed for an answer to a situation that had been presented to her. When an angel came to her in response to her petition, she covered her eyes with her hands. The angel was insulted and left. Thus a veil could be anything that covers the eyes or face.

There are scriptural examples of where angels appeared to women, especially in the Old Testament. Such appearances, however, related directly to the stewardship of the woman and not to the entire family. This is shown beautifully by the appearance of the angel Gabriel to Mary, announcing to her that she would be the mother of the Savior.

Women can have visions, dreams and revelations, including the visitation of angels, just as a righteous man. Such revelations, however, whether to the man or to the woman, will be for their stewardship only.

18. The true order of prayer has always been taught (except for rare exceptions) to the saints during the endowment. It was in the temple that the saints learned how to approach God & ask and receive an answer. The correct form always followed this procedure:

A. Participants dressed in the robes, with the robe on the right shoulder. If the robes were not available, they had to at least have on the garments.

B. All stood, facing the altar. Offered up all the signs and penalties in proper sequence order, allowing the names to pass through the mind only. The names were never said here. The words of the fourth sign were said aloud.

C. The names of the sick were placed upon the altar, if this was a part of the prayer. However, other things can be prayed for. President Woodruff once placed the essence of a revelation upon the altar and all the brethren prayed for it's fulfillment.

D. After offering the signs, the person who was mouth, would kneel at the altar, select one of the signs, and pray.

19. Those who had received the highest ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood also received the sealing power. Thus they had the power to converse with heaven, as well as the right. Those who were endowed and married for eternity in the temple, but who had not yet received the last ordinance, could petition the heavens, but did not hold the same right or power as those who had been sealed up.

20. Joseph Smith taught that the reason why the keys of the true order of prayer were given, was to enable every person "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds." (TPJS, p. 237)

PREFACE

I first became aware of the topic of the true order of prayer while attending Brigham Young University in 1971. It was there that I began to understand many of the basic concepts dealing with the true order, as they were reflected in many historical documents and scriptures.

This compilation is an effort on my part to pull together all the relevant topics on the subject, and to combine in chronological order all the documents that I have come into contact with over the years. I have also added scriptural references to the historical documents.

This work on the true order of prayer, was not written, nor intended to be used, as authority to practice it outside the temple. The thoughts expressed herein reflect the historical perspective of the true order (as close as possible). but they do not reflect the position of the church today. This work is only intended to be informative as to the way individuals probably understood the true order of prayer, and the way they practiced it during the 1800's, and not how it is to be implemented today.

With these comments, I want to say that The Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints is the only true and living church upon the face of the earth today, and that we are guided by a living prophet. The Lord desires that we repent, and become clean and pure before him so that we might one day re-enter his presence. Understanding more about the true order of prayer from the eyes of the early Latter-day Saints, and from the scriptures, I believe, helps us to appreciate what the Lord is trying to do for us in regards to re-entering his presence.

INTRODUCTION

Because of the fall of Adam & Eve, all mankind are born into a fallen world---a "telestial" environment or existence. Each person who comes here has a veil placed over his memory and over his spiritual eyes, so that he no longer remembers, nor is he able to see. Thus, this earth life has become a time of proving for each one of us, to see what path we will follow, above all other paths.

If an individual will have faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and in his atonement which he effected for all those who repent and come unto him, and if he will repent of all his sins and be baptized by water and receive the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, then his foot is set upon the path which leads him back to the mansions of the Father. He is like the prodigal son who is tired of living in the wicked world and who now desires to return to his Father, and so he sets out on his journey and travels the path which will lead him home once again. And when the Father sees him coming, he rushes forth to embrace him, and place a royal robe upon his shoulders, and sit him down at the feast. For he was once dead, but is now alive again. As a son, he is a joint-heir with the firstborn Son who never strayed, and who inherits all that the Father hath. He is home again, at last.

We are also like the man who fell among thieves and who was wounded and stripped of his raiment. For we too, came to earth and were stripped of our pre-earth glory and became subject to good and evil, and our sins have wounded our spiritual selves. Not being able to help ourselves we wait for someone who has the compassion and the power to help. Many ministers of the world pass us by, but the good samaritan [Christ] does not pass us by, but lifts us up, washes and anoints our wounds, takes us to a place of peace and rest, and pays the full price of our wounds himself. All this is done that we might live with the Father once more.

Historically, the early saints were taught this expanded understanding of the keys of the priesthood (or the keys of asking and receiving an answer) as they were revealed in the endowment. It was their understanding that all might gain the power to return to the presence of the Father by use of the keys. Through the prophet Joseph Smith, the knowledge of how to penetrate the veil was again restored to the earth, allowing mankind to climb Mount Sinai figuratively, and come into the presence of the Lord. Such individuals remove their shoes, for the ground on which they stand is holy.

Through the teachings of the prophet Joseph to the saints of Kirtland and Nauvoo, it was very apparent that he wanted to bring them all back into the presence of the Lord. To this end he exhorted them to make their calling and election sure, that their names might be sealed in the Lamb's book of life. He instructed them regarding these things, and dispensed to them all the ordinances necessary to obtain such blessings. He also showed them how to pray so that their prayers could be answered.

Joseph was well aware of the tremendous blessings and promises which the ancients were blessed with, but stated that WE could not receive those same blessings just by reading about them in the Bible. We would have to do the same things that the ancients did in order to properly qualify for such high blessings. And Joseph understood that communicating with God through prayer was one of the most essential ways that a person had, to obtain the blessings. He said:

> Reading the experiences of others, or the revelation given to them, can never give us a comprehensive view of our condition and true relation to God. Knowledge of these things can only be obtained by experience through the ordinances of God set forth for that purpose. Could you gaze into heaven five minutes, you would know more than you would by reading all that was written on the subject. (TPJS, p. 324)

Joseph's solution to the problem was, that knowledge of these things can only be obtained by experience through the ordinances of God set forth for that purpose. Certain it is that the ordinances not only bestow upon an individual additional knowledge, but the ordinances also become the channel or medium through which individuals may obtain for themselves the same experiences which the ancients received for themselves. The Prophet explained that it was by means of the keys of the priesthood which he restored to the earth, and which he made available to all the faithful saints through the endowment, that all would be able to actually experience for themselves many of the things which can be read about in the scriptures. Through the keys given in the endowment, many faithful saints living in the 1800's were able to "gaze into heaven five minutes" and thus "know more than [they would have] by reading all that was written on the subject." The gospel of Jesus Christ not only contains the covenants necessary to gain the same promises which were given to the ancients, but it also contains the keys whereby faithful individuals can approach the throne of grace and be admitted into the presence of the Lord, while they yet dwell upon the earth in the flesh.

In support of this concept, Elder Bruce R. McConkie said:

> Some of the faithful and elect, on occasion, see his face and hear his voice. * * * The reason more people do not pierce the veil and see his face is simply that more do not live the law qualifying them for such a transcendent spiritual experience. * * * To all who will listen He still speaks. (The Mortal Messiah 4:416-18; 1981 ed.)

President Brigham Young considered it very important for an individual to comprehend the will of God in their lives:

> ...the vail of darkness that separates us from God, and which prevents us from comprehending the things of His kingdom, will grow thinner and thinner, until we see with great distinctness and clearness the purposes of God our heavenly Father, and comprehend them as He designs we should, and carry them out in our lives. (J.D. 13:373; November 13, 1870)

Elder Bruce R. McConkie commented on how Joseph Smith had revealed that the endowment was designed to "enable one 'to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Eloheim in the eternal worlds.' (TPJS, p. 237)" In order to do this, there were certain keys words and signs belonging to the priesthood which had to be observed in order to obtain the blessing of the fulness of the priesthood. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 482)

HISTORICAL REVIEW & RESTORATION OF THE TRUE ORDER

The Patriarchal Order Given to Adam & Eve

The divine system of government in the heavens is patriarchal in nature. The sealings which are done in temples today are organizing the faithful saints into that same type of government which they will live under in the eternities to come. In temple marriage the woman gives herself to the man during the marriage ceremony, to become a part of his kingdom. The man does not give himself to the woman. If he is true and faithful in magnifying his priesthood callings, he will become an heir, a joint-heir with Jesus Christ, to all that the Father hath. This is according to the oath and covenant of the priesthood (D&C 84:33-40).

This divine patriarchal order was given to Adam and Eve when they were placed upon the earth. Abraham records how the Pharaoh of Egypt could not hold the priesthood because he came from the lineage which forbade them such power; yet the pharaoh:

> ...being a righteous man, established his kingdom and judged his people wisely and justly all his days, seeking earnestly to imitate that order established by the fathers in the first generations, in the days of the first patriarchal reign, even in the reign of Adam, and also of Noah, his father, who blessed him with the blessings of the earth, and with the blessings of wisdom, but cursed him as pertaining to the Priesthood" (Abr. 1:26).

That was the first system of government which existed. Adam and Eve gave the spiritual and temporal guidance to their own children. They did not attend church services because there was no church until the days of Moses, when he organized an ecclesiastical structure to help in teaching and governing the children of Israel.

Adam and Eve were the ones who had all the authority to initiate their children into the ordinances of the gospel from baptism on the one end, to the fulness of the priesthood on the other. It was Adam and Eve who were the first temple president and matron upon the earth. They administered the same ordinances to their children which we receive today.

Many of his children must have received the fulness of the priesthood which enabled them to come into the presence of the Lord. The scriptures state that "God revealed himself unto Seth, and he rebelled not, but offered an acceptable sacrifice, like unto his brother Abel" (Moses 6:3). After Cain committed murder, the Lord cursed him, and "shut [him] out from the presence of the Lord" (Moses 5:41). Cain felt this was more than he could bear, and he said: "Behold thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the Lord, and from thy face shall I be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth" (Moses 5:39).

Brigham Young records that it was Adam who taught Enoch all he needed to know about handling the elements, which knowledge and power enabled Enoch and his city to become translated and leave this earth.

There are several scriptural accounts which give us a clearer picture as to what the patriarchal order was that Adam and Eve lived by:

1. Multiply & Replenish the Earth

God commanded Adam & Eve to "be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth" (Moses 2:29), which command was not rescinded even after the fall. Therefore, their first command from God was to bear children.

2. Adam & Eve Married Before the Fall

The marriage of Adam & Eve was an eternal marriage, inasmuch as there was no death before the fall. Such is the example they set for their children.

"And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed" (Moses 3:25).

3. Worked by the Sweat of their Brow

They were independent and took care of their own temporal needs:

After the fall, "Adam began to till the earth, and to have dominion over all the beasts of the field, and to eat his bread by the sweat of his brow . . . .And Eve, also, his wife, did labor with him (Moses 5:1)

4. Jointly Prayed Unto the Lord In the True Order

(1) After the fall, Adam built an altar and "Adam and Eve, his wife, called upon the name of the Lord, and they heard the voice of the Lord from the way toward the Garden of Eden, speaking unto them, and they saw him not; for they were shut out of his presence" (Moses 5:4). Later, an angel appeared and taught Adam the gospel and Adam prophesied that he would see God again while in the flesh (Moses 5:10).

(2) "And Adam and Eve, his wife, ceased not to call upon God" (Moses 5:16).

(3) "The g[rand?] key word was the first word Adam spoke and is a word of supplication. He [Joseph Smith] found the word by the Urim & Thummim--It is that key word to which the heavens is opened" (Journal William Clayton, 15 Jun 1844).

5. Adam Held the Fulness of the Priesthood

The patriarchal order was directed by Adam and Eve who held the fulness of the priesthood power and authority. By it they were able to bless their descendants, control the elements, and teach Enoch how to become translated:

"And thus all things were confirmed unto Adam, by an holy ordinance" (Moses 5:59).

6. Kept A Book of Remembrance

All the inspired sayings of Adam were kept in a book, which was used to teach his children how to read. In the book was a genealogy of the generations of the children of God:

"And a book of remembrance was kept, in the which was recorded, in the language of Adam, for it was given unto as many as called upon God to write by the spirit of inspiration;

And by them their children were taught to read and write, having a language which was pure and undefiled.

Now this same Priesthood, which was in the beginning, shall be in the end of the world also.

Now this prophecy Adam spake, as he was moved upon by the Holy Ghost, and a genealogy was kept of the children of God. And this was the book of the generations of Adam. . . ." (Moses 6:5-8).

7. Taught His Children the Gospel

Adam taught his children the process of rebirth into the kingdom of God and what the blessings are that will result through such a rebirth (Moses 6:59-62). Thus he held his own "family home evenings":

"Therefore I give unto you [Adam] a commandment, to teach these things freely unto your children. . . . (Moses 6:58)

"And it came to pass that Enoch continued his speech, saying: Behold, our father Adam taught these things, and many have believed and become the sons of God." (Moses 7:1)

8. Adam Blessed His Posterity

Apparently Adam bestowed many blessings upon his children over the years, and finally, prior to his death he bestowed his last blessing upon them:

"Three years previous to the death of Adam, he called Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and Methuselah, who were all high priests, with the residue of his posterity who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-Ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing". * * *

"And Adam stood up in the midst of the congregation; and, notwithstanding he was bowed down with age, being full of the Holy Ghost, predicted whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generation.

These things were all written in the book of Enoch, and are to be testified of in due time" (D&C 107:53, 56-57)

This is the patriarchal order that governed the children of Adam & Eve for many generations. But through wickedness, this order was finally lost among the people and there began to be kings and rulers who would govern the people, and soon the earth was filled with a diversity of types of governments.

However, whenever the gospel was restored to the earth after an apostasy, the patriarchal order was restored as well. This sacred system, however, was not given to the masses of people. It was given to the righteous who proved themselves worthy of such high blessings. And several portions of the patriarchal order had to be restored only in sacred places, set apart from the world. In olden times such places were mountain tops, groves, wildernesses and caves---any place where the world was not. Today, those sacred portions of the patriarchal order are only found in temples.

Restoration of the True Order

Introduction

At the April, 1844 General Conference of the Church, the Prophet Joseph said that it was ". . . the first principle of the Gospel to know for a certainty the Character of God, and to know that we may converse with him as one converses with another. . ." (TPJS, pp. 345-46; 6 April 1844). Joseph Smith learned the reality of this principle early in his life when still a boy of 14. He learned that the Father and the Son do actually exist, and that he could see them, and speak to them, and have his prayers answered. This concept that one may converse with God has been a true principle from the days of Adam down to the present time.

Joseph went on to say that in order to approach God we must have a knowledge of God, and that we must know HOW to come to Him:

> Having a knowledge of God, we begin to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer. When we understand the character of God, and know how to come to him, he begins to unfold the heavens to us, and to tell us all about it. When we are ready to come to him, he is ready to come to us. (TPJS, pp. 349-50; 6 April 1844)

This knowledge of how to approach God existed with Adam, and was passed down from generation to generation to all the faithful saints, that they might know how to approach God. Prior to his first vision, Joseph had spent considerable time reading the Bible and learning about how the ancients prophets would talk with God. It is very likely that Joseph knew more about how to approach God when he went to the grove to pray than what he was later willing to reveal concerning his visionary experience. But because God is no respecter of persons, and desires all to come back to his presence, it is reasonable to assume that these same keys of communication were destined to be possessed by all the faithful. At the time these keys were first given to 9 men on May 4th, 1842, Joseph promised that ". . . there was nothing made known to these men but what will be made known to all the saints of the last days, so soon as they are prepared to receive, and a proper place [a temple] is prepared to communicate them, even the weakest of the Saints. . ." (TPJS, p. 237; 4 May 1842). With these keys the Latter-day Saints are able, through the exercise of their faith, to approach God in the proper manner and learn to commune with heaven.

Restoring the True Order

There is some evidence to indicate that Joseph Smith understood some elements of the true order of prayer prior to the first vision. In an 1835 account of the first vision in which Joseph related his experience in the grove to a man by the name of Matthias, it states:

> Being thus perplexed in mind I retired to the silent grove and there bowed down before the Lord, under a realizing sense (if the bible be true) ask and you shall receive, knock and it shall be opened, seek and you shall find, and again, if any man lack wisdom, let [him ask] of God who giveth to all men liberally & upbraideth not. (Joseph Smith's First Vision, by Milton V. Backman, p. 158)

The formula of asking, seeking and knocking is a summation of what a person must do to change his life and put it in order so that he might open the heavens and commune with God.

In January of 1833, the Prophet taught the brethren of the School of the Prophets how to pray so as to receive revelation. They would gather together in the morning about sunrise and engage ". . .in silent prayer, kneeling, with our hands uplifted each one praying in silence, no one whispered above his breath . . ." and on this occasion the Father and the Son appeared to them (Minutes of the Salt Lake School of the Prophets, 3 Oct 1883).

In 1835 Joseph Smith taught the father of Lorenzo Dow Young how to get the power to heal his son. "Join in prayer," the Prophet said, "one by mouth and the others repeat after him in unison. After prayer. . .anoint with oil; then lay hands on him, one being mouth and the other two repeating in unison after him . . .continuing the administration in this way until you receive a testimony that he will be restored (The Words of Joseph Smith, p. 54; by Ehat & Cook).

In October of 1840, the Prophet Joseph commented that the "keys of this priesthood [Melchizedek] consisted in obtaining the voice of Jehovah. . ." (WJS, p. 42) In January of 1841 the Lord revealed to Joseph that He would restore the "fulness of the priesthood" in a temple built to his name [in this case it was the Nauvoo Temple]. In this revelation Joseph was also commanded to teach both Hyrum Smith and William Law how to pray, thereby giving them "the keys whereby [they] may ask and receive blessings (D&C 124:97; 19 Jan 1841). Although this revelation came in January of 1841, Joseph Smith did not actually extend these keys to Hyrum Smith and William Law until May of 1842. William Law received them on the 4th, along with eight other brethren, and Hyrum Smith received them on the 5th with Joseph.

In January of 1842, Wilford Woodruff recorded that Joseph Smith had been appointed Editor of the Times & Seasons with John Taylor assisting (H.C. 4:551). On May 16, 1842 the Times & Seasons published facsimile #2, depicting Abraham upon the altar about to be sacrificed. Abraham's unusual position upon the altar, however, depicts him as using the keys of prayer through which he was able to call an angel to deliver him from death (T&S 3:783; also H.C. 4:519; 1 Mar 1842).

On April 28th, 1842, Joseph Smith addressed the Relief Society sisters in Nauvoo, and stated that women could anoint with oil and administer to the sick with the laying on of hands. This concept would be better understood once the sisters could be endowed in the temple. Joseph also...

> ...spoke of delivering the keys of the Priesthood to the Church, and said that the faithful members of the Relief Society should receive them in connection with their husbands, that the Saints whose integrity has been tried and proved faithful, might know how to ask the Lord and receive an answer.
> He exhorted the sisters...to...arm and sustain [their husbands]...for the keys of the kingdom are about to be given to them, that they may be able to detect everything false; as well as to all the Elders who shall prove their integrity in due season. (TPJS, p. 226; 2 May 1842)

The keys of how to ask and receive an answer also contain the knowledge of how to detect false from true messengers. The Prophet was vitally concerned about this aspect of the true order, for he knew that once the brethren were able to commune with heaven, that they would also experience appearances and revelations from evil sources. Many individuals in scriptural history were deceived by these appearances, and thought they were of God, when in actual fact they were of the devil. Joseph was very concerned that once he had endowed the saints with the power to commune with heaven, that they would be deceived by the revelations they would receive, hence his eagerness to caution the saints to not be deceived, and to learn how to detect. On May 1st, 1842 Joseph preached in the grove, and said that "the keys are certain signs and words by which false spirits and personages may be detected from true, which cannot be revealed to the Elders till the Temple is completed" (H.C. 4:608; 1 May 1842).

On May 4, 1842, the keys of which Joseph had been speaking were finally delivered to 9 of the brethren who had assembled in the upper room of the store in Nauvoo. He instructed:

> ...them in the principles and order of the Priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of Days, and all those plans and principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds. (TPJS, p. 237)

The Prophet also said that all these things would be revealed to all the saints as soon as there was a temple built in which the keys could be given.

On the 27th of August, 1843, Brigham Young comments that "any person can ask the Lord for a witness concerning himself, and get an answer, but not to lead the Church" (H.C. 5:551)

These keys were given to Judge James Adams on May 4th, 1842. Said Joseph: "I anointed him to the patriarchal power---to receive the keys of knowledge and power, by revelation to himself. He has had revelations concerning his departure, and has [now] gone to a more important work" (TPJS, p. 326; 9 Oct 1843).

In February, 1844, Joseph Smith met with the Twelve and discussed the Oregon and California Exploring Expedition, and stated that he wanted "every man that goes to be a king and a priest. When he gets on the mountains he may want to talk with his God" (H.C. 6:224; 23 Feb 1844). When a person is anointed and ordained a king and priest, he receives the power to open the heavens through the use of the keys of prayer, and to "stand in the presence of God" (IV Genesis 14:31).

In June of 1844, William Clayton records in his journal:

> The g[rand?] key word was the first word Adam spoke and is a word of supplication. He found the word by the Urim & Thummim--It is that key word to which the heavens is opened. (15 Jun 1844)

In August, Brigham Young stated that he has "the keys and therefore the means of obtaining the mind of God upon [any] subject" (7 Aug 1844).

The keys whereby an individual may "ask and receive an answer" were incorporated into, and made a part of, the endowment ceremony. All who receive their endowments also receive the keys of the priesthood, or the keys of how to ask and receive an answer.

The Keys of the Priesthood

Introductory Comments

The keys of the priesthood are the keys "of how to ask the Lord and receive an answer" (TPJS, p. 226). These keys of divine communication were first held by Adam and Eve, and from them they were transmitted to all his faithful children, down through the generations of time.

Those keys were restored again to the earth through the Prophet Joseph Smith. Today they are received by the faithful who enter the temples and are endowed. These keys have enable those who have had faith to do many marvelous things. With them the person can:

1. Detect everything false;

2. Grasp the great plan of salvation and unlock the past and the future with its succession of eternities;

3. Open the heavens;

4. Ask God and obtain answers;

5. Detect true from false angels;

6. Secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds.

It was a long time after the Prophet Joseph Smith had received the keys of the kingdom of God, and after Hyrum and others had received many blessings, that the Lord gave Joseph a revelation, to show him and others how they could ask for and receive certain blessings. We read in the revelations of St. John, that [of] the white stone [as follows:] "and in the stone a new name, which no man knoweth save him that receiveth it." Joseph tells us [in D&C 130:10-11] that this new name is a key-word, which can only be obtained through the endowments. This is one of the keys and blessings that will be bestowed upon the Saints in these last days, for which we should be very thankful.

. . . Once when speaking in one of our general fast meetings, he [Joseph Smith] said that we did not know how to pray to have our prayers answered. But when I and my husband had our endowments in February, 184[3], Joseph Smith presiding, he taught us the order of prayer.

He was present with us and lectured and talked with us after we had received our first ordinances, and I have met him many times at councils which were held and he told us many things and explained them to us, showed us how to pray, and how to detect them when true or false angels come to us, and many other true things he taught us, and he instituted the endowments through the Lord.

16. The Improvement Era, IX (August, 1906), 812-815; "Fashion and the Violation of Covenants and Duty." by Joseph F. Smith, President of the Church at time.

The Lord Almighty has revealed unto us truths, and principles. He has given us commandments, shown and taught us the order of prayer, and how to worship in spirit and in truth. He has given us signs which it is our privilege to use to indicate our determination before him, to remember him, and to witness unto him that we are willing to keep the commandments that he has given, that we may always have his spirit to be with us, even unto the end.

Not one of these commandments of God, these gifts that have been bestowed, these keys of knowledge and of principle that have been restored and revealed unto us, through the gospel of Jesus Christ and its ordinances, should be violated in the least by the Latter-day Saints. They should be held in sacred reverence. * * * And by neglecting, slighting, and putting them aside, by turning away from the course which the Lord has marked out for us to pursue, we weaken ourselves, shear ourselves of our own strength, and deprive ourselves of the light needed to make us more efficient in the discharge of our duties as the children of God.

Genesis 29:25--

And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold it was Leah: and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done unto me? did not I serve with thee for Rachel? wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?

Commentary--

And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold, it was Leah __ But at night it was not Leah (i.e. he failed to recognize that it was Leah) because Jacob had given Rachel certain secret signs by which they could at all times recognize one another, and when Rachel saw that they were about to bring Leah to him for the marriage ceremony, she thought, "My sister may now be put to shame", and she therefore readily transmitted these signs to her (Meg. 13b).

18. Mormon Doctrine, p. 482; 1966, 2nd ed., Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. (D&C 124:28, 34, 42; 127:8.) "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing." (Teachings, p. 199.) These, of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communication of keys," the Prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds." (Teachings, p. 237.) Celestial marriage itself is an "order of the priesthood" without which no one can gain the fulness of glory in the eternal worlds. (D&C 131:1-4; 132.) Anciently the elders of Israel who married out of the temple, were said to "have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood." (Neh. 13:25-30)

"Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessing." (Teachings, p. 322.) "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord. . All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole." (Teachings, pp. 308-309)

HOW TO ASK, SEEK AND KNOCK

Introductory Comments

Not only did the Prophet Joseph instruct the saints to ask, seek and knock; he stated that by doing so they would be able to "come up to the same glory [as the ancients arrived at], and see for yourselves [the same things which they saw], and know for yourselves." (TPJS, p. 13). There are also several scriptural examples which portray the Lord's desire that we do this.

At a passing glance we might suppose that there is really nothing there in the admonition beyond the fact that we need to seek. However, the three words can be used to indicate the things a person must actually do in order to prepare himself to receive the fulness of the Lord's blessings.

So what would a person ask for? Well, if our overall goal is to return to the presence of the Father and the Son, while we yet dwell in the flesh, and ultimately for all eternity, then the first step which we must take is to know what we must do in order to return to his presence. A person cannot be saved in ignorance of the gospel plan. We must come to fully understand the plan of redemption before we can understand what the path is which leads back to Father. Therefore, we must first ASK FOR A KNOWLEDGE of the plan of redemption. Realizing the need which mortals have of such information, the Lord revealed his plan through the scriptures. Thus, when we ask for further light and knowledge, the Lord gives us the scriptures and the writings of the prophets. By searching them we will learn all that is essential for us to return to his presence.

Secondly, while we are asking the Lord for light and knowledge, we can begin the next step---that of SEEKING THE LORD'S PRESENCE. By increasing our knowledge of what the Lord expects of us by searching the scriptures, we can begin to live and apply those doctrinal concepts that will help us to become clean and pure before him. If we desire to enter the Lord's presence, then we must be clean and pure, for no unclean thing can enter his presence. By keeping the commandments we apply what we learn, and are thus able to bring our lives into greater conformity to what the Lord expects of us. Thus we seek the divine presence by conforming our lives to the divine image.

Lastly, as we are asking for further light and knowledge, and while we are seeking the divine presence, we should knock at the veil through prayer. On December 28, 1845, the endowed saints in Nauvoo were instructed that through the keys of the priesthood, an individual would be able to knock and receive answers to his prayers. They were told that altars are where they were to "knock" for that was where the real veil was located. Joseph counselled that they should acquaint themselves with men like Daniel, who prayed three times daily towards the source of light: the temple.

Thus the formula is:

ASK	Search the scriptures
SEEK	Keep the commandments
KNOCK	Pray in faith

Scriptural Quotations

ASK

1. Matthew 7:7-8

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:
For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

2. 2 Nephi 32:4

Wherefore, now after I have spoken these words, if ye cannot understand them it will be because ye ask not, neither do ye knock; wherefore, ye are not brought into the light, but must perish in the dark.

3. Mosiah 4:10

And again, believe that ye must repent of your sins and forsake them, and humble yourselves before God; and ask in sincerity of heart that he would forgive you; and now, if you believe all these things see that ye do them.

SEEK

1. Deuteronomy 4:29

But if from thence thou shalt seek the LORD thy God, thou shalt find him, if thou seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul.

2. 1 Chronicles 16:10-11

Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord.
Seek the LORD and his strength, seek his face continually.

3. Ezra 8:22

The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek him; but his power and his wrath is against all them that forsake him.

4. Psalms The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good.
The LORD looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God. (14:1-2; see also 53:1-2)

One thing have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the LORD, and to enquire in his temple.
For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set me up upon a rock. * * *

Hear, 0 LORD, when I cry with my voice: have mercy also upon me, and answer me.

When thou saidst, Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, LORD, will I seek.

Hide not thy face far from me; put not thy servant away in anger; thou hast been my help; leave me not, neither forsake me, 0 God of my salvation. (27:4-5; 7-9)

0 God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is.

To see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary. (63:1-2)

Seek the Lord, and his strength: seek his face evermore. (105:4)

Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the whole heart. (119:2)

5. Proverbs

Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded;

But ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would none of my reproof: I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh; When your fear cometh as desolation, and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when distress and anguish cometh upon you.

Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me:

For they that hated knowledge, and did not choose the fear of the Lord: They would none of my counsel: they despised all my reproof. Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices. (1:24-31)

I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me. (8:17)

6. Isaiah

Yea, in the way of thy judgments, 0 LORD, have we waited for thee; the desire of our soul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee.

With my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early: for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness. (26:8-9)

Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. (55:6-7)

Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their transgression, and the house of Jacob their sins.

Yet they seek me daily, and delight to know my ways, as a nation that did righteousness, and forsook not the ordinance of their God: they ask of me the ordinances of justice; they take delight in approaching to God. (58:1-2)

7. Jeremiah

Then shall ye call upon me, and ye shall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you.
And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart.
And I will be found of you, saith the LORD: and I will turn away your captivity, and I will gather you. . . (29:12-14)
And seekest thou great things for thyself? seek them not: for, behold, I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith the LORD: but thy life will I give unto thee for a prey in all places whither thou goest. (45:5)

8. Lamentations 3:25

The LORD is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him.

9. Daniel 9:3

And I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes.

10. Hosea 5:15

I will go and return to my place, till they acknowledge their offence, and seek my face: in their affliction they will seek me early [in the morning].

11. Amos 5:4

For thus saith the Lord unto the house of Israel, Seek ye me, and ye shall live.

12. Matthew 7:7-8

Ask, [for further light & knowledge] and it shall be given you; seek [for me early in the morning], and ye shall find [me]; knock [through the true order of prayer], and it [the veil] shall be opened unto you:
For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

13. Doctrine & Covenants

He that seeketh me early shall find me, and shall not be forsaken. (88:83)
And seek the face of the Lord always, that in patience ye may possess your souls, and ye shall have eternal life. (101:38)

KNOCK

Gospel Mysteries

1. Matthew 7:7-8 (See also 3 Nephi 14:7)

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:
For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

2. Luke 13:25

When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye being to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are.

3. Revelations 3:20

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.

4. 2 Nephi 9:42

And whoso knocketh, to him will he open.

5. 2 Nephi 32:4

Wherefore, now after I have spoken these words, if ye cannot understand them it will be because ye ask not, neither do ye knock; wherefore, ye are not brought into the light, but must perish in the dark.

6. 3 Nephi 27:29

Therefore, ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you; for he that asketh, receiveth; and unto him that knocketh, it shall be opened.

7. Doctrine & Covenants

Ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (4:7)
Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you. (6:5; 11:5; 12:5; 14:5)
Behold, I say unto you, go forth as I have commanded you; repent of all your sins; ask and ye shall receive; knock and it shall be opened unto you. (49:26)
Lay your hands upon the sick, and they shall recover. Return not till I, the Lord, shall send you. Be patient in affliction. Ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (66:9)
Let them ask and they shall receive, knock and it shall be opened unto them, and be made known from on high, even by the Comforter, whither they shall go. (75:27)
Draw near unto me and I will draw near unto you; seek me diligently and ye shall find me; ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (88:63)

Commentary Quotations

1. Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, pp. 12-13; August, 1832; See also, H.C. 1:282-4.

A man may be saved, after the judgment, in the terrestrial kingdom, or in the telestial kingdom, but he can never see the celestial kingdom of God, without being born of water and the Spirit. He may receive a glory like unto the moon, or a star, but he can never come unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels; to the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant, unless he becomes as a little child, and is taught by the Spirit of God. Wherefore, we again say, search the revelations of God; study the prophecies, and rejoice that God grants unto the world Seers and Prophets. They are they who saw the mysteries of godliness; they saw the flood before it came; they saw angels ascending and descending upon a ladder that reached from earth to heaven; * * * And, fellow sojourners upon the earth, it is your privilege to purify yourselves and come up to the same glory, and see for yourselves, and know for yourselves. Ask, and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

2. BYU Devotional Speech; October 11, 1966; Elder Bruce R. McConkie; Typescript of the actual tape recording.

Now you'd like a formula to tell you how to get revelation. It might perhaps be written in many ways. My formula is simply this:

First: Search the scriptures
Second: Keep the commandments, and
Third: Ask in faith.

And any person who will do this will get his soul and his heart so in tune with the infinite that there will come into his being from the still small voice, the eternal realities of religion.

3. The Improvement Era, June 1970, p. 33; Elder Howard W. Hunter. Saturday morning session of April General Conference; April 4, 1970; Talk entitled "The Reality of God".

In order to find God as a reality, we must follow the course which he pointed out for the quest. The path is one that leads upward; it takes faith and effort, and is not the easy course. For this reason many men will not devote themselves to the arduous task of proving to themselves the reality of God. * * * We must continue the probe and follow the admonition: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:
For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." (Matt. 7:7-8)

4. The Ensign/November 1974, pp. 96-97; Elder Howard W. Hunter. October General Conference, 1974. Talk entitled: "To Know God".

Gospel Mysteries

When Jesus spoke to the multitude gathered on the Mount, he said to them: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you;

For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." (Matt. 7:7-8)

This seems to be an admonition to search with determination and make earnest inquiry for truth. * * *

Whether seeking for knowledge of scientific truths or to discover God, one must have faith. This becomes the starting point. * * * Faith makes us confident of what we hope for and convinced of what we do not see. * * * In like manner, those who earnestly seek for God do not see him, but they know of his reality by faith. It is more than hope. Faith makes it a conviction--an evidence of things not seen. * * *

Thus we have the formula for the search for God and the tools to accomplish the quest--faith, love, and prayer. Science has done marvelous things for man, but it cannot accomplish the things he must do for himself, the greatest of which is to find the reality of God. The task is not easy; the labor is not light; but as stated by the Master, "Great shall be their reward and eternal shall be their glory." (D&C 76:6) * * *

May the Lord bless us with the desire for an upward reach to the spiritual ---to know God, to find him, and to have the determination to serve him and keep his commandments.

5. Teach Ye Diligently, pp. 14-15; 1975 ed., Elder Boyd K. Packer.

It is clear that the Lord wants us to come unto Him and ask Him for whatever we need. The simple invitation to "ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you" was repeated by the Lord on many occasions. He gave this message to the people He taught while He lived on earth. He repeated it twice to the people of the New World at the time of His visit to them following His resurrection, including His last words He gave them before returning to His Father in heaven. Interestingly, the Lord repeated the same invitation seven times in the Doctrine and Covenants. In varying ways throughout the scriptures, He has invited us to ask Him for whatever we need in righteousness, that He might give it unto us.

The initiative, then, is ours. We must ask and pray and seek, and then we will find.

There are several paintings depicting Christ at the door, illustrating a New Testament scripture: "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." (Revelation 3:20) In the more famous paintings He is shown holding a lantern as he knocks at the door.

6. The Ensign/November 1976, pp. 58-59; Elder James E. Faust; October General Conference address entitled: " A Personal Relationship with the Savior".

Recently in South America, a seasoned group of outstanding missionaries was asked, "What is the greatest need in the world?" One wisely responded: "Is not the greatest need in all of the world for every person to have a personal, ongoing, daily, continuing relationship with the Savior?" Having such a relationship can unchain the divinity within us, and nothing can make a greater difference in our lives as we come to know and understand our divine relationship with God.

We should earnestly seek not just to know about the Master, but to strive, as He invited, to be one with Him (see John 17:21), to "be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man" (Eph. 3:16). We may not feel a closeness with Him because we think of Him as being far away, or our relationship may not be sanctifying because we do not think of Him as a real person.

How can we receive the personal blessing of the Master's divine and exalting influence in our own lives? * * *

May I suggest five beginning, essential measures which will greatly clear the channel for a daily flow of "living water" from the very source of the spring, even the Redeemer Himself.

First: A daily communion involving prayer. [knock] * * * Second: A daily selfless service to another. * * *

Third: A daily striving for an increased obedience and perfection in our lives. [seek] * * *

Fourth: A daily acknowledgment of His divinity. * * *

Fifth: A daily study of the scriptures. [ask] * * *

We must constantly be reaching upward for the riches of eternity, for the kingdom of God is within us. * * *

By sanctifying yourselves, the day will come when "he will unveil his face unto you." (D&C 88:68) * * *

It is a love [from God] that sustains a new beginning on a higher level and thereby continues "from grace to grace." (D&C 93:13) * * *

7. The Ensign/September 1978, pp. 7-8; Pres. Spencer W. Kimball; First Presidency Message entitled: "Absolute Truth".

Now, it is a good question which has been asked by millions since Joseph Smith phrased it: How am I to know which of all, if any, of the organizations is authentic, divine, and recognized by the Lord? He has given the key, You may know. You need not be in doubt. Follow the prescribed procedures, and you may have an absolute knowledge that these things are absolute truths. The necessary procedure is: study, think pray and do. Revelation is the key. God will make it known to you once you have capitulated and have become humble and receptive. * * *

The true and living Church and its members and representatives stand ready to provide answers to any questions; and I promise you faithfully that if you will study and pray, keeping your mind open, you will receive the light, and it will be to you as the dawning of a new day after having gone through the night of darkness.

8. B.Y.U. Devotional address, delivered 20 March 1979; Pres. Marion G. Romney; Speech entitled: Guidance of the Holy Spirit; First Presidency Message; The Ensign/January 1980, p. 5.

If you want to obtain and keep the guidance of the Spirit, you can do so by following this simple four-point program.

One, pray. Pray diligently. Pray with each other. Pray in public in the proper places. * * * Learn to talk to the Lord; call upon his name in great faith and confidence.

Second, study and learn the gospel.

Third, live righteously; repent of your sins by confessing them and forsaking them. Then conform to the teachings of the gospel.

Fourth, give service in the Church.

If you will do these things, you will get the guidance of the Holy Spirit and you will go through this world successfully, regardless of what the people of the world say or do.

III

LOCATIONS HISTORICALLY USED FOR PRAYER

Introductory Comments

Historically, those who desired to commune with heaven, have gone away into secluded spots, where they could be alone. There, they offered up their prayers unto the Most High. Scriptural and church historical accounts indicate that mountain tops, groves, deserts, caves, and wildernesses have all been used as sacred places to worship and talk with God. In addition to these places, church historical accounts reveal that temples, upper rooms, wildernesses, stake centers, ward meetinghouses, and homes have been used. In each instance, it seemed to be a matter of getting away from the masses to find a quiet solitary place where the sweet spirit could be felt, and where the individual could open us his inner feelings and thoughts without fear of ridicule. Such places were also apparently dedicated for the purpose of communing with God, as was demonstrated by Jacob anointing his altar.

It is also important to note, that many of the individuals who went to their solitary retreats, went there because the spirit moved upon them to do so. Christ was led away by the spirit unto a high mountain; Joseph Smith had a question in his heart and was spiritually touched when he read James 1:5 to go ahead and ask God; Spencer W. Kimball climbed a mountain in Arizona when he was called to be an apostle; Heber J. Grant found answers to his inner strugglings while in Indian territory; and Enos went into the woods to pray. Many more examples such as these can be given to help support the point. But the important this is, that all those who sought the Lord, felt impressed to find that sacred place where they could talk openly in solemn prayer.

Again, the purpose for doing this was to be able to commune with God more perfectly. Historically, homes were used for the true order of prayer, and the homes of the saints contained altars around which they would pray, in family circles. Thus it was important for a home to be paid for and dedicated.

In the early days of our church history, the saints were taught that by receiving the fulness of the priesthood ordinance (i.e. the second anointing) and through exercising the keys of the priesthood, they would be able to openly commune with God and obtain answers to their prayers. Thus Joseph wanted those who were going to go on the Oregon Expedition, to be ordained kings and priests (i.e. receive the second anointing). because once they arrived there they might want or need to talk with God on the mountain tops. Throughout the 1800's, many thousands of saints were anointed kings and priests and subsequently used the keys of prayer to talk with God.

Scripture Quotations

1. 1 Nephi 18:3 (Nephi speaking)

And I, Nephi, did go into the mount oft, and I did pray oft unto the Lord; wherefore the Lord showed unto me great things.

2. Alma 34:26 (Amulek speaking)

But this is not all; ye must pour out your souls in your closets, and your secret places, and in your wilderness.

3. Enos 3 (Enos speaking)

Behold, I went to hunt beasts in the forests; and the words which I had often heard my father speak concerning eternal life, and the joy of the saints, sunk deep into my heart.

And my soul hungered; and I kneeled down before my Maker, and I cried unto him in mighty prayer and supplication....

4. Luke

And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. (6:12)

And Jesus being full of the Holy Ghost returned from Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness,

Being forty days tempted of the devil. And in those days he did eat nothing: and when they were ended, he afterwards hungered. (4:1-2)

And it came to pass about an eight days after these sayings, he took Peter and John and James, and went up into a mountain to pray. (9:28)

And in the day time he was teaching in the temple; and at night he went out, and abode in the mount that is called the mount of Olives. (21:37)

And he shall shew you a large upper room furnished: there make ready. (22:12)

5. Matthew

When Jesus heard of it [the death of John], he departed thence by ship into a desert place apart: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.

And when it was evening, his disciples came to him, saying, This is a desert place, and the time is now past; send the multitudes away.... (14:13,15)

And when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: and when the evening was come, he was there alone. (14:23)

And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee; and went up into a mountain, and say down there. (15:29)

When he [Christ] was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him. (8:1)

And after six days Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart,

And was transfigured before them.... (17:1-2)

Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness.... (4:1)

Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

And when they saw him, they worshipped him. (28:16-17)

6. Moses 1:1-2

The words of God, which he spake unto Moses at a time when Moses was caught up into an exceedingly high mountain,

And he saw God face to face, and he talked with him, and the glory of God was upon Moses; therefore Moses could endure his presence.

7. Mark

And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, and leadeth them up into an high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them. (9:2)

And he goeth up into a mountain, and calleth unto him whom he would: and they came unto him. (3:13)

And he will shew you a large upper room furnished and prepared: there make ready for us. (14:15)

8. Joseph Smith 2:14-15

So, in accordance with this, my determination to ask of God, I retired to the woods to make the attempt. It was on the morning of a beautiful, clear day, early in the spring of 1820....After I had retired to the place where I had previously designed to go, having looked around me, and finding myself alone, I kneeled down and began to offer up the desire of my heart to God.

9. Genesis

And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east. . .and there he builded an altar unto the Lord, and called upon the name of the Lord. (12:8)

And Abraham planted a grove in Beer-she-ba, and called there on the name of the Lord, the everlasting God. (21:33)

And it came to pass after these things, that God did tempt Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham: and he said, Behold, here I am.

And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah. . .upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of. (22:1-2)

10. Ether 3:1, 13; 4:1

And it came to pass that the brother of Jared...went forth unto the mount, which they called the mount Shelem, because of its exceeding height...and he did carry them [the 16 stones] in his hands upon the top of the mount, and cried again unto the Lord... And...behold, the Lord showed himself unto him, and said: because thou knowest these things ye are redeemed from the fall; therefore ye are brought back into my presence; therefore I show myself unto you...And the Lord commanded the brother of Jared to go down out of the mount from the presence of the Lord, and write the things which he had seen.

11. Isaiah 40:9

0 Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain...

12. 1 Kings

And when he [Elijah] saw that, he arose, and went for his life, and came to Beer-she-ba, which belongeth to Judah, and left his servant there.

But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a juniper tree: and he requested for himself that he might die; and said, It is enough; now, 0 Lord, take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers.

And as he lay and slept under a juniper tree, behold, then an angel touched him, and said unto him, Arise and eat. (19:3-5)

And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went in the strength of that meat forty days and forty nights unto Horeb the mount of God. (19:8)

13. Deuteronomy 32:48-50

And the Lord spake unto Moses that selfsame day, saying, Get thee up into this mountain Ab-a-rim, unto mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab....

And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people; as Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people.

14. Micah 1:3 For, behold, the Lord cometh forth out of his place, and will come down, and tread upon the high places of the earth.

15. Abraham 19:27

And Abraham gat up early in the morning to the place where he stood before the Lord.

16. Acts 1:13-14

And when they were come in, they went in into an upper room, where abode [the apostles].

These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

17. John

And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there sat with his disciples. (6:3)

When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone. (6:15)

Jesus went unto the mount of Olives.

And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them. (8:1-2)

He [George A. Smith] then related an instance of some children being healed & cured of the whooping cough in one night, through the prayers of himself and Elder Woodruff in Michigan while they were there on a mission.

Said that whenever they could get an opportunity they retired to the wilderness or to an upper room they did so and offered up the signs, and were always answered. It would be a good thing for us to put on our garments every day and pray to God, and in private circles, when we can do so with safety.

Next morning at New Portage, he noticed that Joseph seemed to have a far off look in his eyes, or was looking at a distance, and presently he, Joseph, stepped between Brothers Cowdery and Coltrin and taking them by the arm, said, "lets take a walk." They went to a place where there was some beautiful grass, and grapevines and swampbeech interlaced. President Joseph Smith then said, "let us pray." They all three prayed in turn Joseph, Oliver and Zebedee. Bro. Joseph then said "now brethren we will see some visions." Joseph lay down on the ground on his back and stretched out his arms and the two brethren lay on them. The heavens gradually opened, and they saw a golden throne, on a circular foundation, something like a light house, and on the throne were two aged personages, having white hair, and clothed in white garments. They were the two most beautiful and perfect specimens of mankind he ever saw. Joseph said, They are our first parents, Adam and Eve. Adam was a large broad-shouldered man, and Eve as a woman, was as large in proportion.

When we pray alone with God, we shed all sham and pretense, all hypocrisy and arrogance. The Savior found his mountains and slipped away to pray. Paul, the great apostle, could not seem to get into the spirit of his new calling until he had found cleansing solitude down in Arabia. He went into solitude a worldly man and came out cleansed, prepared, regenerated. He was born of water in a Damascus river and of the spirit in an Arabian solitude. Enos found his solitary place in the forest. Moriancumer went to the mountain top to ask the Lord to touch the stones to light his people's way. And Nephi learned to build a ship through communication with his Lord on a mountain far from human ears. Joseph Smith found his solitude in the grove with only birds and trees and God to listen to his prayer. In solitude we, too, may pray with greater depth and fervor.

Let me extract from that great book BEN HUR by Lew Wallace some of the quotations that have given me a deeper understanding of the human soul and that suggest a pattern to assist us in gaining true greatness.

The book gives one statement about man's quest for truth which I shall never forget: "Like you, my brethren, I went out of the beaten ways, I went where man had not been, where only God was...." That brief statement has caused a hundred thoughts to flash into my mind. I had a great desire to find sacred, holy places---high on a mountain top, in the backwoods, or by a beautiful flowing river where I could communicate with God, as was implied in this statement.

THE RITUAL FORM OF THE TRUE ORDER

Introductory Comments

As a part of the restoration of the Ancient order of things, the Lord restored to the earth again, the ritual form of the true order of prayer. The signs that are used in prayer today have been used by all the righteous saints from the days of Adam and Eve to the present. Joseph admitted watching Adam pray through his Urim and Thummim, and learned from watching him. These keys of prayer were incorporated into, and made a part of the endowment, and the early saints were taught their meaning and importance in knowing God.

Gospel Mysteries

Rituals, such as prayer, as well as many other rituals and ordinances, have been come down through history in apostate forms so that today only the shadow of their true form remains. Such is the case with masonry, which the early brethren explained was the apostate form of the once true endowment.

The Prophet Joseph seemed to understand the importance of using the true order of prayer, even as early as 1833 in the School of the Prophets, and possibly even as early as his first vision. He could have learned about the order of prayer from the old testament which contains vivid descriptions of how prayer is offered. According to President Young, it was the use of the true order of prayer that kept their enemies away, until they were able to complete the giving of endowments in the Nauvoo Temple. It was this order of prayer that gave them the power to cross the plains and establish Zion in the west. Ensign peak was a favorite place, as were many other places, where the saints would go and build an altar and offer up their prayers to the Lord.

Joseph plainly taught that if the saints desired to approach God and to commune with him, they would have to understand how to do that so that their prayers could be answered. There is little doubt that in his mind, it was through the use of the true order of prayer, that a person could commune with God, especially if he had already received the second anointing ordinance, which gave them the power to stand in the presence of God. On May 4, 1842 Joseph revealed for the first time these keys of prayer and explained that with them a person would be able to "secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Eloheim in the eternal worlds." (TPJS, p. 237).

Scripture Quotations

1. 1 Timothy 2:8-9 (Paul speaking)

I will therefore that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting.

In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array.

2. Mark 11:25

And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have ought against any: that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses.

3. Luke 22:46 (Savior speaking)

And said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

4. Acts 14:19-20

And there came thither certain Jews from antioch and Iconium, who persuaded the people, and having stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead.

Howbeit, as the disciples stood round about him, he rose up, and came into the city: and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

5. Psalm 54:2

Hear my prayer, 0 God; give ear to the words of my mouth. (54:2)

6. Exodus 17:11-12

And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.

But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady unto the going down of the sun.

V

SYMBOLIC ASPECTS OF THE TRUE ORDER

Introductory Comments

In scriptural passages, it is interesting to note that the faithful saints of God in all ages of the world, from Adam to Daniel to Christ, down to the present time, have all engaged in symbolic imagery along with the true order of prayer. Indeed, it is, in actuality, a part of the true order.

Notice for instance, that there are passages which describe how Christ would pray with his eyes heavenward, or that he would pray early in the morning hours, before sunrise. Daniel would pray three times daily, and would face the temple of Jerusalem as he did so. Joseph Smith chose to pray one early spring morning when he had his first vision. At the dedication of the Salt Lake Temple, President Woodruff counseled the saints that if they could not come to the temple, if they at least face it while they prayed, that the Lord would bless them as a result.

There are times when a person should raise his eyes to heaven. Adam did so when he was looking for messengers from his father. If the quorum of the 12 had only lifted their eyes as they stood tired and fatigued in a circle, they might have seen their Redeemer. There may be other occasions when such searching eyes are not so necessary. If an individual will make it a habit to pray as he is guided by the spirit, he will know when and what to do in this respect.

Facing the temple or the source of light is another interesting symbol. Since God is the person to whom we must look for divine aid, it is appropriate then to pray in the direction of the closest symbol of light. For those who enter the temple and pray in the true order, the altars are positioned so that they face the celestial room, which represents the celestial kingdom---the nearest source of light for the person praying. In the Salt Lake Temple the Holy of Holies is situated in the south-east portion of the building (by dividing the temple into four equal halves). This portion of the building faces the rising sun which comes up in the east, and south-east. For the temple, the south-east is the part of the building which most nearly faces the closest source of light, symbolically speaking.

Those who faced the sun to pray in ages past did not do so because they worshipped the sun. They did so in symbolic imagery that the sun represented the God of heaven to them, it was the source of light to the world and represented symbolically the source of spiritual light to them. Mountain tops are also closer to God, symbolically speaking, than the low valleys where mankind loves to dwell. If a person lived in the southern hemisphere, it would be more appropriate to face the north-east, since that would be the direction from whence the sun would rise. Thus it is understandable when President Woodruff made his remarks at the dedication of the Salt Lake temple for the saints to turn and face the temple when they prayed, because for those who lived there in Salt Lake, it represented the closest source of spiritual guidance to them.

LOOKING HEAVENWARD

Scripture Quotations

1. I.V. Genesis 9:21-22. The Lord speaking to Noah.

And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant, which I made unto thy father Enoch; that, when men should keep all my commandments, Zion should again come on the earth, the city of Enoch which I have caught up unto myself.

And this is mine everlasting covenant, that when thy posterity shall embrace the truth, and look upward, then shall Zion look downward, and all the heavens shall shake with gladness, and the earth shall tremble with joy;

And the general assembly of the church of the first-born shall come down out of heaven, and possess the earth, and shall have place until the end come. And this is mine everlasting covenant, which I made with thy father Enoch.

2. Joshua 6:13-15.

And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?
And he said, Nay; but as captain of the host of the Lord am I now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, what saith my Lord unto his servant?
And the captain of the Lord's host said unto Joshua, loose thy shoe from thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so.

3. Daniel 10:5-12.

[After fasting for three weeks and three days, Daniel said:]

Then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a certain man clothed in linen, whose loins were girded with fine gold. . . .
And I Daniel alone saw the visions. . .
Therefore I was left alone, and saw the vision and there remained no strength in me. . . .

4. Isaiah 40:26.

Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number: he calleth them all by names by the greatness of his night, for that he is strong in power; not one faileth.

5. Psalms 5:1-3; 121:1-2; 123:1.

Give ear to my words, 0 Lord, consider my meditation. Hearken unto my voice of cry, my King, and my God; for unto thee I will pray.
My voice shall thou hear in the morning, 0 Lord: in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up. (5:1-3)
I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. (121:1-2)
Unto thee lift I up mine eyes, 0 thou that dwellest in the heavens. (123:1)

6. Mark 6:41; 7:31-35; 8:22-25.

And when he [Christ] had taken the five loaves and the two fishes, he looked up to heaven, and blessed, and brake the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before them; and the two fishes divided he among them all.
And again, departing from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of Dicapolis.
And they bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech; and they beseech him to put his hand upon him.

And he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spit, and touched his tongue;
And looking up to heaven, he sighed, and saith unto him, Ephphatha, that is, Be opened.
And straightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain. (7:31–35)
And he cometh to Bethsaida; and they bring a blind man unto him, and besought him to touch him.
And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town; and when he had spit on his eyes, and put his hands upon him, he asked him if he saw ought.
And he looked up, and said, I see men as trees, walking. After that he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up: and he was restored, and saw every man clearly. (8:22–25)

7. Luke 21:27–28.

And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.
And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads: for your redemption draweth nigh.

8. John 11:41–42; 17:1.

Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me.
And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me. (11:41–42)
These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee. (17:1)

9. Acts 7:55–56.

But he [Stephen], being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God, and said, Behold I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God.

10. 2 Nephi 8:6.

Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath; for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall was old like a garment; and they that dwell therein shall die in like manner. But my salvation shall be forever, and my righteousness shall not be abolished.

11. Helaman 5:36.

Behold, he saw through the cloud of darkness, the faces of Nephi and Lehi; and behold, they did shine exceedingly, even as the faces of angels. And he beheld that they did lift their eyes to heaven; and they were in the attitude as if talking or lifting their voices to some being whom they beheld.

12. Moses 1:24-25.

And it came to pass that when Satan had departed from the presence of Moses, that Moses lifted up his eyes unto heaven, being filled with the Holy Ghost, which beareth record of the Father and the Son;

And calling upon the name of God, he behold his glory again, for it was upon him; and he heard a voice, saying: Blessed art thou, Moses, for I, the Almighty, have chosen thee, and thou shalt be made stronger than many waters; for they shall obey thy command as if thou wert God.

13. Joseph Smith 2:15-17, 20.

[ln the vision of Joseph Smith, he looked up and saw two personages, the Father and the Son. When the vision finally closed he says that he found himself "lying on his back, looking up into heaven."]

14. Alma 5:14, 19.

And now behold, I ask of you, my brethren of the church, have ye spiritually been born of God? Have ye received his image in your countenances? Have ye experienced this mighty change in your hearts? (14)

I say unto you, can ye look up to God at that day with a pure heart and clean hands? I say unto you, can you look up, having the image of God engraven upon your countenances? (19)

30. And Joseph upon his horse lifted up his eyes to heaven, and called out and said, He raiseth the poor man from the dust, He lifteth up the needy from the dunghill. 0 Lord of Hosts, happy is the man who trusteth in thee.

2. History of the Church, 2:381; January 20, 1836.

I saw the Twelve Apostles of the Lamb, who are now upon the earth, who hold the keys of this last ministry, in foreign lands, standing together in a circle, much fatigued, with their clothes tattered and feet swollen with their eyes cast downward, and Jesus standing in their midst, and they did not behold him. The Savior looked upon them and wept.

3. Life of Heber C. Kimball, 2nd ed., p. 93; by Orson F. Whitney.

The following vision was manifested to him [Joseph Smith] as near as I can recollect:

He saw the Twelve going forth, and they appeared to be in a far distant land. After some time they unexpectedly me together, apparently in great tribulation, their clothes all ragged, and their knees and feet sore. They formed a circle, and all stood with their eyes fixed upon the ground. The Savior appeared and stood in their midst and wept over them, and wanted to show Himself to them, but they did not discover him.

4. The Ensign/May 1981, pp. 8, 10; Elder James E. Faust; April General Conference.

[After quoting the above quote #3, Elder James Faust said:]

A message that can be inferred from this is that, because the Twelve had suffered so much, had endured so greatly, and had so exhausted themselves in leading the battle of righteousness, they were bowed down and did not look up. Had they only looked up they might have beheld the Lord Jesus, who wanted to see him, weeping over them, suffering with them, and standing in their midst. (P. 8)

The dignity of self is greatly enhanced by looking upward in the search for holiness. Like the giant trees, we should reach up for the light. The most important source of light we can come to know is the gift of the Holy Ghost. It is the source of inner strength and peace.

May we all have a feeling of personal worth and dignity born of the knowledge that each of us is a child of God, and be strengthened by looking upwards in the pursuit of holiness. As we look up may we be worthy to receive the inspiration that comes constantly from God, which inspiration is sacred, real, and often very private. (P. 10)

All creatures are duly overawed by the presence of God's representative and image: "Even the fierce beasts of prey fear man," says the Zohar, "as long as he keeps his covenant, his kingly dignity, and his eye fixed on God in whose image he is." For "God formed man in his own heavenly form and made him to be Lord over them. Whenever man stands upright and lifts up his eyes toward heaven, then all the animals raise their heads, too, and look to man, fearing and trembling in his presence."

FACING THE TEMPLE OR THE SOURCE OF LIGHT

Scripture Quotations

1. Daniel 6:10-11

Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he died aforetime.

Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God.

FACING THE TEMPLE OR THE SOURCE OF LIGHT

Commentary Quotations

1. Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, p. 161; July 2, 1839.

You must make yourselves acquainted with those men who like Daniel pray three times a day toward the House of the Lord.

2. The Contributor, Vol 14:292; President Wilford Woodruff; Part of the dedicatory prayer of the Salt Lake Temple, April 6, 1893.

Heavenly Father, when Thy people shall not have the opportunity of entering this holy house to offer their supplications unto Thee, and they are oppressed and in trouble, surrounded by difficulties or assailed by temptation and shall turn their faces towards this thy holy house and ask thee for deliverance, for help, for Thy power to be extended in their behalf, we beseech Thee, to look down from Thy holy habitation in mercy and tender compassion upon them, and listen to their cries. Or when the children of Thy people, in years to come, shall be separated, in remembrance of Thy promises to this holy Temple, and they shall cry unto Thee from the depths of their affliction and sorrow to extend relief and deliverance to them, we humbly entreat Thee to turn Thine ear in mercy to them; hearken to their cries, and grant unto them the blessings for which they ask.

3. The Highest In Us, p. 82; Truman G. Madsen.

What is the significance of facing the temple? Apparently it is a sacred way of recalling both the promises the Lord has made to us and our promises to him. Thus, when President Wilford Woodruff dedicated the Salt Lake Temple, he offered a specific prayer that when people were assailed with temptation or trouble they might remember the promises of the temple, that they might face the temple, and that the Lord would honor their prayers.

4. Josephus, c. 1960, 9th ed., 1971; "Wars of the Jews", chapter IX, #4, p. 562; Translated by William Whiston, A.M.

In old times there was one Necao, king of Egypt, who was also called Pharaoh: he came with a prodigious army of soldiers, and seized queen Sarah, the mother of our nation. What did Abraham our progenitor then do? Did he defend himself from this injurious person by war, although he had three hundred and eighteen captains under him, and an immense army under each of them? Indeed, he deemed them to be no number at all without God's assistance, and only spread out his hands towards this holy place* [the Jerusalem temple], which you have now polluted, and reckoned upon him as upon his invincible supporter, instead of his own army.

[Footnote:] *Josephus supposes, in this speech to the Jews, that not Abraham only, but Pharaoh, king of Egypt, prayed towards a temple at Jerusalem, or towards Jerusalem itself, in which were Mount Sion and Mount Moriah, on which the tabernacle and temple did afterwards stand.

On 6 April 1853, Brigham Young had the Salt Lake Temple laid out in this prescribed order. Nibley astutely observed in his book, The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri: An Egyptian Endowment, the marked similarity between the order in which Mormons and Egyptians lay out their temples. He noted that President Young, after the laying of the cornerstones of the Salt Lake Temple and while offering the dedicatory prayer over the southeast cornerstone of the Manti Temple, made specific references to light. With the Salt Lake Temple, he spoke of light in both physical and spiritual terms. The geographical location of the temple being in the northern hemisphere required that the southeast cornerstone be laid first because "there is the most light." As a fact, the sun does rise from the southeast and first illuminates the east and south fabric of the building. Symbolically and spiritually, the Melchizedek Priesthood and particularly those ordained to the office of apostle in that priesthood after the order of the Son of God are the givers of light--hence the flames on the finials of all the corner buttresses. It is therefore appropriate that the two east cornerstones are set by that priesthood. Of most importance is the symbolism attached to the east facade, particularly the central tower, which is representative of Christ, the Author of Light.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF EARLY MORNING

Scripture Quotations

1. Joseph Smith 2:14-15

So, in accordance with this, my determination to ask of God, I retired to the woods to make the attempt. It was on the morning of a beautiful, clear day, early in the spring of 1820....After I had retired to the place where I had previously designed to go, having looked around me, and finding myself alone, I kneeled down and began to offer up the desire of my heart to God.

2. Abraham 19:27

And Abraham gat up early in the morning to the place where he stood before the Lord.

3. John

And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there sat with his disciples. (6:3)
When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone. (6:15)
Jesus went unto the mount of Olives.
And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them. (8:1-2)

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF EARLY MORNING

Commentary Quotations

1. Address given by Harold B. Lee, July 6, 1956.

Then the President [David 0. McKay] made the statement that the point he had in mind was that when we are relaxed in a private room we are more susceptible to those things; and that so far as he was concerned, his best thoughts come after he gets up in the morning and is relaxed and thinking about the duties of the day; that impressions come more clearly, as if it were to hear a voice. Those impressions are right. If we are worried about something and upset in our feelings, the inspiration does not come. If we so live that our minds are free from worry and our conscience is clear and our feelings are right toward one another, the operation of the spirit of the Lord upon our spirit is as real as when we pick up the telephone; but when they come, we must be brave enough to take the suggested actions. The Lord will approve it and the brethren will approve it, and we know it is right. He said, it is a great consolation in this upset world today to know that our Savior is directing this work. Then the President concluded: "I value that testimony." If you forget all else I have said, you remember that lesson and that admonition.

2. Conference Report, October 1962, p. 82; Elder Harold B. Lee.

President McKay sometime ago in talking to the Presidency and the Twelve, urged us to give time for more meditation so that we could tune in with spiritual forces that we had a right to and should expect to direct us in our work. He said, 'The best time for me is early in the morning when my mind and body are rested. But when the inspiration comes, and it can come just as clearly as though you were talking down a telephone and dialing in for information; when the Lord tells you what to do, you have to have the courage to do what he instructs you.'

3. The Ensign/August 1975, pp. 88-89; Elder Boyd K. Packer; Talk on "Self Reliance".

I have learned that the best time to wrestle with major problems is early in the morning. Your mind is then fresh and alert. The blackboard of your mind has been erased by a good night's rest. The accumulated distractions of the day are not in your way. Your body has been rested also. That's the time to think something through very carefully and to receive personal revelation.

I've heard President Harold B. Lee begin many a statement about matters involving revelation with an expression something like this: "In the early hours of the morning, while I was pondering upon that subject," and so on. He made it a practice to work on the problems that required revelation in the fresh, alert hours of the early morning.

The Lord knew something when He directed in the Doctrine and Covenants: "Cease to sleep longer than is needful; retire to thy bed early, that ye may not be weary; arise early, that your bodies and your minds may be invigorated. (D&C 88:124)

* * *

I counseled our children to do their critical studying in the early hours of the morning when they're fresh and alert, rather than to fight physical weariness and mental exhaustion at night. I've learned that the dictum, "Early to bed, early to rise" is powerful. When under pressure---for instance, when I was preparing this talk---you wouldn't find me burning the midnight oil. Much rather I'd be early to bed and getting up in the wee hours of the morning, when I could be close to Him who guides this work.

When I was living at Hyrum Smith's I thought that he was the best man I ever saw, he was so kind to his family and he prayed in his family three times a day.

3. The Ensign/September 1973, p. 65; Quote from Eliza R. Snow.

His [Joseph's] expansive mind grasped the great plan of salvation, and solved the mystic problem of man's destiny; he was in possession of keys that unlocked the past and the future, with its successions of eternities; yet in his devotions he was as humble as a little child. Three times a day he had family worship; and these precious seasons of sacred household service truly seemed a foretaste of celestial happiness.

4. Decisions for Successful Living, p. 176; 1973 ed.; Pres. Harold B. Lee.

Young couples, if they are mindful of the counsel of the Church, will kneel down in prayer together in their first family prayer on the first night of their marriage to express gratitude and thankfulness and to make supplications for divine guidance and blessing. Thereafter by themselves and later with their families, they are admonished to begin the day with a supplication for aid and protection for that day's need and at eventide to kneel again in thanksgiving and acknowledgment to ask a benediction upon the home and family through the coming night. The Lord has promised, "And if ye do this with a pure heart, in all faithfulness, ye shall be blessed; you shall be blessed in your flocks, and in your herds, and in your fields, and in your houses, and in your families." (D&C 136:11).

5. Mormonism: A Genuine Restoration of Early Christianity, p. 65; by Eugene Seaich; 1982 ed.

The Apocryphon of Abraham recounts that when the old Patriarch restored Adam's altar, he cried aloud the words, "El, El, El, Jaoel! Receive the words of my prayer! Receive the sacrifice which I have made at thy command!" for he was repeating the ancient prayer of Adam, who prayed three-fold for three days, "May the words of my mouth be heard!"

VI

THINGS FOR WHICH WE SHOULD PRAY

Introductory Comments

Prayer plays a vital part in helping us return to Father in Heaven. However, too often prayer becomes rote and meaningless and because of it many have given up praying daily. They have not really come to the point of experien cing what prayer can really do.

Prayer can be a time of intensely wonderful communication between the person and God. Of course, prayer would be uninteresting if it did not contain this ingredient. To feel of his power, and to know that he is listening and concerned about our problems is a very wonderful experience. If a person were able to have such experiences, he would want to pray not just once a day, but several times a day, just so that re-contact could be made, and the power of his spirit be felt again and again.

In order to communicate with heaven in this way, great care must be taken to be completely honest and sincere in the expressions of gratitude and desired assistance. Too often prayers become memorized and they are said over and over again, and very little feeling exists. The scriptures indicate that the words which we utter in prayer must be given by the spirit. In other words, we should pray as we are inspired to do so by the spirit. We should not consciously look for things to pray for. Rather, we should let the spirit guide our feelings, and we should utter those feelings which we have as we are guided by the spirit.

In ages past the saints who have prayed by the spirit have asked for those things which were of most importance to their salvation, and the salvation of their family and friends. Elder Bruce R. McConkie gave an address in the April Conference of 1984 which beautifully outlined things which the saints could and should pray for as they are inspired. Certainly such utterances from us ascending into heaven would cause the Lord to listen and bless us accordingly.

In this regard, some of the things for which we should pray, would be to recognize the hand of the Lord in all things in our lives, giving the Lord the honor and the glory for what we are; we should pray that we might be able to see the face of the Lord (D&C 93:1); ask for the gifts of the spirit; desire strength to overcome the adversary in all of his manifestations & deceptions; request further light and knowledge so that we might drawer nearer to God in understanding his plan of redemption and what we must do to make it effective in our own lives; pray for the First Presidency, Quorum of the Twelve, and all other general and local leaders; for the missionary work to go forward into all the nations of the earth, so that the elect might be gathered, so that the Lord might come once again upon the earth; ask the Lord to bless the redemptive work of the dead to go forward with accelerated speed. We could ask that the Lord bless us that Zion might be redeemed with the fulness of the priesthood in the temples of the Lord; that our children might obtain all the ordinances of salvation; that they might live honorable lives; that we might have the companionship of the Holy Ghost, that we might become pure in heart, filled with the pure love of Christ; and that we might receive all the blessing of the fathers. Whatever we pray for, we should be guided by the spirit. There is no one way to pray, except as we are guided and prompted by the spirit.

We should also consider lengthening the amount of time we spend in conversation with Father. Who would not want to spend at least an hour each day in the presence of their Maker? The amount of time we spend with Him now is a good indicator of how much we really believe in Him, and how much we really love and want to be with Him. Since it is from His hand that we receive permission to have our calling and election made sure, perhaps the amount of time we spend with Him could be better utilized.

Scripture Quotations

1. II Chronicles 1:3, 6-7, 10-12

So Solomon, and all the congregation with him, went to the high place that was at Gibeon; for there was the tabernacle of the congregation of God, which Moses the servant of the Lord had made in the wilderness.

And Solomon went up thither to the brasen altar before the Lord, which was at the tabernacle of the congregation, and offered a thousand burnt offerings upon it.

In that night did God appear unto Solomon, and said unto him, Ask what I shall give thee.

Give me now wisdom and knowledge, that I may go out and come in before this people: for who can judge this thy people, that is so great?

And God said to Solomon, Because this was in thine heart, and thou hast not asked riches, wealth, or honour, nor the life of thine enemies, neither yet hast asked long life; but hast asked wisdom and knowledge for thyself, that thou mayest judge my people, over whom I have made thee king:

Wisdom and knowledge is granted unto thee; and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and honour, such as none of the kings have had that have been before thee, neither shall there any after thee have the like.

2. Pearl of Great Price; Abraham 1:2 (Abraham speaking)

And, finding there was greater happiness and peace and rest for me, I sought for the blessings of the fathers, and the right whereunto I should be ordained to administer the same; having been myself a follower of righteousness, desiring also to be one who possessed great knowledge, and to be a greater follower of righteousness, and to possess a greater knowledge, and to be a father of many nations, a prince of peace, and desiring to receive instructions, and to keep the commandments of God, I became a rightful heir, a High Priest, holding the right belonging to the fathers.

3. 1 Nephi 2:16 (Nephi speaking)

And it came to pass that I, Nephi, being exceeding young, nevertheless being large in stature, and also having great desires to know the mysteries of God, wherefore, I did cry unto the Lord; and behold he did visit me, and did soften my heart that I did believe all the words which had been spoken by my father; wherefore, I did not rebel against him like unto my brothers.

4. Enos 3-5 (Enos speaking) Behold, I went to hunt beasts in the forests; and the words which I had often heard my father speak concerning eternal life, and the joy of the saints, sunk deep into my heart.

And my soul hungered; and I kneeled down before my Maker, and I cried unto him in mighty prayer and supplication for mine own soul; and all the day long did I cry unto him; yea, and when the night came I did still raise my voice high that it reached the heavens.

And there came a voice unto me saying: Enos, thy sins are forgiven thee, and thou shalt be blessed.

5. Alma 34:27 (Amulek speaking)

Yea, and when you do not cry unto the Lord, let your hearts be full, drawn out in prayer unto him continually for your welfare, and also for the welfare of those who are around you.

Commentary Quotations

1. J.D. 3:157; Remarks by Pres. Brigham Young; May 6, 1855.

If you would take my counsel you never would cease to plead with the Lord, until He opened the eyes of your understanding and revealed eternity to you, that you might know for yourselves how things are, and when you know and keep in that spirit, you will never be deceived, but the spirit of truth will always be with you, and if you cleave to that, it will lead you into all truth and holiness.

2. J.D. 3:230; Discourse by Pres. Heber C. Kimball, delivered in the Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; March 2, 1856.

But do you suppose that angels will pay friendly visits to those who do not live up to their privileges? Would You? No, you would not like to visit with persons who lie, and steal your goods, and borrow and never pay. Would not you forsake such persons? Yes, you would. Will the Holy Ghost dwell with a man who will lie, steal, and swear? No. It is written that where the Holy Ghost takes up its abode the Father and Son will come and abide.

6. The Ensign/January 1976, p. 10; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

It is clear that we should pray for all that in wisdom and righteousness we should have. Certainly we should seek for a testimony, for revelations, for all of the gifts of the Spirit, including the fulfillment of the promise in Doctrine and Covenants 93:1 of seeing the face of the Lord. But above all our other petitions, we should plead for the companionship of the Holy Ghost in this life and for eternal life in the world to come.

7. The Ensign/November 1978, p. 61; General Conference, October 1, 1978; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

It is his will that we gain testimonies, that we seek revelation, that we covet to prophesy, that we desire spiritual gifts, and that we seek the face of the Lord.

The Lord wants all his children to gain light and truth and knowledge from on high. It is his will that we pierce the veil and rend the heavens and see the visions of eternity.

FASTING & ITS RELATIONSHIP TO PRAYER

Introductory Comments

1. After a three day fast physical illnesses ceased. (1)

2. We must fast and pray until the heavens are opened so that we may see the face of the Lord. Otherwise, our efforts will not be worth much to this generation. (2)

3. An individual fasted for 24 hours and partook of the sacrament, and was filled with the Spirit of the Lord. (3)

4. Heber C. Kimball fasted and prayed for 3 days in order to meet the test which the Prophet Joseph had put upon him, that of giving Vilate Kimball to him. Heber met the challenge and was able to keep his wife. (4)

5. A sister fasted and prayed earnestly for three days in order to be given the privilege of going through the temple in Salt Lake. She was granted this privilege, and in the night after the 3rd day of fasting when was shown a glorious heavenly vision. (5)

6. Fasting is designed to do many things, including hastening the person along the path of salvation. (6, 9)

7. Fasting is an expression of sorrow. Through it one finds comfort and strength. Alma was healed after fasting 2 days and nights, and fasted and prayed many days in order to receive a testimony of the truth. Each Sunday should be a fast-Sunday. (7)

8. The law of the fast is to go 24 hours without food or drink--from "even to even" and to not engage in bodily gratification and indulgences. (8)

9. Mordecai's advice from Esther as he faced an emergency at Shushan pointed out that he and his people should "neither eat nor drink three days, night or day. . . ." (Esther 4:16). This was the true fast. (10)

10. B. H. Roberts fasted many days by a little stream of water in Centerville

Canyon afterwhich the Savior appeared to him. (11)

11. Fasting causes the fat and blood of the body to be diminished and is thus a sacrifice. Alms giving is a sacrifice of money. (12, S4)

12. Harold B. Lee fasted until his strength "was fast going," then he would get a little nourishment and go on fasting. He fasted for several days, and was able to hear the voice of the Lord, and could almost see through the veil. (13)

13. To make fasting more fruitful it should be coupled with prayer and meditation. (14)

14. We are able to receive witnesses through fasting and prayer. Prayer, fasting, priesthood, authority and worthiness are essential to revelation. (16)

15. Reasons for fasting:

> to loose the bands of wickedness,
> to undo the heavy burdens,
> to let the oppressed go free,
> that ye break every yoke,
> to deal thy bread to the hungry,
> that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house, when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him,
> and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh.

If we do the above things. . .

Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rereward.

Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am.

And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noonday.

And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not. (S5)

16. Fasting is often done in conjunction with prayer and supplications. (S6)

17. Keep the fast a private experience. (S7)

18. Some spirits will not depart except by fasting and prayer. (S7)

19. Husbands and wives should not fast from sexual relations with each other except by mutual consent in order to make the fast complete. (S8)

20. The saints were commanded, in olden times, that they should gather themselves together oft, and join in fasting and mighty prayer in behalf of the welfare of the souls of those who knew not God. (S9)

21. When we suffer for others without our being required to do so, the law of justice demands that the requests of the sufferer be fulfilled. The Savior suffered for all of us, yet it was not just that he should suffer at all, for he was sinless, and had no cause to suffer. Yet he suffered for others, that they might receive the benefits of his atonement, which was, that they might have eternal life if they would adhere to the requirements of the gospel. And so it is with us. It is not just that individuals should have to suffer for others in vain. When we fast, we experience a small degree of bodily suffering, and without food or water the body begins to use up the resources of fatty tissues it has stored. Thus we waste away our own life, to a small degree, when we fast for others or for those things which we need. The law of justice requires that such fastings, coupled with prayer, be answered upon the head of the petitioner.

Scripture Quotations

1. Exodus 34:28

And he was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread, nor drink water. And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.

2. Ezra 8:23

So we fasted and besought our God for this: and he was intreated of us.

3. Nehemiah 1:4

And it came to pass, when I heard these words, that I sat down and wept, and mourned certain days, and fasted, and prayed before the God of heaven.

4. Psalm 35:13; 69:10; 109:24

But as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth: I humbled my soul with fasting; and my prayer returned into mine own bosom.
When I wept, and chastened my soul with fasting, that was to my reproach. My knees are weak through fasting; and my flesh faileth of fatness.

5. Isaiah 58:3-11

Wherefore have we fasted, say they, and thou seest not? wherefore have we afflicted our soul, and thou takest no knowledge? Behold, in the day of your fast ye find pleasure, and exact all your labours.
Behold, ye fast for strife and debate, and to smite with the fist of wickedness: ye shall not fast as ye do this day, to make your voice to be heard on high.
Is it such a fast that I have chosen? a day for a man to afflict his soul? is it to bow down his head as a bulrush, and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him? wilt thou call this a fast, and an acceptable day to the Lord?
Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?
Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?

Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rereward.
Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity.
And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noonday.
And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.

6. Daniel 9:3

And I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth and ashes:
And I prayed unto the Lord my God, and made my confession, and said, 0 Lord, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy t# them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments;
We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments. . .

7. Matthew 4:1-2; 6:16-18; 17:14-21

Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil.
And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungered. (4:1-2)
Moreover when ye fast, be not, as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance: for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear unto men to fast. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.
But thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face; That thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly. (6:16-18)
And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certain man, kneeling down to him, and saying,
Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed: for ofttimes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.
And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him. Then Jesus answered and said, 0 faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him hither to me.
And Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour.
Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out? And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you.
Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting. (17:14-21)

8. 1 Corinthians 7:4-5

The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own body, but the wife.

Depart ye not one from the other, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency.

9. Alma 5:46; 6:6; 17:2-3, 9-10; 45:1

Behold, I say unto you they are made known unto me by the Holy Spirit of God. Behold, I have fasted and prayed many days that I might know these things of myself. And now I do know of myself that they are true; for the Lord God hath made them manifest unto me by his Holy Spirit; and this is the spirit of revelation which is in me. (5:46)
Nevertheless the children of God were commanded that they should gather themselves together oft, and join in fasting and mighty prayer in behalf of the welfare of the souls of those who knew not God. (6:6)
Now these sons of Mosiah were with Alma at the time the angel first appeared unto him; therefore Alma did rejoice exceedingly to see his brethren; and what added more to his joy, they were still his brethren in the Lord; yea, and they had waxed strong in the knowledge of the truth; for they were men of a sound understanding and they had searched the scriptures diligently, that they might know the word of God.
But this is not all; they had given themselves to much prayer, and fasting; therefore they had the spirit of prophecy, and the spirit of revelation, and when they taught, they taught with power and authority of God. (17:2-3)
And it came to pass that they journeyed many days in the wilderness, and they fasted much and prayed much that the Lord would grant unto them a portion of his Spirit to go with them, and abide with them, that they might be an instrument in the hands of God to bring, if it were possible, their brethren, the Lamanites, to the knowledge of the truth, to the knowledge of the baseness of the traditions of their fathers, which were not correct.
And it came to pass that the Lord did visit them with his Spirit, and said unto them: Be comforted. And they were comforted. (17:9-10) Behold, now it came to pass that the people of Nephi were exceedingly rejoiced, because the Lord had again delivered them out of the hands of their enemies; therefore they gave thanks unto the Lord their God; yea, and they did fast much and pray much, and they did worship God with exceedingly great joy. (45:1)

10. Helaman 3:35

Nevertheless they did fast and pray oft, and did wax stronger and stronger in their humility, and firmer and firmer in the faith of Christ, unto the filling their souls with joy and consolation, yea, even to the purifying and the sanctification of their hearts, which sanctification cometh because of their yielding their hearts unto God.

11. 3 Nephi 27:1-2

And it came to pass that as the disciples of Jesus were journeying and were preaching the things which they had both heard and seen, and were baptizing in the name of Jesus, it came to pass that the disciples were gathered together and were united in mighty prayer and fasting.
And Jesus again showed himself unto them, for they were praying unto the Father in his name; and Jesus came and stood in the midst of them, and said unto them: What will ye that I shall give unto you?

12. D&C 59:13-14

And on this day [the sabbath day] thou shalt do none other thing, only let thy food be prepared with singleness of heart that thy fasting may be perfect, or, in other words, that thy joy may be full.

Verily, this is fasting and prayer, or in other words, rejoicing and prayer.

13. D&C 88:76, 119

Also, I give unto you a commandment that ye shall continue in prayer and fasting from this time forth.

Organize yourselves; prepare every needful thing; and establish a house, even a house of prayer, a house of fasting, a house of faith, a house of learning, a house of glory, a house of order, a house of God.

14. D&C 95:7

And for this cause I gave unto you a commandment that you should call your solemn assembly, that your fastings and your mourning might come up into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth, which is by interpretation, the creator of the first day, the beginning and the end.

Commentary Quotations

1. Diary of Joseph L. Robinson, p. 19; 1845; Re-printed in Faith Like the Ancients, 2:273-274; by Lundwall.

And it came to pass the Lord gave unto us a daughter, a beautiful child. She was born June 12, 1845, almost one year after the martyrdom of our Prophet Joseph and his brother, Hyrum, the Patriarch. We rejoiced greatly for this gift. We named her Mary Elizabeth, but the Destroyer sought the destruction of this child for some cause or reason. We know not, but she became afflicted and had fits and it seemed we could not stop them. We prayed for her and administered the oil and the laying on of hands. We called in the Elders. We doctored her but to no purpose, only she would seem to get a little better at times. We took her to the Patriarch, Uncle John Smith. He blessed her and after he administered to her, he looked at her and said, "There is a very intelligent spirit in that little tabernacle and if you save her on this earth you will have to exercise a lot amount of faith for the Destroyer seeketh to destroy such as she that they shall not remain on the earth." I then told him what I had done for her. . .but those stubborn fits would not stop. We had heard the Prophet Joseph say that inasmuch as any member of a family was sick if the head of the family would fast three days they should get better, and we knowing him to be a true Prophet of God, therefore we believed what he said, my wife proposed to fast [in behalf of their little girl who was gravely ill]. I replied if you think you can stand it nursing a child, I certainly will try it. She said she would and I told her that I then would do my part. So we set about with a will. We ate dinner as usual but when night came we ate no supper. Morning, came; we ate no breakfast. She did her housework and I went to our wagon shop and worked all day as usual as this was the winter before our exit from Nauvoo to the Rocky Mountains. Our ward was organized into a company to build wagons and to make preparations to leave that place in the spring so that I was obliged to work whether sick or well, eating or fasting, although at this time I was afflicted with rheumatism in my back and hips as I had taken cold through taking off some of my flannel underwear and a sudden change in the weather came, so I had this also to fast and pray for. This was included. The first day was the hardest day for me. The second day came and no eating but plenty of work. Did not suffer as much today. Third day came to work as usual. I proposed to my wife as she was nursing the child that she should sup a little burnt crust coffee occasionally but neither of us ate a mouthful or anything whatever during the three days. The third day at noontime we ate no dinner until supper time. We felt satisfied that our three days fast was completed. We ate our supper but as yet there had been no change with the fits on the child or with lameness. We retired to our bed to rest after saying our prayers as usual but as the Lord liveth those fits upon our child stopped. She had no more while we stayed in Nauvoo and my lameness went entirely away this night also. We received and acknowledged this as a signal favor and a great blessing from the hand of God.

2. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; February 6, 1859; Ms/f/115/CHO. W.W. speaking.

I met with 0. Hyde, 0 Pratt & C C Rich of the Twelve in the prayer room. 0 Hyde prayed. 0. Pratt was mouth, we conversed upon the things of the Kingdom of God. Spoke of prayer & fasting. 0. Pratt said that he had often wished that he could get faith enough to enjoy the blessings the ancient apostles enjoyed. He said Joseph taught that unless the Apostles and Elders of this Church did fast & pray until they could get the heavens opened unto them so they could see the face of the Lord, their preaching would not be worth much to this generation.

3. Journal of Charles L. Walker, November 21, 1880; BYU Special Collections.

[Milo Andrus speaking at Sunday Meeting:]

Said He once asked the Prophet why he (Milo) did not feel that power that was spoken of as the power which was felt on the day of Pentecost? Joseph replied, "But if you want, and desire to know with all your heart about these things if you will make it a matter of prayer in your washings and blessing from [this] house," when we had fasted for 24 hours and partaken of the Lord's supper, namely a piece of bread as big [as] your double fist and half a pint of wine in the Temple. I was there and saw the Holy Ghost descend upon the heads of those present like cloven tongues of fire. I said it is enough 0 Father, and I will bear a faithful testimony of it while I live.

Before he [Joseph] would trust even Heber with the full secret...he put him to a test which few men would have been able to bear.

It was not less than a requirement for him to surrender his wife, his beloved Vilate, and give her Joseph in marriage!

...three days he fasted and wept and prayed. Then with a broken and a bleeding heart, but with soul selfmastered for the sacrifice, he led his darling wife to the Prophet's house and presented her to Joseph.

It was enough---the heavens accepted the sacrifice. The will for the deed was taken, and "accounted unto him for righteousness."

5. Millennial Star, August 6, 1908; Also quoted in the Liahona, The Elders' Journal, Vol 6, pp 385-86; Temple Manifestations, pp 131-133; Testimony of Catherine Osborne.

I was baptized in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints when I was twelve years of age. My mother was a member of the Church at that time, but my father was not. But soon after my baptism I had the joy of seeing him also initiated into the fold of Christ.

A little over six years ago I went to Zion, settling in Salt Lake City. About a year after my arrival I became ill, and was under medical treatment for two years. The doctor told me that the climate was affecting my health and that if I desired to prolong my like it would be necessary for me to return to my native land. That was very said news to me, for I loved the Saints and the country. I was thoroughly satisfied, and the thought of going back again into the world caused me much sorrow.

I was desirous of going through the Temple before leaving Salt Lake City to return to England. The authorities of the Church did not feel inclined at first to grant my request. I fasted for three days, during which time I prayed in earnestness to God, if it were according to His will, to put it into the hearts of my brethren to grant me permission to enter the House of the Lord and here receive holy ordinances pertaining to my salvation.

In the night after the third day of fasting I was given a glorious, heavenly vision. A messenger from the unseen world stood before me. In his hand he held a scroll of pale blue parchment. He slowly unwound the scroll and bade me read the contents. To my great astonishment my whole life was unfolded before me. He told me that before I came to the tabernacle in the flesh I had agreed to go through anything that I might be called upon to pass through for the gospel's sake, in order that I might obtain a celestial crown. I saw on the parchment some writing that I could not understand; it resembled shorthand. The messenger told me that the Lord had sent him to tell me that I would go through the Temple, and that when I did I would understand the mysterious writing on the parchment. He also told me I would go through that sacred house on the fourth day from that time. His words were literally fulfilled.

6. Conference Report, p. 67; April General Conference, 1962; Elder Thorpe B. Isaacson.

Fasting consists in the complete abstinence from food and drink. Fasting, with prayer, its companion, is designed to increase spirituality, to foster a spirit of devotion and a love of God, to increase faith in the hearts of men, thus assuring divine favor; to encourage humility and contrition of soul; to aid in the acquirement of righteousness; and to teach man his nothingness and dependence upon God; and to hasten along the path of salvation those who properly comply with this law of fasting.

7. Doctrine & Covenants Commentary, pp. 352-53; 1966; Smith and Sjodahl.

Fasting, as an expression of sorrow, is natural, for in deep affliction man does not crave nourishment to the same extent as under normal conditions. In the Law of Moses one annual fast day was provided---the day of atonement (Lev. 23:27-29). But on solemn occasions other fast days were observed. Joshua and the leading Elders of Israel were prostate before the Ark one entire day after the defeat in the battle of Ai (Jos. 7:6). David fasted when his child was sick (II Sam. 12:16). Moses fasted forty days on Mount Horeb. Elijah fasted a similar period, as did our Lord before entering upon His ministry. The children of God, in all ages, have found comfort and strength in fasting and prayer. In answer to prayer with fasting, extending over a period of two days and nights, Alma was healed (Mosiah 27:22, 23). Alma fasted and prayed many days, in order to receive a testimony of the truth (Alma 5:46). There are many instances of fasting recorded in the Book of Mormon. Paul reminded the Saints that he and his companions had proved themselves to be ministers of God in "fastings" as well as in all other circumstances (II Cor. 6:5). Our Lord warns His disciples not to fast as hypocrites who look sad and distort their countenances, in order to be seen by men, but to appear as if going to a social function, in order that God, "who seeth in secret" may regard them openly (Matt. 6:16-18). This is in harmony with what God revealed through Joseph the Prophet, that fasting should be rejoicing. It is also in harmony with the view taken by Isaiah (58:3-8). The Latter-day Saints have a Fast Sunday every month, on which they bear testimony to the goodness of the Lord to them, and remember the poor by donations. If they understand the gospel, they will make every Sunday a fast-Sunday, by abstaining from work, partaking of simple food, and devoting the day to spiritual matters.

8. Gospel Doctrine, pp. 243-44; 14th ed., 1966; Writing of President Joseph F. Smith.

The Nature and Purpose of Fasting. The law to the Latter-day Saints, as understood by the authorities of the Church, is that food and drink are not to be partaken of for twenty-four hours, "from even to even," and that the Saints are to refrain from all bodily gratification and indulgences. Fast day being on the Sabbath, it follows, of course, that all labor is to be abstained from. * * * (p. 243)

Now, while the law requires the Saints in all the world to fast from "even to even" and to abstain both from good and drink, it can easily be seen from the Scriptures, and especially from the words of Jesus, that it is more important to obtain the true spirit of love for God and man, "purity of heart and simplicity of intention," than it is to carry out the cold letter of the law. * * *

The Lord has instituted the fast on a reasonable and intelligent basis, and none of his works are vain or unwise. His law is perfect in this as in other things. Hence, those who can are required to comply thereto; . . .but let it be remembered that the observance of the fast day by abstaining twenty-four hours from food and drink is not an absolute rule. It is no iron-clad law to us, but it is left with the people as a matter of conscience, to exercise wisdom and discretion. Many are subject to weakness, others are delicate in health, and others have nursing babies; of such it should not be required to fast." (p. 244)

9. Mormon Doctrine, p. 276; 1966, 2nd edition; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

Fasting, with prayer as a companion, is designed to increase spirituality, to foster a spirit of devotion and love of God; to increase faith in the hearts of men, thus assuring divine favor; to encourage humility and contrition of soul; to aid in the acquirement of righteousness; to teach man his nothingness and dependence upon God; and to hasten those who properly comply with the law of fasting along the path to salvation.

10. The Improvement Era, pp 46-47; December 1967; Comments by Bishop Robert L.

Simpson at the October General Conference of the Church.

My dear brethren and sisters of this great Church, . . .One of the most neglected and yet most needed laws for this troubled generation. . .is the law of the fast. Fasting and praying have been referred to almost as a singular function from the earliest times. Adam's generation fasted and prayed, as did Moses on Sinai (Deut. 9:9-11).

The Prophet Elijah traveled to Mt. Horeb under the influence of fasting and prayer. There he received the word of the Lord. His preparation had not been in vain (I Kings 19:8).

Mordecai's advice from Esther as he faced an emergency at Shushan pointed out that he and his people should "neither eat nor drink three days, night or day. . . ." (Esther 4:16). This was the true fast, abstinence from both food and drink. This is still the manner of the true fast in our day.

11. Sacrifice in the Old Testament, Its Theory and Practice, pp. 49, 124; by George Gray Buchanan.

After the destruction of the temple, some people gave up eating meat and drinking wine because the daily sacrifice had ceased. They did this in lieu of the sacrifices which could no longer be performed. Rabbi Shesheth, who lived during the third century after Christ, explained the substitution this way:

> Master of the Universe, it is revealed before thee that while the Temple stood, a man sinned and brought sacrifice, of which only the fat and blood was offered and this atoned for him and now I have sat fasting and my fat and blood have been diminished. May it be thy will that it may be accounted unto me as though I had offered it on the altar, and do thou accept it from me with favor. (p. 49)

He also remarked, "Alms giving is a Sacrifice of money, fasting of one's body." (p. 124)

12. BYU address, October 12, 1973; President Harold B. Lee, entitled: "To Be on Speaking Terms With God".

We read about Enos, struggling in prayer all day and all night. I read that to a woman and she said, "Just imagine a man praying all day and all night. I can't believe it." I said to her, "Maybe one day you'll be in a position where you will have to pray all day and all night." I've been in that circumstance where it wasn't all one day and one night, but the next day and the next night, and the next day. I'd fast until my strength was fast going, then I'd get a little nourishment and I'd go on fasting. I wasn't always on my knees, but I was praying. I remember the blessing I was seeking for one I was trying to save. I was all alone in this house where I was staying, and so I was left to my own. I had to go before a judge the next day, in the morning. And so, all day Sunday I made an outline of what I might say when I got before that judge as carefully as I knew how to document it. But in the middle of the night (apparently I had slipped off into a little slumber), suddenly I was awakened (I was as much awake as I am now) and it was as though someone had pulled up a chair and was there right beside me and dictated into my mind exactly what I was to do. It wasn't what I had planned and what I had written on this paper in outline. I didn't need any outline. All because I had been close to the Lord. I knew I could trust Him. And I saw # miracle happen, just as much a miracle. . . .And that judge made a decision.

The prison doors opened when Peter was shackled, you remember, and someone touched him on the shoulder and said, "Rise. Walk out. The gates of the prison will open."

It was just as much a miracle as I saw that, not exactly the same, and I felt confident that if I had to struggle much longer there would have been no veil. I would have seen as well as I heard dictated to my mind. So that I know in whom I can trust when I have nowhere else to go.

13. The Ensign/November 1974, pp. 66-67; "Do Not Despair", by President Ezra Taft Benson.

Eighth, fasting. A certain kind of devil goes not out except by fasting and prayer, the scripture tells us (See Matt. 17:21). Periodic fasting can help clear up the mind and strengthen the body and the spirit. The usual fast, the one we are asked to participate in for fast Sunday, is for 24 hours without food or drink. Some people, feeling the need, have gone on longer fasts of abstaining from food but have taken the needed liquids. Wisdom should be used, and the fast should be broken with light eating. To make a fast more fruitful, it should be coupled with prayer and meditation; physical work should be held to a minimum, and it's a blessing if one can ponder on the scriptures and the reason for the fast.

14. Learn of Me and Listen to My Words Laurel Course A, Young Women Manual, 1982 course of instruction, copyrighted 1977, 1978.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR PROPER FASTING:

1. Define the purpose of the fast.

2. Instead of eating breakfast on the day of the fast, go to Heavenly Father in sincere prayer. Tell him the purpose of the fast and why it is important. Ask for his help in obtaining the needed blessing.

3. Each time you get thirsty or hungry throughout the day, exercise faith by offering a sincere prayer for the purpose of the fast.

4. Instead of eating at lunch time, study the scriptures. Meditate, exert faith, and again offer humble prayer for the accomplishment of the fast.

5. Close the fast alone on bended knees or with others who are united for the same purpose, exercising faith to bring about the purpose of the fast.

6. Break the fast by eating lightly.

15. That All May Be Edified, p. 314, 343; by Elder Boyd K. Packer; 1982.

I have come to know that the witness does not come by seeking after signs. It comes through fasting and prayer, through activity and testing and obedience. It comes through sustaining the servants of the Lord and following them. (314)

There is great power in this work and the ordinary member of the Church, sustained by the Spirit, can do the work of the Lord.

There is so much more to say, but there is no time today to speak of prayer, of fasting, of priesthood and authority, of worthiness, all essential to revelation. When they are understood, it all fits together--perfectly.

Some things one must learn individually, alone, taught by the Spirit.

THE DETECTION OF TRUE & FALSE MESSENGERS Introductory Comments

From personal experience Joseph Smith knew that there was a power of darkness, and that not all manifestations or revelations were of the Lord. From the time the Church was organized in 1830, Joseph had a difficult time with individuals in the Church who were receiving revelations and manifestations from false spirits, but yet who believed they were of God. As the time approached nearer to the day when "the keys of how to ask and receive" would be given to the saints in the endowment (which took place on May 4, 1842), Joseph taught more and more about how to distinguish between good and evil. He realized that once the saints began to pray in the true order that satan and his ministers would also be allowed to go forth and give answers of his own, even to appearing if that were necessary. With this thought in mind it becomes more important than ever to understand Joseph's teachings upon this subject. He said it was a terrible thing for a person to think he was acting under the influence of the Lord when in reality the influence was of the devil.

In a revelation given to Joseph in May of 1831, the Lord revealed that if after prayer a spirit would not manifest itself, the person involved would have power to rebuke the spirit (D&C 50:30-35). Joseph Smith himself had this type of manifestation when on the banks of the Susquehanna River, Michael appeared to intervene and detect the devil when he appeared as an angel of light (D&C 128:20). Satan has also appeared to several others as an angel of light and was successful in deceiving some (Alma 30:53; Moses 1:9-23; 2 Cor 11:14). In April of 1833 the Prophet warned Jared Carter and other saints, that "if any person have a vision or a visitation from a heavenly messenger, it must be for his own benefit and instruction," and not for those in authority above him (TPJS, p. 21). In July of 1839 Joseph gave several keys to the saints on how detect messengers. In summary, he said:

1. We must prove all spirits as they come to us.
2. If you see a vision, pray for the interpretation; "if you get not this, shut it up."
3. "An open vision will manifest that which is more important."
4. There are lying spirits going around giving great manifestations. They are not all of God.
5. A spirit cannot come except in his glory because it has no physical body to hide the glory.
6. An angel has flesh and bones, and the devil may appear as an angel of light.
7. If you receive a messenger, "ask God to reveal it; if it be of the devil he will flee from you; if of God, He will manifest Himself, or make it manifest."
8. God will adapt himself to your capacity.
9. The devil can speak in tongues.
10. Every spirit or vision or singing is not of God.

In December of 1840, William Clayton recorded some comments which the Prophet had made concerning detection:

1. If an angel or spirit [embodied or without a body] appears, offer him your hand, and when you do:

a) the spirit from God will stand still and not offer you his hand. A good spirit will not deceive.
b) "If from the Devil he will either shrink back from you or offer his hand and you will feel nothing."

2. Angels are beings who have bodies and appear to men in the form of man.

A month before the endowment was given by Joseph, he gave another lengthy discourse on how to "try the spirits". A summary of that discourse is given here:

1. Men are ignorant of the nature of spirits and are thus more easily deceived.
2. No one can detect false spirits without the priesthood.
3. Satan and false spirits use angelic form; a sanctified look and gesture; zeal for the glory of God; a prophetic spirit; gracious influence; godly appearance; holy garb, etc.
4. A man must have the discerning of spirits before he can expose a false spirit.
5. Some are under a false spirit when they think they are under the spirit of God.
6. It requires the spirit of God to understand revelation from God and satan.
7. Spirits are governed by the priesthood.
8. Wicked spirits have the bounds, limits, and laws by which they are governed and controlled.
9. False spirits have sandy colored hair.
10. False spirits will usually appear when the priesthood authority who can detect them are away.
11. False spirits will contradict former revelations.

Speaking to the Relief Society on April 28, 1842, Joseph told the sisters that "the devil has great power to deceive" and can "so transform things as to make one gape at those who are doing the will of God" (TPJS, p. 227). Then on May 1st, he told the assembled saints that there are "certain signs and words by which false spirits and personages may be detected from true" and that these keys would be given them in the temple as soon as it was finished. He went on to say that "there are signs in heaven, earth and hell;" and that "the elders must know them all," in order "to be endowed with power," and "to finish their work and prevent imposition." The devil apparently knows many signs, but he does not know the sign of the Son of Man (1 May 1842).

On February 9, 1843, while in Nauvoo, Joseph again elaborated upon the keys of how to detect messengers. His remarks were:

1. There are two kinds of beings in heaven---

a) angels who are resurrected personages;
b) spirits of just men made perfect, who are not yet resurrected.

2. When a messenger comes, saying he is of God, offer him your hand and request him to shake hands with you.

a) If he is an angel he will shake hands, and you will feel his hand.
b) If he is a just man made perfect, he will appear in his glory, but will not move, and will deliver his message anyway.
c) If he is the devil as an angel of light, when you ask him to shake hands, he will offer you his, but you will not feel anything.

(D&C 129)

These comments were apparently given to help those who had received their endowments to understand the principle of detection in greater detail than what they had already learned. In this revelation he said as much as he felt he could outside the temple knowing full well that the endowed saints would understand.

One of Joseph Smith's final discourses about detection came on October 9th, 1843, while giving a funeral address at the services of his good friend, Judge James Adams. In the sermon he commented that "spirits [of just men made perfect] can only be revealed in flaming fire or glory," but that angels have advanced further and their light and glory can be tabernacled (TPJS, p. 325) The mission of the spirits of just men made perfect is that they are made ministering servants to those [on earth] who are sealed up unto life eternal, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down to mortals (TPJS, p. 325).

During the Nauvoo, Illinois days, Elder Parley P. Pratt wrote a book entitled "Key To The Science of Theology" which was later published. In his treatise on spirits, he elaborates on some points which broaden our understand of spirits:

> The good spirits are they who in this life partook of the Holy Priesthood, and of the fulness of the gospel. This class of spirits minister to the heirs of salvation, both in this world and in the world of spirits. They can appear unto men, when permitted; but not having a fleshly tabernacle, they cannot hide their glory. Hence, an unembodied spirit, if it be a holy personage, will be surrounded with a halo of resplendent glory, or brightness, above the brightness of the sun.
>
> Whereas, spirits not worthy to be glorified will appear without this brilliant halo; and, although they often attempt to pass as angels of light there is more or less of darkness about them. So it is with Satan and his hosts who have not been embodied.

MEANING OF WORDS AND PHRASES

Introductory Comments

It is an interesting fact that although we read the scriptures, we can go back and read them again and get additional insight from them that we did not get the first or second time through. This is not because the words on the pages have changed any, but because our understanding and comprehension of the gospel has increased, and as a result we understand what is being said in a broader way.

Many of us have read words and phrases like "becoming a son and daughter of God" and have thought it strange because we say "aren't we all sons and daughters of God already, by spirit birth?" Most certainly we are his spirit children, but in order to become his sons and daughters we must make our calling and election sure. Only in this way do we become his "sons and daughters". Presently we are his "servants and handmaidens". If we are faithful servants, then we will be elevated to the status of "son" and "daughter". But this kind of understanding is not apparent to many people. Therefore it remains a mystery to them.

Such is the case when we read about prayer. There are words and phrases which are used in the scriptures to describe certain kinds of prayer. We would not understand what those scriptures were saying if we did not know what the words meant. What did it mean, for instance, when the scriptures record that Enos cried unto the Lord in "mighty prayer"? Or, what does it mean to "petition the throne of grace"? The scriptures are full of these kinds of words in relation to prayer and because we do not understand them we pass over them thinking nothing more about it. But in actual fact these words and phrases indicate that the individuals involved were using the true order of prayer. In 1 Corinthians it speaks of how the women should use a veil while at prayer. Does that mean anything to us? Certainly we can gain greater insight into the gospel message to us personally if we would try to understand the meaning of words and phrases so that when messages are given to us through the printed page, or through the spoken words, we might understand what is being said and act accordingly. After all, we are told that we should liken the scriptures unto us and try to practice and follow the righteous examples laid out before us.

The reason why the scriptures and the writings of the brethren are so full of words and phrases that mean things beyond what we might understand at the moment, is because the Savior said that only the faithful are to know the mysteries of heaven; it is not given to everyone to know them. If we will truly seek and read the writings of the brethren, we will find that they have explained many things regarding the mysteries of heaven, and when we go back and read the scriptures, or visit the temple, we realize that they were there all the time, but did not see them. How glorious it is to have the spirit of the Lord teach us the way of salvation and open our eyes so that we might see beyond the symbol!

THE THRONE OF GRACE

Scripture Quotations

1. Hebrews 4:16

Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

Commentary Quotations

1. Journal History, December 28, 1845, Sunday; Nauvoo Temple Attic.

The congregation were seated in perfect order, then called to order by Elder Parley P. Pratt. A hymn was sung by the concourse. The Throne of Grace was then addressed by Parley P. Pratt. While supplicating the Throne of Grace the supplicant was fully overcome while remembering the condition of the scattered remnants of the House of Israel who are still under the hands of oppression.

2. J.D. 26:49; Delivered Sunday afternoon, January 11, 1885; In the Salt Lake City Tabernacle, by Apostle George Teasdale.

Wishing to be kind to myself; wishing to understand if there was any truth in all these things [gospel restoration], I went where we should all go---to the throne of grace, and asked God the Eternal Father in the name of Jesus Christ, that if the testimonies I had heard were true, that I might have a knowledge of the same; that I was willing to embrace the Gospel provided that it was true, and it would guarantee the excellency of knowledge that was promised me if I would seek wisdom at His hands and obey.

The worship completed, the sacred work for another soul done, the worshipper again finds himself surrounded by the influences of a confused world, but also with the realization that he has been close to the Throne of Grace and has received the strength that has come as a result of the repeated experience which enables him to endure the trials of another period of contact with the struggles of mortality.

In this setting, then, seeking to learn and live the law of prayer so that we, like him, can go where he and his Father are, let us summarize what is truly involved in the glorious privilege of approaching the throne of grace. Let us learn how to do so boldly and efficaciously, not in word only but in spirit and in power, so that we may pull down upon ourselves, even as he did upon himself, the very powers of heaven.

Scripture Quotations

1. Enos 3-5

Behold, I went to hunt beasts in the forests; and the words which I had often heard my father speak concerning eternal life, and the joy of the saints, sunk deep into my heart.

And my soul hungered; and I kneeled down before my Maker, and I cried unto him in mighty prayer and supplication for mine own soul; and all the day long did I cry unto him; yea, and when the night came I did still raise my voice high that it reached the heavens.

And there came a voice unto me, saying: Enos, thy sins are forgiven thee, and thou shalt be blessed.

2. Acts 1:13-14

And when they were come in, they went up into an upper room where abode both Peter, and James, and John and [the other apostles].
These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

3. Daniel 6:13; 9:17

...Daniel...maketh his petition three times a day.
Now therefore, 0 our God, hear the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon the sanctuary that is desolate, for the Lord's sake.

4. Philippians 4:6

Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God.

5. 1 Timothy 5:5

Now she that is a widow indeed, and desolate, trusteth in God, and continueth in supplications and prayers night and day.

6. Alma 31:10

Neither would they observe the performances of the church, to continue in prayer and supplication to God daily, that they might not enter into temptation.

7. D&C 136:28-29

If thou art merry, praise the Lord with singing, with music, with dancing, and with a prayer of praise and thanksgiving.
If thou art sorrowful, call on the Lord thy God with supplication, that your souls may be joyful.

8. JSH 1:29-30

...on the evening of the above mentioned twenty-first of September, after I had retired to my bed for the night, I betook myself to prayer and supplication to Almighty God for forgiveness of all my sins and follies, and also for a manifestation to me, that I might know of my state and standing before him; for I had full confidence in obtaining a divine manifestation, as I previously had one.
While I was thus in the act of calling upon God, I discovered a light appearing in my room....

9. Hebrews 5:7 (Speaking of Melchizedek)

Who in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications with a strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared.

Commentary Quotations:

H.C. 2:193-198; February 21, 1835. Elder Parley P. Pratt was called to the stand and was ordained an apostle by President Joseph Smith, Jr., David Whitmer and Oliver Cowdery, afterwhich Oliver Cowdery took the stand and gave an apostolic charge to Parley P. Pratt and to all the other apostles who were present. This took place in Kirtland, Ohio. Excerpts from that charge are as follows:

The ancients passed through the same experience. They had this testimony-that they had seen the Savior after He rose from the dead. You must bear the same testimony; or your mission, your labor, your toil, will be in vain. You must bear the same testimony, that there is but one God, one Mediator; he that hath seen Him, will know Him, and testify of Him. (p. 193)

It is necessary that you receive a testimony from heaven for yourselves; that you have seen the face of God.

Never cease striving until you have seen God face to face. Strengthen your faith; cast off your doubts, your sins, and all your unbelief; and nothing can prevent you from coming to God. Your ordination is not full and complete till God has laid His hands upon you. We require as much to qualify us as did those who have gone before us; God is the same. If the Savior in former days laid His hands upon His disciples, why not in latter days? (pp. 195-96)

You have our best wishes, you have our most fervent prayers, that you may be able to bear this testimony, that you have seen the face of God. Therefore call upon him in faith in mighty prayer till you prevail, for it is your duty and your privilege to bear such a testimony for yourselves. (p. 198)

PERSONAL WORTHINESS AND PREPARATION

Introductory Comments

Gospel Mysteries

In order for an individual to come into the presence of the Lord and make his calling and election sure, there are certain preparation which must exist prior to the person being able to gain such great blessings. Such preparation must deal with the outward appearances as well as the inward. Admittance into the presence of the Lord depends upon whether or not the individual prepares him self as he should.

Going to the temple is just such an example. Before the person is given admittance into the Lord's house (his presence). he must first be judged worthy. If he has made the proper preparations then he will be allowed to enter. For new members it means they must endure in faithfulness for at least one year past their baptismal date. Entrance into the presence of the Lord does not come automatically just because the person might stand at the door and say "let me in, I am ready."

Personal Worthiness

Personal worthiness comes in two categories: outward and inward appearances. Anyone who desires to enter the Lord's presence must prepare himself sufficiently by making the spiritual climb up Mt Sinai as did Moses prior to his entering into the presence of the Lord.

The outward preparations which an individual must make would include:

1. Reception of all the ordinances of the gospel, from baptism to temple marriage. If all these ordinances have not been received, sufficient preparation has not taken place.

2. Possession of a current temple recommend. This indicates that the person declares himself worthy in all the categories listed in the recommend interview. If a person cannot qualify honestly for a recommend, then sufficient preparation has not been made.

3. Is the temple recommend used as often as the nearness of a temple will permit? The Lord will judge us according to our circumstances.

4. Holding family home evenings, studying the scriptures, saying our morning and evening prayers, teaching the children to marry in the temple and go on missions, etc.

The inward preparations which must be made are less obvious to the eye of man, although God and the angels of heaven see them. Such inward preparations will include:

1. Repentance of all our sins daily, and a continual struggle to keep clean and unspotted from the sins of the world.
2. Keeping all the commandments, including the ones that seem to be broken most often: keeping the sabbath day holy, thou shalt not covet, thou shalt not commit adultery, and thou shalt not steal.

3. Forgiving all others their trespasses against us. Holding no grudges against anyone, therefore having no need to criticize anyone, and feeling at peace with all others.

4. Commit to live the law of sacrifice, in that the person is willing to suffer the wrongs of others which are heaped upon him, even as he heaped his wrongs upon the Savior, who suffered them in silence. Those who are not willing to suffer the trespasses of others and say in their hearts "God judge between me and thee, but for me I will forgive thee", retain selfishness within and do not quality for the pure love of Christ.

5. Commit to live the law of consecration, in that the person who is willing to forgive all others, now dedicates all his time and talents, and everything with which the Lord has blessed him, to blessing the lives of those he has been called upon to serve. He devotes himself to a life of service outside of himself just as the Master did.

It is true that satan desired to force all who were to come to earth to live the standards of the gospel and thereby take away their free agency. But why such a plan? Because if they sinned he would have to pay the penalty for their sins, and he was unwilling to suffer for them. His selfishness for his own comfort was more important than his willingness to serve his brothers and sisters. Just so with us. To the same degree that we are unwilling to pray for our enemies and others; to fast for those who need help (which fasting causes pain and discomfort); or to serve the needs of others even when it is late or out of our way, then to that same degree we imbibe the spirit of satan who did not want to suffer, or go out of his way in order to bless others, and yet he still wanted the glory.

By being willing to suffer others weakness as they affect us, and to be willing to serve all others at our own expense, without thought of recompense, is the way of the Master. The world says, 'what is in it for me?" while the Master says, "what can I do for you?" Only by losing oneself in the service of the Master is he able to find the end of his salvation.

Preparation At Home

The home is the most sacred place on earth next to the temple. It should be the temple for the family. A Melchizedek Priesthood holder may bless and dedicate his home, whether or not it is free of debt, as a sacred edifice where the Holy Spirit can reside. A member may dedicate his home as a sanctuary for his family where family members can worship, find safety from the world, grow spiritually, and prepare for eternal family relationships. Unlike Church buildings, homes are not dedicated and consecrated to the Lord.

Those holding the fulness of the priesthood may use that priesthood to dedicate a home to where it actually becomes the residence of the Lord himself. But if an individual does not hold the fulness of the priesthood yet, he can only dedicate his home as a sacred edifice where the Holy Ghost and his spirit can reside and be of influence. This is the way the saints can elevate their spiritual lives, by allowing the Holy Ghost to come into their homes and sanctify and bless them so that one day the home may be prepared and blessed by the fulness of the priesthood and thereby admit the presence of the Savior into the home. And this is the Zion spoken of - where the saints can dedicate their homes to the Lord so that the Savior can come and visit with them and sup with them. (Rev. 3:20). The power of the Lord will be able to rest upon such dwelling places and such homes will become among the most sacred places on the earth, in addition to temples. And the saints will thereby be able to stand in holy places (their own dedicated homes) as the scriptures tell us will happen in the latter-days.

When an edifice is dedicated, it raises the level of that building from a "telestial" level to a "terrestrial" level. In the telestial world, satan is allowed to roam free and have influence among mankind. However, when a building is dedicated, it cast out the influence of satan so that peace and the spirit of the Lord can reside there. In the endowment, satan is cast out while they are yet in a "telestial" environment. Shortly after he has been cast out, we enter the "terrestrial" room where satan is not seen nor heard. It is also in this terrestrial room where prayer in the true order is offered.

Once the temple and altars have been dedicated, they may be used for prayer in the true order. Historically, during the 1800's, this was also true of the homes of the saints. It was also important to President Young that all the saints possess their own garments and temple clothing. Their relationship to the subject at hand is obvious. Even today, the saints are allowed the option of making their own temple robes if they so desire.

In short, the saints realized the importance of the home and did all they could to make their home a sacred place, where they could commune with the Lord.

THE DEDICATION OF HOMES

Commentary Quotations

1. The Journal of Joseph G. Nelson, n.p., n.d.

On the appointed day we met in our dining room in Preston - Brother and Sister Johnson with others of our friends. Before engaging in prayer, Mae [Nelson's daughter] and I retired to our sacred room and asked God if it would be all right to pray for rain. The answer was: "It's all right, but pray in this way - the Lord's will be done."

So we prayed and in the midst of the prayer there was a gentle roll of thunder immediately above our heads although the sky was cloudless. The rain did not come and I inquired again of the Lord the reasons and the answer was: "All through the Cache Valley the first hay crop is being harvested, and the people are praying that the weather remain fine." Thus the prayer was answered in God's own way.

One day a gentleman named John McMamount, from India, came to visit Ann's father. He was highly educated and spoke many different languages. Brother Howell invited the stranger to dine with them, that he might have an opportunity of explaining the Gospel, which was his delight. The gentleman accepted the invitation, and an interesting gospel conversation ensued. Afterward, as was the daily custom, Brother Howell rang a bell for the members of his household to assemble for devotion in a certain room which had been set apart for that purpose. After Brother Howell had prayed and said amen, [Ann] arose and spoke in a tongue unknown to all present except the stranger, who understood and interpreted. She had told him that the "Mormon" Church was the Church of Christ and that there was no other.

We should dedicate all those things to the Lord, with our bodies, our houses, our furniture, and the earth that we cultivate, and the seed that we put into the earth; and we should bless the shovel, the hoe, the spade, the sheep, the horses, the cattle, the cows, and all that we possess; and then will not God multiply them unto us? Yes, he will, and we shall get heavier fleeces of wool and more of them. What! can be bless the fleece? Yes, he can as easily as he blesses the sheep.

...this is the way I have done for years. I also make a practice of dedicating my children to the Lord, that they may grow up in his wisdom and increase in his power.

6. Heart Throbs of the West, Vol 5:61-62, 65; Kate B. Carter; 1887.

Among the sacred customs of the Pioneers of Utah was the one of dedicating their new homes, no matter how small and humble the abode might be. They would invite their neighbors and friends to the "housewarming," a real pioneer party was held, and either the father or the Church official would dedicate the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashel H. Woodruff's house was dedicated in 1887.

Like a bright star shining in the firmament, the dedication of our home will live in my memory. It was the gift of a wonderful pioneer, Hamilton G. Park, to his daughter, Isabella; and all who dwelt therein reflected the spirit of their pioneer ancestry. My mother was a woman of great faith. She believed that every home should be dedicated. Therefore, when her home was set in order and properly prepared as she thought it should be for such a sacred occasion, she selected a day in the lovely spring and invited about fifty of her friends to attend the dedicatory service. The rays of the glorious sun seemed to penetrate every nook and corner of the house, and I can see my mother now receiving her guests at the door and showing a few that whispered "we would like to take a peek around" through the house. One of these was Zina Card, and she said to mother: "Bell, this seems like your mother's home, and I feel like she is here today." Happy laughter rang out through the rooms and there was a hum of voices when friends greeted friends and enjoyed little informal chats. Then the clock struck two; conversation ceased; a reverential silence fell over the little group, and the dedicatory service began.

Beautiful hymns were sung and a musical program was given by members of the family. Outstanding, of course, was the dedicatory prayer offered by Patriarch James R. Martineau.

Among the many beautiful and prophetic things he said was: "This home will be protected from the elements, and no evil disposed persons will have power to enter, and also there will be many important events held here, and prominent people will come, and they will feel the good influence and be reluctant to leave." His words were literally fulfilled. Not so long after, Utah experienced one of the worst storms in the history of the State. Trees were uprooted, telephone poles blown over, the Goddess of Liberty was blown from the City and county Building, and dashed in the ground. People prayed that had never prayed before, and it was said that some knelt in the street. Mother remained quietly in bed and when we children rushed into her room she said: "Don't be afraid, the storm will not harm us," and it didn't. The next morning when we went downstairs to see what havoc the storm had wrought, the sidewalks and streets were completely blockaded with poles, trees, etc., about our premises were undisturbed.

After the program, refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed. Many of the guests remained for the evening.

7. Young Woman's Journal, Vol II, pp. 467-468; "The Prophet on Old Houses", Oliver B. Huntington; July 1891.

This principle was expressed by Joseph Smith at the time of the great wave of unusual sickness which afflicted the Saints when they first moved into Commerce, Illinois. The Church members had moved into a number of abandoned log houses. According to Oliver H. Huntington, who recorded the Prophet's statement:

Soon the inmates became sick - sickness increased until Joseph Smith began to be alarmed and saw something very unusual in the new affliction. He looked into the matter as only a Seer and Prophet could look. He saw the trouble and where it came from. Those houses had been dens of iniquity. He instituted means to empty them again by moving the people into tents and doubling up families in better houses. My father's family he took into his own house and tent.

I once heard him say concerning houses that had been inhabited by wicked people, that before the Saints moved into them they should be thoroughly cleansed, then fumigated with brimstone and whitewash. Afterward there should be a season of prayer in the house, and it should be dedicated unto the Lord for the use they designed for it.

Those old houses had been owned or occupied by wicked, unprincipled men, gamblers, outlaws, licentious robbers, etc., and those that were of the same stamp had met there for evil practices and criminal purposes and there carried on their orgies. While this was the pastime of work of men and women in bodies, disembodies spirits of the same ilk [sort, kind] stood around in highest glee and in various ways manifested to one another their enjoyment of the performance of the viles of sins.

When the owners or occupants of the houses were dead, they enjoyed each other's society with their new pals in the spirit state, and when the righteous took possession of their old houses, all combined to kill the new inhabitants, and hence so much sickness - for all evil spirits whether in the body or out of the body, are opposed to this work and this people, and the spirits in the spirit world have means by which they can afflict people on earth, and are as diligent there as here to do good or evil.

8. Diary of Oliver Boardman Huntington; June 13, 1897, Sunday.

Sunday, June 13, 1897. Having previously [...] Brother Eddy Crandall, as we usually called him...to have his house which he was then building dedicated to the Lord by authority of the Priesthood for his residence and against the powers of darkness and the destroyer. He had set for the ceremony Sunday 13th of June, 1897, and decided that I should take charge of the ceremonies. By his permission I invited Bishop Loren Hamer Dolten, my son-in-law and Brother B. T. Blanchard, as participants in authority and power. I also invited my wife to attend with me it being only a short distance on the opposite side of the road from where I lived. The ceremonies were short and impressive. Inasmuch as Brother Crandall had decided that I should dictate the meeting I felt at liberty to program the meeting as I liked, which was as follows: The young folks of his family sang a hymn, accompanied by organ. Prayer by Brother

Blanchard. Bishop Harmer gave a short address to which he illustrated the virtue of a dedicatory prayer to an instance that occurred with him while on a mission in the state of Virginia. He was to travel a long distance down a river on the log raft, and while the raft was being started, he and the Elder with him took position on two logs, standing and each in silence, without the knowledge of the other, breathed a silent prayer to God and dedicated the two logs to the Lord for a safe conveyance for them that they might land safely on shore. On the way down the river the raft ran upon rocks that broke the whole thing to pieces that no two logs remained together except the two that these two Mormon elders were on. People that saw the misfortune wondered at the circumstance, and that the two logs floated ashore without any effort of human hands, and they had to only step from the logs to land. After Bishop Harmer's talk I offered a prayer dedicating and asking the Lord Almighty to bless Brother Crandall, his two wives and children, his house and land, the beautiful spring of water near his door, his horses, cattle, wagons and tools. After the prayer the family sang a hymn and Brother Dolten dismissed. After the ceremonies my wife testified that she could not see the spirit of God there in the room, but she could feel it distinctly.

9. Life of John E. Booth, pp. 52, 55-56; January 1, 1903; Dedication of the John E. Booth home by Abraham 0. Woodruff of the Council of the Twelve.

The dedication of the John E. Booth home in Provo, Utah on January 1, 1903, in which the invocation was offered by Elder Harvey H. Cluff and a couple of hymns were sung. Abraham 0. Woodruff of the Council of the Twelve then gave the dedicatory prayer of which the following is excerpted:

> Our Heavenly Father, we a few of thy servants and handmaidens have met together in response to the invitation of Brother and Sister Booth to come to the dedication of this new house. We dedicate it unto Thee, and desire that it shall be a blessed place, and that good influences may be here in all the rooms. We realize that good spirits carry with them good influences, and it is because we desire that good influences shall be in this house that we dedicate it to Thee: and we do dedicate all of this house unto Thee....May this house never be desecrated by impure spirits or influences.

Following Apostle Woodruff's supplication, a few testimonies were born by those in attendance at the services. Among them was the inspired remarks of Bishop Edward Partridge, Jr., son of the First Presiding Bishop of the Church:

> I feel honored in being asked to talk at a place where so many of the Authorities are present. Perhaps a few words in relation to dedicatory services would not be amiss. When I was called to take charge of the Academy Branch in Beaver, I had a convincing experience which I will relate. We held school in the barracks where the soldiers several years previously had been stationed; their instructions and duties were to see that the Mormons did not do anything which they should not. In one room there was a place where a bullet had pierced after it had killed a man; in another room a man had committed suicide. I am not peculiar about such things but both my wife and I felt an influence while we lived there which was not cheerful but depressing. Before school started the building were dedicated by Apostle Francis M. Lyman, and immediately there was a change in the feeling and influence about all the premises. Now the Spirit of the Lord is there, and instead of soldiers to fight the Mormons there are many young people being trained to preach Mormonism.

10. Relief Society Magazine, Vol. 2:201 Dedication of the Relief Society home for women and girls by Pres. Joseph F. Smith; 1913. This home, which was situated opposite the North Gate of the Temple grounds, served as a dwelling place for visiting women and drifting young girls who sought not only temporary lodging but also security, friendship and association with other people.

In his dedicatory prayer President Joseph F. Smith asked the Lord to:

> Bless this building; preserve it from the devouring elements. May it be solid in its foundation, and safe in its appointments. May it be indeed an abode of peace and righteousness. May the walls of the rooms thereof be filled with the spirit of peace and that spirit of peace which gives us all understanding and joy. May every object desired be realized by all who need that assistance. We dedicate this home and bless it and ask Thee to sanctify it as a place of peace and rest for the weary. That the poor may not be spurned from its doors, but that they may be ministered to as they need and require.

Friday, February 11, 1916. He [Bushman] and his wife came to Snowflake with their oldest son, Homer, in his automobile at ten-thirty. Their daughter, Lois B. Smith, who had just finished her new seven-room house on the hill just south of Snowflake, asked him to dedicate it. In the evening at six p.m. she invited President Samuel Smith and Counselors, James M. Flake and Olaf Larsen, with their wives, also Bishop Fish and Counselors to attend the dedication. All gathered a few minutes after six"p.:.. Bishop John Bushman presiding. They sang, "Guide us, 0 Thou Great Jehovah, after which Bishop Bushman made some remarks on the subject [of] homes and churches. Also President Smith and Counselors and Bishop Fish all spoke well on the effort that had been made to build the noted white cottage on the hill. Then the eldest daughter Sadie, and oldest son, Walter F. Smith, sang, "Sometime we'll understand," then he [Bushman] offered the dedicatory prayer, after which Sister Bushman and May Larsen made some nice remarks. All together it was a very interesting affair. Bishop Fish said all went off very nicely. The parents stayed in the new house all night.

Latter-day Saints have therefore everything to lose and nothing to gain by giving attention to spirit-seances or promoting their teachings in any way. Nay, let us rather dedicate our homes, and pray for special protection against all influences that come to man through a violated veil!

13. Deseret News, Church Section; December 10, 1932; James Gunn McKay.

What actually takes place when a servant of the Lord raises his hand and dedicates a building or a place for a certain purpose? Are angels sent to guard the thing that is dedicated? Or does the Spirit of the Lord so operate to bring about the sacred intent of the prayer? As yet I have never doubted that something real does happen. It may be invisible to the mortal eye, and not revealed to our understanding, yet I am convinced that some such action takes place.

14. Mecham Family Book of Remembrance, compiled by Leonida De Von Mecham, p. 543; December 25, 1952.

When I was about fifteen years old, my father was ordained a patriarch, I used to write his blessings for him. I wrote over three thousand blessings over three times, wrote them down, recorded them and a copy for the person it was given to. I remember my father said that was all I had to do, so I got out [of] a good many tasks which I should have had, when I was told to do something, I would say, "That is not my job." I have witnessed many marvelous things which came to pass through those blessings. I accompanied my father with three other Patriarchs and Apostle John W. Taylor as they went through Davis County dedicating homes. I have seen many miracles performed. At one time, at night they were holding a meeting in the Bountiful Ward Chapel, two of the patriarchs spoke in tongues and my father interpreted them, a light shone on the meeting house as bright as the noon day sun. They were dedicating a home in Centerville. I think it was brother Horsley's. He had been deaf for fifteen years, Brother Pace spoke in tongues and laid his hands on his head, my father interpreted the tongues and told him he should receive his hearing and he did instantly. Many more miracles were performed by these faithful men of God, while I was with them.

Each father is establishing, or should be establishing his patriarchal order - an order that will extend into the eternities, and it seems to me there is nothing more important for a priesthood leader or a priesthood holder to do than to give consideration to the fact that he is establishing his patriarchal order here in mortal life, and that that order will be extended into the eternities. * * *

DEDICATING HOMES

Church members may dedicate their homes, whether or not they are free of debt, as sacred edifices where the Holy Spirit can reside. A member may dedicate his home as a sanctuary for his family where family members can worship, find safety from the world, grow spiritually, and prepare for eternal family relationships. Unlike Church buildings, homes are not dedicated and consecrated to the Lord.

To dedicate his home, a member might gather his family members around him and offer a special prayer that would include the elements mentioned above, or other appropriate words.

Scripture Quotations

1. Genesis 12:7-8

And the Lord appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an altar unto the Lord, who appeared unto him.

And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west, and Ha-i on the east: and there he builded an altar unto the Lord, and called upon the name of the Lord.

2. Genesis 28:10-11, 18

And Jacob went out from Beer-she-ba, and went toward Har-an. And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep. * * *

And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillows, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it.

3. Deuteronomy 16:21

Thou shalt not plant thee a grove of any trees near unto the altar of the Lord thy God, which thou shalt make thee.

4. I Kings 18:30-32

And Elijah said unto all the people, come near unto me. And all the people came near unto him. And he repaired the altar of the Lord that was broken down.

And Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, unto whom the word of the Lord came, saying, Israel shall be thy name:

And with the stones he built an altar in the name of the Lord: and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two measures of seed.

5. Psalms 43:3-4

0 send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles.

Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto God my exceeding joy: yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, 0 God my God.

Gospel Mysteries

On the brow of the bluff stood the old stone altar which the brethren found there. When it was first discovered, according to those who visited it frequently, it was about sixteen feet long, by nine or ten feet wide, having its greatest extent north and south. The height of the altar as the brethren found it, was some two and a half feet at either end gradually rising higher to the center, which was between four and five feet high---the whole surface being crowning. Such was the altar at Diahman when the brethren found it. Now, however, it is thrown down and nothing but a mound a crumbling stones mixed with soil, and a few boulders mark the spot which is doubtless rich in historic events. It was here that the patriarchs, associated with Adam and in his company assembled at this altar to worship their God. Here their evening prayers ascended to heaven in the smoke of the burning sacrifice, and here angels instructed them in heavenly truths; but more of this anon.

Wednesday, 7---This morning there was an immense crowd at the reception room waiting for admission.

One hundred twenty-one persons received ordinances.

This afternoon, the new altar was used for the first time, and four individuals and their wives were sealed. The altar is about two and on-half feet high and two and one-half feet long and about one foot wide, rising from a platform about 8 or 9 inches high and extending out on all sides about a foot, forming a convenient place to kneel upon. The top of the altar and the platform for kneeling upon are covered with cushions of scarlet damask cloth; the sides o

(2) Consider the remarks made by President Brigham Young at the Nauvoo Temple on December 28, 1845 on how the names and signs relate to obtaining knowledge of things past, present and future. In the Inspired Version of Genesis, chapter 14, the Lord states that all those who come up to this high order of the priesthood then have power to stand in the presence of God.

(3) Evidence of this can readily be seen in 1845 and 1846 during the Nauvoo Temple days, when those who had been endowed as well as those who had received their fulness blessings, all participated in prayer circles.

Record of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles in the handwriting of Wilford Woodruff

1. February 13, 1849 Great Salt Lake City. Record, p. 11.

Council met at the same place [George B. Wallace's house in the North Fort] at 3:30pm. Conversation turned upon mesmerism until Elder Lorenzo Snow presented the case of the Africans wishing to know the chance of their redemption.

Prest Young replied with much clearness that the curse remains upon them because Cain cut off the lines of Abel to prevent him and his posterity getting the ascendancy [sic] over himself & his generations, his own offering not being accepted of God while Abels was. But the Lord has cursed Cain's seed with blackness & prohibited them the Priesthood that Abel & his progeny may yet come [p. 12] forward & have their dominion, place and blessings in their proper relationship with Cain & his race in a world to come.

2. April 29, 1849 Great Salt Lake City. Record, p. 40.

This place [L. Young's] 6:00 pm. Sunday, Apr 29
The 6 members of the Twelve & Presidents Young, Kimball & Richards met as agreed & spent the evening in interesting chat. The President gave it as his opinion that the earth did not now dwell in the sphere in which it did when it was created but that it was banished from its more glorious state or orbit of revolution for mans sake. Also that he did not think the tides were by the influence of the Moon, but as the beating of a mans heart the Earth being a living body. Elder P.P.P. inquired what was strictly right as to the associations & connection of a man with his wives? The President replied that if we had not been brought up Gentile superstition it would be right for us to associate equally with all our wives or as we chose about it, but now it is wisdom to not forsake the wife of our youths who dwelt in our bosoms while we & they knew not the things of Gods more [p. 41] perfect law for the others who never enjoyed that constant society can better endure the distant association than if they had enjoyed the greater familiarity & better than the first wives can so many of which it would be worse than death for their husbands to withdraw from them. As to connection with them, he thought to be strictly right would be to not unite with a woman in view of impregnation till 7 days after the cessation of the menstrual discharge in order for the most healthy procreation of our species. Also that after childbirth if delivered of a son she should continue 40 days in her purification. If of a daughter she should be 70 days separated as unclean for a man.

As to sexual connection during pregnancy just as they please about that suit themselves.

Joseph Smith's Mission

I understand my mission and business. God Almighty is my shield and what can man do if God is my friend? I shall not be sacrificed until my time comes; then I shall be offered freely. Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Willard Richards, and George Miller and others Anointed Kings and Priest to God by Joseph Smith--Also the anointing of Kings and Priests is the Patriarchal Priesthood:

Joseph washed and anointed [us] as Kings and Priests to God, and over the House of Israel,... [because] he was commanded of God, [to do so]... and [thereby] conferred on us Patriarchal Priesthood. Brigham's description of the nature of the ordinances and ceremonies at Nauvoo:

[W]hen we got our washings and anointings under the hands of the Prophet Joseph at Nauvoo we had only one room to work in with the exception of a little side room or office. [In this side office] we were washed and anointed, and had our garments placed upon us and [we] received our New Name.... [After this] we went into the large room... Joseph divided up the room the best that he could. [He] hung the veil... Then as we passed along from one department to another, [he] gav[e] us [the] signs, tokens, penalties with the Key words. John Nuttal, Diary, 7 February 1877, Archives and Manuscripts, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah.)

Joseph Smith says to Brigham about the Ordinances:

...this is not arranged right, but, we have done the best we could under the circumstances in which we are placed, and I wish all these ceremonies.... [We preformed the ordinances under Joseph's supervision numerous times] and each time I got some thing more so that when we went through the Temple at Nauvoo I understood and knew how to place them there. We had our ceremonies pretty correct. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 28; L. 12 December 1845

Joseph Fielding, one who received the endowment ordinances form Joseph Smith on 9 December 1843 and witnessed the administration of these ordinances in the Nauvoo Temple, evaluated just how well Brigham and the Twelve apostles did in carrying out Joseph's precise instructions:

"On Friday, the 12th [of December 1845] I and my Wife received our Endowment having formerly received it in the Days of Joseph and Hyrum [sic] but it is now given in a more perfect Manner because of better Convenience [that is, in the Nauvoo Temple they had two-and-one-half times more floor space than they had in The Red Brick Store], the 12 are very strict in attending to the true and proper form...ministering in the Temple and teaching the way of Life and Salvation" (Ehat, "The nauvoo Journal of Joseph Fielding," pp. 158-59; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 255, Endnote 72.)

4 May 1842

Willard Richards expansion of the Prophet's journal entry for the above date--anyone enabled to secure the fulness of the highest order in the Melchisedec Priesthood:

4 Wednesday May 4- I spent the day in the upper part of the Store (IE.) in my private office (so called, because in that room I kept my sacred writings, translated ancient records, and received revelations) and in my general business office, or Lodge room (IE) were the Masonic fraternity met occasionally for want of a better place), in council with Gen James Adams, of Springfield, Patriarch Hyrum Smith, Bishops Newel K. Whitney, & Geo. Miller, ... & Priests Brigham Young Heber C. Kimball & Willard Richards, instructing them in the principles and order of the priesthood, attending to washings & anointings & endowments, and the communications of keys, pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchisedec Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of days & all those plans & principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fulness of those blessings which has been prepared for the church of the firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of God in the [last two words blotted out] Eloheim in the eternal worlds. In this council was instituted the Ancient order of things for the first time in these last days. And the communications I made to [this] Council were of things spiritual, and to be received only by the spiritual minded: and there was nothing made known to these men but will be made known to all Saints, of the last days, so soon as they are prepared to receive, and a proper place is prepared to communicate them, even to the weakest of the Saints: therefore let the Saints be diligent in building the temple and all houses which they have been or shall hereafter be commanded of god to build, and wait their time with patience, in all meekness and faith, & perseverance unto the end. knowing assuredly that all these things referred to in this council are always governed by the principles of Revelation. Heber C. Kimball--Records Brigham Youngs remarks of the faithful to be ordained Kings and Priests:

[T]hose who...come in here [the Nauvoo Temple] and have received their washing & anointing will, be ordained Kings & Priests, and will then have received the fulness of the Priesthood, all that can be given on earth. For Brother Joseph said he had given us all that could be given to man on the earth. (Heber C. 28 September 1843

New Era for the Quorum of Anointed:

Joseph Smith Washed & Anointed His Wife Emma--She would later Wash and Anoint the other women of the Quorum:

It was during this period of calm that Joseph [Smith] administered to Emma the washing and anointing ordinances making her the first woman member of the Quorum. The exact date of this event is at present unknown; however, it was on or before 28 September 1843. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 94.) [Note: in the Patriarchal priesthood, it is possible, the father, being the King and Priest, would wash his sons, and the mother would wash her daughters or someone in authority of the same sex. Since the priesthood had been lost and there was no one present to represent the opposite sex in Emma's Case, Emma's husband and Prophet, Priest and King, Washed her. Later Other Women would be given the keys to wash women in the place of Mothers. Other examples would be obvious--that is Adam would have most likely received his ordinances from God or his messengers-then he like Joseph Smith in all virtue would have washed his wife Eve as the Father would not have overstepped His bounds--My house is a house of Order saith God. God named his son Adam, then told Adam to name his wife. The Lord or his servant administers the ordinances and Keys to Adam and takes him through the Veil, and Adam administers these same keys and ordinances to his wife and takes her through the Veil--Likewise, in this order Father Adam would wash and anoint his sons and Eve her daughters and then the Daughter's would be given away by the father to the Sons at the Veil of the Temple. Lehi and Sarah would have done the same to their children.]

On this day two meetings of the Quorum were held. At the morning meeting, John Taylor, John M. Bernhisel, Lucien Woodworth, John Smith, and Amasa Lyman received their washings and anointings form under the hands of Hyrum Smith, Newell K. Whitney and George Miller. (Joseph Smith Diary, under date given.) These five men were the first male initiates into the Quorum since its May 1842 organization. After their initiatory ordinances, Joseph in the upper room of the Brick Store conducted them through the remainder of the endowment. That evening all the above men, plus Emma Smith, Willard Richards, William Law and William Marks met in the front upper room of the Mansion House at 7 p.m. First, Joseph was "by common consent, and unanimous voice [was] chosen president of the quorum." (Joseph Smith, Diary 28 September 1843.) His appointment to be head of the Quorum, while voted upon, was, as he said, by command of God. The Prophet led the group in the true order of prayer [this being a prerequisite, the husband always leads in the prayer circle giving all the signs and tokens of the priesthood--See the Second anointings given in the Nauvoo temple] after which, Hyrum smith and william Marks at his dictation "anointed and ord[ained Joseph] to the highest and holiest order of the priesthood, viz., a king and priest unto [the Most High] God [and His Father]. After this, Emma was anointed and ordained a queen and priestess unto her husband. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. 21 December 1845

Instructions given to the Quorum of Anointed by George A. Smith, Heber C. Kimball, and Amasa M. Lyman--In 1880, Helen Mar Whitney, daughter of Heber C. Kimball, edited her father's journal containing these official minutes and published them:
"Sunday, December 21st [1845]," writes his clerk [William Clayton], According to appointment on Sunday last a meeting was held in the east room. * * Seventy five persons were present, Elder H C. Kimball presiding." After mentioning the names of the brethren and sisters, he says, "At five minutes before eleven brethren and sisters, he says, "At five minutes before eleven the song, "Glorious things of thee are spoken" was sung-father John Smith then made a few remarks--blessed the bread and it was handed round by Bishop George Miller--The wine was blessed by Bishop Miller and handed round [sic] by him. While the wine was passing around Elder George A. Smith arose and addressed the congregation. He thanked God for the privileges this day enjoyed, [sic] and spike of the difficulties under which the church had labored to attain to the blessings we now enjoy. Another thing he thanked God for--Already [we have] had more than five hundred persons through [the Temple Endowment ceremonies], and therefore, if half of them should be like the foolish virgins and turn away from the truth, the principles of the Holy Priesthood [still] would be beyond the reach of mobs and the assaults of the adversaries of the Chruch. Order was one of the laws of heaven. When we come together * * and unite our hearts and act as one mind, the Lord will hear us and will answer our prayers. He related an instance of some children being healed and cured of the whooping cough in one night through the prayers of himself and Elder Woodruff in Michigan, while they were there on a mission [in June 1844 before the death of the Prophet Joseph]. Said that whenever they could get an opportunity they retired to the wilderness or to an upper room, they did so [and prayed after the Holy Order] * * and were always answered. It would be a good thing for us * * and were always answered. It would be a good thing for us * * every day [to] pray to God and in private circles. * * * We are different form what we were before we entered into the quorum [of anointed]--Speedy vengeance will now overtake the transgressor. When a man and wife are united in feeling, and act in union, I believe that they can hold their children by prayer and faith [See, Mosiah Chapter 27-particularly verses 14 & 22-23:

> And again, the angel said: Behold, the Lord hath heard the prayers of his people, and also the prayers of his servant, Alma, who is thy father; for he has prayed with much faith concerning thee that thou mightest be brought to the knowledge of the truth; therefore, for this purpose hive I come to convince thee of the power and authority of God, that the prayers of his servants might be answered according to their faith.
> And he [Alma-the-Elder] caused the priests should assemble themselves together; and they began to fast, and to pray to the Lord their God that he would open the mouth of Alma[-the-Younger] that he might speak, and also that his limbs might receive their strength--that the eyes of the people might be opened to see and know of the goodness and glory of God.

And it came to pass after they had fasted and prayed for the space of two days and two nights, the limbs of Alma received their strength, and he stood up and began to speak unto them, bidding them to be of good comfort:], and will not be obliged to give them up to death until they are fourscore years old. Sometimes men trifle and destroy the confidence which each ought to have in each other, this prevents a union of faith and feeling. The apostasy of Thos. B. Marsh was caused by so small a thing as a pint of striplings--and his oaths brought the exterminating order which drove us all out of Missouri.

"The woman ought to be in subjection to the man-be careful to guard against laud laughter--against levity and talebearing. He expressed his unfeigned love for the brethren and his confidence in their endeavors to keep these rules. "The Spirit of God" was then sung. Elder Kimball next addressed the meeting. He concurred in all that had been said, the observation of these things is most essential. About four years ago next May [Which would have been May 4, 1842 to be exact] nine persons were admitted into the Holy order--five are now living, B. Young. W. Richards, George Miller, N. K. Whitney and H. C. Kimball, tow are dead [James Adams, d. 11 August 1843 and Hyrum Smith, d. 27 June 1844], and two are worse than dead [meaning William Law and William Marks]. You have not got all you will have if you are faithful [Meaning the second anointing, the anointing of Kings and Queens and Priests and Priestesses, which would commence a few days later in January]. He spoke of the necessity of women being in subjection to their husbands "I am subject to my God [since men are anointed as Kings and Priests unto the Most High God and His Father and receives revelation for his posterity from this great Patriarchal chain], my wife is subject to me and will reverence me in my place, and I will try to make her happy [since men's wives are anointed as Queens and Priestesses to their husbands and receive all the blessings in the fulness of the priesthood jointly with them]. I do not want her to step forward and dictate to me any more than I dictate to President Young. In his absence I take his place according to his request [Possibly meaning that when the husband is absent, then, the wife acting as the Queen and Priestess in their kingdom would step forward and lead in family prayer and etc]. Shall we cease from loud laughter? * * Will you never slander your brother and sister [We covenant not to speak evil of the Lord's Anointed--which are other members of the Quorum of Anointed]? I will refer your minds to the covenants you have made by an observance of these things you will have dreams and visions. * * * We shall not be with you long. We cannot rest day or night until we put you in possession of the Priesthood. * * If we have made you clean every whit, go now to work and make others clean." [People are going to be made clean every whit in the next few days as they receive the washing of feet and receive the fulness of the Priesthood making them Kings and Priests unto the Most High God and their wives Queens and Priestess unto them.] There are from seven to twelve persons who have met together every day to pray [in a Prayer Circle] ever since Joseph's death, and the people have been sustained upon this principle [the true order of prayer.] Here is Brother Turley [; he] has been liberated by the power of God and not of man [--according to faith and prayer in the true order of prayer]. Elder Cahoon bore testimony of the importance of those things which had been spoken, and rejoiced in the idea that the things he was taught in the beginning were the same things now taught and remembered, and it is so because they are eternal things.

The assembly was then formed for prayer [most probably in the True Order of Prayer formed in the Prayer Circle], and Elder John Taylor being mouth the whole congregation united with him in prayer [the Congregation probably repeating the prayer after Elder Taylor, as is done today, in our own Prayer Circles]. * * At ten minutes past two the meeting was dismissed and another congregation met in the same room.

At three o'clock sang, "Hosanna"--prayer by Orson Hyde, after which by invitation of Elder kimball who presided (President Young not having been at the Temple today, and the duty of presiding having devolved upon Elder Kimball as the next in successiou [sic]) Amasa Lyman addressed the assembly, he said, "Doubtless with most of the present assembly it is the beginning of a new era in their lives--they have come to a time they never saw before--they have come to the commencement of a knowledge of things, and it is necessary that they should be riveted on their minds. One important thing to be understood is this, that those portions of the priesthood which you have receive are all essential matters.

It is not merely that you may see these things, but it is a matter of fact, a matter that has to do directly with your salvation, for which you have talked and labored many years. It is not for amusement you are brought to receive these things, but to put you in possession of the means of salvation, and be brought into a proper relationship to God--hence a man becomes responsible for his own conduct and that of his wife, if he has one. It is not designed that the things that are presented today should be forgotton [sic] tomorrow, but be remembered and practiced [sic] through all life-Hence it is a stepstone to approach to the favor of God. Having descended to the lowest state of degradation, it is the beginning of a homeward journey: it is like a man lost in a wilderness, and the means with which we are invested here to direct us in our homeward journey. You then see the reason why you are required to be sober, to be honest, that you could ask and receive, knock and it should be opened, and that when you sought for things you would find them. ["It is putting you in possession of those keys by which you can ask for things you need and obtain them--this is the key by which to obtain all the glory and felicity of eternal life..."] It is the key by which you approach God. No impression which you receive here should be lost. It was to rivet the recollections of these things in your memory, like a nail in a sure place never to be forgotton [sic]. The scenery through which you have passed is actually laying before you a picture a map, by which you are to travel through life, and obtain an entrance into the celestial [sic] Kingdom hereafter. If you are tempted in regard to these things here [in the Temple], you will be tempted when you approach the presence of God hereafter. You have, by being faithful, been brought to this point, by maintaining these things which have been entrusted to you. * * * It is not merely for the sake of taking over these things that they are given to you, but for your benefit and for your triumph over the powers of darkness hereafter. We want the man to remember that he has covenanted to keep the law of God, and the woman to obey her husband, and if you keep your covenants you will not be guilty of transgression. The line that is drawn is for you to maintain your covenants, and you will always be found in the path of obedience, after that which is virtuous and holy and good, and will never be swallowed up by unhallowed feelings and passions. If you are found worthy and maintain your integrity, and do not run away and think you have got all your endowment [this statement is made because Elder Lyman having been made a King and Priest unto God and his Wife a Queen and Priestess unto him knew the saints needed this ordiance to receive the fulness of the priesthood which would commence in the Nauvoo Temple a few day's thereafter], you will be found worthy after a while, which will make you honorable with God. You have not yet been ordained to anything, but will be by and by. You have received these things because of your compliance with all the requisitions of the law, and if faithful you will receive more. You have now learned how to pray [in the True Order of Prayer]. You have been taught how to approach God and be recognized [again in the True Order of Prayer or the Prayer Circle]. This is the principle by which the church has been kept together, and [it has] not [been by] the power of arms. A few individuals have asked for your preservation, and their prayers have been heard, and it is this which has preserved you from being scattered to the four winds. Those who have learned to approach God and receive these blessings, are they better than you? The only difference is they have been permitted to have these things revealed unto them. The principles which have been opened to you are the things which ought to occupy your attention all your lives. They are not second to anything; you have the key by which, if you are faithful, you will claim on your posterity all the blessings of the Priesthood."

Elder H. C. Kimball Said, "The ideas advanced by Brother Lyman are good and true. * * * God is like one of us, for He created us in his own image. Every man that ever came upon this earth, or any other earth, will take the course we have taken--Another thing, it is to bring us to an organization, and just as quick as we can get into that order and government, we have the celestial [sic] Kingdom here. You have got to know your brethren or you never can honor God. The man was created, and God gave him dominion over the whole earth, but he saw that he never could multiply and replenish the earth without woman; and He made one and gave her to him. He did not make the man for the woman but the woman for the man. * * But if a man does not use a woman well and take good care of her, God will take her away from him and give her to another. Perfect order and consistency makes heaven, but we are now deranged, and the tail has become the head. * * * One reason why we bring our wives with us is that they may make a covenant with us to keep these things sacred. * * You can't sin so cheap now as you could before you came to this order [viz. received the ordinances of the Endowment]. It is not for us to reproach the Lord's anointed, nor to speak evil of him; all have covenanted not to do it." * * *

Elder George A. Smith made a few remarks; he spoke principally in relation to the importance of keeping sacred those principles which we had received. * * He was followed by Elder orson Hyde. * * The congregation was dismissed by prayer by Elder John Taylor [probably in the same manner as the morning session]. (Helen Mar Whitney, "Scenes in Nauvoo, and Incidents from H.C. Kimball's Journal," The Woman's Exponent 12 (1 and 15 August 1883): 26, 34; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 113-117.)

October 1843

Quorum [of Anointed] Meetings:

One of the key meetings of the Quorum that would establish the role the Quorum would have in succession after Joseph Smith's death was the 1 October 1843 meeting. At this meeting, all who participated in the Quorum meeting the previous Thursday met in the Mansion. In addition,

Jane Law, Rosannah Marks, Elizabeth Durfee and Mary Fielding Smith (who received their washings and anointings from Emma before the start of the meeting) were added to the Quorum. Joseph Smith then proceeded to anoint as counselors in the First Presidency, William Law and Amasa Lyman. While Law's anointing was in accordance with a revelation (D&C 124:91), the reason for Lyman's anointing was not made clear in the brief Joseph Smith Diary entry. But in light of the division existing between Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon, first counselor in the First Presidency, this anointing of Lyman takes on great importance. On Sunday, 13 August 1843, Joseph Smith during his public sermon "showed that Sidney Rigdon had bound himself by an oath...to deliver J[oseph] into the hands of the Missourians." (Ehat and Coo, Words of Joseph Smith, p. 243.) Joseph then "in the name of the Lord withdrew the hand of fellowship for [Sidney Rigdon] and put it to the vote of the people. He was cut off by an unanimous vote and orders [were given] to demand his [ministerial] licence." (Ehat and Cook, Words of Joseph, p. 243.) The following Sunday, Sidney denied these charges. But on the Sunday after that, Joseph produced a letter for Thomas Carlin that he felt was so evasive it clouded Sidney's case. By acclamation, the Saints decided the problem should be resolved at the October 1843 general conference of the Church. (D.H.C. 5:538, and 553-56.) But Joseph had so little confidence in Rigdon's loyalty that the week before the conference trial Joseph, during the 1 October 1843 Quorum meeting, "re-anointed" Law and Lyman counselors in the Presidency. When Joseph was questioned about doing this in advance of Sidney's fall, he gave this trese answer that was more than metaphor, "Why, (said he), by the same rule that Samuel anointed David to be King over Israel while Saul was yet crowned." (Jedediah M. Grant, A collection of Facts Relative to the Course Taken by Elder Sidney Rigdon, in the States of Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and Pennsylvania (Philadelphia: Brown, Bicking & Guilbert, Printer, 1844), p. 15.) Jedediah M. Grant who overheard this explanation said that though the Prophet's answer was cryptic it "Proved a quieter to all their rising conjectures." (Ibid.) Neither William Law nor Amasa Lyman received the fulness of the priesthood on this occasion, however. In fact, neither man received these blessings during the lifetime of Joseph Smith. So while William Law received the anointing referred to in D&C 124:91, yet he was not given the fulness of the oracles of God.

The meeting adjourned with the expectation that the Quorum would meet the following Wednesday evening, 4 October 1843, when Hyrum Smith would receive the fulness of the priesthood ordinances. (Joseph Smith, Diary, 1 October 1843.) The "council of the quorum" met briefly and found, however, that Hyrum was too sick to attend. (Ibid., 4 October 1843.) Consequently, they adjourned until after the general conference. The following Sunday evening (8 October 1843) the Quorum met at Joseph's home. Harriet Adams, James Adams's widow (he had died in August); Elizabeth Ann Whitney, wife of Newell k.; Clarissa Smith, John Smith's wife; and Lucy Mack Smith, widow to Joseph Smith, Sr., and mother of the Prophet, were received into the Quorum [of Anointed]. They then witnessed the conferral of the fulness of the priesthood ordinances upon Hyrum and Mary Fielding Smith [that is of anointing them a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]. (Ibid., 8 October 1843.)

In like manner, meetings were held through October. New members of the Quorum were added while senior members of the Quorum received the fulness of the priesthood [that is of anointing them a Kings and Queens, Priests and Priestesses]. For example, on 22 October 1843, while twenty-four witnessed, "William Marks and wife were anointed [a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]."; and on 27 October 1843, "Bishop Whitney and wife were anointed [a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]." (Ibid., 22 and 27 October 1843).

The Twelve Apostles and the Quorum [of Anointed]:

When the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles returned to Nauvoo in late October 1843, following their summer missions, preparations began for the remainder of the Twelve then residing in Nauvoo to receive their endowment. Since late spring the apostles had been on missions in the East "collecting means to build the Temple and the Nauvoo House," (Ibid, 28 May 1843.), and Brigham Young and Heber C. Kimball had not met with the Quorum [of Anointed] since the eternal marriage meetings in May. However, when Brigham and Heber arrived in Nauvoo on 22 October 1843, less than two hour before the next of the regularly scheduled prayer meetings, they spent very little time at home resting or visiting with their families--for they left their homes and immediately went to the Quorum [of Anointed] meeting. Brigham put it matter-of-factly: "went in to counsel with the Brethern in the afternoon." (Brigham Young, Diary, 22 October 1843, Brigham Young Collection, Church Archives.) A little over a week later, these wives were rewarded for their patience. On Wednesday, 1 November 1843, the wives of the four apostles already members of the Quorum [of Anointed] received their admittance to the Quorum [of Anointed]. Brigham Young's wife, Mary Ann; Heber Kimball's wife, Vilate; Willard Richard's wife, Jennetta; and John Taylor's wife, Leonora, received their washings and anointings form Emma in the Mansion House. (Joseph Smith, Diary, and Brigham Young, Diary, both for 1 November 1843; Heber C. Kimball, 1840-45 Journal ["Book 91"], unnumbered p. 114, entry incorrectly dated January 1844; and Helen M. Whitney, Plural Marriage as Taught by the Prophet Joseph Smith, p. 14.) Willard Richards had prepared the room in Joseph's Brick Store for conferring endowments, but for some reason they met for only a prayer meeting in the Mansion. (Joseph Smith, Diary, 1 November 1843.) The following Sunday, however, Joseph, having tried of the inconvenience of administering the endowment in such small quarters, requested schoolmaster Mr. Cole to "find some other Room for his school,: "as the room [was] needed for councils." (Ibid., 5 November 1843.) So Willard Richards again prepared the store room as on the first and that evening the women received the endowment.

Two and one-half weeks later Brigham Young, President of the Quorum of the Twelve, was the first of the apostles to receive the fulness of the priesthood. The evening of 22 November 1843, at Joseph's "old house B[righam] Young was anointed [a King and a Priest unto the Most High God] and his wife [Mary, a Queen and a Priestess unto her husband]. (Ibid., 22 November 1843.) Brigham and Mary Ann received the ceremony under the hands of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. (George A. Smith, Address, 25 December 1874, The Millennial Star 37 (2 February 1875:66.) After it was over, Joseph charged Brigham "to take the quorum [of the Twelve] and anoint them king and priest to God. (Ibid.)

However, five members of the Twelve then in Nauvoo had not as yet received the first anointings. When Brigham received the anointing as king and priest, apostles George A. Smith and Wilford Woodruff, who were the last of the members of the Twelve then residing in Nauvoo who had not previously been initiated to the principles of eternal and plural marriage, were only recent converts to these principles. George A. Smith, who arrived with Brigham and Heber on 22 October, was met at the boat landing by Hyrum Smith. On their way to his home, Apostle Smith later recalled, Hyrum "recited the most of the Revelation of Patriarchal Marriage, and invited me to his home to receive further instructions." (George A. Smith to Joseph Smith III, 9 October 1869; and Joseph Smith, Diary, 22 October 1843.) The following day, George A. Smith met with the Prophet who "gave [him] additional views on the subject, and spoke of the results of the same in the eternal worlds." (Joseph Smith, Diary, 23 October 1843.) Hyrum Smith was equally punctual in teaching these things to Wilford Woodruff upon his arrival in Nauvoo on 4 November 1843. Wilford had to attend to some unpleasant business regarding his unfinished home the first week after arriving. (Wilford Woodruff, Journal, 4-10 November 1843.) However, on 11 November 1843, he and his wife Phoebe spent the evening in conversation at John Taylor's home. Apostle Woodruff recorded in his daily diary that "Br Hiram Smith was...with us & presented som [sic] ideas of much interest to me concerning Baptism for the dead, the resurrection redemption & exaltation in the new & everlasting covenant that reacheth into the eternal world. He sealed the marriage covenants between me & my wife Phebe W Carter for time & eternity & gave us the principle of it which was interesting to us. (Ibid., 11 November 1843.) Thus the final preparations had been made. At the first meeting of the Quorum after Brigham Young received the fulness of the priesthood, apostles Parley P. Pratt, Orson Hyde, Wilford Woodruff and George A. Smith received their "anointing preparatory for further Blessings." Ibid., 2 December 1843.) Three weeks later, 23 December 1843, Orson Pratt also received his endowment. (Ibid., 23 December 1843; and both the Joseph Smith, Diary, and the Willard Richards, Diary, for the same date.) By this time nine members of the Quorum of the Twelve had received the endowment ordinances. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 118-123.)

Wilford Woodruff reflecting on the Succession of the Priesthood:

Joseph Smith was what he professed to be, a prophet of God, a seer and revelator. He laid the foundation of this Church and kingdom, and lived long enough to deliver the keys of the kingdom to the Elders of Israel, unto the Twelve Apostles. He spent the last winter of his life, some three or four months, with the Quorum of the Twelve, teaching them. It was not merely a few hours ministering to them the ordinances of the Gospel; but he spent day after day, week after week and month after month, teaching them and a few others the things of the kingdom of God. Said he, during that period, "I now rejoice. I have lived until I have seen this burden, which has rested on my shoulders, rolled on to the shoulders of other men; now the keys of the kingdom are planted on the earth to be taken away no more for ever." But until he had dome this, they remained with him; and had he been taken away they would have had to be testored by messengers out of heaven. But he lived until every key, power and principle of the holy Priesthood was sealed on the Twelve and on President Young, as their President. He told us that he was going away to leave us, going away to rest. Said he, "YOu have to round up your shoulders to bear up the kingdom. No matter what becomes to me. I have desired to see that Temple built, but I shall not live to see it. You will; you are called upon to bear off this kingdom." This language was plain enough, but we did not understand it any more than the disciples of Jesus when he told them he was going away, and that if he went not the Comforter would not come. it was just so with Joseph. He said this time after time to the Twelve and to the Female Relief Societies and in his public discourses; but none of us seemed to understand that he was going to seal his testimony with his blood, but so it was. (Journal of Discourses 13:164.)

The Martyrdom and the Garments of Priesthood:

Returning to Nauvoo to give themselves up and go to Carthage:

Joseph and Hyrum, however, decided it would be best to return to Nauvoo and give themselves up. (D.H.C., 6:548-50.) That evening they made preparations to leave for Carthage. It is very unlikely the Quorum [of Anointed] met that Sunday evening; nevertheless, joseph instructed those of the Quorum [of Anointed] who where going to accompany him to remove their sacred garments before going to Carthage. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 21 December 1845, and Oliver B. Huntington, Journal, 22 April 1897.) * * * Not only was provision made to protect the sacred clothing of the Anointed Quorum, but Joseph took precautions to protect the Council of Fifty. William Clayton, before Joseph crossed the river, mentioned in his diary the concern the Prophet had for the records of the Kingdom. "Joseph whispered to me either to put the r. or K. into the hands of some faithful man and send them away, or burn them, or bury them. I concluded to bury them, which I did immediately on my return home." (William Clayton, Journal, 22 June 1844, cited in Ehat, "The Constitution of the Kingdom of God," p. 268.) * * * In the announcement of the Martyrdom, published in the 1844 Doctrine and Covenants, Willard Richards's faith in Joseph's promise he received when he was given his garment was also canonized: for Willard Richards was the only one in the jail who "through the providence of God, escaped, without even a hole in his robe." (D&C 111 (1844 edition): 135 (present LDS edition). But without his robe, john Taylor, too, was miraculously preserved and would later say that the brethren did not remove their garments because of fears, as some had misrepresented, but so they would not expose the sacred clothing to the gaze of unbelievers. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 21 December 1845.) (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 184-187.)

Notice that in John's testimony, before Jesus went to the Mt. of Olives he lay aside his garments and when he took his garments it does not say that he put them on again. There could possibly be a correlation between why John's account only says that Jesus took his garments rather than saying put them on again and what the Prophet Joseph Smith did:

|v4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.
|v5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.
|v6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
|v7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.
|v8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
|v9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.

|v11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.
|v12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?
|v13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.
|v14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
|v15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
|v17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them. (NewT:John 13:4-17)

Wilford Woodruff quoting Brigham Youngs comments--right of King and Priest:

The Prophet Joseph has lade the foundation for a great work, and we will build upon it.... Let those who hold the keys of the kingdom of God build it up in all the world. If... he is a king and priest, let him go and build up a kingdom this is his right, and it is the right of many here but who is the head? The Twelve.... Now if you want Rigdon, Lyman or Law to lead you or any body else, you may have them, but I tel you in the name of the Lord, that no man can put another between the Twelve and the Prophet Joseph. Why? Because Joseph was their file leader and he has committed into their hands the keys of the Kingdom for all the world. (Wilford Woodruff, Journal, 8 Aug 1844; (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 202.)

Samuel W. Richards to Franklin D. Richards:

Orson Hyde told... that they were in Council with Joseph so much last spring[.] He said that Joseph was preparing them for the work that they have now got to do which is to hold the keys and build up this kingdom in all the world. Joseph committed unto them all the keys of the Priesthood otherwise the fulness would not have been upon the Earth now [that] he is taken away. He also took them through all the ordinances which is necessary for the Salvation of Man, that they having experienced them all, by passing through them, might be prepared to lead the People in the path which they had trod when he had finished his work ordained and anointed the twelve to lead this people and build upon the foundation which he had laid he was filled with joy & says he it is now but little matter what becomest of me....he has gone to minister not only on earth but in heaven, and under the earth. (Samuel W. Richards to Franklin D. Richards, 23-26 August 1844, Church Archives; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 184-187.)

Joseph Fielding thoughts upon Joseph death:

[M]y Consolation in the midst of this Affair was that all had been done[.] Joseph and Hyram had done all that they could have done and the Foundation of the great Work of the last Days was laid so that it could be finished by the 12 Appostles [sic] who had been instructed in all things pertaining to the Kingdom of God on the Earth, some also beside the 12 had received their Endowment, which was expected at the completion of the Temple. I myself and my Wife had had this Privilege granted us in part, [Joseph and his wife would be anointed a King and Priest and Queen and Priestess when the Nauvoo temple was completed a few months later], I also believed that as Joseph was the only one that had the Keys of the Priesthood of [the] Kingdom of God on the Earth since the Days of Peter and the other Apostles, he must not only minister the same on Earth but also to the whole World of Spirits who departed from this Life in the time of the Broken Covenant, even as Jesus did to those before him to the Flood [1 Peter 3:18-20; 4:6; Isaiah 61:1; D&C 76: 73-74; and , Moses 7: 38-40 (23-45), 55-47)], that those who had died without the Priesthood must remain so until it should be restored to the Earth, but it is necessary that they as well as we who are now alive should be made acquainted with the Ordinances, Signs and Tokens of the Priesthood and the Turms [sic] of Admission into the kingdom in Order that they may come forth with those who have received it here, so that Joseph was as much needed there as here, and perhaps more so, these Reflections in a great measure took off the edge of the Grief that I might else have felt, for I thought that [he] had so fulfilled his own Purposes, and I felt willing to say amen to it. (Ehat, "Nauvoo Journal of Joseph Fielding," pp. 153-54; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. John S. Fullmer to "Uncle John" on the Prophets death and succession:

[John S. Fullmer writing to his Uncle John testified that the modern apostles were] equal [in] authority with ["Peter, james, & John or Paul"]... Men who have power to bind on earth & it shall [be] bound in Heaven. & to Loose on earth & it shall be loosed in Heaven.... Now I expect these things will choke you pretty near, but...I tell you these things are reasonable; & were these powers & authority are not held, then you will not find the fulness of the everlasting Gospel, nor the fulness of the priesthood....

Perhaps you may think that be cause [sic] our leaders are gone [Joseph and Hyrum] we are the same as broken up, but let me tell you that ... to our joy, the Prophet succeeded before his death in completely organizing the Church conferring Keys, authority and enduements upon the Apostles & others, so that the work can go on as well as when he alone was propelling it; and better, because there are more now to push it, each holding all the power which he held in the priestly office. We are rushing the Temple ahead, faster since his death than before. In it, all who shall be found worthy, have promised their enduement. We expect to finish it before a year form now. What would you give to share in such a blessing? (John S. Fullmer to "Uncle John,: 27 September 1844, Church Archives.; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 210.)

Introduction to the Book of Anointings:

Brigham Young and the Twelve were Zealous in fulfilling Joseph's intentions for the Nauvoo Temple when ordinance work began in December 1845. In less than sixty days, over 5,000 persons received the endowment, 2,420 living individuals received eternal marriage sealings, 369 persons participated in proxy marriage ordinances, 71 children were sealed, 130 adoptions were preformed, and 591 received the anointings of the fulness of the priesthood [and were made Kings and Queens, Priests and Priestesses unto the Most High God.] (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 240.)

DETECTING TRUE & FALSE MESSENGERS
By Richard A. Ware
9 November 1982

In a revelation given to Joseph Smith in May of 1831, the Lord revealed that if after prayer a spirit would not manifest itself, then the person would have power to rebuke the spirit (D&C 50:30-35) . Early in Joseph's life he had a manifestation from a messenger on the banks of the Susquehanna River. Michael had to come and intervene and expose the devil while he appeared as an angel of light (D&C 128:20). Satan has also appeared to several others as an angel of light (Alma 30:53; Moses 1:9-23; 2 Cor 11:14) . In April of 1833 the Prophet warned Jared Carter and other saints, that "if any person have a vision or a visitation from a heavenly messenger, it must be for his own benefit and instruction," and not for those in authority above him (TPJS p. 21). In July of 1839 Joseph expanded the saints understanding in regards to detecting messengers. In summary he said:

1. We must prove all spirits as they come to us.

2. If you see a vision, pray for the interpretation; and "if you get not this, shut it up."

3. "An open vision will manifest that which is more important."

4. There are lying spirits going around giving great manifestations, but they are not all of God.

5. A spirit cannot come except in his glory because it has no physical body to hide his glory.

6. An angel has flesh and bones; and the devil may appear as an angel of light.

7. If you receive a messenger, "ask God to reveal it; if it be of the devil he will flee from you; if of God, He will manifest Himself, or make it manifest."

8. God will adapt himself to your capacity.

9. The devil can speak in tongues.

10. Every spirit or vision or singing is not of God. (July 2, 1839; TPJS pp. 155-162)

In December of 1840, William Clayton recorded some comments which the Prophet had made concerning detection:

1. If an angel [embodied] or spirit [unembodied] appears, offer him your hand, and when you do:

A. the spirit from God will stand still and not offer you his hand. A good spirit will not deceive.

B. "If from the Devil he will either shrink back from you or offer his hand and you will feel nothing."

2. Angels are beings who have bodies and appear to men in the form of man. (Journal of William Clayton, under date given)

A month before the endowment was given by Joseph to the Saints, he gave another lengthy discourse on how to "try the spirits". A summary of that discourse follows:

1. Men are ignorant of the nature of spirits and are thus more easily deceived.

2. No one can detect false spirits without the priesthood.

3. Satan and false spirits use angelic form; a sanctified look and gesture; zeal for the glory of God; a prophetic spirit; gracious influence; godly appearance; holy garb, etc.

4. A man must have the discerning of spirits before he can expose a false spirit.

5. Some are under a false spirit when they think they are under the spirit of God.

6. It requires the spirit of God to understand revelation from God and satan.

7. Spirits are governed by the priesthood.

8. Wicked spirits have their bounds, limits, and laws by which they are governed and controlled.

9. False spirits have sandy colored hair.

10. False spirits will usually appear when the priesthood authority who can detect them are away.

11. By the messenger contradicting a former revelation. (1 Apr 1842; TPJS pp. 202-215)

Speaking to the Relief Society on April 28th, 1842, Joseph told the sisters that "the devil has great power to deceive" and can "so transform things as to make one gape at those who are doing the will of God" (TPJS p. 227). Then on May lst, Joseph told the assembled saints that there are "certain words by which false spirits and personages may be detected from true" and that these keys would be given them in the temple as soon as it was finished. He went on to say that "there are signs in heaven, earth and hell;" and that "the elders must know them all," in order "to be endowed with power," and "to finish their work and prevent imposition." The devil apparently knows many signs, but he does not know the sign of the Son of Man (1 May 1842). Three days later, on May 4th, Joseph gave for the first time the endowment ceremony to nine men, and passed on to them the keys of how to detect messengers.

On February 9, 1843, while in Nauvoo, Joseph again elaborated upon the keys of how to detect messengers:

1. There are two kinds of beings in heaven---

A. angels who are resurrected personages;

B. spirits of just men made perfect, who are not yet resurrected.

2. When a messenger comes, saying he is of God, offer him your hand and request him to shake hands with you.

A. If he is an angel he will shake hands, and you will feel his hand.

B. If he is a just man made perfect, he will appear in his glory, but will not move, and will deliver his message anyway.

C. If he is the devil as an angel of light, when you ask him to shake hands, he will offer you his, but you will not feel anything (D&C 129).

One of Joseph's final comments about detection came on October 9, 1843, while giving a funeral address at the services of Judge James Adams who had been a close friend of his for years and who was one of the nine men who had received their endowments on May 4th, 1842. In his sermon, Joseph commented that "spirits [of just men made perfect] can only be revealed in flaming fire or glory," but that angels have advanced further and their light and glory can be tabernacled (TPJS p. 325). The mission of the spirits of just men made perfect is to minister to those on earth who are sealed up unto eternal life, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down (TPJS p. 325).

During the Nauvoo, Illinois days, Elder Parley P. Pratt wrote a book entitled Key to the Science of Theology which was later revised and published under permission of the First Presidency. In his treatise on spirits, he elaborates on some concepts which were only touched upon by the Prophet:

> The good spirits are they who in this life partook of the Holy Priesthood, and of the fulness of the gospel. This class of spirits minister to the heirs of salvation, both in this world and in the world of spirits. They can appear unto men, when permitted; but not having a fleshly tabernacle, they cannot hide their glory. Hence, an unembodied spirit, if it be a holy personage, will be surrounded with a halo of resplendent glory, or brightness, above the brightness of the sun.
>
> Whereas, spirits not worthy to be glorified will appear without this brilliant halo; and, although they often attempt to pass as angels of light there is more or less of darkness about them. So it is with Satan and his hosts who have not been embodied. (1965)

THE TRUE ORDER OF PRAYER
FROM AN HISTORICAL AND SCRIPTURAL PERSPECTIVE

By Richard A. Ware

THE KEYS OF THE TRUE ORDER OF PRAYER
December 1986

It seemed to be understood by the saints of the 1800's that the keys of the priesthood, meaning the keys of how to ask and receive an answer, belonged to the fulness of the priesthood, and were exercised by those who had received their fulness blessings. Harrison Burgess records in his journal that they received their "washing and anointing preparatory to the fulness of the priesthood with the signs and tokens belonging to the same."(1) This highest and holiest of all ordinances gave individuals the power to approach God and receive answers to their petitions. Answers to such prayers came in a number of different ways. Light and knowledge dealing with things past, present and future, as well as requesting messengers were given at their request.(2) This, however, was not true of those who had not yet received the fulness of the priesthood ordinance, even though they had been endowed and had entered into the eternal marriage covenant. Although there were many prayer circles composed of those who had received the fulness blessings, there were also prayer circles that were attended and composed of those who had not been recipients of the fulness blessings.(3) What was Joseph's intention when he revealed the keys of how to ask and receive an answer?

The Prophet Joseph recognized the importance of the "keys of prayer" and how the proper use of them would bless the saints. When he administered the endowment for the first time in this dispensation, on May 4th, 1842, he stated the reason why this ancient order was so important, commenting that he had restored again to the earth the...

> ...principles and order of the priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of Days, and all those plans and principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds."(4)

The early saints were taught that it was through the use of the keys of the priesthood, which were received in the endowment, that they were thereby "enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn" and thus obtain the promise of eternal life. Commenting on the above passage, Elder Bruce R. McConkie said:

> The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings [which come through the reception of the second anointings] are found only in the temples of God. "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing. These [key words and signs], of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communication of keys," the Prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds.(5)

Thus, for those who have been endowed and entered into the eternal marriage covenant, it is possible to petition(6) the heavens to obtain the fulness of the priesthood. Obtaining the fulness of the priesthood, then, becomes the next step for such persons. The ordinances of the temple and the reception of the keys of prayer are essential in order to give a person the power to petition God for the highest of all blessings wherein a person makes his calling and election sure and is sealed up to eternal life. Through this ordinance the person also receives the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood which includes the sealing power.(7) Thus Joseph stated that we should seek diligently to make our calling and election sure, and then "wait patiently for the promise until you obtain it."(8) Then, after the person has come this far, he can then obtain the blessings of the second comforter,(9) and have both the Father and the Son minister to him.

In a very interesting article written by President Joseph F. Smith in 1906, then President of the Church, the importance of using the keys of prayer was emphasized:

> The Lord Almighty has revealed unto us truths, and principles. He has given us commandments, shown and taught us the order of prayer, and how to worship in spirit and in truth. He has given us signs which it is our privilege to use to indicate our determination before him, to remember him, and to witness unto him that we are willing to keep the commandments that he has given, that we may always have his spirit to be with us, even unto the end.'(10)

In the minutes of meetings held in Provo, Utah in 1868, Bishop A. 0. Smoot said that the Savior "gave signs and tokens whereby we can approach him", and that "the Prophet Joseph regretted that the Elders of Israel did not seek wisdom more eagerly."(11)

In summary, the literature makes it very evident that the saints were taught the true order of prayer so that they could go to him in their secret places and pour out their petitions to him, asking that they too might be sealed up to eternal life. Once sealed, the person could then use the signs to obtain light and knowledge concerning all things past, present and future, and even request messengers to appear and minister, if desired. Thus we see the use and importance of the keys of prayer, and why it was so important for the prophet Joseph to reveal them in sacred places. And as we learn more and more about God, we become as the brother of Jared and acquire greater faith because we have greater knowledge, and by "having a knowledge of God, we begin to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer. When we understand the character of God, and know how to come to him, he begins to unfold the heavens to us, and to tell us all about it. When we are ready to come to him, he is ready to come to us."(12) And thus in this manner will the statement of Joseph be realized wherein he said:

> ...the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients, arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker and is caught up to dwell with Him.(13)

This is the purpose of the ordinances of the temple---to help us to become pure enough to where we can finally obtain the fulness blessings and thereby come to "enjoy the words of eternal life in this world, and eternal life in the world to come, even immortal glory."(14)

GENERAL CONCEPTS REGARDING THE TRUE ORDER
November 1986

The following is a summary of the concepts which the Latter-day Saints had regarding the true order of prayer, during the 1800's.

1. The home was the most sacred place on earth next to the temple.
2. Homes were blessed and dedicated by Melchizedek Priesthood holders so that the spirit of the Lord may reside there. Homes and lands upon which the homes stood were normally paid for before dedication. [The policy today now is that the home can be dedicated and blessed without being paid for.]
3. A room and an altar were selected and dedicated for prayer. Occasionally there were locations in nature which were also dedicated for prayer. Some of these locations were near the home while others were on mountain tops or in groves.

4. Those who were endowed had a set of their robes at home to use in prayer. However, many times prayers were offered up without using the robes, as long as the garments were worn.

5. When praying at the altar, the participants remembered the sick and prayed for things "present".

6. There were many types of prayer circles in use: (1) one individual, alone; (2) husband and wife together; (3) a group of brethren or a group of sisters; (4) a mixed group of couples; (5) a family group, including children.

7. When prayer was engaged in as a family, normally the robes were not worn, especially with the children present. However, most children knew of the robes and garments and had seen them.

8. Family prayer circles were not uncommon in the church. Parents and children would kneel in a circle and either hold hands or put their arms around each other during prayer. Many times they would pray with a small table or object in the center.

9. It was considered vital that the participants not have ill feelings towards each other. Thus it was important for husbands and wives to reconcile themselves, if necessary, before prayer.

10. It was understood that anyone who used the signs of the priesthood prayed in the true order. If the robes were not available, they were instructed to have on the garment before entering prayer since it was considered to be a shield and a protection against the seen and unseen powers of the destroyer.

11. The true order was always conducted as it is today in the temples.

12. Prayers were uttered as prompted by the spirit.

13. Use of the true order was not confined to the temple or to a home. Many went to secluded spots in nature such as mountain tops, groves, canyons, deserts, upper rooms or wildernesses.

14. Different objects have also served as altars: boulders, uncut stones (12), sculptured wood objects, and other objects in nature. Whatever was used, it was always dedicated first as an altar.

15. Symbolism was also used by the saints in prayer. At prayer time the saints would face the direction of the nearest source of light. If an individual was nearest the celestial room inside a temple, then the altar would face the celestial room, and the person would pray in that direction. If the person was outside the temple, then he would face the direction of the nearest temple. Otherwise, he would face the southeast direction, since that is where the source of light is in the morning hours. Facing the source of light symbolized looking to God for light.

16. Prayers in the true order were said out loud with others in the circle repeating vocally. However, the saints were also taught that they should repeat in their minds the words of prayers which were said in public.

17. The early saints were taught that the husband was the "lord" of the wife and that he was responsible for her salvation. Therefore, all messengers visiting the family kingdom would present their message through the head of the family, as portrayed by Peter who speaks to Adam.

Veils were used by the sisters to indicate to the angels of heaven that they were not to be approached directly, but through their husbands. Anciently it was used as a "shield" of modesty which was only taken off in front of her husband.

At Joseph Smith's request, Mary Lightner prayed for an answer to a situation that had been presented to her. When an angel came to her in response to her petition, she covered her eyes with her hands. The angel was insulted and left. Thus a veil could be anything that covers the eyes or face.

There are scriptural examples of where angels appeared to women, especially in the Old Testament. Such appearances, however, related directly to the stewardship of the woman and not to the entire family. This is shown beautifully by the appearance of the angel Gabriel to Mary, announcing to her that she would be the mother of the Savior.

Women can have visions, dreams and revelations, including the visitation of angels, just as a righteous man. Such revelations, however, whether to the man or to the woman, will be for their stewardship only.

18. The true order of prayer has always been taught (except for rare exceptions) to the saints during the endowment. It was in the temple that the saints learned how to approach God & ask and receive an answer. The correct form always followed this procedure:

A. Participants dressed in the robes, with the robe on the right shoulder. If the robes were not available, they had to at least have on the garments.

B. All stood, facing the altar. Offered up all the signs and penalties in proper sequence order, allowing the names to pass through the mind only. The names were never said here. The words of the fourth sign were said aloud.

C. The names of the sick were placed upon the altar, if this was a part of the prayer. However, other things can be prayed for. President Woodruff once placed the essence of a revelation upon the altar and all the brethren prayed for it's fulfillment.

D. After offering the signs, the person who was mouth, would kneel at the altar, select one of the signs, and pray.

19. Those who had received the highest ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood also received the sealing power. Thus they had the power to converse with heaven, as well as the right. Those who were endowed and married for eternity in the temple, but who had not yet received the last ordinance, could petition the heavens, but did not hold the same right or power as those who had been sealed up.

20. Joseph Smith taught that the reason why the keys of the true order of prayer were given, was to enable every person "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds." (TPJS, p. 237)

PREFACE

I first became aware of the topic of the true order of prayer while attending Brigham Young University in 1971. It was there that I began to understand many of the basic concepts dealing with the true order, as they were reflected in many historical documents and scriptures.

This compilation is an effort on my part to pull together all the relevant topics on the subject, and to combine in chronological order all the documents that I have come into contact with over the years. I have also added scriptural references to the historical documents.

This work on the true order of prayer, was not written, nor intended to be used, as authority to practice it outside the temple. The thoughts expressed herein reflect the historical perspective of the true order (as close as possible). but they do not reflect the position of the church today. This work is only intended to be informative as to the way individuals probably understood the true order of prayer, and the way they practiced it during the 1800's, and not how it is to be implemented today.

With these comments, I want to say that The Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints is the only true and living church upon the face of the earth today, and that we are guided by a living prophet. The Lord desires that we repent, and become clean and pure before him so that we might one day re-enter his presence. Understanding more about the true order of prayer from the eyes of the early Latter-day Saints, and from the scriptures, I believe, helps us to appreciate what the Lord is trying to do for us in regards to re-entering his presence.

INTRODUCTION

Because of the fall of Adam & Eve, all mankind are born into a fallen world---a "telestial" environment or existence. Each person who comes here has a veil placed over his memory and over his spiritual eyes, so that he no longer remembers, nor is he able to see. Thus, this earth life has become a time of proving for each one of us, to see what path we will follow, above all other paths.

If an individual will have faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and in his atonement which he effected for all those who repent and come unto him, and if he will repent of all his sins and be baptized by water and receive the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, then his foot is set upon the path which leads him back to the mansions of the Father. He is like the prodigal son who is tired of living in the wicked world and who now desires to return to his Father, and so he sets out on his journey and travels the path which will lead him home once again. And when the Father sees him coming, he rushes forth to embrace him, and place a royal robe upon his shoulders, and sit him down at the feast. For he was once dead, but is now alive again. As a son, he is a joint-heir with the firstborn Son who never strayed, and who inherits all that the Father hath. He is home again, at last.

We are also like the man who fell among thieves and who was wounded and stripped of his raiment. For we too, came to earth and were stripped of our pre-earth glory and became subject to good and evil, and our sins have wounded our spiritual selves. Not being able to help ourselves we wait for someone who has the compassion and the power to help. Many ministers of the world pass us by, but the good samaritan [Christ] does not pass us by, but lifts us up, washes and anoints our wounds, takes us to a place of peace and rest, and pays the full price of our wounds himself. All this is done that we might live with the Father once more.

Historically, the early saints were taught this expanded understanding of the keys of the priesthood (or the keys of asking and receiving an answer) as they were revealed in the endowment. It was their understanding that all might gain the power to return to the presence of the Father by use of the keys. Through the prophet Joseph Smith, the knowledge of how to penetrate the veil was again restored to the earth, allowing mankind to climb Mount Sinai figuratively, and come into the presence of the Lord. Such individuals remove their shoes, for the ground on which they stand is holy.

Through the teachings of the prophet Joseph to the saints of Kirtland and Nauvoo, it was very apparent that he wanted to bring them all back into the presence of the Lord. To this end he exhorted them to make their calling and election sure, that their names might be sealed in the Lamb's book of life. He instructed them regarding these things, and dispensed to them all the ordinances necessary to obtain such blessings. He also showed them how to pray so that their prayers could be answered.

Joseph was well aware of the tremendous blessings and promises which the ancients were blessed with, but stated that WE could not receive those same blessings just by reading about them in the Bible. We would have to do the same things that the ancients did in order to properly qualify for such high blessings. And Joseph understood that communicating with God through prayer was one of the most essential ways that a person had, to obtain the blessings. He said:

> Reading the experiences of others, or the revelation given to them, can never give us a comprehensive view of our condition and true relation to God. Knowledge of these things can only be obtained by experience through the ordinances of God set forth for that purpose. Could you gaze into heaven five minutes, you would know more than you would by reading all that was written on the subject. (TPJS, p. 324)

Joseph's solution to the problem was, that knowledge of these things can only be obtained by experience through the ordinances of God set forth for that purpose. Certain it is that the ordinances not only bestow upon an individual additional knowledge, but the ordinances also become the channel or medium through which individuals may obtain for themselves the same experiences which the ancients received for themselves. The Prophet explained that it was by means of the keys of the priesthood which he restored to the earth, and which he made available to all the faithful saints through the endowment, that all would be able to actually experience for themselves many of the things which can be read about in the scriptures. Through the keys given in the endowment, many faithful saints living in the 1800's were able to "gaze into heaven five minutes" and thus "know more than [they would have] by reading all that was written on the subject." The gospel of Jesus Christ not only contains the covenants necessary to gain the same promises which were given to the ancients, but it also contains the keys whereby faithful individuals can approach the throne of grace and be admitted into the presence of the Lord, while they yet dwell upon the earth in the flesh.

In support of this concept, Elder Bruce R. McConkie said:

Some of the faithful and elect, on occasion, see his face and hear his voice. * * * The reason more people do not pierce the veil and see his face is simply that more do not live the law qualifying them for such a transcendent spiritual experience. * * * To all who will listen He still speaks. (The Mortal Messiah 4:416-18; 1981 ed.)

President Brigham Young considered it very important for an individual to comprehend the will of God in their lives:

...the vail of darkness that separates us from God, and which prevents us from comprehending the things of His kingdom, will grow thinner and thinner, until we see with great distinctness and clearness the purposes of God our heavenly Father, and comprehend them as He designs we should, and carry them out in our lives. (J.D. 13:373; November 13, 1870)

Elder Bruce R. McConkie commented on how Joseph Smith had revealed that the endowment was designed to "enable one 'to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Eloheim in the eternal worlds.' (TPJS, p. 237)" In order to do this, there were certain keys words and signs belonging to the priesthood which had to be observed in order to obtain the blessing of the fulness of the priesthood. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 482)

HISTORICAL REVIEW & RESTORATION OF THE TRUE ORDER

The Patriarchal Order Given to Adam & Eve

The divine system of government in the heavens is patriarchal in nature. The sealings which are done in temples today are organizing the faithful saints into that same type of government which they will live under in the eternities to come. In temple marriage the woman gives herself to the man during the marriage ceremony, to become a part of his kingdom. The man does not give himself to the woman. If he is true and faithful in magnifying his priesthood callings, he will become an heir, a joint-heir with Jesus Christ, to all that the Father hath. This is according to the oath and covenant of the priesthood (D&C 84:33-40).

This divine patriarchal order was given to Adam and Eve when they were placed upon the earth. Abraham records how the Pharaoh of Egypt could not hold the priesthood because he came from the lineage which forbade them such power; yet the pharaoh:

> ...being a righteous man, established his kingdom and judged his people wisely and justly all his days, seeking earnestly to imitate that order established by the fathers in the first generations, in the days of the first patriarchal reign, even in the reign of Adam, and also of Noah, his father, who blessed him with the blessings of the earth, and with the blessings of wisdom, but cursed him as pertaining to the Priesthood" (Abr. 1:26).

That was the first system of government which existed. Adam and Eve gave the spiritual and temporal guidance to their own children. They did not attend church services because there was no church until the days of Moses, when he organized an ecclesiastical structure to help in teaching and governing the children of Israel.

Adam and Eve were the ones who had all the authority to initiate their children into the ordinances of the gospel from baptism on the one end, to the fulness of the priesthood on the other. It was Adam and Eve who were the first temple president and matron upon the earth. They administered the same ordinances to their children which we receive today.

Many of his children must have received the fulness of the priesthood which enabled them to come into the presence of the Lord. The scriptures state that "God revealed himself unto Seth, and he rebelled not, but offered an acceptable sacrifice, like unto his brother Abel" (Moses 6:3). After Cain committed murder, the Lord cursed him, and "shut [him] out from the presence of the Lord" (Moses 5:41). Cain felt this was more than he could bear, and he said: "Behold thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the Lord, and from thy face shall I be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth" (Moses 5:39).

Brigham Young records that it was Adam who taught Enoch all he needed to know about handling the elements, which knowledge and power enabled Enoch and his city to become translated and leave this earth.

There are several scriptural accounts which give us a clearer picture as to what the patriarchal order was that Adam and Eve lived by:

1. Multiply & Replenish the Earth

God commanded Adam & Eve to "be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth" (Moses 2:29), which command was not rescinded even after the fall. Therefore, their first command from God was to bear children.

2. Adam & Eve Married Before the Fall

The marriage of Adam & Eve was an eternal marriage, inasmuch as there was no death before the fall. Such is the example they set for their children.

"And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed" (Moses 3:25).

3. Worked by the Sweat of their Brow

They were independent and took care of their own temporal needs:

After the fall, "Adam began to till the earth, and to have dominion over all the beasts of the field, and to eat his bread by the sweat of his brow . . . .And Eve, also, his wife, did labor with him (Moses 5:1)

4. Jointly Prayed Unto the Lord In the True Order

(1) After the fall, Adam built an altar and "Adam and Eve, his wife, called upon the name of the Lord, and they heard the voice of the Lord from the way toward the Garden of Eden, speaking unto them, and they saw him not; for they were shut out of his presence" (Moses 5:4). Later, an angel appeared and taught Adam the gospel and Adam prophesied that he would see God again while in the flesh (Moses 5:10).

(2) "And Adam and Eve, his wife, ceased not to call upon God" (Moses 5:16).

(3) "The g[rand?] key word was the first word Adam spoke and is a word of supplication. He [Joseph Smith] found the word by the Urim & Thummim--It is that key word to which the heavens is opened" (Journal William Clayton, 15 Jun 1844).

5. Adam Held the Fulness of the Priesthood

The patriarchal order was directed by Adam and Eve who held the fulness of the priesthood power and authority. By it they were able to bless their descendants, control the elements, and teach Enoch how to become translated:

"And thus all things were confirmed unto Adam, by an holy ordinance" (Moses 5:59).

6. Kept A Book of Remembrance

All the inspired sayings of Adam were kept in a book, which was used to teach his children how to read. In the book was a genealogy of the generations of the children of God:

"And a book of remembrance was kept, in the which was recorded, in the language of Adam, for it was given unto as many as called upon God to write by the spirit of inspiration;

And by them their children were taught to read and write, having a language which was pure and undefiled.

Now this same Priesthood, which was in the beginning, shall be in the end of the world also.

Now this prophecy Adam spake, as he was moved upon by the Holy Ghost, and a genealogy was kept of the children of God. And this was the book of the generations of Adam. . . ." (Moses 6:5-8).

7. Taught His Children the Gospel

Adam taught his children the process of rebirth into the kingdom of God and what the blessings are that will result through such a rebirth (Moses 6:59-62). Thus he held his own "family home evenings":

"Therefore I give unto you [Adam] a commandment, to teach these things freely unto your children. . . . (Moses 6:58)

"And it came to pass that Enoch continued his speech, saying: Behold, our father Adam taught these things, and many have believed and become the sons of God." (Moses 7:1)

8. Adam Blessed His Posterity

Apparently Adam bestowed many blessings upon his children over the years, and finally, prior to his death he bestowed his last blessing upon them:

"Three years previous to the death of Adam, he called Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and Methuselah, who were all high priests, with the residue of his posterity who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-Ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing". * * *
"And Adam stood up in the midst of the congregation; and, notwithstanding he was bowed down with age, being full of the Holy Ghost, predicted whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generation.
These things were all written in the book of Enoch, and are to be testified of in due time" (D&C 107:53, 56-57)

This is the patriarchal order that governed the children of Adam & Eve for many generations. But through wickedness, this order was finally lost among the people and there began to be kings and rulers who would govern the people, and soon the earth was filled with a diversity of types of governments.
However, whenever the gospel was restored to the earth after an apostasy, the patriarchal order was restored as well. This sacred system, however, was not given to the masses of people. It was given to the righteous who proved themselves worthy of such high blessings. And several portions of the patriarchal order had to be restored only in sacred places, set apart from the world. In olden times such places were mountain tops, groves, wildernesses and caves---any place where the world was not. Today, those sacred portions of the patriarchal order are only found in temples.

Restoration of the True Order

Introduction

At the April, 1844 General Conference of the Church, the Prophet Joseph said that it was ". . . the first principle of the Gospel to know for a certainty the Character of God, and to know that we may converse with him as one converses with another. . ." (TPJS, pp. 345-46; 6 April 1844). Joseph Smith learned the reality of this principle early in his life when still a boy of 14. He learned that the Father and the Son do actually exist, and that he could see them, and speak to them, and have his prayers answered. This concept that one may converse with God has been a true principle from the days of Adam down to the present time.
Joseph went on to say that in order to approach God we must have a knowledge of God, and that we must know HOW to come to Him:

> Having a knowledge of God, we begin to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer. When we understand the character of God, and know how to come to him, he begins to unfold the heavens to us, and to tell us all about it. When we are ready to come to him, he is ready to come to us. (TPJS, pp. 349-50; 6 April 1844)

This knowledge of how to approach God existed with Adam, and was passed down from generation to generation to all the faithful saints, that they might know how to approach God. Prior to his first vision, Joseph had spent considerable time reading the Bible and learning about how the ancients prophets would talk with God. It is very likely that Joseph knew more about how to approach God when he went to the grove to pray than what he was later willing to reveal concerning his visionary experience. But because God is no respecter of persons, and desires all to come back to his presence, it is reasonable to assume that these same keys of communication were destined to be possessed by all the faithful. At the time these keys were first given to 9 men on May 4th, 1842, Joseph promised that ". . . there was nothing made known to these men but what will be made known to all the saints of the last days, so soon as they are prepared to receive, and a proper place [a temple] is prepared to communicate them, even the weakest of the Saints. . ." (TPJS, p. 237; 4 May 1842). With these keys the Latter-day Saints are able, through the exercise of their faith, to approach God in the proper manner and learn to commune with heaven.

Restoring the True Order

There is some evidence to indicate that Joseph Smith understood some elements of the true order of prayer prior to the first vision. In an 1835 account of the first vision in which Joseph related his experience in the grove to a man by the name of Matthias, it states:

> Being thus perplexed in mind I retired to the silent grove and there bowed down before the Lord, under a realizing sense (if the bible be true) ask and you shall receive, knock and it shall be opened, seek and you shall find, and again, if any man lack wisdom, let [him ask] of God who giveth to all men liberally & upbraideth not. (Joseph Smith's First Vision, by Milton V. Backman, p. 158)

The formula of asking, seeking and knocking is a summation of what a person must do to change his life and put it in order so that he might open the heavens and commune with God.

In January of 1833, the Prophet taught the brethren of the School of the Prophets how to pray so as to receive revelation. They would gather together in the morning about sunrise and engage ". . .in silent prayer, kneeling, with our hands uplifted each one praying in silence, no one whispered above his breath . . ." and on this occasion the Father and the Son appeared to them (Minutes of the Salt Lake School of the Prophets, 3 Oct 1883).

In 1835 Joseph Smith taught the father of Lorenzo Dow Young how to get the power to heal his son. "Join in prayer," the Prophet said, "one by mouth and the others repeat after him in unison. After prayer. . .anoint with oil; then lay hands on him, one being mouth and the other two repeating in unison after him . . .continuing the administration in this way until you receive a testimony that he will be restored (The Words of Joseph Smith, p. 54; by Ehat & Cook).

In October of 1840, the Prophet Joseph commented that the "keys of this priesthood [Melchizedek] consisted in obtaining the voice of Jehovah. . ." (WJS, p. 42) In January of 1841 the Lord revealed to Joseph that He would restore the "fulness of the priesthood" in a temple built to his name [in this case it was the Nauvoo Temple]. In this revelation Joseph was also commanded to teach both Hyrum Smith and William Law how to pray, thereby giving them "the keys whereby [they] may ask and receive blessings (D&C 124:97; 19 Jan 1841). Although this revelation came in January of 1841, Joseph Smith did not actually extend these keys to Hyrum Smith and William Law until May of 1842. William Law received them on the 4th, along with eight other brethren, and Hyrum Smith received them on the 5th with Joseph.

In January of 1842, Wilford Woodruff recorded that Joseph Smith had been appointed Editor of the Times & Seasons with John Taylor assisting (H.C. 4:551). On May 16, 1842 the Times & Seasons published facsimile #2, depicting Abraham upon the altar about to be sacrificed. Abraham's unusual position upon the altar, however, depicts him as using the keys of prayer through which he was able to call an angel to deliver him from death (T&S 3:783; also H.C. 4:519; 1 Mar 1842).

On April 28th, 1842, Joseph Smith addressed the Relief Society sisters in Nauvoo, and stated that women could anoint with oil and administer to the sick with the laying on of hands. This concept would be better understood once the sisters could be endowed in the temple. Joseph also...

> ...spoke of delivering the keys of the Priesthood to the Church, and said that the faithful members of the Relief Society should receive them in connection with their husbands, that the Saints whose integrity has been tried and proved faithful, might know how to ask the Lord and receive an answer.
> He exhorted the sisters...to...arm and sustain [their husbands]...for the keys of the kingdom are about to be given to them, that they may be able to detect everything false; as well as to all the Elders who shall prove their integrity in due season. (TPJS, p. 226; 2 May 1842)

The keys of how to ask and receive an answer also contain the knowledge of how to detect false from true messengers. The Prophet was vitally concerned about this aspect of the true order, for he knew that once the brethren were able to commune with heaven, that they would also experience appearances and revelations from evil sources. Many individuals in scriptural history were deceived by these appearances, and thought they were of God, when in actual fact they were of the devil. Joseph was very concerned that once he had endowed the saints with the power to commune with heaven, that they would be deceived by the revelations they would receive, hence his eagerness to caution the saints to not be deceived, and to learn how to detect. On May 1st, 1842 Joseph preached in the grove, and said that "the keys are certain signs and words by which false spirits and personages may be detected from true, which cannot be revealed to the Elders till the Temple is completed" (H.C. 4:608; 1 May 1842).

On May 4, 1842, the keys of which Joseph had been speaking were finally delivered to 9 of the brethren who had assembled in the upper room of the store in Nauvoo. He instructed:

> ...them in the principles and order of the Priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of Days, and all those plans and principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds. (TPJS, p. 237)

The Prophet also said that all these things would be revealed to all the saints as soon as there was a temple built in which the keys could be given.

On the 27th of August, 1843, Brigham Young comments that "any person can ask the Lord for a witness concerning himself, and get an answer, but not to lead the Church" (H.C. 5:551)

These keys were given to Judge James Adams on May 4th, 1842. Said Joseph: "I anointed him to the patriarchal power---to receive the keys of knowledge and power, by revelation to himself. He has had revelations concerning his departure, and has [now] gone to a more important work" (TPJS, p. 326; 9 Oct 1843).

In February, 1844, Joseph Smith met with the Twelve and discussed the Oregon and California Exploring Expedition, and stated that he wanted "every man that goes to be a king and a priest. When he gets on the mountains he may want to talk with his God" (H.C. 6:224; 23 Feb 1844). When a person is anointed and ordained a king and priest, he receives the power to open the heavens through the use of the keys of prayer, and to "stand in the presence of God" (IV Genesis 14:31).

In June of 1844, William Clayton records in his journal:

> The g[rand?] key word was the first word Adam spoke and is a word of supplication. He found the word by the Urim & Thummim--It is that key word to which the heavens is opened. (15 Jun 1844)

In August, Brigham Young stated that he has "the keys and therefore the means of obtaining the mind of God upon [any] subject" (7 Aug 1844).

The keys whereby an individual may "ask and receive an answer" were incorporated into, and made a part of, the endowment ceremony. All who receive their endowments also receive the keys of the priesthood, or the keys of how to ask and receive an answer.

The Keys of the Priesthood

Introductory Comments

The keys of the priesthood are the keys "of how to ask the Lord and receive an answer" (TPJS, p. 226). These keys of divine communication were first held by Adam and Eve, and from them they were transmitted to all his faithful children, down through the generations of time.

Those keys were restored again to the earth through the Prophet Joseph Smith. Today they are received by the faithful who enter the temples and are endowed. These keys have enable those who have had faith to do many marvelous things. With them the person can:

1. Detect everything false;

2. Grasp the great plan of salvation and unlock the past and the future with its succession of eternities;

3. Open the heavens;

4. Ask God and obtain answers;

5. Detect true from false angels;

6. Secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds.

It was a long time after the Prophet Joseph Smith had received the keys of the kingdom of God, and after Hyrum and others had received many blessings, that the Lord gave Joseph a revelation, to show him and others how they could ask for and receive certain blessings. We read in the revelations of St. John, that [of] the white stone [as follows:] "and in the stone a new name, which no man knoweth save him that receiveth it." Joseph tells us [in D&C 130:10-11] that this new name is a key-word, which can only be obtained through the endowments. This is one of the keys and blessings that will be bestowed upon the Saints in these last days, for which we should be very thankful.

The Lord Almighty has revealed unto us truths, and principles. He has given us commandments, shown and taught us the order of prayer, and how to worship in spirit and in truth. He has given us signs which it is our privilege to use to indicate our determination before him, to remember him, and to witness unto him that we are willing to keep the commandments that he has given, that we may always have his spirit to be with us, even unto the end.

Not one of these commandments of God, these gifts that have been bestowed, these keys of knowledge and of principle that have been restored and revealed unto us, through the gospel of Jesus Christ and its ordinances, should be violated in the least by the Latter-day Saints. They should be held in sacred reverence. * * * And by neglecting, slighting, and putting them aside, by turning away from the course which the Lord has marked out for us to pursue, we weaken ourselves, shear ourselves of our own strength, and deprive ourselves of the light needed to make us more efficient in the discharge of our duties as the children of God.

17. Pentateuch, p. 138; 1929 edition; Translated into English and annotated by Rev. M. Rosenbaum & Dr. A. M. Silbermann.

Genesis 29:25--

And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold it was Leah: and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done unto me? did not I serve with thee for Rachel? wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?

Commentary--

And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold, it was Leah __ But at night it was not Leah (i.e. he failed to recognize that it was Leah) because Jacob had given Rachel certain secret signs by which they could at all times recognize one another, and when Rachel saw that they were about to bring Leah to him for the marriage ceremony, she thought, "My sister may now be put to shame", and she therefore readily transmitted these signs to her (Meg. 13b).

18. Mormon Doctrine, p. 482; 1966, 2nd ed., Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. (D&C 124:28, 34, 42; 127:8.) "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing." (Teachings, p. 199.) These, of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communication of keys," the Prophet says, are essential to enable one "to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds." (Teachings, p. 237.) Celestial marriage itself is an "order of the priesthood" without which no one can gain the fulness of glory in the eternal worlds. (D&C 131:1-4; 132.) Anciently the elders of Israel who married out of the temple, were said to "have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood." (Neh. 13:25-30)

"Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessing." (Teachings, p. 322.) "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord. . All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fulness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole." (Teachings, pp. 308-309)

HOW TO ASK, SEEK AND KNOCK

Introductory Comments

Not only did the Prophet Joseph instruct the saints to ask, seek and knock; he stated that by doing so they would be able to "come up to the same glory [as the ancients arrived at], and see for yourselves [the same things which they saw], and know for yourselves." (TPJS, p. 13). There are also several scriptural examples which portray the Lord's desire that we do this.

At a passing glance we might suppose that there is really nothing there in the admonition beyond the fact that we need to seek. However, the three words can be used to indicate the things a person must actually do in order to prepare himself to receive the fulness of the Lord's blessings.

So what would a person ask for? Well, if our overall goal is to return to the presence of the Father and the Son, while we yet dwell in the flesh, and ultimately for all eternity, then the first step which we must take is to know what we must do in order to return to his presence. A person cannot be saved in ignorance of the gospel plan. We must come to fully understand the plan of redemption before we can understand what the path is which leads back to Father. Therefore, we must first ASK FOR A KNOWLEDGE of the plan of redemption. Realizing the need which mortals have of such information, the Lord revealed his plan through the scriptures. Thus, when we ask for further light and knowledge, the Lord gives us the scriptures and the writings of the prophets. By searching them we will learn all that is essential for us to return to his presence.

Secondly, while we are asking the Lord for light and knowledge, we can begin the next step---that of SEEKING THE LORD'S PRESENCE. By increasing our knowledge of what the Lord expects of us by searching the scriptures, we can begin to live and apply those doctrinal concepts that will help us to become clean and pure before him. If we desire to enter the Lord's presence, then we must be clean and pure, for no unclean thing can enter his presence. By keeping the commandments we apply what we learn, and are thus able to bring our lives into greater conformity to what the Lord expects of us. Thus we seek the divine presence by conforming our lives to the divine image.

Lastly, as we are asking for further light and knowledge, and while we are seeking the divine presence, we should knock at the veil through prayer. On December 28, 1845, the endowed saints in Nauvoo were instructed that through the keys of the priesthood, an individual would be able to knock and receive answers to his prayers. They were told that altars are where they were to "knock" for that was where the real veil was located. Joseph counselled that they should acquaint themselves with men like Daniel, who prayed three times daily towards the source of light: the temple.

Thus the formula is:

ASK	Search the scriptures
SEEK	Keep the commandments
KNOCK	Pray in faith

Scriptural Quotations

ASK

1. Matthew 7:7-8

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:
For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

2. 2 Nephi 32:4

Wherefore, now after I have spoken these words, if ye cannot understand them it will be because ye ask not, neither do ye knock; wherefore, ye are not brought into the light, but must perish in the dark.

3. Mosiah 4:10

And again, believe that ye must repent of your sins and forsake them, and humble yourselves before God; and ask in sincerity of heart that he would forgive you; and now, if you believe all these things see that ye do them.

SEEK

1. Deuteronomy 4:29

But if from thence thou shalt seek the LORD thy God, thou shalt find him, if thou seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul.

2. 1 Chronicles 16:10-11

Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord.
Seek the LORD and his strength, seek his face continually.

3. Ezra 8:22

The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek him; but his power and his wrath is against all them that forsake him.

4. Psalms The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good.

The LORD looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God. (14:1-2; see also 53:1-2)

One thing have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the LORD, and to enquire in his temple.

For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set me up upon a rock. * * *

Hear, 0 LORD, when I cry with my voice: have mercy also upon me, and answer me.

When thou saidst, Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, LORD, will I seek.

Hide not thy face far from me; put not thy servant away in anger; thou hast been my help; leave me not, neither forsake me, 0 God of my salvation. (27:4-5; 7-9)

0 God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is.

To see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary. (63:1-2)

Seek the Lord, and his strength: seek his face evermore. (105:4)

Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the whole heart. (119:2)

5. Proverbs

Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded;

But ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would none of my reproof: I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh; When your fear cometh as desolation, and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when distress and anguish cometh upon you.

Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me:

For they that hated knowledge, and did not choose the fear of the Lord: They would none of my counsel: they despised all my reproof. Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices. (1:24-31)

I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me. (8:17)

6. Isaiah

Yea, in the way of thy judgments, 0 LORD, have we waited for thee; the desire of our soul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee.

With my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early: for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness. (26:8-9)

Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. (55:6-7)

Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their transgression, and the house of Jacob their sins.
Yet they seek me daily, and delight to know my ways, as a nation that did righteousness, and forsook not the ordinance of their God: they ask of me the ordinances of justice; they take delight in approaching to God. (58:1-2)

7. Jeremiah

Then shall ye call upon me, and ye shall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you.
And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart.
And I will be found of you, saith the LORD: and I will turn away your captivity, and I will gather you. . . (29:12-14)
And seekest thou great things for thyself? seek them not: for, behold, I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith the LORD: but thy life will I give unto thee for a prey in all places whither thou goest. (45:5)

8. Lamentations 3:25

The LORD is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him.

9. Daniel 9:3

And I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes.

10. Hosea 5:15

I will go and return to my place, till they acknowledge their offence, and seek my face: in their affliction they will seek me early [in the morning].

11. Amos 5:4

For thus saith the Lord unto the house of Israel, Seek ye me, and ye shall live.

12. Matthew 7:7-8

Ask, [for further light & knowledge] and it shall be given you; seek [for me early in the morning], and ye shall find [me]; knock [through the true order of prayer], and it [the veil] shall be opened unto you:
For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

13. Doctrine & Covenants

He that seeketh me early shall find me, and shall not be forsaken.

(88:83)
And seek the face of the Lord always, that in patience ye may possess your souls, and ye shall have eternal life. (101:38)

KNOCK

1. Matthew 7:7-8 (See also 3 Nephi 14:7)

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:
For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

2. Luke 13:25

When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye being to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are.

3. Revelations 3:20

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.

4. 2 Nephi 9:42

And whoso knocketh, to him will he open.

5. 2 Nephi 32:4

Wherefore, now after I have spoken these words, if ye cannot understand them it will be because ye ask not, neither do ye knock; wherefore, ye are not brought into the light, but must perish in the dark.

6. 3 Nephi 27:29

Therefore, ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you; for he that asketh, receiveth; and unto him that knocketh, it shall be opened.

7. Doctrine & Covenants

Ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (4:7)
Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you. (6:5; 11:5; 12:5; 14:5)
Behold, I say unto you, go forth as I have commanded you; repent of all your sins; ask and ye shall receive; knock and it shall be opened unto you. (49:26)
Lay your hands upon the sick, and they shall recover. Return not till I, the Lord, shall send you. Be patient in affliction. Ask, and ye shall receive;

knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (66:9)

Let them ask and they shall receive, knock and it shall be opened unto them, and be made known from on high, even by the Comforter, whither they shall go. (75:27)

Draw near unto me and I will draw near unto you; seek me diligently and ye shall find me; ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (88:63)

Commentary Quotations

1. Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, pp. 12-13; August, 1832; See also, H.C. 1:282-4.

A man may be saved, after the judgment, in the terrestrial kingdom, or in the telestial kingdom, but he can never see the celestial kingdom of God, without being born of water and the Spirit. He may receive a glory like unto the moon, or a star, but he can never come unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels; to the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant, unless he becomes as a little child, and is taught by the Spirit of God. Wherefore, we again say, search the revelations of God; study the prophecies, and rejoice that God grants unto the world Seers and Prophets. They are they who saw the mysteries of godliness; they saw the flood before it came; they saw angels ascending and descending upon a ladder that reached from earth to heaven; * * * And, fellow sojourners upon the earth, it is your privilege to purify yourselves and come up to the same glory, and see for yourselves, and know for yourselves. Ask, and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

2. BYU Devotional Speech; October 11, 1966; Elder Bruce R. McConkie; Typescript of the actual tape recording.

Now you'd like a formula to tell you how to get revelation. It might perhaps be written in many ways. My formula is simply this:

First: Search the scriptures
Second: Keep the commandments, and
Third: Ask in faith.

And any person who will do this will get his soul and his heart so in tune with the infinite that there will come into his being from the still small voice, the eternal realities of religion.

3. The Improvement Era, June 1970, p. 33; Elder Howard W. Hunter. Saturday morning session of April General Conference; April 4, 1970; Talk entitled "The Reality of God".

In order to find God as a reality, we must follow the course which he pointed out for the quest. The path is one that leads upward; it takes faith and effort, and is not the easy course. For this reason many men will not devote themselves to the arduous task of proving to themselves the reality of God. * * * We must continue the probe and follow the admonition: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:

For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." (Matt. 7:7-8)

4. The Ensign/November 1974, pp. 96-97; Elder Howard W. Hunter. October General Conference, 1974. Talk entitled: "To Know God".

When Jesus spoke to the multitude gathered on the Mount, he said to them: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you;

For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." (Matt. 7:7-8)

This seems to be an admonition to search with determination and make earnest inquiry for truth. * * *

Whether seeking for knowledge of scientific truths or to discover God, one must have faith. This becomes the starting point. * * * Faith makes us confident of what we hope for and convinced of what we do not see. * * * In like manner, those who earnestly seek for God do not see him, but they know of his reality by faith. It is more than hope. Faith makes it a conviction--an evidence of things not seen. * * *

Thus we have the formula for the search for God and the tools to accomplish the quest--faith, love, and prayer. Science has done marvelous things for man, but it cannot accomplish the things he must do for himself, the greatest of which is to find the reality of God. The task is not easy; the labor is not light; but as stated by the Master, "Great shall be their reward and eternal shall be their glory." (D&C 76:6) * * *

May the Lord bless us with the desire for an upward reach to the spiritual ---to know God, to find him, and to have the determination to serve him and keep his commandments.

5. Teach Ye Diligently, pp. 14-15; 1975 ed., Elder Boyd K. Packer.

It is clear that the Lord wants us to come unto Him and ask Him for whatever we need. The simple invitation to "ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you" was repeated by the Lord on many occasions. He gave this message to the people He taught while He lived on earth. He repeated it twice to the people of the New World at the time of His visit to them following His resurrection, including His last words He gave them before returning to His Father in heaven. Interestingly, the Lord repeated the same invitation seven times in the Doctrine and Covenants. In varying ways throughout the scriptures, He has invited us to ask Him for whatever we need in righteousness, that He might give it unto us.

The initiative, then, is ours. We must ask and pray and seek, and then we will find.

There are several paintings depicting Christ at the door, illustrating a New Testament scripture: "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." (Revelation 3:20) In the more famous paintings He is shown holding a lantern as he knocks at the door.

6. The Ensign/November 1976, pp. 58-59; Elder James E. Faust; October General Conference address entitled: " A Personal Relationship with the Savior".

Recently in South America, a seasoned group of outstanding missionaries was asked, "What is the greatest need in the world?" One wisely responded: "Is not the greatest need in all of the world for every person to have a personal, ongoing, daily, continuing relationship with the Savior?" Having such a relationship can unchain the divinity within us, and nothing can make a greater difference in our lives as we come to know and understand our divine relationship with God.

We should earnestly seek not just to know about the Master, but to strive, as He invited, to be one with Him (see John 17:21), to "be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man" (Eph. 3:16). We may not feel a closeness with Him because we think of Him as being far away, or our relationship may not be sanctifying because we do not think of Him as a real person.

How can we receive the personal blessing of the Master's divine and exalting influence in our own lives? * * *

May I suggest five beginning, essential measures which will greatly clear the channel for a daily flow of "living water" from the very source of the spring, even the Redeemer Himself.

First: A daily communion involving prayer. [knock] * * * Second: A daily selfless service to another. * * *

Third: A daily striving for an increased obedience and perfection in our lives. [seek] * * *

Fourth: A daily acknowledgment of His divinity. * * *

Fifth: A daily study of the scriptures. [ask] * * *

We must constantly be reaching upward for the riches of eternity, for the kingdom of God is within us. * * *

By sanctifying yourselves, the day will come when "he will unveil his face unto you." (D&C 88:68) * * *

It is a love [from God] that sustains a new beginning on a higher level and thereby continues "from grace to grace." (D&C 93:13) * * *

7. The Ensign/September 1978, pp. 7-8; Pres. Spencer W. Kimball; First Presidency Message entitled: "Absolute Truth".

Now, it is a good question which has been asked by millions since Joseph Smith phrased it: How am I to know which of all, if any, of the organizations is authentic, divine, and recognized by the Lord? He has given the key, You may know. You need not be in doubt. Follow the prescribed procedures, and you may have an absolute knowledge that these things are absolute truths. The necessary procedure is: study, think pray and do. Revelation is the key. God will make it known to you once you have capitulated and have become humble and receptive. * * *

The true and living Church and its members and representatives stand ready to provide answers to any questions; and I promise you faithfully that if you will study and pray, keeping your mind open, you will receive the light, and it will be to you as the dawning of a new day after having gone through the night of darkness.

8. B.Y.U. Devotional address, delivered 20 March 1979; Pres. Marion G. Romney; Speech entitled: Guidance of the Holy Spirit; First Presidency Message; The Ensign/January 1980, p. 5.

If you want to obtain and keep the guidance of the Spirit, you can do so by following this simple four-point program.

One, pray. Pray diligently. Pray with each other. Pray in public in the proper places. * * * Learn to talk to the Lord; call upon his name in great faith and confidence.

Second, study and learn the gospel.

Third, live righteously; repent of your sins by confessing them and forsaking them. Then conform to the teachings of the gospel.

Fourth, give service in the Church.

If you will do these things, you will get the guidance of the Holy Spirit and you will go through this world successfully, regardless of what the people of the world say or do.

III

LOCATIONS HISTORICALLY USED FOR PRAYER

Introductory Comments

Historically, those who desired to commune with heaven, have gone away into secluded spots, where they could be alone. There, they offered up their prayers unto the Most High. Scriptural and church historical accounts indicate that mountain tops, groves, deserts, caves, and wildernesses have all been used as sacred places to worship and talk with God. In addition to these places, church historical accounts reveal that temples, upper rooms, wildernesses, stake centers, ward meetinghouses, and homes have been used. In each instance, it seemed to be a matter of getting away from the masses to find a quiet solitary place where the sweet spirit could be felt, and where the individual could open us his inner feelings and thoughts without fear of ridicule. Such places were also apparently dedicated for the purpose of communing with God, as was demonstrated by Jacob anointing his altar.

It is also important to note, that many of the individuals who went to their solitary retreats, went there because the spirit moved upon them to do so. Christ was led away by the spirit unto a high mountain; Joseph Smith had a question in his heart and was spiritually touched when he read James 1:5 to go ahead and ask God; Spencer W. Kimball climbed a mountain in Arizona when he was called to be an apostle; Heber J. Grant found answers to his inner strugglings while in Indian territory; and Enos went into the woods to pray. Many more examples such as these can be given to help support the point. But the important this is, that all those who sought the Lord, felt impressed to find that sacred place where they could talk openly in solemn prayer.

Again, the purpose for doing this was to be able to commune with God more perfectly. Historically, homes were used for the true order of prayer, and the homes of the saints contained altars around which they would pray, in family circles. Thus it was important for a home to be paid for and dedicated.

In the early days of our church history, the saints were taught that by receiving the fulness of the priesthood ordinance (i.e. the second anointing) and through exercising the keys of the priesthood, they would be able to openly commune with God and obtain answers to their prayers. Thus Joseph wanted those who were going to go on the Oregon Expedition, to be ordained kings and priests (i.e. receive the second anointing). because once they arrived there they might want or need to talk with God on the mountain tops. Throughout the 1800's, many thousands of saints were anointed kings and priests and subsequently used the keys of prayer to talk with God.

12. 1 Kings

And when he [Elijah] saw that, he arose, and went for his life, and came to Beer-she-ba, which belongeth to Judah, and left his servant there.
But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a juniper tree: and he requested for himself that he might die; and said, It is enough; now, 0 Lord, take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers.
And as he lay and slept under a juniper tree, behold, then an angel touched him, and said unto him, Arise and eat. (19:3-5)
And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went in the strength of that meat forty days and forty nights unto Horeb the mount of God. (19:8)

13. Deuteronomy 32:48-50

And the Lord spake unto Moses that selfsame day, saying, Get thee up into this mountain Ab-a-rim, unto mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab....
And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people; as Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people.

14. Micah 1:3 For, behold, the Lord cometh forth out of his place, and will come down, and tread upon the high places of the earth.

15. Abraham 19:27

And Abraham gat up early in the morning to the place where he stood before the Lord.

16. Acts 1:13-14

And when they were come in, they went in into an upper room, where abode [the apostles].
These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

17. John

And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there sat with his disciples. (6:3)
When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone. (6:15)
Jesus went unto the mount of Olives.
And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them. (8:1-2)

He [George A. Smith] then related an instance of some children being healed & cured of the whooping cough in one night, through the prayers of himself and Elder Woodruff in Michigan while they were there on a mission. Said that whenever they could get an opportunity they retired to the wilderness or to an upper room they did so and offered up the signs, and were always answered. It would be a good thing for us to put on our garments every day and pray to God, and in private circles, when we can do so with safety.

Albert Carrington was named but not present. B. Young prayed & H. C. Kimball was mouth. President Young wished the Twelve to meet in the Historians Closet for there prayer circle instead of meeting at Brother Bensons I do not know but Brother Benson will always have wives who will whore it. Brother Kimball said that Brother Benson had been informed of the Conduct of his first wives who were guilty of whoredoms but he had made no change concerning them as he was advised to do. Next morning at New Portage, he noticed that Joseph seemed to have a far off look in his eyes, or was looking at a distance, and presently he, Joseph, stepped between Brothers Cowdery and Coltrin and taking them by the arm, said, "lets take a walk." They went to a place where there was some beautiful grass, and grapevines and swampbeech interlaced. President Joseph Smith then said, "let us pray." They all three prayed in turn Joseph, Oliver and Zebedee. Bro. Joseph then said "now brethren we will see some visions." Joseph lay down on the ground on his back and stretched out his arms and the two brethren lay on them. The heavens gradually opened, and they saw a golden throne, on a circular foundation, something like a light house, and on the throne were two aged personages, having white hair, and clothed in white garments. They were the two most beautiful and perfect specimens of mankind he ever saw. Joseph said, They are our first parents, Adam and Eve. Adam was a large broad-shouldered man, and Eve as a woman, was as large in proportion.

When we pray alone with God, we shed all sham and pretense, all hypocrisy and arrogance. The Savior found his mountains and slipped away to pray. Paul, the great apostle, could not seem to get into the spirit of his new calling until he had found cleansing solitude down in Arabia. He went into solitude a worldly man and came out cleansed, prepared, regenerated. He was born of water in a Damascus river and of the spirit in an Arabian solitude. Enos found his solitary place in the forest. Moriancumer went to the mountain top to ask the Lord to touch the stones to light his people's way. And Nephi learned to build a ship through communication with his Lord on a mountain far from human ears. Joseph Smith found his solitude in the grove with only birds and trees and God to listen to his prayer. In solitude we, too, may pray with greater depth and fervor.

Let me extract from that great book BEN HUR by Lew Wallace some of the quotations that have given me a deeper understanding of the human soul and that suggest a pattern to assist us in gaining true greatness.

The book gives one statement about man's quest for truth which I shall never forget: "Like you, my brethren, I went out of the beaten ways, I went where man had not been, where only God was...." That brief statement has caused a hundred thoughts to flash into my mind. I had a great desire to find sacred, holy places---high on a mountain top, in the backwoods, or by a beautiful flowing river where I could communicate with God, as was implied in this statement.

THE RITUAL FORM OF THE TRUE ORDER

Introductory Comments

Gospel Mysteries

As a part of the restoration of the Ancient order of things, the Lord restored to the earth again, the ritual form of the true order of prayer. The signs that are used in prayer today have been used by all the righteous saints from the days of Adam and Eve to the present. Joseph admitted watching Adam pray through his Urim and Thummim, and learned from watching him. These keys of prayer were incorporated into, and made a part of the endowment, and the early saints were taught their meaning and importance in knowing God.

Rituals, such as prayer, as well as many other rituals and ordinances, have been come down through history in apostate forms so that today only the shadow of their true form remains. Such is the case with masonry, which the early brethren explained was the apostate form of the once true endowment.

The Prophet Joseph seemed to understand the importance of using the true order of prayer, even as early as 1833 in the School of the Prophets, and possibly even as early as his first vision. He could have learned about the order of prayer from the old testament which contains vivid descriptions of how prayer is offered. According to President Young, it was the use of the true order of prayer that kept their enemies away, until they were able to complete the giving of endowments in the Nauvoo Temple. It was this order of prayer that gave them the power to cross the plains and establish Zion in the west. Ensign peak was a favorite place, as were many other places, where the saints would go and build an altar and offer up their prayers to the Lord.

Joseph plainly taught that if the saints desired to approach God and to commune with him, they would have to understand how to do that so that their prayers could be answered. There is little doubt that in his mind, it was through the use of the true order of prayer, that a person could commune with God, especially if he had already received the second anointing ordinance, which gave them the power to stand in the presence of God. On May 4, 1842 Joseph revealed for the first time these keys of prayer and explained that with them a person would be able to "secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Eloheim in the eternal worlds." (TPJS, p. 237).

Scripture Quotations

1. 1 Timothy 2:8-9 (Paul speaking)

I will therefore that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting.

In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array.

2. Mark 11:25

And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have ought against any: that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses.

3. Luke 22:46 (Savior speaking)

And said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

4. Acts 14:19-20

And there came thither certain Jews from antioch and Iconium, who persuaded the people, and having stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead.
Howbeit, as the disciples stood round about him, he rose up, and came into the city: and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

5. Psalm 54:2

Hear my prayer, 0 God; give ear to the words of my mouth. (54:2)

6. Exodus 17:11-12

And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.
But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady unto the going down of the sun.

SYMBOLIC ASPECTS OF THE TRUE ORDER

Introductory Comments

In scriptural passages, it is interesting to note that the faithful saints of God in all ages of the world, from Adam to Daniel to Christ, down to the present time, have all engaged in symbolic imagery along with the true order of prayer. Indeed, it is, in actuality, a part of the true order.

Notice for instance, that there are passages which describe how Christ would pray with his eyes heavenward, or that he would pray early in the morning hours, before sunrise. Daniel would pray three times daily, and would face the temple of Jerusalem as he did so. Joseph Smith chose to pray one early spring morning when he had his first vision. At the dedication of the Salt Lake Temple, President Woodruff counseled the saints that if they could not come to the temple, if they at least face it while they prayed, that the Lord would bless them as a result.

There are times when a person should raise his eyes to heaven. Adam did so when he was looking for messengers from his father. If the quorum of the 12 had only lifted their eyes as they stood tired and fatigued in a circle, they might have seen their Redeemer. There may be other occasions when such searching eyes are not so necessary. If an individual will make it a habit to pray as he is guided by the spirit, he will know when and what to do in this respect.

Facing the temple or the source of light is another interesting symbol. Since God is the person to whom we must look for divine aid, it is appropriate then to pray in the direction of the closest symbol of light. For those who enter the temple and pray in the true order, the altars are positioned so that they face the celestial room, which represents the celestial kingdom---the nearest source of light for the person praying. In the Salt Lake Temple the Holy of Holies is situated in the south-east portion of the building (by dividing the temple into four equal halves). This portion of the building faces the rising sun which comes up in the east, and south-east. For the temple, the south-east is the part of the building which most nearly faces the closest source of light, symbolically speaking.

Those who faced the sun to pray in ages past did not do so because they worshipped the sun. They did so in symbolic imagery that the sun represented the God of heaven to them, it was the source of light to the world and represented symbolically the source of spiritual light to them. Mountain tops are also closer to God, symbolically speaking, than the low valleys where mankind loves to dwell. If a person lived in the southern hemisphere, it would be more appropriate to face the north-east, since that would be the direction from whence the sun would rise. Thus it is understandable when President Woodruff made his remarks at the dedication of the Salt Lake temple for the saints to turn and face the temple when they prayed, because for those who lived there in Salt Lake, it represented the closest source of spiritual guidance to them.

LOOKING HEAVENWARD

Scripture Quotations

1. I.V. Genesis 9:21-22. The Lord speaking to Noah.

And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant, which I made unto thy father Enoch; that, when men should keep all my commandments, Zion should again come on the earth, the city of Enoch which I have caught up unto myself.

And this is mine everlasting covenant, that when thy posterity shall embrace the truth, and look upward, then shall Zion look downward, and all the heavens shall shake with gladness, and the earth shall tremble with joy;

And the general assembly of the church of the first-born shall come down out of heaven, and possess the earth, and shall have place until the end come. And this is mine everlasting covenant, which I made with thy father Enoch.

2. Joshua 6:13-15.

And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?

And he said, Nay; but as captain of the host of the Lord am I now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, what saith my Lord unto his servant?

And the captain of the Lord's host said unto Joshua, loose thy shoe from thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so.

3. Daniel 10:5-12.

[After fasting for three weeks and three days, Daniel said:]

Then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a certain man clothed in linen, whose loins were girded with fine gold. . . .

And I Daniel alone saw the visions. . .

Therefore I was left alone, and saw the vision and there remained no strength in me. . . .

4. Isaiah 40:26.

Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number: he calleth them all by names by the greatness of his night, for that he is strong in power; not one faileth.

5. Psalms 5:1-3; 121:1-2; 123:1.

Give ear to my words, 0 Lord, consider my meditation. Hearken unto my voice of cry, my King, and my God; for unto thee I will pray.

My voice shall thou hear in the morning, 0 Lord: in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up. (5:1-3)

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. (121:1-2)

Unto thee lift I up mine eyes, 0 thou that dwellest in the heavens. (123:1)

6. Mark 6:41; 7:31–35; 8:22–25.

And when he [Christ] had taken the five loaves and the two fishes, he looked up to heaven, and blessed, and brake the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before them; and the two fishes divided he among them all.

And again, departing from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of Dicapolis.

And they bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech; and they beseech him to put his hand upon him.

And he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spit, and touched his tongue;

And looking up to heaven, he sighed, and saith unto him, Ephphatha, that is, Be opened.

And straightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain. (7:31–35)

And he cometh to Bethsaida; and they bring a blind man unto him, and besought him to touch him.

And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town; and when he had spit on his eyes, and put his hands upon him, he asked him if he saw ought.

And he looked up, and said, I see men as trees, walking. After that he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up: and he was restored, and saw every man clearly. (8:22–25)

7. Luke 21:27–28.

And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.

And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads: for your redemption draweth nigh.

8. John 11:41–42; 17:1.

Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me.

And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me. (11:41–42)

These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee. (17:1)

9. Acts 7:55–56.

But he [Stephen], being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God, and said, Behold I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God.

10. 2 Nephi 8:6.

Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath; for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall was old like a garment; and they that dwell therein shall die in like manner. But my salvation shall be forever, and my righteousness shall not be abolished.

11. Helaman 5:36.

Behold, he saw through the cloud of darkness, the faces of Nephi and Lehi; and behold, they did shine exceedingly, even as the faces of angels. And he beheld that they did lift their eyes to heaven; and they were in the attitude as if talking or lifting their voices to some being whom they beheld.

12. Moses 1:24-25.

And it came to pass that when Satan had departed from the presence of Moses, that Moses lifted up his eyes unto heaven, being filled with the Holy Ghost, which beareth record of the Father and the Son;

And calling upon the name of God, he behold his glory again, for it was upon him; and he heard a voice, saying: Blessed art thou, Moses, for I, the Almighty, have chosen thee, and thou shalt be made stronger than many waters; for they shall obey thy command as if thou wert God.

13. Joseph Smith 2:15-17, 20.

[ln the vision of Joseph Smith, he looked up and saw two personages, the Father and the Son. When the vision finally closed he says that he found himself "lying on his back, looking up into heaven."]

14. Alma 5:14, 19.

And now behold, I ask of you, my brethren of the church, have ye spiritually been born of God? Have ye received his image in your countenances? Have ye experienced this mighty change in your hearts? (14)

I say unto you, can ye look up to God at that day with a pure heart and clean hands? I say unto you, can you look up, having the image of God engraven upon your countenances? (19)

30. And Joseph upon his horse lifted up his eyes to heaven, and called out and said, He raiseth the poor man from the dust, He lifteth up the needy from the dunghill. 0 Lord of Hosts, happy is the man who trusteth in thee.

2. History of the Church, 2:381; January 20, 1836.

I saw the Twelve Apostles of the Lamb, who are now upon the earth, who hold the keys of this last ministry, in foreign lands, standing together in a circle, much fatigued, with their clothes tattered and feet swollen with their eyes cast downward, and Jesus standing in their midst, and they did not behold him. The Savior looked upon them and wept.

3. Life of Heber C. Kimball, 2nd ed., p. 93; by Orson F. Whitney.

The following vision was manifested to him [Joseph Smith] as near as I can recollect:

He saw the Twelve going forth, and they appeared to be in a far distant land. After some time they unexpectedly me together, apparently in great tribulation, their clothes all ragged, and their knees and feet sore. They formed a circle, and all stood with their eyes fixed upon the ground. The Savior appeared and stood in their midst and wept over them, and wanted to show Himself to them, but they did not discover him.

4. The Ensign/May 1981, pp. 8, 10; Elder James E. Faust; April General Conference.

[After quoting the above quote #3, Elder James Faust said:]

A message that can be inferred from this is that, because the Twelve had suffered so much, had endured so greatly, and had so exhausted themselves in leading the battle of righteousness, they were bowed down and did not look up. Had they only looked up they might have beheld the Lord Jesus, who wanted to see him, weeping over them, suffering with them, and standing in their midst. (P. 8)

The dignity of self is greatly enhanced by looking upward in the search for holiness. Like the giant trees, we should reach up for the light. The most important source of light we can come to know is the gift of the Holy Ghost. It is the source of inner strength and peace.

May we all have a feeling of personal worth and dignity born of the knowledge that each of us is a child of God, and be strengthened by looking upwards in the pursuit of holiness. As we look up may we be worthy to receive the inspiration that comes constantly from God, which inspiration is sacred, real, and often very private. (P. 10)

6. The Era/Jan-Feb 1981, p. 48; Hugh Nibley article entitled: "Man's Dominion".

All creatures are duly overawed by the presence of God's representative and image: "Even the fierce beasts of prey fear man," says the Zohar, "as long as he keeps his covenant, his kingly dignity, and his eye fixed on God in whose image he is." For "God formed man in his own heavenly form and made him to be Lord over them. Whenever man stands upright and lifts up his eyes toward heaven, then all the animals raise their heads, too, and look to man, fearing and trembling in his presence."

FACING THE TEMPLE OR THE SOURCE OF LIGHT

Scripture Quotations

1. Daniel 6:10-11

Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he died aforetime.

Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God.

2. The Contributor, Vol 14:292; President Wilford Woodruff; Part of the dedicatory prayer of the Salt Lake Temple, April 6, 1893.

Heavenly Father, when Thy people shall not have the opportunity of entering this holy house to offer their supplications unto Thee, and they are oppressed and in trouble, surrounded by difficulties or assailed by temptation and shall turn their faces towards this thy holy house and ask thee for deliverance, for help, for Thy power to be extended in their behalf, we beseech Thee, to look down from Thy holy habitation in mercy and tender compassion upon them, and listen to their cries. Or when the children of Thy people, in years to come, shall be separated, in remembrance of Thy promises to this holy Temple, and they shall cry unto Thee from the depths of their affliction and sorrow to extend relief and deliverance to them, we humbly entreat Thee to turn Thine ear in mercy to them; hearken to their cries, and grant unto them the blessings for which they ask.

3. The Highest In Us, p. 82; Truman G. Madsen.

What is the significance of facing the temple? Apparently it is a sacred way of recalling both the promises the Lord has made to us and our promises to him. Thus, when President Wilford Woodruff dedicated the Salt Lake Temple, he offered a specific prayer that when people were assailed with temptation or trouble they might remember the promises of the temple, that they might face the temple, and that the Lord would honor their prayers.

4. Josephus, c. 1960, 9th ed., 1971; "Wars of the Jews", chapter IX, #4, p. 562; Translated by William Whiston, A.M.

In old times there was one Necao, king of Egypt, who was also called Pharaoh: he came with a prodigious army of soldiers, and seized queen Sarah, the mother of our nation. What did Abraham our progenitor then do? Did he defend himself from this injurious person by war, although he had three hundred and eighteen captains under him, and an immense army under each of them? Indeed, he deemed them to be no number at all without God's assistance, and only spread out his hands towards this holy place* [the Jerusalem temple], which you have now polluted, and reckoned upon him as upon his invincible supporter, instead of his own army.

[Footnote:] *Josephus supposes, in this speech to the Jews, that not Abraham only, but Pharaoh, king of Egypt, prayed towards a temple at Jerusalem, or towards Jerusalem itself, in which were Mount Sion and Mount Moriah, on which the tabernacle and temple did afterwards stand.

5. The Mormon People: Their Character and Traditions (Provo:BYU Press, 1980), p. 113; Thomas G. Alexander, ed.; "The Salt Lake Temple: A Symbolic Statement of Mormon Doctrine", by C. Mark Hamilton.

On 6 April 1853, Brigham Young had the Salt Lake Temple laid out in this prescribed order. Nibley astutely observed in his book, The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri: An Egyptian Endowment, the marked similarity between the order in which Mormons and Egyptians lay out their temples. He noted that President Young, after the laying of the cornerstones of the Salt Lake Temple and while offering the dedicatory prayer over the southeast cornerstone of the Manti Temple, made specific references to light. With the Salt Lake Temple, he spoke of light in both physical and spiritual terms. The geographical location of the temple being in the northern hemisphere required that the southeast cornerstone be laid first because "there is the most light." As a fact, the sun does rise from the southeast and first illuminates the east and south fabric of the building. Symbolically and spiritually, the Melchizedek Priesthood and particularly those ordained to the office of apostle in that priesthood after the order of the Son of God are the givers of light--hence the flames on the finials of all the corner buttresses. It is therefore appropriate that the two east cornerstones are set by that priesthood. Of most importance is the symbolism attached to the east facade, particularly the central tower, which is representative of Christ, the Author of Light.

So, in accordance with this, my determination to ask of God, I retired to the woods to make the attempt. It was on the morning of a beautiful, clear day, early in the spring of 1820....After I had retired to the place where I had previously designed to go, having looked around me, and finding myself alone, I kneeled down and began to offer up the desire of my heart to God.

2. Abraham 19:27

And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them. (8:1-2)

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF EARLY MORNING

Commentary Quotations

1. Address given by Harold B. Lee, July 6, 1956.

Then the President [David 0. McKay] made the statement that the point he had in mind was that when we are relaxed in a private room we are more susceptible to those things; and that so far as he was concerned, his best thoughts come after he gets up in the morning and is relaxed and thinking about the duties of the day; that impressions come more clearly, as if it were to hear a voice. Those impressions are right. If we are worried about something and upset in our feelings, the inspiration does not come. If we so live that our minds are free from worry and our conscience is clear and our feelings are right toward one another, the operation of the spirit of the Lord upon our spirit is as real as when we pick up the telephone; but when they come, we must be brave enough to take the suggested actions. The Lord will approve it and the brethren will approve it, and we know it is right. He said, it is a great consolation in this upset world today to know that our Savior is directing this work. Then the President concluded: "I value that testimony." If you forget all else I have said, you remember that lesson and that admonition.

2. Conference Report, October 1962, p. 82; Elder Harold B. Lee.

President McKay sometime ago in talking to the Presidency and the Twelve, urged us to give time for more meditation so that we could tune in with spiritual forces that we had a right to and should expect to direct us in our work. He said, 'The best time for me is early in the morning when my mind and body are rested. But when the inspiration comes, and it can come just as clearly as though you were talking down a telephone and dialing in for information; when the Lord tells you what to do, you have to have the courage to do what he instructs you.'

3. The Ensign/August 1975, pp. 88-89; Elder Boyd K. Packer; Talk on "Self Reliance".

I have learned that the best time to wrestle with major problems is early in the morning. Your mind is then fresh and alert. The blackboard of your mind has been erased by a good night's rest. The accumulated distractions of the day are not in your way. Your body has been rested also. That's the time to think something through very carefully and to receive personal revelation.

I've heard President Harold B. Lee begin many a statement about matters involving revelation with an expression something like this: "In the early hours of the morning, while I was pondering upon that subject," and so on. He made it a practice to work on the problems that required revelation in the fresh, alert hours of the early morning.

The Lord knew something when He directed in the Doctrine and Covenants: "Cease to sleep longer than is needful; retire to thy bed early, that ye may not be weary; arise early, that your bodies and your minds may be invigorated. (D&C 88:124)

* * *

I counseled our children to do their critical studying in the early hours of the morning when they're fresh and alert, rather than to fight physical weariness and mental exhaustion at night. I've learned that the dictum, "Early to bed, early to rise" is powerful. When under pressure---for instance, when I was preparing this talk---you wouldn't find me burning the midnight oil. Much rather I'd be early to bed and getting up in the wee hours of the morning, when I could be close to Him who guides this work.

When I was living at Hyrum Smith's I thought that he was the best man I ever saw, he was so kind to his family and he prayed in his family three times a day.

3. The Ensign/September 1973, p. 65; Quote from Eliza R. Snow.

His [Joseph's] expansive mind grasped the great plan of salvation, and solved the mystic problem of man's destiny; he was in possession of keys that unlocked the past and the future, with its successions of eternities; yet in his devotions he was as humble as a little child. Three times a day he had family worship; and these precious seasons of sacred household service truly seemed a foretaste of celestial happiness.

4. Decisions for Successful Living, p. 176; 1973 ed.; Pres. Harold B. Lee.

Young couples, if they are mindful of the counsel of the Church, will kneel down in prayer together in their first family prayer on the first night of their marriage to express gratitude and thankfulness and to make supplications for divine guidance and blessing. Thereafter by themselves and later with their families, they are admonished to begin the day with a supplication for aid and protection for that day's need and at eventide to kneel again in thanksgiving and acknowledgment to ask a benediction upon the home and family through the coming night. The Lord has promised, "And if ye do this with a pure heart, in all faithfulness, ye shall be blessed; you shall be blessed in your flocks, and in your herds, and in your fields, and in your houses, and in your families." The Apocryphon of Abraham recounts that when the old Patriarch restored Adam's altar, he cried aloud the words, "El, El, El, Jaoel! Receive the words of my prayer! Receive the sacrifice which I have made at thy command!" for he was repeating the ancient prayer of Adam, who prayed three-fold for three days, "May the words of my mouth be heard!"

VI

THINGS FOR WHICH WE SHOULD PRAY

Gospel Mysteries

Introductory Comments

Prayer plays a vital part in helping us return to Father in Heaven. However, too often prayer becomes rote and meaningless and because of it many have given up praying daily. They have not really come to the point of experien cing what prayer can really do.

Prayer can be a time of intensely wonderful communication between the person and God. Of course, prayer would be uninteresting if it did not contain this ingredient. To feel of his power, and to know that he is listening and concerned about our problems is a very wonderful experience. If a person were able to have such experiences, he would want to pray not just once a day, but several times a day, just so that re-contact could be made, and the power of his spirit be felt again and again.

In order to communicate with heaven in this way, great care must be taken to be completely honest and sincere in the expressions of gratitude and desired assistance. Too often prayers become memorized and they are said over and over again, and very little feeling exists. The scriptures indicate that the words which we utter in prayer must be given by the spirit. In other words, we should pray as we are inspired to do so by the spirit. We should not consciously look for things to pray for. Rather, we should let the spirit guide our feelings, and we should utter those feelings which we have as we are guided by the spirit.

In ages past the saints who have prayed by the spirit have asked for those things which were of most importance to their salvation, and the salvation of their family and friends. Elder Bruce R. McConkie gave an address in the April Conference of 1984 which beautifully outlined things which the saints could and should pray for as they are inspired. Certainly such utterances from us ascending into heaven would cause the Lord to listen and bless us accordingly.

In this regard, some of the things for which we should pray, would be to recognize the hand of the Lord in all things in our lives, giving the Lord the honor and the glory for what we are; we should pray that we might be able to see the face of the Lord (D&C 93:1); ask for the gifts of the spirit; desire strength to overcome the adversary in all of his manifestations & deceptions; request further light and knowledge so that we might drawer nearer to God in understanding his plan of redemption and what we must do to make it effective in our own lives; pray for the First Presidency, Quorum of the Twelve, and all other general and local leaders; for the missionary work to go forward into all the nations of the earth, so that the elect might be gathered, so that the Lord might come once again upon the earth; ask the Lord to bless the redemptive work of the dead to go forward with accelerated speed. We could ask that the Lord bless us that Zion might be redeemed with the fulness of the priesthood in the temples of the Lord; that our children might obtain all the ordinances of salvation; that they might live honorable lives; that we might have the companionship of the Holy Ghost, that we might become pure in heart, filled with the pure love of Christ; and that we might receive all the blessing of the fathers. Whatever we pray for, we should be guided by the spirit. There is no one way to pray, except as we are guided and prompted by the spirit.

We should also consider lengthening the amount of time we spend in conversation with Father. Who would not want to spend at least an hour each day in the presence of their Maker? The amount of time we spend with Him now is a good indicator of how much we really believe in Him, and how much we really love and want to be with Him. Since it is from His hand that we receive permission to have our calling and election made sure, perhaps the amount of time we spend with Him could be better utilized.

Scripture Quotations

1. II Chronicles 1:3, 6-7, 10-12

So Solomon, and all the congregation with him, went to the high place that was at Gibeon; for there was the tabernacle of the congregation of God, which Moses the servant of the Lord had made in the wilderness.

And Solomon went up thither to the brasen altar before the Lord, which was at the tabernacle of the congregation, and offered a thousand burnt offerings upon it.

In that night did God appear unto Solomon, and said unto him, Ask what I shall give thee.

Give me now wisdom and knowledge, that I may go out and come in before this people: for who can judge this thy people, that is so great?

And God said to Solomon, Because this was in thine heart, and thou hast not asked riches, wealth, or honour, nor the life of thine enemies, neither yet hast asked long life; but hast asked wisdom and knowledge for thyself, that thou mayest judge my people, over whom I have made thee king:

Wisdom and knowledge is granted unto thee; and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and honour, such as none of the kings have had that have been before thee, neither shall there any after thee have the like.

2. Pearl of Great Price; Abraham 1:2 (Abraham speaking)

And, finding there was greater happiness and peace and rest for me, I sought for the blessings of the fathers, and the right whereunto I should be ordained to administer the same; having been myself a follower of righteousness, desiring also to be one who possessed great knowledge, and to be a greater follower of righteousness, and to possess a greater knowledge, and to be a father of many nations, a prince of peace, and desiring to receive instructions, and to keep the commandments of God, I became a rightful heir, a High Priest, holding the right belonging to the fathers.

3. 1 Nephi 2:16 (Nephi speaking)

And it came to pass that I, Nephi, being exceeding young, nevertheless being large in stature, and also having great desires to know the mysteries of God, wherefore, I did cry unto the Lord; and behold he did visit me, and did soften my heart that I did believe all the words which had been spoken by my father; wherefore, I did not rebel against him like unto my brothers.

4. Enos 3-5 (Enos speaking) Behold, I went to hunt beasts in the forests; and the words which I had often heard my father speak concerning eternal life, and the joy of the saints, sunk deep into my heart.

And my soul hungered; and I kneeled down before my Maker, and I cried unto him in mighty prayer and supplication for mine own soul; and all the day long did I cry unto him; yea, and when the night came I did still raise my voice high that it reached the heavens.

And there came a voice unto me saying: Enos, thy sins are forgiven thee, and thou shalt be blessed.

5. Alma 34:27 (Amulek speaking)

Yea, and when you do not cry unto the Lord, let your hearts be full, drawn out in prayer unto him continually for your welfare, and also for the welfare of those who are around you.

Commentary Quotations

1. J.D. 3:157; Remarks by Pres. Brigham Young; May 6, 1855.

If you would take my counsel you never would cease to plead with the Lord, until He opened the eyes of your understanding and revealed eternity to you, that you might know for yourselves how things are, and when you know and keep in that spirit, you will never be deceived, but the spirit of truth will always be with you, and if you cleave to that, it will lead you into all truth and holiness.

2. J.D. 3:230; Discourse by Pres. Heber C. Kimball, delivered in the Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; March 2, 1856.

But do you suppose that angels will pay friendly visits to those who do not live up to their privileges? Would You? No, you would not like to visit with persons who lie, and steal your goods, and borrow and never pay. Would not you forsake such persons? Yes, you would. Will the Holy Ghost dwell with a man who will lie, steal, and swear? No. It is written that where the Holy Ghost takes up its abode the Father and Son will come and abide.

6. The Ensign/January 1976, p. 10; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

It is clear that we should pray for all that in wisdom and righteousness we should have. Certainly we should seek for a testimony, for revelations, for all of the gifts of the Spirit, including the fulfillment of the promise in Doctrine and Covenants 93:1 of seeing the face of the Lord. But above all our other petitions, we should plead for the companionship of the Holy Ghost in this life and for eternal life in the world to come.

7. The Ensign/November 1978, p. 61; General Conference, October 1, 1978; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

It is his will that we gain testimonies, that we seek revelation, that we covet to prophesy, that we desire spiritual gifts, and that we seek the face of the Lord.

The Lord wants all his children to gain light and truth and knowledge from on high. It is his will that we pierce the veil and rend the heavens and see the visions of eternity.

FASTING & ITS RELATIONSHIP TO PRAYER

Introductory Comments

1. After a three day fast physical illnesses ceased. (1)

2. We must fast and pray until the heavens are opened so that we may see the face of the Lord. Otherwise, our efforts will not be worth much to this generation. (2)

3. An individual fasted for 24 hours and partook of the sacrament, and was filled with the Spirit of the Lord. (3)

4. Heber C. Kimball fasted and prayed for 3 days in order to meet the test which the Prophet Joseph had put upon him, that of giving Vilate Kimball to him. Heber met the challenge and was able to keep his wife. (4)

5. A sister fasted and prayed earnestly for three days in order to be given the privilege of going through the temple in Salt Lake. She was granted this privilege, and in the night after the 3rd day of fasting when was shown a glorious heavenly vision. (5)

6. Fasting is designed to do many things, including hastening the person along the path of salvation. (6, 9)

7. Fasting is an expression of sorrow. Through it one finds comfort and strength. Alma was healed after fasting 2 days and nights, and fasted and prayed many days in order to receive a testimony of the truth. Each Sunday should be a fast-Sunday. (7)

8. The law of the fast is to go 24 hours without food or drink--from "even to even" and to not engage in bodily gratification and indulgences. (8)

9. Mordecai's advice from Esther as he faced an emergency at Shushan pointed out that he and his people should "neither eat nor drink three days, night or day. . . ." (Esther 4:16). This was the true fast. (10)

10. B. H. Roberts fasted many days by a little stream of water in Centerville Canyon afterwhich the Savior appeared to him. (11)

11. Fasting causes the fat and blood of the body to be diminished and is thus a sacrifice. Alms giving is a sacrifice of money. (12, S4)

12. Harold B. Lee fasted until his strength "was fast going," then he would get a little nourishment and go on fasting. He fasted for several days, and was able to hear the voice of the Lord, and could almost see through the veil. (13)

13. To make fasting more fruitful it should be coupled with prayer and meditation. (14)

14. We are able to receive witnesses through fasting and prayer. Prayer, fasting, priesthood, authority and worthiness are essential to revelation. (16)

15. Reasons for fasting:

> to loose the bands of wickedness,
> to undo the heavy burdens,
> to let the oppressed go free,
> that ye break every yoke,
> to deal thy bread to the hungry,
> that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house, when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him,
> and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh.

If we do the above things. . .

Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rereward.

Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am.

And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noonday.

And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not. (S5)

16. Fasting is often done in conjunction with prayer and supplications. (S6)

17. Keep the fast a private experience. (S7)

18. Some spirits will not depart except by fasting and prayer. (S7)

19. Husbands and wives should not fast from sexual relations with each other except by mutual consent in order to make the fast complete. (S8)

20. The saints were commanded, in olden times, that they should gather themselves together oft, and join in fasting and mighty prayer in behalf of the welfare of the souls of those who knew not God. (S9)

21. When we suffer for others without our being required to do so, the law of justice demands that the requests of the sufferer be fulfilled. The Savior suffered for all of us, yet it was not just that he should suffer at all, for he was sinless, and had no cause to suffer. Yet he suffered for others, that they might receive the benefits of his atonement, which was, that they might have eternal life if they would adhere to the requirements of the gospel. And so it is with us. It is not just that individuals should have to suffer for others in vain. When we fast, we experience a small degree of bodily suffering, and without food or water the body begins to use up the resources of fatty tissues it has stored. Thus we waste away our own life, to a small degree, when we fast for others or for those things which we need. The law of justice requires that such fastings, coupled with prayer, be answered upon the head of the petitioner.

Scripture Quotations

1. Exodus 34:28

And he was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread, nor drink water. And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.

2. Ezra 8:23

So we fasted and besought our God for this: and he was intreated of us.

3. Nehemiah 1:4

And it came to pass, when I heard these words, that I sat down and wept, and mourned certain days, and fasted, and prayed before the God of heaven.

4. Psalm 35:13; 69:10; 109:24

But as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth: I humbled my soul with fasting; and my prayer returned into mine own bosom.

When I wept, and chastened my soul with fasting, that was to my reproach. My knees are weak through fasting; and my flesh faileth of fatness.

5. Isaiah 58:3-11

Wherefore have we fasted, say they, and thou seest not? wherefore have we afflicted our soul, and thou takest no knowledge? Behold, in the day of your fast ye find pleasure, and exact all your labours.

Behold, ye fast for strife and debate, and to smite with the fist of wickedness: ye shall not fast as ye do this day, to make your voice to be heard on high.

Is it such a fast that I have chosen? a day for a man to afflict his soul? is it to bow down his head as a bulrush, and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him? wilt thou call this a fast, and an acceptable day to the Lord?

Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?

Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?

Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rereward.

Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity.

And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noonday.

And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.

6. Daniel 9:3

And I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth and ashes:

And I prayed unto the Lord my God, and made my confession, and said, 0 Lord, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy t# them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments;

We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments. . .

7. Matthew 4:1-2; 6:16-18; 17:14-21

Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil.

And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungered. (4:1-2)

Moreover when ye fast, be not, as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance: for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear unto men to fast. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

But thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face; That thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly. (6:16-18)

And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certain man, kneeling down to him, and saying,

Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed: for ofttimes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.

And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him. Then Jesus answered and said, 0 faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him hither to me.

And Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour.

Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out? And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you.

Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting. (17:14-21)

8. 1 Corinthians 7:4-5

The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own body, but the wife.

Depart ye not one from the other, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency.

9. Alma 5:46; 6:6; 17:2-3, 9-10; 45:1

Behold, I say unto you they are made known unto me by the Holy Spirit of God. Behold, I have fasted and prayed many days that I might know these things of myself. And now I do know of myself that they are true; for the Lord God hath made them manifest unto me by his Holy Spirit; and this is the spirit of revelation which is in me. (5:46)

Nevertheless the children of God were commanded that they should gather themselves together oft, and join in fasting and mighty prayer in behalf of the welfare of the souls of those who knew not God. (6:6)

Now these sons of Mosiah were with Alma at the time the angel first appeared unto him; therefore Alma did rejoice exceedingly to see his brethren; and what added more to his joy, they were still his brethren in the Lord; yea, and they had waxed strong in the knowledge of the truth; for they were men of a sound understanding and they had searched the scriptures diligently, that they might know the word of God.

But this is not all; they had given themselves to much prayer, and fasting; therefore they had the spirit of prophecy, and the spirit of revelation, and when they taught, they taught with power and authority of God. (17:2-3)

And it came to pass that they journeyed many days in the wilderness, and they fasted much and prayed much that the Lord would grant unto them a portion of his Spirit to go with them, and abide with them, that they might be an instrument in the hands of God to bring, if it were possible, their brethren, the Lamanites, to the knowledge of the truth, to the knowledge of the baseness of the traditions of their fathers, which were not correct.

And it came to pass that the Lord did visit them with his Spirit, and said unto them: Be comforted. And they were comforted. (17:9-10) Behold, now it came to pass that the people of Nephi were exceedingly rejoiced, because the Lord had again delivered them out of the hands of their enemies; therefore they gave thanks unto the Lord their God; yea, and they did fast much and pray much, and they did worship God with exceedingly great joy. (45:1)

10. Helaman 3:35

Nevertheless they did fast and pray oft, and did wax stronger and stronger in their humility, and firmer and firmer in the faith of Christ, unto the filling their souls with joy and consolation, yea, even to the purifying and the sanctification of their hearts, which sanctification cometh because of their yielding their hearts unto God.

11. 3 Nephi 27:1-2

And it came to pass that as the disciples of Jesus were journeying and were preaching the things which they had both heard and seen, and were baptizing in the name of Jesus, it came to pass that the disciples were gathered together and were united in mighty prayer and fasting.

And Jesus again showed himself unto them, for they were praying unto the Father in his name; and Jesus came and stood in the midst of them, and said unto them: What will ye that I shall give unto you?

12. D&C 59:13-14

And on this day [the sabbath day] thou shalt do none other thing, only let thy food be prepared with singleness of heart that thy fasting may be perfect, or, in other words, that thy joy may be full.

Verily, this is fasting and prayer, or in other words, rejoicing and prayer.

13. D&C 88:76, 119

Also, I give unto you a commandment that ye shall continue in prayer and fasting from this time forth.

Organize yourselves; prepare every needful thing; and establish a house, even a house of prayer, a house of fasting, a house of faith, a house of learning, a house of glory, a house of order, a house of God.

14. D&C 95:7

And for this cause I gave unto you a commandment that you should call your solemn assembly, that your fastings and your mourning might come up into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth, which is by interpretation, the creator of the first day, the beginning and the end.

Commentary Quotations

1. Diary of Joseph L. Robinson, p. 19; 1845; Re-printed in Faith Like the Ancients, 2:273-274; by Lundwall.

And it came to pass the Lord gave unto us a daughter, a beautiful child. She was born June 12, 1845, almost one year after the martyrdom of our Prophet Joseph and his brother, Hyrum, the Patriarch. We rejoiced greatly for this gift. We named her Mary Elizabeth, but the Destroyer sought the destruction of this child for some cause or reason. We know not, but she became afflicted and had fits and it seemed we could not stop them. We prayed for her and administered the oil and the laying on of hands. We called in the Elders. We doctored her but to no purpose, only she would seem to get a little better at times. We took her to the Patriarch, Uncle John Smith. He blessed her and after he administered to her, he looked at her and said, "There is a very intelligent spirit in that little tabernacle and if you save her on this earth you will have to exercise a lot amount of faith for the Destroyer seeketh to destroy such as she that they shall not remain on the earth." I then told him what I had done for her. . .but those stubborn fits would not stop. We had heard the Prophet Joseph say that inasmuch as any member of a family was sick if the head of the family would fast three days they should get better, and we knowing him to be a true Prophet of God, therefore we believed what he said, my wife proposed to fast [in behalf of their little girl who was gravely ill]. I replied if you think you can stand it nursing a child, I certainly will try it. She said she would and I told her that I then would do my part. So we set about with a will. We ate dinner as usual but when night came we ate no supper. Morning, came; we ate no breakfast. She did her housework and I went to our wagon shop and worked all day as usual as this was the winter before our exit from Nauvoo to the Rocky Mountains. Our ward was organized into a company to build wagons and to make preparations to leave that place in the spring so that I was obliged to work whether sick or well, eating or fasting, although at this time I was afflicted with rheumatism in my back and hips as I had taken cold through taking off some of my flannel underwear and a sudden change in the weather came, so I had this also to fast and pray for. This was included. The first day was the hardest day for me. The second day came and no eating but plenty of work. Did not suffer as much today. Third day came to work as usual. I proposed to my wife as she was nursing the child that she should sup a little burnt crust coffee occasionally but neither of us ate a mouthful or anything whatever during the three days. The third day at noontime we ate no dinner until supper time. We felt satisfied that our three days fast was completed. We ate our supper but as yet there had been no change with the fits on the child or with lameness. We retired to our bed to rest after saying our prayers as usual but as the Lord liveth those fits upon our child stopped. She had no more while we stayed in Nauvoo and my lameness went entirely away this night also. We received and acknowledged this as a signal favor and a great blessing from the hand of God.

2. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; February 6, 1859; Ms/f/115/CHO. W.W. speaking.

I met with 0. Hyde, 0 Pratt & C C Rich of the Twelve in the prayer room. 0 Hyde prayed. 0. Pratt was mouth, we conversed upon the things of the Kingdom of God. Spoke of prayer & fasting. 0. Pratt said that he had often wished that he could get faith enough to enjoy the blessings the ancient apostles enjoyed. He said Joseph taught that unless the Apostles and Elders of this Church did fast & pray until they could get the heavens opened unto them so they could see the face of the Lord, their preaching would not be worth much to this generation.

3. Journal of Charles L. Walker, November 21, 1880; BYU Special Collections.

[Milo Andrus speaking at Sunday Meeting:]

Said He once asked the Prophet why he (Milo) did not feel that power that was spoken of as the power which was felt on the day of Pentecost? Joseph replied, "But if you want, and desire to know with all your heart about these things if you will make it a matter of prayer in your washings and blessing from [this] house," when we had fasted for 24 hours and partaken of the Lord's supper, namely a piece of bread as big [as] your double fist and half a pint of wine in the Temple. I was there and saw the Holy Ghost descend upon the heads of those present like cloven tongues of fire. I said it is enough 0 Father, and I will bear a faithful testimony of it while I live.

4. Life of Heber C. Kimball, pp 323-24; by Orson F. Whitney.

Before he [Joseph] would trust even Heber with the full secret...he put him to a test which few men would have been able to bear.

It was not less than a requirement for him to surrender his wife, his beloved Vilate, and give her Joseph in marriage!

...three days he fasted and wept and prayed. Then with a broken and a bleeding heart, but with soul selfmastered for the sacrifice, he led his darling wife to the Prophet's house and presented her to Joseph.

It was enough---the heavens accepted the sacrifice. The will for the deed was taken, and "accounted unto him for righteousness."

5. Millennial Star, August 6, 1908; Also quoted in the Liahona, The Elders' Journal, Vol 6, pp 385-86; Temple Manifestations, pp 131-133; Testimony of Catherine Osborne.

I was baptized in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints when I was twelve years of age. My mother was a member of the Church at that time, but my father was not. But soon after my baptism I had the joy of seeing him also initiated into the fold of Christ.

A little over six years ago I went to Zion, settling in Salt Lake City. About a year after my arrival I became ill, and was under medical treatment for two years. The doctor told me that the climate was affecting my health and that if I desired to prolong my like it would be necessary for me to return to my native land. That was very said news to me, for I loved the Saints and the country. I was thoroughly satisfied, and the thought of going back again into the world caused me much sorrow.

I was desirous of going through the Temple before leaving Salt Lake City to return to England. The authorities of the Church did not feel inclined at first to grant my request. I fasted for three days, during which time I prayed in earnestness to God, if it were according to His will, to put it into the hearts of my brethren to grant me permission to enter the House of the Lord and here receive holy ordinances pertaining to my salvation.

In the night after the third day of fasting I was given a glorious, heavenly vision. A messenger from the unseen world stood before me. In his hand he held a scroll of pale blue parchment. He slowly unwound the scroll and bade me read the contents. To my great astonishment my whole life was unfolded before me. He told me that before I came to the tabernacle in the flesh I had agreed to go through anything that I might be called upon to pass through for the gospel's sake, in order that I might obtain a celestial crown. I saw on the parchment some writing that I could not understand; it resembled shorthand. The messenger told me that the Lord had sent him to tell me that I would go through the Temple, and that when I did I would understand the mysterious writing on the parchment. He also told me I would go through that sacred house on the fourth day from that time. His words were literally fulfilled.

6. Conference Report, p. 67; April General Conference, 1962; Elder Thorpe B. Isaacson.

Fasting consists in the complete abstinence from food and drink. Fasting, with prayer, its companion, is designed to increase spirituality, to foster a spirit of devotion and a love of God, to increase faith in the hearts of men, thus assuring divine favor; to encourage humility and contrition of soul; to aid in the acquirement of righteousness; and to teach man his nothingness and dependence upon God; and to hasten along the path of salvation those who properly comply with this law of fasting.

7. Doctrine & Covenants Commentary, pp. 352-53; 1966; Smith and Sjodahl.

Fasting, as an expression of sorrow, is natural, for in deep affliction man does not crave nourishment to the same extent as under normal conditions. In the Law of Moses one annual fast day was provided---the day of atonement (Lev. 23:27-29). But on solemn occasions other fast days were observed. Joshua and the leading Elders of Israel were prostate before the Ark one entire day after the defeat in the battle of Ai (Jos. 7:6). David fasted when his child was sick (II Sam. 12:16). Moses fasted forty days on Mount Horeb. Elijah fasted a similar period, as did our Lord before entering upon His ministry. The children of God, in all ages, have found comfort and strength in fasting and prayer. In answer to prayer with fasting, extending over a period of two days and nights, Alma was healed (Mosiah 27:22, 23). Alma fasted and prayed many days, in order to receive a testimony of the truth (Alma 5:46). There are many instances of fasting recorded in the Book of Mormon. Paul reminded the Saints that he and his companions had proved themselves to be ministers of God in "fastings" as well as in all other circumstances (II Cor. 6:5). Our Lord warns His disciples not to fast as hypocrites who look sad and distort their countenances, in order to be seen by men, but to appear as if going to a social function, in order that God, "who seeth in secret" may regard them openly (Matt. 6:16-18). This is in harmony with what God revealed through Joseph the Prophet, that fasting should be rejoicing. It is also in harmony with the view taken by Isaiah (58:3-8). The Latter-day Saints have a Fast Sunday every month, on which they bear testimony to the goodness of the Lord to them, and remember the poor by donations. If they understand the gospel, they will make every Sunday a fast-Sunday, by abstaining from work, partaking of simple food, and devoting the day to spiritual matters.

8. Gospel Doctrine, pp. 243-44; 14th ed., 1966; Writing of President Joseph F. Smith.

The Nature and Purpose of Fasting. The law to the Latter-day Saints, as understood by the authorities of the Church, is that food and drink are not to be partaken of for twenty-four hours, "from even to even," and that the Saints are to refrain from all bodily gratification and indulgences. Fast day being on the Sabbath, it follows, of course, that all labor is to be abstained from. * * * (p. 243)

Now, while the law requires the Saints in all the world to fast from "even to even" and to abstain both from good and drink, it can easily be seen from the Scriptures, and especially from the words of Jesus, that it is more important to obtain the true spirit of love for God and man, "purity of heart and simplicity of intention," than it is to carry out the cold letter of the law. * * *

The Lord has instituted the fast on a reasonable and intelligent basis, and none of his works are vain or unwise. His law is perfect in this as in other things. Hence, those who can are required to comply thereto; . . .but let it be remembered that the observance of the fast day by abstaining twenty-four hours from food and drink is not an absolute rule. It is no iron-clad law to us, but it is left with the people as a matter of conscience, to exercise wisdom and discretion. Many are subject to weakness, others are delicate in health, and others have nursing babies; of such it should not be required to fast." (p. 244)

9. Mormon Doctrine, p. 276; 1966, 2nd edition; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

Fasting, with prayer as a companion, is designed to increase spirituality, to foster a spirit of devotion and love of God; to increase faith in the hearts of men, thus assuring divine favor; to encourage humility and contrition of soul; to aid in the acquirement of righteousness; to teach man his nothingness and dependence upon God; and to hasten those who properly comply with the law of fasting along the path to salvation.

10. The Improvement Era, pp 46-47; December 1967; Comments by Bishop Robert L. Simpson at the October General Conference of the Church.

My dear brethren and sisters of this great Church, . . .One of the most neglected and yet most needed laws for this troubled generation. . .is the law of the fast. Fasting and praying have been referred to almost as a singular function from the earliest times. Adam's generation fasted and prayed, as did Moses on Sinai (Deut. 9:9-11).

The Prophet Elijah traveled to Mt. Horeb under the influence of fasting and prayer. There he received the word of the Lord. His preparation had not been in vain (I Kings 19:8).

Mordecai's advice from Esther as he faced an emergency at Shushan pointed out that he and his people should "neither eat nor drink three days, night or day. . . ." (Esther 4:16). This was the true fast, abstinence from both food and drink. This is still the manner of the true fast in our day.

11. Sacrifice in the Old Testament, Its Theory and Practice, pp. 49, 124; by George Gray Buchanan.

After the destruction of the temple, some people gave up eating meat and drinking wine because the daily sacrifice had ceased. They did this in lieu of the sacrifices which could no longer be performed. Rabbi Shesheth, who lived during the third century after Christ, explained the substitution this way:

> Master of the Universe, it is revealed before thee that while the Temple stood, a man sinned and brought sacrifice, of which only the fat and blood was offered and this atoned for him and now I have sat fasting and my fat and blood have been diminished. May it be thy will that it may be accounted unto me as though I had offered it on the altar, and do thou accept it from me with favor. (p. 49)

He also remarked, "Alms giving is a Sacrifice of money, fasting of one's body." (p. 124)

12. BYU address, October 12, 1973; President Harold B. Lee, entitled: "To Be on Speaking Terms With God".

We read about Enos, struggling in prayer all day and all night. I read that to a woman and she said, "Just imagine a man praying all day and all night. I can't believe it." I said to her, "Maybe one day you'll be in a position where you will have to pray all day and all night." I've been in that circumstance where it wasn't all one day and one night, but the next day and the next night, and the next day. I'd fast until my strength was fast going, then I'd get a little nourishment and I'd go on fasting. I wasn't always on my knees, but I was praying. I remember the blessing I was seeking for one I was trying to save. I was all alone in this house where I was staying, and so I was left to my own. I had to go before a judge the next day, in the morning. And so, all day Sunday I made an outline of what I might say when I got before that judge as carefully as I knew how to document it. But in the middle of the night (apparently I had slipped off into a little slumber), suddenly I was awakened (I was as much awake as I am now) and it was as though someone had pulled up a chair and was there right beside me and dictated into my mind exactly what I was to do. It wasn't what I had planned and what I had written on this paper in outline. I didn't need any outline. All because I had been close to the Lord. I knew I could trust Him. And I saw # miracle happen, just as much a miracle. . . .And that judge made a decision.

The prison doors opened when Peter was shackled, you remember, and someone touched him on the shoulder and said, "Rise. Walk out. The gates of the prison will open."

It was just as much a miracle as I saw that, not exactly the same, and I felt confident that if I had to struggle much longer there would have been no veil. I would have seen as well as I heard dictated to my mind. So that I know in whom I can trust when I have nowhere else to go.

13. The Ensign/November 1974, pp. 66-67; "Do Not Despair", by President Ezra Taft Benson.

Eighth, fasting. A certain kind of devil goes not out except by fasting and prayer, the scripture tells us (See Matt. 17:21). Periodic fasting can help clear up the mind and strengthen the body and the spirit. The usual fast, the one we are asked to participate in for fast Sunday, is for 24 hours without food or drink. Some people, feeling the need, have gone on longer fasts of abstaining from food but have taken the needed liquids. Wisdom should be used, and the fast should be broken with light eating. To make a fast more fruitful, it should be coupled with prayer and meditation; physical work should be held to a minimum, and it's a blessing if one can ponder on the scriptures and the reason for the fast.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR PROPER FASTING:

1. Define the purpose of the fast.

2. Instead of eating breakfast on the day of the fast, go to Heavenly Father in sincere prayer. Tell him the purpose of the fast and why it is important. Ask for his help in obtaining the needed blessing.

3. Each time you get thirsty or hungry throughout the day, exercise faith by offering a sincere prayer for the purpose of the fast.

4. Instead of eating at lunch time, study the scriptures. Meditate, exert faith, and again offer humble prayer for the accomplishment of the fast.

5. Close the fast alone on bended knees or with others who are united for the same purpose, exercising faith to bring about the purpose of the fast.

6. Break the fast by eating lightly.

15. That All May Be Edified, p. 314, 343; by Elder Boyd K. Packer; 1982.

I have come to know that the witness does not come by seeking after signs. It comes through fasting and prayer, through activity and testing and obedience. It comes through sustaining the servants of the Lord and following them. (314)

There is great power in this work and the ordinary member of the Church, sustained by the Spirit, can do the work of the Lord.

There is so much more to say, but there is no time today to speak of prayer, of fasting, of priesthood and authority, of worthiness, all essential to revelation. When they are understood, it all fits together--perfectly.

Some things one must learn individually, alone, taught by the Spirit. (343)

VIII

THE DETECTION OF TRUE & FALSE MESSENGERS Introductory Comments

From personal experience Joseph Smith knew that there was a power of darkness, and that not all manifestations or revelations were of the Lord. From the time the Church was organized in 1830, Joseph had a difficult time with individuals in the Church who were receiving revelations and manifestations from false spirits, but yet who believed they were of God. As the time approached nearer to the day when "the keys of how to ask and receive" would be given to the saints in the endowment (which took place on May 4, 1842), Joseph taught more and more about how to distinguish between good and evil. He realized that once the saints began to pray in the true order that satan and his ministers would also be allowed to go forth and give answers of his own, even to appearing if that were necessary. With this thought in mind it becomes more important than ever to understand Joseph's teachings upon this subject. He said it was a terrible thing for a person to think he was acting under the influence of the Lord when in reality the influence was of the devil.

In a revelation given to Joseph in May of 1831, the Lord revealed that if after prayer a spirit would not manifest itself, the person involved would have power to rebuke the spirit (D&C 50:30-35). Joseph Smith himself had this type of manifestation when on the banks of the Susquehanna River, Michael appeared to intervene and detect the devil when he appeared as an angel of light (D&C 128:20). Satan has also appeared to several others as an angel of light and was successful in deceiving some (Alma 30:53; Moses 1:9-23; 2 Cor 11:14). In April of 1833 the Prophet warned Jared Carter and other saints, that "if any person have a vision or a visitation from a heavenly messenger, it must be for his own benefit and instruction," and not for those in authority above him (TPJS, p. 21). In July of 1839 Joseph gave several keys to the saints on how detect messengers. In summary, he said:

1. We must prove all spirits as they come to us.
2. If you see a vision, pray for the interpretation; "if you get not this, shut it up."
3. "An open vision will manifest that which is more important."
4. There are lying spirits going around giving great manifestations. They are not all of God.
5. A spirit cannot come except in his glory because it has no physical body to hide the glory.
6. An angel has flesh and bones, and the devil may appear as an angel of light.
7. If you receive a messenger, "ask God to reveal it; if it be of the devil he will flee from you; if of God, He will manifest Himself, or make it manifest."
8. God will adapt himself to your capacity.

9. The devil can speak in tongues.
10. Every spirit or vision or singing is not of God.

In December of 1840, William Clayton recorded some comments which the Prophet had made concerning detection:

1. If an angel or spirit [embodied or without a body] appears, offer him your hand, and when you do:

   a) the spirit from God will stand still and not offer you his hand. A good spirit will not deceive.
   b) "If from the Devil he will either shrink back from you or offer his hand and you will feel nothing."

2. Angels are beings who have bodies and appear to men in the form of man.

A month before the endowment was given by Joseph, he gave another lengthy discourse on how to "try the spirits". A summary of that discourse is given here:

1. Men are ignorant of the nature of spirits and are thus more easily deceived.
2. No one can detect false spirits without the priesthood.
3. Satan and false spirits use angelic form; a sanctified look and gesture; zeal for the glory of God; a prophetic spirit; gracious influence; godly appearance; holy garb, etc.
4. A man must have the discerning of spirits before he can expose a false spirit.
5. Some are under a false spirit when they think they are under the spirit of God.
6. It requires the spirit of God to understand revelation from God and satan.
7. Spirits are governed by the priesthood.
8. Wicked spirits have the bounds, limits, and laws by which they are governed and controlled.
9. False spirits have sandy colored hair.
10. False spirits will usually appear when the priesthood authority who can detect them are away.
11. False spirits will contradict former revelations.

Speaking to the Relief Society on April 28, 1842, Joseph told the sisters that "the devil has great power to deceive" and can "so transform things as to make one gape at those who are doing the will of God" (TPJS, p. 227). Then on May 1st, he told the assembled saints that there are "certain signs and words by which false spirits and personages may be detected from true" and that these keys would be given them in the temple as soon as it was finished. He went on to say that "there are signs in heaven, earth and hell;" and that "the elders must know them all," in order "to be endowed with power," and "to finish their work and prevent imposition." The devil apparently knows many signs, but he does not know the sign of the Son of Man (1 May 1842).

On February 9, 1843, while in Nauvoo, Joseph again elaborated upon the keys of how to detect messengers. His remarks were:

1. There are two kinds of beings in heaven---

   a) angels who are resurrected personages;
   b) spirits of just men made perfect, who are not yet resurrected.

2. When a messenger comes, saying he is of God, offer him your hand and request him to shake hands with you.

a) If he is an angel he will shake hands, and you will feel his hand.
b) If he is a just man made perfect, he will appear in his glory, but will not move, and will deliver his message anyway.
c) If he is the devil as an angel of light, when you ask him to shake hands, he will offer you his, but you will not feel anything. (D&C 129)

These comments were apparently given to help those who had received their endowments to understand the principle of detection in greater detail than what they had already learned. In this revelation he said as much as he felt he could outside the temple knowing full well that the endowed saints would understand.

One of Joseph Smith's final discourses about detection came on October 9th, 1843, while giving a funeral address at the services of his good friend, Judge James Adams. In the sermon he commented that "spirits [of just men made perfect] can only be revealed in flaming fire or glory," but that angels have advanced further and their light and glory can be tabernacled (TPJS, p. 325) The mission of the spirits of just men made perfect is that they are made ministering servants to those [on earth] who are sealed up unto life eternal, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down to mortals (TPJS, p. 325).

During the Nauvoo, Illinois days, Elder Parley P. Pratt wrote a book entitled "Key To The Science of Theology" which was later published. In his treatise on spirits, he elaborates on some points which broaden our understand of spirits:

> The good spirits are they who in this life partook of the Holy Priesthood, and of the fulness of the gospel. This class of spirits minister to the heirs of salvation, both in this world and in the world of spirits. They can appear unto men, when permitted; but not having a fleshly tabernacle, they cannot hide their glory. Hence, an unembodied spirit, if it be a holy personage, will be surrounded with a halo of resplendent glory, or brightness, above the brightness of the sun.
>
> Whereas, spirits not worthy to be glorified will appear without this brilliant halo; and, although they often attempt to pass as angels of light there is more or less of darkness about them. So it is with Satan and his hosts who have not been embodied.

MEANING OF WORDS AND PHRASES

Introductory Comments

It is an interesting fact that although we read the scriptures, we can go back and read them again and get additional insight from them that we did not get the first or second time through. This is not because the words on the pages have changed any, but because our understanding and comprehension of the gospel has increased, and as a result we understand what is being said in a broader way.

Many of us have read words and phrases like "becoming a son and daughter of God" and have thought it strange because we say "aren't we all sons and daughters of God already, by spirit birth?" Most certainly we are his spirit children, but in order to become his sons and daughters we must make our calling and election sure. Only in this way do we become his "sons and daughters". Presently we are his "servants and handmaidens". If we are faithful servants, then we will be elevated to the status of "son" and "daughter". But this kind of understanding is not apparent to many people. Therefore it remains a mystery to them.

Such is the case when we read about prayer. There are words and phrases which are used in the scriptures to describe certain kinds of prayer. We would not understand what those scriptures were saying if we did not know what the words meant. What did it mean, for instance, when the scriptures record that Enos cried unto the Lord in "mighty prayer"? Or, what does it mean to "petition the throne of grace"? The scriptures are full of these kinds of words in relation to prayer and because we do not understand them we pass over them thinking nothing more about it. But in actual fact these words and phrases indicate that the individuals involved were using the true order of prayer. In 1 Corinthians it speaks of how the women should use a veil while at prayer. Does that mean anything to us? Certainly we can gain greater insight into the gospel message to us personally if we would try to understand the meaning of words and phrases so that when messages are given to us through the printed page, or through the spoken words, we might understand what is being said and act accordingly. After all, we are told that we should liken the scriptures unto us and try to practice and follow the righteous examples laid out before us.

The reason why the scriptures and the writings of the brethren are so full of words and phrases that mean things beyond what we might understand at the moment, is because the Savior said that only the faithful are to know the mysteries of heaven; it is not given to everyone to know them. If we will truly seek and read the writings of the brethren, we will find that they have explained many things regarding the mysteries of heaven, and when we go back and read the scriptures, or visit the temple, we realize that they were there all the time, but did not see them. How glorious it is to have the spirit of the Lord teach us the way of salvation and open our eyes so that we might see beyond the symbol!

THE THRONE OF GRACE

Scripture Quotations

1. Hebrews 4:16

Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

1. Journal History, December 28, 1845, Sunday; Nauvoo Temple Attic.

The congregation were seated in perfect order, then called to order by Elder Parley P. Pratt. A hymn was sung by the concourse. The Throne of Grace was then addressed by Parley P. Pratt. While supplicating the Throne of Grace the supplicant was fully overcome while remembering the condition of the scattered remnants of the House of Israel who are still under the hands of oppression.

2. J.D. 26:49; Delivered Sunday afternoon, January 11, 1885; In the Salt Lake City Tabernacle, by Apostle George Teasdale.

Wishing to be kind to myself; wishing to understand if there was any truth in all these things [gospel restoration], I went where we should all go---to the throne of grace, and asked God the Eternal Father in the name of Jesus Christ, that if the testimonies I had heard were true, that I might have a knowledge of the same; that I was willing to embrace the Gospel provided that it was true, and it would guarantee the excellency of knowledge that was promised me if I would seek wisdom at His hands and obey.

Family prayer was an institution in the Kimball household. Morning and evening the members were called in to surround the family altar and offer up praise and petitions to the Throne of Grace.

4. The Improvement Era, p. 243; April, 1936.

The worship completed, the sacred work for another soul done, the worshipper again finds himself surrounded by the influences of a confused world, but also with the realization that he has been close to the Throne of Grace and has received the strength that has come as a result of the repeated experience which enables him to endure the trials of another period of contact with the struggles of mortality.

5. The Improvement Era, p. 85; December 1969; October General Conference address; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

I know man can commune with his Maker, can petition the throne of grace and receive answers to his prayers, because I have done so. I know man can receive revelations, because I have received them.

6. The Ensign/January 1976, pp. 8-9; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

In this setting, then, seeking to learn and live the law of prayer so that we, like him, can go where he and his Father are, let us summarize what is truly involved in the glorious privilege of approaching the throne of grace. Let us learn how to do so boldly and efficaciously, not in word only but in spirit and in power, so that we may pull down upon ourselves, even as he did upon himself, the very powers of heaven.

Scripture Quotations

1. Enos 3-5

Gospel Mysteries

Behold, I went to hunt beasts in the forests; and the words which I had often heard my father speak concerning eternal life, and the joy of the saints, sunk deep into my heart.

And my soul hungered; and I kneeled down before my Maker, and I cried unto him in mighty prayer and supplication for mine own soul; and all the day long did I cry unto him; yea, and when the night came I did still raise my voice high that it reached the heavens.

And there came a voice unto me, saying: Enos, thy sins are forgiven thee, and thou shalt be blessed.

2. Acts 1:13-14

And when they were come in, they went up into an upper room where abode both Peter, and James, and John and [the other apostles].

These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

3. Daniel 6:13; 9:17

...Daniel...maketh his petition three times a day.

Now therefore, 0 our God, hear the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon the sanctuary that is desolate, for the Lord's sake.

4. Philippians 4:6

Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God.

5. 1 Timothy 5:5

Now she that is a widow indeed, and desolate, trusteth in God, and continueth in supplications and prayers night and day.

6. Alma 31:10

Neither would they observe the performances of the church, to continue in prayer and supplication to God daily, that they might not enter into temptation.

7. D&C 136:28-29

If thou art merry, praise the Lord with singing, with music, with dancing, and with a prayer of praise and thanksgiving.

If thou art sorrowful, call on the Lord thy God with supplication, that your souls may be joyful.

8. JSH 1:29-30

...on the evening of the above mentioned twenty-first of September, after I had retired to my bed for the night, I betook myself to prayer and supplication to Almighty God for forgiveness of all my sins and follies, and also for a manifestation to me, that I might know of my state and standing before him; for I had full confidence in obtaining a divine manifestation, as I previously had one.

While I was thus in the act of calling upon God, I discovered a light appearing in my room....

9. Hebrews 5:7 (Speaking of Melchizedek)

Who in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications with a strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared.

Commentary Quotations:

H.C. 2:193-198; February 21, 1835. Elder Parley P. Pratt was called to the stand and was ordained an apostle by President Joseph Smith, Jr., David Whitmer and Oliver Cowdery, afterwhich Oliver Cowdery took the stand and gave an apostolic charge to Parley P. Pratt and to all the other apostles who were present. This took place in Kirtland, Ohio. Excerpts from that charge are as follows:

The ancients passed through the same experience. They had this testimony-that they had seen the Savior after He rose from the dead. You must bear the same testimony; or your mission, your labor, your toil, will be in vain. You must bear the same testimony, that there is but one God, one Mediator; he that hath seen Him, will know Him, and testify of Him. (p. 193)

It is necessary that you receive a testimony from heaven for yourselves; that you have seen the face of God.

Never cease striving until you have seen God face to face. Strengthen your faith; cast off your doubts, your sins, and all your unbelief; and nothing can prevent you from coming to God. Your ordination is not full and complete till God has laid His hands upon you. We require as much to qualify us as did those who have gone before us; God is the same. If the Savior in former days laid His hands upon His disciples, why not in latter days? (pp. 195-96)

You have our best wishes, you have our most fervent prayers, that you may be able to bear this testimony, that you have seen the face of God. Therefore call upon him in faith in mighty prayer till you prevail, for it is your duty and your privilege to bear such a testimony for yourselves. (p. 198)

PERSONAL WORTHINESS AND PREPARATION

Introductory Comments

In order for an individual to come into the presence of the Lord and make his calling and election sure, there are certain preparation which must exist prior to the person being able to gain such great blessings. Such preparation must deal with the outward appearances as well as the inward. Admittance into the presence of the Lord depends upon whether or not the individual prepares him self as he should.

Going to the temple is just such an example. Before the person is given admittance into the Lord's house (his presence). he must first be judged worthy. If he has made the proper preparations then he will be allowed to enter. For new members it means they must endure in faithfulness for at least one year past their baptismal date. Entrance into the presence of the Lord does not come automatically just because the person might stand at the door and say "let me in, I am ready."

Personal Worthiness

Personal worthiness comes in two categories: outward and inward appearances. Anyone who desires to enter the Lord's presence must prepare himself sufficiently by making the spiritual climb up Mt Sinai as did Moses prior to his entering into the presence of the Lord.

The outward preparations which an individual must make would include:

1. Reception of all the ordinances of the gospel, from baptism to temple marriage. If all these ordinances have not been received, sufficient preparation has not taken place.

2. Possession of a current temple recommend. This indicates that the person declares himself worthy in all the categories listed in the recommend interview. If a person cannot qualify honestly for a recommend, then sufficient preparation has not been made.

3. Is the temple recommend used as often as the nearness of a temple will permit? The Lord will judge us according to our circumstances.

4. Holding family home evenings, studying the scriptures, saying our morning and evening prayers, teaching the children to marry in the temple and go on missions, etc.

The inward preparations which must be made are less obvious to the eye of man, although God and the angels of heaven see them. Such inward preparations will include:

1. Repentance of all our sins daily, and a continual struggle to keep clean and unspotted from the sins of the world.
2. Keeping all the commandments, including the ones that seem to be broken most often: keeping the sabbath day holy, thou shalt not covet, thou shalt not commit adultery, and thou shalt not steal.

3. Forgiving all others their trespasses against us. Holding no grudges against anyone, therefore having no need to criticize anyone, and feeling at peace with all others.

4. Commit to live the law of sacrifice, in that the person is willing to suffer the wrongs of others which are heaped upon him, even as he heaped his wrongs upon the Savior, who suffered them in silence. Those who are not willing to suffer the trespasses of others and say in their hearts "God judge between me and thee, but for me I will forgive thee", retain selfishness within and do not quality for the pure love of Christ.

5. Commit to live the law of consecration, in that the person who is willing to forgive all others, now dedicates all his time and talents, and everything with which the Lord has blessed him, to blessing the lives of those he has been called upon to serve. He devotes himself to a life of service outside of himself just as the Master did.

It is true that satan desired to force all who were to come to earth to live the standards of the gospel and thereby take away their free agency. But why such a plan? Because if they sinned he would have to pay the penalty for their sins, and he was unwilling to suffer for them. His selfishness for his own comfort was more important than his willingness to serve his brothers and sisters. Just so with us. To the same degree that we are unwilling to pray for our enemies and others; to fast for those who need help (which fasting causes pain and discomfort); or to serve the needs of others even when it is late or out of our way, then to that same degree we imbibe the spirit of satan who did not want to suffer, or go out of his way in order to bless others, and yet he still wanted the glory.

By being willing to suffer others weakness as they affect us, and to be willing to serve all others at our own expense, without thought of recompense, is the way of the Master. The world says, 'what is in it for me?" while the Master says, "what can I do for you?" Only by losing oneself in the service of the Master is he able to find the end of his salvation.

Preparation At Home

The home is the most sacred place on earth next to the temple. It should be the temple for the family. A Melchizedek Priesthood holder may bless and dedicate his home, whether or not it is free of debt, as a sacred edifice where the Holy Spirit can reside. A member may dedicate his home as a sanctuary for his family where family members can worship, find safety from the world, grow spiritually, and prepare for eternal family relationships. Unlike Church buildings, homes are not dedicated and consecrated to the Lord.

Those holding the fulness of the priesthood may use that priesthood to dedicate a home to where it actually becomes the residence of the Lord himself. But if an individual does not hold the fulness of the priesthood yet, he can only dedicate his home as a sacred edifice where the Holy Ghost and his spirit can reside and be of influence. This is the way the saints can elevate their spiritual lives, by allowing the Holy Ghost to come into their homes and sanctify and bless them so that one day the home may be prepared and blessed by the fulness of the priesthood and thereby admit the presence of the Savior into the home. And this is the Zion spoken of - where the saints can dedicate their homes to the Lord so that the Savior can come and visit with them and sup with them. (Rev. 3:20). The power of the Lord will be able to rest upon such dwelling places and such homes will become among the most sacred places on the earth, in addition to temples. And the saints will thereby be able to stand in holy places (their own dedicated homes) as the scriptures tell us will happen in the latter-days.

When an edifice is dedicated, it raises the level of that building from a "telestial" level to a "terrestrial" level. In the telestial world, satan is allowed to roam free and have influence among mankind. However, when a building is dedicated, it cast out the influence of satan so that peace and the spirit of the Lord can reside there. In the endowment, satan is cast out while they are yet in a "telestial" environment. Shortly after he has been cast out, we enter the "terrestrial" room where satan is not seen nor heard. It is also in this terrestrial room where prayer in the true order is offered. Once the temple and altars have been dedicated, they may be used for prayer in the true order. Historically, during the 1800's, this was also true of the homes of the saints. It was also important to President Young that all the saints possess their own garments and temple clothing. Their relationship to the subject at hand is obvious. Even today, the saints are allowed the option of making their own temple robes if they so desire.

In short, the saints realized the importance of the home and did all they could to make their home a sacred place, where they could commune with the Lord.

THE DEDICATION OF HOMES

Commentary Quotations

1. The Journal of Joseph G. Nelson, n.p., n.d.

On the appointed day we met in our dining room in Preston - Brother and Sister Johnson with others of our friends. Before engaging in prayer, Mae [Nelson's daughter] and I retired to our sacred room and asked God if it would be all right to pray for rain. The answer was: "It's all right, but pray in this way - the Lord's will be done."

So we prayed and in the midst of the prayer there was a gentle roll of thunder immediately above our heads although the sky was cloudless. The rain did not come and I inquired again of the Lord the reasons and the answer was: "All through the Cache Valley the first hay crop is being harvested, and the people are praying that the weather remain fine." Thus the prayer was answered in God's own way.

2. Biography of Ann Howell Burt, pp. 14-15; n.d.

One day a gentleman named John McMamount, from India, came to visit Ann's father. He was highly educated and spoke many different languages. Brother Howell invited the stranger to dine with them, that he might have an opportunity of explaining the Gospel, which was his delight. The gentleman accepted the invitation, and an interesting gospel conversation ensued. Afterward, as was the daily custom, Brother Howell rang a bell for the members of his household to assemble for devotion in a certain room which had been set apart for that purpose. After Brother Howell had prayed and said amen, [Ann] arose and spoke in a tongue unknown to all present except the stranger, who understood and interpreted. She had told him that the "Mormon" Church was the Church of Christ and that there was no other.

4. J.D. 6:190-191; December 27, 1857; Pres. Heber C. Kimball.

We should dedicate all those things to the Lord, with our bodies, our houses, our furniture, and the earth that we cultivate, and the seed that we put into the earth; and we should bless the shovel, the hoe, the spade, the sheep, the horses, the cattle, the cows, and all that we possess; and then will not God multiply them unto us? Yes, he will, and we shall get heavier fleeces of wool and more of them. What! can be bless the fleece? Yes, he can as easily as he blesses the sheep.

...this is the way I have done for years. I also make a practice of dedicating my children to the Lord, that they may grow up in his wisdom and increase in his power.

6. Heart Throbs of the West, Vol 5:61-62, 65; Kate B. Carter; 1887.

Among the sacred customs of the Pioneers of Utah was the one of dedicating their new homes, no matter how small and humble the abode might be. They would invite their neighbors and friends to the "housewarming," a real pioneer party was held, and either the father or the Church official would dedicate the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashel H. Woodruff's house was dedicated in 1887.

Like a bright star shining in the firmament, the dedication of our home will live in my memory. It was the gift of a wonderful pioneer, Hamilton G. Park, to his daughter, Isabella; and all who dwelt therein reflected the spirit of their pioneer ancestry. My mother was a woman of great faith. She believed that every home should be dedicated. Therefore, when her home was set in order and properly prepared as she thought it should be for such a sacred occasion, she selected a day in the lovely spring and invited about fifty of her friends to attend the dedicatory service. The rays of the glorious sun seemed to penetrate every nook and corner of the house, and I can see my mother now receiving her guests at the door and showing a few that whispered "we would like to take a peek around" through the house. One of these was Zina Card, and she said to mother: "Bell, this seems like your mother's home, and I feel like she is here today." Happy laughter rang out through the rooms and there was a hum of voices when friends greeted friends and enjoyed little informal chats. Then the clock struck two; conversation ceased; a reverential silence fell over the little group, and the dedicatory service began.

Beautiful hymns were sung and a musical program was given by members of the family. Outstanding, of course, was the dedicatory prayer offered by Patriarch James R. Martineau.

Among the many beautiful and prophetic things he said was: "This home will be protected from the elements, and no evil disposed persons will have power to enter, and also there will be many important events held here, and prominent people will come, and they will feel the good influence and be reluctant to leave." His words were literally fulfilled. Not so long after, Utah experienced one of the worst storms in the history of the State. Trees were uprooted, telephone poles blown over, the Goddess of Liberty was blown from the City and county Building, and dashed in the ground. People prayed that had never prayed before, and it was said that some knelt in the street. Mother remained quietly in bed and when we children rushed into her room she said: "Don't be afraid, the storm will not harm us," and it didn't. The next morning when we went downstairs to see what havoc the storm had wrought, the sidewalks and streets were completely blockaded with poles, trees, etc., about our premises were undisturbed.

After the program, refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed. Many of the guests remained for the evening.

7. Young Woman's Journal, Vol II, pp. 467-468; "The Prophet on Old Houses", Oliver B. Huntington; July 1891.

This principle was expressed by Joseph Smith at the time of the great wave of unusual sickness which afflicted the Saints when they first moved into Commerce, Illinois. The Church members had moved into a number of abandoned log houses. According to Oliver H. Huntington, who recorded the Prophet's statement:

Soon the inmates became sick - sickness increased until Joseph Smith began to be alarmed and saw something very unusual in the new affliction. He looked into the matter as only a Seer and Prophet could look. He saw the trouble and where it came from. Those houses had been dens of iniquity. He instituted means to empty them again by moving the people into tents and doubling up families in better houses. My father's family he took into his own house and tent.

I once heard him say concerning houses that had been inhabited by wicked people, that before the Saints moved into them they should be thoroughly cleansed, then fumigated with brimstone and whitewash. Afterward there should be a season of prayer in the house, and it should be dedicated unto the Lord for the use they designed for it.

Those old houses had been owned or occupied by wicked, unprincipled men, gamblers, outlaws, licentious robbers, etc., and those that were of the same stamp had met there for evil practices and criminal purposes and there carried on their orgies. While this was the pastime of work of men and women in bodies, disembodies spirits of the same ilk [sort, kind] stood around in highest glee and in various ways manifested to one another their enjoyment of the performance of the viles of sins.

When the owners or occupants of the houses were dead, they enjoyed each other's society with their new pals in the spirit state, and when the righteous took possession of their old houses, all combined to kill the new inhabitants, and hence so much sickness - for all evil spirits whether in the body or out of the body, are opposed to this work and this people, and the spirits in the spirit world have means by which they can afflict people on earth, and are as diligent there as here to do good or evil.

8. Diary of Oliver Boardman Huntington; June 13, 1897, Sunday.

Sunday, June 13, 1897. Having previously [...] Brother Eddy Crandall, as we usually called him...to have his house which he was then building dedicated to the Lord by authority of the Priesthood for his residence and against the powers of darkness and the destroyer. He had set for the ceremony Sunday 13th of June, 1897, and decided that I should take charge of the ceremonies. By his permission I invited Bishop Loren Hamer Dolten, my son-in-law and Brother B. T. Blanchard, as participants in authority and power. I also invited my wife to attend with me it being only a short distance on the opposite side of the road from where I lived. The ceremonies were short and impressive. Inasmuch as Brother Crandall had decided that I should dictate the meeting I felt at liberty to program the meeting as I liked, which was as follows: The young folks of his family sang a hymn, accompanied by organ. Prayer by Brother Blanchard. Bishop Harmer gave a short address to which he illustrated the virtue of a dedicatory prayer to an instance that occurred with him while on a mission in the state of Virginia. He was to travel a long distance down a river on the log raft, and while the raft was being started, he and the Elder with him took position on two logs, standing and each in silence, without the knowledge of the other, breathed a silent prayer to God and dedicated the two logs to the Lord for a safe conveyance for them that they might land safely on shore. On the way down the river the raft ran upon rocks that broke the whole thing to pieces that no two logs remained together except the two that these two Mormon elders were on. People that saw the misfortune wondered at the circumstance, and that the two logs floated ashore without any effort of human hands, and they had to only step from the logs to land. After Bishop Harmer's talk I offered a prayer dedicating and asking the Lord Almighty to bless Brother Crandall, his two wives and children, his house and land, the beautiful spring of water near his door, his horses, cattle, wagons and tools. After the prayer the family sang a hymn and Brother Dolten dismissed. After the ceremonies my wife testified that she could not see the spirit of God there in the room, but she could feel it distinctly.

9. Life of John E. Booth, pp. 52, 55-56; January 1, 1903; Dedication of the John E. Booth home by Abraham 0. Woodruff of the Council of the Twelve.

The dedication of the John E. Booth home in Provo, Utah on January 1, 1903, in which the invocation was offered by Elder Harvey H. Cluff and a couple of hymns were sung. Abraham 0. Woodruff of the Council of the Twelve then gave the dedicatory prayer of which the following is excerpted:

> Our Heavenly Father, we a few of thy servants and handmaidens have met together in response to the invitation of Brother and Sister Booth to come to the dedication of this new house. We dedicate it unto Thee, and desire that it shall be a blessed place, and that good influences may be here in all the rooms. We realize that good spirits carry with them good influences, and it is because we desire that good influences shall be in this house that we dedicate it to Thee: and we do dedicate all of this house unto Thee....May this house never be desecrated by impure spirits or influences.

Following Apostle Woodruff's supplication, a few testimonies were born by those in attendance at the services. Among them was the inspired remarks of Bishop Edward Partridge, Jr., son of the First Presiding Bishop of the Church:

> I feel honored in being asked to talk at a place where so many of the Authorities are present. Perhaps a few words in relation to dedicatory services would not be amiss. When I was called to take charge of the Academy Branch in Beaver, I had a convincing experience which I will relate. We held school in the barracks where the soldiers several years previously had been stationed; their instructions and duties were to see that the Mormons did not do anything which they should not. In one room there was a place where a bullet had pierced after it had killed a man; in another room a man had committed suicide. I am not peculiar about such things but both my wife and I felt an influence while we lived there which was not cheerful but depressing. Before school started the building were dedicated by Apostle Francis M. Lyman, and immediately there was a change in the feeling and influence about all the premises. Now the Spirit of the Lord is there, and instead of soldiers to fight the Mormons there are many young people being trained to preach Mormonism.

10. Relief Society Magazine, Vol. 2:201 Dedication of the Relief Society home for women and girls by Pres. Joseph F. Smith; 1913. This home, which was situated opposite the North Gate of the Temple grounds, served as a dwelling place for visiting women and drifting young girls who sought not only temporary lodging but also security, friendship and association with other people.

In his dedicatory prayer President Joseph F. Smith asked the Lord to:

Bless this building; preserve it from the devouring elements. May it be solid in its foundation, and safe in its appointments. May it be indeed an abode of peace and righteousness. May the walls of the rooms thereof be filled with the spirit of peace and that spirit of peace which gives us all understanding and joy. May every object desired be realized by all who need that assistance. We dedicate this home and bless it and ask Thee to sanctify it as a place of peace and rest for the weary. That the poor may not be spurned from its doors, but that they may be ministered to as they need and require.

Friday, February 11, 1916. He [Bushman] and his wife came to Snowflake with their oldest son, Homer, in his automobile at ten-thirty. Their daughter, Lois B. Smith, who had just finished her new seven-room house on the hill just south of Snowflake, asked him to dedicate it. In the evening at six p.m. she invited President Samuel Smith and Counselors, James M. Flake and Olaf Larsen, with their wives, also Bishop Fish and Counselors to attend the dedication. All gathered a few minutes after six"p.:.. Bishop John Bushman presiding. They sang, "Guide us, 0 Thou Great Jehovah, after which Bishop Bushman made some remarks on the subject [of] homes and churches. Also President Smith and Counselors and Bishop Fish all spoke well on the effort that had been made to build the noted white cottage on the hill. Then the eldest daughter Sadie, and oldest son, Walter F. Smith, sang, "Sometime we'll understand," then he [Bushman] offered the dedicatory prayer, after which Sister Bushman and May Larsen made some nice remarks. All together it was a very interesting affair. Bishop Fish said all went off very nicely. The parents stayed in the new house all night.

Latter-day Saints have therefore everything to lose and nothing to gain by giving attention to spirit-seances or promoting their teachings in any way. Nay, let us rather dedicate our homes, and pray for special protection against all influences that come to man through a violated veil!

What actually takes place when a servant of the Lord raises his hand and dedicates a building or a place for a certain purpose? Are angels sent to guard the thing that is dedicated? Or does the Spirit of the Lord so operate to bring about the sacred intent of the prayer? As yet I have never doubted that something real does happen. It may be invisible to the mortal eye, and not revealed to our understanding, yet I am convinced that some such action takes place.

14. Mecham Family Book of Remembrance, compiled by Leonida De Von Mecham, p. 543; December 25, 1952.

When I was about fifteen years old, my father was ordained a patriarch, I used to write his blessings for him. I wrote over three thousand blessings over three times, wrote them down, recorded them and a copy for the person it was given to. I remember my father said that was all I had to do, so I got out [of] a good many tasks which I should have had, when I was told to do something, I would say, "That is not my job." I have witnessed many marvelous things which came to pass through those blessings. I accompanied my father with three other Patriarchs and Apostle John W. Taylor as they went through Davis County dedicating homes. I have seen many miracles performed. At one time, at night they were holding a meeting in the Bountiful Ward Chapel, two of the patriarchs spoke in tongues and my father interpreted them, a light shone on the meeting house as bright as the noon day sun. They were dedicating a home in Centerville. I think it was brother Horsley's. He had been deaf for fifteen years, Brother Pace spoke in tongues and laid his hands on his head, my father interpreted the tongues and told him he should receive his hearing and he did instantly. Many more miracles were performed by these faithful men of God, while I was with them.

Each father is establishing, or should be establishing his patriarchal order - an order that will extend into the eternities, and it seems to me there is nothing more important for a priesthood leader or a priesthood holder to do than to give consideration to the fact that he is establishing his patriarchal order here in mortal life, and that that order will be extended into the eternities. * * *

DEDICATING HOMES

Church members may dedicate their homes, whether or not they are free of debt, as sacred edifices where the Holy Spirit can reside. A member may dedicate his home as a sanctuary for his family where family members can worship, find safety from the world, grow spiritually, and prepare for eternal family relationships. Unlike Church buildings, homes are not dedicated and consecrated to the Lord.

To dedicate his home, a member might gather his family members around him and offer a special prayer that would include the elements mentioned above, or other appropriate words.

THE HOLY ALTAR

Scripture Quotations

1. Genesis 12:7-8

And the Lord appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an altar unto the Lord, who appeared unto him.

And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west, and Ha-i on the east: and there he builded an altar unto the Lord, and called upon the name of the Lord.

2. Genesis 28:10-11, 18

And Jacob went out from Beer-she-ba, and went toward Har-an. And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep. * * *

And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillows, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it.

3. Deuteronomy 16:21

Thou shalt not plant thee a grove of any trees near unto the altar of the Lord thy God, which thou shalt make thee.

4. I Kings 18:30-32

And Elijah said unto all the people, come near unto me. And all the people came near unto him. And he repaired the altar of the Lord that was broken down.

And Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, unto whom the word of the Lord came, saying, Israel shall be thy name:

And with the stones he built an altar in the name of the Lord: and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two measures of seed.

5. Psalms 43:3-4

0 send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles.

Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto God my exceeding joy: yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, 0 God my God.

Commentary Quotations

1. The Contributor, Vol 7:285-86; Elder B. H. Roberts; May, 1838.

On the brow of the bluff stood the old stone altar which the brethren found there. When it was first discovered, according to those who visited it frequently, it was about sixteen feet long, by nine or ten feet wide, having its greatest extent north and south. The height of the altar as the brethren found it, was some two and a half feet at either end gradually rising higher to the center, which was between four and five feet high---the whole surface being crowning. Such was the altar at Diahman when the brethren found it. Now, however, it is thrown down and nothing but a mound a crumbling stones mixed with soil, and a few boulders mark the spot which is doubtless rich in historic events. It was here that the patriarchs, associated with Adam and in his company assembled at this altar to worship their God. Here their evening prayers ascended to heaven in the smoke of the burning sacrifice, and here angels instructed them in heavenly truths; but more of this anon.

Wednesday, 7---This morning there was an immense crowd at the reception room waiting for admission.

One hundred twenty-one persons received ordinances.

This afternoon, the new altar was used for the first time, and four individuals and their wives were sealed. The altar is about two and on-half feet high and two and one-half feet long and about one foot wide, rising from a platform about 8 or 9 inches high and extending out on all sides about a foot, forming a convenient place to kneel upon. The top of the altar and the platform for kneeling upon are covered with cushions of scarlet damask cloth; the sides of the upright part or body of the altar are covered with white linen.

Saturday, May 8th, 1851. Exploring party started early, and made for a pass through the mountains, in order to see what is behind it on the western side. . . .At the north we saw a high, pyramidical peak perfectly white and mountains to its left also very white. . .While upon this peak we sung a hymn, "For the Strength of the Hills we bless thee" while President Dame made an altar of stones. We then knelt in a circle and offered a prayer to God, dedicating the mountains and deserts to our God, and asking to be led to the place of appointment, by His Holy Spirit; that we might know the place when we see it, and other needful blessings. Enjoyed a good time. President Dame called this Altar Peak.

9. The First Book of the Faith-Promoting Series, p. 17; George Q. Cannon; August 5, 1855, My First Mission. [Elder George Q. Cannon along with Elder Henry Bigler, Elder John Dixon (who spoke in tongues), and Elder James Hawkins (who prophesied) were part of the first missionaries that were sent to Hawaii.]

Our first duty, after securing lodgings, was to repair to a convenient mountain, on the top of which we found a steep knob that rose suddenly and formed a table of thirty or thirty-five feet in width.

On the way up we picked up a rock apiece, with which we formed a rude altar. We then sang a hymn, and each one, in his turn, expressed his desires. The oldest, who was also the president, was selected to be mouth in prayer. He embodied our desires in his prayer. They were that the Lord would make speedy work on those islands, open an effectual door for the preaching of the gospel, confound all opposers, help us to gather out the honest in heart, and spare our lives to return home safely.

Having thus dedicated the land and ourselves to the Lord, one of the Elders spoke in tongues and uttered many comforting promises and another interpreted. The spirit of the Lord rested powerfully upon us, and we were filled with exceeding great joy...We had been in the presence of the Lord, and had felt His power, and why should we not be happy?

10. Henry Bigler Journal; August 5, 1855.

On the 12th of December, 1850, we landed in Honolulu. The day after we landed we washed our bodies in pure water, went on a high mountain overlooking the town and shipping. [We] gathered each a stone, erected a small altar, sang a hymn, and all bowed down, being agreed beforehand what we should ask for.

The spirit of the Lord was mightily poured out upon us, and Elder John Dixon spoke in tongues and Elder James Hawkins prophesied that the Lord would bless us even more than what we asked for; and in fulfillment of this, in one year from that day, between 400 and 500 natives had been baptized.

On the 27th of June, 1860, Sisters Hannah T. King, Susan Schettler, Zina D. H. Young and myself concluded to spend a portion of that solemn day on Ensign Peak and made the summit, prepared ourselves with refreshments, and then rested ourselves; took our dinner and then built an altar of stone, carried and piled up. Around the altar we knelt and offered up our prayers to God and thanks that He had raised up a prophet in these last days and the Gospel had been restored to the earth, and that we had been of the few that had received the truth. We sang and blessed each other and it seemed to us the spirit of the martyred prophet, whose death we commemorated on that sacred spot, was there and took cognizance of our sacred honor to him. Several years after I visited the sacred spot and the pile of stones remained nearly as we left them.

A. 0. Smoot told W. Woodruff that he & Alanson Ripley while surveying out Adam-Ondi-Ahman about 22 miles north of Jackson County Missouri, they came across a stone wall in the midst of a dense forest & underbrush. The wall was 30 feet long, 3 feet think and about 4 feet high above the ground and laid in mortar or cement. When Joseph Smith the Prophet visited the place, and examined the wall, he said it was the remains of an altar built by Father Adam where he offered sacrifice after he was driven from the Garden of Eden which was located in Jackson County, Missouri. The whole tower which was laid out and named Adam-Ondi-Ahman was in the midst of a thick & heavy forest of timber and the place named after Adams' Altar. The Prophet Joseph said it was upon this altar where Adam blessed his sons and posterity before his death. Let the historians of the Church note this.

Boulder, Colorado. Up at 5 a.m. * * * Finally at the top of my sacred mountain I found my cross of July '43 was broken. I found a cross beam and carried it up the hill (remembering the Savior as he carried his cross up Calvary) and fixed it the best I could. I found an altar for my prayers, then lay down in the same spot and slept for a while. It was a beautiful day and a marvelous view from the cliff rocks and a pleasant morning. * * *
I was awakened by the ducks on the pond and arose almost with the sun and shaved at the spring without mirror and in the cold water. I went for a walk in the high sand hills to the east -- a regular little Sahara desert. On top of one of the highest sand dunes, I found a small rattlesnake slithering its way up the dune, over its top and down the other side. He shot out his tongue angrily and rattled his buttons, warning me that I was intruding in his domain. I found some strange sand stones. In one of the depressions between the sand hills I found an altar stone, much the height and shape of a pulpit or an altar, and I had my morning devotions all alone and far away from everyone.

During the early days of the church evil spirits were prevalent...Elder Cheney and I came to Sister Julie Willet's one day when she was very sick. She asked us to administer to her. I anointed and Elder Cheney sealed the anointing. In doing so he rebuked the evil spirit and commanded it to stay rebuked. I wondered at this rebuke for the woman was such a faithful saint. I had no idea that she was afflicted with an evil spirit. When we finished. . .he didn't return for a matter of fifteen minutes and I became uneasy and went to hunt him. I found him at the place we had dedicated for prayer, sitting comfortably on a log. "I'm glad you came. Otherwise I would have stayed here all night," he told me.

Then he related the following experience to me, "At the moment I rebuked the evil spirit, it attacked me. I could hardly get out of the house. At the door it was so powerful it crushed me to the earth. I had to crawl part of the way out here. I tried to pray but in that attempt I was choked almost to death. It took me considerable time to get to this spot. Here it left me entirely free." Elder Cheney was never again bothered.

21. Bible Dictionary, King James Version; "Altar".

The materials of an altar were either earth (2 K 5:17; Ex 20:24), or unhewn stones (Deut 27:5; Josh 8:31; Ex 20:25). The Israelites were wont to enclose the earth or stones in a wooden case to preserve the proper shape; Ex 27:1. The wood again might be overlaid with brass or gold, Ex 39:39; 40:26. In the Jewish Tabernacle the Altar of Burnt Offering stood in a court outside the Tent. Its outer frame was acacia wood overlaid with brass, Ex 27:1,2,8; 39:39. Round it, halfway up, was a ledge, Ex 27:5. It had rings and staves by which it was carried. In the Holy of Holies stood the Ark of the Covenant, and above it the Mercy-Seat. These also served as an altar on which was sprinkled the blood of the sin-offering on the Day of Atonement, Lev 16:14,15. Under the Law (Deut 12:5, 11-14) it was forbidden to build an altar, except "in the place which God should choose to put His Name there, "i.e. the Temple at Jerusalem; but until the days of Hezekiah sacrifices were offered in other places as well.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE

Introductory Comments

Since the home is the most sacred place on earth, next to the temple, it should be a place where the family can worship in the spirit and in peace. It should be free of thoughts and actions which go against the principles of the gospel. Use of the true order will really be of little value until the participants are themselves clean and pure, and are in compliance with all the temple recommend questions and are generally keeping all the commandments. Of course we are all imperfect. Yet we should be doing all within our power to make our lives and our homes a heaven on earth.

On May 4, 1842, Joseph Smith restored again to the earth, the...principles and order of the Priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of Days, and all those plans and principles by which ANY ONE IS ENABLED TO SECURE the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds (TPJS, p. 237).

In essence, it is through the keys of the priesthood which are received in the endowment, that all individuals are "enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds." As Elder McConkie put it:

> The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain "the fulness of the priesthood," meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. "There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood WHICH MUST BE OBSERVED IN ORDER TO OBTAIN THE BLESSING. These [key words and signs], of course, are revealed only in the temples. "Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communication of keys," the Prophet says, ARE ESSENTIAL TO ENABLE ONE "TO SECURE THE FULNESS OF THOSE BLESSINGS which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Elohim in the eternal worlds. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 482, 2d Ed.)

Those who desire to reach up and obtain the fulness of the priesthood blessings must be living righteous lives already, before they try, or the use of the keys of the priesthood may possibly turn out to be more of a detriment than a blessing.

Implementing the true order within the home must be done as guided by the spirit. How frequently a person prays with or without the robes is up to the individual. The temple merely teaches the person how to pray. The film portrays how a husband and wife could pray. Temple sessions where living children are sealed to their parents is another example of how prayer could be done. But there is no set and fast rule as to how much, how often, in what way, or whatever. The individuals involved must be mature enough spiritually that they can be guided by the spirit as to what they should do.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE

Commentary Quotations

1. The Seer, Vol 1:176; No. 11; November 1853; Elder Orson Pratt.

Gospel Mysteries

And let the husband, and his wives, and all of his children that have come to the years of understanding often bow before the Lord around the family altar, and pray vocally and unitedly for whatever blessings they stand in need of.

2. J.D. 2:277-278; Discourse delivered by Elder Jedediah M. Grant in the Tabernacle, Great Salt Lake City; March 11, 1855.

When a sick person has sent in a request for the prayers of this congregation, many are permitting their thoughts to wander all over creation. Do we not see this right here? Yes, and a man of God feels indignant at it. No matter who is called upon to pray, all the assembly should unite in one; every person in the congregation who have an interest at the throne of grace should engage in prayer, and raise their hearts, as the heart of one man, to the Almighty, for the blessings enjoyed. * * *

We talk about being one; now if our faith is right, let our works correspond. If you have faith to pray, and prayer is offered up in the stand, pray too; and if you cannot confine your thoughts in any other way, mentally repeat the prayer of the one who is praying aloud, word for word, and let every Saint of God pray when the hour of prayer comes. When prayer is offered up in this manner to the God of high heaven for the sick and afflicted, you will find that the sick will be healed, for the prayers of the people of God ascend as incense before Him, and He has decreed that He will answer their prayers because they are united.

3. J.D. 3:53; Delivered at a Conference held in Provo City, Utah Territory by Pres. Brigham Young; July 13, 1855.

When people assemble to worship they should leave their worldly cares where they belong, then their minds are in a proper condition to worship the Lord, to call upon Him in the name of Jesus, and to get His Holy Spirit, that they may hear and understand things as they are in eternity, and know how to comprehend the providences of our God. This is the time for their minds to be open, to behold the invisible things of God, that He reveals by His Spirit.

Again, suppose a family wish to assemble for prayer, what would be orderly and proper? For the head of the family to call together his wife, or wives, and children, except the children who are too small to be kept quiet, and when he prays aloud, all present, who are old enough to understand, should mentally repeat the words as they fall from his lips; and why so? That all may be one.

If the people will ask in faith, they will receive, and let all mentally ask precisely as does the one who is spokesman. Let all leave the cares of their work behind them; let the kitchens take care of themselves, and let the barns, the flocks and herds take care of themselves, and if they are destroyed while you are praying, be able to freely say, "Go, they are the Lord's; He gave them to me, and I will worship Him; I will assemble my family and call upon the name of my God."

By leaving business and the cares thereof where they belong, and attending strictly to worship in its season, if not at first, you soon will be united, and be able to bring every evil principle into subjection. If all are bound up in this manner, don't you see that it will make a mighty cord of faith?

I will now ask this congregation, how many of you thought of mentally repeating my prayer as the words came to your ears? Did you realize that the order of prayer required you to mentally follow the words of the person who was praying? With us every one should mentally repeat the same words and ask for the same things as does the one who leads vocally, and let all say, amen. There are times and places when all should vocally repeat the words spoken, but in our prayer meetings and in our family circles let every heart be united with the one who takes the lead by being mouth before the Lord, and let every person mentally repeat the prayers, and all unite in whatever is asked for, and the Lord will not withhold, but will give to such persons the things which they ask for and rightly need.

4. "Historical Narrative" of Lucy Meserve Smith (1817-1892); Special Collections, Marriott Library, University of Utah; George Albert Smith Collection; as quoted in Women's Voices, pp. 266-67, by Godfrey, Godfrey & Derr.

While in School at Provo two of the Brown boys and John H. Smith, were out of School one day, and the Provo River being very high and running very swiftly, they thought they could have a nice boat ride. They accordingly procured a Skiff and started out. They paddled to the opposite side. When their boat capsized the two Browns managed to get back into the boat, but John Henry sank and came up and was sinking the second time, when to the surprise of the people on the shore there came a great swell in the water without a breeze stirring and went right down under John H. lifting him out of the water and throwing him up the high straight bank, and as he struck on his stomach the water poured out of his mouth very profusely.

His Father [George A. Smith] was at Salt Lake City at the time, and at that moment as near as we could learn, a feeling came over him, that all was not right with his boys at Provo. He hastened to his prayer-room and prayed to our Heavenly Father that his boys might not be swallowed up in the Provo River. When I got out of school, J.H. looked very pale. I asked the cause the he related to me the whole circumstances also of his miraculous deliverance, saying I took one good drink while I was in the River. Said I, Johnny, the Lord has a great work for you to do. He has already been on two missions to Europe, once 15 years ago, and once since he was a member of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, in 1884-5.

5. J.D. 4:215-216; Delivered by Pres. Brigham Young; February 8, 1857; Salt Lake Tabernacle.

It is one of the first principles of the doctrine of salvation to become acquainted with our Father and our God. The scriptures teach that this is eternal life, to "know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent,." this is as much as to say that no man can enjoy or be prepared for eternal life without that knowledge.

You hear a great deal of preaching upon this subject; and when people repent of their sins, they will get together, and pray and exhort each other, and try to get the spirit of revelation, try to have God their Father revealed to them, that they may know Him and become acquainted with Him.

6. Journal of Wilford Woodruff, April 25, 1858; CHD/Ms/f/115.

I attended the prayer meeting in the evening. President Young said the family Altar was the same as an Altar in the prayer circle. It is for parents and children to Join hands over the altar and pray.

8. Life of Heber C. Kimball, pp. 437-438; by Orson F. Whitney; 1888 ed.

Family prayer was an institution in the Kimball household. Morning and evening the members were called in to surround the family altar and offer up praise and petitions to the Throne of Grace. It is a common remark to this day that such prayers are seldom heard as were wont to issue from the heart and lips of Heber C. Kimball. Reverence for Deity was one of the cardinal qualities of his nature. Nevertheless, it was noticeable that the God to whom he prayed was a being "near at hand and not afar off". He worshipped not as "a worm of the dust", hypocritically meek and lowly, or as one conscious of naught but the meanness of his nature and the absence of merit in his cause. But in a spirit truly humble confessing his sins, yet knowing something of the nobility of his soul, he talked with God "as one man talketh with another"; and often with the ease and familiarity of an old-time friend.

On one occasion, while offering up an earnest appeal in behalf of certain of his fellow-creatures, he startled the kneeling circle by bursting into a loud laugh in the very midst of his prayer. Quickly regaining his composure and solemn address, he remarked apologetically: "Lord, it makes me laugh to pray about some people".

9. The Ensign/January 1973, pp. 66-67; Address given by Pres. A. Theodore Tuttle of the First Council of the Seventy at the October General Conference, 1972. Entitled: "Altar, Tent, Well".

"And [Isaac] builded an altar there, and called upon the name of the Lord, and pitched his tent there: and there Isaac's servants digged a well." (Gen. 26:25) * * *

Altar, tent, and well: his worship, his home, his work. These basic things of life signified his relationship to God, his family, and his fellowmen. Every person on earth is touched by these three.

Isaac worshipped at an altar of stone. He sought there answers to life's questions: Where did I come from? Why am I here? Where am I going?

These questions every man asks. These questions continue with us. Biblical scriptures alone cannot answer these questions. Revealed religion, however, gives clear and solid answers. * * *

To know the word and words of God, Isaac knelt in his day at his altar. His tent, a home for himself and family, was sacred to him, as our homes are to us.

To Latter-day Saints, the home is a holy place, patterned after the celestial home whence we came. The priesthood-led home is the loftiest spiritual unit we know. * * *

"So came Eve, an helpmeet to the priesthood mission of Adam--Eve, the last created being in the...world....Adam took her in her purity....radiant and divinely fair, into the Garden he had dressed and kept for her, into the bridal home he had built, into the Garden [a terrestrial level] that from then till now has been the symbol of heaven on earth, there to begin together their earthly life, that was finally to bring opportunity...to the untold myriads of spirits then waiting for the mortal tabernacles these two were to make it possible for them to possess. * * *

Kneeling at his altar, mindful of his family in his tent, Isaac found most of his working hours consumed in watching over wells he had caused to be digged. * * *

How little things have changed since Isaac's day---the things that really matter. There is the same God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the same family roles to fill, the same need to work.

Altar, tent, and well: these things are essential. Placed in proper perspective by God's revealed word, they provide at once our greatest challenge and achievement.

Our Heavenly Father, wilt thou help us thy children to see eternity in these things and act accordingly. In the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

10. Melchizedek Priesthood Study Guide, 1983, "Come, Follow Me", pp. 128-129.

When your children are young, you teach them to pray as you kneel with them in personal prayers as well as in family prayer. As they grow and their personal prayers become more private, the family prayer circle becomes the main way you can teach your children the true spirit of prayer. (p. 128) * * *

The Church urges that there be family prayer every night and every morning. It is a kneeling prayer with all or as many members of the family present as possible. (p. 129)

Discontinuance of Prayer Circles Outside the Temple

Introductory Comments

The true order of prayer was conceivably used as early as Joseph Smith's first vision. When Joseph knelt to pray he could have had a make-shift altar, and could have followed the form of prayer as found in 2 Kings, of upraised hands. Since Joseph was familiar with the sign, having attended protestant meetings where they prayed in that manner, and having read about it in the Bible, it is fair to speculate that such could have been part of the reason for his visionary experience.

In 1833, the members of the School of the Prophets prayed using this sign. On one occasion the Father and the Son appeared to those assembled. The sign was used many times during the Kirtland and Nauvoo years by those desiring to receive blessings, both spiritual and physical. The Holy Order meetings which were conducted during 1843 and 1844 were held with endowed members fully clothed in their robes. Later, after the Nauvoo Temple was built, the endowed saints would meet there and pray in the true order.

After the expulsion from Nauvoo, the saints went west and continued to pray both in their homes and in nature. Many locations were used by the early saints where they would commune with heaven. Later, as temples were built, the saints formed circles in the temples as well as outside.

During the early 1900's the First Presidency decided to organize prayer circles outside of the temple in different places throughout the church, which included wards and stake centers. As the years went by, however, the brethren's ability to organize and control such groups became diminished because of time and distance. Finally, in 1978, because of the tremendous growth of the church, and the increased desire for prayer circles outside of the temple, the brethren decided to discontinue all the organized prayer circles they had organized outside of temples, and to encourage members to go to the temple to pray in prayer circles. This way everyone in the church would have the same blessings. Their decision, however, was not addressed to members of households who prayed in their home, nor to friends who wanted to occasionally get together and pray.

DISCONTINUANCE OF PRAYER CIRCLES OUTSIDE THE TEMPLE

Commentary Quotations

1. Conference Report, pp. 4-5; April 5, 1901; Apostle Reed Smoot.

Let me say also that every Latter-day Saint has a perfect right to ask the Bishop of their ward to present the name of any who are sick to the fast meeting which is held each month in every ward in the Church, where the people meet together in fasting and prayer. I believe that the faith and power which can be made manifest in those meetings in behalf of the sick will be acknowledged by God: and the people have a right to ask the Bishop of their ward to have a sick one prayed for in any fast meeting.

In this connection I may say that we have prayer circles in this Church. Every Bishop has a right to have a prayer circle in his ward, and I sincerely hope that there is no Stake in Zion without one, and if there is, my advice is to organize one as soon as possible. There is not a week passes but these circles meet, and they are composed to be clean in every respect, having a knowledge that God lives, obeying all His commandments, and observing the Word of Wisdom; and the Saints should have the privilege of having their sick remembered in these circles. At the same time, I believe that where the humblest servant of God is sick in this Church, if he have faith, and the afflicted one also, God will grant unto them the righteous desires of their hearts. And it seems to me that there is no need of holding special fast meetings, or special testimony meetings, or special meetings of any kind in the wards or Stakes of Zion, in connection with or making them a part of the simple ordinances of administering to the sick.

2. Letter from the First Presidency, December 18th, 1906 to Elder Hyrum M. Smith; Salt Lake City, Utah. Signed by Joseph F. Smith, John R. Winder & Anthon H. Lund.

Dear Brother:-

We have released President Anthon H. Lund from presiding over the Wednesday Afternoon Prayer Circle, and appointed you to succeed him in that position.

President Lund will make known this change to the members of the Circle the first time that he and you can make it convenient to be present at the same time.

3. James E. Talmage Prayer Circle Minutes; 1912-1929, March 29, 1929.

Bro. Talmage acknowledged the benefit of the administration he received last week. He also explained the history of the organization and carrying on of prayer circles both in and out of the Temple and then explained that it was decided by the First Presidency and Council of the Twelve that all special circles would hereafter be discontinued....He explained that membership in circles was of necessity a special privilege which of necessity couldn't be extended to all who were worthy and might desire membership, whereas the temple ordinance work, which is of greater importance and includes the circle ceremony is available to every worthy Latter Day Saint who desires to avail himself of the advantage.

4. Manti Temple Historical Record, November 30, 1940.

Meeting of Stake Presidencies called by Pres. [Robert D.] Young [Manti Temple President]. * * * He [pres. Young] explained that prayer rooms have been discontinued by order of the First Presidency. * * * A letter was read asking if High Council and Elders Quorum meetings heretofore held in the Temple should be discontinued. In some of these meetings a prayer circle is held, and business transacted. In others business is transacted but no circle. It was the sense of the meeting that prayer circles, as such are permissible, but no business meetings should be held in the Temple, whether introduced by a prayer circle or otherwise.

5. Letter of the First Presidency; January 30, 1947; To all Presidents of Stakes, Bishops of Wards, Presidents of Missions, and Presidents and Superintendents of Auxiliary Organizations. Signed by George Albert Smith, J. Reuben Clark Jr. and David 0. McKay.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Report has come to us that there is a custom in some areas and among some organizations of having group prayers in which those participating, sometimes kneeling and sometimes standing, arrange themselves in a circle and then hold each other's hands while the prayers are being offered. From these reports which come to us it would seem quite obvious that the effort is to duplicate as nearly as possible the procedure of the sacred prayer circle.

This innovation is not in accordance with the due order of the Church and should be discontinued at once. Where groups are assembled together, the prayers should be offered in the ordinary way in which we offer prayers in our public services as at Sacrament meetings, priesthood meetings, and other like gatherings. This rule does not exclude groups from kneeling in prayer on proper occasions, but it is intended to exclude all simulations of the regular prayer circle.

We depend upon you brethren, and you sisters in your Auxiliaries, to see to it that this practice is immediately discontinued wherever is exists.

6. Letter of the First Presidency; May 3, 1978; To all Stake Presidents and Bishops; Signed by Spencer W. Kimball, N. Eldon Tanner and Marion G. Romney.

Over the years special permission has been given from time to time for special prayer circles to be held either in the temples of the Church or in special rooms designated for that purpose in stake, ward, or other buildings.

Because of the increasing number of requests for such prayer circles, viewed in light of the rapid growth of the Church, and because of the complications that holding prayer circles in temples on Sunday have created and their tendency to take the participants away from their families and their other Church responsibilities, the Council of the First Presidency and the Quorum of the Twelve has decided that all such prayer circles, whether held in the temples or outside the temples, be discontinued immediately.

However, recognizing the value of these prayer circles in developing spirituality, commitment, and unity among those participating in them, we suggest that in lieu of such prayer circles, stake leaders may wish to consider the following: (1) that periodically stake leaders and their wives attend a temple session together in connection with which arrangements be made with the temple presidency for the prayer circle held during the endowment session to be composed of several stake leaders and their wives; and (2) that periodically stake leaders and their companions be called together in a special meeting where opportunity be given to those present to express themselves by way of testimony of exhortation.

APPENDIX

REQUIREMENTS AND INSTRUCTIONS FOR SETTING UP PRAYER CIRCLES IN STAKES

1. Approval from First Presidency and Twelve first secured.

2. One or more of the Twelve will be appointed to organize and instruct.

3. An elevated room used only by Stake Presidency and High Council of sufficient size to accommodate lockers for storage of Temple clothing is required.

4. The Prayer Circle is normally confined to the Stake Presidency and High Council, which includes Stake Clerks.

   (a) Presidency to nominate others (Patriarchs, Bishops, Pres. of High Priests Quorum) and invite those approved for the Prayer Circle.
      1. They should be men who are true, tried, active, devoted, strong in testimony, integrity, faithful, honest, obedient, submissive, prayerful, loyal, sustain authority without hard feelings and without guile, whose houses are in order. No contention in the home, but love and affection; also no envy, harshness or backbiting but a full love of the people. No hatred or strife, willing to reconcile differences, appealing to proper Church tribunal where necessary.

   (b) Uniform seating arrangement according to seniority.

      1. Excuse those released from positions that formerly entitled them to membership in the Prayer Circle.

      2. Even and odd in the circle.

5. All participating are to be robed in Temple clothing. Two prayers are to be given, first kneeling and the second standing about the altar. An altar is required. (p. 2)

   (a) Provide roll.

      1. Those who dress.
      2. Those who do not dress.
      3. Recommend all should dress and participate.
      4. Those in circle must be clothed

a. Wear approved garments only and Temple clothing with white tie and white socks - not over colored.

b. Body clean coming before the Lord.

(b) Roll also is to assure rotation in offering prayers.

1. Person leading in prayer while kneeling prays for the one who will be voice in the circle.

2. The person who is voice in the circle will incorporate the first prayer in the prayer at the altar.

3. Avoid duplication in prayer substance and those who are voice are to be led by the Spirit.

6. All signs are given but only one token of the Priesthood, these to precede the prayer at the altar.

(a) President or Bishop leads in signs.

7. The purpose of the prayer circle:
(a) The true order of prayer.
(b) Get close to the Lord.
(c) Spirit is drawn out to God and His Son.
(d) Hearts humble, contrite and at peace.
(e) Softens hearts of participants and draws them near to God.
(f) Perfect love and harmony.
(g) Pray for the sick.
(h) Pray for the advancement of the Lord's work with His blessings upon the people and His leaders.
(i) Pray reverently. (p. 3)

8. Members of the circle may nominate people who are sick or otherwise afflicted for the prayer list, which list should be revised quarterly.

(a) President or Bishop to read list, which list of persons is to be remembered in the prayer at the altar. List to be placed on the altar.

9. Four great covenants.

(a) Sacrifice and obedience
(b) Gospel

1. Four standard works.
2. Refrain from lightmindedness.

(c) Chastity
(d) Consecration

10. Prayer Circles should teach us to be better husbands, fathers, devoted Church members, etc.

11. Change back to street clothing for such business as needs to be transacted.

Dear Dr. Brewerton,

The most instructive of the Dead Sea Scrolls in matters of the Temple promises to be the so-called Temple Scroll---which after three years has not yet been published! Actually the DSS are less helpful than other early documents now being discovered. By way of illustration you might look over the enclosed notes on the ancient prayer-circle. They were compiled quickly at the request of one of the General Authorities and have been given, understandably, only limited circulation, even though the materials included are all available to the general public, whose indifference is our best guarantee of security. Actually every phase of the Temple ceremonies could be reproduced from documents now available--some of the ancient descriptions are very full and detailed. The problem now is how and to what degree these things should be publicized. Trusting you may find the enclosed material of some interest, I remain and all that,

Your quandary-wise,

THE EARLY CHRISTIAN PRAYER-CIRCLE

Though it is not as well attested as many other ordinances, there are still many references to the rite of the Apostolic Prayer-Circle in early Christian and Jewish literature. Let us consider some of the more interesting of these, working backwards from the latest reports to the earliest.

St. Augustine in his 237th Epistle (written at the turn of the fourth-fifth centuries) quotes at length "a hymn which they [various old-fashioned Christian sects] say was a hymn of our Lord Jesus Christ. . . and is commonly found in the apocryphal writings." (Patrol. Lat. 33:1034). He quotes a Priscillian writing which describes it as "The hymn of the Lord which he recited in secret to his disciples the Holy Apostles, according as is written in the Gospel: 'After he recited a hymn he ascended the mountain'

(Mt. 26:30, Mk. 14:26). It is not included in the canon because of those who follow their own judgement rather than the spirit and truth of God, as it is written: 'The ordinances of the King it is well to conceal, though it is praiseworthy to reveal the works of God'" (Tob. 12:7). St. Augustine would discredit all such traditions by the characteristically rhetorical argument that since nothing could be more important than the things already made public in the Scriptures there is no point to keeping anything secret (ib. 1038). Nevertheless, F. Cabrol in the Catholic Dictionnaire d'Archaeologie Chretienne et de Liturgie, I, 787, concedes that the ordinance may be authentic, having disappeared from the Church by the third century. Augustine argues that there is nothing really secret about the business, since everything in it can be paralleled in the Scriptures; he does this by analyzing the hymn line by line: "I wish to deliver (it runs), and I want to be delivered; I want to save and I want to be saved; I want to be begotten and I want to begat; I want to sing and I want to be sung; I want to adorn (or clothe) and I want to be adorned. I am the gate for whoever knocks on me." (ib. 1036-7).

The text of the hymn immediately identifies it with the ordinance more fully described in a Greek writing called "The Dialogue of a Jew and a Christian." This very early document was read before the assembled fathers of the Second Council of Nicaea (787 A.D.); it puzzled them, and the business is never mentioned again in Christian sources. The text reads: "Before he was seized by wicked men, by the wicked serpent of the Jewish lawgivers of the Synagogues, he said to us all: 'Before I am given over to those men, let us sing a hymn of praise to the Father, and so go forth ready to face what comes.' Then he commanded us to form a circle, holding each others' hands, and he himself taking up a position in the middle said, 'Amen, do ye whatever I do!'" Then he began the prayer: "Glory (doxa) to Thee, Father," and we, standing in a circle followed him and added 'Amen'; Glory to thee divine grace (charis). Amen. Glory to thee Spirit, Amen; Glory to thee, Holy One, praise to thy glory. Amen. I praise Thee, Father; I thank thee, light in which there is no darkness. Amen. And as we thank thee I pray: I want to be saved and I want to save. Amen. To be delivered and to deliver. Amen. To be wounded and to wound. Amen. I want to eat and to be nourished, to hear and to be heard, to be known and to be all intelligence (nous), to be washed and to wash. When Grace comes I want to pipe and you all dance. Amen. I want to mourn and all mourn.' And other things he said. After the Lord had recited these things, with us following him, beloved, we went forth like lost wanderers." (Cabrol. I, 787)

Going back still earlier, we find in the syriac Acts of John: "He bade us therefore make a circle, as it were a ring, holding one another's hands, and himself standing in the midst he said: 'Answer Amen unto me.' He began then to sing a hymn and to say: 'Glory to Thee Father,' and we going about in the ring answered him, Amen. 'I would save and I would be saved!' Amen,", etc. (M. R. James, Apoc. of the N. T., p. 253). The actual performance of such an ordinance is described in one of the oldest Christian documents in existence, the old Syriac "Testament of Our Lord" (Rahmani, 1899). As part of the celebration of the Crucifixion and Resurrection, the Bishop "would stand with up-raised hands and offer up a prayer at the veil," beginning with the admonition, "If there is anyone who has any ill feelings towards his neighbor, let him be reconciled; if not, let him retire. . . . If anyone feels himself unworthy, he too should withdraw. For God is a witness, and his Son, and visiting Angels, to what goes on here." (TDNJX. p. 36i). The circle consists of both men and women, the Bishop being first stands in the middle, with a priest on either side of him, and next in order after them on the left a widow, on the right deacons, and then teachers (readers), and then sub-deacons and then deaconesses." (p. 38) The prayer is antiphonal, as "the people repeat these same things, praying" (44). In the prayer the Bishop thanks God "for the Plan of Salvation," by which "thou hast fulfilled thy purposes by preparing a holy people, hast stretched forth thy hands in suffering, that they might be freed from such suffering and from the corruption of death." The prayer ends: "Grant, therefore, O God, that all those be united to thee who participate in these sacred ordinances. . . . And the people say Amen. Bishop: Give us unity of mind in the Holy Ghost, and heal our spirits. . . that we may live in thee throughout all eternity" (44). Then certain ordinances are explained: 'It is He who gave Adam a garment and the promise that after death he might live again and return to heaven." It is explained how Christ by the crucifixion reversed the blows of death, "according to the Plan of the Eternal Father laid down before the foundations of the earth." (60).

Still older are some documents designated as the Gospel of Bartholomew. They belong to the "Forty-Day" tradition, and were believed to contain instructions given secretly by the Lord to his Apostles during the forty-day mission after the resurrection. On one occasion "when the Apostles were met together, Bartholomew said to Peter and Andrew and John, `Let us ask Mary how she conceived the Lord and bore him.'" This was an embarrassing question, and no one was willing to approach Mary on the subject. "And Bartholomew said to Peter, `You are the President and my teacher, why don't you ask her?' Peter replied, `She likes you, why don't you ask her?'" (Text in Revue Biblique X (1913), p. 321). After much hesitation and debate Bartholomew approaches Mary on behalf of the other Apostles, and she agrees to enlighten them. They form a prayer-circle, "and Mary, standing before them raised her hands to heaven" and began to call upon the Father in an unknown language, a number of versions of which are given. "When she finished the prayer, she said, `Let us sit (or stand quitely-kathisomen) on the ground (or prepared place--edaphos); come, Peter, you are in charge! Stand at my right hand and place your left hand under my forearm and you, Andrew, you do the same thing on my left side." (p. 324). John and Bartholomew are instructed to support or catch Mary if she faints, "lest my bones fail me when I start to speak." In a variant version when the Brethren are met together on the Mount of Olives " Peter said to Mary, `Blessed one, please ask the Lord to tell us about the things that are in heaven.'" But Mary reminds Peter that as Adam has precedence over Eve, so it is his business to take the lead in such things. (ib., p. 327). Having taken position Mary begins to speak: "When I was in the Temple of God (all sources agree that Mary served in the Temple some years before her marriage). . . there appeared to me one day a manifestation like an angel of unfamiliar aspect. . . . And suddenly the veil of the Temple was rent and there was a great earthquake and I fell on my face unable to bear the sight of him. But he stretched forth his hand and raised me up, and I looked up to heaven and a dewy cloud came and (gap)... moistened me from head to foot; and he wiped me off with his robe (stole) and said to me, `Greetings, thou favored one, chosen vessel!' and he grasped my right hand. And there was bread in abundance and he set it out on the altar of the Temple, and he ate first and then gave to me. And he put forth his left hand from his garment and there was drink in abundance, and he drank first and then gave to me, and I beheld and saw a full cup and the bread. And he said to me, `In three years' time I shall send to you my Logos and you will bear a son, and through him the creation will be saved. . . .Peace to thee, my beloved, forever and ever. And suddenly he was gone from me, and the Temple was as it was before." At this point the Lord himself appeared and commanded Mary "to utter no more of this mystery," while "the Apostles were terribly afraid that the Lord would be angry with them." (p. 325). The sacramental episode is exactly like the holy wedding in the story of Joseph and Asenath. The account continues with Jesus giving the Apostles further instructions in the ordinances, but the text is badly damaged. In one version Andrew accuses Mary of teaching false doctrine, but Peter reminds him that the Lord confided in Mary more than any other, while Mary, upset, weeps and says, 'Peter, do you think I am making this all up?'

(Evang. Mariae, 17-18).

Cyril, the last old-fashioned Bishop of Jerusalem, describes a rite in which "the priests stand around the altar forming circle and wash their hands. The Deacon then calls out: `Take each others' hands!' which is meant to signify the mingling of spirits. Those are to leave the altar who have any feelings against any brother.' (Patrol. Graec. 33:1110-1). The Second-century Acts of John XI, gives us the same picture, but describes the circle as a sort of dance, having a cosmic significance, as the members recite: "I would wash myself and I would wash others. Amen. Grace is dancing. I would pipe: Dance all of you. I would mourn: Lament, all of you!. . . . The number twelve dances on high. Amen. All that which is above participates in this circle. Amen. Who does not move in the circle knows not what come to pass. Amen. (or. "he that danceth not knows not what is being done. Amen.) (M. R. James, Apocr. Anecdot., II, 11). It is doubtless to this rite that Clement of Alexandria refers in the Second century when he writes, "Come to our mysteries and you shall dance with the angels around the unbegotten and Eternal One, while the Logos of God sings along with us. . . the great High Priest of God, who prays for men and instructs them. " (Patrol. Graec. 8:241).

Newly-found Coptic contributions to the "Forty-Day" literature have some interesting references to the prayer-circle. In one "Bartholomew" document, the Lord takes the Twelve up into the mountain and standing in their midst gives them certain signs and tokens and then departs (Barthol. Fol., 14b-15a, in Budge, Coptic Aprocrypha, 1913). In another version he takes them onto the mountain, "and addressed us in a tongue we could not understand. . . and he gave us his right hand, and sealed us Twelve. And we went up with him even to the veil (skene) of the good Father," where the Lord petitioned the Father" on behalf of the Apostles for a blessing which should be for all eternity." (Rev. Bibl., X, 363). In the famous but little-known Pistis Sophia. the Apostles gather around the Lord after the Resurrection, with "Thomas, Andrew, James and Simon. . . in the west with their faces turned towards the east, and Philip and Bartholomew on the south facing towards the north, while the rest of the disciples with the women folk (their wives--nsehime) were standing around behind Jesus, who himself stood at thee altar." (Ch. 136, 357-8). In that position, "thus facing as it were the four corners of the world (kosmos), with his disciples who were all clothed in garments of linen, Jesus made invocation: `Iao, Iao, Iao!'" followed by another phrase in an unknown language, meaning, "O Father of all fatherhood without end, hear me for the sake of my disciples whom I have led before thee, that they may have faith in all the words of thy truth. . ." An older Coptic work, The First Jeu, gives the opening words of the prayer as, 'Ie, Ie, Ie!' (I Jeu 51). According to this writing,. at every level of the universe and in every world there are Twelve who officiate and Three who direct and oversee. These form a circle because a circle is "without lower or higher degree" since the Twelve must act as equals and as one (ib. pp. 52f, 57). Also, according.to this account it was only after receiving the ordinances and instructions that the Twelve sang the hymn before going from the circle. (56). This writing contains some interesting diagrams showing the position of the Twelve in the circle around the altar. Also they must form this circle in order to receive a name which they are eager to possess (90-91).

Carl Schmidt considered Second Jeu to be the most valuable of all early Christian writings. In it, the Apostles and their wives all form a circle around the Lord, who says he will lead them through all the ordinances that will give them eternal progression (II Jeu 99). Then "all the Apostles, clothed in their garments, formed a circle foot to foot, and Jesus, taking the place of Adam, proceeded to instruct them (114ff) in all the signs and ordinances in which the Sons of Light must be perfect (116f): . "I will teach you all the necessary ordinances, that you may be Purged by degrees, and progress in the next life." These ordinances, the Lord explains, are very secret, NOT by their nature, but only because Satan wants them distorted and misrepresented, as they surely will be if they go abroad in the world. (XI Jeu 99-100). In the Kasr el-Wazz fragment, discovered in 1966, "We made a circle and surrounded him and he said, `I am in your midst in the manner of these little children.' When he finished the hymn they all said Amen. Then he said other things and each time they must all answer Amen. `Gather to me, O holy members of my body, and when I recite the hymn, you say Amen!" (II, add end).

In the New Testament itself prayer-circles are referred to directly and indirectly. Thus in Acts 14:20 after Paul had been stoned and left for dead "the disciples formed a circle around him (kyklostaton) and he arose and went to the city." This is a reminder that one of the purposes of the prayer-circle was to ask for healing and to Pray for the sick. The second chapter of I Timothy depicts an ideal situation in which all men everywhere would pray "with holy upraised hands and without ill feeling or differences. And the same thing with the women, fittingly attired (this refers to a special garment) . . . let the women receive instruction in silence and obedience" (i.e., let them follow the instructions given). The whole situation suggests less the course of everyday life than a special school of instruction--the prayer circle. Indeed, every attempt to put these rules into everyday practice (and there have been many) has been a fiasco. Likewise, Mark-11:25--"And when you are standing in Prayer, forgive anything you might have against anyone"--suggests a special kind of prayer with specific requirement of forgiveness.

The prayer of the Lord in calling upon the Father with upraised hands (on the cross, Mt. 27:46), closely follows the supplication in Ps. 54:2: "O God hear my prayer, hear the words of my mouth!" This latter prayer, beginning with "El" and ending with "Pei," reverses the order of Pei, Lei, El, but follows the same pattern. According to the pre-Christian Apocalypse of Abraham (discovered 1863), "when Abraham rebuilt the altar of Adam in order to bring sacrifice to the Eternal One," as he had been instructed by an angel, he saw men standing around in a circle on the mountain to assist him, and he raised his voice in prayer, saying: "El, El El! El-Jaoel! (meaning Jehovah). . . receive the words of my prayer! Receive the sacrifice which I have made at thy command! Have mercy, show me, teach me, give to thy servant the light and knowledge thou hast promised to send him! (Ap. Abr. 12:8-9; 17:11-17). Surprisingly, it was Satan who answered his prayer, saying Here I am! "But the angel said unto me, Oh, do not answer him! For God has given him power over those who answer him." Accordingly Jaoel (in some versions Michael), rebukes Satan and orders him to depart. According to Rabbi Eliezer, Abraham built three altars in order to instruct his children and fortify them against apostasy (A. Wunsche, Midr. Rab., p. 181). "Abraham. . . would utter prayers on certain occasions while sacrificing, thus invoking the One God. This was the beginning of Jewish liturgy." (A. Z. Idelsohn, Jewish Liturgy). We are told that in this Abraham was following the example of Adam, who prayed for three days, repeating his prayer three times: "May the words of my mouth be heard! God, do not withdraw thyself from my supplication!. . . Then an angel of the Lord came with a book, and comforted Adam and taught him." (M. bin Gorion, Sagen d. Juden, I, 260f). Sometimes it is Jaoel-Jehovah who as "the heavenly choir-master" leads the prayer-circle and sometimes it is Michael (G. H. Box, Apocal. of Abraham, p. xxv). According to a newly found work temporarily entitled "A Coptic Gnostic Work" the unknown words used in Adam's invocation are composed of the elements lo-i-a and i-oy-el, meaning "God is with us forever and ever," and "Through the power of revelation." (CGW, p. 253). But many versions of these code-words are given, and a variety of interpretations. This reminds us that though none of these writings is to be taken as binding or authentic, taken all together they betray common elements which may safely be imputed to the early Christian Church, the Church of the Apostles.

The early Jewish and Christian sources take the prayer-circle right back to the Pre-existence. Such a circle, under the presidency of three, is formed in all the worlds, according to I Jeu 53, for the special purpose of giving instructions and communicating between the worlds. It was such a circle that met at the creation of this world according to the Serekh Scroll of the Dead Sea Scrolls (Tab. X), and it was from such a circle that God chose his rulers (I Jeu 53, Apocal. Abr. 21-22, cf. Abraham 3:23!)."The order of prayer is in accordance with the emanation of the worlds," since "through prayer we become attached to him who rules the worlds. (G. Weiss, Jnl. Jewish Stud. 9:182f). Thus the prayer-circle has at all times had a cosmic significance. Its proper place is the Temp]e, because "the Temple is the center from which light goes forth and which at the same time draws everything to itself and brings all things together." (Copt. Gnost. Work, 226, Pistis Sophia 65 (134)). The ordinances of the Temple are indeed types and shadows of ordinances in heaven (Heb. 8:5). The newly discovered Temple Scroll [not yet published!) describes the Temple as three exactly superimposed squares with four gates on each side, exactly following the many diagrams of the Apostolic prayer-circle in the Coptic manuscripts. They are like the twelve signs of the heavens, which "circle within their appointed bounds and orbits according to God's established order, which prevails also in other worlds." (I Clement, ch. 20). The cosmic significance of the prayer-circle in the Temple could be illustrated at great length, but it does not need to be, the imagery being perfectly obvious. The prayer-circle is one of the less lavishly documented Early Christian and Jewish traditions and should be taken in conjunction with other rites much more fully described.

THE NAUVOO HOLY ORDER MEETINGS
Comments by Andrew Ehat

The following minutes were transcribed from the 21 November 1845 through 7 January 1846 Journal of Heber Chase Kimball. Until the entry for the 1Oth of December, this journal was recorded in Kimball's handwriting. Except for a part of the 1Oth of December 1845 entry, when the Endowment ceremonies were first performed in the Nauvoo Temple, the remainder of the journal is in the handwriting of William Clayton. Clayton performed two functions in writing the journal: (1) He served during this period as Kimball's scribe like, for example, Willard Richards served as secretary for Joseph Smith's journal; and more importantly, (2), Clayton was the Temple's recorder (as appointed by Joseph Smith and Kimball's journal became the repository of the final draft of the official record of the Endowment proceedings (for the above mentioned period). This record included the extremely valuable minutes of the meetings wherein the endowment ceremonies were elaborated upon by the original Holy Order members. These in-depth explanations of the endowment were given in meetings held on Sundays, when, as was usual to the Latter-day Saints, only worship services would be held. These meetings would have continued until the Saints were forced from Illinois; unfortunately, because of the structural limitations of the attic story of the Nauvoo Temple, no meetings could be held beyond the 28 December 1845 meeting. So these extremely profound and enlightening meetings came to an unexpected and abrupt ending, making this set of four meetings some of the outstanding descriptions of the scope and intent of the endowment available in Latter-day Saint records I have seen.

Note: In 1883, Helen Mar Whitney, daughter of Heber C. Kimball, extracted from her father's journal portions of these proceedings and published them under the title "Scenes in Nauvoo, and Incidents from H. C. Kimball's Journal" in the Woman's Exponent 12: 10, 26, 34, 42. Naturally, since the original minutes contained explicit references to the endowment ceremonies, she deleted passages that were inappropriate for public perusal. I have chosen, therefore, to underline the portions of the 7, 21 and 28 December 1845 meeting minutes that were not published. The 14 December minutes were not published. (1) Thus the 7 December 1845 meeting, the minutes where the least attempt was made to record in-depth the proceedings, were written by Kimball. This, no doubt, was the result of the fact that Kimball had been intimately familiar (unlike Clayton) with the complete unfolding of the Holy Order by Joseph Smith. The other three meetings--on the 14th, 21st, and 28th of December--were final drafts of minutes kept by Clayton with the possible assistance of John D. Lee).

Sunday Decr. 7. I went to the Temple at eleven o clock and remained until dusk had the sacrament for the first time in the Temple

* * * * * * * *

14 December 1845 Sunday

The Twelve and others with our wives met in the attic story of the Temple.

After prayer and singing, Elders Isaac Morley and Charles C. Rich administered, and we partook of the sacrament.

I introduced the subject of establishing rules for preservation of order in the House of the Lord which were agreed to and ordered to be printed.    [in original]

There is too much covetousness in the church, and too much disposition amongst the brethren to seek after power and has been from the beginning, but this feeling is diminishing and the brethren begin to know better. In consequence of such feelings Joseph [Smith] left the people in the dark on many subjects of importance and they still remain in dark. We have got to rid such principles from our hearts.

I referred to the manner in which the corner stones of this Temple were laid as published in the Times and Seasons, and said that the perfect order would have been for the presidency of the stake to lay the first or southeast corner; the high council the second or southwest corner; the bishops the northeast corner; but the high priests laid the southwest corner, though they had no right to do it. I spoke of the brethren making objections to persons being permitted to receive the ordinances, and added, that when objections were made I should feel bound to determine whether the person making the objections was a responsible person, and if he is not, I should do as I pleased about listening to the objections; but if he was a person I should listen to them. To constitute a man responsible he must have the power and ability not only to save himself but save others; but there those who are not capable of saving themselves and will have to be saved by others.

When a man objects to another receiving the ordinances he becomes responsible to answer to God for that man's salvation; and who can tell but if he received the ordinances he would be saved, but if we refuse to give him the means he cannot be saved and we are responsible for it.

There is no law to prevent any man from obtaining all the blessings of the priesthood if he will walk according to the commandments, pay his tithes and seek after salvation, but he may deprive himself of them.

After much profitable instruction we united in prayer. Orson Hyde being mouth.

Meeting adjourned for one week.

H.C., VII, p. 545, 6.

* * * * * * * *

The following brethren and sisters assembled to the Attic Story of the Temple according to appointment viz., Pres Brigham Young & Mary Ann Young, Heber C. Kimball & Vilate Kimball, Parley P Pratt & Mary Ann Pratt, Orson Hyde ---------- [sic]. Orson Pratt & Nancy M. Pratt, George A. Smith & Barsheba W. Smith, Amasa Lyman & Loisa M. Lyman, John Taylor & Leonora A [sic. Taylor, John Smith & Clarissa Smith, Newel K. Whitney & Elizabeth A. Whitney, George Miller & Mary C. Miller, Alpheus Cutler ---------- [sic] Isaac Morley & Lucy Morley, Wm W. Phelps & Sally Phelps, John M. Bernhisel, William Clayton, Joseph C. Kingsbury, Franklin D. Richards, Samuel Bent & Lettice Bent, Agness M. Smith & Mary [Fielding] Smith, Mercy R. Thompson & Tirzah Cahoon, Lucian Woodworth & Phebe Woodworth, Orson Spencer & Catherine C. Spencer, Cornelius P. Lott & Joseph Fielding, Joseph Young.

Soon after 11 o'clock those who were present were ordered by the president to cloth themselves, which being done and seated at 20 minutes after 11 o'clock sang, "Adam Ondi Ahman" etc. After which we bowed before the Lord and president Young offered up prayers. We next sung "Glorious Things of thee are spoken" &c. When bread & wine having been provided by Bishop N.K. Whitney Elders Isaac Morley & Charles C. Rich were called upon to administer the sacrament. They broke the bread which was then blessed by Isaac Morley and passed round by Charles C. Rich, who also blessed the wine and passed it round likewise.

We then sang, "O happy souls who pray &c" and "Come all ye sons of Zion." After which President Young introduced the subject of having rules of order to govern all who come here and to regulate our works, printed. He wished to know the minds of the quorum whether they thought it best. It was voted unanimously that we think it wisdom to have some rules printed for that purpose.

It was also unanimously voted that President Young introduce the rules.

He then explained that he had some rules draughted [drafted] last evening. but they were now at the office to be printed early for tomorrow, he however explained the majority of them explaining also the order he wished carried out, and then took a vote whether this quorum will sustain him this regulation. The vote was unanimous in the affirmative.

He then observed that he should henceforth have all the cloth which was intended for robes, garments, and aprons, brought and either cut or made in this Temple under the superintendance of those who know how to do it right.

There are now scarcely two aprons alike nor two garments cut or marked right, and it is necessary to observe perfect order in this thing and it never can be done unless we take this course.

A conversation then ensued on the distinction of office or power between a president of Seventies, and a member of the High Council or a High Priest. It arose in consequence of some of the High Council having been washed and anointed by some of the presidents of Seventies & inasmuch has [sic] their [sic] had been some considerable differense in the views of the brethren in regard to the difference of authority between the High Council and Seventies, President Young concluded it would be wisdom to have the subject understood at this early stage of business so as to prevent any feelings or dispute arising on the subject hereafter.

He stated that the Seventies are ordained Apostles, and when they go forth into the ministry, they are sent with power to build up the Kingdom in all the world, and consequently they have power to ordain High Priests, and also to ordain and organize a High Council.

Some of the High Priests have been ready to quarrel on the subject, supposing they had power and authority above the Seventies, and some in their zeal for power, have abused and trampled on the feelings of some of the Seventies.

There is too much covetousness in the Church and too much disposition amongst the brethren to seek after power and has been from the beginning, but this feeling is diminishing and the brethren begin to know better. In consequence of such feelings Joseph left the people in the dark on many subjects of importance and they still remain in the dark. We have got to rid such principles from our hearts.

He then referred to the manner in which the cornerstones of this Temple were laid as published in the Times and Seasons, and then stated that the perfect order would have been for the presidency of the Stake to lay the first or South East corner. The High Council the 2nd or South West corner. The Bishops the North West corner and the Priests the North East corner, but added the High Priests laid the South West corner, but they had no right to do it.

He then introduced the subject of the brethren making objections to any person being permitted to receive the ordinances, and added that when the objections were made he should feel bound to determine whether the person making the objections was a responsible person, if he was not he should do as he pleased about listening to the objections, but if he was a responsible person he should then listen to the objections.

To make a man a responsible man he must have the power and ability not only to save himself but to save others, but there are those who are not capable of saving themselves and will have to be saved if they are saved at all by those who are capable of doing it. An objection from such would have no weight on his mind.

When a man objects to another receiving the ordinances he becomes responsible to answer to God for that mans salvation. And who knows but if he received the ordinances he would be saved, but if we refuse to give him the means he cannot be saved and we are responsible for it.

There is no law to prevent any man from obtaining all the blessings of the Priesthood if he will walk according to the commandments, pay his tithes and seeks after salvation, but he may deprive himself of them.

Gospel Mysteries

After much important instruction from the president the signs of the Holy Priesthood were offered up and praying. Elder Orson Hyde being mouth. After which the company were dismissed til next Sunday with strict orders to be here and dressed precisely at 11 o clock.

At 2 o clock P.M. agreeable to appointment nearly all those new members [of the Holy Order] who have received the ordinances the past week assembled in the upper department to receive instructions in regard to the ordinances and their duty to be observed henceforth and forever. At the same hour Prest Young, H.C. Kimball, P. Pratt, O. Pratt, O. Hyde, J. Taylor, G. A. Smith, A. Lyman, N. K. Whitney, G. Miller, W. W. Phelps, appointed W.W. Phelps and P.P. Pratt to instruct the brethren & sisters not waiting which was done and much good instruction given by them. They were especially instructed more fully into the nature and importance of the blessings and powers of the Holy Priesthood which they have received, and it was enjoined upon them not to talk out of doors, but to be wise and prudent in all things.

They were also informed that no one will be admitted into these rooms during the time we are to work except those who are asked to assist, unless they are invited by those who have authority.

At a quarter to 5 they were dismissed by blessing from Er [Elder] Taylor.

At the same time this was going on those who were in president Youngs room were listening to a number of letters which were read together with.the report of the trial of J. B. Backenstos as published in the Iowa Register.

About 5 o clock nearly all the company having left the house President Young and others of the Twelve went down to the lower story of the Temple to council together on the arrangements of the Pulpits.

The following persons remained and slept in the Temple over night, viz. Prest_ Young, A.P. Rockwood, J.D. Lee & David Candland.

According to appointment on Sunday last, a meeting was held in the east room this day of all those who could clothe themselves in the garments of Priesthood -- 75 persons were present, Elder H.C. Kimball presiding. The names of those-present so far as the clerks could ascertain them are as follows -- H.C. Kimball, Vilate Kimball - John Taylor Leonora Taylor-- P.P. Pratt, Mary Ann Pratt Orson Pratt, Sarah M. Pratt--Amasa Lyman Maria Louisa Lyman -- George A. Smith, Bathsheba W. Smith, John Smith, Patriarch, Clarissa Smith Alpheus Cutler, Lois Cutler Reynolds Cahoon, Tirzah Cahoon, George Miller, Clarissa Miller -- C.C. Rich Sarah D. Rich -W.W. Phelps -- Sally Phelps Samuel Bent, Theodore Turley -- F.D. Richards Jane S. Richards.-- David Fullmer, Rhoda Ann Fullmer -- Reuben Miller -- F. Nickerson Simeon Carter--Lydia Carter -- Thomas Grover -- Caroline E. Grover G. W. Harris Lucinda Harris -- William Felshaw, Mary H. Benson & wife John Pack & wife --Cynthia Durfee, Eliza R. Snow-- James Taylor, Joseph L. Heywood & wife William Cahoon & wife and 2 others whose names were not obtained. -----

At 5 min before 11. the song "Glorious things of thee are Spoken" was sung &c --

Father John Smith then made a few remarks, blessed the bread and it (was) handled round by Bishop Geo. Miller -- the wine was blessed by Geo. Miller and handled round by him -- while the wine was passing round, Elder Geo. A. Smith arose and addressed the congregation. He thanked God for the privileges this day enjoyed & spoke of the difficulties under which the church had labored to attain to the blessings we now enjoy. Another thing he thanked God for---Already had more than 500. persons passed through (the ordinances of the endowment), and therefore if half of them should be-like the foolish virgins, and turn away from the truth, the principles of the Holy Priesthood would be beyond the reach of mobs and all the assaults of the adversaries of the Church. -- Order was one of the laws of Heaven there ought to be no whispering here -- no difficulty ought to be mentioned. - whatever transpires here ought not to be mentioned any where else -- When we pray to the Lord we ought to come together clad in proper garments, and when we do so, and unite our hearts and hands together, and act as one mind, the Lord will hear us and will answer our prayers. Our garments should be properly marked and we should understand these marks and we should wear these garments continually, by night & by day, in prison or free and if the devils in hell cut us up, let them cut the garments to pieces also -- if we have the garments upon us at all times we can at any time offer up the signs,(and-tokens) He then related an instance of some children being healed & cured of the whooping cough in one night, through the prayers of himself and Elder Woodruff in Michigan while they were there on a mission. Said that whenever they could get an opportunity they retired to the wilderness or to an upper room -- they did so and offered up the signs, and were always answered. It would be a good thing for us to put on our garments every day and pray to God, and in private circles, when we can do so with safety--

We are now different from what we were before we entered into this quorum Speedy vengeance will now overtake the transgressor -- When a man and his wife are united in feeling, and act in union, I believe they can hold their children by prayer & faith and will not be obliged to give them up to death until they are four score years old-- Sometimes man trifles, destroy the confidence of which each ought to have in the other. this prevent a union of faith & feeling -- The apostasy of Thomas B. Marsh was caused by so small a thing as a pint of strippings -- and his oaths brought the exterminating order which drove us all out of Missouri -- The woman ought to be in subjection to the man -- be careful to guard against loud laughter -against whispering -- levity, talebearing He expressed his unfeigned love for his brethren, and his confidence in their endeavors to keep these rules.--

"The Spirit of God" was then Sung-

Elder Kimball next addressed the meeting-- He concurred in all that had been said-- the observation of these things is is [sic] most essential -About 4 years ago next May nine persons were admitted into the Holy Order 5 are now living -- B. Young -- W. Richards George Miller -- N. K. Whitney & H.C. Kimball two are dead [James Adams and Hyrum Smith], and two are worse than dead [William Law and William Marks]. You have not got all you will have if you are faithful and keep your tongue in your mouth-- You are pronounced clean, but were you pronounced clean from the blood of this generation! NO! Not all of you. Only some few who have deserved it Females were not received when we first received the Holy Order -- Men apostatized, being bed by their wives -- if any such cases occur again no more women will be admitted -- He spoke of the necessity of women being in subjection to their husbands -- I am subject to my God my, wife is in subjection to me and will reverence me in my place and I will make her happy I.do not want her to step forward and dictate to me any more than I dictate to Pres. Young -- In his absence I take his place according to his request, Shall we cease from loud laughter & mirth? will you never slander your brother or sister? I will refer your minds to the covenants you have made by an observance of these things you will have dreams and visions. In the coming week we will take through 100 a day. we want no man to come in here unless he is invited, or on business Let those having cloth to make up send it here and we will make it up, & put it to good use--Women should be appointed to attend to the washing and anointings of the High Priests wives. There is a lot ahead. You are not yet ordained to anything, but we have the clay here it is mellow & we shall soon put it on the wheel. If any brother divulges anything we shall cut him off. We shall not be with you long. We cannot rest day nor night until we put you in possession of the Priesthood -- We want you now to make up garments for yourselves I want my own robe back again -- If we have made you clean every whit, now go to work and make others clean -- We will have a screen put up before the vail and will make an office of my room, and have a stairway leading down from it. No person will be allowed to take people through the vail but those appointed Let women wait upon women & let men wait upon men, then no jealousies will arise. He closed at 5 mi. before one.

Elder P.P. Pratt approved of what had been said & said a few words about the fasion of our robes his own robe, which was like those first used, was not sewed up at the sides, neither was it of more than one breadth.

Elder Kimball showed the right fashion for a leaf, -- Spoke of Elder Richards being protected at Carthage Jail having on the robe, while Joseph & Hyrum and Eld Taylor were shot to pieces said the Twelve would have to leave shortly, for a charge of treason would be brought against them for swearing us to avenge the blood of the anointed ones, and some one would reveal it, and we shall have to put some day between sundown and dark --

George Miller said that when near the camp of Gen Hardin, he was shot at and the Sentinel who was near him was killed, but he escaped unhurt, having on his garments -- He spoke of the design and purpose for which all (the signs-&-tokens) Symbols in the garden were given &c. Paul said he bore in his body the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ [Galatian 6: 17] -- which was a plainly as he dare allude to these things in writing. But the marks Paul alluded to were just such as we now have on our garments -- He spoke of the signs, tokens & penalties, and of the work in general, said it was the work of God, by which he designs to reinstate man into his presence &c.

Elder John Taylor confirmed the saying that Joseph and Hyrum & himself were without their robes in the jail at Carthage whil Doct Richards had his on, but corrected the idea that some had that they had taken them off through fears.

W.W. Phelps said Joseph told him one day about that time, that he had laid aside his garment on account of the hot weather
Elder Kimball said word came to him & to all the Twelve about that time to lay aside their garments and take them to pieces, or cut them up so they could not be found.

The sisters ought not to gather together in schools to pray unless their husbands or some man be with them -- every evening at 5 o clock the High Priests meet for prayer by themselves, clothed in their robes of Priesthood Also the High Council, and the Seventies --

There are from seven to twelve persons who have met together every day to pray ever since Joseph's death -- and this people have been sustained upon this principle Here is brother Turley [he] has been liberated by the power of God and not of man And I have covenanted, and never will rest nor my posterity after me until those men who killed Joseph & Hyrum have been wiped out of the earth.

Elder Cahoon had permission to speak at 20 m. past one. He bore testimony of the importance of those things which had been spoken. He rejoiced in the idea that the things he was taught in the beginning were the same things now taught and remembered -- and it is so because they are eternal things.

The whole assembly were then formed into 2 circles one within the other The signs and tokens were given, the proper attitude for prayer assumed, and Elder Taylor being mouth the whole congregation united with him in prayer to God at 10 minutes past 2. the meeting was dismissed and all unclothed them selves of their robes and another congregation which had been waiting in the ve stibule of the temple was admitted into the east room, not being clothed in the garments of Priesthood.

At 3 o'clock sung Hosanna. Prayer by Er. Orson Hyde -- after which by invitation of Er Kimball who presided (Pres Young not having been at the Temple to day -- and the duty of presiding having devolved upon Er Kimball as the next in succession) Amasa Lyman addressed the assembly.

He said. Doubtless with the most of the present assembly it is the beginning of a new era, in their lives -- they have come to a place the time they never saw before -- They have come to the commencement of a knowledge of things, and it [is] necessary they should be riveted on their minds, -- one important thing to be understood is this, that those portions of the priesthood which you have received are all essential matters -- it is not merely that you may see these things, but it is matter of fact a matter that has to do directly with your salvation -- for which you have talked and labored many years -- it is not for amusement you are brought to receive these things -- but to put you in possession of the means of Salvation and be brot. [brought] into a proper relationship to God -- Hence a man becomes responsible for his own conduct, and that of his wife if he has one It is not designed that the things that are presented to-day should be forgotten tomorrow - but [they should be] remembered and practiced through all [your] coming life -- Hence it [is] a stepstone to approach to the favor of God.

Having descended to the lowest state of degradation -- it is the beginning of a homeward journey. It is like a man lost in a wilderness and the means with which we are invested here are to direct us in our homeward journey. You then see the reason why you are required to put away your vanities, cease to talk of all those things which are not conducive to eternal life.

This is why you are required to be sober, to be honest, that you could ask and receive, knock and it should be opened, and that when you sought for things you would find them. It is putting you in possession of of those keys by which you can ask for things you need and obtain them-- This is the key by which to obtain all glory and felicity of eternal life -- It is the key by which you approach God. No impression which you receive here should be lost. It was to rivet the recollection of the tokens & covenants in your memory like a nail in a sure place, never to be forgotten --

The scenery through which you have passed is actually (putting you in) laying before you a picture or map by which you are to travel through life, and obtain an entrance into the celestial kingdom hereafter. If you are tempted in regard to these things here, you will be tempted when you approach the presence of God hereafter -- You have, by being faithful been brought to this point, by maintaining the things which have been entrusted to you. This is a representation of the Celestial Kingdom. It is not merely for the sake of talking over these things that they are given to you, but for your benefit, and for your triumph over the powers of darkness hereafter.

We want the man to remember that he has covenanted to keep the law of God, and the woman to obey her husband and if you keep your covenants you will not be guilty of transgression. The line (that-is) drawn is for you to maintain your covenants and you will always be found in the path of obedience after that which is virtuous and holy & good, and will never be swallowed up by unhallowed feelings & passions.

If you are found worthy, and maintain your integrity, and do not run away and think you have got all your endowment you will be found worthy after a while [to receive your Second Anointing], which will make you honorable with God. You have not yet been ordained to anything, but will be by and by. You have received these things because of your compliance with all the requisitions with all the requisitions of the law [sic], and if faithful you will receive more.

You have now learned how to pray. You have been taught how to approach and be recognized. This is the principle by which the Church has been kept together, and not the power of Arms. A few individuals have asked for your preservation, and their prayers have been heard, and it is this which has preserved you from being scattered to the four winds.

Those who have learned to approach God and receive these blessings, are they better than you? The difference is, they have been permitted to have these things revealed unto them.

The principles which have been opened to you are the things which ought to occupy your attention all your lives. They are not second to anything; you have the key by which if you are faithful, you will claim on you, and on your posterity, all the blessings of the Priesthood.

Elder H. C. Kimball said, the ideas advanced by brother Lyman are good and true -- We have been taken as if were from the earth, and have travelled until we have entered the Celestial Kingdom. And what is it for, it is to personify Adam. And you discover that our God is like one of us, for he created us in his own image. Every man that ever came upon this earth, or any other earth will take the course we have taken -- another thing, -- it is to bring us to an organization -- and just a quick as-we can get into that order and government we have the Celestial Kingdom here -You have got to honor and reverence your brethren, for if you do not you never can honor God. The man was created, and God gave him dominion over the whole earth, but he saw that he never could multiply, and replenish the earth, without a woman. And he made one [viz., a woman] and gave her to him. He did not make the man for the woman, but the woman for the man, and it is just as unlawful for you to rise up and rebel against your husband, as it would be for man to rebel against God.

When the man came to the vail, God gave the key word to the man, and the man gave it to the woman. But if a man don't use a woman well and take good care of her, God will take her away from him, and give her to another.

Perfect order and consistency makes Heaven but we are now deranged, and the tail has become the head --

We h ave now come to this place, and all your former covenants are of no account. And here is the place where we have to enter into a new covenant, and be sealed, and have it recorded. One reason why we bring our wives with us, is, that they may make a covenant with us to keep these things sacred. You have been anointed to be Kings & Priests. but you have n ot been ordained to it yet.-- and you have got to get it by being faithful You can't sin so cheap now as you could before you came to this order. It is not for you to reproach the Lord's anointed nor to speak evil of him. You have covenanted not to do it.

One other thing. You all want to get garments, and you need not wait to get fine linen or bleached cotton for Your garments.-- Shirting or sheeting will do for garments. The woman can cut them from the cuts on their husbands-- We dont want.-you to come here and take up the time to cut your garments. Go to a good-faithful sister, & secrete yourselves, and make your garments. We have been crowded too much and we have got to stop it, and if you have cloth, and come here to get your cloth cut we shall keep it here to make use of till we get through. We don't want one person that has come into the order the week past, to come into this room during the coming week except those who are to work. If you want any thing let it come in writing.

David Sessions. Gilbert D. Gouldsmith and Elam Ludington volunteered to draw water from the river in barrels for the use of the Temple. Elder George A. Smith made a few remarks. He spoke principally in relation to the importance of keeping sacred the signs & tokens & principles we had received while passing along through the different degrees.---

He was followed by Elder Orson Hyde who said a few words in approbation of what had been said by Elder Smith and followed up in the same matters--

The congregation was dismissed by prayer by Elder John Taylor--and soon departed from the Temple to their respective homes.

28 December 1845 Sunday

About two hundred of the brethren and sisters met at thirty a.m. in the attic story of the Temple, some of the side rooms were filled. and the curtains withdrawn.

After singing and prayer, I addressed the meeting.

The sacrament was administered. Elder Kimball made a few remarks. After prayer the meeting was dismissed by benediction from Elder Orson Hyde.

28 December 1845 (Contd) .

Meeting at half past 10 o'clock this day in the attic story of the Temple for those who could clothe themselves in the garments of Priest hood. A very large congregation was present, the side rooms were some of them filled, the curtain was withdrawn, and the other rooms besides the east room were filled. -- About 200 persons were present, clothed in priestly garments -- Pres. Young addressed the meeting it having been opened by prayer by P. P. Pratt, & singing the songs of Zion, "The morning breaks the shadows flee" & "Come to me" &c. Pres. Young came into the room at 1/4 before 12 N. -- He said he supposed those present were a part of those who had received their endowment, that they were those who desired to be wise and do honor to the cause they have espoused, and bring no reproach upon the character of him who has given us of the things of his Kingdom liberally. The Keys or Signs of the Priesthood are for the purpose of impressing on the mind the order of the creation -In the first place the name of the man is given a new name, Adam signifying the first man--or Eve, the first woman--Adam s name was more ancient than he was--it was the name of a man long before him, who enjoyed the priesthood. The new name should be after some ancient man--Thus with your ancient name,your modern name, and the name that was last given you, you enquire concerning things past present & future--

After his fall, another name was given to Adam, and being full of integrity, and not disposed to follow the woman nor listen to her was permitted to receive the tokens of the priesthood.

I wish you to cease talking about what you see and hear in this place. No man or woman has a right to mention a work of the appearance of this building in the least, nor to give the signs & tokens except when assembled together, according to the order of the Priesthood, which is in an upper room. There are not a dozen persons that can give the signs & token[s] correctly & the reason is that person would run to that vail. one of the most sacred places on the face of the earth, that had not understood the right manner of giving the signs & tokens

Gospel Mysteries

The order and ordinances passed through here prove the principles taught in the Bible -- First men should.love their God supremely Woman will never get back, unless She follows the man back -- if the man had followed the woman he would have followed her down until this time -- Light, liberty & happiness will never shine upon men until they learn these principles -- The love which David & Jonathan had for each other was the love of the priesthood.

God is a personage of tabernacle -- The Son is a personage of tabernacle--The Spirit or Holy Ghost is also a personage, but not a personage of tabernacle, but is a personage of Spirit -- God dwells in eternal burnings puts his hand through the vail & writes on the wall Any person that goes through these ordinances, unless they cleanse their hearts & sanctify themselves & sanctify the Lord, it will damn them When we begin again I shall select those that are worthy -- We shall not be able to have another public meeting here on account of the weight on the floor, it has already caused the walls to crack -- prevents the doors from shutting, and will injure the roof. I see here 200 persons, all clothed in their garments, tomorrow I suppose we cannot find half enough to work with, unless we lay an embargo on your garments, and forbid any of you carrying away your garments. When we began we could dress a company of 30, now we cannot dress 18. For my right arm I would not say that everybody is honest, for I do not believe they are.

The names of those who would volunteer to furnish a suit of garments, to be used by those who were yet to go through the ordinances was then taken, they are as follows, viz W. W. Major, John Lytle, James Harman, Daniel Carter, John D. Lee, L.R. Foster, M.D..Hambleton, Vernon H. Bruce, Sidney A. Knowlton, Charles C. Rich, J. L. Heywood, Elijah Fordham, Norton Jacobs, Daniel Spencer, Joshua S. Holman, Willmer B. Benson, Hiram Spencer, L. O. Littlefield, J.M. Bernhisel Zimri H. Baxter, Andrew Whitlock, William A Sanger, J.S. Hovey, Stephen Winchester Jr, Wm S. Covert, John S Hatfield, Joseph Kain P.G. Sessions - Ezra T. Benson Wm Matthews, Abraham Palmer & wife, 32 in all, each of these agreed to furnish one suit of garments for Temple use--

It was decided that when the High Priests were washed & anointed they should find the oil, and the lights, and the Seventies do the same when they occupied the rooms and the wood is to [be] supplied as follows -- 1000 men, or as many as can be obtained, to go to the islands and cut wood, and teams to go and draw it to the Temple until 1000 cords have been obtained.

Sung the hymn, "Glorious things of thee are Spoken" Prayer by Amasa Lyman asking a blessing on the bread -- Bread passed round by Charles C. Rich and George Miller. Blessing on the wine [was] asked by P.P. Pratt While the wine was passing, sung the hymn "Adam ondi Ahman"

Elder H.C. Kimball cautioned the brethren and sisters against telling that the Twelve were in the Temple -- P. P. Pratt said a few words to the same point.

Elder Kimball moved that no man tell his wife what he had seen Pres Young said "all that are in favor of this signify it by holding your tongues when you go away from here." P.P. Pratt.--"Contrary by the same sign."

Elder Kimball continued his remarks, alluded to the stories in circulation that several persons had been killed on their way through the ordinances, and that men and women were stripped naked here. Joseph said that for men and women to hold their tongues was their Salvation.

A circle was formed composed of about 20 persons, most of whom had received the ordinances, and been admitted to the first quorum at a previous time They united in prayer Elder John Taylor being mouth A hymn was sung, being led by Goddard, Kay & Cahoon -- notice was given that no more meetings would be held in the Attic Story, for the present, and the congregation dismissed after prayer by Eld. Orson Hyde---

Nauvoo After the Exodus
Comments by Andy Ehat 18 April 1978

Though the body of the Church, with the Quorum of Twelve Apostles leading the way, were leaving Nauvoo, the site of their Temple, some selected men were to stay behind to supervise the continued construction of the temple. The saints were obligated to finish the temple as they were commanded of the Lord in revelation to Joseph Smith and so they pressed forward knowing full well that already it had served its purpose.

Some brethren having been called on missions to England, notably Orson Hyde of the Quorum of the Twelve, were among those selected to remain. Samuel W. Richards was one of those who remained. Born in Massachussetts in 1824 and baptized in 1838, he came to Nauvoo in November of 1843. On January of 1844, before the death of Joseph and Hyrum he was ordained a seventy. In his role as a seventy, he was called to serve his mission. But before departing he helped turn Nauvoo into a beautiful ghost town---and that too with fireworks!

When Richards received his endowment, he learned as all initiares learned, the "true order of prayer." And while the body of the Church remained, the separate quorums would meet daily near dusk to pray "after the order of the Priesthood." This same pattern was continued when as Samuel records in his journal, February 12th, 1846, a week after the exodus: "[we] commenced a regular meeting with the brethren in the temple for prayers, to continue so long as we stayed in Nauvoo. The prayer meeting would begin near the hour of sunset. Samuel was in the first Quorum for prayer which had fifteen participants. This "quorum regulated the order of the various prayer meetings that would be held in the temple since Orson Hyde and Joseph Young would be members of this Quorum and would be responsible for supervising all prayer quorums.

The first of March is when Samuel records for the first time some of the spiritual blessings that attended faithful participation in the prayer circle. "...at sundown [I went] to the temple, where we spent the evening in holy conversation, administering the sacrament, and speaking in other tongues, enjoying the blessings of the Gospel." Two weeks later druing the special Sunday evening prayer circle when the Sacrament was administered, Samuel recorded: "In the evening [I] was with the Quorum in the temple until 12 o'clock. The sacrament was administered and great blessing were enjoyed: tongues, prophesying; the angels attended us, [and] their glory filled the house insomuch that many witnessed [the light of the temple] throughout the city and testified thereof, that it was the brightness of fire."

The following Wednesday evening similar spiritual blessings were poured out by the spirit of the Lord. For he records: [In the] evening with the Quorum in the temple. I was presiding. It was testified during the meeting that there had not been so great faith manifested at any time before. It was testified by many outside the temple that the temple was filled with exceeding bright light. [During the meeting] the gift of tongues and prophecy was much enjoyed."

However, these blessings were not to be gained without obedience to the order of prayer. During the next evening's circle meeting this is well illustrated. "I carried a ticket to Uncle Levi [Richards] so he could had admitance into the prayer quorum with us. In the evening he was present with us for the first time. [However], the evening resulted in an unpleasant manner to the company, [for] a censuring spirit arose which took several hours to quell, and for a time [this] seemed as if to destroy the [unity oi] the Quorum. But through faith and perseverance it was overcome, and union restored.

On Sunday the 22nd of March, Samuel gives the names of the Quorum members: Zebedee Coltrin, Phineas Richards, Levi Richards, Graham Coltrin, John Coltrin, F.D. Richards, Abel Lamb, Benjamin Brown, Wandle Mace, Thomas B. Richards, Charles Patten, Curtis E. Bolton, William Anderson, John Loveless and, of course, himself. "Dressing ourselves in the order of the Priesthood we called upon the Lord, his spirit attended us, and the visions of heaven were opened to our view. I was, as it were, lost to myself. I beheld the earth reel to and fro, and was moved out of its place. Men fell to the earth and their life departed from them. Great was the scene of destruction upon all the face of the land. At the close of the vision, there appeared a great company of saints coming from the west as I stood with my back to the north, and they were passing to the east, and the scripture was fulfilled which saith, 'Come see the desolation which the Lord hath made in the earth.' The company of saints, who had been hid as it were from the earth, walked in the light for the glory of the Lord was round about them, while darkness was upon the face of the earth. I behold other things which were glorious while the power of God rested down upon me. Others also beheld angels and the glory of God. Having had this season of enjoyment, [their faith no doubt peaking], it was proposed by Curtis E. Bolton that we pray for the prophet Joseph to come into our midst and converse with us. Some of the quorum members consented so to do, but the idea was first objected to as being unwise by Brother Levi Richards. He received a reprimand by way of hint to leave the room by Brother Bolton [for] not being agreed with the Quorum. [However], the matter was taken up, and after some remarks from several of the brethren, it was decided by the president, that we had no right to pray for that thing, and all was again right. The sacrament was administered and our joy increased by the gift of tongues and prophecy by which great things were spoken and made know to us."

During the sunday meeting "at the stand" 5 April, Joseph Young said: "pray for our enemies for Paul said, the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual."

[pps 10-12 all on vengeance and prayer].

During the April 12th Sunday evening prayer circle "several dreams were told, and the interpretations given in tongues, where some of the principles of the resurrection were explained and much good instruction given."

On the 27th of April Samuel read a couple of letters from the Camp where the Twelve and rest of the church were based and found that he was directed to leave immediately for England. "That orders had been received from the camp, for those who had been appointed several months before, to take their mission immediately to England, Bro Franklin [D. Richards] with myself being the first two on the list. In the afternoon met in the attic story of the temple..."

(2) Consider the remarks made by President Brigham Young at the Nauvoo Temple on December 28, 1845 on how the names and signs relate to obtaining knowledge of things past, present and future. In the Inspired Version of Genesis, chapter 14, the Lord states that all those who come up to this high order of the priesthood then have power to stand in the presence of God.

(3) Evidence of this can readily be seen in 1845 and 1846 during the Nauvoo Temple days, when those who had been endowed as well as those who had received their fulness blessings, all participated in prayer circles.

(OldT:Proverbs 30:18)

|v21 And the little chambers thereof were three on this side and three on that side; and the posts thereof and the arches thereof were after the measure of the first gate: the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.
(OldT:Ezekiel 40:21)

|v48 And he brought me to the porch of the house, and measured each post of the porch, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and the breadth of the gate was three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side.
(OldT:Ezekiel 40:48)

|v6 And the side chambers were three, one over another, and thirty in order; and they entered into the wall which was of the house for the side chambers round about, that they might have hold, but they had not hold in the wall of the house.

(OldT:Ezekiel 41:6)

|v16 The door posts, and the narrow windows, and the galleries round about on their three stories, over against the door, cieled with wood round about, and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows were covered;
(OldT:Ezekiel 41:16)
|v22 The altar of wood was three cubits high, and the length thereof two cubits; and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the walls thereof, were of wood: and he said unto me, This is the table that is before the LORD.
(OldT:Ezekiel 41:22)

|v3 Over against the twenty cubits which were for the inner court, and over against the pavement which was for the utter court, was gallery against gallery in three stories.
(OldT:Ezekiel 42:3)

|v6 For they were in three stories, but had not pillars as the pillars of the courts: therefore the building was straitened more than the lowest and the middlemost from the ground.
(OldT:Ezekiel 42:6)

|v31 And the gates of the city shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel: three gates northward; one gate of Reuben, one gate of Judah, one gate of Levi.
(OldT:Ezekiel 48:31)

|v32 And at the east side four thousand and five hundred: and three gates; and one gate of Joseph, one gate of Benjamin, one gate of Dan.
(OldT:Ezekiel 48:32)

|v33 And at the south side four thousand and five hundred measures: and three gates; one gate of Simeon, one gate of Issachar, one gate of Zebulun.
(OldT:Ezekiel 48:33)

|v34 At the west side four thousand and five hundred, with their three gates; one gate of Gad, one gate of Asher, one gate of Naphtali.
(OldT:Ezekiel 48:34)

|v5 And the king appointed them a daily provision of the king's meat, and of the wine which he drank: so nourishing them three years, that at the end thereof they might stand before the king.
(OldT:Daniel 1:5) |v23 And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.
(OldT:Daniel 3:23)

|v24 Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonied, and rose up in haste, and spake, and said unto his counsellers, Did not we cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered and said unto the king, True, O king.
(OldT:Daniel 3:24)

|v2 And over these three presidents; of whom Daniel was first: that the princes might give accounts unto them, and the king should have no damage.
(OldT:Daniel 6:2)

|v10 Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime.
(OldT:Daniel 6:10)

|v13 Then answered they and said before the king, That Daniel, which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not thee, O king, nor the decree that thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times a day.
(OldT:Daniel 6:13)

|v7 Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:
(NewT:Matthew 7:7)

|v8 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.
(NewT:Matthew 7:8)

|v16 But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.
(NewT:Matthew 18:16)

|v20 For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.
(NewT:Matthew 18:20)

|v2 I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat:
(NewT:Mark 8:2)

|v9 And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
(NewT:Luke 11:9)

|v10 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.
(NewT:Luke 11:10)

|v25 When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are:
(NewT:Luke 13:25)

|v9 And he was three days without sight, and neither did eat nor drink.
(NewT:Acts 9:9)

|v19 While Peter thought on the vision, the Spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee.
(NewT:Acts 10:19)

|v10 And this was done three times: and all were drawn up again into heaven.
(NewT:Acts 11:10)

|v11 And, behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the house where I was, sent from Caesarea unto me.
(NewT:Acts 11:11)

|v1 This is the third time I am coming to you. In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established.
(NewT:2 Corinthians 13:1)

|v7 For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one.
(NewT:1 John 5:7)

|v8 And there are three that bear witness in earth, the spirit, and the water, and the blood: and these three agree in one.
(NewT:1 John 5:8)

|v20 Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.
(NewT:Revelation 3:20)

|v13 And I beheld, and heard an angel flying through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice, Woe, woe, woe, to the inhabiters of the earth by reason of the other voices of the trumpet of the three angels, which are yet to sound!
(NewT:Revelation 8:13)

|v13 On the east three gates; on the north three gates; on the south three gates; and on the west three gates.
(NewT:Revelation 21:13)

|v7 In addition to Joseph Smith, the Lord provided for eleven others to see the gold plates for themselves and to be special witnesses of the truth and divinity of the Book of Mormon. Their written testimonies are included herewith as "The Testimony of Three Witnesses" and "The Testimony of Eight Witnesses."
(BofM:Introduction 2:7)

|v42 And whoso knocketh, to him will he open; and the wise, and the learned, and they that are rich, who are puffed up because of their learning, and their wisdom, and their riches--yea, they are they whom he despiseth; and save they shall cast these things away, and consider themselves fools before God, and come down in the depths of humility, he will not open unto them.
(BofM:2 Nephi 9:42)

|v3 And my brother, Jacob, also has seen him as I have seen him; wherefore, I will send their words forth unto my children to prove unto them that my words are true. Wherefore, by the words of three, God hath said, I will establish my word. Nevertheless, God sendeth more witnesses, and he proveth all his words.
(BofM:2 Nephi 11:3)

|v12 Wherefore, at that day when the book shall be delivered unto the man of whom I have spoken, the book shall be hid from the eyes of the world, that the eyes of none shall behold it save it be that three witnesses shall behold it, by the power of God, besides him to whom the book shall be delivered; and they shall testify to the truth of the book and the things therein.
(BofM:2 Nephi 27:12)

|v4 Wherefore, now after I have spoken these words, if ye cannot understand them it will be because ye ask not, neither do ye knock; wherefore, ye are not brought into the light, but must perish in the dark.

(BofM:2 Nephi 32:4)

|v10 And it came to pass that I fell to the earth; and it was for the space of three days and three nights that I could not open my mouth, neither had I the use of my limbs.
(BofM:Alma 36:10)

|v16 And now, for three days and for three nights was I racked, even with the pains of a damned soul.
(BofM:Alma 36:16)

|v8 And it came to pass that I was three days and three nights in the most bitter pain and anguish of soul; and never, until I did cry out unto the Lord Jesus Christ for mercy, did I receive a remission of my sins. But behold, I did cry unto him and I did find peace to my soul.
(BofM:Alma 38:8)

|v20 But behold, as I said unto you concerning another sign, a sign of his death, behold, in that day that he shall suffer death the sun shall be darkened and refuse to give his light unto you; and also the moon and the stars; and there shall be no light upon the face of this land, even from the time that he shall suffer death, for the space of three days, to the time that he shall rise again from the dead.
(BofM:Helaman 14:20)

|v27 And he said unto me that while the thunder and the lightning lasted, and the tempest, that these things should be, and that darkness should cover the face of the whole earth for the space of three days.
(BofM:Helaman 14:27)

|v3 And the people began to look with great earnestness for the sign which had been given by the prophet Samuel, the Lamanite, yea, for the time that there should be darkness for the space of three days over the face of the land.
(BofM:3 Nephi 8:3)

|v19 And it came to pass that when the thunderings, and the lightnings, and the storm, and the tempest, and the quakings of the earth did cease--for behold, they did last for about the space of three hours; and it was said by some that the time was greater; nevertheless, all these great and terrible things were done in about the space of three hours--and then behold, there was darkness upon the face of the land.
(BofM:3 Nephi 8:19)

|v23 And it came to pass that it did last for the space of three days that there was no light seen; and there was great mourning and howling and weeping among all the people continually; yea, great were the groanings of the people, because of the darkness and the great destruction which had come upon them.
(BofM:3 Nephi 8:23)

|v9 And it came to pass that thus did the three days pass away. And it was in the morning, and the darkness dispersed from off the face of the land, and the earth did cease to tremble, and the rocks did cease to rend, and the dreadful groanings did cease, and all the tumultuous noises did pass away.
(BofM:3 Nephi 10:9)

|v7 Ask, and it shall be given unto you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
(BofM:3 Nephi 14:7)

|v8 For every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened.
(BofM:3 Nephi 14:8)

|v13 Therefore, I would that ye should behold that the Lord truly did teach the people, for the space of three days; and after that he did show himself unto them oft, and did break bread oft, and bless it, and give it unto them.
(BofM:3 Nephi 26:13)

|v29 Therefore, ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you; for he that asketh, receiveth; and unto him that knocketh, it shall be opened.
(BofM:3 Nephi 27:29)

|v29 Therefore, ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you; for he that asketh, receiveth; and unto him that knocketh, it shall be opened.
(BofM:3 Nephi 27:29)

|v2 And they all spake, save it were three, saying: We desire that after we have lived unto the age of man, that our ministry, wherein thou hast called us, may have an end, that we may speedily come unto thee in thy kingdom.
(BofM:3 Nephi 28:2)

|v4 And when he had spoken unto them, he turned himself unto the three, and said unto them: What will ye that I should do unto you, when I am gone unto the Father?
(BofM:3 Nephi 28:4)
|v12 And it came to pass that when Jesus had spoken these words, he touched every one of them with his finger save it were the three who were to tarry, and then he departed.
(BofM:3 Nephi 28:12)

|v36 And now behold, as I spake concerning those whom the Lord hath chosen, yea, even three who were caught up into the heavens, that I knew not whether they were cleansed from mortality to immortality--
(BofM:3 Nephi 28:36)

|v14 And it came to pass that the seventy and first year passed away, and also the seventy and second year, yea, and in fine, till the seventy and ninth year had passed away; yea, even an hundred years had passed away, and the disciples of Jesus, whom he had chosen, had all gone to the paradise of God, save it were the three who should tarry; and there were other disciples ordained in their stead; and also many of that generation had passed away.
(BofM:4 Nephi 1:14)

|v37 Therefore the true believers in Christ, and the true worshipers of Christ, (among whom were the three disciples of Jesus who should tarry) were called Nephites, and Jacobites, and Josephites, and Zoramites.
(BofM:4 Nephi 1:37)

|v4 And in the mouth of three witnesses shall these things be established; and the testimony of three, and this work, in the which shall be shown forth the power of God and also his word, of which the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost bear record--and all this shall stand as a testimony against the world at the last day.
(BofM:Ether 5:4)

|v7 Ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. Amen.
(D&C: Section 4:7)

|v11 And in addition to your testimony, the testimony of three of my servants, whom I shall call and ordain, unto whom I will show these things, and they shall go forth with my words that are given through you.
(D&C: Section 5:11)

|v5 Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 6:5)

|v28 And now, behold, I give unto you, and also unto my servant Joseph, the keys of this gift, which shall bring to light this ministry; and in the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established.
(D&C: Section 6:28)

|v32 Verily, verily, I say unto you, as I said unto my disciples, where two or three are gathered together in my name, as touching one thing, behold, there will I be in the midst of them--even so am I in the midst of you.
(D&C: Section 6:32)

|v5 Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 11:5)

|v5 Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 12:5)

|v5 Therefore, if you will ask of me you shall receive; if you will knock it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 14:5)

|v26 Behold, I say unto you, go forth as I have commanded you; repent of all your sins; ask and ye shall receive; knock and it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 49:26)

|v9 Lay your hands upon the sick, and they shall recover. Return not till I, the Lord, shall send you. Be patient in affliction. Ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 66:9) |v25 Let them carry up unto the bishop a certificate from three elders of the church, or a certificate from the bishop;
(D&C: Section 72:25)

|v27 Let them ask and they shall receive, knock and it shall be opened unto them, and be made known from on high, even by the Comforter, whither they shall go.
(D&C: Section 75:27)

|v63 Draw near unto me and I will draw near unto you; seek me diligently and ye shall find me; ask, and ye shall receive; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
(D&C: Section 88:63)

|v14 Therefore, let it be built after the manner which I shall show unto three of you, whom ye shall appoint and ordain unto this power.

Gospel Mysteries

(D&C: Section 95:14)

|v1 This day a general council of twenty-four high priests assembled at the house of Joseph Smith, Jun., by revelation, and proceeded to organize the high council of the church of Christ, which was to consist of twelve high priests, and one or three presidents as the case might require.
(D&C: Section 102:1)

|v22 Of the Melchizedek Priesthood, three Presiding High Priests, chosen by the body, appointed and ordained to that office, and upheld by the confidence, faith, and prayer of the church, form a quorum of the Presidency of the Church.
(D&C: Section 107:22)

|v29 Unless this is the case, their decisions are not entitled to the same blessings which the decisions of a quorum of three presidents were anciently, who were ordained after the order of Melchizedek, and were righteous and holy men.
(D&C: Section 107:29)

|v3 Now, in relation to this matter, it would be very difficult for one recorder to be present at all times, and to do all the business. To obviate this difficulty, there can be a recorder appointed in each ward of the city, who is well qualified for taking accurate minutes; and let him be very particular and precise in taking the whole proceedings, certifying in his record that he saw with his eyes, and heard with his ears, giving the date, and names, and so forth, and the history of the whole transaction; naming also some three individuals that are present, if there be any present, who can at any time when called upon certify to the same, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.
(D&C: Section 128:3)

|v20 And again, what do we hear? Glad tidings from Cumorah! Moroni, an angel from heaven, declaring the fulfilment of the prophets--the book to be revealed. A voice of the Lord in the wilderness of Fayette, Seneca county, declaring the three witnesses to bear record of the book! The voice of Michael on the banks of the Susquehanna, detecting the devil when he appeared as an angel of light! The voice of Peter, James, and John in the wilderness between Harmony, Susquehanna county, and Colesville, Broome county, on the Susquehanna river, declaring themselves as possessing the keys of the kingdom, and of the dispensation of the fulness of times!
(D&C: Section 128:20)

|v9 These are three grand keys whereby you may know whether any administration is from God.
(D&C: Section 129:9)

|v1 In the celestial glory there are three heavens or degrees;

KNOWLEDGE ESSENTIAL TO SALVATION
by Richard A. Ware

Gospel Mysteries

Knowledge and ignorance. Two little words, yet our salvation depends upon where we stand in relation to them. The Prophet Joseph Smith said that a "man is saved no faster than he gets knowledge..." and "every one that does not obtain knowledge sufficient to be saved will be condemned" (TPJS p. 297). Again he said: "As far as we degenerate from God, we descend to the devil and lose knowledge, and without knowledge we cannot be saved (TPJS, p. 217)."

Elder Bruce R. McConkie commented that "man's hope of gaining salvation is in direct proportion to his knowledge of God and the laws of salvation. No man can be saved in ignorance of Jesus Christ and the laws of the gospel. Man is saved no faster than he gains knowledge of God and the saving truths recorded in the scriptures" (DNTC 1:200-201).

The Most Important Knowledge

The knowledge which is most important is the knowledge which will help us know God and take us back into his presence (TPJS, pp. 68, 324-325). The apostle John said that life eternal is gained by our knowing the only true God and his Son Jesus Christ (John 17:3). Marion G. Romney stated that "this knowledge of 'the only true God, and Jesus Christ' (John 17:3) is the most important knowledge in the universe. It is the knowledge without which the Prophet Joseph Smith said no man could be saved. The lack of it is the ignorance referred to in the revelation wherein it is written: 'It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance'" (D&C 131:6; Ensign/November, 1981, p. 14).

In discussing this important theme of knowing God, Joseph explained "that the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients, arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker and is caught up to dwell with Him" (TPJS, p. 51). Although this cannot be done in a moment, it can be done. But man must be "instructed in the government and laws of that [celestial] kingdom by proper degrees, until his mind is capable in some measure of comprehending the propriety, justice, equality, and consistency of the same....[because] it is necessary for men to receive an understanding concerning the laws of the heavenly kingdom, before they are permitted to enter it", meaning the celestial glory (Ibid).

Blessings For Those Who Ask

Those who obtain a knowledge of God and his laws, "begin to know to know how to approach him, and how to ask so as to receive an answer [to their prayers]. When we understand the character of God, and know how to come to him, he begins to unfold the heavens to us, and to tell us all about it" (TPJS p. 350). "If thou shalt ask, thou shalt receive revelation upon revelation, knowledge upon knowledge, that thou mayest know the mysteries and peaceable things---that which bringeth joy, that which bringeth life eternal" (D&C 42:61). Any saint who has sipped from the fountain of revealed knowledge desires to have the heavens unfolded to him.

All those who select not to "obtain knowledge sufficient to be saved will be condemned, for if he does not get knowledge, he will be brought into captivity by some evil power in the other world, as evil spirits will have more knowledge, and consequently more power than many men who are on the earth. Hence it needs revelation to assist us, and give us knowledge of the things of God" (TPJS p. 217).

Ignorance A Problem

"It is not to be wondered at that men should be ignorant in a great measure, of the principles of salvation, and more especially of the...blessings of the gift of the Holy Ghost.  It is often the case that young members of this Church for want of better information, carry along with them their old notions of things, and sometimes fall in egregious errors" (TPJS p. 242). "Ignorance, superstition and bigotry...is oftentimes in the way of the prosperity of this Church" (TPJS p. 138). It takes knowledge to counter this problem. In fact, "a man of God should be endowed with wisdom, knowledge, and understanding, in order to teach and lead the people of God" (TPJS p. 311).

Sadly, "there are a great many wise men and women too in our midst who are too wise to be taught; therefore they must die in their ignorance, and in the resurrection they will find their mistake" (TPJS p. 309). "If we get puffed up by thinking that we have much knowledge, we are apt to get a contentious spirit, and correct knowledge is necessary to cast out that spirit" (TPJS p. 287).

Sources of Knowledge

Nephi explained that there are three channels of gaining correct knowledge, and said we must exercise our own agency in seeking understanding from those sources. First, we must feast upon the words of Christ for they will tell us all things what we should do. Second, we must receive the Holy Ghost because he will tell us all things that we should do. Finally, after doing these things, the Savior himself will appear and tell us all the things that we should do (2 Nephi 32:3-6; TPJS pp. 150-151).
And as we learn the mind and will of God, we must then keep those laws and commandments and be faithful to him. By so doing we gain greater knowledge and understanding until we come unto a fulness of light and knowledge (D&C 50:24; 93:28; TPJS p. 247). Obedience to knowledge gained is essential to gaining more, for "we cannot keep all the commandments without first knowing them, and we cannot expect to know all, or more than we now know unless we comply with or keep those we have already received" (TPJS p. 256). We are blessed to live in a day in which we can receive knowledge from four standard works, not just one. We also have the writings of prophets and apostles, from Joseph Smith to the present day, which in many cases clarify the scriptures for us. When we search diligently these writings and ponder the meaning in our hearts, there will open up an understanding that will eclipse anything received before. The writings of the brethren, the scriptures and personal revelation will all be in harmony in an expanded view of things.
Some believe that they only need the Holy Ghost, or only the scriptures, or only the living prophets. But the Lord's counsel was quite different. He told his early day leaders and missionaries to study the gospel before they went forth to proclaim the message. "Seek not to declare my word, but first seek to obtain my word, and then shall your tongue be loosed; then, if you desire, you shall have my Spirit and my word, yea, the power of God unto the convincing of men" (D&C 11:21-22). Joseph told the saints to "search the scriptures....search the revelations of God; study the prophecies, and rejoice that God grants unto the world Seers and Prophets" (TPJS p. 12). All three sources of knowledge are vital to our growth in light and truth. If the Lord has already revealed the answer to our gospel questions, then the burden is upon us to search the revelations to find the answers to our questions.

We Should Seek Knowledge

Knowledge is not something that church members should be afraid of. Joseph once said "I never heard of a man being damned for believing too much; but they are damned for unbelief" (TPJS p. 374). The more knowledge a person gains, the better off he is, because "whatever principle of intelligence we attain unto in this life, it will rise with him in the resurrection. And if a person gains more knowledge and intelligence in this life through his diligence and obedience than another, he will have so much the advantage in the world to come" (D&C 130:18-19).
The information contained in this newsletter is designed to further enhance one's efforts of gospel study. Future issues will deal directly with apostolic writings that clarify and give information on different gospel topics.

Sacrament Meeting Talk By: Richard A Ware
30 May 1982
Home Centered Gospel Living

The home is the most important organization in time and in eternity. It is through the home---the family organization---that an individual is able to achieve exaltation and eternal life. There will be no godhood outside of the eternal family unit.

Marriage is the door that unlocks and makes available to man the ultimate design of God for all His children. God was once a man as we are now and is now an exalted man who lives in the family order. We are his spirit children. And implicit in the Christian verity that all men are the spirit children of an Eternal Father is the usually unspoken truth that they are also the offspring of an Eternal Mother. An exalted and glorified Man of Holiness could not be a Father unless a woman of like glory, perfection, and holiness was associated with him as a Mother. The doctrine that there is a Mother in Heaven was affirmed in plainness by the First Presidency of the Church when, in speaking of the pre-existence and the origin of man, that "man, as a spirit, was begotten and born of heavenly parents, and reared to maturity in the eternal mansions of the Father," that man is the "offspring of celestial parentage," and that "all men and women are in the similitude of the universal Father and Mother, and are literally the sons and daughters of Deity." (Man: His Origin & Destiny, pp 348-355)

The marriages which are formed here on earth then become prototypes of how they will be in heaven. Adam and Eve our first parents were married before the fall of this earth. Their marriage was an eternal marriage, and it was not intended that it should ever end. And if we will go to the house of the Lord and be sealed for time and all eternity, and if we will live up to the covenants which we make there, we will also have the blessing of a marriage that endures beyond the grave, and the same blessings of an endless posterity that were pronounced upon Abraham and Sarah, as well as all the other blessings which belong to the Abrahamic covenant. As we school ourselves in the mortal family relationships, we thereby acquire the attributes of godliness that, when fully perfected, will enable us to have eternal family units of our own hereafter.

Now, if we were to talk about the importance of living the gospel in the home without understanding the important eternal consequences of doing so, or not doing so, we would become weary and possibly give up, for where there is no vision the people perish. Although Adam offered sacrifice for a time being without understanding why, the time did come when it was all made clear to his mind. And the Lord in this day has made clear to us the plan of redemption which each person must follow if they are to return to Father's presence. Let's discuss this plan then as it relates to us. First, the ultimate end is to eventually become as our Father in heaven. But he has a resurrected, glorified body of flesh and bones, and in the pre-earth life we were only spirits. For that reason we have come to earth to gain a temporal body that will eventually be resurrected as he is. But he is glorified and we are not. For that reason also we have come to earth---to live our lives in such a manner that we will be enabled to return to Father clean and pure and thereby be enabled to be glorified with celestial glory which is the highest of the three glories possible. Our Father in heaven also lives within the eternal family unit, and to be like him we must also obtain the promise of an eternal family unit through the ordinances of the temple. If we neglect this very important temple work we do so at the peril of our own exaltation.

Out of the three things mentioned (1) that we must obtain a resurrected body; (2) that we must live a clean and pure life to be worthy of a celestial glory; and (3) that we must be married in the temple, it appears that the second one will be the deciding factor as to whether we become like God. Let us discuss for a moment, then, some of the things that we can do to live the gospel in the home.
We have heard many times the counsel of the Lord to ask, seek and knock. This formula seems to be the key by which individuals and families can obtain the promises of eternal life. Ask, and ye shall receive. True it is that a veil has been placed over our minds that we no longer remember. We have a real need therefore to obtain light and knowledge. The Lord has placed within our reach the scriptures which are full of knowledge and light. Do you think the sealed portion of the gold plates will ever be given if we treat lightly the scriptures which we have. Do you think the ten tribes will give us their records if we do not read and study what we already have. In our hearts we pray to the Lord to help us gain a knowledge and an understanding of the gospel and the plan of salvation and the part which we play in that plan, and almost before we have even asked we have received the word of the Lord. And not only in the Bible, but in 3 other sacred standard works. And yet the Lord did not stop there. He blessed us with living prophets to teach us the way of light and knowledge, and through the whisperings of the spirit to our soul these things which we learn are confirmed unto us, and we thereby gain light and knowledge. In the time allotted to me today I could not even begin to tell you all the things that must or could be done in living the gospel at home. But you can take the coming days and weeks and study for yourself the words of the prophets and find out what the Lord wants you to do and how he wants you to live your life.
Next he tells us to seek and we shall find. In section 101 of the D&C the Lord has commanded us to "seek the face of the Lord always, that in patience ye may possess your souls, and ye shall have eternal life." But if we are to ever see the face of the Lord we must be clean and pure. The Lord promised, blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God. And cleanliness and purity can only come about through obedience to the laws which God has revealed unto us. If I were to live the gospel in the home then, in such a way that would make me clean and pure from the sins of this world, I would read the scriptures daily and heed the words of the living prophets. I would gather my family around me and we would study to know the mind and will of the Lord as it pertains to us. I would also pay a full tithing, give a generous fast offering, keep the word of wisdom, hold my family home evenings regularly, shy away from magazines, books, TV shows or associations of people that are unclean and which defile the sanctity of the body. I would express my love to my wife and children often, I would teach the precepts of the gospel by example. I would not criticize, find fault with our leaders or gossip. I would attend the temple as often as possible to renew my spirit and elevate my mind and give service to those who have passed beyond. I would, with my family, work on our four generations and submit the work for temple ordinances. I would dress modestly whether at home or in the swimming pool and my speech would be clean. For "who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully."
Finally we can knock through prayer. There should always be a time set aside early in the morning and again at the end of the day when we offer up our prayers to the Lord, as individuals, and as families. Joseph Smith was known to gather his family around him and pray three times daily, and counseled the saints to become acquainted with those who prayed 3 times a day, as Daniel did. President Kimball said that when Enos went into the woods to pray that "he was searching his soul, reaching, knocking, asking, pleading. He was being born again. He would have lived all his life in a weed patch, but now he sought a watered garden." The example we set in our homes in regards to prayer will eternally affect our children for all time.

Gospel living should first center in our lives. We need to hunger and thirst after righteousness. Next it should center in our homes, and our home should be the most sacred place on earth next to the temple. To help the family gain exaltation as a unit, the church and all of its organizations have been organized to help see that individuals and families succeed in this quest to become as God. Hugh B. Brown said the church was the scaffolding around the home (the building) and that its main function was to build the building to perfection.
If we truly desire to be righteous, if we really want to live the gospel principles in our lives, if we really do want to qualify ourselves for exaltation in the kingdom of heaven, as individuals and as families, then we must ASK, and if we do so we shall receive; we must SEEK, and if we do so we shall find; and we must KNOCK, and if we do the blessings of heaven will be opened upon our homes. Each one of us must learn what the Lord expects of us as individuals and within the family context. And that will only come to us as we put forth the effort on our part to learn how we can live the gospel principles---the principles of truth and righteousness---within our home.

TALK GIVEN AT THE LOUISVILLE KENTUCKY STAKE CONFERENCE
Sunday, 19 October 1986
by Richard A. Ware

I. Introduction

Brethren and sisters, it is a great pleasure for me to be here with you today. I pray the spirit of the Lord to be with me as I share with you some aspects of Church welfare that are not often talked about.
President Spencer W. Kimball said:

> The vision of what we are about and what should come of our labors must be kept uppermost in our minds as we learn and do our duty in the present implementation of welfare service. This applies equally to all Church activities.
> For many years we have been taught that one important end result of our labors, hopes, and aspirations in this work is the building of a Latter-day Zion, a Zion characterized by love, harmony, and peace--a Zion in which the Lord's children are as one.
> This day of power and redemption will come; it is our destiny to help bring it about! Doesn't it motivate you to lengthen your stride and quicken your pace as you do your part in the great sanctifying work of the kingdom? It does me. It causes me to rejoice over the many opportunities for service and sacrifice afforded me and my family as we seek to do our part in establishing Zion.

The length of time required to accomplish all things pertaining to Zion is strictly up to us and how we live, for creating Zion commences in the heart of each person.
Zion can be built up only among those who are pure in heart, not a people torn by covetousness or greed, but a pure and selfless people. (The Ensign/May 1978, pp. 79-80)

The Prophet Joseph Smith said:

"The building up of Zion is a cause that has interested the people of God in every age; it is a theme upon which prophets, priests and kings have dwelt with peculiar delight; they have looked forward with joyful anticipation to the day in which we live; and fired with heavenly and joyful anticipations they have sung and written and prophesied of this our day; but they died without the sight; we are the favored people that God has made choice of to bring about the Latter-day glory. H.C. 4:609-610)

In the beginning of the last quarter of the twentieth century, the Saints have witnessed prophetic fulfillment in the dramatically accelerating growth of the Church. As the pace of the work hastens and as the faithful Saints prepare to receive the Savior, they will come closer to being the kind of people that will inhabit the Zion envisioned and longed for by the prophets.

It will be during our own day and age that the highest point of spiritual readiness obtainable by mortals will again be realized. Only occasionally has the earth seen societies of men and women ascend to a pinnacle of spiritual knowledge and personal righteousness that merited the glory of the Lord to dwell in their homes and communities. Such people are called Zion, the pure in heart. Those who lived in Zion anciently lived lives of such a high degree of purity and godliness that the Lord himself dwelled with them. So, too, will it be in this dispensation. The beauty of Zion is already beginning to arise and shine forth in righteousness and glory.

II. The Coming Forth of Zion

The society of a Zion people is "a reflection of the purity, unity, and holiness of those who make up its membership." "Zion is a society composed of families and individuals who have been spiritually born of God and have matured in the gospel to the point that the Lord can come and dwell with them. It is a family centered, covenant society of true saints, led by the Lord and his servants." Thus the order of Zion belongs to the celestial kingdom; it belongs to the highest of all heavenly orders.

But the Lord has declared that Zion will not come forth in power until the Saints are properly prepared, taught, matured in righteous experiences, know more perfectly concerning their duty and are endowed with power from on high (D&C 105). In speaking to Noah concerning when Zion will come forth upon the earth, the Lord said:

And this is mine everlasting covenant, that when thy posterity shall embrace the truth, and look upward, then shall Zion look downward, and all the heavens shall shake with gladness, and the earth shall tremble with joy;

And the general assembly of the church of the first born shall come down out of heaven, and possess the earth, and shall have place until the end come. And this is mine everlasting covenant, which I made with thy father Enoch. (I.V. Gen. 9:21-23)

III. Zions In History

The first Zion ever to be built was called the city of Enoch. The prophet Enoch lived in a day of wickedness, darkness and rebellion, a day of war and desolation, a day leading up to the cleansing of the earth by water. But being the faithful man that he was, he spoke with the Lord face to face as one man speaks with another, and his converts became so faithful that the Lord came and dwelt with them and "the Lord called his people Zion, because they were of one heart and one mind, and dwelt in righteousness, and there was no poor among them." (Moses 7:18)

There have been other Zion communities established through the ages of time. Melchizedek and his people wrought heaven and sought for the city of Enoch. The people who were established by Christ's apostles in the meridian of time had all things in common, indicating they were living the Zion law of consecration and stewardship. The Nephites also had a community who lived in peace, and partook of the heavenly gift for nearly 200 years following the visit of Christ to the Americas.
History also records how holy prophets struggled to prepare their people that they might become a Zion people, but because of hardness of heart they could not behold the face of God. The D&C records:

Now this Moses plainly taught to the children of Israel in the wilderness, and sought diligently to sanctify his people that they might behold the face of God;
But they hardened their hearts and could not endure his presence; therefore, the Lord in his wrath. for his anger was kindled against them, swore that they should not enter into his rest while in the wilderness, which rest is the fulness of his glory.
Therefore, he took Moses out of their midst, and the Holy Priesthood also. (D&C 84:23-25)

When the Savior came into the world, he also desired to gather the people and make of them a Zion society wherein they could also partake of the powers of heaven. But he lamented that he could not even get them to gather so that he could pour out blessings upon them.
In these last days the redemption of Zion was temporarily postponed in 1834 because of the unrighteousness of the saints, but Zion will be redeemed just as surely as was the city of Enoch. President McKay said that the priesthood correlation program was the same plan which brought Enoch and his people to their translation experience. As you know, priesthood correlation was implemented in this Church in the early 60's. And it will do the same for us as it did for the City of Enoch as we prepare for the day of his coming.

IV. The Latter-Day Zion Will Be Built & Redeemed

The mission of the Church is to proclaim the gospel to all the world; secondly, to perfect the Saints; and thirdly, to redeem the dead. President Kimball said that the perfection of the saints would be achieved by having the saints secure for themselves all the ordinances of the gospel (including all the temple ordinances) and by receiving instruction and obtaining self-discipline. (The Ensign May 1982, p. 2) Zion will be built and redeemed in this very way---through the perfecting of the saints.
We are currently living in a day and age in which the world is as wicked as it was in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah. Between now and the second coming of Christ the wicked will sink ever lower into the depths of depravity and despair, while the meek among men will find themselves sealed up to eternal life, thus securing their salvation and causing Zion to be redeemed. In this why the brilliant light of Zion will arise, and it will shine forth to all the world, and she will be prepared as a bride who adorneth herself for the bridegroom. And all those who are pure in heart will be seated at the wedding feast, for they will have on the wedding garment, and they are they of whom the scriptures refer to as the five wise virgins.
Preparations for building Zion continue in the programs and policies within the Church. The most recent change relative to the seventies of the church is one of the great signs that as a church we are making ready for the Son of Man. The destiny of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is to prepare a Zion people and to again elevate it's inhabitants back into the Lord's presence. The Church is working directly to assist the Saints in fulfilling this glorious destiny. Thus the Lord taught us to pray "thy kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven", for we seek that Zion will be established on earth as it is in heaven. Those with spiritual eyes are watching the redemption of Zion in motion right before their very eyes.

The New Jerusalem

As the latter-day events unfold before our eyes, we will see that first must come the 'literal gathering of Israel' in which we are now engaged. Then, the return of the Ten Tribes, which we hope is soon to come. Then, the Zion of the New Jerusalem will be built upon the American continent preparing the earth to receive the Lord, after whose coming it will be possible to achieve the final state in which the earth is renewed and given its former glory. The midpoint and focus of the whole operation is Zion. Zion is the great moment of transition, the [hinge] between the world as it is and the world as God designed it and meant it to be. (Hugh Nibley, Last Lecture Series, 1971-72, pp. 2-3) And as you know, Zion is also a specific location, and by revelation the Lord stated that the center stake of Zion will be located in Jackson County, Missouri. Why Jackson County? Because, as the Prophet Joseph said, it was the setting for the Garden of Eden. It is the cradle of civilization. That's where God walked and talked with his first children on this earth, and it will again become one of many places where God will again walk and talk with those who enter the abode of God in Zion.
To all the saints of the last days who strive to bring forth Zion, the Lord said: "Blessed are they who shall seek to bring forth my Zion at that day, for they shall have the gift and the power of the Holy Ghost; and if they endure unto the end they shall be lifted up at the last day, and shall be saved in the everlasting kingdom of the Lamb." (1 Nephi 13:37)
Brethren and sisters, as the saints crossed the plains towards Utah, "it was their vision of Zion as it would be in its glory which sustained" them throughout their journey. They sang the songs of Zion and joyfully looked forward to its redemption. As we leave stake conference this day, let us not forget this vision. As we travel throughout our journey of life, let us be sustained by the vision of Zion as it will be in its glory. Let us make a sacred and personal commitment that we will be a part of this Zion by applying the principles of welfare of which President Kimball spoke. The road is not easy, nor is the journey short. But the promise of exaltation will come just as surely as God lives, and we will thereby obtain peace in this life, and eternal life in the world to come. May we ever keep the vision of Zion burning brightly within our hearts, is my prayer, in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

LOUISVILLE KENTUCKY STAKE GENERAL PRIESTHOOD MEETING
SATURDAY EVENING Session, 3 JANUARY 1987
By Richard A. Ware

Introduction

My dear brethren of the priesthood, I am grateful for the privilege and opportunity of being here with you this evening. I have received an assignment from the stake presidency to speak to you and so I pray that we will have an abundance of the spirit of the Lord to be with us as we consider some very important aspects of the gospel plan. There are many ways in which to approach this topic. I feel to discuss some aspects of the subject that are perhaps seldom talked about, but which, I believe, form the framework or foundation of why we are engaged in this work of saving souls.

The Plan of Redemption

ln a personal revelation given to Abraham by use of the urim and thummim which the Lord had given to him, the Lord told Abraham that the earth was created so that those spirits who had proven faithful in the pre-earth life, and had kept their first estate, might have the opportunity of being added upon by coming to this second estate. While in this second estate, mankind was to be proven to see if they would do all things whatsoever the Lord their God would command them. Those who proved true and faithful in the second estate (or earth life) would have glory added upon their heads for ever and ever (Abr. 3:24-26).

Having descended from God, our objective now is to return to God. The desire of all the prophets throughout all the ages of time, has been to guide mankind back into the Lord's presence. The Prophet Joseph said that "this is why Adam blessed his posterity; he wanted to bring them into the presence of God" (TPJS, p. 159).

In the days of Enoch's ministry, all who hearkened to his voice and obeyed the commandments of God, were privileged to know God and to converse with him, for "Enoch and all his people walked with God; and he dwelt in the midst of Zion" ln this manner was Zion redeemed, and because of it's redemption, it could no longer stay upon the earth which was full of wickedness, therefore the Lord took it "into his own bosom; and from thence went forth the saying, Zion is Fled." (Moses 7:69).

Building Zion ln These Last Days

ln these last days the Lord is again building unto himself a Zion society, just as in the days of Enoch. lt is "composed of families and individuals who have been spiritually born of God and have matured in the gospel to the point that the Lord can come and dwell with them. lt is a family centered, covenant society of true saints, .the pure in heart,' led by the Lord and his servants" (Mel Prhd Personal Study Guide, 1978-79, pp. 181-182). There are many hundreds, if not thousands of members of the church among us today who have reached this level of righteousness.

ln order to build and redeem such a society, it was necessary that the Lord restore to the earth the true gospel of Jesus Christ, which is known among us as the new and everlasting covenant. Associated with the doctrines, principles and covenants of the gospel, are the ordinances necessary for exaltation. After the fulness of the gospel had been restored to the earth through the Book of Mormon, the Lord then organized his Church, which became the vehicle through which this gospel would be carried to the inhabitants of the whole earth. Those who first held the priesthood in the days of Joseph Smith, and those who hold it today, have received the divine commission to, first, proclaim the gospel message to the ends of the earth so that those who are in darkness might come into the glorious light and become members of the household of faith. Thus, if you are single and between the ages of 19 and 25, you have already been called on a mission by the Lord.

Secondly, once individuals have joined the true church and have embraced the true gospel, it is the responsibility of the priesthood to "perfect the saints", or in other words, assist these new members in gaining for themselves all the ordinances necessary for exaltation, and to assist in elevating their spirituality through obedience and diligence, that they might come unto the stature of the fulness of Christ, by acquiring unto themselves the attributes of godliness and the redemption from the fall.

Thirdly, once these members have acquired for themselves the ordinances necessary for exaltation, they are commanded to go forth and save their own kindred dead by doing the ordinances for them by proxy in the temples of God. The Church therefore builds and runs temples, so that the saints might be able to redeem the dead, by doing the work of welding together the generations of people.

Redemption Through Sealings

The sealing work that is done in the temples today, of sealing wives to husbands and children to parents, is the final and most glorious work that there is to do. Therefore, Elijah was sent before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord, so that the hearts of the living fathers (or parents) would be turned to their children, in the sense that they would perform the ordinances necessary to be sealed together; and the hearts of the living children would be turned to their deceased ancestral fathers who knew not the gospel, and the living would then perform the ordinances necessary for exaltation for those who had gone on ahead. Without these sealings, the Lord said that at the great and dreadful day of the Lord that he would come and smite the earth with a curse (see Malachi 4:5-6); and all those who had not done these sealings would be left without root (meaning ancestors) or branch (meaning children). They would not be connected into any family whatsoever, and such individuals would be burned at his coming (see Malachi 4:1). Families, both deceased and living, must receive every ordinance of the temple if they are to be redeemed from the fall and return to the Lord's presence.

The Responsibility of Fathers

Now that this framework or foundation has been laid, we will discuss how all this relates to the priesthood, priesthood quorums, and home teaching. First, as fathers, we have the divine responsibility of doing all within our power to save and exalt ourselves and our families. This responsibility does not rest upon the church. It rests upon us. We cannot shift it and we must not shirk it. We have the opportunity of teaching by example and by precept the way back to Father's presence. There are many ways to do this. Family home evening is one of them. Family scripture reading and family prayer are two more very important ways. Self control and love must crown all our efforts.

The Responsibility of the Priesthood

However, because fathers may not know all that they must do, the Lord has organized priesthood quorums so that the quorum president can teach the father his duties according to the covenants. ln other words, the Lord has placed the quorum president in the position of being responsible for teaching all the members of his quorum all that they must do in order to return to the Lord's presence. He is to watch over his flock as a shepherd and to continually work to encourage the fathers to attend to all family and church duties and to shun all evil.
As fathers keep the commandments and work towards helping family members regain the presence of God, the bishop, then, judges the worthiness of family members to be members of the church, as well as their worthiness to gain access to the temple. Bishops authorize the performance of ordinances within his realm of stewardship, thus assisting fathers in moving their families towards perfection.

The Role of the Home Teacher

But because quorum presidents and bishops cannot do this work all by themselves, the home teacher has been called to represent the quorum president and bishop to the family. When he visits the family, his function is to do what the bishop or quorum president would do if they were there. The divine calling of a home teacher is to assist fathers in learning their duties---as fathers, as husbands, and as quorum members; and they are to assist fathers in returning to the presence of the father. President Kimball said that home teachers are not to go into homes with vain babblings or swelling words (The Ensign/June 1978, p. 26). We are there to save and exalt the souls of men. Our work is to help in bringing to pass the eternal life of man.

Fathers should not use their home teachers only as another primary teacher for their children. President Marion G. Romney said, "Home teaching should not be confused with the Lord's program for teaching the gospel in the home by parents. lt is not intended, nor would it be proper, for home teachers to take the place of the family head in teaching the gospel in the home" (Mel Prhd Personal Study Guide, 1978-79, p. 35). Neither should fathers use home teachers to do those things which they can and should do for themselves. Elder Packer stated that self-reliance must begin with ourselves. Once we have done all within our power to solve our own problems, we are supposed to turn to our own immediate and/or extended family for help. Only when we have exhausted these resources should we turn to the church for help. To do otherwise would cause us to become spiritually and temporally dependent upon the church. Home teachers and others should be sensitive to this principle of the gospel and help families where there is truly a need to do so.

Home Teaching Is A Vehicle

Again, it must be emphasized, that home teaching is not another program of the Church. Rather, it is the means used by which the job of redeeming families gets done. lt is the vehicle by which all the resources of the church reach the father so that he can perfect himself and his family. Home teachers are priesthood representatives called to assist the quorum president in watching over and strengthening quorum members, and they are the means by which the father has total access to all the programs, and blessings of the church. President Benson said that "the Church was created in large measure to help the family, and long after the Church has performed its mission, the celestial patriarchal order will still be functioning" (Mel Prhd Study Guide, 1978-79, p. 35). Thus the Church, in reality, is the scaffolding around the patriarchal home. It's purpose is to build up the home and perfect it.

Who Teaches the Father?

Fathers today should bless their children for the same reason that Adam blessed his, so that they might come back into the Lord's presence. And the entire organization of the church, especially home teachers, quorum presidents and bishops, exists to help fathers do just that.

If a father does not know how to bless his baby, who should teach him? If he does not know how to dedicate his home, which can be done even though it is not paid for, who is responsible for teaching him how to do it. If the father does not know how to do the ordinances of the priesthood, whose duty is it to see that he is taught? The quorum president is responsible ultimately, but the home teacher is directly. The overall responsibility of a home teacher, is to aid each of his families, to advance forward from wherever they are spiritually, to becoming perfected in the fulness of the stature of Christ. Therefore, home teachers should be interested in making sure that his families are all baptized members of the church, that all the babies are blessed, that the older teenagers have received their patriarchal blessings, that the twelve year old young men have been ordained to the Aaronic Priesthood, that the family is active at church and attends the temple. He should be interested in encouraging the family to live the standards of the church, to attend to the family duties of fasting, prayer, scripture study, family home evening, and to encourage the family to take the Ensign and other magazines as appropriate, as well as the Church News. The list of what a home teacher is responsible to do could go on and on. Thus we see why President Kimball suggested that we not go into the homes with vain babblings. Not only have we not been called to do that, but there is just not enough time to waste.

Improving the Quality of Home Teaching

What can we do as priesthood bearers to improve the quality of home teaching? Let me suggest that we do the following:

(1) Home teachers should cultivate a love for God and for their fellowman. Only when the home teacher sufficiently loves others will he be motivated to serve them faithfully. The Lord promised that if a person would love him, that he would be loved of his Father, and both he and the Father would manifest themselves unto him (John 14:21, 23). ln addition, the Apostle John counseled us to love one another, for "everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God" (1 John 4:7-8). There will be no problem with monthly visits when we gain this kind of love.

(2) An overall vision of the work of redemption should be sought for. When the home teacher understands what he must do to gain eternal life, then he will be in a position to help his families do likewise. President Kimball stated that "one cannot receive eternal life without becoming a .doer of the word' (see James 1:22) and being valiant in obedience to the Lord's commandments. And one cannot become a .doer of the word' without first becoming a .hearer'. And to become a .hearer' is not simply to stand idly by and wait for chance bits of information; it is to seek out and study and pray and comprehend. . . . (The Teachings of Spencer W. Kimball, pp. 127-28).

(3) Seek diligently to understand the priesthood and callings within the priesthood. "Wherefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence. He that is slothful shall not be counted worthy to stand, and he that learns not his duty and shows himself not approved shall not be counted worthy to stand" (D&C 107:99-100). This applies to fathers, home teachers, and quorum leaders. The sins of this generation rest upon our garments if we do not magnify our callings.

Improving the Mechanics of Home Teaching

Quorum and group leaders might consider the following in improving the mechanics of home teaching:

(1) Give a monthly accounting of your stewardship to your priesthood leader. Home teaching interviews give priesthood holders an opportunity to review what has been accomplished and to discuss what yet needs to be done in assisting families to gain eternal life.

(2) Allow home teachers to be assigned to their families for long periods of time. Avoid the tendency to make frequent changes in home teaching assignments. Families need to feel trust in their home teachers, and this can only be built through time.

(3) Divide up the home teaching within the quorum leadership so that each of the quorum presidency has one-third of the home teaching routes. Each of the counselors and the president would then be responsible for their area. The counselors would report monthly to the president concerning their home teaching districts.

(4) Do not fix things which are not broken. If home teachers are working well together and are visiting their families each month, then leave them together and let them continue. Quorum and group leaders should especially concern themselves with motivating those home teachers who are experiencing difficulty in performing their home teaching.

(5) Be sure and obtain an accurate count each month of what home teaching has been done. Give this report to the bishop in the priesthood executive committee meeting, and turn it in to your high council advisor by the first Sunday of the next month.

ln Conclusion

ln conclusion, brethren, we need to remember that the mechanics of home teaching is not home teaching. Neither is home teaching a program. Rather, home teaching is the channel through which all the blessings of the church, which have been restored to us in these last days, are made available to church members. All programs, socials, meetings, and conferences should be held with the idea in mind of blessing the individual and the family towards gaining eternal life. The church exists to establish and build the patriarchal order within the lives of all its members.
When is the job of a father, a home teacher, or a quorum leader finished? Obviously it never finishes. But there is a point in this life to which we should all be striving. ln the October Ensign of 1986, President Ezra Taft Benson stated that "there is a lifetime goal---to walk in [the] steps [of the Master], to perfect ourselves in every virtue as he has done, to seek his face, and to work to make our calling and election sure" (The Ensign/October 1986, p. 5). In the December 21st Church News, President Benson said that "today in Christ's restored Church, He is revealing Himself and His will -- from the first prophet of the Restoration, even Joseph Smith, to the present. .And now, my beloved brothers and sisters, what must we do this Christmas season -- and always? Why, we must do the same as the wise men of old. They sought out the Christ and found Him. And so must we. Those who are wise still seek Him today.'" (Ch News, 21 Dec 1986, p. 16).
President Kimball stated that "the ultimate and greatest of all knowledge, then, is to know God and his program for our exaltation. We may know him by sight, by sound, by feeling. While relatively few ever DO really know him, everyone MAY know him, not only prophets" (Mel Prhd Study Guide, 1983/1987, p. 50).
This is the ultimate goal towards which all fathers, home teachers and priesthood holders should be striving. This is ultimately what all of our work in the church is designed to accomplish.
It is my testimony that the work in which we are engaged is divine. I know that this is Christ's church and that he is at the head, guiding and directing us. May we take the time to re-evaluate our performance in blessing the lives of others through home teaching. I have no doubt that as we magnify our callings and prove ourselves true and faithful in all things, that the Lord will say to us: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord" (Matt 25:21).
Of these things I testify, in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

SACRAMENT MEETING TALK DELIVERED AT THE ELIZABETHTOWN WARD, LOUISVILLE KENTUCKY STAKE
MAY 24, 1987
by Richard A. Ware

Gospel Mysteries

Brethren and sisters, the bishop has asked me to share with you some thoughts about how to build Zion within our souls and thereby within our homes so that we may become perfect in Christ Jesus. I pray that the spirit of the Lord will touch each of our hearts and souls during these few moments so that we may comprehend beyond the words which I will speak, the depth and beauty of the plan of redemption and what we must do in order to be saved in the highest level of the celestial kingdom.

There are many different ways to approach this subject. We could discuss how faith and repentance are essential to our growth in building Zion. We could talk about how charity and the attributes of godliness are a must if we are to become perfect. We could also approach the role of ordinances and covenants in our lives and how disobedience and unbelief take away light and truth from us until we are left in darkness and misery. The list could going on and on.

But because we do not have a month to discuss these and many other vital subjects, I will attempt to share with you those things which I feel would help us the most, and what some of the pitfalls are that will keep us from accomplishing our missions upon the earth. For lack of time I will not go into any of the subjects in depth, and I will dispense with quoting the writings of the scriptures or the Brethren on these subjects although I will quote their concepts. If any of you would like to have the references to anything which I will be saying, please let me know.

In order to build a Zion society within our souls and thus within our homes we must receive all the ordinances of the gospel. This begins with baptism by water for the gift of the Holy Ghost, which ordinances put our foot on the path towards the celestial kingdom. Although all members of the church have been baptized, many of them do not have the gifts or blessings of the Holy Ghost with them. President McKay taught that we must seek for the Holy Ghost if we desire to have it with us. lt does not automatically come to us. Joseph Smith taught that no one "can receive the Holy Ghost without receiving revelations [because] the Holy Ghost is a revelator." (TPJS, p. 328). President Harold B. Lee said this means that if we are not receiving revelations we do not have the Holy Ghost. Notice he says "receiving"---meaning that we are now, currently, receiving revelations, not that we may have received one many years ago. If the Holy Ghost is not currently ministering to us and giving us revelations, we do not have it with us. Many members of the church live their entire lives with little or no contact with the Holy Ghost. Without the sanctifying influence of the Holy Ghost in our lives, we will not be prepared for exaltation.

The next essential ordinance is the bestowal of the Melchizedek Priesthood upon the man. The duties of this priesthood include (1) proclaiming the gospel to the world; (2) perfecting the saints; and (3) redeeming the dead. This is to be done within our homes first, and within the church as called upon so that the kingdom of God might be built, that Zion might be redeemed in preparation for the second coming.

If we are faithful to the oath and covenant of the priesthood, then we will become heirs to all that the Father has. If we are not doing all that we can to share the gospel with our immediate and extended families who are not members, and if we are not doing all within our power to perfect ourselves and redeem our dead, then we will not be saved ourselves.

Next, we must receive the sacred ordinances of the temple which include the endowment and temple marriage. Contrary to what we have thought about baptism in the past, it does not admit us into the celestial kingdom. Elder McConkie states that baptism gives us entrance into the earthly church and puts our foot on the path towards the celestial kingdom. Baptism is the gate to the path which leads to the celestial kingdom. All who have been endowed understand, that in order to pass through the veil and thereby enter into the celestial kingdom, it requires that the person be endowed. Besides, how could the angels test us along the way if they or us had not been endowed?

In our theology we also know that all the gods are married. Thus, if we desire to join with them and be like them, we must also be married. Those who are married outside of the church, by civilian authority, will never be admitted into exaltation. They will never be like their Father and Mother in heaven. They will never fulfill the full measure for which they were created. Only those who are sealed by the authority of the priesthood in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage will be admitted to the marriage feast.

Finally, in order to become exalted as gods ourselves, we must receive the fulness of the priesthood ordinance. This ordinance comes after temple marriage and is currently done for only the most faithful and most worthy saints. lt is not reserved only for prophets and apostles but can be received by all the true and faithful. lt is the greatest of all the gifts of God. And since it is a gift of God we cannot ask for it, but we can do all within our power to work towards .it. Joseph said that we must learn how to be kings and priests ourselves by going from one small degree to a higher one. As we make this upward trek, we must wait patiently upon the Lord. Because of our diligence and obedience, the Lord will say it is enough, and will declare us worthy through his priesthood channels, to come up higher and receive his holiest of blessings.

This ordinance is performed for the dead, just as baptism, ordination to the priesthood, the endowment and temple marriage are done for the dead. lt is the final ordinance which is required in order to be exalted. If this ordinance is not received prior to the resurrection, we will not come forth in the morning of the first resurrection to be exalted.

Some have called it calling and election. So it is. Some have thought it to be non-essential to our exaltation. This, however, is not true. From the days Joseph Smith until our day, the Lord's anointed have taught the saints of God that it is required for exaltation. He that hath ears has been hearing this message for a long time. We need to be worthy and receive this blessing so that we can do it by proxy for our deceased ancestors. This is one of the ordinances which will be performed for the dead throughout the millennium.

The Brethren have spoken about this subject at General Conferences, in BYU speeches, at temple dedications, and in the books they publish. Elder Bangarter, at our last General Conference, made a direct reference to the ordinance. lt is also plainly taught in the scriptures. If we do not see it, if we do not understand it, if we are in darkness on the subject, does that not tell us something about our lack of initiative to seek and find for ourselves? Hugh Nibley said the best way to keep a secret is to publish it, because few will ever take the time to pick up the material and read it.

Regarding General Conference. Relatively few of the saints and their families attended the sessions of Conference here in this ward. This is one of the main ways which the Lord has of letting his people know what he desires of them for the next 6 months. Is it any wonder that some members lack a knowledge of the gospel of redemption? That they do not understand? That they are left in darkness? We may find it convenient to blame that lack of knowledge upon the leadership of the church. But in reality, we are responsible to feed ourselves. They merely assist in the feeding which should be taking place daily in our lives.

If these thoughts cause some of us to be worried about our own salvation, then we should be. Because we will not become heirs to exaltation by sitting on a bench in a building three hours a week. We must be anxiously engaged in working out our salvation every day of the week. If we wait for others to tell us what we should be doing we have already been declared to be a slothful and unwise servant.

Now that I have spoken about the ordinances, there are other areas that are important and essential to our exaltation. Because of time I will only mention them. We need to:

(1) Dedicate our homes. Let the sweet spirit reside in it. Let it be the most sacred place on earth next to the temple. Do not allow it to be desecrated.

(2) Study and feast upon the scriptures and writings of the brethren each day. We need to grow in light and truth instead of rumors and here-say.

(3) Pray in faith unto the Lord in mighty prayer at least 3 times a day. Draw close unto him. Make him our friend. Learn to communicate with him.

(4) Be obedient to all the commandments and covenants. If we do not know what the five covenants are that we made in the temple, then we need to go back and find out what they are. How can we keep our covenants sacred if we do not know what they are. Did you know there are two main parts to the covenant of sacrifice? And do you know how sacrifice relates to consecration in actual practical terms?

(5) Train up our children in light and truth. The Lord counseled us to not let them quarrel or fight. Teach them to listen to and obey the voice of the prophet and the spirit. Teach them the gospel plan of redemption and how to read the scriptures with understanding. Share with them your testimony. Demonstrate your own obedience to your children by your own example.

(6) Stay away from pornography. It destroys spirituality. lt comes in many forms. Even the suggestive language and scenes on TV give our children the wrong signals causing them to think that immorality is ok.

(7) Be obedient to the Prophet. Question marks do not belong behind the things which he says. Rationalizing what he says is the devil's best tool to keep us from enjoying the gift of eternal life.

(8) Keep our temple recommend current and live the requirements of the recommend. Do we remember what the questions are?

(9) Keep our marital lives clean. Avoid as the plague intimate activities that are unclean and unholy. Those who want eternal life will one day be asked about this.

(10) Research the names of your ancestors at least 4 generations back, and then take those names to the temples and perform the ordinance work for them. Save your dead. You cannot be made perfect without them.

(11) Teach reverence at home and at church. President Kimball said our chapels are as sacred as the inside of the temple. Would we allow ourselves or our children to be irreverent in the temple? Shouldn't we whisper in the chapel just as we do in the temple? Didn't President Hinckley say something about irreverence at church recently? Eternal life can never be achieved without reverence for sacred things and for sacred places.

(12) Learn your duties and responsibilities as husbands and wives and then perform them diligently. Learn to be a team rather than be at odds. Be careful not to imbibe the false philosophies of the world. Work to build a celestial home, a place on earth where angels will enjoy coming.

Now let me share with you some things which I have seen are major stumbling blocks to our building Zion, and will prevent us from being exalted.

I know that these will ring a bell in all of us for we have all been guilty of them at one time or another.

(1) Love and forgive one another. John taught that he that professes to love God and yet hates his brother is a liar and the love of God is not in him. Everyone has faults. Joseph taught us to look beyond the imperfections of one another and to forgive all. If we cannot forgive others of their trespasses against us, then God will not forgive us of our trespasses against him. God will continue to show mercy and forgive us of our trespasses against him as long as we do likewise to all others.

(2) Avoid gossip, here-say, and backbiting. The church has had to reserve the top two floors of the church office building to nothing but store all the gossip of the Saints. Do not listen to people who backbite and who have evil to say about others, especially when they backbite against their leaders. If we happen to overhear it, do not pass it on, and forget about it. Gossip, here-say and backbiting cause contention and contention was one of the main reasons for divisions, apostasy, and wars in the Book of Mormon. Without knowing it, satan uses us through our weaknesses to accomplish his own purposes.

(3) Grow in light and truth. We live in spiritual and intellectual darkness because of our lack of desire to study and feast upon the words of God. Our obedience to God can only be refined by learning more deeply about all aspects of the gospel and by letting the Holy Spirit teach us what we must do to rid ourselves of sin. Many times we do not know we need to change things in our lives because the light of the spirit is not within us.

In conclusion, brethren and sisters, we need to pay more attention to our own souls. The greatest of all the gifts of God, namely that of eternal life, will not come easily. Elder Marion G. Romney once stated that we can obtain the promise of eternal life in this world, but warned:

> Sometimes, because of our lack of understanding and appreciation...I am persuaded that we take too much for granted. We assume that because we are members of the Church, we shall receive as a matter of course all the blessings of the gospel. I have heard people contend that they have a claim upon them because they have been through the temple, even though they are not careful to keep the covenants they there made. I do not think this will be the case.
> We might take a lesson from an account given by the Prophet of a vision of the resurrection, in which he records that one of the saddest things he had ever witnessed was the sorrow of members of the Church who came forth to a resurrection below that which they had taken for granted they would receive. (IE, Nov 1949)

I pray that we will not take anything for granted in this church. Membership in the church is only the beginning. Temple marriage is not all there is. I know from the whisperings of the Holy Spirit to my soul, that all of us may obtain the fulness of the priesthood. All of us may return to God if we press forward and work diligently to be true and faithful in all things. We must not complacently camp out on the path to eternal life. If we do we will rob ourselves of eternal life. Our salvation rests with what we do with our lives each day.

I know that we can receive personal revelation. Joseph was right---the nearer man approaches perfection the clearer are his views and the greater his enjoyments until he has lost every desire for sin and is wrapped up in the glory and power of his Maker (TPJS, p. 51). No earthly thing compares in magnitude to the treasures of heaven. And nothing compares in magnitude to knowing the Father and the Son. lt is all worth the effort which a person must expend in order to obtain the blessing. And you don't have to be a certain age to obtain the goodness of Christ in your life. Lehi, Moroni, Joseph Smith and others found this to be true.

I saw, in a recent sacred experience, our Father in heaven standing with his arms outstretched, with a royal robe and a crown of light in his hands, beckoning to a certain individual to come to him. This can be true of us all. We can more than sip from the fountain of eternal light. We can drink heartily and feast from the banquet table of God. The mysteries and richness of eternity await our view.

I bear you my personal witness that I know these things of which I have spoken are true. I have heard the sweet voice of his spirit speak to me and open up to me a knowledge and an understanding of those things of which I have spoken. And if I can obtain these things, so can everyone, for God is no respecter of persons. I merely had faith in what the scriptures taught concerning these things and decided to apply the test to see if it was true. What I didn't know, when I began my quest, was that it would be such a breath-taking, mind and soul expanding experience. And just as the rock that is cut out of the mountain rolls down and becomes larger and larger until it fills the whole earth, just so does the knowledge of God flow down from heaven, becoming greater and greater until it fill the whole body with light. How would you like to view the things of God for yourself? You can! If you will have faith and seek diligently, it will come to pass. And I know that he has made these things known to many people.

May we diligently seek to put our lives in order so that Zion may be built within our souls, within our homes and within our ward by becoming actively involved in our own salvation and exaltation is my prayer in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

SPEECH DELIVERED IN THE ELIZABETHTOWN WARD
ON FEBRUARY 28, 1988 BY RICHARD A. WARE
HIGH COUNCIL ADVISOR

My dear brethren and sisters. I am grateful to be here this morning in the Elizabethtown Ward as your assigned high council advisor. The dividing of the Elizabethtown Ward was a very important step in the growth of the Church in this area. Not only will we witness a growth in numbers, but a growth in individual spiritual strength as well.

Bishop Hagee informed me that the major emphasis for the month is "Perfecting the Saints." In line with this subject, therefore, I will discuss how saints in prior days became perfect and how we may become perfect today.

In his visit to the Nephites the Savior stated in simple terms what kind of people we must become in order to gain eternal life. He said "Therefore, what manner of men ought ye to be? Verily 1 say unto you, even as I am." (3 Nephi 27:27) Similar counsel was given by the Savior early in his mortal ministry and was applicable to everyone. He said: "Ye are therefore commanded to be perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." (JST Matthew 5:48)

The word "perfect" in the Greek means "complete, finished, or fully developed." ln the full gospel sense, this can only happen after a person has been resurrected and has gained his exaltation and become like the Father.

Gospel Mysteries

However, there is another sense in which perfection can apply to the saints in mortality. Elder James E. Talmage said that "perfection is relative" to the sphere in which we find ourselves. (Articles of Faith, p. 409) ln this sense of the word, individuals can become complete, finished or fully developed within the limits of mortality, by complying with all the laws of God. Then, when they arrive at that point when God accepts them and seals them to himself, they then are perfect in mortality.

lt was in this sense of the word that the scripture recorded that "Nosh was a just man and perfect in his generation, and Noah walked with God." (Genesis 6:9; Moses 8:27) Also, Job "was perfect and upright, and one that feared [loved] God, and eschewed evil." (Job 1:1) Seth "was [also] a perfect" man (D&C 107:43). Enoch must have also been a perfect man, as well as all of the inhabitants of his city, for they were translated and taken up into heaven. Melchizedek and his people would also fit this description of perfection. Those who are sealed to eternal life not only are perfect in mortality, they also have the promise that they will become perfect in the full sense of the word, even as the Father and the Son are perfect, through the resurrection and exaltation.

In his epistle to the Ephesians, Paul the Apostle wrote that Christ organized the church "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ." And how long, or to what point, was the church to perform this mission? Paul said "[Un]till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." (Ephesians 4:11-13) Thus we see that the church is to perfect the saints and to do the work of the ministry, which includes proclaiming the gospel to the whole earth and redeeming the dead in the temples. And when the time comes that the saints come unto a unity of the faith, and unto the knowledge of the Son of God, and unto the stature of the fulness of Christ who is the perfect man, then the saints will be perfect just as they were commanded to be.

Let's discuss these three aspects of Paul's statement regarding perfection. First, what does it mean to come to a unity of the faith? Historically we find that Enoch and all his people were of one heart and one mind. They all saw alike on doctrine. They all knew the truth of things as they were, as they are, and as they will be. (D&C 93:24) How did they gain a true knowledge of things on earth and in heaven? The scriptures reveal they learned it through revelation. Only by revelation can the truth of all things be known. God revealed his word to Enoch his prophet, who in turn taught the people. In this way a group of people can come unto a unity of the true faith.

This is why the Father and the Son appeared to the prophet Joseph Smith in 1820. Because a knowledge of the Father and the Son will never come through doctrinal debate, within or without the church. This is the cause of so many churches in the world. They do not obtain their knowledge from the revelations of God through his prophets, but rather through logic, reason and debate, all of which produces the philosphies of men, which are then mingled with scripture. Consequently, they lead astray the children of men.

When you have a society of people who know the truth of all things by revelation, you then have a people who have come to a unity of the faith. "They see as they are seen, and know as they are known." (D&C 76:94) lf we as saints would search out and obey the word of God as it is revealed in the scriptures and by his prophets, we too would come to a unity of the faith. However, as long as we believe and live in compliance with the false traditions and customs of our fathers, as well as the philosophies of men, to that same extent we become a law unto ourselves. We thereby prevent ourselves from coming unto a knowledge of the truth, and therefore a unity of the faith. Thus we see that in order for a people to come unto a unity of the true faith, they must be taught by prophets who have received the faith by revelation.

The second aspect of Paul's statement on perfection deals with coming unto a knowledge of the Son of God. Notice that Paul does not say that we would gain a knowledge about the Son of God, but rather that we would come to know him. Regarding this subject, the apostle John recorded the Savior as saying that "this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." (John 17:3) President Spencer W. Kimball said that "the ultimate and greatest of all knowledge, then, is to know God and his program for our exaltation. We may know him by sight, by sound, by feeling. While relatively few ever do really know him, everyone may know him, not only prophets." (Melchizedek Prhd Study Guide, 1983/1987, p. 50)

Realizing this to be true, the righteous saints of all ages have placed their faith in the words of the prophets and have sought to know God. The nearer they approached perfection the clearer were their views and the greater their enjoyments, until they overcame the evils of their lives and lost every desire for sin. Finally, they arrived at that point of faith where they were wrapped up in the power and glory of their Maker and were caught up to dwell with him. (TPJS, p. 51)

Today, the ordinances of God have been restored to the earth so that man can come to know God, for "without the ordinances" and "the authority of the priesthood, the power of godliness is not manifest". And "without this [the power of godliness] no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live." (D&C 84:20-23) "And this greater priesthood administereth the gospel and holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God." (D&C 84:19)

Thirdly, Paul taught that we will have achieved perfection when we come "unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ". The perfect example of a perfect man is obviously Christ. He lived the laws of God and was therefore sinless. Those who live the commandments today can also become sinless. By acquiring his divine attributes we will come unto the same stature of the fulness of Christ and become a perfect man in mortality. The divine attributes were listed by Peter as being faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity. (2 Peter 1:5-7) Then he said, "lf these [attributes] be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." (2 Peter 1:8) ln other words, by obtaining these attributes, a person will come to know Christ.

Part of perfecting the saints is the work of redeeming our dead, for "we cannot be perfect without [them]". (Hebrews 11:40; TPJS, p. 338, 356) We must be sealed to our roots, or ancestors, and they to their roots all the way back to father Adam. Additionally, our branches, or children, must be sealed to us. To this end was the earth created. And unless this sealing work is performed, the whole earth will be cursed. (Malachi 4:6) The purposes of God will have been frustrated on earth. So if we desire to become perfect, we must also save our dead. We must seek out the names of our deceased ancestors at least four generations back, or as far back as we can go, and submit them for clearance so that the temple ordinances can be performed in their behalf. ln this way we become saviors on Mount Zion. (TPJS, p. 330) Let's discuss, now, some scriptures that deal with this subject of perfection. In the Book of Mormon the Prophet Moroni admonished us: "Yea, come unto Christ, and be perfected in him, and deny yourselves of all ungodliness; and if ye shall deny yourselves of all ungodliness, and love God with all your might, mind and strength, then is his grace sufficient for you, that by his grace ye may be perfect in Christ; and if by the grace of God ye are perfect in Christ, ye can in nowise deny the power of God." He continues to explain that only by becoming perfect in Christ will a person be sanctified: "And again, if ye by the grace of God are perfect in Christ, and deny not his power, then are ye sanctified in Christ by the grace of God, through the shedding of the blood of Christ, which is in the covenant of the Father unto the remission of your sins, that ye become holy, without spot." (Moroni 10:32-33) ln a revelation given to the Prophet Joseph Smith in 1831, the Lord said: "And again, verily I say unto you that it is a privilege, and a promise I give unto you that have been ordained unto this ministry, that inasmuch as you strip yourselves from jealousies and fears, and humble yourselves before me, for ye are not sufficiently humble, the veil shall be rent and you shall see me and know that I am--not with the carnal neither natural mind, but with the spiritual. For no man has seen God at any time in the flesh, except quickened by the Spirit of God.  Ye are not able to abide the presence of God now, neither the ministering of angels; wherefore, continue in patience until ye are perfected. Let not your minds turn back; and when ye are worthy, in mine own due time, ye shall see and know...." (D&C 67:10-14)

Those who gain a perfect knowledge of Christ will not be kept without the veil, but as the brother of Jared will be allowed entrance into the veil. (Ether 3:7, 20; Jacob 4:12) The celestial glory will be inherited by just men made perfect in Christ. (D&C 76:69)

Unto those who who keep the commandments, the light of God will grow brighter and brighter within them, until the perfect day. (D&C 50:24) Such individuals will receive "...truth and light, until [they are] glorified in truth and knoweth all things." (D&C 93:28) Unto such people the Lord will "...reveal all mysteries, yea, all the hidden mysteries of [his] kingdom from days of old, and for ages to come, will [he] make known unto them the good pleasure of [his] will concerning all things pertaining to [his] kingdom. Yea, even the wonders of eternity shall they know, and things to come will [he] show them, even the things of many generations. And their wisdom shall be great, and their understanding reach to heaven; and before them the wisdom of the wise shall perish, and the understanding of the prudent shall come to naught. For by [his] Spirit will [he] enlighten them, and by [his] power will [he] make known unto them the secrets of [his] will--yea, even those things which eye has not seen, nor ear heard, nor yet entered into the heart of man." And to such as those who love God and purify themselves before him "...he grants this privilege of seeing and knowing for themselves; That through the power and manifestation of the Spirit, while in the flesh, they may be able to bear his presence in the world of glory." (D&C 76:5-10; 116-118) But those who "...cannot bear all things now...must grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth" until they are perfected. (D&C 50:40) Just prior to the Prophet Joseph's death he advised all the saints "...to go on to perfection, and search deeper and deeper into the mysteries of Godliness." (TPJS, p. 364)

Having discussed this subject of perfection, now, what is it that we must do to obtain it? The answer is very simple. We must learn what God desires of us, and then we must do it. His will is manifest to us through three main sources: the scriptures, the living prophets, and the Spirit. As we learn his will we then must have the inner strength to do it. Obedience to God demonstrates our love for him. The Lord said: "lf a man love me, he will keep my words." (John 14:21-23)

We must be careful that we do not take things for granted. Marion G. Romney commented how the saints take too many things for granted. He said: "We assume that because we are members of the Church, we shall receive as a matter of course all the blessings of the gospel. I have heard people contend that they have a claim upon them because they have been through the temple, even though they are not careful to keep the covenants they there made. I do not think this will be the case. We might take a lesson from an account given by the prophet of a vision of the resurrection, in which he records that one of the saddest things he had ever witnessed was the sorrow of members of the Church who came forth to a resurrection below that which they had taken for granted they would receive." (IE, Nov 1949, pp. 719, 752, 754)

Now, in conclusion, my dear brethren and sisters. I testify with all my heart and soul, that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and that he was crucified that we might live. I know that we can come unto Christ, step by step, line upon line, and receive grace for grace, until we are perfected in him. I testify that we can come to know the Father and the Son in a very real and literal way, as President Kimball said. Through the power and manifestations of the Holy Spirit we can experience to our heart's desire all that God has for us. And it will come to us in his own way and in his own time. (D&C 88:68) Let us do all within our power to obtain perfection so that we may dwell with our Father in the mansions above is my prayer.

SACRAMENT MEETING TALK GIVEN IN THE FORT KNOX WARD
LOUISVILLE KENTUCKY STAKE
MOTHER'S DAY, 8 MAY 1988
by Richard A. Ware

My dear brethren and sisters. I am grateful for the honor and privilege to speak to you today, on Mother's Day. At the request of the bishopric I will speak on the subject of women, who they are, their sacred role, their divine potential, and the manner in which the brethren should relate to them. I pray for the Lord's spirit to be with all of us during the few moments that I will be making my comments so that we all might obtain a vision of these things in our mind's eye.

Scripturally, we know that women are spirit daughters of Father and Mother in heaven. While in the pre-earth life they matured spiritually, intellectually, and emotionally through the skillful guidance of their heavenly parents, until they had developed very special feminine characteristics and qualities. Women born today were among the noble and elect of God. They were valiant in their first estate and were preserved until these last days. Their unique strengths and capacities are crucial in the war against darkness, sin and evil.

Those women who have been baptized and received the Holy Ghost have been cleansed of their personal sins and are on the path to eternal life. They have access to all the gifts of the spirit including the gift to teach the word of wisdom, the gift to teach the word of knowledge, the gift of exceedingly great faith, the gift of faith to heal and be healed, the gift of tongues, the gift of interpretation of languages and divers tongues, the gift of discerning of spirits, the working of miracles, and the beholding angels and ministering spirits. The Prophet Joseph told the sisters: "If you live up to your privileges, the angels cannot be restrained from being your associates. Females, if they are pure and innocent, can come in the presence of God; for what is more pleasing to God than innocence...." (TPJS, pp. 226-227) Innocence in this sense, is the quality of being without sin, guiltless. Those women who have gone on and received their endowment realize the reality of this blessing, and if they had sufficient faith, could come into the presence of God and angels.

Women who have entered the covenant of eternal marriage have received their kingdom on earth with a promise that it will be theirs in eternity, if faithful. It is essential to know that the man is not without the woman, nor the woman without the man, in the Lord. The man and the woman are two halves that form a whole. They are incomplete without the other. President Kimball said: "...our Father made men and women dependent on each other for the full flowering of their potential. Because their natures are somewhat different, they can complement each other; because they are in many ways alike, they can understand each other. Let neither envy the other for their differences; let both discern what is superficial and what is beautifully basic in those differences, and act accordingly." (Ensign/March 1976, pp. 4-5)

Within the marriage relationship, each partner has a unique and important role to perform that cannot be performed by the other. Those roles are God given and we cannot neglect them without causing unhappiness and sorrow in our lives. Concerning the role of the woman, President N. Eldon Tanner said:

We must never forget that one of woman's greatest privileges, blessings, and oPPortunities is to be a co-partner with God in bringing his spirit children into the world.
It is a great concern to all who understand this glorious concept that Satan and his cohorts are using scientific arguments and nefarious propaganda to lure women away from their primary responsibilities as wives, mothers, and homemakers. We hear so much about emancipation, independence, sexual liberation, birth control, abortion, and other insidious propaganda belittling the role of motherhood, all of which is Satan's way of destroying woman, the home, and the family---the basic unit of society. (CR, October 1973, pp. 123-124)

This does not mean that mothers and wives cannot develop their skills in all areas of culture, refinement, education, knowledge, perfection, etc. But there is a reason for developing these skills. President Kimball explained:

I wish to say without equivocation that a woman will find no greater satisfaction and joy and peace and make no greater contribution to mankind than in being a wise and worthy woman and raising good children....We are interested in our sisters having everything that is good. We believe in having all these blessings--culture, refinement, education, knowledge, perfection--so that the mothers of our children may be able to rear and train them in righteousness. (Ensign/March 1975, p. 4)

Mothers who understand the vision of the work which they are doing realize they are not just having babies and trying to get them raised, but their labors are much more grand and glorious than that. First, they realize they are co-partners with God in providing earthly tabernacles for his children. Imagine the sacredness of this power. Only women are suited with the ability to organize the elements into male and female bodies. And prior to birth, a spirit will come and dwell in that little body, which is still within the mother, so that it can become acquainted with it and learn how to begin to control the elements of its new found home. This power may be common among women here on earth, but in the next life it will be restricted only to the Gods of heaven. Secondly, women with vision understand they are helping these children of God to become Gods themselves. Just think of it---the role of mother is to teach and inspire her children to not only become successful in this life, but to become gods themselves. Can you imagine what the mothers of Helaman's 2,000 stripling warriors must have told their sons? In order to assist their children in becoming gods, mothers will draw close to the Master Creator and will draw from the power of the spirit. They will search the scriptures to understand the plan of redemption and they will know and love it better than any other subject. Because of this, her children will feel of God's power and be made strong because of her knowledge and testimony. Homemaking skills are essential in that they teach industriousness and help the mother to create and beautify her garden of eden. But nothing is more important than understanding the plan of redemption, having a burning testimony of it, and imparting that knowledge to her children. I believe the Savior tried to help Martha understand this idea when he was at their home, and Martha wanted Mary to help with the chores rather than listen to the Master. He told Martha that Mary had chosen the better part. We must not become so preoccupied with earthly chores that we neglect or put second the duty of bringing ourselves and our families back to God.

In addition to the responsibility of bringing spirit children into the world and teaching them, women also have the God given role of being a "helpmeet" to her husband. What does it mean to be a helpmeet? It means she has the responsibility to help her husband accomplish his God-given role so that they can both be exalted. His role centers first within the family, and secondly to the world. The word "helpmeet" (Genesis 2:18) has the same meaning that "auxiliary" does within the church. She is first, an aid to her husband to assist him in performing the priesthood duties which are upon his shoulders within the family. This means she will preside in his absence and carry on the activities and programs of the family which they have agreed upon, doing what he would do if he were there. When he is there she will assist him in family home evenings, family prayers, and counseling him as to how best to accomplish their temporal and spiritual goals. Secondly, she will encourage her husband to be faithful to his priesthood responsibilities with the church, to do his home teaching, and to perform valiantly. By doing this the woman can help assure her own exaltation, and that of her husband.

Now brethren, how should we treat our wives? From what we have discussed thus far, it is apparent to me that we should reverence and respect our wives. Paul the apostle spoke of three vital relationships which must exist within the patriarchal order in order for it to function properly. He said: "[1] the head of every man is Christ; and [2] the head of the woman is the man; and [3] the head of Christ is God." (1 Corinthians 11:3) The relationship which the Savior had with his Father is amply demonstrated throughout the four gospels. The Father loved his Son, and manifested that love to him in many personal ways. Christ also loved the Father, and did not seek to do his own will, but rather to do the will of his Father. Even in the garden of Gethsemane, when he found the burden hard to bear, and asked the cup to pass from him, he said "nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done." (Luke 22:42) The Father and the Son were one in spirit, in power, and in mission. (John 17:21-23)

Just as the Father and the Son are one, it is the challenge of every husband to be one with the Son, and to respond to the Savior in the same way that the Savior responded to his Father. Only through obedience can the husband partake of the love of the Father and the Son. (John 14:21-23; 15:9-12) He must keep all the commandments and observe all the laws of God. If he does not, he mocks God and breaks sacred covenants, and will be held accountable for his actions. Only through obedience to God will the husband be enabled to have the love, kindness and patience required, as well as the visions and revelations necessary to preside in the home as he should. By doing this the husband will be respected by his wife. She needs to know that obedience to God comes first in his life.

In addition to being one with Christ, Paul said: "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it...so ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loveth his wife loveth himself." (Ephesians 5:25-28) Husbands need to live the example of the Savior and love their wives just as Christ loved the Church and gave himself for it.

Physical or verbal abuse has no place in the patriarchal order.

In the marriage relationship "no woman has ever been asked by the Church authorities to follow her husband into an evil pit. She is to follow him as he follows and obeys the Savior of the world, but in deciding this, she should always be sure she is fair", said President Kimball (Ensign/March 1976, pp. 71-73).

If the husband will become one with the Son, and the wife one with her husband, they will gain access to all the blessings of heaven. Unity and oneness must pervade their feelings for one another and within the home. For "if ye are not one ye are not mine." (D&C 38:27) But if they are one, the promise is, that "where two or three are gathered together in my name, as touching one thing, behold, there will I be in the midst of them---even so am I in the midst of you." (D&C 6:32) A husband and wife must not let "the sun go down upon [their] wrath" (Ephesians 4:26) if they expect the Lord to hear their prayers.
Ill feelings towards one another must not exist as they gather daily in their family prayer circles.

The destiny of a woman, a mother, is to become a queen and priestess to her husband, to rule and reign with him, in eternity, over their kingdom. As a goddess, she will hold great power and authority. With her husband she will function as an indisolvable part of a godhead, for you cannot speak of God without saying that he is both male and female. Adam and Eve were created in the image of God, male and female. With her husband she will be a member of the church of the firstborn; and she will receive of the Father's fulness and of his glory. All things are theirs, and they shall dwell in the presence of God forever. No doubt the Queen of England receives great respect and honor. But the women of this world who go on to become the queens of heaven will have that same respect and honor multiplied by the number of stars in heaven or by the number of sands upon the seashore. All the elements will bow in homage and reverence to her, because she has been faithful to her own role and calling, and has been faithful to God.

Brethren, love your wives. Treat them with dignity and respect. Listen to their counsel and advice. Never ridicule or ignore them. Do not let the burdens of the office come between you and your wife. Seek to fulfill her every need. It is not important whether or not you think her need is valid. Your duty is to try and fill her needs. And as you do, she will come back to you in the same way, only a hundred fold more. Women are like the ocean waters. Whatever you cast upon them will come back to you an hundred fold. Their happiness, brethren, is your duty.

Sisters, do not think less of yourselves than what you are. Remember, you are of inestimable worth; God loves you and will forgive your sins and weakness. Do not delay in your efforts to come unto God. Be one with him and with your husband. Dress your garden of eden with all that is pure and wholesome. You shall receive all the blessings of exaltation in God's own time, and in his own way, and according to his own will. (D&C 88:68) Do not let the world corrupt you, for you are destined to become the queens of eternity. I bless the name of woman, of mother, and thank God for my own mother, and wife, in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

THE BUILDING & REDEMPTION OF ZION

by Richard A. Ware

1. The building up of Zion is the main goal towards which we should work as individuals, families, and as a church.

2. The people must first be gathered, then they can be redeemed.
3. The redemption of Zion will take place in the temples.

4. The redemption of Zion was postponed in 1834 due to selfishness and greed on the part of the saints (D&C 105). The redemption of Zion was again postponed in 1890 because of the saints unworthiness.

5. In 1961 the First Presidency commissioned Harold B. Lee to direct the work of correlating the efforts of the Church. This became known as the correlation program. In 1967 Paul Royal (Exec Sec to Pres David 0. McKay) said the correlation program was the same one which the city of Enoch had, and which got them translated, and would do the same for us at the second coming of the Lord. President N. Eldon Tanner said the correlation program was to prepare us for the second coming.
Apparently the efforts to build Zion were again resumed in the early 1960's where many of the plans were laid by the First Presidency as to the direction we should take as a church. Throughout the 60's the plans were being. Then in the 1970's President Kimball implemented many of those plans throughout the world. They counseled the people everywhere to stay where they were because the stakes of Zion would become the future cities of Zion. Fulness of the priesthood blessings began to be given more abundantly to hundreds of faithful saints. Welfare regions were defined and broadened; the First Quorum of Seventy filled; the Assistants to the Twelve eliminated; temples built at an accelerated pace; missionaries increased from a few thousand to over 30,000---to accelerate the work of bringing into the fold the elect of God. While the 1960's seemed to signal the forward motion of our efforts to build and redeem Zion once again, the 1970's was full of action, putting into effect those plans which were laid in the 60's, all designed to prepare a people for the second coming by building up Zion.

THE BUILDING & REDEMPTION OF ZION

1. Genesis, I.V., 9:21-23 (The Lord speaking to Noah)

And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant, which I made unto thy father Enoch; that, when men should keep all my commandments, Zion should again come on the earth, the city of Enoch which I have caught up unto myself.
And this is mine everlasting covenant, that when thy posterity shall embrace the truth, and look upward, then shall Zion look downward, and all the heavens shall shake with gladness, and the earth shall tremble with joy;
And the general assembly of the church of the first-born shall come down out of heaven, and possess the earth, and shall have place until the end come.
And this is mine everlasting covenant, which I made with thy father Enoch.

2. Psalms 137

By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion.
We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof. For there they that carried us away captive required of us a song; and they that wasted us required of us mirth, saying, Sing us one of the songs of Zion.
How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land?
If I forget thee, 0 Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy.

[Concerning this psalm, Rodney Turner said:]

In the sixth century B.C. the Jewish kingdom, the southern kingdom of Judah, was taken captive into Babylon. At the time of their captivity Jerusalem was decimated, and the horrors which took place in that city few people comprehend. But the Babylonians slaughtered many thousands of Jews, a slaughter perhaps equaled only by the Romans in 70 A.D. And so the Jews went into what is known as the "Babylonian captivity" for some seventy years. Thus, all twelve tribes were driven out of their land of promise because they had not honored their fathers and mothers and had lost their commitment to Jehovah. In time, the opportunity to return to the land of Zion was afforded them by the Persians. ("Joseph Smith Lecture Series", What Is Zion?, 1972-73, p. 22)

3. Book of Moses 7:69
And Enoch and all his people walked with God, and he dwelt in the midst of Zion; and it came to pass that Zion was not, for God received it up into his own bosom; and from thence went forth the saying, Zion is fled.

4. 1 Nephi 13:37

And blessed are they who shall seek to bring forth my Zion at that day, for they shall have the gift and the power of the Holy Ghost; and if they endure unto the end they shall be lifted up at the last day, and shall be saved in the everlasting kingdom of the Lamb.

5. D&C 21:7-8; Revelation given April 6, 1830

For thus saith the Lord God: Him [Joseph] have I inspired to move the cause of Zion in mighty power for good, and his diligence I know, and his prayers I have heard.
Yea, his weeping for Zion I have seen, and I will cause that he shall mourn for her no longer; for his days of rejoicing are come unto the remission of his sins, and the manifestations of my blessings upon his works.

THE TEMPLE

* * *

The building up of Zion is a cause that has interested the people of God in every age; it is a theme upon which prophets, priests and kings have dwelt with peculiar delight; they have looked forward with joyful anticipation to the day in which we live; and fired with heavenly and joyful anticipations they have sung and written and prophesied of this our day; but they died without the sight; we are the favored people that God has made choice of to bring about the Latter-day glory; it is left for us to see, participate in and help to roll forward the Latter-day glory, "the dispensation of the fullness of times, when God will gather together all things that are in heaven, and all things that are upon the earth, 'even in one'", when the Saints of God will be gathered in one from every nation, and kindred, and people, and tongue, when the Jews will be gathered together into one, the wicked will also be gathered together to be destroyed, as spoken of by the prophets; the Spirit of God will also dwell with His people, and be withdrawn from the rest of the nations, and all things whether in heaven or on earth will be in one, even in Christ. The heavenly Priesthood will unite with the earthly, to bring about those great purposes; and whilst we are thus united in the one common cause, to roll forth the kingdom of God, the heavenly Priesthood are not idle spectators, the Spirit of God will be showered down from above, and it will dwell in our midst. The blessings of the Most High will rest upon our tabernacles, and our name will be handed down to future ages; our children will rise up and call us blessed; and generations yet unborn will dwell with peculiar delight upon the scenes that we have passed through, the privations that we have endured; the untiring zeal that we have manifested; the all but insurmountable difficulties that we have overcome in laying the foundation of a work that brought about the glory and blessing which they will realize; a work that God and angels have contemplated with delight for generations past; that fired the souls of the ancient patriarchs and prophets; a work that is destined to bring about the destruction of the powers of darkness, the renovation of the earth, the glory of God, and the salvation of the human family.

2. J.D. 10:147; Remarks given by Elder John Taylor, Delivered in the Bowery, Salt Lake City; April 6, 1863.

In fact, if there is anything great, noble, dignified, exalted, anything pure, or holy, or virtuous, or lovely, anything that is calculated to exalt or ennoble the human mind, to dignify and elevate the people, it will be found among the people of the Saints of the Most High God. This is only a faint outline of some of our views in relation to these things, and hence we talk of returning to Jackson county to build the most magnificent temple that ever was formed on the earth and the most splendid city that was ever erected; yea, cities, if you please. The architectural designs of those splendid edifices, cities, walls, gardens, bowers, streets, &c., will be under the direction of the Lord, who will control and manage all these matters; and the people, from the President down, will all be under the guidance and direction of the Lord in all the pursuits of human life, until eventually they will be enabled to erect cities that will be fit to be caught up---that when Zion descends from above, Zion will also ascend from beneath, and be prepared to associate with those from above. The people will be so perfected and purified, ennobled, exalted, and dignified in their feelings and so truly humble and most worthy, virtuous and intelligent that they will be fit, when caught up, to associate with that Zion that shall come down from God out of heaven.

3. J.D. 10:251, 254; Remarks by President Brigham Young, made in the Bowery, Salt Lake City; October 6, 1863

I want to see the [Salt Lake] Temple built in a manner that it will endure through the Millennium. This is not the only Temple we shall build; There will be hundreds of them built and dedicated to the Lord. This Temple will be known as the first Temple built in the mountains by the Latter-day Saints. And when the Millennium is over, and all the sons and daughters of Adam and Eve, down to the last of their posterity, who come within the reach of the clemency of the Gospel, have been redeemed in hundreds of Temples through the administration of their children as proxies for them, I want that Temple still to stand as a proud monument of the faith, perseverance and industry of the Saints of God in the mountains, in the nineteenth century.

4. J.D. 11:337; President George Q. Cannon; March 3, 1867; Gospel Truth, pp. 42-43.

God in his revelations has informed us that it was on this choice land of Joseph where Adam was placed and the Garden of Eden was laid out. The spot has been designated, and we look forward with peculiar feelings to repossessing that land. We expect when that day shall come that we will be a very different people to what we are today. We will be prepared to commune with heavenly beings; at any rate the preparation will be going on very rapidly for Jesus to be revealed.
We expect that a society will be organized there that will be a pattern of heavenly society, that when Jesus and the heavenly beings who come with him are revealed in the clouds of heaven, their feelings will not be shocked by the change, for a society will be organized on the earth whose members will be prepared through the revelations of God to meet and associate with them, if not on terms of perfect equality, at least with some degree of equality.

5. J.D. 17:122; Discourse by Elder Orson Pratt, delivered in the New Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday afternoon, June 14, 1874.

If we would be sanctified then, we must begin today, or whenever the Lord points out, to obey his laws just as far as we possibly can; and by obedience to these laws we continually gain more and more favor from heaven, more and more of the Spirit of God, and thus will be fulfilled a revelation given in 1834, which says that before Zion is redeemed, let the armies of Israel become very great, let them become sanctified before me, that they may be as fair as the sun, clear as the moon, that their banners may be terrible unto all the nations of the earth. Not terrible by reason of numbers, but terrible because of the sanctification they will receive through obedience to the law of God. Why was Enoch, and why were the inhabitants of the Zion built up before the flood terrible to all nations around about? It was because, through a long number of years, they observed the law of God, and when their enemies came upon to fight against them, Enoch, being filled with the power of the Holy Ghost, and speaking the word of God in power and in faith, the very heavens trembled and shook, and the earth quaked, and the mountains were thrown down, rivers of water were turned out of their course, and all nations feared greatly because of the power of God, and the terror of his might that were upon his people.

6. J.D. 17:250; Discourse given by Elder Wilford Woodruff; October 9, 1874.

Jesus will never receive the Zion of God unless its people are united according to celestial law, for all who go into the presence of God have to go there by this law. Enoch had to practice this law, and we shall have to do the same if we are ever accepted of God as he was. It has been promised that the New Jerusalem will be built up in our day and generation, and it will have to be done by the United Order of Zion according to celestial law.

7. J.D. 17:263; Discourse given by President George Q. Cannon, October 11, 1874.

I do not know any better thing that we can engage in than to build up the Zion of God. It is as good and as great a labor as we can be engaged in; in fact, it is the labor which God has assigned unto us as a people and as individuals, and if any of us are engaged in anything else, we are not in the line of our duty, and we should turn aside from that and pursue the path which God has marked out.

8. Record of Blessings and Baptisms, Sanpete Stake, Fairview Ward, No. 1834, p. 118; July 2, 1875.

Baptisms upon renewal of covenants. Prayer by President Orson Hyde. Following member of the Board of the United Order were baptized by President Erastus Snow and confirmed by President Hyde. The following ceremony being used at the baptizing:

Having authority given me of Jesus Christ, I baptize you for the remission of your sins and the renewal of your covenants and the observance of the rules of the United Order, in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, even so, Amen.

[This ordinance was necessary for entrance into the Kingdom Government.]

9. J.D. 18:356; Discourse given by Pres. Brigham Young, delivered at the Annual Conference, held in the Temple, at St. George; Friday morning, April 6, 1877.

We have no business here other than to build up and establish the Zion of God. It must be done according to the will and law of God, after that pattern and order by which Enoch built up and perfected the former-day Zion, which was taken away to heaven, hence the saying went abroad that Zion had fled. By and by it will come back again, and as Enoch prepared his people to be worthy of translation, we through our faithfulness must prepare ourselves to meet Zion from above when it shall return to earth, and to abide the brightness and glory of its coming.
My brethren and sisters, I do really delight in hearing our brethren speak on this holy order of heaven. Unity of purpose and action, in carrying out the will of our Father, has been my theme all the day long; but I have continually plead with the Saints not to waste their substance upon the lust of the eye and the flesh for that is contrary to the will and commandments of God.

10. J.D. 21:253; Discourse by Pres. John Taylor, delivered at Ogden Tabernacle; Sunday, March 21, 1880.

Here we are. We are organized under the direction of the Almighty, and as I before said, not according to our ideas and notions, but according to the word and will and revelations and law of God. And none of us can do anything only as God permits us. What are we going to do? We are going to build up Zion. What then? When Zion is built up---and it is not built up yet; but it will be built up. . .then we will build up our Zion after the pattern that God will show us, and we will be governed by his law and submit to his authority and be governed by the holy priesthood and by the word and will of God. And then when the time comes that these calamities we read of, shall overtake the earth, those that are prepared will have the power of translation, as they had in former times, and the city will be translated. And Zion that is on the earth will rise, and the Zion above will descend, as we are told, and we will meet and fall on each other's necks and embrace and kiss each other.

11. J.D. 26:320; Discourse delivered by Pres. George Q. Cannon; August 26, 1883.

Joseph said in the beginning that it was the duty of the Elders of this Church to labor constantly to build up Zion and not to build up that which is opposed to Zion. . . .God has not required it of me that I should build up anything that is opposed to Zion but on the contrary that I should always keep in my thoughts and be influenced by it in my actions that which will advance the cause of Zion and that which will not retard it or operate against it in any manner.

12. J.D. 25:305; Discourse by Pres. John Taylor, delivered in the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Monday and Tuesday, October 6 & 7, 1884; Semi-Annual Conference of the Church.

Furthermore, in the latter days there is to be a Zion built up; but in these days we are told that the Lord will cut His work short in righteousness. Enoch, in his day, had his messengers go forth among the people, and when they gathered, it induced the rage of man, and great armies assembled against the Saints; but Enoch prophesied by the power of God, and the earth shook and the mountains trembled, and the enemies of the Saints in fear fled afar off. By and by when the time came for the accomplishment of the purposes of God, and before the destruction of the wicked, Enoch was caught up to heaven and his Zion with him. And we are told in latter revelation in relation to these matters that a Zion will be built up in our day; that great trouble will overtake the inhabitants of the earth; and that when the time arrives, the Zion that was caught up will descend, and the Zion that will be organized here will ascend, both possessed of the same spirit, their peoples having been preserved by the power of God according to His purposes and as His children, to take part in the events of the latter days. We are told that when the people of these two Zions meet, they will fall on each others' necks, and embrace and kiss each other.

13. Gospel Truth, p. 42; General Semi-Annual Conference, October 8, 1899; President George Q. Cannon; Conference Report, pp. 50-53.

I do fear that we will defer the redemption of Zion indefinitely through our unwillingness to do the things that God requires at our hands. I have not an earthly doubt that this revelation given in 1834 would have been fulfilled to the very letter had our people obeyed the Lord as He desired; neither do I believe now that the redemption of Zion will be long deferred if the people will obey the Lord and keep His commandments. But the difficulty is, our hearts are hard and almost impenetrable in many instances. . . .Let us labor continually for the redemption of Zion and for the time when the promises which God has made to Zion will be fulfilled that we may build the center Stake of Zion and rear the house of the Lord there. There are men standing in this generation that will see it accomplished; but we do not want it put off to the very last. Let us all strive to fit and quality ourselves and our families by obeying the commandments of God to the fullest extent so that we and our families may be remembered among those who shall be counted worthy to take part in the glorious work of redeeming Zion and enjoying the blessings thereof.

14. Heber J. Grant Letter Book 272 #14; Letter to Elder Kenneth G. Allen, from the First Presidency.

[1920's]

Elder Kenneth G. Allen
Tacoma, Washington.....#323

If you will refer to the Doctrine and Covenants you will notice that all of the revelations referring to the law of consecration were given before the law of tithing. You will also note under the heading of United Order that generally the same references which refer to consecration are made to refer to the United Order. The law of consecration provided that members coming into the Church should consecrate all of their posses sions, or lay them before the Church, after which those who had been properly appointed for the purpose would give to each individual his stewardship which he would use for his own purpose. This law for a period was in force in the Church. In June 1834 this law was suspended, and the Lord declared it to not be operative or to be executed until after Zion should be redeemed. (See Doctrine and Covenants 106:34).
The United Order, which was instituted in the Church during the administration of President Brigham Young, while it differed in some essentials, was the same in spirit as the law of consecration. Under this order, which was put into effect and which was successfully operated in different parts of the Church, all of the property of the individual was turned into a company, and all of the members of society worked without compensation except that which they received to provide for their necessities of life. The merchant, the mechanic, the manufacturer, the farmer, the herdsman and flockmaster all attended to their duties, and the returns from all of these various industries went into one storehouse, where an accounting was taken and from which they were disbursed to those who were members of the order in proportion to their necessities. This proved in some instances to be very successful method, so far as the acquisition of property was concerned, and comparative equality was thus brought about between members of the Church. It only continued for a few years however, after which the property which had been accumulated was distributed among the owners upon a principle of equity and righteousness and people returned again to the old methods of individual effort.
It will thus be seen that while the two orders, the law of consecration and the United Order differed in detail, they had the same purpose in view, to bring about a greater degree of equality among the members of the Church, that there might be neither rich nor poor among them.

15. Conference Report, p. 36; General Conference, April, 1940; Speech given by Elder John A. Widtsoe.

From one point of view, it is selfish enough, perhaps, to keep the commandments that I may be blessed, but it is something even greater to keep the commandments that Zion may be established. As the foundation of his great cause, the Lord gave the law of sacrifice. Unless we give of ourselves we cannot build Zion, or anything else worthy of the great cause that the Lord has given us. The law of sacrifice, from the day of Adam to the present day, in one form or another, is the basic principle of life among the communities of Saints.
So we need, in this Church and kingdom, for our own and the world's welfare, a group of men and women in their individual lives who shall be as a light to the nations, and rally standards for the world to follow. Such a people must be different from the world as it now is. There is no opportunity for Latter-day Saints to say we shall be as the world is, unless the world has the same aim that we have. We are here to build Zion to Almighty God, for the blessing of all the world. In that aim we are unique and different from all other peoples. We must respect that obligation, and not be afraid of it. We cannot walk as other men or talk as other men, or do as other men, for we have a different destiny, obligation, and responsibility placed upon us, and we must fit ourselves for that great destiny and obligation.

16. Conference Report, April, 1947; General Conference address by Elder Marion G. Romney, April 1947; Look To God & Live, p. 170.

I believe that through the welfare program the Church is attempting to abide by the second commandment, "thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." (Matt. 22:39) I believe that it was for want of such love that the United Order experiment was terminated; that the records will show that the reason was the selfishness and greed of the people; that had the people lived the United Order, we could have had a millennium then, a hundred years ago; that if we do not go forward with the welfare program and live it now, it will be because of our selfishness and greed, and the Lord will take the program away from us; and that in such case the members of the Church a hundred years from now will look back upon our day with the realization of the fact that we could have brought in a millennium if we had but lived this law. When we live it, then only will swords be beat into plowshares and that day of peace arrive.

17. The Improvement Era/December 1954, p. 907; Elder Marion G. Romney.

The very building of Zion and the escape of the saints from the tribulations yet to pour out upon the nations turn upon a full compliance with the "royal law." We can with profit let our minds dwell upon these things; for Zion, "the New Jerusalem," is yet to be built, and it is to be a "land of peace, a city of refuge, a place of safety for the saints of the most high God. . . .And every man that will not take his sword against his neighbor must needs flee unto Zion for safety. * * *
When shall we build it? You ask. Well, according to the scriptures, not until we can fully and ungrudgingly yield obedience to the royal law. For the Lord has made it plain that Zion cannot be built up until the Saints become united according to the "union required by the laws of the celestial kingdom," which laws, he explains, require us to impart of our substance "as becometh saints, to the poor and afflicted" among us.

18. Relief Society Magazine, March 1964, p. 169; General Conference address entitled: "Train Up A Child", October 3, 1963; Elder Marion G. Romney.

You know, sisters, if mothers and fathers would under the direction of the Holy Spirit, strictly follow the commandments of the Lord and the counsels of his prophets to train up their children in the way they should walk, the inhabitants of the earth would soon reach that glorious state enjoyed by the Nephites when "there were no contentions and disputations among them, and every man did deal justly one with another,". . . .
Although such a blessed state seems beyond our present hope, let us not forget that the Lord has given us the assurance that the survivors of our present generation will enjoy a like society. This assurance should, and I believe it does, give us a determination to train up our children in the way they should go that they with us may be participants in the fulfillment of that glorious promise.

19. Look To God & Live, p. 49; lst ed., 1971; Elder Marion G. Romney.

Jesus was here indicating [D&C 45:31-35] that their faith in the promised blessing incident to his second advent should calm the troubled souls of his disciples. Today we can get like comfort and courage by keeping in mind the events which will accompany his second coming.
Faith in promised blessings has always been the anchor to which the saints have moored their faith.
President Brigham Young said it was their vision of Zion as it would be in its glory which sustained the Saints as they crossed the plains. Paul said that Jesus himself "endured the cross" for the "joy that was set before him." (Hebrews 12:2) 20. Last Lecture Series: 1971-72, pp. 2-3; "Our Glory or Our Condemnation", by Hugh W. Nibley.

What then is heaven like? Paul tells us. 'But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart [that is the imagination]of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.' (1 Cor. 2:9.) But paradise is its earthly counterpart, the nearest earthly approach to heaven. This state is going to be restored to earth, but in a series of steps. If it were brought all at once, right now, the 'culture shock' would kill us. Indeed we have been given the challenge, 'Who shall be able to stand at his coming?' Only those who have prepared for the new environmental change by adapting themselves to it through a rigorous course of training. First must come the 'literal gathering of Israel' in which we are now engaged. Then, the return of the Ten Tribes, which we hope is soon to come. Then, the building up of the kingdom of God on earth preparatory to the establishment of Zion; Zion in turn preparing the earth to receive the Lord, after whose coming it will be possible to achieve the final state in which the earth is renewed and given its former glory. The midpoint and focus of the whole operation is Zion. Zion is the great moment of transition, the bridge between the world as it is and the world as God designed it and meant it to be.

21. The Ensign/July, 1973, p. 17; President Spencer W. Kimball.

And what a world it would be if nearly a hundred million families in this great land and other hundreds in other lands were praying for their sons and daughters twice daily, and that a world this world would be if a billion families through the world were in home evening and church activity and were on their physical knees pouring out their souls for their children, their family, their leaders, their governments!

This kind of family life could bring us toward the translation experience of righteous Enoch. The millennium would be ushered in.

22. The Ensign/May, 1977, pp. 92-95; General Conference address entitled: "The Purpose of Church Welfare Services", by Elder Marion G. Romney.

Since we have so far in this meeting concentrated on HOW we should minister in the Lord's own way, I shall center my remarks on WHY we are engaged in this great program. Almost from the beginning of my services in Church welfare I have had the conviction that what we are doing in this welfare work is preliminary to the reestablishment of the law of consecration and stewardship as required under the united order. If we could always remember the goal toward which we are working, we would never lose our bearings in this great work. * * *
And now in line with these remarks, for three things I pray:
1. That the Lord will quicken our understanding of the covenant of consecration which we who are endowed have all made. * * *
2. That we will study the talks of this session carefully and implement according to the dictates of the Spirit each facet of the welfare effort, particularly the establishment of the Lord's storehouses.
3. That through faithful observance of the principles of tithing, the fast, and the welfare program, we will prepare ourselves to redeem Zion and ultimately live the united order is my prayer, in the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord, Amen.

23. The Ensign/November, 1978, pp. 75-76; World General Conference of the Church, Welfare session; Saturday, September 30, 1978; Entitled: "The Fruit of Our Welfare Services Labors", by Pres. Spencer W. Kimball.

When we practice the precepts, doctrines, and programs of welfare services, the fruit of our labors is the building of Zion.
The Lord declared: "For Zion must increase in beauty, and in holiness; her borders must be enlarged; her stakes must be strengthened; yea, verily I say unto you, Zion must arise and put on her beautiful garments." (D&C 82:14; italics added). Zion consists of the pure in heart---those who are sanctified and whose garments are washed white through the blood of the Lamb (see Alma 13:11). These are they who take charity as a mantle and serve others out of a pure heart.
We are building up the strength of Zion---her cords or stakes---throughout the world. Therefore, we counsel our people to remain in their native lands and gather out the elect of God and teach them the ways of the Lord. There temples are being built and the saints will be blessed wherever they live in all the world.
The Lord revealed his new and everlasting covenant to prepare a prepare a people to meet him at his second coming. Very important among the principles and doctrines required of us to build up Zion are those which underlie welfare services. For we must be "united according to the union required by the law of the celestial kingdom; and Zion cannot be built up unless it is by the principles of the law of the celestial kingdom; otherwise I cannot receive her unto myself" (D&C 105:4-5). It is our present opportunity and responsibility to give, nurture, and work to bring forth the final fruits of welfare services, shown in vision to Enoch and recorded in the Book of Moses:

"And righteousness will I send down out of Heaven; and truth will I send forth out of the earth, to bear testimony of mine Only Begotten; his resurrection from the dead; yea, and also the resurrection of all men; and righteousness and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood, to gather out mind elect from the four quarters of the earth, unto a place which I shall prepare, an Holy City, that my people may gird up their loins, and be looking forth for the time of my coming; for their shall be my tabernacle, and it shall be called Zion, a New Jerusalem" (Moses 7:62).
It is my plea that we may keep our houses in order, individually and collectively, and prepare to receive the fruits of the gospel---even a fulness of joy.

24. Melchizedek Priesthood Personal Study Guide, 1978-79, pp. 181-182; Entitled: "Prepare Ye The Way Of The Lord".

Zion is a society composed of families and individuals who have been spiritually born of God and have matured in the gospel to the point that the Lord can come and dwell with them. It is a family-centered, covenant society of true saints, "the pure in heart," led by the Lord and his servants.

25. Church News, pp. 7-9, Week ending March 3, 1979; Article entitled: "Citizens of Zion", by Pres. Marion G. Romney. 3 Day Welfare Production-Distribution Seminar held in Salt Lake City.

Helping members of the Church qualify as citizens of Zion is the main purpose of Production-Distribution of Welfare Services, said President Marion G. Romney of the First Presidency.
President Romney listed requirements for members of the Church to qualify as citizens of Zion.
'Among the virtues one must possess to qualify for such citizenship is, first, the will to sustain himself by his own labor. The second qualification . . . is to possess the will to comply with the Lord's "law of giving" by helping to sustain the Lord's poor. The purpose of the Church welfare is to teach and encourage Church members to understand and implement in their living both of these qualifications.'
He said husbands also have a divinely imposed duty to support their wives and parents have a responsibility to care for their children.
'Children to qualify for citizenship in Zion must care for their parents. This obligation is often ignored. The rewards for observing it are great, however, and the penalties for disregarding it are severe.
He said that too often people are tempted to turn their parents over to public welfare and let the state take care of them. arguing by way of justification that as taxpayers they are entitled to public support.
'This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me,' quoted President Romney. 'The lesson emphasized . . . is that we should be so bound together as to be self sustaining as families. If we can successfully perform our duties, we shall have a great number of the saints qualify for citizenship in Zion...,' he said.

(These quotes will show that the Latter-day Saints were not living up to what the Lord was expecting from them. Each year they seemed to get a little worse, until the Zion laws and doctrines were taken away. Their wickedness prevented the Lord from fighting their battles. The Lord's anointed had not gone astray---rather it was the saints.)

2 P. M. Pres. Young called meeting to order, singing prayer, B. Young Jr. singing.

Elder Geo. Q. Cannon. 2.15 rejoiced in the meetings of yesterday and today The word of God when spoken by the spirit of God is very piercing and is very apt to reach to the very center where there is any love for God and regard for his teachings. We are living at a time toward which all the prophets looked with great interest the Saviour has left to us many promises as well as threatenings if we do not carry out the instructions which he gives unto us through his chosen seer. 10. last Bk. Nephi. Should we not fear and tremble when we are told by the servant of the Lord of the critical condition we are in. Without the united order we can not fulfil the prophecies of the ancients, We are to assist in establishing the bulwarks of the house of Israel. * * * An Almighty arm has ever been extended to help us in our times of need, in temples the holy priesthood became endowed and blessed with those gifts that they have been able to guide us and since we have received these privileges, God has delivered us time and again from difficulties until we forget that God is interested in our deliverances. As a people we are unworthy of the blessings God has bestowed upon us and I believe that he is angry with us that treat them, the holy ordinances of the Gospel as a thing of nought, because they are bestowed so freely upon the people we cease to value them as we should do, forgetting that by the authority of these ordinances, the heavens can be opened, the armies of aliens put to flight, and yet there are places in this Territory where those who hold these holy gifts do not meet together and never exercise the authority given them. I do not wonder in the light of the indifferences on these subjects at the rebuke our President has given to the Bishops High Priests &c.

* * * And thus saith the Lord unto mine Apostles and mine Elders when you do these things with Purity of heart & the Lord will hear your Prayers and am bound by oath and covenant to defend you and fight your battles as I have said in a former commandment it is not my will that mine Elders should fight the battle of Zion for I will fight your battle.

4. Minutes of the High Priests Quorum , Box Elder Stake, Feb. 24, 1880, p. 86.

Pres. Jensen referred to the condition of some of the High Priests in the Malad [Idaho] Ward who were contending one with another concerning some point of doctrine, which they did not understand. The point in dispute being, was Adam our God, some taking the affirmation and some the negative of the question. This was not right. We ought to allow these matters to rest until our minds were better informed regarding them. Contention leads to strife and ill feelings and eventually into apostasy. Hence how careful we ought to be in these regards.

5. J.D. 21:281-286; Given in the Assembly Hall at the Priesthood Meeting, Sunday Evening, July 4, 1880; Pres. Wilford Woodruff; Re-published in The Ensign/September 1971, pp. 16-22.

Many a time in my reflections I have wished I could fully comprehend the responsibility I am under to God, and the responsibility every man is under who bears the priesthood in this generation. But I tell you, brethren, I think our hearts are set too much upon the things of this world. We do not appreciate, as men bearing the holy priesthood in this generation should, the mighty responsibility we are under to God and high heaven, as well as to the earth. I think we are too far from the Lord. I do not think we live our religion as we ought to. I do not think our hearts are set upon building up the kingdom as they should be as Latter-day Saints. * * *

I feel that we as a people have got to rise up and clothe ourselves with the power of God. There must be a reformation, or a change, in our midst. There is too much evil among us. The devil has got too much power over us. A good many that bear the name of Christ and the holy priesthood, are getting cold in the things of God. We must wake up; we must trim our lamps, and be prepared for the coming of the Son of Man.

6. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; October 1, 1890, Wednesday; Salt Lake City, Utah; Meeting of the Quorum of the Twelve.
John H. Smith: I cannot feel to say that the manifesto is quite right or wrong. It may be that the people are unworthy of the principle and hence the Lord has withdrawn it. I cannot consent to cease living with my wives unless I am imprisoned.

7. Deseret News, November 7, 1891; Remarks made by President Wilford Woodruff at the Cache Stake Conference, held in Logan; Sunday afternoon on November 1, 1891. Reported by Arthur Winter. [This quote indicates that the Lord could no longer fight the saint's battles. Normally the only reason for that is unfaithfulness on the part of the saints. Thus, the only things left for the saints to do was to retreat from their enemies and obey their laws, or be destroyed as a church.]

I have had some revelations of late, and very important ones to me, and I will tell you what the Lord has said to me. Let me bring your minds to what is termed the Manifesto. The Lord has told me by revelation that there are many members of the Church throughout Zion who are sorely tried in their hearts because of that Manifesto. And also because of the testimony of the Presidency of the Church and the Apostles before the Master in Chancery. Since I received that revelation I have heard of many who are tried in these things, though I had not heard of any before that particularly. Now, the Lord has commanded me to ask the Latter-day Saints a question, and He also told me that if they would listen to what I said to them and answer the question put to them, by the spirit and power of God, they would all answer alike, and they would all believe alike with regard to this matter. The question is this: 'Which is the wisest course for the Latter-day Saints to pursue---to continue to attempt to practice plural marriage with the laws of the land against it and the opposition of 60,000,000 people and at the cost of the confiscation and loss of all the temples, and the stopping of all the ordinances therein, both for the living and the dead, and the imprisonment of the First Presidency and Twelve and heads of families in the Church, and the confiscation of all personal property of the people (all of which of themselves would not stop the practice), or after doing and suffering what we have through our adherence to this principle to cease the practice and submit to the law and through doing so, to leave the Prophets, Apostles, and fathers at home, so that they can instruct the people and attend to the duties of the Church, and also leave the temples in the hands of the Saints, so that they can attend to the ordinances of the gospel, both for the living and for the dead?

8. Journal of Charles L. Walker, June 11, 1892, St. George, Utah.
Pres. Woodruff and Cannon showed in a very plain manner that Adam was an immortal being when he came to this earth and was made the same as all other men and Gods are made; and that the seed of man was of the dust of the earth, and that the continuation of the seeds in a glorified state was eternal lives . . . Said it was not wisdom for the Elders to contend about such matters, and things they did not understand. And not to teach things to the children in the Sunday Schools they could not comprehend themselves . . . Showed the folly of some men because they cannot look up and prove by the Bible the glorious revelations that God has given, they receive them doubtfully. Showed that God had, and would yet, reveal many glorious things that men could not prove, and search out of the old Bible. Pres. Cannon said that it was not necessary that we should endorse the doctrine that some men taught that Adam was the Father of Jesus Christ. Counsel was given for the Elders to teach that which they knew, not that which they did not. The meeting was in session over three hours, and much good counsel was given to the Elders present on these things of late.

9. Proceedings of the First Sunday School Convention, Salt Lake City, Utah, 1898, p. 88. Elder George Q. Cannon, Superintendent.

I was stopped yesterday afternoon by a young man, who wanted to know whether Adam was the Father of our Lord and Savior -- whether he was the being we worshipped, etc. Now, we can get ourselves very easily puzzled, if we choose to do so, by speculating upon doctrines and principles of this character. The Lord has said through His Prophet that there are two personages in the Godhead. That ought to be sufficient for us at the present time . . . Concerning the doctrine in regard to Adam and the Savior, the Prophet Brigham Young taught some things concerning that; but the First Presidency and the Twelve do not think it wise to advocate these matters. It is sufficient to know we have a Father -- God the Eternal Father, who reveals Himself by His Holy Spirit unto those who seek Him; and that Jesus Christ is His Son, our Redeemer, the Savior of the world.

10. William H. Smart Diary, 1901-1902 Book, p. 94; July 28, 1901

At Wasatch Stake MIA Conference, remarks of Sister and President Joseph F. Smith: "Sister Smith bore a very strong testimony to the divinity of the principle of plural marriage. Pres. Smith endorsed it. He said it was taken away from the people--like the law of consecration--because the saints rejected it, and neither would be restored until there is a people prepared to live them. Anyone should beware that casts slurs upon the birth of those born under this covenant. Also that men who will not appreciate their wives and children and provide for them will lose them.

FILE:#51 WASHING OF FEET-CLEAN EVERY WHIT

Washing of feet
...after the ordiance had been performed, our Lord said: "Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him. If ye know thens things, happy are ye if ye do them." (John 13:13-17.)

December 27, 1832, this command was given to "the firs laborers in this last kingdom:: "Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your Father, and your God, and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75.) On that same occasion the command came to organize the school of the prophtes, with the express stipulation that "ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation; And he shall be received by the ordiance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted." [To make clean from the blood of this generation, not to enter just the school of the prophets but to enter a more exalted station even the highest of the kingdoms of the Celestial kingdom-No unclean thing can enter the kingdom of God.]

In the case of this school the ordiance is to be performed by the President of the Church. [But at other times it can be performed by those he gives this power.] In compliance with this revelation the Prophet on January 23, 1833, washed the feet of the members of the school of the prophets. "By the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation," he recorded. (History of the Church, vol. 1 pp. 322-324; vol. 2.p. 287.)

|c13|v0 Jesus washes the feet of the Twelve--He identifies Judas as his betrayer--He commands them to love one another.

|v1 Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.
|v2 And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;
|v3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God;
|v4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.
|v5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.
|v6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
|v7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter. [Here we see that Peter is getting the Melchizidek Priesthood Ordiance, seal, and confirmation, of becoming clean every whit. However he hasn't received the seal, ratification, confirmation, of the Holy Ghost to understand it fully. Therefore the Lord said "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter. This is the way of all ordiances. We must receive both seals, the seal of the priesthood and the ratifying seal of the Holy Ghost before it is ours and we trully understand it. This is the way it is for most couples as they receive the seals of the new and everlasting covenant of Marriage, D&C 131, 132,]
|v8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
|v9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.
|v10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.
|v11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.
|v12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?
|v13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.
|v14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

|v15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
|v16 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
|v17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

|v18 I speak not of you all: I know whom I have chosen: but that the scripture may be fulfilled, He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me.
|v19 Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.
|v20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.
(NewT:John 13:Heading-20)
Washing of feet is a gospel ordiance; it is a holy and sacred rite, one performed by the saints in the seclusion of the temple sanctuaries. It is not done before the world or for worldly people. For this day and dispensation Jesus instituted it in the upper room at the time of the Last Supper.

"Our Lord did two things in the performance of this ordinance: 1. He fulfilled the old law given to Moses; and 2. He instituted a sacred ordinance which should be performed by legal administrators among his true disciples from that day forward.

"As part of the restoration of all things, the ordinance of washing of feet has been restored in the dispensation of the fulness of times. In keeping with the standard pattern of revealing principles and practices line upon line and precept upon precept, the Lord revealed his will concerning the washing of feet little by little until the ful knowledge of the endowment and all temple ordinances had been given.

"December 27, 1832, this command was given to 'the firs laborers in the last kingdom': 'Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your father, and your God and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75.) On that same occasion the command came to organize the school of the prophets, with the express stipulation that 'ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation ["is clean every whit: and ye are clean" (John 13:10); [The same would hold true to enter the Highest Degree in the Celestial Kingdom; all saints from the least to the greatest must be washed and pronounced clean ever whit that "I [Jesus Christ] may testify unto you Father, and you God, and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75)] And he shall be received by the ordiance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted.' (D. & C. 88:127-141.)
"In the case of this school the ordinance is to be performed by the President of the Church. [This would indicate that others would receive this ordiance from the legal administrators appointed by the President of the Church or First Presidency.] In compliance with this revelaton the Prophet on January 23, 1833, washed the feet of the members of the school of the prophets. 'By the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation," he recorded. (History of the Church, vol. 1, pp. 322-324; vol. 2, p. 287.)
"Later apostles were called and ordained, and on November 12, 1835, the Prophet addressed them, as pertaining to the washing of feet where they were concerned: 'The item to which I wish the more particularly to call your attention tonight is the ordinance of washing of feet. This we [meaning the Twelve] have not done as yet, but it is necessary now, as much as it was in the days of the Savior; and we must have a place prepared, that we may attend to this ordinance aside from the world.

"'We have not desired as much from the hand of the Lord through faith and obedience, as we ought to have done, yet we have enjoyed great blessings, and we are not so sensible of this as we should be.... We must have all things prepared, and call our solemn assembly as the Lord has commanded us, that we may be able to accomplish his great work, and it must be done in God's own way. The house of the Lord must be prepared, and the solemn assembly called and organized in it, according to the order of ht ehouse of God; and in it we mus attend to the ordance of washing of feet. It was never intended for any but official members. It is calculated to unite our hearts, that we may be one in feeling and sentiment, and that our faith may be strong, so the Satan cannot overthrow us, nor have any power over us here.
"'The endowment you are so anxious about, you cannot comprehend now, nor could Gabriel explain it to the understanding of your dark minds; but strive to be prepared in your hearts, be faithful in all things, that when we meet in the solemn assembly, that is, when such as God shall name out of all the official shall meet, we must be clean ever whit.... The order of the house of God has been, and ever will be, the same, even after Christ comes; and after the termination of the thousand years it will be the same; and we shall finally enter the celestial kingdom of God, and enjoy it forever.' (History of the Chruch, vol. 2, pp. 308-309.)
"On Sunday, March 27, 1836, as part of the dedicatory services fo the Kirtland Temple, the congregation sang the glorious hymn, 'The Spirit of God Like a Fire is Burning!' One verse, as then sung, was:

> "'We'll wash and be washed, and with oil be anointed,
> Withal not omittin the washing of feet;
> For he that receiveth his penny appointed
> Must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat.'

[In otherwords all saints who intend to enter the Lords Kingdom before he comes in glory must have this ordiance performed or done by proxie or they cannot enter the Lords Kingdom, "For no unclean thing can enter the kingdom of God", and again it must needs be that we must "not omitt the washing of feet" and "must be "clean [every whit] at the harvest of wheat." And again, the Lord has commanded 'Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your Father, and your God, and my God, that you are clean [every whit] from the blood of this wicked generation.' (D. & C. 88:74-75.)
"On March 29 and 30, 1836, the leading brethren, including the First Presidency, Council of the Twelve, bishoprics, and preidents of quorums, participated in the ordiance of washing of feet. (History of the Chruch, vol. 2, pp. 426, 430-431.)
"It should be remembered that the endowment given in the Kirtland Temple was only a partial endowment, and that the full endowment was not performed until the saints had established themselves in Nauvoo. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp 241-242.) The full endowment--referred to in the revelation dated January 19, 1841 (D. & C. 124:36-41)--including washings and anointings except under unusual circumstances, is designed to be administered in the temples of the Lord.
Thus the knowledge relative to the washing of feet has been revealed step by step in this day until a full knowledge is now in corporated in the revaled ordiances of the Lord's house. Obviously the apostate peoples of the world, being without revelation to guide them, cannot comply with our Lord's command given on the occasion of the last supper." (Mormon Doctrine, pp. 751-753.) PROGRESSION BETWEEN KINGDOMS

by Richard Ware

1. The position of the Church today is, that it has no position one way or the other. This is so even though there have been brethren who have taught for and against the idea.

2. Those who have taught against the idea apparently are concerned that the Latter-day Saints will procrastinate their repentance if they thought they could sin now and latter get into the Celestial kingdom. This seemed to be Joseph Fielding Smith's concern in Doctrines of Salvation.

3. Latter-day Saints are bound only to follow those teachings which are set forth authoritatively in the 4 standard works, and in the official pronouncements by the First Presidency. Writings and publicatins of the General Authorities are considered to be their own opinions and do not reflect Church position. Examples of this are the two books Mormon Doctrine and Man, His Origin and Destiny. The First Presidency, in response to an enquiry as to whether they reflected the church's position, stated that they reflected the opinions of the writers only, and that they did not reflect the position of the church.

4. The principle of advancement between kingdoms is tied directly with the idea that an individual will never cease to progress in knowledge, wisdom, and dominion. In order for an individual to progress between kingdoms he must be able to increase his light and knowledge.

5. Apparently those in the highest degree of the celestial kingdom will be able to reach down into the lower kingdoms and redeem their family members, close friends, and others. These will be "adopted" into their kingdoms and will forever serve the person who redeems them. Thus there will never be any worry about who is progressing fastest.

6. A person will be able to increase his kingdom in the eternal worlds in two ways: (1) through procreation---having spirit offspring, and (2) by doing "missionary" work in the lower kingdoms. Those who are redeemed through your efforts become adopted into your kingdom as your sons and daughters.

7. Just as the moon appears to fill up and empty out each month, just so does the Terrestrial kingdom fill up from those below, and empties out into those kingdoms above it. The individuals who leave the Terrestrial glory for the celestial glory apparently go in as servants first, then enter marriage as monogamists, and then enter the highest degree of the celestial kingdom as polygamists, sealed up to eternal life, having all power and dominion over their own kingdoms, but always subject to the person or God who redeemed them from the lower kingdoms.

Hiram [Smith] said Aug lst [18]43 Those of the Terrestrial Glory either advance to the Celestial or recede to the Telestial [or] else the moon could not be a type [viz. a symbol of that kingdom]. [for] it [the moon] "waxes & wanes". Also that br George will be quickened by celestial glory having been ministered to by one of that Kingdom.

He [Brigham Young] thought they [those of lower kingdoms] would eventually have the privilege of proving themselves worthy and advancing to a celestial kingdom but it would be a slow progress.

. . .but those in the terrestrial kingdom are those who will come forth at the time when Enoch comes back, when the Savior comes again to dwell upon the earth. . . .They will go forward, like unto the new moon, increasing in knowledge and brightness and glory, until they come to a fullness of celestial glory. During the Millennium multitudes of people who have not heard the gospel will hear and receive it and go forward into this glory, while those who will not go forward to a fullness will go back to that lesser glory which is likened unto the stars of heaven. . . .

25. It is reasonable to believe, in the absence of direct revelation by which alone absolute knowledge of the matter could be acquired, that, in accordance with God's plan of eternal progression, advancement from grade to grade within any kingdom, and from kingdom to kingdom, will be provided for. But if the recipients of a lower glory be enabled to advance, surely the intelligences of higher rank will not be stopped in their progress; and thus we may conclude, that degrees and grades will ever characterize the kingdoms of our God. Eternity is progressive; perfection is relative; the essential feature of God's living purpose is its associated power of eternal increase.

25. It is reasonable to believe, in the absence of direct revelation by which alone absolute knowledge of the matter could be acquired, that, in accordance with God's plan of eternal progression, advancement within each of the three specified kingdoms will be provided for; though as to possible progress from one kingdom to another the scriptures make no positive affirmation. Eternal advancement along different lines is conceiable. We may conclude that degrees and grades will ever characterize the kingdoms of our God. Eternity is progressive; perfection is relative; the essential feature of God's living purpose is its associated power of eternal increase.

Those whose lives have entitled them to terrestrial glory can never gain celestial glory. One who gains possession of the lowest degree of the telestial glory may ultimately arise to the highest degree of that glory, but no provision has been made for promotion from one glory to another.

8. Letter from Orson F. Whitney to Elder R. Bruce Major of Kaysville, Utah; 13 December 1923; BYU HBLee Library Archives/Mss 15/Bxl/fd3/0rson F. Whitney Papers.

Dear Brother Major:

The first good opportunity to answer your letter of the 6th instant now presents itself. Read Doctrine and Covenants, Section 76, 109th to 112th paragraphs, and you will have about all I know upon the subject you mention. The rest is mere conjecture, and may be right or wrong. The passages quoted apply to the Telestial Kingdom, and the 112th paragraph reads as follows: "And they shall be servants of the Most High; but where God and Christ dwell they cannot come, worlds without end."
Whether the same or similar restrictions obtain in the Terrestrial Kingdom, is not stated. But I infer that they do, since the Son, and not the Father, ministers in person to them, just as the Holy Spirit, and not the Son, ministers to the Telestial. See paragraph 77; same Section: "These are they who receive of the presence of the Son, but not the fulness of the Father." Concerning the Telestial inhabitants, it is said:--"These are they who receive not of his fulness in the eternal world, but of the Holy Spirit through the ministration of the Terrestrial; "and the Terrestrial through the ministration of the Celestial". (paragraphs 86 and 87.)
What bounds, if any, are put upon the Celestial inhabitants, is not revealed; but we are told, in Section 130, that "a white stone is given to each of those who come into the Celestial Kingdom, whereon is a new name written, which no man knoweth save he that receiveth it." And this follows a statement in paragraph 10, same Section, to the effect that this white stone, which is also mentioned in John's Revelation (2:17) will become a Urim and Thummim to each individual who receives one, whereby things pertaining to a higher order of kingdoms will be made known." Query: Would this white (seer) stone be needed, if they could [p. 2] ascend in person to those higher kingdoms?
It is often argued that eternal progression which is doubtless the privilege of all in the hereafter as well as here will eventually enable the inhabitants of the lesser glories to advance beyond them and become residents and possessors of the highest degree of glory. This may or may not be the case. It seems to me that the inhabitants of any kingdom of glory might progress eternally in their own sphere, without transcending it. All would depend, I think, upon whether they are or can become possessed of the necessary power to thus advance. The Telestial inhabitants, who are they that "are cast down to hell", but afterwards redeemed therefrom, may have lost something in the process that has cleansed them of their sins and made them worthy to rise even to the least degree of glory.

Moreover, these are they who receive not the gospel of Christ, "neither the testimony of Jesus, neither the prophets, neither the everlasting covenant." Consequently they are not in the Church the Church of the First Born, which comprises those in the Celestial Kingdom, (Section 76, paragraphs 82,84,85, and 101) where God and Christ dwell. It does not say that they cannot pass into the Terrestrial Kingdom, but it does declare most positively that "where God and Christ dwell they cannot come, worlds without end."
Hoping this will partly answer your questions and serve your purpose, I remain, Your brother, OFW.

9. Outlines of Ecclesiastical History, 4th Edition, by Brigham H. Roberts; 1925; "The Restoration of the Gospel", pp. 416-417.

The question of advancement within the great divisions of glory--celestial, terrestrial, and telestial; as also the question of advancement from one sphere of glory to another, remains to be considered. In the revelation from which we have summarized what has been written here, in respect to the different degrees of glory, it is said that those of the terrestrial glory will be ministered unto by those of the celestial; and those of the telestial will be ministered to by those of the terrestrial---that is, those of the higher glory minister to those of a lesser order of glory. We can conceive of no reason for all this administration of the higher to the lower, unless it be for the purpose of advancing our Father's children along the lines of eternal progression. Whether or not in the great future, full of so many possibilities now hidden from us, they of the lesser glories after education and advancement within those spheres may at last emerge from them and make their way to the higher degrees of glory until at last they attain to the highest, is not revealed in the revelations of God, and any statement made on the subject must partake of more or less the nature of conjecture.
But if it be granted that such a thing is possible, they who at the first entered into the celestial glory---having before them the privilege also of eternal progress---have been moving onward, so that the relative distance between them and those who have fought their way up from the lesser glories, may be as great when the latter have come into the degrees of celestial glory in which the righteous at first stood, as it was at the commencement; and thus between them is an impassable gulf which time cannot destroy. Thus: those whose faith and works in this like were such as to entitle them to entrance into the celestial kingdom---they may arrive where these were, but never where they are. But if it be granted that the chief fact about Intelligences is that they have power to add fact to fact and thus build up knowledge, and through knowledge have wisdom, and thus make progress; and if to such intelligences there is granted eternal life---immortality---then it is useless to postulate any limitations for them; for in the passing of even a few thousands of millions of years, even if progress be very slow---there will come a time when these intelligences--men and women of even the telestial glory---may become very acceptable characters, and very important personages.

11. Doctrines of Salvation, 2:28-29, by Joseph Fielding Smith, 1955 Edition.

It has been asked if it is possible for one who inherits the telestial glory to advance in time to the celestial glory?
The answer to this question is, No!
The scriptures are clear on this point. Speaking of those who go to the telestial kingdom, the revelation says: "And they shall be servants of the Most High; but where God and Christ dwell they cannot come, worlds without end." (D&C 76:112)
Notwithstanding this statement, those who do not comprehend the word of the Lord argue that while this is true, that they cannot go where God is "worlds without end," yet in time they will get where God was, but he will have gone on to other heights.
This is false reasoning, illogical, and creates mischief in making people think they may procrastinate their repentance, but in course of time they will reach exaltation in celestial glory.

12. Evidences & Reconciliations, by John A. Widtsoe, 1960

Progress means a moving forward from place to place, from knowledge to knowledge, from action to action. It is a process of adding to that which we now possess, by the elimination of errors, by the actual accretion of new truth, and by the development of greater self-mastery. It is a process by which increased power of every faculty is gained. It is a process of growth and development, a movement towards greater maturity. It is a steady approach to the likeness of God. (p. 179)
They who so employ their time and talents properly, whether here or hereafter, increase in knowledge. That is, the beginning of wisdom. There is no end to knowledge. . . .What then is eternal progress? It is an eternity of active life, increasing in all good things, toward the likeness of the Lord. It is the highest conceivable form of growth. (pp. 182-183)
Is There Progress in Heaven?
Those in lower kingdoms cannot "overtake" those in higher kingdoms. What may happen if the man with less power uses it steadily in the spirit of repentance through the eternal years is not known to man. That knowledge rests as yet in the bosom of God. (pp. 184-185)
Is it possible to progress from one glory to another? Lower kingdoms will progress, but they will not "overtake" higher kingdoms.

13. Church News, 23 April 1960, p.3; President J. Reuben Clark (member of the First Presidency at the time).
I am not a strict constructionalist, believing that we seal our eternal progress by what we do here. It is my belief that God will save all of His children that he can; and while, if we live unrighteously here, we shall not go to the other side in the same status, so to speak, as those who lived righteously; nevertheless, the unrighteous will have their chance, and in the eons of the eternities that are to follow, they, too, may climb to the destinies to which they who are righteous and serve God, have climbed to those eternities that are to come.

16. BYU Address; June 1, 1980; Elder Bruce R. McConkie; "Seven Deadly Heresies".

There are those who say that there is progression from one kingdom to another in the eternal world. Or if not that, lower kingdoms eventually progress to where higher kingdoms once were. This is worse than false. It is an evil and pernicious doctrine.

THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS
Office of The First Presidency
Salt Lake City 11, Utah

March 5, 1952

Dear Brother:

The brethren direct me to say that the Church has never announced a definite doctrine upon this point. Some of the brethren have held that it was possible in the course of progression to advance from one glory to another, invoking the principle of eternal progression; others of the Brethren have taken the opposite view. But as stated, the Church has never announced a definite doctrine on this point.

Sincerely your brother,

/s/ Joseph L. Anderson Secretary to the First Presidency

[Note: The inquiry which prompted the above statement said, in part: "Dear Brother: Please inform me to the teaching of the Church regarding the possibility of a person progressing from one kingdom to another after the resurrection."]

Dear Brother Christensen:

Reference is made to your letter of December 7th in which you inquire what the teaching of the Church is relative to the possibility of progression from one particular glory to another after the resurrection.

The brethren direct me to say that the Church has never announced a definite doctrine upon this point, though some have held the view that it was possible in the course of progression to advance from one glory to another, invoking the principle of eternal progression; others have taken an opposite view. As indicated, however, the Church has never announced a definite doctrine on this point.

Sincerely your brother,

/s/ Joseph L. Anderson Secretary to the First Presidency

Abraham, Blessings of. By virtue of the patriarchal priesthood which Abraham held, "he could talk and walk with God." (WJS, p. 246) He held the keys of how of to "ask and receive blessings." (D&C 124:97, 95; TPJS, p. 350) Consequently he "sought for the blessings of the fathers." (Abraham 1:2) Because of his diligence, the Lord said unto him: "I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." (Genesis 12:1-3) Later, the Lord made an additional promise to Abraham: "For all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever. And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered." (Genesis 13:14-18) The innumerable number of Abraham's posterity was also compared to the stars and to the sand of the sea shore. (Genesis 15:5-6; 17:4-8; 22:15-18) In addition to the record of Moses, Abraham also recorded these blessings. (Abraham 2:8-12) In latter-day revelation, the Lord again spoke about the blessings of Abraham. (D&C 132:30-31)

The blessings which Abraham received from the Lord include: (1) Abraham would become a great nation, a father of many nations, his name would be great; (2) In him would all nations be blessed---all who receive the gospel will become his seed, and his seed will bear the ministry & Priesthood unto all nations and bless all families of earth with eternal life. (3) The Lord would bless and curse others who bless and curse him. (4) Lands would be given to him and to his seed for an inheritance. (5) His seed would be as the dust of the earth, as the stars of heaven, and as the sand upon the sea shore. (6) Christ and kings shall come out of him. (7) God will establish this covenant with Abraham and his seed after him.

Because God promised that he would make this same covenant with Abraham's seed, the Lord renewed these blessings upon Isaac (Genesis 24:60; 26:1-4, 24), and again upon Jacob. (Genesis 28; 35:9-13; 48:3-4; MD, p. 13) Through Jacob, who later became Israel, the twelve tribes received the promise of these same blessings, based upon faithfulness. These tribes were known as the Lord's chosen people and the Lord blessed them in accordance with his promise to Abraham. But because of apostasy, the children of Israel were cursed and scattered among all nations. In these last days the descendants of those children who were scattered are being gathered again to receive the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in accordance with the promise given to Abraham.

Today, those who accept the gospel message, which is being sent to all the earth through Abraham's seed, are being given the ordinances and covenants of salvation. Through the ordinance of temple marriage the saints are promised the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Once faithfulness has been proven, the saints can then receive these blessings as their inheritance. They will then have all that Abraham had, which includes the blessing of an innumerable seed and of exaltation.

Baptism of Water. "Baptism is a sign to God, to angels, and to heaven", said Joseph Smith, "that we do the will of God, and there is no other way beneath the heavens whereby God hath ordained for man to come to Him to be saved, and enter into the Kingdom of God [the earthly church or kingdom], except faith in Jesus Christ, repentance, and baptism for the remission of sins, and any other course is in vain; then you have the promise of the gift of the Holy Ghost." (TPJS, p. 198)

Christ was baptised (1) to "fulfill all righteousness", (2) as a witness "unto the Father that he would be obedient unto him in keeping his commandments" and (3) to show "unto the children of men the straitness of the path, and the narrowness of the gate, by which they should enter, he having set the example before them." (2 Nephi 31:6-9)

Baptism is the gate to the strait and narrow path which leads to eternal life. Nephi taught that "the gate by which ye should enter is repentance and baptism by water; and then cometh a remission of your sins by fire and by the Holy Ghost. And then are ye in this strait and narrow path which leads to eternal life; yea, ye have entered in by the gate." (2 Nephi 31:17-18)

Nephi did not say that baptism admitted a person into the celestial kingdom, but rather that it was the gate to the path which leads to eternal life. Along the path to eternal life there are many ordinances which must be obtained in order to finally obtain that highest of all gifts. Bruce R. McConkie said: "By entering the gate of repentance and baptism candidates find themselves on the strait and narrow path leading to the celestial kingdom". (MD, p. 116) He did not say that baptism admitted a person into the celestial kingdom, only that it led to it. Within the celestial kingdom there are three levels or degrees (D&C 131:1-4), and eternal life is only found in the highest. "Celestial marriage is the gate which puts men on the path leading to the highest of three heavens within the celestial world". (MD, p. 779) Again, he does not say that celestial marriage grants entrance into the highest degree, only that it puts men on the path leading to it. This concept agrees with the temple ceremony which indicates a person must at least be endowed to enter the first level of the celestial kingdom. President Franklin D. Richards stated that "the temple of the Lord is as the gate to heaven, [and is] located upon the strait and narrow path which leads to eternal life." (Utah Genealogical and Historical Magazine, Vol. 11:145; Saviors On Mount Zion, 1955 Sunday School Manual, p. 128) Thus, just as baptism is the gate to the path which leads to eternal life, so is the temple the gate to heaven and is on the path which leads to eternal life.

In order for a person to finally gain the promise and inheritance of eternal life in this world, and gain admittance into the highest level of the celestial kingdom, he must receive all the ordinances of the temple, including the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood. The 1973-74 Melchizedek Priesthood Study Guide says: "In order for men to obtain exaltation they must not only receive the Gospel, they must receive the Melchizedek Priesthood, and not only the Melchizedek Priesthood, but the fulness of the Priesthood, meaning the fulness of the blessings of the Priesthood, which can be obtained only in the temples of the Lord through the holy endowment and the sealing ordinances of the Priesthood". (MPSG, 1973-74, p. 49)

Baptism of Spirit. After a person is baptized by water, he then receives the baptism of fire and the Holy Ghost. Scripturally we find that after Adam was baptized by water "the Spirit of God descended upon him, and thus he was born of the Spirit, and became quickened in the inner man. And he heard a voice out of heaven saying: Thou art baptized with fire, and with the Holy Ghost." (Moses 6:65) "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him. (Matthew 3:16-17) After baptizing all those among the Nephites whom Jesus had chosen, "it came to pass when they...had come up out of the water, the Holy Ghost did fall upon them, and they were filled with the Holy Ghost and with fire." (3 Nephi 19:12-13)

Nephi taught that after baptism "cometh the baptism of fire and of the Holy Ghost". (2 Nephi 31:13) The Lord said that all those who come to him with a broken heart and a contrite spirit "him will I baptize with fire and the Holy Ghost, even as the Lamanites, because of their faith in me at the time of their conversion, were baptized with fire and with the Holy Ghost, and they knew it not." (3 Nephi 9:20) Those who believe in Christ will be visited of the Father with "fire and with the Holy Ghost". (3 Nephi 11:35) In modern revelation the scriptures teach that all who repent and are baptized for the remission of their sins will receive "the baptism of fire and of the Holy Ghost. (D&C 33:11; also D&C 39:6) And the remission of sins cometh "by fire and by the Holy Ghost." (2 Nephi 31:17)

Although a person can receive a manifestation of the power of the Holy Ghost prior to baptism, neither confirmation nor the gift (or right) of the Holy Ghost can be received until after a person has been baptized by water (TPJS, p. 199), and they are to be given through the laying on of hands. (AF #4; D&C 35:6; 39:23; 49:14; 53:3; 55:1; 68:25; 76:52)

Blood, Cleansed by. (See also Feet, Washing of the) Moses recorded that part of being born again is the process of being "cleansed by blood, even the blood of mine Only Begotten; that ye might be sanctified from all sin, and enjoy the words of eternal life in this world, and eternal life in the world to come, even immortal glory." (Moses 6:59) Because of the atonement of Christ, a person can be cleansed and sanctified from all sin. Such individuals will not only enjoy the words of eternal life in this world, but they will also be assured of eternal life in the world to come. (Moses 5:59; D&C 59:23) Being cleansed from sin by the blood of Christ begins at baptism. The fourth article of faith states that baptism is "for the remission of [personal] sins". The power to remit sins, which is held by Christ, was also given to the Prophet Joseph Smith. (D&C 132:45-46) The weekly sacrament is for the purpose of renewing covenants which individuals have made to the Lord, so that through faithfulness they can be forgiven of their personal sins and renew the efficacy of the covenants made so that the blessings of those covenants can be realized. In this way the atonement of Christ has power to cleanse individuals of their personal sins on a continual basis.

In addition to personal sins, the Melchizedek Priesthood brethren must also become clean from the blood of the generation whom they are called upon to serve. In 1832 the Lord told the Prophet Joseph that the ordinance of washing of feet was the ordinance by which a person was to become "clean from the blood of this generation...for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of the feet instituted." (D&C 88:138-139; also TPJS, pp. 90-91)

The concept of ridding oneself from the blood (and sins) of the people was taught frequently throughout the Book of Mormon. For example, Nephi was told in vision, that because of their faith in the Lamb of God, the Twelve who were chosen by Christ would have their garments made white in his blood. (1 Nephi 12:9-10) Jacob spoke of ridding himself of the blood of the people by shaking his garments in view of the all seeing eye of God as a testimony that he was clean of their blood. (2 Nephi 9:44. also Jacob 1:19; 2:2) King Benjamin gathered his people together so that he might teach them the principles of redemption and thereby be found blameless, so that their blood would not come upon him. (Mosiah 2:27-28) Alma spoke of the importance of the saints cleansing their garments and of keeping them clean. (Alma 5:21-24; 7:25; 13:11; 14:11) Jesus told the Nephites that nothing could enter his rest save those who had washed their garments in his blood. (3 Nephi 27:19) Moroni states that he wrote the things which he did so that he could be rid of their blood. (Mormon 9:35) In the appearance of the Lord to the brother of Jared, the brother of Jared was told that his garments would be made clean. And in bidding farewell to the Gentiles, Moroni said that he would meet them all at the judgment bar of God where all men would know that his garments were not spotted with their blood. (Ether 12:37-38)

Born Again of Three Elements. (See also Christ, Sons & Daughters of) Just as all who enter this earth life are born of water, spirit and blood, even so a person must be born again of the same three elements in order to enter the kingdom of heaven. (Moses 6:59; Alma 7:14; Mosiah 27:26; John 3:3-5)

At the ordinance of baptism a person is born again of water. This begins the rebirth process. Then the right to receive the Holy Ghost as the first comforter is given by the laying on of hands. (TPJS, p. 150) Prior to baptism, the person may have already felt the influence of the Light of Christ and the Holy Ghost, and gained for himself a testimony of the truthfulness of the work. (Moroni 10:4-5; D&C 20:37) After baptism into the church, a person can seek for the influence of the Holy Ghost in his life as his first comforter, and begin the process of obtaining the gifts and blessings of the Holy Ghost. (D&C 46:9-27; Moroni 10:8-19; 1 Corinthians 12:1-11)

Through baptism of water and spirit, a person enters the gate to the strait and narrow path (2 Nephi 31:17-20), and has been born again spiritually. He can now begin his walk on the path that leads to eternal life. The reception of the two ordinances are the outward signs of what has hopefully happened to the inward person. But just as any babe must learn to crawl, walk and run, so must the saints learn to operate in the spiritual realm. Some crawl, others have learned how to walk, while others are able to run. With the help of the Holy Ghost a person will eventually become sanctified from all sin and enter into the rest of the Lord. (Alma 13:11-12)

Those who are born of water and spirit become the children of Christ. (See Christ, Sons & Daughters of) Having become his children they then have power given them to become the sons and daughters of God the Father. (See God, Sons & Daughters of)

Being cleansed by the blood of Christ completes the rebirth process, for a person must be born again of water and spirit and be cleansed by the blood of Christ in order to be sanctified from all sin. (Moses 6:59) The cleansing process would include personal sins as well as the blood and sins of this generation. (D&C 13; 88:75, 85, 138-139; Moses 6:59)

Joseph also taught that a person could not receive the Holy Ghost unless he received revelation because the Holy Ghost is a revelator. (TPJS, p. 328) Consequently, those who receive the Holy Ghost will receive revelations. (D&C 76:5-10; 114-118)

Born Again, The Spiritual Experience of Being. The spiritual rebirth comes by and through the Holy Ghost. (See Mormon 7:10; 2 Nephi 31:13, 17; 3 Nephi 9:20; 11:35; 12:1; 19:13; Ether 12:14; D&C 19:31; 33:11; 39:6; Also MD, p. 73) Such an experience causes a quickening of the inner man (Moses 6:65), which in turn causes a "mighty change" to take place within the heart of the individual. (Mosiah 5:2; Alma 5:14) To some individuals this change is very dramatic as in the case of Alma the younger. (Mosiah 27:23-30; Alma 36:1-28) The degree of change of heart that takes place within a person is apparently directly related to the seriousness of the sins which need to be purged out.

Alma the Younger was a member of the Church of his day. Although he had been taught the gospel by his father, his heart was set on doing wickedness and leading the people of the Church astray. Alma admitted to having "rejected [his] Redeemer, and denied that which had been spoken of by [his] fathers". (Mosiah 27:30) He was quite knowledgeable about the gospel and yet chose to do all he could "to destroy the church of God". (Alma 36:6) He states that he "had murdered many of [God's] children, or rather led them away unto destruction", that he had not kept the commandments and that he had rebelled against God. (Alma 36:13-14) However, after his encounter with the angel he laid for three days without strength during which time he was being purged of his sins. During that time he became quickened inwardly by the spirit and was spiritually born again. (See Alma 36:5-26)

Because he did these things, his "soul was harrowed up to the greatest degree and [was] racked with all [his] sins" and "the very thought of coming into the presence of [his] God did rack [his] soul with inexpressible horror". (Alma 36:12, 14) He then describes how he was snatched from the chains of death (Mosiah 27:29; Alma 36:18) and delivered from hell. (Alma 36:18-26) This experience caused a "mighty change of heart" which forever changed the direction his life was taking. He had truly been born again, changed from his carnal and fallen state to a state of righteousness. (Mosiah 27:25) It is possible that Alma also made his calling and election sure at this time. Elder Marion G. Romney stated that Enos was sealed up at the time he received a remission of his sins, although Enos did not specifically say so.

To others the spiritual rebirth is more serene and peaceful. There are those who have grown up in the church who have kept the commandments, obeyed the promptings of the spirit, enjoyed the fruits and gifts of the spirit, and consequently have never had to go through what Alma the younger experienced, because their sins were much less severe.

This thought was also taught by the Prophet Joseph. He stated the Holy Ghost was "more powerful in expanding the mind, enlightening the understanding, and storing the intellect with present knowledge, of a man who is of the literal seed of Abraham, than one that is a Gentile....for as the Holy Ghost falls upon one of the literal seed of Abraham, it is calm and serene; and his whole soul and body are only exercised by the pure spirit of intelligence". (TPJS, pp. 149-150)

President Harold B. Lee pointed out: "There are some of us who think that that same kind of experience [which Alma had] has to be experienced by everybody, or he can't be saved. I once ran into a very serious situation where one of our teachers had inflamed some women, in a class he was teaching, until they almost had the kind of feeling that they had to have some kind of demonstration or else they hadn't been born of the Spirit. Another story that some people who support that idea recite is the conversion of Lorenzo Snow. President Snow had been a young college student; when he finally had an intellectual conviction of the truth, he sought for a deep-seated testimony, which he had not had at his baptism. And so, he reported, he went out one night to pray. This is how he describes the experience:

> It was a complete baptism, a tangible immersion in the heavenly principle or element, the Holy Ghost, and even more real and physical in its effect upon my system, than the immersion of water. Dispelling forever, as long as reason and memory last, all possibility of doubt and fear in relation to the fact, handed down to us historically, that the babe of Bethlehem is truly the Son of God; also communicating knowledge, the same as in apostolic times.

"Now, I repeat, because of some of these dramatic exper- iences, some of our teachers jump to the conclusion that one isn't born of the Spirit until he has had some such dramatic experience....the Prophet said:

Hence it not infrequently occurs that when the elders of this church preach to the inhabitants of the world, that if they obey the gospel they shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, that people expect to see some wonderful manifestation; some great display of power, or some extraordinary miracle performed; and it is often the case that young members in this church, for want of better information, carry along with them their old notions of things and sometimes fall into egregious errors (Times & Seasons)." (Harold B. Lee, Stand Ye In Holy Places, pp. 59-64. Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Company, 1975. [End of narration by President Lee]

There is undoubtedly a continuum of spiritual rebirth experiences that span the width from the sudden and dramatic experience which Alma had to the calm and serene accounts which are experienced over various periods of time.

In any case, the heart of such a person has "no more disposition to do evil, but to do good continually." (Mosiah 5:2) He has put off the "natural man" because he has yielded "to the enticings of the Holy Spirit" and has "become a saint through the atonement of Christ the Lord, and [has become] as a child, submissive, meek, humble, patient, full of love, willing to submit to all things which the Lord seeth fit to inflict upon him, even as a child doth submit to his father." (Mosiah 3:19) Such a person will exhibit a great degree of willing obedience to God by keeping his commandments.

This does not mean, however, that the person is now perfect nor that he has been fully sanctified. It only means that he has no more disposition to do evil. He will continue to sin because of his weaknesses and imperfections, yet at the same time he will be working diligently to eliminate these weaknesses from his life so that he can become spotless and stand approved before the Lord.

Having been born again, the person partakes more fully of the gifts and fruits of the Holy Ghost as he takes his journey towards full and complete sanctification. Along the way he will experience additional manifestations of the spirit that will teach him the ways of godliness and bring things to his remembrance. As he repents of his sins and struggles to become sanctified before the Lord he will experience greater spiritual experiences until he comes "unto the perfect day". (D&C 50:24; 93:28) All these experiences, and more, are manifestations of the spirit upon the person, each one preparing him for future days when the full desires of his heart of returning to the presence of the Lord will be realized. Joseph Smith summarized it beautifully when he said: "...the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients, arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker and is caught up to dwell with Him." (TPJS, p. 51)

Called and Chosen. The Prophet Joseph once made the comment, "How many will be able to abide a celestial law, and go through and receive their exaltation, I am unable to say, as many are called, but few are chosen". (TPJS, p. 331) The gospel net draws into the church people of all kinds. Thus many are called, and respond to the last invitation. Yet out of all those who are drawn into membership in the church, few of them will continue onward and upward in their search for eternal life and become chosen of the Lord. "There has been a day of calling, but the time has come for a day of choosing; and let those be chosen that are worthy. And it shall be manifest unto my servant, by the voice of the Spirit, those that are chosen; and they shall be sanctified". (D&C 105:35-36) "There are many who have been ordained among you, whom I have called, but few of them are chosen. They who are not chosen have sinned a very grievous sin, in that they are walking in darkness at noonday....If you keep not my commandments, the love of the Father shall not continue with you, therefore you shall walk in darkness". (D&C 95:5-6, 12) "Behold, there are many called, but few are chosen. And why are they not chosen? Because their hearts are set so much upon the things of this world, and aspire to the honors of men...." (D&C 121:34-35)

Many are "called into the Church, called to the holy priesthood, called to receive all the blessings of the gospel, including the crowning blessing of eternal life" yet few of those who are "called" become "chosen to inherit the blessings offered through the gospel and the priesthood; chosen for eternal life and exaltation." Yes, many are "called to the Church," yet few are "chosen to be sealed up unto eternal life and to have one's calling and election made sure". (DNTC 3:349)

Calling and Election. In the pre-earth life the whole house of Israel was "called and elected", or in other words, foreordain- ed, to the blessings of baptism, the priesthood, and all the temple blessings, including the blessings of eternal life and exaltation. This foreordination was a "word of prophecy" upon their heads, and it promised them if they were true and faithful in living the commandments after they came to the earth, that the blessings of eternal life would be given to them on earth by a "more sure word of prophecy", meaning, eternal life would be guaranteed to them.

All blessings given in temple ordinances are conditional, meaning the blessings will be received if the person is faithful. Once the person has been true and faithful in all things, he will find his "calling and election made sure", and the conditional clause "if" removed.

"When a man lives the law that qualifies him for eternal life, the Lord is bound by his own law to confer that greatest of all gifts upon him," said Elder McConkie. "The calling, which up to that time was provisional, is then made sure. The receipt of the promised blessings are no longer conditional; they are guaranteed. Announcement is made that every gospel blessing shall be inherited." (SY2, pp. 4-5; DNTC 3:326-330)

Calling and Election Made Sure. The concept of being sealed up to eternal life is directly associated with biblical language. The phrase "make your calling and election sure" comes from the apostle Peter as he was attempting to encourage the saints of his day to seek for and obtain the guarantee of eternal life for themselves. He said, "Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things ye shall never fall: For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. (2 Peter 1:10-11) "An abundant entrance has obvious reference to exaltation to the highest heaven of the celestial world." (SY2, p. 3)

To make one's calling and election sure is simply to obtain a guarantee or promise of one's inheritance in the highest degree of the celestial kingdom. Those who obtain such a promise are sealed up to eternal life. Nothing but the unpardonable sin will keep them from inheriting the highest heaven. (HC, 1:323-324; TPJS, pp. 358, 128; D&C 132:19, 26) At one time Joseph apparently taught that adultery was a sin which would keep a person out of the celestial kingdom after he made his calling and election sure (See HC 6:81, dated 25 November 1843; also cited in DNTC 3:347). However, verses 19 and 26 in D&C 132 indicate that no such reservation is made by the Lord. The person will be turned over to the buffetings of satan to pay the penalty for such a sin, but will then come forth to exaltation. It would appear that the scriptures would take precedence in this instance, since it is unknown who Joseph was talking to on November 25th or what point he was trying to make. There were only a few who had received the fulness of the priesthood ordin-ance at this time so there were probably others in attendance who had not been sealed. It is also unclear how he meant to harmonize this statement, if the statement was correctly record-ed, with section 132:19, 26.

Additionally, it is important to note that Joseph later taught, on April 6, 1844, that "all sins shall be forgiven, except the sin against the Holy Ghost." (TPJS, pp. 357-358)

The doctrine of calling and election is a doctrine of foreordination. Paul the apostle taught this doctrine on certain occasions, stating that Israel was elected or foreordained to receive great blessings, including the articles of adoption, the glory, the covenants, the giving of the law, the service of God, and all the promises of exaltation which the ancient patriarchs received. (Romans 9:4-5; 11:1-5; TPJS, p. 189; LDS Bible Dictionary, pp. 662-663) All who are of Israel today were foreordained (called and elected) to receive these same blessings on earth. However, they were only to be received upon the basis of personal righteousness.

Although foreordination is a true principle, some have taught that "unconditional election [or predestination] of individuals to eternal life" is also a true doctrine. But Joseph said predestination "was not taught by the Apostles." (TPJS, p. 189) God did not elect to have certain individuals saved regardless of the kind of lives they lived. All would have to repent in order to lay claim upon the promises which were given them in their pre-earth foreordination. The Book of Mormon is clear on individuals being foreordained to receive the highest and holiest order of the priesthood of the Son of God. (Alma 13)

Today, those who are of Israel can receive all of the blessings mentioned, even the promise of eternal life, by being obedient to all the laws and ordinances of the gospel. In this way all Israel can make their "calling and election" sure, or in other words, secure unto themselves, by a sure promise from God, all the blessings of exaltation. Those who obtain this promise are judged true and faithful, and thereby qualify for the great-est gift of God---eternal life. (D&C 14:7; 6:13)

The guarantee or promise of eternal life can be obtained in either of two ways, both of which are essential. First, by having the Lord speak to you personally, and say "son, daughter, thou shalt be exalted." This is the more sure word of prophecy spoken of by Peter. (2 Peter 1:19; TPJS, pp. 150, 298, 301; D&C 131:5-6; IE (November 1969) p. 85) The words which the Lord will speak are not set. To Heber C. Kimball the Lord said: "...thy name is written in heaven, no more to be blotted out for ever...." (Kimball, p. 241). To Alma, Sr. the Lord said: "I covenant with thee that thou shalt have eternal life...." (Mosiah 26:20) Joseph Smith said the Lord would say something to the effect: "Son, thou shalt be exalted." (TPJS, p. 150). Additionally, Christ does not have to appear when this happens. The voice of God declaring the good news is all that is needed to receive the more sure word of prophecy.

The second way in which a person can make his calling and election sure, is by receiving the fulness of the priesthood wherein the Prophet of God seals the person up to eternal life with the Holy Spirit of promise. (D&C 131:5-6; 132:7, 26; 1 John 2:20, 25-27) Notice specifically in TPJS, p. 323 wherein Joseph states "the anointing and sealing is to be called, elected and made sure." President Spencer W. Kimball reworded this comment slightly in a General Conference address, saying: "The anoint- ing and sealing is to be called, elected, and the election made sure" (Ensign/May, 1978, p. 48). This is the ordinance which bestows the fulness of the priesthood.

If an individual, for one reason or another, did not make his calling and election sure in this life, but was otherwise worthy, he could continue to work towards it in the spirit world. Those who enter the spirit world already worthy of the blessing are given the promise and are called "just men made perfect". These are "they who are not resurrected, but inherit the same [celestial] glory". (D&C 129:3; 76:69) Joseph Smith taught that the "spirits of just men made perfect" are in the celestial kingdom (TPJS, p. 12); that they "are exalted to a greater and more glorious work (TPJS, p. 326); that their standard of knowledge is greater than ours (TPJS, p. 320); and that they "are made ministering servants to those who are sealed unto life eternal, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down." (TPJS, p. 325) Paul the apostle stated to the people to whom he was speaking, that they had come "to the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant". (Hebrews 12:22-24)

Calling and Election Sure, Importance of. The Prophet Joseph Smith frequently spoke about making one's calling and election sure and used the Bible to show that it taught the same doctrine. Consider, for instance, the following:

It was Joseph's intention to teach the saints how to become sanctified so that he could seal them up to eternal life and thereby redeem Zion. This was an important issue with the Prophet.

In May of 1843 he counseled the saints:

> Then I would exhort you to go on and continue to call upon God until you make your calling and election sure for yourselves, by obtaining this more sure word of prophecy, and wait patiently for the promise until you obtain it, etc. (TPJS, p. 299)

In May of 1843 he counseled the saints:

> Then I would exhort you to go on and continue to call upon God until you make your calling and election sure for yourselves, by obtaining this more sure word of prophecy, and wait patiently for the promise until you obtain it, etc. (TPJS, p. 299)

A few days later Joseph told the saints: "Contend earnestly for the like precious faith with the Apostle Peter." (TPJS, p. 305) Then he said:

> We have no claim in our eternal compact, in relation to eternal things, unless our actions and contracts and all things tend to this. But after all this, you have got to make your calling and election sure. If this injunction would lie largely on those to whom it was spoken, how much more those of the present generation. (TPJS, p. 306)

Joseph then preached on the subject of the fulness of the priesthood and asked the question: "What was the object of gathering the Jews, or the people of God in any age of the world?" He answered his own question by saying the people are gathered so "that the fulness of the Priesthood might be revealed among them which never can be done but by the gathering of the people." (WJS, p. 215; TPJS, pp. 307-308, 312) The Prophet was concerned "that the Saints will be divided, broken up, and scattered, before we get our salvation secure; for there are so many fools in the world for the devil to operate upon, it gives him the advantage oftentimes." (TPJS, p. 331) "Salvation secure" has reference to receiving the fulness of the temple ordinances, thereby making their calling and election sure.

There were apparently members of the church who did not believe these teachings of Joseph and preferred to hold on to their own philosophies, for he said:

> There are a great many wise men and women too in our midst who are too wise to be taught; therefore they must die in their ignorance, and in the resurrection they will find their mistake. Many seal up the door of heaven by saying, [Only] So far God may reveal and I will believe [but no further].
> All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ [by virtue of making their calling and election sure] will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom [which includes the fulness of the priesthood ordinance]; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (TPJS, p. 309)

About six months later the Prophet said again: "But there has been a great difficulty in getting anything into the heads of this generation. It has been like splitting hemlock knots with a corn-dodger for a wedge, and a pumpkin for a beetle. Even the Saints are slow to understand" (TPJS, p. 331). Joseph revealed that "the disappointment of hopes and expectations [of the saints] at the resurrection would be indescribably dreadful [because they had taken for granted they would be exalted]." (TPJS, p. 325) Such misery will be kindled in part by knowing they came "short of the glory that others enjoy and that they might have enjoyed themselves, and they are their own accusers". (TPJS, pp. 310-311) Marion G. Romney said: "We might take a lesson from an account given by the Prophet of a vision of the resurrection in which he records that one of the saddest things he had ever witnessed was the sorrow of members of the Church who came forth to a resurrection below that which they had taken for granted they would receive". (IE (November 1949) p. 754) Exaltation is not gained simply by joining the church. Among the requirements necessary is to become a joint-heir with Christ. (D&C 76:59-70) (See Christ, Joint-Heir with)

The Prophet taught that in order "to become a joint heir of the heirship of the Son, one must put away all his false tradi- tions." (TPJS, p. 321) Occasionally members of the church, old and new alike, hold on to traditions (meaning beliefs and/or practices) of their forefathers that are incorrect, and find it difficult to conform to the principles of the restored gospel of Christ. Six months prior to his martyrdom, the Prophet said: "I have tried for a number of years to get the minds of the Saints prepared to receive the things of God; but we frequently see some of them, after suffering all they have for the work of God, will fly to pieces like glass as soon as anything comes that is contrary to their traditions: they cannot stand the fire at all. How many will be able to abide a celestial law, and go through and receive their exaltation, I am unable to say, as many are called, but few are chosen". (TPJS, p. 331)

He told the saints that they would have to learn how to be Gods, and kings and priests to God, the same as all the Gods have done before them. (TPJS, p. 346) Joseph said: "Sons of God who exalt themselves to be God, even from before the foundation of the world...are the only Gods I have a reverence for." (TPJS, p. 375) He warned against committing the unpardonable sin (TPJS, pp. 257-58; 82-83), but also advised them to go on to perfection, and to search deeper and deeper into the mysteries of Godliness. (TPJS, p. 364) Finally, less than two months prior to his death, he said:

> Oh! I beseech you to go forward, go forward and make your calling and your election sure; and if any man preach any other Gospel than that which I have preached, he shall be cursed. (TPJS, p. 366)

The Prophet Joseph Smith tirelessly worked towards helping the saints to understand the end goal of the gospel of Jesus Christ, that they could make their calling and election sure to eternal life. To this end the ordinances of salvation were restored, so that Zion could be built and redeemed once again upon the earth. To this end he lived and died.

Calling and Election Sure, Necessary for Exaltation. While visiting Ramus, Illinois, during the month of May, 1843, the Prophet gave some instruction regarding the importance of the eternity of the marriage covenant as it related to one's ability to gain the highest degree of the celestial heaven. He said:

> In the celestial glory there are three heavens or degrees; and in order to obtain the highest, a man must enter into this order of the priesthood, [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage;] and if he does not, he cannot obtain it. He may enter into the other, but that is the end of his kingdom: he cannot have an increase. (HC 5:392; D&C 131:1-4) Without question the Prophet was introducing concepts that were still new to the saints, but which had an eternal impact upon their salvation. As he stated, unless a man enters into the new and everlasting covenant of marriage, which is an order of the priesthood, he will not obtain the highest degree of the celestial kingdom.

Two months later, the Prophet recorded the revelation concerning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage, which included a plurality of wives and the doctrine of being "sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise" to eternal life. (D&C 132, esp. vs. 7, 19, 26)

The idea that a person must be sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise in order to inherit the celestial kingdom, and become a god, was expressed in a vision given to the Prophet in 1832. The Lord stated that all those who are "washed and cleansed from all their sins, and receive the Holy Spirit" must then overcome by faith and be "sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which the Father sheds forth upon all those who are just and true". Such individuals are members of "the church of the Firstborn...into whose hands the Father has given all things. [They are] priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory... These are they whose names are written in heaven....[and] whose bodies are celestial". They are gods, even the sons of god. (D&C 76:51-70) Those who gain eternal life, then, must first be sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which phrase has been equated in the scriptures with being sealed up to eternal life.

Concerning the importance of making your calling and election sure, Elder Bruce R. McConkie said:

> Now, what Peter announces is that there is such a thing as making these conditional promises [of baptism & marriage] absolute. Obviously any person who gains exaltation, in the ultimate and in the end, has made his calling and election sure. So in one manner of speaking, no one will ever gain exaltation, no one will ever have the family unit continue in eternity unless his calling and his election has been made sure, or in other words, unless he has gained the promise that he shall inherit eternal life. (SY2, p. 7)

Elder Marion G. Romney state the actual "...gift of eternal life in the world to come may not, of course, be fully realized during earth life. An assurance that it will be obtained in the world to come may, however, be had in this world. As a matter of fact, the blessings of the celestial kingdom are promised only to those who have such an assurance." (IE [November 1949] p. 752)

"We are not going to be saved in the kingdom of God just because our names are on the records of the Church," said Joseph Fielding Smith. "It will require more than that. We will have to have our names written in the Lamb's Book of Life; that is the evidence we have kept the commandments. Every soul who will not keep the commandments shall have his name blotted out of that book....Comparatively few of the children of men will find the salvation which is found in the celestial kingdom, or in other words the exaltation which will make of them heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ--even sons of God. Those who gain this exaltation receive the fulness of the power, might, and dominion of that kingdom. They overcome all things. They are crowned as priests and kings and become like Jesus Christ". (DS, 2:14, 24) Then he said:

> Those who gain exaltation in the celestial kingdom are those who are members of the Church of the Firstborn; in other words, those who keep all the commandments of the Lord. There will be many who are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day who shall never become members of the Church of the Firstborn. (DS 2:41)

At the April General Conference of the Church, in 1970, President Smith said:

> What a glorious thing it is to know that the Lord has offered to each of us the fullness of the priest- hood....
>
> I do not care what office you hold in the Church ---you may be an apostle, you may be a patriarch, a high priest or anything else---but you cannot receive the fullness of the priesthood and the fullness of eternal reward unless you receive the ordinances of the house of the Lord; and when you receive these ordinances, the door is then open so you can obtain all the blessings which any man can gain.
> Do not think because someone has a higher office in the Church than you have that you are barred from receiving the fullness of the Lord's blessings. You can have them sealed upon you as an elder if you are faithful; and when you receive them, and live faithfully and keep these covenants you then have all that any man can get. There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God without the fullness of the priesthood, and every man who receives the Melchizedek Priesthood does so with an oath and a covenant that he shall be exalted. (IE [June 1970] pp. 65-66)

Thus, "in order for men to obtain exaltation they must not only receive the Gospel, they must receive the Melchizedek Priesthood, and not only the Melchizedek Priesthood, but the fulness of the Priesthood, meaning the fulness of the blessings of the Priesthood, which can be obtained only in the temples of the Lord through the holy endowment and the sealing ordinances of the Priesthood". (MPSG 1973-74, pp. 27, 49)

Without question there have been great men and women who have lived and died who never received the fulness of the priesthood and yet were worthy of it. These faithful saints undoubtedly made their calling and election sure in the spirit world, and will receive the fulness of the priesthood by family members acting as proxy for them on earth.

Calling and Election Sure, Seek for. President Ezra Taft Benson asked that "God bless us to receive all the blessings revealed by Elijah the Prophet so that our callings and election will be made sure." (Ensign/August 1985, p. 10) In the First Presidency message for October, 1986 President Benson again encouraged the saints regarding this subject:

> Now, there is a lifetime goal---to walk in his steps, to perfect ourselves in every virtue as he has done, to seek his face, and to work to make our calling and election sure. (Ensign/October 1986, p. 5)

Without constant commitment and dedication to keeping the commandments, it becomes more likely that one will become lost in the darkness of the world and lose his way. To make one's calling and election sure requires that the person be dedicated to being righteous and that he have the vision of eternal life in his mind. The apostle Peter:

> ...knew that our vision becomes dim unless we keep the goal constantly in mind. He also knew that when our vision grows dim so does our resolve to endure to the end, especially in the face of continual tribulation and opposition....If we are to attain the goal of eternal life, we must properly envision it, know what we need to do to obtain it, and then do whatever is necessary. We have accepted the gospel because we do see and know. To be sure that we overcome all things, we must be obedient, exercise faith, and strive diligently to make our calling and election sure. No goal is more worthy, no blessing greater. (New Testament Supplement, 1983, ch. 46)

The process of making one's calling and election sure obviously involves selfless service to others and in being diligent and obedient to all covenants and commandments. Nephi taught that we "...must press forward with a steadfastness in Christ, having a perfect brightness of hope, and a love of God and of all men." (2 Nephi 31:20) Love of God is manifest in our keeping his commandments. (John 14:21,23) A love of all men is manifest by our serving them. Such service can be extended to non-members by proclaiming the gospel to them; to members of the Church by assisting them in obtaining the ordinances; and to our ancestors by our seeing to it that their temple work is performed. Although we must not become self-centered in our desires to gain eternal life, we must also not lose sight of the objective which is before us. Seeking to be worthy to make our calling and election sure is just another way of saying we are seeking for exaltation, for this is how exaltation is achieved. The great prophets of old sought for these same blessings, not only for themselves, but for family members and others as well. (Enos 1; Ether 12:39, 41; Abraham 2:12) Looked at properly, this is one of the most beautiful expressions of love a person can have, that of desiring and working towards eternal life for self and others.

Calling and Election Sure, Being Worthy of. In his visit to the Nephites the Savior stated in simple terms what kind of people we must become in order to gain eternal life: "Therefore, what manner of men ought ye to be? Verily I say unto you, even as I am." (3 Nephi 27:27) Similar counsel was given by the Savior early in his mortal ministry and was applicable to everyone. He said: "Ye are therefore commanded to be perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." (JST Matthew 5:48) The word "perfect" in the greek means "complete, finished, or fully developed.

In the full sense of the word this can only happen after a person has been resurrected and has gained his exaltation. However, a person can be complete or fully developed on earth when his calling and election has been made sure. There were those in the old testament who were perfect men in their generation. "Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God". (Genesis 6:9; Moses 8:27) Job "was perfect and upright, and one that feared God, and eschewed evil". (Job 1:1) Seth "was a perfect" man. (D&C 107:43) Although not mentioned, Enoch must have also been a perfect man, including the inhabitants of his Zion city. The Lord repeated this counsel later to the Nephites: "Therefore I would that ye should be perfect even as I, or your Father who is in heaven is perfect." (3 Nephi 12:48) To the Latter-day Saints the Lord said: "Ye are not able to abide the presence of God now, neither the ministering of angels; wherefore, continue in patience until ye are perfected." (D&C 67:13)

Some of the qualifications which prophets have emphasized as being important in making one's calling and election sure (the fulness of the priesthood) are:

* Worthiness, fitness and unshaken integrity
* Valiant in the defense of truth and active in all good works
* Steadfast faithfulness in the Church---does not have to occupy a presiding position
* Must be husband and wife
* Pays a full tithing
* Normally ripened by age and experience
* Never known to waiver in the defense of the faith or to withhold their allegiance to or their support of the constituted authorities of the Church
* Clean moral lives
* Wives are true and faithful LDS women
* Have born the heat and burden of the day

Joseph endured the great burdens that he was called upon to bear, and did so without faultering. As he was nearing the end of his ministry, the Prophet said: "I have borne the burden and heat of the day...." (Orson Hyde, JD, 13:180-181) Paul the apostle made a similar statement near the end of his ministry: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day...." (2 Timothy 4:7-8) In 1905 the First Presidency commented that the fulness of the priesthood was "...intended for those only who have born the heat and burden of the day, and endured faithful to the end...." (Letter to Pres. Stephen L. Chipman, June 16, 1905)

The following are major areas that relate to the above qualifications which could help a person to come unto Christ and be perfected in him:

1. Have Faith that It Is Possible

One of the great changes of attitude which must take place in a person, before he can obtain this blessing from God, is to have faith that it can happen. Bruce R. McConkie once said: "There are even those who neither believe nor know that it is possible to see the Lord in this day, and they therefore are without the personal incentive that would urge them onward in the pursuit of this consummation so devoutly desired by those with spiritual insight." (DNTC 3:586) Without faith in the promised blessings a person will never strive to become worthy of such great blessings. We must realize that God will fulfill all his promises, for he cannot lie. The problem, then, lies with us, and with our faith. We must also remember that there are those in the building of pride, seen by Lehi, that will try and keep the faithful from achieving their full potential.

2. Seek To Gain the Vision

Gospel Mysteries

As we read the scriptures and the sermons of the Brethren with an eye of faith, we begin to feel the powerful effects of the spirit as it testifies to us that, not only are these things true, but they can indeed happen to us, if we are faithful. The early pioneers had this tremendous vision of what was possible, and it burned deep within their souls. "President Brigham Young said that it was their vision of Zion as it would be in its glory which sustained the Saints as they crossed the plains. Paul said that Jesus himself 'endured the cross' for the joy that was set before him.'" (Look, p. 49) President David O. McKay indicated that "if our young people could but glimpse [the endowment], it would be the most powerful spiritual motivation of their lives." (Truman G. Madsen, House of Glory, BYU 10 Stake Fireside, March 5, 1972, typescript, p. 7) The old testament prophet was right when he said: "Where there is no vision, the people perish." (Proverbs 29:18)

It is important to realize that only when our desire to be righteous is greater than our desire to be of the world will we begin to be obedient to gospel laws and ignore the temptations which come to us each minute of every day. We read those things that we are most interested in, and we spend time doing those things we enjoy most. The desires we have are directly related to what we do with our lives each day, and the decisions we make. Only when our desires and priorities for eternal life are greater than all things will we be able to catch the vision and "see" the kingdom of God for what it really is.

3. Hunger and Thirst After Righteousness

The Prophet Joseph taught the saints that "after a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost, (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted." (TPJS, p. 150) Righteousness is that quality of existence which belongs to a person after he has become sanctified, washed clean of all his sins, and has been sealed up to eternal life. It is impor- tant to not live life passively, but to actively seek for the blessings of God, through righteousness, obedience, humility and service. Hungering and thirsting after this level of purity is essential in regaining the Lord's presence.

4. Ask & Ye Shall Receive

One of the first things Adam did after the fall was to ask God for further light and knowledge. This knowledge was later brought to him by messengers. Today we have been blessed to have the writings of God's messengers on earth, the prophets, and the words of the Lord in four standard works. In the scriptures are revealed that which is necessary to return to God. It is very important, therefore, that a person "feast upon the words of Christ" (2 Nephi 31:20; 32:3) as they are contained in the scriptures and in the sermons of the Prophets. The act of "feasting" does not describe a person who occasionally eats or who is too busy to eat at all, and is therefore in a constant state of starvation. Yet many do not go to the banquet table daily to feast upon the word of God. It is very important to seek out the answers for ourselves, just as Joseph did. By doing so we can drawer nearer the fountain of eternal life and sip directly from it. Ignorance and darkness will fade away and we will then know for ourselves. "Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me." (John 5:39) By asking, we will receive the light and knowledge which Father promised to give to those who seek for his word.

5. Seek & Ye Shall Find

The apostle John emphasized in his writings that knowing God and keeping his commandments were inseparably connected. He said: "And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments is a liar, and the truth is not in him." (1 John 2:3-4)

The Savior emphasized this same concept just before his death: "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." Then, when Judas (not Iscariot) asked him the question "how it is that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world? Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." (John 14:21-23) By being obedient to the commands of the Lord, a person will demonstrate that he loves God, and this love will bring him to salvation.

John stated that "whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him." (1 John 2:5) "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love." (1 John 4:7-8) And "if a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God love his brother also." (1 John 4:20-21)

Through obedience to his commandments we can actively seek for and find the presence of God. (D&C 101:38)

6. Knock & It Shall Be Opened

John spoke of what could happen to those who properly lis- ten to the voice of the spirit: "Behold, I [Christ] stand at the door [or veil], and knock [He calls to us with his voice. This is how he knocks]: if any man hear my voice [The voice of his spirit speaking to us], and open the door, I will come in to him [He will pass through the veil], and will sup [Possibly a reference to the sacrament] with him, and he with me." (Revelation 3:20) Notice the similarity between this promise and Joseph Smith's statement in TPJS, p. 151 and John 14:21-23. Just as Christ stands at the door and knocks to us, we can also approach the veil of heaven and knock. Such knocking is accomplished through prayer.

Adam and Eve set the proper example for prayer by praying together as husband and wife. (Moses 5:4, 16) The Savior also commanded: "Pray in your families unto the Father, always in my name, that your wives and your children may be blessed" thus emphasizing family prayer. (3 Nephi 18:21) Joseph Smith's life was a constant testimony as to what could happen in prayer.

Prayer is a two way communication in that we should listen to the spirit and then offer up the deep spiritual feelings of our heart. "He that asketh in the Spirit asketh according to the will of God; wherefore it is done even as he asketh. And again, I say unto you, all things must be done in the name of Christ, whatsoever you do in the Spirit; And ye must give thanks unto God in the Spirit for whatsoever blessing ye are blessed with." (D&C 46:30-32)

7. Obtain the Ordinances & Covenants of Exaltation

In order to enter the highest degree of the celestial kingdom, a man and woman must enter into the new and everlasting covenant of marriage. (D&C 131:1-4) Man or woman alone will not be exalted. However, everyone will be given the opportunity to enter this order of marriage who, through no fault of their own, were unable to go to the temple and be sealed. It is essential that all members of the church obtain all the ordinances for themselves, and then go and perform the same ordinances for their deceased ancestors. "Their salvation is necessary and essential to our salvation, as Paul says concerning the fathers ---that they without us cannot be made perfect---neither can we without our dead be made perfect." (D&C 128:15) If we fail to do this important work, we will be left without "root" (ancestors) or "branch"

(children). (Malachi 4:1)

After temple marriage a couple should seek to make their calling and election sure. (2 Peter 1:10; TPJS, p. 306) "This high achievement grows out of and is the crowning reward of celestial marriage." (DNTC 3:333) See also MD, p. 119 where Elder McConkie states that the reason we know that Paul was married was because he had made his calling and election sure, "which, according to God's eternal laws, could not have been unless he had first entered into the order of celestial marriage. (D&C 131; 132.)

8. Acquire The Attributes of Godliness

The apostle Peter counseled the saints: "add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." (2 Peter 1:5-8)

These same virtues are again repeated in D&C 4 and 107:30-31. In section 4 it is important to note that the Lord added humility and diligence. These two qualities are needed all the way through, from beginning to end. One must never cease to seek diligently and he must always have humility. Pride will destroy a person, especially when he feels he knows more or feels he is more righteous than others. Truly, "pride goeth before destruc- tion, and an haughty spirit before a fall." (Proverbs 16:18)

The acquisition of these attributes is essential in order for the Lord to trust us. He will not bestow great blessings upon our heads unless he knows we will not ask for that which is contrary to his will. Nephi was a wonderful example of a person whom the Lord trusted. (Helaman 10:1-10)

In conclusion, mankind has always been able to find safety by holding on to the iron rod (which includes the scriptures and the words of the prophets). It is imperative that a person give heed to the words of the Lord's anointed, and that he keep his covenants sacred. During these last few years of earth's mortal existence, the Lord is going to see who is on his side and who is not, for a separation of the wheat and the tares is occurring in preparation for the second coming. The same temptations which satan offered to Christ are being offered to mankind, and there are some who are succumbing to them. Others are found pitching their tents and sitting along the path to eternal life and seem to be indifferent as to what they are doing.

We live in a day in which the Father and the Son have revealed themselves on several occasions to the righteous. This promise is also available to every saint in the church. (D&C 93:1; TPJS pp. 150-151) But it is not bought with gold or silver, but with obedience and love. May we be found worthy to obtain all the blessings of the ancient saints and make our calling and election sure to eternal life. For "this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." (John 17:3) And when this happens we will at last be able to say with confidence, as did Abraham of old: "Thy servant has sought thee earnestly; now I have found thee." (Abraham 2:12)

Christ Baptized with Fire & the Holy Ghost. (See Pentecost, Day of) Although John the baptist had the authority to baptize individuals with water into the kingdom of God on earth, he was unable to baptize them with fire and the Holy Ghost. "John's mission was limited to preaching and baptizing;" Joseph said "but what he did was legal; and when Jesus Christ came to any of John's disciples, He baptized them with fire and the Holy Ghost." (TPJS, pp. 336, 335, 263. Italics added) In the Joseph Smith Translation of Matthew it states that "he who was coming after him [John] had power to baptize with the Holy Ghost and fire." (JST Matt. 3:38-40) The Apostle John also recorded this important point, stating that Christ would baptize "with the Holy Ghost." (John 1:33)

During the ministry of Christ there was no one who had the authority to bestow this gift except Christ, for John the Baptist did not hold the Melchizedek Priesthood. Later, Christ ordained his apostles to the higher priesthood and thereby gave them the power to baptize with fire and the Holy Ghost. It is important to note Joseph's comment, that whenever Christ came to any of John's disciples who had been baptized, he baptized them with fire and the Holy Ghost. From these quotations it is very evident that the converts of John the Baptist did not have to wait until the day of Pentecost to receive the gift or power of the Holy Ghost in their lives.

Christ did the same thing on the American continent during his visit to the righteous Nephites. He bestowed upon his twelve disciples the power to baptize with water, but he said that he himself would baptize the people with fire and the Holy Ghost (3 Nephi 12:1), just as he had done before.

Scriptural references show that it was by the gifts of the Holy Ghost that the apostles and seventy were able to do many miracles. (TPJS, pp. 243-246. Luke 10:1-17; Matt 10:1; Mark 16:17) President Wilford Woodruff said: "When Christ was born and entered into the ministry, and when He chose His Apostles they acknowledge every revelation that had ever been given from father Adam down to their day. They had the same Gospel, the same gifts, the same fruits....The sick have been healed, devils have been cast out, the lame have leaped, the deaf have heard, and all the gifts and graces that ever were manifest have been enjoyed among these Elders of Israel." (MS, 47:741; November 19, 1896) None of these could have occurred without the Holy Ghost, nor could anyone have been converted to the truth if it were not for the Holy Ghost. Yet thousands knew the truth of what Christ preached while he was still alive.

Christ, Your Life is Hid With. The New Testament records an interesting phrase which the Prophet Joseph used and applied to William Clayton: "...and your life is hid with Christ in God". (Colossians 3:3) Joseph Smith, on May 16, 1843, while speaking with William Clayton, said to him: "Your life is hid with Christ in God, and so are many others. Nothing but the unpardonable sin can prevent you from inheriting eternal life for you are sealed up by the power of the Priesthood unto eternal life". (HC, 5:391-392) Those whose lives are "hid with Christ in God" are those whose calling and election has been made sure. (DNTC 3:34-35)

Christ, Light of. Because of the plan of redemption it is possible for all mankind to come back into God's presence and partake of his glory. (D&C 76:114-118; Moses 6:59) To assist his children in the beginning phases of this journey back home, he has given them the light of Christ. Concerning this spiritual guide the Lord said: "Truth is light, and whatsoever is light is Spirit, even the Spirit of Jesus Christ. And the Spirit giveth light to every man that cometh into the world; and the Spirit enlighteneth every man through the world, that hearkeneth to the voice of the Spirit." (D&C 84:45-46)

If an individual will hearken to the voice of the Spirit, meaning obey it's promptings, then the promise is that he will eventually come "unto God, even the Father." And as a result of coming unto the Father, the revelation says the Father will teach him of the covenant. (D&C 84:47-48; TPJS, p. 151)

People grope in darkness, however, because "that wicked one cometh and taketh away light and truth, through disobedience, from the children of men, and because of the traditions of their fathers." (D&C 93:39) While there are many who do not respond to the promptings of the light of Christ, there are others who are seeking to know the truth and they "are only kept from the truth because they know not where to find it." (D&C 123:12) However, once an individual has found the truth, the Spirit will manifest to him that he must become born again in order to begin the process of regaining the presence of the Lord.

Christ, Sons & Daughters of. Moroni stated that all those who "search diligently in the light of Christ" to "know good from evil" and who "lay hold upon every good thing, and condemn it not, ye certainly will be a child of Christ." (Moroni 7:19) Abinadi states that all those who hear the words of the prophets and who obey them are the seed of Christ. He has suffered for their sins and has redeemed them from their transgressions. (Mosiah 15:10-13; MD, p. 700) The Nephites who lived the Zion principles following the ascension of Christ were also the "children of Christ" as well as "heirs to the kingdom of God." (4 Nephi 17)

The people of King Benjamin laid hold upon the words of Christ and consequently made a covenant with God "to be obedient to his commandments in all things that he shall command [them], all the remainder of [their] days." (Mosiah 5:5) They desired to make this covenant because they had been filled with the spirit as a result of King Benjamin's words to them. (Mosiah 5:2-5) Therefore, because of the covenant which they made, they were called "the children of Christ, his sons, and his daughters...therefore, [they were] born of him and [became] his sons and daughters." (Mosiah 5:7) After this occurred, King Benjamin told them:

> Therefore, I would that ye should be steadfast and immovable, always abounding in good works, that Christ, the Lord God Omnipotent, may seal you his, [i.e. make your calling and election sure] that you may be brought to heaven, that ye may have everlasting salvation and eternal life, through the wisdom, and power, and justice, and mercy of him who created all things, in heaven, and in earth, who is God above all. Amen. (Mosiah 5:15)

After faithfulness is proven, individuals can be sealed up to eternal life. The Father gives such to the Son who seals them to himself. (John 17:6-26)

To the brother of Jared the Lord said: "I am the Father and the Son. In me shall all mankind have life, and that eternally, even they who shall believe on my name [having faith and repentance]; and they shall become [through baptism] my sons and my daughters." (Ether 3:14) In 1830 the Lord revealed that "all those who receive my gospel are sons and daughters in my kingdom." (D&C 25:1)

It is evident from these scriptures that those who are the sons and daughters of Christ are those who have made a covenant with him to be obedient to his commandments. Such covenants are made today by those who take upon themselves the name of Christ through baptism into the church. By so doing they become his sons and daughters. If they continue true and faithful in all things, the day will come when they will be accepted by the Father, sealed up to eternal life, and given by him to Christ, who will seal them to himself.

Church, Divine Mission of the. Whenever the church has been organized on earth it has always been for the express purpose of restoring to the earth the powers, privileges and blessings that were originally on the earth before being lost through apostasy, and to restore them to righteous fathers and mothers who are worthy for the fulness of the priesthood blessings.

From the days of Adam to Moses a patriarchal organization existed on the earth. (DS, 3:83) This patriarchal structure existed both before and after the flood. (Abraham 1:25-27; The Gospel Kingdom, p. 140) The patriarchs were righteous fathers who held the fulness of the priesthood, and who consequently governed their children both politically and spiritually as kings and priests. Adam and Noah were kings and priests who held the fulness of the priesthood. (DS, 3:81-82) Through them the ordinances of the gospel were administered to their posterity. They baptized their own children for the remission of their sins and bestowed the Holy Ghost upon them. They gave their children the priesthood and endowed them with all the temple blessings. The oldest father presided on the earth as king and priest, and blessed his posterity with patriarchal blessings. For instance, Adam blessed all of his righteous posterity who were gathered in the valley of Adam-ondi-Ahman. (D&C 107:53-57) Their children learned the gospel from their parents at home. (Moses 6:58; 7:1) However, even before the flood there was a great apostacy from the truth, and no doubt the Church of Jesus Christ had to be organized since there were so many people who no longer gave heed to the patriarchal order. The Lord mentions that the Church was organized in the days of Melchizedek (D&C 107:4) although we have no further information than that. A Church is required when families no longer have righteous patriarchs who can teach, bless and administer the ordinances of salvation to them. The Israelites had been in bondage for many years and were steeped in idolatry and living in spiritual darkness. There were no kings or priests among them who held the fulness of the priest- hood. There were no righteous among them. Since the Lord could not speak to any of them directly, he had to call a prophet who would speak to them for him. Brigham Young said: "Men continued to sin [after Adam] and degenerate from generation to generation until they had got so far from the Lord that a veil of darkness sprang up between them so that men could no longer speak with the Lord, save it were through a Prophet. During this time the earth and all creation groaned in sin, and enmity increased and the lives of men and beasts decreased" (MHBY, 1846-1847, p. 142)

When the Lord spoke to Moses on Mount Sinai he wanted to bestow the fulness of the priesthood upon the children of Israel so they could all begin blessing their posterity again as kings and priests, and so he could speak to them directly. He was ready to restore his "holy order, and the ordinances thereof" but they hardened their hearts and rejected the blessings of the fulness power that would bring them back into his presence. (JST Exodus 34:1-2; D&C 84:23-26) Consequently, Moses went back on the Mount and brought down another set of tablets which contain-ed the lesser priesthood, which priesthood order included the Aaronic portion of the endowment. This lesser priesthood became known as the Aaronic order, because Aaron and his family presided over it. But this order could only bring the children of Israel to the veil of the temple. It would not let them pass through into the presence of God.

Because of the great apostasy and spiritual darkness which existed among the Israelites the Lord had to designate others upon whom he could bestow his priesthood in order to help govern the children of Israel. Through Aaron and the tribe of Levi, all the tribes would be taught and ministered to in the outward ordinances. There were also seventy of the elders of Israel who qualified to be rulers and teachers among the people. (Exodus 18:15-27; Numbers 11:24-25) These became proxy fathers, spirit-ually, to the families in Israel, because the real fathers of families were not yet righteous enough to hold the priesthood nor minister in the ordinances thereof. The concept of spiritual proxies was taught in the early days of the church by John Taylor who later became President of the Church. (TS, 6:921-922, June 1, 1845. See also, John A. Widtsoe, Priesthood and Church Government, p. 268) Thus the church organization became the vehicle through which all Israel was to be blessed, through which they would be taught obedience to the gospel and through which they would receive the ordinances of salvation and finally be ordained kings and priests. After the church was organized, and in response to a spiritual occurrance, Moses told those assembled: "would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his spirit upon them." (Numbers 11:29)

This same condition of apostacy and darkness existed on the earth during the days of Christ. He organized his church and thereby offered the fulness of the priesthood to the Jews. But they rejected him and the fulness which would have made them kings and priests and which would have brought them into the presence of God.

For many hundreds of years, between the days of Christ and the birth of Joseph Smith, there was great spiritual darkness and apostasy upon the earth again. And because there were no fathers on earth who could bless their own families with the fulness of the priesthood and seal them up to eternal life, the Lord had to again call a prophet and organize a church whereby he could begin to teach the people the doctrines of redemption and administer the ordinances of exaltation. The Lord's objective today is the same as it has always been---to raise the spiritual level of the saints to the point where they can all be "prophets, priests and kings" to their own families, so that they can administer all the ordinances of exaltation to their own children, from baptism to the fulness of the priesthood, just as the patriarchs did in olden days, and obtain redemption through the fulness of the ordinances of the temple. Such a society of families would be called Zion.

Therefore, the responsibility of all priesthood leaders within the church and kingdom of God on earth, is to teach and train fathers and mothers in their duties, administer the ordinances of salvation to them when worthy, and to support the family in their programs and efforts. Quorum leaders should teach fathers their duties as husbands, fathers and priesthood bearers within the church. Relief Society teaches mothers how to excel in being wives and mothers, giving compassionate service, and in homemaking skills. Bishops should reserve Mondays for family home evenings, consult with the father (or other family head) before calling a member of the family to any Church assignment, and direct ward leaders to plan activities that are family-oriented. (Bishop's Guide, p. 5, 1975 ed.) Truly it has been said: "The most important organization in time and eternity is the family. The Church and all its organizations are designed to help each individual and the family." (Bishop's Guide, p. 5, 1975 ed.)

The church organization, however, was only meant to be a temporary organization through which individuals would be taught the doctrines of redemption and receive all the ordinances of exaltation, including the fulness of the priesthood. Once received, the father and mother could then stand as king and queen, priest and priestess to their own posterity, just as Adam and Eve, holding power to bless them as well as to stand in the presence of God. It was never the intent, nor the purpose of the Lord, to exalt the church, but rather to exalt the family. The Church has been compared to scaffolding around the building of the family which it is trying to build and perfect. Once accom- plished, the scaffolding will no longer be needed while the building will remain. From the beginning all Israel has been given the opportunity to raise themselves to this level of righteousness and patriarchal government, by receiving all the ordinances of the temple. Once this has been accomplished, the Lord can then do away with the organization of the church because it will have fulfilled it's divine mission and purpose. (Ephesians 4:11-14) As President Ezra Taft Benson said: "The Church was created in large measure to help the family, and long after the Church has performed its mission, the celestial patriarchal order will still be functioning." (MPSG, 1978-79, p. 35) By the end of the millennium the church will have fully accomplished its purposes and will then give way to the celestial patriarchal order.

With the church functioning the way it should, and with the family striving to achieve it's divine potential, the day will come when Zion will be established once again upon the earth with kings and priests, queens and priestesses governing their family kingdoms, all in preparation for the second coming.

Comforter, Second. The Prophet Joseph taught that there are two Comforters spoken of in the scriptures. "One is the Holy Ghost, the same as given on the day of Pentecost, and that all Saints receive after faith, repentance, and baptism. This first Comfor-ter or Holy Ghost has no other effect than pure intelligence." Joseph then quoted John, chapter 14, verses 16, 17, 18, 21 & 23 in regards to the second comforter:

> Now what is this other Comforter? It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ Himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or to appear unto him from time to time, and even He will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the Kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient Saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions---Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the Saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn. (TPJS, pp. 149-151)

After an individual has made his calling and election sure, it then becomes his privilege to seek for and receive the Savior as his second comforter. Bruce R. McConkie made this point clear when he said: "After the true saints receive and enjoy the gift of the Holy Ghost; after they know how to attune themselves to the voice of the Spirit; after they mature spiritually so that they see visions, work miracles, and entertain angels; after they make their calling and election sure and prove themselves worthy of every trust--after all this and more--it becomes their right and privilege to see the Lord and commune with him face to face." (Messiah, p. 575)

Joseph explained further by saying that when the Father and the Son make their abode with a person it is a personal visita- tion, and not just a dwelling within the heart. He clarified this erroneous protestant view when he wrote:

> (John 14:23). The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance; and the idea that the Father and the Son dwell in a man's heart is an old sectarian notion, and is false. (D&C 130:3; HC 5:323)

In addition to the Savior being the second comforter, the Holy Ghost also functions on a second comforter level. This third member of the Godhead is the "Holy Spirit of the promise of eternal life". In a revelation given in 1832, the Lord said:

> Verily, thus saith the Lord unto you who have assembled yourselves together to receive his will concerning you:
>
> Behold, this is pleasing unto your Lord, and the angels rejoice over you; the alms of your prayers have come up into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth [Heb: armies or hosts], and are recorded in the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.
>
> Wherefore, I now send upon you another Comforter [they already had the Holy Ghost as their first Comforter, so this was to be another comforter], even upon you my friends [a title reserved for those who are sealed up], that it may abide in your hearts [which is something the Savior himself cannot do]. even the Holy Spirit of promise [the Holy Ghost now operating as the second Comforter or the Holy Spirit of (the) promise of eternal life]; which other Comforter is the same that I promised unto my disciples, as is recorded in the testimony of John [chapter 14:16-23].
> This Comforter is the promise [note that it is the promise] which I give unto you of eternal life, even the glory of the celestial kingdom;

Which glory is that of the church of the Firstbor, even of God, the holiest of all, through Jesus Christ his Son---. (D&C 88:2-5)

Thus, even though the Savior will leave the person, he will not be left comfortless. The Holy Ghost will remain with him and bless him according to the covenant made, on a second comforter level.

So in addition to being the first comforter to all the members of the church who actively seek for him, the Holy Ghost is also the second comforter of promise to those saints who have been sealed up to eternal life. This is how a person is able to obtain "peace in this world, and eternal life in the world to come". (D&C 59:23) The Holy Ghost operates on this second comforter of promise level in the absence of the Savior, and is the "anchor to the soul, sure and steadfast". (TPJS, p. 298; Hebrews 6:19; Ether 12:4) Although the Savior must leave the person, the Holy Spirit of the promise of eternal life stays with the individual, dispensing blessings and comfort to the soul. The second comforter of promise is not only discussed in D&C 88:2-5, but it's blessings are also expressed in very beau- tiful language in Moses 6:61; 1 John 2:20, 25-27 and John 14:26.

This understanding of the second comforter of presence and of promise was mentioned by Hyrum Smith in a patriarchal bless- ing given March 9, 1842 to Vilate Kimball, wife of Heber C. Kimball:

> Beloved Sister: I lay my hands upon your head in the name of Jesus, and seal you unto eternal life--sealed here on earth and sealed in heaven, and your name written in the Lamb's Book of Life never to be blotted out.
> The same is mentioned and manifested to comfort your heart, and to be a comfort unto you henceforth all your days. It is even a promise according to the mind of the Spirit, and the Spirit shall bear record of the truth; the same is called the Second Comforter, not his presence, but his promise. The same is as immutable as an oath by Himself, because there is none greater blessing that can be given, and no greater riches, it being the riches of eternity, which are the greatest riches of all riches. (Kimball, p. 128).

Covenants and Ordinances of Exaltation. The plan of redemption contains all the covenants and ordinances necessary for eternal life. These are administered on earth by priesthood leaders within his church who have been given the authority from God through the Prophet who holds the keys of the ministry. Regard- less of the kind of covenants or ordinances a person may have made previously in his life, they are all of no value unless performed by priesthood authority---by someone who is authorized by God to administer the ordinances of the gospel.

A person cannot just read about the blessings which others received in olden times and expect that he will receive them also merely by reading about them. Joseph said:

> You, no doubt, will agree with us, and say, that you have no right to claim the promises of the inhabitants before the flood; that you cannot found your hopes of salvation upon the obedience of the children of Israel when journeying in the wilderness, nor can you expect that the blessings which the apostles pronounced upon the churches of Christ eighteen hundred years ago, were intended for you. Again, if others' blessings are not your blessings, others' curses are not your curses; you stand then in these last days, as all have stood before you, agents unto yourselves, to be judged according to your works. (TPJS, p. 12)
> No Latter-day Saint can assume to be the recipient of any blessing at all, or of any promise from God, unless he has received the promise from God, through an ordinance which has been designed for that purpose, by one who is authorized to perform the ordinance and/or administer the covenant. Joseph Smith taught that "it requires two parties to make a covenant, and those two parties must be agreed, or no covenant can be made. Christ, in the days of His flesh, proposed to make a covenant with [the Jews], but they rejected Him and His proposals, and in consequence thereof, they were broken off, and no covenant was made with them at that time." Later "...the Gentiles received the covenant, and were grafted in from whence the chosen family were broken off; but the Gentiles have not continued in the goodness of God, but have departed from the faith that was once delivered to the Saints, and have broken the covenant in which their fathers were established (see Isaiah 24:5); and have become high-minded, and have not feared; therefore but few of them will be gathered with the chosen family." (TPJS, pp. 14-15)

Ordinances and covenants are specific. They are designed to perform specific functions and dispense specific blessings. For instance, the blessings of temple marriage are not received through the ordinance and covenant of baptism. Blessings are associated with covenants, and by faithfully keeping the terms of the covenant a person earns the blessings. Unless the blessings are specified by God in the covenant then they do not exist within the parameters of that covenant and must be looked for elsewhere.

"In the temples the faithful enter into many covenants pertaining to exaltation. And so it goes, the more faithful and devoted a person is, the more of the covenants of the Lord he is enabled to receive, until he receives them in full and his calling and election is made sure" (MD, p. 167)

"When he has proved himself by a worthy life, having been faithful in all things required of him, then it is his privilege to receive other covenants and to take upon himself other obligations which will make of him an heir, and he will become a member of the 'Church of the Firstborn.' Into his hands, 'the Father has given all things.' He will be a priest and a king, receiving of the Father's fulness and of his glory. Is this worth having? It cannot be obtained without some effort. It cannot be obtained without knowledge of the things of God." And "the fulness of these blessings can only be obtained in the temple of the Lord!" (WP, p. 208)

Elect of God. "The elect of God comprise a very select group, an inner circle of faithful members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. They are the portion of church members who are striving with all their hearts to keep the fulness of the gospel law in this life so that they can become inheritors of the fulness of gospel rewards in the life to come. As far as the male sex is concerned, they are the ones, the Lord says, who have the Melchizedek Priesthood conferred upon them and who thereafter magnify their callings and are sanctified by the Spirit. In this way, 'They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron and the seed of Abraham, and the church and kingdom, and the elect of God.' They keep 'the oath and covenant which belongeth to the priesthood,' and are rewarded with the fulness of the Father's kingdom'". (D&C 84:33-41; MD p. 217)

"To gain this elect status they must be endowed in the temple of the Lord (D&C 95:8), enter into that 'order of the priesthood' named 'the new and everlasting covenant of marriage' (D&C 131:1-4), and overcome by faith until, as the sons of God, they merit membership in the Church of the Firstborn" (D&C 76:50-70, 94-96). (MD, p. 218)

"An elect lady is...one who has been elected or chosen by faithfulness as a daughter of God in this life, an heir of God, a member of his household. Her position is comparable to that of the elders who magnify their callings in the priesthood and thereby receive all that the Father hath" (D&C 84:38). (MD, p. 217)

The Lord told Joseph, in the presence of six other elders, that "ye are called to bring to pass the gathering of mine elect; for mine elect hear my voice and harden not their hearts." (D&C 29:7) The scriptures are written for "the salvation of mine own elect; for they will hear my voice, and shall see me, and shall not be asleep, and shall abide the day of my coming; for they shall be purified, even as I am pure." (D&C 35:20-21)

Elijah, Powers and Blessings of. When Elijah restored the fulness of the priesthood and kingdom of God on earth is 1836, he gave to Joseph the power whereby all people could be sealed together (both living and dead), and by which couples could receive the fulness of the Aaronic, Patriarchal, and Melchizedek Priesthood Orders, and be fully organized into patriarchal families through the endowment, temple marriage and the fulness of the priesthood.

Joseph explained: "The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is, that ye have power to hold the key of the revelations, ordinances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God....the power of Elijah is sufficient to make our calling and election sure....[it] was manifest in the days of the Apostles, in delivering certain ones to the buffetings of Satan, that they might be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. They were sealed by the spirit of Elijah unto the damnation of hell until the day of the Lord, or revelation of Jesus Christ." (TPJS, p. 337-338)

The seals of Elijah can seal against all sins except the unpardonable sin. "The power of Elijah cannot seal against this sin, for this is a reserve made in the seals and power of the Priesthood." (TPJS, p. 339) Notice Joseph usage of the word "seals". Elijah restored sealing powers that were not inherent within the priesthood which Peter, James and John restored. He did more than "reveal" the priesthood (D&C 2) and more than deliver "keys".

"The doctrine or sealing power of Elijah is as follows:-- If you have power to seal on earth and in heaven, then we should be wise. The first thing you do, go and seal on earth your sons and daughters unto yourself, and yourself unto your fathers in eternal glory, and go ahead, and not go back, but use a little wisdom, and seal all you can, and when you get to heaven tell your Father that what you seal on earth should be sealed in heaven, according to his promise. I will walk through the gate of heaven and claim what I seal, and those that follow me and my counsel." (TPJS, p. 340)

Joseph taught that "the keys of power and knowledge" are held by the spirits of just men made perfect to communicate to the Saints, and that "the spirits of just men are made minis- tering servants to those who are sealed unto eternal life, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down." (TPJS, p. 325) It is important for the saints to obtain these "sealing powers upon their own heads, [and] in behalf of their progenitors who are dead", so they all might be redeemed. (TPJS, p. 330)

In 1839, the Prophet taught that calling and election was directly related to the sealing power. He stated:

> The Doctrine of Election. St. Paul exhorts us to make our calling and election sure. This is the sealing power spoken of by Paul in other places.
>
> "13. In whom ye also trusted, that after ye heard the word of truth, the Gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise,
>
> "14. Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of His glory, that we may be sealed up unto the day of redemption." (Ephesians, 1st chapter)
> This principle ought (in its proper place) to be taught, for God hath not revealed anything to Joseph, but what He will make known unto the Twelve, and even the least Saint may know all things as fast as he is able to bear them, for the day must come when no man need say to his neighbor, Know ye the Lord; for all shall know Him (who remain) from the least to the greatest. How is this to be done? It is to be done by this sealing power, and the other Comforter spoken of, which will be manifest by revelation. (TPJS, p. 149)

Originally Joseph and Oliver held the sealing power jointly. But because Oliver fell away, Hyrum Smith was appointed to take his place. On January 19, 1841, the Lord said: "First, I give unto you Hyrum Smith to be a patriarch unto you, to hold the sealing blessings of my church, even the Holy Spirit of promise, whereby ye are sealed up unto the day of redemption, that ye may not fall notwithstanding the hour of temptation that may come upon you. (D&C 124:124)

Although Joseph Smith received the sealing power in 1836, it was not until 1841 that the power was used to seal couples in eternal marriage, his being the first. Two years later he administered the endowment for the first time, and explained that the endowment was a necessary part of a person's progression back into the presence of God, for it enabled the person to "...secure [unto himself] the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds." (TPJS, p. 237) The keys of how to ask and receive an answer are given in the endowment.

By September of 1843 Joseph completed the restoration of the ordinances through which individuals and families could become partakers of the full powers and blessings of Elijah and obtain the fulness of the priesthood and it's attendant blessings. This he did by administering the fulness of the priesthood order.

The special keys and powers which were restored by Moses, Elias and Elijah in the Kirtland temple directly relate to the threefold mission of the church today of proclaiming the gospel, perfecting the saints, and redeeming the dead.

Enduring To The End. Concerning this subject, Nephi said if a person will "endure to the end," the Father will say to him: "Ye shall have eternal life." (2 Nephi 31:20) Later Nephi stated his words would help others "to endure to the end, which is life eternal". (2 Nephi 33:4) Rather than equating "enduring to the end" with death, Nephi connected it with receiving the blessing of life eternal. In other words, the "end" is the point at which the person is judged worthy and is sealed up to eternal life by the Father, as Nephi said would happen.

Jacob told his brethren to repent "and enter in at the strait gate, and continue in the way which is narrow, until ye shall obtain eternal life." (Jacob 6:11) The Savior taught the Nephites to look unto him "and endure to the end, and ye shall live; for unto him that endureth to the end will I give eternal life." (3 Nephi 15:9)

Enduring to "the end" is to endure to our own personal judgment day. Those who endure faithfully will receive eternal life. This is the same as making one's calling and election sure. For instance, "Joseph Smith had his calling and election [made] sure. For him the day of judgment was advanced to a point in this life where he, having been proved and tried at all hazards, was accounted worthy. He had done the things that qualified him to go on to eternal life in the kingdom of God." (SY2, p. 8) All who endure faithfully to the end will have their own judgment day advanced, as Joseph did his, at which point they are sealed to eternal life. Being sealing to eternal life indicates the person has endured faithfully to the end of his probation, which can happen even before earth life is over. Alma, for instance, was given eternal life because he had been faithful. (Mosiah 26:15-20)

Those who are in the spirit world who have not yet been sealed to eternal life are still enduring to the end. They are still working out their salvation. However, the time will come when there is no longer any time to to prepare for eternity and all will be judged. Those who are true and faithful at that time will be sealed to eternal life. For instance, although Benjamin Franklin and George Washington did not have the opportunity to accept and live the gospel while they lived on earth, but they did accept the gospel in the spirit world and made their calling and election sure by proxy in 1894. (See JWW, March 19, 1894).

Enduring to the end, no doubt implies that we must remain true and faithful all the days of this life in keeping the commandments. Once a person has set his hand to the plow he should not look back. There will be trials and temptations that must be endured and overcome. But those who overcome them and serve the Lord at all hazards, living by every word of God, will find their calling and election made sure. (TPJS, p. 150) This is the "end" to which we are exhorted to endure faithfully. This is eternal life.

Faith In the Lord Jesus Christ. The first principle of revealed religion is faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. (AF, #4; Lectures 1:1; CDG, p. 14) To the Hebrew saints, Paul defined faith as being "the assurance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." (JST Hebrews 11:1) The Prophet Joseph clarified this further by saying that "...faith is the assurance which men have of the existence of things which they have not seen...." As it relates to spiritual things, this assurance is born of the spirit into the heart of the individual (Alma 32:28; Lectures 1:9) Alma taught that "faith is not to have a perfect knowledge of things; therefore if ye have faith ye hope for things which are not seen, which are true." (Alma 32:21) Faith is not only belief, but it is to have a spiritual assurance within the soul that the things of God and of the gospel are true, even though none of it can be seen with the eye. (Faith, pp. 96-97; Ensign/ November 1974, pp. 96-97)

"Faith comes by hearing the word of God, through the testimony of the servants of God; [and] that testimony is always attended by the Spirit of prophecy and revelation." (TPJS, pp. 148-149) The spirit of the Lord always attends the presentation of his words, whether written or oral. (D&C 18:34-36) If a person will only have room enough in his heart to believe, then the spirit will give him the spiritual assurance that God lives, and that his words are true, and that full trust and confidence can be placed in him to fulfill his promises. In this way faith is born in the bosom of the person. (CDG, p. 14. See also Lectures #3)

It is only because of faith that one gains the power to accomplish things. In this sense of the word, faith is the power by which all things are done, because unless a person believes, he will never act to accomplish things. Faith is the power which causes a person to act upon the promises of God.

Although faith gives a person the power to act, it is not the same thing as the priesthood. It is by faith that the priesthood is exercised by righteous brethren, and when used in faith, the priesthood power can cause miracles to occur. (M&A, pp. 85-88) The fulness of the priesthood has power over all the elements and has been used to enter the presence of God. (See Helaman 10:1-10; JST Genesis 14:25-30) President John Taylor explained that all the mighty miracles spoken of in Hebrews, chapter 11, and of which Joseph spoke in his Lectures On Faith, were not only done by faith, but by the fulness of the priesthood as well. One receives the fulness by entering the highest and holiest order of God. By faith the words were spoken and by the authority of the fulness of the priesthood the words were executed.

The gospel was first preached to the earth "by the ministering of angels, and by every word which proceeded forth out of the mouth of God." (Moroni

7:25) Because the gospel was thus preached, "men began to exercise faith in Christ; and thus by faith, they did lay hold upon every good thing." (Moroni 7:25) By faith, men became "the sons of God." (Moroni 7:26) Because of this faith, angels showed themselves "unto them of strong faith and a firm mind in every form of godliness." (Moroni 7:29-30) "The office of their ministry is to call men unto repentance, and to fulfil and to do the work of the covenants of the Father...by declaring the word of Christ unto the chosen vessels of the Lord, that they may bear testimony of him." (Moroni 7:31; 2 Nephi 32:6) "It is by faith that miracles are wrought; and...that angels appear and minister unto men." (Moroni 7:37)

However, "if these things have ceased wo be unto the children of men, for it is because of unbelief, and all is vain." (Moroni 7:37) In latter-day revelation the Lord condemned Edward Partridge for his sins of unbelief and blindness of heart. (D&C 58:15) It was their unbelief in Nephi that caused Laman and Lemuel not to assist in building a ship. (1 Nephi 17:18) No faith led to no action. Thus faith is the principle of action or power because it causes things to get done. The Lord stated that his anger is kindled against this unbelieving and stiffnecked generation (D&C 5:8) and said that the unbelieving shall have part in the lake of fire and brimstone. (D&C 63:17)

Because of unbelief the Nephite generation could not understand the word of God, (Mosiah 26:1-3; 3 Nephi 15:18) and those who believe not will not enter into the rest of the Lord. (Hebrews 3:18-19) It is unbelief that destroys a persons ability to have faith. (Alma 32:28) Mormon stated that the Holy Ghost would not come upon those who had unbelief, (Mormon 1:14) and the Savior explained the reason why the disciples could not cast out the devil was because of their unbelief. (Lectures 1:18) Therefore, faith is essential in order to obtain the blessings of heaven.

Unbelief is done away with and faith is made stronger by believing in all that God has promised and by acting upon those promises or words, believing all the while that God will reward all who diligently ask for the fulfillment of his promises. (Thus is it extremely essential that a person continue on in his pursuit of the knowledge of God by daily study and research. In this way he will become more knowledgeable in the promises of God) Such faith gives a person the power to do things which are beyond his own ability, such as healing the sick, viewing the visions of heaven, or seeing God. Faith indeed precedes the miracle because it is only through faith that man will act upon the promises of God and qualify in righteousness for his blessings.

Following the appearance of Christ to America, "there were great and marvelous works wrought by the disciples of Jesus, insomuch that they did heal the sick, and raise the dead, and cause the lame to walk, and the blind to receive their sight, and the deaf to hear; and all manner of miracles did they work among the children of men." (4 Nephi 5)

In the days of Moses there were people who were bitten by serpents because of their iniquity. To be healed all they had to do was look upon the brazen serpent which Moses lifted up. Those who had faith in the words of Moses looked up and were healed. Those who did not have faith were not healed and perished. (Helaman 8:14-15; Alma 33:19-20)

To believe the words of God, just as a little child believes the words of his father, is to possess the child-like faith which is necessary in order to penetrate the heavens and be the recipient of miracles. Such faith is simple, unpreten- tious and uncomplicated. Joseph taught that a person must become "as a little child" and be "taught by the Spirit of God" before he can "come unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels; to the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant." (TPJS, p. 12)

For those who are truly seeking the Lord, impatience is one of the greatest obstacles in receiving the blessings of God. Will a person continue to keep the commandments and covenants long after his petitions are silenced by the stillness of the night? Will he continue to ask and seek and knock even after days and months and years have passed by? Will he continue to work righteousness and call upon the Lord for the fulfillment of his promises even though he wonders if the fulness of his blessings will ever come to him? Will his faith stay strong or will it waver?

Those who do continue forward, being true and faithful, will find that the promise is sure. They will finally receive the blessings for which they seek. But the realization of these blessings does not occur over night. The Lord needs time to work his miracles within our souls. It cannot all be done in a moment.

By overcoming impatience through perseverance in all good works, trusting that God is a God of truth and that he will fulfill his promises, a person will be able to have unwavering faith and thereby eventually obtain all that God has promised. For "without faith it is impossible to please [God]: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." (Hebrews 11:6) Those who read the promises of the Lord in the scriptures begin to call upon God for those blessings. They adjust their lives to conform with the gospel message, but when the answers to their prayers do not come as quickly as they had hoped, they begin to doubt whether God really is the rewarder of those that diligently seek him. They begin to cease living the gospel laws with the same effort and diligence which they once had, and doubt and unbelief set in. Realizing this, Joseph counseled the saints to "continue to call upon God until you make your calling and election sure for yourselves...and [then] wait patiently for the promise until you obtain it." (TPJS, p. 299) One may need to wait patiently for many years or even a lifetime for certain blessings.

Those saints who have taken upon themselves additional covenants beyond baptism have found the manner in which they, too, can sacrifice as did the ancient saints.

A person's beliefs and attitudes towards priesthood authority, and his willingness to be obedient to the gospel plan are all fruits of faith and can be observed. Those who are faithful (i.e., full of faith) are strictly obedient to Gods commands and covenants. Their obedience bears the mark of inward faith.

Therefore, "faith without works is dead." (James 2:17, 20, 26) Faith will always be followed by obedience. Belief only, accomplishes nothing. The devils also believe and tremble. (James 2:19) Thus the strength of a person's faith will be manifest in its fruits---how diligently he keeps the commandments, how often he reaches up to God in mighty prayer, & how consistently he reads, studies and feasts upon the scriptures and writings of the prophets. It is manifest in his service, kindness and love of others. A person's faith will be manifest in these and in all daily things that he does. It is by works that faith is made perfect. (James 2:22 (14-26)

As individuals grow in faith they also grow in obedience and in the fruits and gifts of the spirit. As these things increase they receive greater understanding and their faith is increased and made stronger until they obtain a knowledge and understanding of all the mysteries of Godliness. (TPJS, p. 151; D&C 76:5-10)

"Exceeding great faith" is listed as one of the gifts of God, (Moroni 10:11) and comes to a person through obedience. All the gifts of God are available to the person who loves God and who keeps all of his commandments, as well as to "him that seeketh so to do." (D&C 46:9) The nearer man approaches perfection the greater are his enjoyments in the gifts of the spirit. These gifts are the fruit of having the spirit of the Lord.

Finally, as was the case with the brother of Jared, a person's faith can become so strong (and consequently his obedience and purity so great) that he will be enabled to view all that had been held true by faith, and he will have faith no longer, for now he knows, nothing doubting. (Ether 3:19)

Fallen Condition of Mankind. As had been planned in the pre-earth councils, it was necessary for Adam and Eve to transgress the laws so that mortality might come into existence. "Adam fell that men might be; and men are, that they might have joy." (2 Nephi 2:25) And as mankind comes into the world, they become "again, in their infant state [at the time of birth], innocent before God". (D&C 93:38) This means that each person can begin mortality without sin or guilt, regardless of what happened in the pre-earth life. The word "innocent" does not mean ignorant or lacking intelligence or knowledge. Rather it means the person is guiltless of any wrong doing at that particular point. (CHMR, 2:163) "When they become accountable [at the age of 8], all men sin (see Romans 3:23), and thus they lose their innocence and become unclean, which puts them outside of the full benefits of the Atonement. They will still be resurrected after death, but they cannot return to God in their sins (Alma 7:21)." (Doctrine & Covenants, Instructor's Guide, Religion 324-325, Church Educational System, Section 8, p. 16) A person can be highly intelligent and innocent at the same time.

When Adam and Eve partook of the fruit of the tree of good and evil, they transgressed the law of God and implemented the fall. They fell spiritually and physically from the presence of God. (Alma 42:1-14) Mankind, however, did not become carnal, sensual and devilish until after Adam and Eve had "made all things known unto their sons and their daughters" concerning the plan of redemption. Then, "Satan came among them, saying: I am also a son of God; and he commanded them, saying: Believe it not; and they believed it not, and they loved Satan more than God. And men began from that time forth to be carnal, sensual, and devilish." (Moses 5:12-13) Prior to satan appearing, man was not yet carnal, sensual and devilish although he was in a fallen state. He became devilish because he loved satan more than God. The fall of Adam and Eve had already taken place before satan appeared. Yet it was not until after "the transgression of these holy laws [which the angels had given unto man on earth, that] man became sensual and devilish, and became fallen man." (D&C 20:20) "Behold Satan hath come among the children of men, and tempteth them to worship him [meaning, to follow after and obey him]; and men have [thereby] become carnal, sensual and devilish, and are [therefore] shut out from the presence of God." (Moses 6:49)

If all mankind were carnal, sensual and devilish as a result of their being born into the world, then Christ was also carnal, sensual and devilish, which is not true. This would additionally mean that all the babies born into the world are carnal, sensual and devilish. Moroni disagreed, however, by stating "little children are alive in Christ, even from the foundation of the world" (Moroni 8:12, 22) and modern revelation states that "all children who die before they arrive at the years of accountability [meaning age 8] are saved in the celestial kingdom of heaven." (D&C 137:10) It would be difficult indeed to imagine that God would save a child in the celestial kingdom who was carnal, sensual and devilish.

Father Selects And Gives To Christ. In a revelation given to Joseph Smith in August of 1830, the Lord stated he would return and "drink of the fruit of the vine in a great solemn assembly" before he returns in glory. "On that occasion, He will sit with Moroni, Elias, John the Baptist, Elijah, Joseph of Egypt, Jacob, Isaac, Abraham, Michael (Adam), and Peter, James, and John. Then Jesus adds, 'And also with all those whom my Father hath given me out of the world,' which means all the righteous Saints from all the dispensations." (Ensign/April 1988, p. 10, Elder David B. Haight; D&C 27:5-14, esp. v. 14) In May of 1831 the Lord said: "Fear not, little children, for you are mine, and I have overcome the world, and you are of them that my Father hath given me; and none of them that my Father hath given me shall be lost." (D&C 50:41-42) Later, the Prophet Joseph recorded the Lord as saying: "And as I said unto mine apostles, even so I say unto you, for you are mine apostles, even God's high priests; ye are they whom my Father hath given me; ye are my friends." (D&C 84:63) At what point in time were they given to him? "When their names were enrolled in the Lamb's book of life." (MS, 59:251) This concept of being "chosen" by the Father and subsequently given to the Son was mentioned by the Savior while he lived upon the earth: "All that the Father giveth me shall come to me; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out". (John 6:37) At the time Christ offered the great intercessory prayer he said:

> I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word.
> Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee.
>
> For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.
>
> I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine.
>
> And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them.
>
> And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are.
>
> While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; that the scripture might be fulfilled....
>
> And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth.
> Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word. (John 17:6-12, 19-20)

In speaking to those on the American continent, the resurrected Savior stated: "But behold. ye have both heard my voice, and seen me; and ye are my sheep, and ye are numbered among those whom the Father hath given me". (3 Ne 15:24)

Although it is the Father who gives to the Savior those who are to be numbered among his eternal fold, it is the Savior who pleads our cause before the Father in our behalf, that we might be numbered among the saved: Listen to him who is the advocate with the Father, who is pleading your cause before him---

> Saying: Father, behold the sufferings and death of him who did no sin, in whom thou wast well pleased; behold the blood of thy Son which was shed, the blood of him whom thou gavest that thyself might be glorified;
> Wherefore, Father, spare these my brethren that believe on my name, that they may come unto me and have everlasting life. (D&C 45:3-5)

Feet, Washing of the. (See also Blood, Cleansed by) The ritual of cleansing a person through the washing of feet was instituted by the Savior just prior to his death, when he washed the feet of his apostles. (John 13:1-10) When Peter objected to his feet being washed, the Master said: "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me", showing the essentialness of the cleansing.

In the early years of the church (1831), the Lord revealed to the Prophet Joseph that several of the elders who were with him should preach the gospel to the wicked so that they might rid their garments:

> And now, concerning the residue, let them journey and declare the word among the congregations of the wicked, inasmuch as it is given;
> And inasmuch as they do this they shall rid their garments, and they shall be spotless before me. (D&C 61:33-34)

In 1832, the Lord commanded the first elders in his church to assemble themselves together and to organize, prepare and sanctify themselves and to also cleanse their hands and their feet before him so that he could make them clean and thereby fulfill the great and last promise [of eternal life] which he had promised to them. (D&C 88:74-75) In accordance with this command, the school of the prophets was organized. Those who became members of the School were admitted through the ordinance of the washing of the feet. (D&C 88:137-139) The administration of this ordinance, through the organization of the School, was an organized way of cleansing all those first elders who had served faithfully in their callings, making them free from the blood of this generation.

Then the Lord addressed other elders "who are not the first elders" (D&C 88:85), and stated he was sending them out to "testify and warn the people," and by warning their neighbors "they [their neighbors] are left without excuse, and their sins are upon their own heads" rather than upon the heads of the elders. The Lord commands these elders to "continue in the vineyard until the mouth of the Lord shall call them, for their time is not yet come; their garments are not clean from the blood of this generation." (D&C 88:81-86) By proclaiming the gospel to their neighbors, and magnifying their priesthood callings, the priesthood brethren can be ready when the Lord's voice calls them. In June of 1835, Joseph Smith made a clear statement as to why each and every elder of the church should go on a mission:

> Now the Lord wants the tares and the wheat to grow together: for Zion must be redeemed with judgment, and her converts with righteousness. Every elder that can, after providing for his family (if he has any) and paying his debts, must go forth and clear his skirts from the blood of this generation. (TPJS p. 76)

The importance of cleansing one's garments from the blood of the people was taught frequently throughout the Book of Mormon. And just as the Book of Mormon prophets cleansed their garments of the blood of the people, even so today the leaders in Israel have the same responsibility to teach the people so that they might cleanse their own garments of the blood of the people. Home teachers, bishops, quorum presidents, stake, regional or general church leaders all have the same need to magnify their callings. Becoming spotless comes by serving in the vineyard (within priesthood assignments), "until the mouth of the Lord shall call them." Thus we see it is not where one serves that is important, but how.

The Bible also taught this very important concept. In Matthew 20 the Savior gives the parable of those who are faithful in his vineyard, and says he will give them all one penny for their labors. In the early versions of the hymn "The Spirit of God", there was a verse which in part stated: "For he that receiveth his penny appointed, must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat". (HC 2:422, 426) This verse of the hymn refers directly to Matthew 20. The penny correlates with eternal life, for all who labor diligently at the time they are called, will receive the same gift, and being "clean at the harvest of wheat" indicates those who have been made clean every whit (John 13:1-10) will be harvested into the garners to possess eternal life. (D&C 101:65)

In another parable, the Savior likened us to a man who fell among thieves and who was wounded and stripped of his raiment. Symbolically we are like the wounded man. We came to earth and were stripped of our former glory and became subject to good and evil, our sins wounding our spiritual souls. Not being able to help ourselves out of the spiritual pit, we wait for someone who has the compassion and power to help. Many ministers of the world pass us by, but the good samaritan (Christ) does not pass us by, but lifts us up, washes and anoints our wounds (sins), takes us to a place of rest and peace, and pays the full price of our wounds himself, extending his mercy. He tells the inn-keeper (who represents the law of justice) that he will pay whatever else is needed when he returns. This parable is one of the most wonderful scriptural descriptions ever given of the manner in which the Savior will heal those who have fallen spiritually, and the relationship which justice, mercy and the atonement have to each other.

Another scripture prophetically reveals that in the last days the faithful saints will be made clean in preparation for the greater blessings which the Lord will pour out upon them:

> And it shall come to pass, they that are left in Zion and remain in Jerusalem shall be called holy [without spot, sinless, clean], every one that is written among the living in Jerusalem--
>
> When the Lord shall have washed away [through the ordinances designed for this purpose] the filth of the daughters [stakes] of Zion, and shall have purged the blood [and sins] of Jerusalem from the midst thereof by the spirit of judgment [this happens when priest- hood leaders judge our worthiness to receive all the blessings of the temple] and by the spirit of burning [the cleansing & sanctifying power of the spirit].
> And the Lord will [then] create upon every dwelling-place [homes of the chosen] of mount Zion [mount Zion is where the Lord's spirit, power and voice are seen and heard], and upon her assemblies [where these faithful saints congregate], a cloud and smoke by day and the shining of a flaming fire by night; for upon all the glory of Zion shall be a defence. (2 Nephi 14:3-5)

The washing of the feet is still performed today upon the priesthood brethren who have been true and faithful in all things, the faithful sisters having been pronounced clean elsewhere. Because the gospel requirements are the same in all generations, mankind has had to become clean from the days of Adam down. This cleansing was performed prior to Christ through some ordinance. Those brethren who die without this ordinance will receive a judgment from the Lord in the next life regarding their faithfulness in fulfilling their priesthood responsibilit-ies. The benefit to having this ordinance and judgment done on earth is it allows the person to continue his progression as if he had already passed on.

Firstborn, Church of the. Jesus Christ is the "firstborn" in the spirit of our Father in Heaven. The Church of the Firstborn calls itself after this concept of Christ being the firstborn. It is composed of individuals who have been sealed up unto eternal life, whether they are alive on earth, or whether they are in the spirit world. No matter where they dwell, they all belong to the same church.

Joseph Smith taught that in order for a person to come unto the "Church of the Firstborn", he must first become as a little child and be taught by the Spirit of God. (TPJS, p. 12) He asked the saints: "Have you a promise of receiving a crown of righteousness from the hand of the Lord, with the Church of the Firstborn?" (TPJS, p. 64) "All the saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn" arrived at that state of righteousness where they were visited and taught by the Father and the Son. (TPJS, p. 151)

On May 4, 1842, Joseph restored to the earth the Aaronic and Melchizedek portions of the endowment, along with "all those plans and principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds." (TPJS, p. 237)

Elder Bruce R. McConkie taught that "members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints who so devote themselves to righteousness that they receive the higher ordinances of exalta-tion become members of the Church of the Firstborn." (MD, p. 139) In the temple, the holy of holies "...is reserved for the higher ordinances in the Priesthood relating to the exaltation of both living and dead" (James E. Talmage, The House of the Lord, p. 163). "Celestial marriage is the gate [to the path which leads] to membership in the church of the Firstborn, the inner circle of faithful saints who are heirs of exaltation and the fulness of the Fathers kingdom". (MD, p. 139) These elect people "comprise a very select group, an inner circle of faithful members" of the Church. They have received the priesthood, been "endowed in the temple of the Lord" and have entered "into that 'order of the priesthood' named the 'new and everlasting covenant of marriage' and overcome by faith until, as the sons of God, they merit membership in the Church of the Firstborn". (MD, pp. 217-218) People on earth will receive all that they ever hoped for "...and far more; but they cannot dwell with the Father and Son, unless they go through those ordeals that are ordained for the Church of the Firstborn. The ordinances of the house of God are expressly for the Church of the Firstborn". (JD 8:154-155; Pres. Brigham Young)

Being married in the temple for time and all eternity does not make an individual a member of the Church of the Firstborn. Temple marriage is only the gate which leads to membership to that kingdom. Membership in the church of the Firstborn is obtained only by those who are priests and kings. President Joseph Fielding Smith said: "Well, the members of the Church of the Firstborn are members of the Church of Jesus Christ, but not all those who are members of the Church of Jesus Christ become members of the Church of the Firstborn, for they are they unto whom the Lord has given all things. They are priests and kings. They are they who have received the exaltation, they who are made equal in power, and in might, and in dominion, who attain to the fulness and become the sons, and for the sisters, the daughters of God." (Seek, p. 63) To become a king and priest one must receive the fulness of the priesthood, which is given by an "anointing and sealing" for "the anointing and sealing is to be called, elected and made sure". (TPJS, p. 323) Only those who have received the "crowning blessing of and the highest gift to be conferred by the Melchizedek Priesthood" (meaning the fulness of the priesthood) become "members of the 'Church of the Firstborn' and are heirs as sons and daughters of God. They become like the Father and the Son and are joint-heirs with Jesus Christ." (JTC, pp. 226, 228; DS 2:9) It is the mission of the 144,000 high priests in the last days "to bring as many as will come to the church of the Firstborn". (D&C 77:11)

Joseph Fielding Smith also said that after a person has been baptized into the church, and after "he has proved himself by a worthy life, having been faithful in all things required of him, then it is his privilege to receive other covenants and to take upon himself other obligations which will make of him an heir, and he will become a member of the 'Church of the Firstborn.' Into his hands, 'the Father has given all things.' He will be a priest and a king, receiving of the Father's fulness and of his glory.' Then Elder Smith asks the question: "Is this worth having? [and then states:] The fulness of these blessings can only be obtained in the temple of the Lord!" (WP, p. 208) Therefore, since the fulness of the priesthood grants entrance into the church of the Firstborn, then membership in this church exists on earth as well as in heaven.

Friends and Servants of God. Bruce R. McConkie has written: "Those who choose to serve the Lord and who keep his command- ments are called his servants.

After they have been tried and tested and are found faithful and true in all things, they are called no longer servants, but friends. (John 15:14-15) His friends are the ones he will take into his kingdom and with whom he will associate to all eternity. (D&C 93:45-46) They receive the adoption of sonship. "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ". (Gal. 4:6-7; MD, p. 705)

Thus we understand better what the Savior was saying to his apostles when he said: "Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." (John 15:15)

In 1832 the Lord said to Joseph: "And as I said unto mine apostles, even so I say unto you, for you are mine apostles, even God's high priests; ye are they whom my Father hath given me; ye are my friends....from henceforth I shall call you friends." (D&C 84:63, 77)

Abraham "...was called the Friend of God" because of his righteousness. (James 2:23-24) And it was the love which the Savior had for his friends that probably caused him to say: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." (John 15:13)

God, Kingdom of. There was a man by the name of Nicodemus who came to Jesus during the night to speak with him. During their discussion, Christ told him that "except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." Then when Nicodemus asked how a person could re-enter his mother's womb and be born again, Jesus responded by saying "except a man be born of water [baptism] and of the Spirit [by fire and the Holy Ghost], he cannot enter into the kingdom of God". (John 3:3-5) Concerning these verses the Prophet Joseph taught:

> A man may be saved, after the judgment, in the terrestrial kingdom, or in the telestial kingdom, but he can never see the celestial kingdom of God, without being born of water and the spirit. (TPJS, p. 12)

Joseph further explained that "it is one thing to see the kingdom of God, and another thing to enter it. We must have a change of heart to see the kingdom of God, [but] subscribe to the articles of adoption [baptism of water and the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost] to enter therein." (TPJS, p. 328) Thus a non-member of the church who investigates the gospel, and who reads and prays about the truthfulness of the Book of Mormon, can come to "see" (spiritually speaking) in his heart the kingdom of God. He will know, by the power of the Holy Ghost, that the things which he has spiritually seen are true. (Moroni 10:4-5) This was the case with Cornelius before he was baptized. (TPJS, p. 199) Then, by subscribing to the articles of adoption the person can enter into the kingdom of God on earth. Joseph said:

> If a man is born of water and of the Spirit, he can get into the kingdom of God. It is evident the kingdom of God was on the earth, and John prepared subjects [individuals] for the kingdom, by preaching the Gospel to them and baptizing them, and he prepared the way before the Savior, or came as a forerunner, and prepared subjects for the preaching of Christ. (TPJS, p. 274)

In this statement, the Prophet did not equate the kingdom of God on earth with the celestial kingdom in heaven. Bruce R. McConkie stated that baptism "admits the repentant person to membership in the Church and kingdom of God on earth." (MD, p. 70) However, it is only "the gate to the celestial kingdom of heaven" meaning it is the gate to the path which leads to the celestial kingdom (MD, p. 116), and that this ordinance only "starts a person out on the straight and narrow path which leads to eternal life", it does not give him eternal life. In sacred places a person is taught that the endowment is necessary to pass through the veil into the first level of celestial glory. Temple marriage grants entrance into the next higher level of the celestial kingdom because the patriarchal order is a higher order than single status. Finally, the fulness of the priesthood is required for exaltation in the highest level of the celestial kingdom. (IE (June 1970) pp. 65-66; President Joseph Fielding Smith)

Joseph Smith also taught that the Kingdom of God and the Church of Jesus Christ are not synonymous terms. Joseph defined the "Kingdom of God" by saying: "Where there is a prophet, a priest, or a righteous man unto whom God gives His oracles, there is the kingdom of God; and where the oracles of God are not, there the kingdom of God is not." (TPJS, p. 272) Joseph further explained that those who hold the power of Elijah "hold the key of the revelations, ordinances, oracles, power and endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and [have the power] to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God." (TPJS, p. 337) Whenever God speaks to man and gives his oracles, there is the kingdom of God of earth. The men to whom God speaks are called oracles as well as the revelations which he gives. (MD p. 547) Joseph was an oracles and received the oracles of God long before the Church was organized. John the baptist was an oracle long before Christ organized the church. Therefore, the kingdom of God can, and has existed independent of the Church of Christ in all ages of the earth.

In discussing the subject of the kingdom of God being upon the earth, Joseph said: "Some say the kingdom of God was not set up on the earth until the day of Pentecost, and that John did not preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins; but I say, in the name of the Lord, that the kingdom of God was set up on the earth from the days of Adam to the present time. Whenever there has been a righteous man on earth unto whom God revealed His word and gave power and authority to administer in His name, and where there is a priest---a minister who has power and authority from God to administer in the ordinances of the gospel and officiate in the priesthood of God, there is the kingdom of God". (TPJS, p. 271) This means that even in the days of Adam and Eve, and throughout the generations of time, the kingdom of God has existed upon the earth. In the days of Adam and Eve the ordinances of the kingdom were administered through the patriarchal order, where kings and priests presided over their own families. Later, because of apostacy, the Lord had to call prophets and organize a church organization through which he would administer the ordinances of his kingdom because there were no righteous fathers who could function in the ordinances of the holy priesthood. Not only was this the case in the days of Moses, but again in Joseph Smith's day.

B. H. Roberts explained this subject by saying:

> It is evident from all this that, speaking broadly, with the Prophet the Kingdom of God was the government of God on earth and in heaven---whether that government was manifested through the authority of a single individual or a complete system of ecclesiastical or national government. This is, however, speaking broadly, not to say loosely; and in the same manner that the subject is spoken of in holy scripture where the phrases Kingdom of God, Kingdom of Heaven, the Church of Christ, Church of God, the Church, etc, are often used interchangeably and indiscriminately to represent in a general way that divine institution which God in whole or in part from time to time establishes to help man in the matter of his salvation. But it is proper for the reader to know that Joseph Smith when speaking strictly recognized a distinction between "The Church of Jesus Christ" and the "Kingdom of God." And not only a distinction but a separation of one from the other. The Kingdom of God according to his teaching is to be a political institution that shall hold sway over all the earth; to which all other governments will be subordinate and by which they will be dominated. Of this Kingdom Christ is the King; for He is to reign "King of Kings" as well as "Lord of Lords." While all governments are to be in subjection to the Kingdom of God, it does not follow that all its members will be of one religious faith. The Kingdom of God is not necessarily made up exclusively of members of the Church of Christ. In fact the Prophet taught that men not members of The Church could be, not only members of that Kingdom, but also officers within it. It is to grant the widest religious toleration, though exacting homage and loyalty to its great Head, to his institutions, and obedience to its laws.

On the other hand the Church of Christ is purely an ecclesiastical organization, comprising within its membership only those who have embraced the Gospel of Jesus Christ; who inwardly have accepted its princi- ples in their faith, and outwardly have received the rites and ceremonies it prescribes. Of this Church Jesus Christ is the Head....[and] the Church of Christ will doubtless stand under the protecting aegis of the Kingdom of God in common with other systems of relig- ion, enjoying only such rights as will be common to all. And while the Church of Christ will enjoy to the full her privileges, promulgate her faith without let or hindrance, make known the truth she holds and her saving grace and power, and manage her own affairs---yet she will not usurp the prerogative of the Kingdom of God, nor interfere with those outside the pale of her jurisdiction---outside of her membership. Such, in substance, was the teaching of the Prophet on this subject. Not publicly, or at least not very publicly; but he taught the foregoing in the counsels of the Priesthood as many testify, and effected an organiza- tion as a nucleus of the Kingdom above referred to of which some who were not in The Church were members. (Brigham H. Roberts, The Rise and Fall of Nauvoo, pp. 180-181, Salt Lake City: Bookcraft, 1965. See also Deseret News, August 1, 1855, Vol 5:162; JD 9:309-317; MHBY, July 8, 1855)

The kingdom of God is the Lord's government. It was prophecied that it would be set up on earth prior to the second coming, and that it would rule the earth during the Millennium. (Ddaniel 2:44) Since the Church of Christ will not rule the earth politically during the thousand years of peace, the kingdom of God will. Prior to the death of the Prophet, he set up the government organization which would govern the earth during the millennium. Speaking of this organization, President George Q. Cannon explained how the kingdom and the church related to each other:

We are asked, Is the Church of God, and the Kingdom of God the same organization? and we are informed that some of the brethren hold that they are separate.

This is the correct view to take. The Kingdom of God is a separate organization from the Church of God. There may be men acting as officers in the Kingdom of God who will not be members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. On this point the Prophet Joseph gave particular instructions before his death, and gave an example, which he asked the younger elders who were present to always remember. It was to the effect that men might be chosen to officiate as members of the Kingdom of God who had no standing in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The Kingdom of God when established will not be for the protection of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints alone, but for the protection of all men, whatever their religious views or opinions may be. Under its rule, no one would be permitted to overstep the proper bounds or to interfere with the rights of others. (HC, 7:382;

JI, 31:140)

President Brigham Young said:

> As was observed by Brother [Orson] Pratt (this morning) that kingdom [of God] is actually organized and the inhabitants of the earth do not know it. If this people know anything about it, all right; it is organized preparatory to taking effect in the due time of the Lord, and in the manner that shall please him. As observed by one of the speakers this morning that kingdom grows out of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, but it is not the church; for a man may be a legislator in that body which will issue laws to sustain the inhabitants of the earth in their individual rights and still not belong to the Church of Jesus Christ at all. And further though a man may not ever believe in any religion it would be perfectly right, when necessary, to give him the privilege of holding a seat among that body which will make laws to govern all the nations of the earth and control those who make no profession of religion at all; for that body would be governed, controlled and dictated to acknowledge others in those rights which they wish to enjoy themselves. Then the Latter-day Saints would be protected, if a kingdom of this kind was on the earth, the same as all other people. (HC 7:381-382; Deseret News, August 1, 1855, Vol. 5:162; JD 9:309-317; MHBY, July 8, 1855)

Thus, the Kingdom of God is "the government of God on earth and in heaven---whether that government [is] manifested through the authority of a single individual or a complete system of ecclesiastical or national government." This government would ultimately hold political authority over all the earth, and would guarantee the freedoms of all people to worship "how, where, or what they may". (AF #11)

The Church of Jesus Christ, on the other hand, was the spiritual organization through which it's members could become exalted. Even if there was only one person left on the earth who held the authority of God, as a king and priest, within that person would dwell the kingdom of God, and the authority to organize both the Church and the Kingdom. Therefore, the kingdom of God can exist upon the earth without the Church of Christ being organized.

In these last days, the formal Church of Jesus Christ was organized on April 6, 1830, but the political Kingdom of God was divinely revealed by the Lord on April 7, 1842. (Andrew F. Ehat, "It Seems Like Heaven Began on Earth", Brigham Young University Studies 20 (Spring 1980): 253-279) Almost two years later, Joseph began to organize it's structure and appoint brethren to positions within the kingdom. It was referred to in early church history as the Council of Fifty because it contained about fifty members.

On Sunday, July 16, 1843 the Prophet spoke concerning his relationship to the kingdom of God that had been revealed. It was his intention to fully organize that kingdom with himself as priest and king over it. In order to assume his new position in the kingdom of God, he proposed that Hyrum "hold the office of prophet to the Church....[so] that I might be a Priest of the Most High God." (HC 5:510, July 16, 1843)

On the 19th of July the Prophet met his brother Hyrum in the street and said to him "I am writing to the brethren, has our new prophet anything to say to them?" (HC 5:512-513)

On the 23rd of July, just one week following his original announcement regarding his brother Hyrum, Joseph said:

> Last Monday morning certain men came to me and said: 'Brother Joseph, Hyrum is no prophet--he can't lead the church; you must lead the church. If you resign, all things will go wrong; you must not resign; if you do the church will be scattered.' I felt cur- ious and said: 'Have we not learned the Priesthood after the order of Melchizedek, which includes both Prophets, Priests and Kings: see Rev. 1 Chap., 6th v., and I will advance your Prophet to a Priest, and then to a King---not to the Kingdoms of this earth, but of the Most High God." (TPJS, p. 318)

Melchizedek was not only a prophet, he was God's great 'high' priest. In addition he was a 'king' over the kingdom of God. It was Joseph's intention to follow the same pattern for himself.

Although the saints in general did not understand what the Prophet was doing, the members of the Twelve apparently did. On the 28th of September 1843, Joseph was anointed a priest and king to the fulness of the priesthood, and on 11 April 1844 he was anointed king over the kingdom of God on earth. (Andrew F. Ehat, "'It Seems Like Heaven Began on Earth"': Joseph Smith and the Constitution of the Kingdom of God," Brigham Young University Studies 20 [Spring 1980]:263. See also letter written at St. James, Michigan by George Miller in June, 1855.) Joseph also anointed and ordained several other men kings and priests, and taught them that they would eventually reign on the earth as kings during the Millennium. (TPJS, p. 268) "Christ and the resurrected Saints will reign over the earth during the thousand years. They will not probably dwell upon the earth, but will visit it when they please, or when it is necessary to govern it."

Those kings and priests who are mortal will stay on earth and govern under Christ's direction. The kingdom of God will rule the nations of the earth during the millennium. Over this kingdom Christ will rule as King of kings, and Lord of lords. And as the fulness of the patriarchal order is built up and perfected, the spiritual and political powers will be centered within each and every king and priest, so that when this earth is finally celestialized, the patriarchal order will be the government or kingdom of God on earth, and each family will govern his own family as Adam and Eve did in the beginning, politically and spiritually.

God, Sons and Daughters of. (See Christ, Sons and Daughters of) Those who join the Church become sons and daughters of Christ. However, membership in the Church does not make of individuals sons or daughters of God. After baptism individuals are sons and daughters of Christ, and yet only servants and handmaidens of God. Through faithful service and obedience the children of Christ may become the sons and daughters of God and inherit eternal life. (See Ensign/April 1971, pp. 7-8; Bruce R. McConkie) Joseph Fielding Smith taught that "eternal life is to have the kind of life that God has. All those who become servants will have immortality, but they who become sons and daughters of God will have the additional gift of eternal life, which is the greatest gift of God. Eternal life is life in the presence of the Father and the Son. Those who receive it become members of the 'Church of the Firstborn' and are heirs as sons and daughters of God. They receive the fulness of blessings. They become like the Father and the Son and are joint-heirs with Jesus Christ." (DS 2:8-9, 24, 37-46, 63-65) Jesus Christ is the heir to all that the Father has, and all those who become sons of God become joint-heirs with Christ. (Romans 8:14-19)

Once a person has joined the true church, he has the power given him whereby he can become a son of God. In a revelation given in 1829, the Lord said "that as many as receive me [through baptism], to them will I give power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on my name." (D&C 11:30) In a later revelation the Lord said:

> I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who was crucified for the sins of the world, even as many as will believe on my name, that they may become the sons of God, even one in me as I am one in the Father, as the Father is one in me, that we may be one. (D&C 35:2)

President Joseph Fielding Smith taught that members must go to the temple in order to become sons & daughters of God:

> The destiny of the faithful man in this Church and the faithful woman is to become a son and daughter of God....Now, how are we going to become the sons of God and, of course, daughters as well? How is it done? Can we become the sons and heirs of our Eternal Father simply by being baptized for the remission of our sins after we have repented and have had faith, and have had hands laid upon us for the gift of the Holy Ghost, and have come into the Church? No, it takes more than that....
>
> If you would become a son or a daughter of God and an heir of the kingdom, then you must go to the house of the Lord and receive blessings which there can be obtained and which cannot be obtained elsewhere; and you must keep those commandments and those covenants to the end....
>
> The ordinances of the temple, the endowment and sealings, pertain to exaltation in the celestial kingdom, where the sons and daughters are. The sons and daughters are not outside in some other kingdom. ....Sons and daughters have access to the home where he dwells, and you cannot receive that access until you go to the temple....
>
> You know what it says about servants in the scriptures. Those who become servants are those who are not willing to receive these blessings in the house of the Lord and abide in them. They are not sons; they are not daughters. They are children of God, it is true [spiritually speaking], for all men are his children. But they do not inherit, and there- fore they remain servants throughout eternity....
> As sons and daughters then, we are heirs of his kingdom and shall receive by right and fulness of the gospel and be entitled to the great blessings and privileges which the Lord in his mercy has revealed to us in the dispensation of the fulness of times. (DS 2:37-41) Elder Bruce R. McConkie wrote: "Those who receive the gospel and join The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have power given them to become the sons of God (D&C 11:30; 35:2; 39:1-6; 45:8; John 1:12). Sonship does not come from church membership alone, but admission into the Church opens the door to such high status, if it is followed by continued faith and devotion (Rom. 8:14-18; Gal. 3:26-29; 4:1-7). The sons of God are members of his family and, hence, are joint-heirs with Christ, inheriting with him the fulness of the Father (D&C 93:17-23). Before gaining entrance to that glorious household, they must receive the higher priesthood (Moses 6:67-68), magnify their callings therein (D&C 84:33-41), enter into the covenant of marriage (D&C 131:1-4), and be obedient in all things" (DS 2:8-9,37-41, 59, 64-65; MD, p. 745).

The sons of God, then, are those who have been baptized and received the gift of the Holy Ghost. They have subsequently received all the ordinances of the house of the Lord, which have cleansed them of all their sins, and have sealed them up to eternal life by the Holy Spirit of Promise. This means they have made their calling and election sure and have received the ful- ness of the Melchizedek priesthood through the highest ordinan- ces available in the temple. They are heirs of God, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ. President Young said that it was "by means of sealing powers and keys, and an everlasting covenant, the sons of men become the sons of God by regeneration, and are entitled, every man in his order, to the privileges, exaltations, prin- cipalities and powers, kingdoms and thrones, which are held and enjoyed, by the Great Father of our race...." (JD 10:355) There are many scriptural examples which speak about becoming sons and daughters of God. Adam was baptized by water and received the Holy Ghost, after which he received the fulness of the priesthood by entering into "the order of him who was without beginning of days or end of years, from all eternity to all eternity." After doing so the Lord said, "Behold, thou art one in me, a son of God; and thus may all become my sons." (Moses 6:67-68)

The apostle John wrote:

> Whosoever is born of God doth not continue in sin; [he looks upon sin with abhorrence] for the Spirit of God remaineth in him; and he cannot continue in sin, because he is born of God, having received that holy Spirit of promise. [Concerning the Holy Spirit of Promise, Elder Bruce R. McConkie wrote: "But when the ratifying seal of approval is placed upon someone whose calling and election is thereby made sure --- because there are no more conditions to be met by the obedient person --- this act of being sealed up unto eternal life is of such transcendent import that of itself it is called being sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, which means that in this crowning sense, being so sealed is the same as having one's calling and election made sure. Thus, to be sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise is to be sealed up unto eternal life; and to be sealed up unto eternal life is to be sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise". (DNTC 3:335-336)]
> In this the children [sons & daughters] of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother. (JST 1 John 3:9-10. Compare Ephesians 1:13-14 where the saints were "sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise.")

John continues by discussing the meaning and status of those who are sons and daughters of God by saying: I write unto you, little children [sons and daughters--see Ensign/April, 1988 p. 10], because your sins are forgiven you [you are sinless, pure, clean every whit] for his name's sake....

> But ye have an unction [anointing] from the Holy One, and ye know all things [because of the Holy Ghost who is the Holy Spirit of Promise].
>
> And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life [they had been sealed up].
>
> These things have I written unto you concerning them that seduce [deceive, lead astray or cause to wander] you.
>
> But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you [the Holy Ghost operating as the second comforter], and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him [John 14:26; Moses 6:61].
>
> And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence [knowing they are sinless], and not be ashamed before him at his coming.
>
> If ye know that he [God] is righteous [meaning that he sins not], ye know that every one that doeth righteousness [i.e., keeps all the commandments] is born of him.
>
> Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God therefore the world knoweth us not [those who are sealed up are not known by the world], because it knew him not.
>
> Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is [Titus 2:13].
> And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself [rids himself of all sin or impurities], even as he is pure. (1 John 2:12, 20, 25-29; 3:1-3)

These same saints to whom John is speaking had "passed from death [the sins of the world] unto life [the promise of eternal life where cleanliness and sinlessness exist]...and whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight." (1 John 3:14, 22) Today, the Lord has promised that those who are "purified and cleansed from all sin" may "ask whatsoever [they] will in the name of Jesus and it shall be done." (D&C 50:28-29)

Those then, who have been "redeemed of God", and who have become "his sons and daughters" are those who have obtained all the ordinances of the house of the Lord and have been sealed up to eternal life. Instead of servants they are now sons, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ. These are the elect of God.

Gospel, Meaning and Purpose of the. President Joseph F. Smith taught: "The gospel is a code of laws which originated in the heavens, and which is given to men on the earth to enable them to assimilate themselves to those who are in heaven, that in the observance of the laws and principles which they are governed by we may be like unto them and become fitted to dwell with them when we shall have done with the things of time. (MS 54:641) The gospel is the plan of redemption which provids a way whereby all mankind can overcome the effects of the fall, return to the presence of God, and partake of salvation and exaltation with him. In 1834, the First Presidency of the Church explained that the gospel is...

> ...a plan of redemption, a power of atonement, a scheme of salvation, having as its great objects, the bringing of men back into the presence of the King of heaven, crowning them in the celestial glory, and making them heirs with the Son to that inheritance which is incorruptible, undefiled, and which fadeth not away. (HC 2:5-6; January 22, 1834)

The third article of faith states that "all mankind may be saved, by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel." The plan of redemption contains laws and ordinances which, if adhered to, will bring a person back into the presence of God. In regards to those ordinances, the Prophet Joseph explained:

> All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (TPJS, p. 309)

Grace, Saved by. In a revelation given to the Prophet Joseph Smith in 1829 the Lord revealed that salvation, in it's purest sense, "is the greatest of all the gifts of God", adding that "there is no gift greater than the gift of salvation". (D&C 6:13) Two months later the Lord said that eternal life was "the greatest of all the gifts of God" (D&C 14:7), showing that not only are the two concepts of salvation and eternal life synonymous, but they are also gifts of God.

We normally do not think of eternal life as a gift of God. Rather we think of it more in terms of something we work for and earn --- something we would merit because of our works. But being a gift of God, it automatically renders itself as being unattainable solely through works. A gift presupposes a giver, and it is the prerogative of the giver to decide when he wants to give the gift, and what the conditions of the gift might be.

In the Joseph Smith Translation of Genesis, the prophet said the fulness of the priesthood was "...after the order of the Son of God; which order came, not by man, nor by the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God; And it was delivered unto men by the calling of his own voice, according to his own will, unto as many as believed on his name". (JST Genesis 14:28-29) The fulness of the priesthood ordinance bestows eternal life. But because eternal life is a gift of God, it can only be given by God "according to his own will."

For many years the protestants have quarreled about the subject of salvation (which is the same thing as eternal life for the Latter-day Saints). They quote the apostle Paul to show that man is "saved by grace", not because of his own actions: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast." (Ephesians 2:8-9) Their concept of "being saved" equates to our understanding of "being sealed up to eternal life." The Prophet Joseph spoke about being saved by grace and also related it to making one's calling and election sure:

> The doctrine that the Presbyterians and Meth- odists have quarreled so much about---once in grace, always in grace, or falling away from grace, I will say a word about. They are both wrong. Truth takes a road between them both, for while the Presbyterian says: "Once in grace, you cannot fall"; the Methodist says: "You can have grace today, fall from it tomor- row, next day have grace again; and so follow on, changing continually." But the doctrine of the Scrip-tures and the spirit of Elijah would show them both false, and take a road between them both; for, accord-ing to the Scripture, if men have received the good word of God, and tasted of the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, it is impossible to renew them again, seeing they have crucified the Son of God afresh, and put Him to an open shame; so there is a possibility of falling away; you could not be renewed again, and the power of Elijah cannot seal against this sin, for this is a reserve made in the seals and power of the Priesthood. (TPJS, pp. 338-340)

The subject of being saved by grace is linked with committing the unpardonable sin. Joseph is stating that if a person were to be saved by grace, or in other words, be sealed up to eternal life, and then fall away, he would commit the unpardonable sin and could not be renewed.

Since Joseph speaks of being "saved by grace" as being the same thing as making your calling and election sure, the scripture by Paul the Apostle would then make more sense if explained like this:

> For by grace [according to the will of God] are ye saved [sealed up to eternal life having made your calling and election sure] through faith [having believed on his name]; and not of yourselves [not by works or because we asked for it]: it [the promise of eternal life] is the gift of God [in spite of our works, we cannot request the gift, for it must come at the pleasure of God]: Not of works, lest any man should boast. (Ephesians 2:8-9)

Nephi stated "that it is by grace that we are saved, after all we can do" (2 Nephi 25:23), meaning after doing all we know how, the gift of eternal life will still only come through the grace of God, "and it shall be in his own time, and in his own way, and according to his own will". (D&C 88:68)

Holy. Webster defines holy as meaning belonging to or coming from God; hallowed; consecrated or set apart to a sacred use; having a sacred character or associations; spiritually perfect or pure; free from sin. Paul taught that Christ gave his life for the church so "that he [Christ] might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish." (Ephesians 5:25-27) "Sanctify yourselves and ye shall be holy." (Leviticus 11:44; 20:7) Moroni said that a holy person is one who is sanctified and without spot. (Moroni 10:33) A holy person is also one who is spiritually perfect, pure and free from sin. He is spotless before God, having no mixture of impurities in him, having separated himself from the world. The Lord said: "Wherefore, I will that all men shall repent, for all are under sin, except those which I have reserved unto myself, holy men that ye know not of." (D&C 49:8) It is Christ that is "able to make you holy" (D&C 60:7), he himself being holy (2 Nephi 31:5), by becoming "sanctified in Christ by the grace of God through the shedding of the blood of Christ." (Moroni 10:33)

Joseph Smith taught that it was possible to lose every desire for sin. (TPJS, p. 51) In fact, those who are pure look upon sin with abhorrence. (Alma 13:12) Once a person is clean "every whit from his iniquity" (3 Nephi 8:1), through the ordinances of the priesthood designed for that purpose, he becomes holy, innocent, righteous, just, and pure before God. The effectual fervent prayers of such a person availeth much with God. (James 5:16)

Hope. As defined in the scriptures and by Joseph Smith, hope is more than just hoping to be worthy of eternal life one day. In recounting the words of Ether, Moroni said: "Wherefore, whoso believeth in God might with This was Font/Pitch 3,10 - Off.This was Font/Pitch 4,10 - On.suretyThis was Font/Pitch 4,10 - Off.This was Font/Pitch 3,10 - On. hope for a better world, yea, even a place at the right hand of God, which hope cometh of faith, [and] maketh an anchor to the souls of men, which would make them sure and steadfast, always abounding in good works, being led to glorify God." (Ether 12:4) Paul spoke of this "anchor to the soul" when he said:

> And we desire that every one of you do shew the same diligence to the full assurance of hope unto the end:
> That ye be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises.
> For when God made promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he sware by himself, Saying, Surely blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee.
> And so, after he had patiently endured, he obtained the promise.
> For men verily swear by the greater: and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife.
> Wherein God, willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath:
> That by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us:
> Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast, and which entereth into that within the veil. (Hebrews 6:11-19)

Joseph Smith applied this verse of scripture to all those who had made their calling and election sure, saying it was the knowledge of being sealed up to eternal life that was "an anchor to the soul, sure and steadfast. Though the thunders might roll and lightnings flash, and earthquakes bellow, and war gather thick around, yet this hope and knowledge [that they had been sealed up to eternal life] would support the soul in every hour of trial, trouble and tribulation." (TPJS, p. 298)

Moroni addressed himself to certain church members who had "a sufficient hope by which ye can enter into the rest of the Lord, from this time henceforth until ye shall rest with him in heaven" (Moroni 7:3), and asked them the question: "And what is it that ye shall hope for? Behold I say unto you that ye shall have hope through the atonement of Christ and the power of his resurrection, to be raised unto life eternal, and this because of your faith in him according to the promise." (Moroni 7:41; Alma 13:28-29)

Those who lived in the Zion society following the visit of Christ to the Americas, were a "delightsome people, and they had Christ for their shepherd; yea, they were led even by God the Father." (Mormon 5:17. Compare TPJS, p. 151) These people "had all things in common among them...and they were all made free, and partakers of the heavenly gift." (4 Nephi 3) The heavenly gift is the promise of eternal life. Because of the faith that is in the world, Christ "has shown himself" and has "prepared a way that thereby others might be partakers of the heavenly gift, that they might hope for those things which they have not seen." (Ether 12:8-9) In other words, by receiving the heavenly gift of eternal life, they could then have hope in that promise even though they were not yet actual partakers of it.

Israel, Scattering and Gathering of. Reception of the fulness of the covenants and ordinances of the gospel is based upon the gathering of Israel. Joseph Smith taught that "it was the design of the councils of heaven before the world was, that the princi-ples and laws of the priesthood should be predicated upon the gathering of the people in every age of the world." (TPJS, p. 308) After quoting Matthew 23:37, the Prophet said:

> What was the object of gathering the Jews, or the people of God in any age of the world?...The main object was to build unto the Lord a house whereby He could reveal unto His people the ordinances of His house and the glories of His kingdom, and teach the people the way of salvation; for there are certain ordinances and principles that, when they are taught and practiced, must be done in a place or house built for that purpose....
> It is for the same purpose that God gathers together His people in the last days, to build unto the Lord a house to prepare them for the ordinances and endowments, washings and anointings, etc. (TPJS, pp. 307-308; also p. 312)

This is why the scattering of a people is such a curse. When people are scattered, they are unable to gain access to the blessings of a temple, and without the priesthood and the ordinances of thereof, it is impossible to see the face of God, even the Father, and live. (D&C 84:19-22) And only by knowing the Father and the Son can a person gain eternal life. (John 17:3) The scattering of a people prevents these blessings from taking place.

In retrospect, we can see that the tribes of Israel were originally scattered because they would not keep the ordinances nor the commandments which Moses had given to them, which had been designed for their salvation. (See TPJS, pp. 84-85) Consequently, they were scattered among all nations, and thereby denied the opportunity of obtaining the sacred ordinances which are only given in a temple. Ten of the tribes were also led away into the north countries where they became lost to mankind.

Today, however, the gathering of Israel is taking place with Ephraim, who is the firstborn son (Jeremiah 31:9), being gathered first. In 1836 Moses appeared to Joseph and Oliver in the Kirtland Temple and committed unto them "the keys of the gathering of Israel from the four parts of the earth, and the leading of the ten tribes from the land of the north." (D&C 110:11) Once the keys of the gathering were restored, Joseph set out to restore Israel to its blessings.

The Lord also revealed how the gathering would take place. He said "...righteousness and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood, to gather out mine elect from the four quarters of the earth, unto a place which I shall prepare, an Holy City, that my people may gird up their loins, and be looking forth for the time of my coming; for there shall be my tabernacle, and it shall be called Zion, a New Jerusalem." (Moses 7:62) Joseph taught that "righteousness" was the powers, gifts and angels of God, and that

"truth" was the Book of Mormon. (TPJS, pp. 98, 83-84, 159) The Holy City mentioned here by the Lord is Zion. Enoch's city was called a "City of Holiness, even Zion." (Moses 7:19) The gathering places to which the saints are to gather, are the stakes of Zion. "A stake of Zion is a part of Zion. You cannot create a stake of Zion without creating a part of Zion....A stake has geographical boundaries. To create a stake is like founding a City of Holiness [like the City of Enoch]. Every stake on earth is the gathering place for the lost sheep of Israel who live in its area." (Bruce R. McConkie, Ensign/May 1977, p. 118)

In 1834, Joseph Smith warned that if the saints did not gather to the places which God had appointed, desolation and destruction would come, and "none would escape except the pure in heart who are gathered." (TPJS, p. 71) For "this is Zion--- THE PURE IN HEART" (D&C 97:21) Five years later he counseled the saints to gather to the stakes of Zion. "Let this not hinder us from going to the Stakes; for God has told us to flee, not dallying, or we shall be scattered, one here and another there. There [in Zion] your children shall be blessed, and you in the midst of friends where you may be blessed. The Gospel net gathers of every kind. I prophesy, that that man who tarries after he has an opportunity of going, will be afflicted by the devil." (TPJS, p. 160)

During the time of the Prophet Joseph, the stakes of Zion were located in Kirtland, Missouri and Nauvoo. All the saints, who had been converted in the mission fields of England and other parts of the United States, gathered to these stakes. Six months before Joseph was martyred, he again urged the saints to gather so that they could be sealed and saved:

> The Saints have not too much time to save and redeem their dead, and gather together their living relatives, that they may be saved also, before the earth will be smitten, and the consumption decreed falls upon the world.
> I would advise all the Saints to go with their might and gather together all their living relatives to this place, that they may be sealed and saved, that they may be prepared against the day that the destroying angel goes forth...and my only trouble at the present time is concerning ourselves, that the Saints will be divided, broken up, and scattered, before we get our salvation secure.... (TPJS, pp. 330-331)

Only in the temple could the saints be "sealed and saved". The destroying angel spoken of by Joseph is mentioned in the Book of Revelation, where four angels are told to "hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads." (Revelation 7:3) When this is done, the plagues of the earth will have power to hurt only "those men which have not the seal of God in their foreheads." (Revelations 9:4) The seal will be put upon their foreheads in the temple, and "signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election sure." (TPJS, p. 321, 323) Many of the saints did gather, and hundreds of faithful saints received the fulness of the priesthood blessings for themselves, thereby making their calling and election sure, and were thus able to "secure their salvation" before they were smitten and driven out of Nauvoo.

When the saints moved west and settled in the Utah basin, the Salt Lake stake was organized, and it was the stake to which all the saints were to gather, world-wide. There were no other stakes anywhere else to which the saints could gather. So they came from everywhere to Salt Lake.

Later, President Young organized new settlements from upper Idaho, throughout Utah, and south to Mesa, Arizona. Each of these settlements became one of the stakes of Zion, and any individual who gathered to one of these stakes fulfilled the requirement of God that he must "gather to Zion" to be worthy to receive the full temple blessings. In 1902, President Joseph F. Smith stated the fulness of the priesthood is to be given only to those who have gathered to Zion. In 1905, 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1922, the First Presidency reiterated the requirement to gather with the body of the church, where the stakes of Zion are located, in order to qualify for the fulness of the priesthood blessings which are only given in temples.

Eventually, the stakes of the Church spread out into other states and to other continents so that today, stakes are located around the world, and members of the Church are strongly counseled everywhere to not gather any more to the stakes in Utah, but rather to gather to the stakes of Zion within their own lands. (Ensign/May 1977, pp. 115-118) Such a gathering fulfills the requirement to "gather to Zion" or to the body of the church." All stakes are also assigned to a temple, and the saints of God who are true and faithful can go and receive their temple blessings, even the crowning to eternal life (D&C 101:65), in the temple assigned to them.

Joint-Heirs With Christ. "As the literal Son of God---the Firstborn in the spirit, the Only Begotten in the flesh---Christ is the natural heir of his Father. It thus became his right to inherit, receive, and possess all that his Father had (John 16:15). And his Father is possessor of all things: the universe; all power, wisdom, and goodness; the fulness of truth and knowledge; and an infinity of all good attributes. By heirship and obedience, going from grace to grace, the Son attained these same things (D&C 93:5-17).

"By obedience to the fulness of gospel law, righteous men are adopted into the family of God so that they also become heirs, joint-heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:14-18; Gal. 3:26-29; 4:1-7), inheritors of all that the Father hath (D&C 84:33-41)....A joint-heir is one who inherits equally with all other heirs including the Chief Heir who is the Son. Each joint-heir has an equal and an undivided portion of the whole of everything. If one knows all things, so do all others. If one has all power, so do all those who inherit jointly with him. If the universe belongs to one, so it does equally to the total of all upon whom the joint inheritances are bestowed." (MD, pp. 394-395)

Joseph Smith commented that the object of the gospel was "the bringing of men back into the presence of the King of heaven, crowning them in the celestial glory, and making them heirs with the Son to that inheritance which is incorruptible, undefiled, and which fadeth not away". (HC 2:5) Those who are the spirits of just men made perfect "minister to the heirs of salvation, both in this world and in the world of spirits". (Key, p. 116) "All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom". (HC 5:423-424) "The Church of the Firstborn is made up of the sons of God, those who have been adopted into the family of the Lord, those who are destined to be joint-heirs with Christ in receiving all that the Father hath". (MD, p. 139) "To become a joint heir of the heirship of the Son, one must put away all his false traditions". (TPJS, p. 321) False traditions include all those things which have been handed down from previous generations that are not in keeping with the spirit or law of the gospel of Christ.

The oath and covenant of the priesthood is the means by which all faithful elders become joint-heirs. By magnifying their callings in the priesthood, the brethren will receive the Father's kingdom and all that the Father has. Such a person is an heir. Only heirs inherit that which their fathers possess. Servants do not inherit anything. Sons inherit all things. Therefore, by becoming a son of God, and by living according to the terms and conditions of the oath and covenant of the Melchizedek Priesthood, an elder can become an heir, a joint heir with Christ to all that the Father possesses.

Although the sisters do not receive the oath and covenant of the priesthood, and therefore do not become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ, they do inherit all that the Father possesses through their husbands.

This is why the sisters are sealed to their husbands in temple marriage, so that by being faithful to their callings, they can inherit all that the Father has. In 1922 the First Presidency said: "Women, not being heirs to the Priesthood except as they enjoy and participate in its blessings through their husbands, are not identified with the priesthood quorums...." (Letter to Elder Stephen L. Richards, June 26, 1922)

A man can become an heir by receiving the oath & covenant of the priesthood, magnifying his callings in the priesthood, and by receiving all the ordinances of the temple, including the fulness of the priesthood, which is only obtained in the temple.

Just. Alma records that when the father of King Lamoni commanded him to slay Ammon, Lamoni refused and said he was going to go release the brethren of Ammon, for "I know that they are just men and holy prophets of the true God." When his father heard that, he became angry and attempted to slay Lamoni, but "Ammon stood forth and said unto him: Behold, thou shalt not slay thy son; nevertheless, it were better that he should fall than thee, for behold, he has repented of his sins; but if thou shouldst fall at this time, in thine anger, thy soul could not be saved. And again, it is expedient that thou shouldst forbear; for if thou shouldst slay thy son, he being an innocent man, his blood would cry from the ground to the Lord his God, for vengeance to come upon thee; and perhaps thou wouldst lose thy soul." (Alma 20:15- 18; Also D&C 132:19, 26) An innocent man is also a just man, and is free of guilt, being clean every whit.

It requires a just man to perform miracles:

> And now it came to pass that according to our record, and we know our record to be true, for behold, it was a just man who did keep the record---for he truly did many miracles in the name of Jesus; and there was not any man who could do a miracle in the name of Jesus save he were cleansed every whit from his iniquity. (3 Nephi 8:1. Being cleansed "every whit" is also mentioned in John 13:10)

A just man, then, is one who has been cleansed every whit from his sins. Just before the Savior was crucified, he cleansed his apostles "every whit" by washing their feet. (John 13:1-10) Those who receive the fulness of the priesthood, are just, innocent, and clean every whit.

Justification. (See also Sanctification) Justification comes from the latin word justificare and means to declare free from blame, to absolve, to clear or pardon from guilt and punishment. Through the baptism of water and spirit a person is justified or absolved of his personal sins. Through the ordinance of the washing of the feet, a faithful priesthood bearer can be justi- fied or declared clean from the blood of his generation and be made clean "every whit." (D&C 88:138-139; John 13:1-10) Justification is a time of judgment, when the person is judged as to his cleanliness. If he has repented and done the works of righteousness, he can be cleansed.

Just Men, Spirits of. On August 13, 1843 Joseph Smith made reference to the "spirits of just men made perfect", and asked the question: "What would it profit us to come unto the spirits of the just men, but to learn and come up to the standard of their knowledge." (TPJS, p. 320)

On October 9, 1843, Joseph gave a discourse on angels and spirits, and commented that "the Hebrew Church 'came unto the spirits of just men made perfect, and unto an innumerable company of angels, unto God the Father of all, and to Jesus Christ the Mediator of the new covenant.'" Joseph then asked the question: "What did they learn by coming to the spirits of just men made perfect? Is it written? No. What they learned has not been and could not have been written. What object was gained by this communication with the spirits of the just? It was the established order of the kingdom of God: The keys of power and knowledge were with them to communicate to the saints. Hence the importance of understanding the distinction between the spirits of the just and angels. Spirits can only be revealed in flaming fire and glory. Angels have advanced further, their light and glory being tabernacled; and hence they appear in bodily shape. The spirits of just men are made ministering servants to those who are sealed unto life eternal, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down". (TPJS, p. 325; See Heb. 1:14) In a revelation given to Joseph Smith in April of 1829, the Lord told him that John the beloved, who was translated at the time of Christ, was working as "flaming fire and a ministering angel; [and that] he shall minister for those who shall be heirs of salvation who dwell on the earth". (D&C 7:6) Heirs of salvation are those who have been sealed up to eternal life.

The three Nephites also minister on the earth as translated beings, as well as others that we may not be aware of. Moroni stated that "my father and I have seen them [the 3 Nephites], and they have ministered unto us." (Mormon 8:11)

King & Priest/Queen & Priestess. Within the gospel context, all who receive the fulness of the priesthood and who are thereby sealed to eternal life become a king and a priest. A king wears a crown. Joseph asked the question: "Have you a promise of receiving a crown of righteousness from the hand of the Lord, with the Church of the Firstborn?. (TPJS, pp. 63-66) The crown spoken of is symbolic of the position and status that kings and priests in eternity will hold. "Those who have kept the faith will be crowned with a crown of righteousness; be clothed in white raiment; be admitted to the marriage feast; be free from every affliction; and reign with Christ on the earth". (Ibid) Although the title of king and priest are not separate within a man, still, one may say that a king "rules" (politically) and a priest "reigns" (spiritually), and that the faithful saints will rule and reign with Christ, in and over the house of Israel, forever. Understanding this concept, Joseph rhetorically asked: "if the saints are not to reign, for what purpose are they crowned [as kings and priests]?" (TPJS, p. 64)

To the Relief Society sisters in Nauvoo, the Prophet Joseph stated that "the Lord was going to make of the Church of Jesus Christ a kingdom of [Kings &] Priests, a holy people, a chosen generation, as in Enoch's day". (HC 4:570) Notice the words of the scriptures and Joseph's use of them. A kingdom of kings and priests, meaning they have received the fulness of the priesthood by virtue of receiving the fulness of the temple ordinances; a holy people, meaning those who are clean and pure every whit; a chosen generation, which relates directly to the thought "many are called, but few are chosen". This scriptural passage does not refer to the Aaronic Priesthood, or to that level people (See Exodus 19:6; Deuteronomy 7:6; 14:2; 26:18-19; TPJS, p. 202), but to the fulness of the Melchizedek. "Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings". (Ibid) "No man receives a fullness of the Melchi- zedek Priesthood till he has received his second anointings". (Journal of Anthony W. Ivins; Monday, April 8, 1901) "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord", said Joseph Smith. "All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole". (TPJS, pp. 308-309) "The greatest blessings are reserved for those who obtain 'the fulness of the priesthood,' meaning the fulness of the blessings of the priesthood. These blessings are found only in the temples of God. 'There are certain key words and signs belonging to the priesthood which must be observed in order to obtain the blessing [of the fulness of the priesthood]'. (TPJS, p. 199) These, of course, are revealed only in the temples. 'Washings, anointings, endowments, and the communication of keys,' the Prophet says, are essential to enable one 'to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of Elohim in the eternal worlds'". (TPJS, p. 237)

To become a king and a priest was something that Joseph Smith wanted for every man, not for just the apostles. He said that we "have got to learn how to be Gods" and "to be kings and priests to God, the same as all the Gods have done before" us. (TPJS, pp. 346-347) "The fulness of the priesthood includes the authority of both king and priest....Such as have not received the fulness of the priesthood, and have not been anointed and ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown, or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom". (Orson Hyde, Mill. Star IX, 2-Jan 15, 1847. pp. 23-24)

In old testament times, kings were anointed with holy oil as they assumed their office of king. Priests, on the other hand were ordained. "Such as have...not been anointed and ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown". (Orson Hyde, Ibid) These blessings are above those of temple marriage (MD, p. 119), and are the ordinances by which an individual is sealed to eternal life.

More Sure Word of Prophecy, Doctrine. In the same discourse wherein the apostle Peter told his brethren that they should make their calling and election sure, he also said: "We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed.... (2 Peter 1:19) In the JST it states "We have therefore a more sure knowledge of the word of prophecy, to which word of prophecy ye do well that ye take heed..."

On May 17, 1843, Joseph defined what the apostle Peter meant by the "more sure word of prophecy":

> The more sure word of prophecy [mentioned by Peter] means a man's knowing that he is sealed up unto eternal life, by revelation and the spirit of pro-phecy, through the power of the Holy Priesthood. It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance. (D&C 131:5-6, 1914 edition, brackets in original. See also HC 5:392 and TPJS, p. 301 where verses 5 and 6 were written together.)

Notice that the Prophet connects verses 5 and 6 showing that a person must have the knowledge that he is sealed up to eternal life in order to be saved. The surrounding discourses by the Prophet amply show that the knowledge referred to is a knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ, not just a knowledge about him. Such knowledge can only come through knowing the Father and the Son, which is eternal life. (John 17:3)

Sometime after his experience on the Mount of Transfigura-tion, Peter, along with James and John, received the more sure word of prophecy, which meant they knew by revelation that they had been sealed to eternal life. (2 Peter 1:17-19) Notice here and in Matthew 17:1-9 that Peter never states he received the more sure word on the Mount. He says that in addition to the experience they had on the Mount they also received a "more sure word." (v. 19) Joseph also separates the two occurrances stating that in addition to hearing the voice on the Mount, the three apostles also received a more sure word of prophecy, intimating the more sure word came later. (TPJS, pp. 298-299, 303-306)

Concerning the more sure word of prophecy, the Prophet further amplified this subject by saying:

> Now, there is some grand secret here, and keys to unlock the subject. Notwithstanding the apostle [Peter] exhorts them to add to their faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, etc., yet he exhorts them to make their calling and election sure [2 Pet. 1:5-10]. And though they [Peter, James & John] had heard an audible voice from heaven [while on the Mount of Transfiguration] bearing testimony that Jesus was the Son of God, yet he [Peter] says we have a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed as unto a light shining in a dark place [2 Pet. 1:19]. Now, wherein could they have a more sure word of prophecy than to hear the voice of God saying, This is my beloved Son. (TPJS, p. 298)

What could possibly give a person eternal life more than to hear the voice of God declare that Jesus is the Son of God? Wouldn't that be enough? Joseph says no. He must go on and receive the more sure word of prophecy:

> Now for the secret and grand key. Though they might hear the voice of God and know that Jesus was the Son of God, this would be no evidence that their calling and election was made sure, that they had part with Christ, and were joint heirs with him. They then would want that more sure word of prophecy, that they were sealed in the heavens and had the promise of eternal life in the kingdom of God. Then, having this promise sealed unto them, it was an anchor to the soul, sure and steadfast. Though the thunders might roll and lightnings flash, and earthquakes bellow, and war gather thick around, yet this hope and knowledge would support the soul in every hour of trial, trouble and tribulation. Then knowledge through our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ is the grand key that unlocks the glories and mysteries of the kingdom of heaven. (TPJS, pp 298-299; HC 5:387-390; May 14, 1843)

Elder Bruce R. McConkie made this comment: "We have also [now this is something in addition to standing on the mount and hearing the voice of God and seeing the Lord Jesus transfigured before them]--we have also a more sure word of prophecy; and it is this more sure word that is the great thing; it is greater than the great spiritual experience they had with Christ and God on the mount. (2 Peter 1:19; SY2 p. 3.)

One of the important keys of understanding is that "it is one thing to be on the [spiritual] mount and hear the excellent voice, etc., and [yet it is quite] another to hear the voice declare to you, You have a part and lot in that kingdom." (TPJS, pp. 306, 305) According to the Prophet Joseph, a person makes his calling and election sure by obtaining the more sure word of prophecy: "Then I would exhort you to go on and continue to call upon God until you make your calling and election sure for yourselves, by obtaining this more sure word of prophecy, and wait patiently for the promise until you obtain it (TPJS, p. 299).

Once a person has heard the voice of God declare to him that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, he should continue to call upon God and wait patiently, enduring in all good works, until he receives the more sure word of prophecy. Once this knowledge is obtained, the glories and mysteries of the kingdom can then be unlocked unto him.

This subject was revealed by the Prophet in a letter to his uncle in September, 1833, when he mentioned that all must obtain an assurance of salvation for themselves if they ever expect to be where God is, and that such an assurance of salvation would be "...confirmed to them by an oath from the mouth of him who [can] not lie." (History of Joseph Smith, pp. 235-236 (232-237), by Lucy Mack Smith and edited by Preston Nibley. Bookcraft: Salt Lake City, Utah, 1958)

newspaper, stating that men must sacrifice all things and forsake "...the customs of the heathen, [in order to] obtain the promise from the Lord of glory that their salvation was sealed, that their election was sure" and that only after they heard his voice and obtained a promise from his mouth would they have "an abundant entrance administered unto them into the everlasting kingdom of the Lamb" (Evening and Morning Star 2 [June 1834]: 167)

In June of 1839, Joseph introduced for the first time the phrase from Peter "make your calling and election sure." He used it in terms of being "sealed up to eternal life", stating that a person would be sealed to eternal life and thereby make his calling and election sure when he heard the voice of the Lord say to him, Son thou shalt be exalted. He said:

> After a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost, (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say to him, Son, thou shalt be exalted. When the Lord has thoroughly proved him, and finds that the man is determined to serve Him at all hazards, then the man will find his calling and election made sure.... (TPJS, p. 150)

Thus, a person can make his calling and election sure by receiving the more sure word of prophecy, which is to hear the voice of God declare to you that you will have eternal life, as happened to Alma. (Mosiah 26:20)

More Sure Word of Prophecy, Accounts of. There are several scriptural and historical examples of individuals who were sealed up to eternal life by receiving the more sure word of prophecy. Elder Marion G. Romney gave the following examples:

"Lehi's grandson Enos so hungered after righteousness that he cried unto the Lord until 'there came a voice unto [him]. saying: Enos, thy sins are forgiven thee, and thou shalt be blessed' (Enos 5). Years later Enos revealed the nature of this promised blessing when he wrote:

> I soon go to the place of my rest, which is with my Redeemer; for I know that in him I shall rest. And I rejoice in the day when my mortal shall put on immortality, and shall stand before him; then shall I see his face with pleasure, and he will say unto me: Come unto me, ye blessed, there is a place prepared for you in the mansions of my Father. (Enos 27)

"To Alma the Lord said, 'Thou art my servant; and I covenant with thee that thou shalt have eternal life.' (Mosiah 26:20)

"To His twelve Nephite disciples, the Master said:

> What is it that ye desire of me, after that I am gone to the Father?
> And they all spake, save it were three, saying: We desire that after we have lived unto the age of man, that our ministry, wherein thou hast called us, may have an end, that we may speedily come unto thee in thy kingdom.
> And he said unto them: Blessed are you because ye desired this thing of me; therefore, after that ye are seventy and two years old ye shall come unto me in my kingdom; and with me ye shall find rest. (3 Nephi 28:1-3)

"As Moroni labored in solitude abridging the Jaredite record, he received from the Lord this comforting assurance:

> Thou hast been faithful; wherefore, thy garments shall be made clean. And because thou hast seen thy weakness thou shalt be made strong, even unto the sitting down in the place which I have prepared in the mansions of my Father. (Ether 12:37)

"Paul, in his second epistle to Timothy, wrote:

> I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand.
> I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith:
> Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day. (2 Timothy 4:6-8)

"In this dispensation many have received like assurances. In the spring of 1839, while the Prophet Joseph and his associates were languishing in Liberty Jail, Heber C. Kimball, our president's grandfather, labored against great odds caring for the Saints and striving to free the brethren who were in jail. On the sixth of April he wrote:

> My family having been gone about two months, during which time I heard nothing from them; our brethren being in prison; death and destruction following us everywhere we went; I felt very sorrowful and lonely. The following words came to mind, and the Spirit said unto me, 'write,' which I did by taking a piece of paper and writing on my knee as follows:
> "Verily I say unto my servant Heber, thou art my son, in whom I am well pleased; for thou art careful to hearken to my words, and not transgress my law, nor rebel against my servant Joseph Smith, for thou hast a respect to the words of mine anointed, even from the least to the greatest of them; therefore thy name is written in heaven, no more to be blotted out for ever. (Kimball, p. 241)

"To the Prophet Joseph Smith the Lord said:

> I am the Lord thy God, and will be with thee unto the end of the world, and through all eternity; for verily I seal upon you your exaltation, and prepare a throne for you in the kingdom of my Father, with Abraham your father. (D&C 132:49; All of preceding examples were given by President Romney at the April, 1977 General Conference, and printed in The Ensign/May 1977. p. 45). [End of narration by Elder Romney]

From these accounts it is clear that people in ages past were sealed up to eternal life by hearing the voice of God, and that since God is the same yesterday, today and forever, such will continue to happen during our own dispensation.

Name of The Father. While on the Isle of Patmos, John the Revelator saw in vision the prophetic events of the latter-days, and among other things, made a statement about a stone and a new name:

> He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it. (Revelation 2:17)

In 1843, the Prophet Joseph Smith spoke in further detail concerning this stone and the new name:

> This earth, in its sanctified and immortal state, will be made like unto crystal and will be a Urim and Thummim to the inhabitants who dwell thereon, whereby all things pertaining to an inferior kingdom, or all kingdoms of a lower order, will be manifest to those who dwell on it; and this earth will be Christ's.
>
> Then the white stone mentioned in Revelation 2:17, will become a Urim and Thummim to each individ- ual who receives one, whereby, things pertaining to a higher order of kingdoms will be made known;
>
> And a white stone is given to each of those who come into the celestial kingdom, whereon is a new name written, which no man knoweth save he that receiveth it. The new name is the key word. (D&C 130:9-11)

Concerning the importance of the new name, Elder McConkie wrote:

> As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name known to and comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. (See Rev. 12-17). Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Nephi 28:10; DNTC 3:567; Revelation 19:12)

Elder James E. Talmage stated "the Father placed His name upon the Son; and Jesus Christ spoke and ministered in and through the Father's name; and so far as power, authority, and Godship are concerned His words and acts were and are those of the Father". (Faith, p. 471)

In a recent General Conference address, Elder Dallin Oaks spoke about how this name of the Son is given to all the faithful saints:

> ...what we witness [when we partake of the sacrament] is not that we take upon us his name but that we are willing to do so. In this sense, our witness relates to some future event or status whose attainment is not self-assumed, but depends on the authority or initiative of the Savior himself.
>
> Scriptural references to the name of Jesus Christ often signify the authority of Jesus Christ. In that sense, our willingness to take upon us his name signifies our willingness to take upon us the authority of Jesus Christ in the sacred ordinances of the temple, and to receive the highest blessings available through his authority when he chooses to confer them upon us. (Ensign/May 1985, p. 83)

In one of a series of four lectures given by Lynn McKinlay, he quoted section 130:9-10, and made the following comment in regards to the new name being the "key word":

> This information concerning the key word has been a mystery and will remain a mystery to all, except as they receive the keys of the Fulness of the Priest- hood. The key word or new name, as we are given to understand here, gives a man the right to obtain the stone upon which that name is written, and that stone will become to him a Urim and Thummim to reveal to him all the secrets of the higher order of the kingdoms. (Life Eternal, p. 163, 1950 ed.)

In the William Clayton Journal of June 14, 1844, the Prophet spoke of the key word by saying: "The g[rand] key word was the first word Adam spoke and it is a word of supplication. He [Joseph] found the word by the Urim and Thummim -- it is that key word to which the heavens is opened."

Non-LDS sources also record very interesting statements in regards to the name. In the Gospel of Phillip it states:, "One single name is not told in the world, the name which the Father gave to the Son. It is higher than everyone, which is this: the name of the Father, for the Son would not become the Father save that he took upon himself the name of the Father. As for this name, those who have it know it, but they speak it not" (Saying #12).

In Masonry "there is a famous legend which the grand orator elaborates in lecture form in the ceremonies of the 13th, 14th, and 21st degrees of Masonry which has some very ancient roots. The basic, introductory aspect of the legend is: that up in the pre-existence, there was a special Secret Doctrine that was given by Deity, and it was given down to the Earth first to Adam. Adam then was to carefully guard this Secret Doctrine because it contained all the Mysteries. It contained the knowledge of God, and the name it contained was the sacred name of God. Adam then bestowed it [the Secret Doctrine] upon his son, Seth, who guarded it very carefully---only among the inner circle of believers---and then it was handed down until it came to Enoch". ("Is There No Help For The Widow's Son", address by Dr. Reed C. Durham, Jr., at the Mormon History Association Convention, held at Nauvoo, Illinois, in the old Nauvoo Hotel, on Saturday, April 20, 1974.)

Another reference talks about "the Name of God" that had been made known among men; that this name was engraven upon the rod of Moses, which rod and name were secret weapons. It also states that Moses told Aaron "all that God had taught him, even the awful secret of the Ineffable Name communicated to him on Mount Horeb." Finally, it relates that the knowledge of the Ineffable Name "makes a man master over nature, and over life and death." (See The Legends of the Jews, Vol 1:233, 269, 330, 352.)

An old Coptic work discusses some interesting details about prayer circles that were held and what they did in them. It mentions that "they [the participants] must form this circle in order to receive a name which they are eager to possess." (I Jeu 90-91; Unpublished Mss, p. 7; December, 1969. "The Early Christian Prayer-Circle", by Hugh Nibley.)

The scriptures confirm this idea of there being a sacred name which the Father gave to the Son: "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth: And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father". (Philemon 2:9-11) The Lord's prayer speaks in terms of the Father's name being "hallowed". (Matthew 6:9) The apostle Paul, in his epistle to the Hebrews, speaks about Christ's more excellent name: "Being made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they." (Hebrews 1:4)

It is apparent that the seer stone and the name are connected. (D&C 130:10-11) The Prophet Joseph said "...that every man who lived on the earth was entitled to a seer stone, and should have one, but they are kept from them in consequence of their wickedness". (MHBY, 1801-1844, December 27, 1841)

One Hundred & Forty-Four Thousand. In the Book of Revelation, John spoke concerning the last days in which there would be 144,000 sealed with "the seal of the living God":

> And after these things I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that the wind should not blow on the earth, nor on the sea, nor on any tree.
>
> And I saw another angel [John the Revelator--See D&C 77:9, 14.]

ascending from the east, having the seal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea,

Saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

And I heard the number of them which were sealed: and there were sealed an hundred and forty and four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel. (Revelation 7:1-4)

The four angels spoken of are "sent forth from God, to whom is given power over the four parts of the earth, to save life and to destroy; these are they who have the everlasting gospel to commit to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people; having power to shut up the heavens, to seal up unto life, or to cast down to the regions of darkness". (D&C 77:8) These angels were instructed to wait their destruction upon the earth, "till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads [through the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood]". (D&C 77:9) And "what are we to understand by sealing the one hundred and forty-four thousand, out of all the tribes of Israel---twelve thousand out of every tribe? We are to understand that those who are sealed are high priests [not high priests within the church, but rather priests and kings], ordained unto the holy order of God [which is the fulness of the priesthood], to administer the everlasting gospel; for they are they who are ordained out of every nation, kindred, tongue, and people, by the angels to whom is given power over the nations of the earth, to bring as many as will come to the church of the firstborn'. (D&C 77:11) The mission, then, of the 144,000 will be to bring as many people as are faithful, who are members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, into membership with the church of the Firstborn. Their labors have nothing to do with the missionary work going on in the world today wherein non-members are being baptized into the Church, since the two churches are not synonymous.

Concerning the sealing in the forehead which they receive, the prophet Joseph explained:

Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election sure. (TPJS, p. 321)

These events which John saw were to take place during the 6th seal, or in other words, during the 6th 1,000 years of this earths temporal existence. (D&C 77:10) We are currently living in the closing moments of the 6th seal. The four destroying angels which are required to wait will be loosed "during the seventh seal and before the Lord comes" (Revelation 9), for it is at this time that the voice said "to the sixth angel which had the trumpet, Loose the four angels which are bound in the great river Euphrates". (Revelation 9:14)

In 1843, the sealing in the forehead commenced, and the selection of the 144,000 began. By February of 1844, Joseph Smith "made some remarks respecting the hundred and forty-four thousand mentioned by John the Revelator, showing that the sel- ection of persons to form that number had already commenced". (HC 6:196) Joseph could confidently say this now, since the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood had been administered since September of 1843, and over 20 individuals had received the sealing. Since 1844, there have been thousands of saints who have received this holy sealing.

Patriarchal Order, The. The sacred system of government and way of life among the Gods in the heavens is the patriarchal order. This system was given to Adam and Eve when they were first placed upon the earth and it was the system of government among the righteous until the days of Moses. (DS 3:160-161) At the head of the patriarchal order was Adam and Eve who gave the spiritual and temporal guidance to their children. "Adam was the natural father of his posterity, who were his family and over whom he presided as patriarch, prophet, priest, and king." (John Taylor, T&S 6 [June 1, 1845]:921) They did not use an ecclesiastical structure to help teach or govern their children. They received the command from the Lord to teach their own children (Moses 6:57-58), and, in obedience to that command, they taught their children the principles of salvation (Moses 5:12; 6:6; 7:1). The Kingdom of God has always existed upon the earth, but the Church of Jesus Christ has not. (See God, Kingdom of; Church, Divine Mission of)

Adam also held the authority to initiate their children into all the ordinances of the gospel, from baptism to the fulness of the priesthood. With the assistance of Eve, they administered the same covenants and ordinances to their children that the faithful receive today in the church and temples, for the gospel and it's ordinances are the same in all dispensations.

As we analyze the patriarchal order which Adam and Eve received from heaven, we find that it contains several important aspects. The following are aspects of the order:

1. Marriage For Eternity

Eloheim gave to Adam a wife, whom he (Adam) called Eve because she was the mother of all living. (Moses 4:26. See Moses 1:34 where Adam and Eve mean "many", and TPJS, p. 167 where they are the parents of all mankind.)

Although we are not told when the marriage took place, we do know that it occurred some time prior to the fall. Moses says that "Adam and his wife" walked in the garden of Eden (Moses 4:14), and "they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed." (Moses 3:25) Apostle Orson Pratt stated their marriage had been performed prior to the fall and was therefore intended to be eternal. (JD 6:358)

Eternal marriage is the basis of the patriarchal order. (D&C 131:1-4) Without a husband and wife, sealed for all eternity, there can be no patriarchal kingdom. "Eternal family units have their beginning in an 'order of the priesthood' named 'the new and everlasting covenant of marriage.' (D&C 131:2)" (MPSG 1967, p. 143) "Although each father is the head of his family, in the strict sense of the word the Latter-day Saint family cannot be called patriarchal unless the husband holds the Melchizedek Priesthood and the wife [is] married to or sealed to the husband in the temple, and the children [are] born in the covenant or sealed to their parents." (MPSG, 1967-1968, p. 55) President Benson said in order to establish the patriarchal order, "the family must be sealed for time and all eternity." (Address given to Regional Representatives, October 4, 1973, Entitled: "Strengthening the Individual Priesthood Holder.")

2. Multiply & Replenish the Earth

Prior to the fall, Adam and Eve were commanded to "be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth" (Moses 2:29), even though they were unable to keep the command while in the garden of Eden. (2 Nephi 2:23; Moses 5:11) After the fall they faithfully kept this commandment, for "Adam knew his wife, and she bare unto him sons and daughters, and they began to multiply and to replenish the earth." (Moses 5:2) It was only after they were commanded to multiply that they actually did so. The intimate relationship of marriage is most sacred and was not engaged in by Adam and Eve until they were married and commanded to multiply, thus setting the example for their children.

As Eve and other women gave birth to the souls of men, they did so "in sorrow", for "the Lord God, said [unto the woman]: I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception. In sorrow thou shalt bring forth children...." (Moses 4:22) Not sorrowful that she is having children, but sorrowful in the sense of painful. President Brigham Young said: "And when you bring forth [children] it shall be in extreme pain; Were it not for this curse woman would not have suffered pain in child bearing." ("A Few Words of Doctrine", October 8, 1861; Discourse given in the Salt Lake Tabernacle) After this fallen world is over with, however, women will not bring forth children in sorrow. Belinda Marden Pratt commented that in eternity they will be able to "multiply their children, without pain, or sorrow, or death." ("Defense of Polygamy" Church Historian's Office, P/M243.9/ P916d, January 12, 1854, p. 7) Orson Pratt echoed this feeling:

> The increase of those who are exalted in that kingdom will endure for ever; and the bringing forth of children will not be attended with sorrow, pain and distress as it is here: these evils have come in consequence of the fall of man and the transgression by him of God's holy laws. But when men are redeemed to immortality and eternal life there will be no pain, sorrow or affliction of body, and yet children will be brought forth, and to their increase there will be no end. (JD 15:320, January 19, 1873)

The propagation of the species is vital in order for a patriarchal kingdom to grow in size and dominion. The Lord promised Abraham: "I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore." (Genesis 22:17; also JD 1:59-60) All those who enter the patriarchal order receive this same promise, based upon their faithfulness. This is why birth control, which includes all forms of birth control devices as well as sterilization, is such a wicked practice. It prevents the husband and wife from building their eternal family kingdom. Brigham Young said: "Every man who is faithful and gets a salvation and glory, and becomes a king of kings and Lord of Lords, or a father of fathers, it will be by the increase of his own progeny." (JD 11:261-262) Birth control prevents the most valiant spirits from obtaining godly homes, and stops the woman from obtaining her own salvation, for Paul said: "she shall be saved in childbearing, if [she] continue in faith and charity and holiness with sobriety." (1 Timothy 2:15)

3. Family Government & Relationships

At the time of the fall, the Lord told Eve "thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." (Moses 4:22) Two thoughts are given here. First, the desire of the woman should be to her husband and none else. President Spencer W. Kimball said this meant that even the children would come after the spouse in importance. (Ensign/March 1976, pp. 71-73) There should be no one in her life that takes preeminence in her feelings over those for her husband. This is also just as true for the husband. (D&C 42:22) And because of her feelings of love for the Lord and her husband, it will naturally be her great desire to build up their eternal family kingdom through progeny and by teaching them the principles of righteousness.

The second thought has to do with the law of obedience: "and he shall rule over thee." (Moses 4:22) The word "preside" instead of "rule" would also be appropriate in this case. (See Pres. S.W. Kimball, Ensign/March 1976, pp. 71-73) This short phrase has direct reference to the order or type of government which exists in the patriarchal order, as well as the relationship that should exist between husband and wife. The Lord placed Adam at the head of the patriarchal order, and gave him dominion over all things upon the earth. He held the fulness of the priesthood even before the creation of this earth, and presided over the spirits of all who would come to earth. (TPJS, p. 157) He "received commandments and instructions from God: this was the order from the beginning." (TPJS, p. 168) However, this type of government was not dictatorial, tyrannical, nor was it governed only by virtue of the priesthood, because "no power or influence can or ought to be maintained by virtue of the priesthood." Instead, it was governed by "persuasion, by long-suffering, by gentleness and meekness, and by love unfeigned; by kindness, and pure knowledge, which shall greatly enlarge the soul without hypocrisy, and without guile...." (D&C 121:41-44)

Paul the apostle spoke of three vital relationships which must exist within the patriarchal order in order for it to function properly. He said: "[1] the head of every man is Christ; and [2] the head of the woman is the man; and [3] the head of Christ is God." (1 Corinthians 11:3) First, the relationship which the Savior had with his Father is amply demonstrated throughout the four gospels. The Father loved his Son, and manifested that love to him in many personal ways. Christ also loved the Father, and did not seek to do his own will, but rather to do the will of his Father. Even in the garden of Gethsemane, when he found the burden hard to bear, and asked the cup to pass from him, he said "nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done." (Luke 22:42) The Father and the Son were one in spirit, in power, and in mission. (John 17:21-23) Secondly, just as the Father and the Son are one, it is the challenge of every husband to be one with the Son, and to respond to the Savior in the same way that the Savior responded to his Father. Only through obedience can the husband partake of the love of the Father and the Son. (John 14:21-23; 15:9-12) He must keep all the commandments and observe all the laws of God. If he does not, he mocks God and breaks sacred covenants, and will be held accountable for his actions. Only through obedience to God will the husband be enabled to have the love, kindness and patience required, as well as the visions and revelations necessary to preside in the home as he should. By doing this the husband will be respected by his wife. She needs to know that obedience to God comes first in his life.

In addition to being one with Christ, Paul said: "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish, so ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loveth his wife loveth himself." (Ephesians 5:25-28) Husbands must live the example of the Savior and love their wives just as Christ loved the Church and gave himself for it. Physical or verbal abuse has no place in the patriarchal order.

Thirdly, Paul counseled the sisters: "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church: and he is the savior of the body. Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing." (Ephesians 5:22-24) In addition to being willing to follow the counsel of her husband as he follows the counsel of God, the wife should fully develop herself in every way spiritually, physically and intellectually. As a team, the husband and wife are one. Even though the Father presides in his relationship with the Son does not mean the Son is unimport-ant! The husband and wife are two halfs, and make one. Both have their duties and callings to perform. Both are equally loved and equally important to the Lord, even though one presides.

In the marriage relationship "no woman has ever been asked by the Church authorities to follow her husband into an evil pit. She is to follow him as he follows and obeys the Savior of the world, but in deciding this, she should always be sure she is fair" (S.W.Kimball, Ensign/March 1976, pp. 71-73). As the Savior does the will of his Father, and as the husband does the will of the Son, so should the wife be willing to abide by the counsel of her husband. They should counsel and discuss all issues that confront them and then ask the will of the Lord in their lives. As the presidency of their family they have the right to revelation.

If the husband will become one with the Son, and the wife one with her husband, they will gain access to all the blessings of heaven. Unity and oneness must pervade their feelings for one another and within the home. For "if ye are not one ye are not mine." (D&C 38:27) But if they are one, the promise is, that "where two or three are gathered together in my name, as touching one thing, behold, there will I be in the midst of them---even so am I in the midst of you." (D&C 6:32) Indeed, "neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man, in the Lord." (1 Corinthians 11:11) In order for the husband and the wife to pray and have their prayers answered they must not let "the sun go down upon [their] wrath" (Ephesians 4:26) Ill feelings towards one another must not exist as they gather daily in their family prayer circles.

Lastly, children are to obey their parents "in the Lord". (Ephesians 6:1) In this way they will receive righteousness and truth directly from heaven, because the conduit or pipeline will be open and the river of living water will be flowing. Also, parents will not suffer their children to "transgress the laws of God, and fight and quarrel one with another, and serve the devil....But ye will teach them to walk in the ways of truth and soberness; ye will teach them to love one another, and to serve one another." (Mosiah 4:14-15; also D&C 68:25)

The patriarchal relationship between husband, wife and children was well understood by Jacob and his son Joseph. In one of his dreams, Joseph told his father that "the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to [him]." His father responded: "What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth?" (Genesis 37:9-10) Jacob was quick to understand that the sun represented him, that the moon represented his wife, and that the eleven stars represented his eleven other sons.

As we analyze the symbolism, we find several interesting thoughts. First, the sun presides in the skies during the day, but in its absence the moon presides. (See Moses 2:18; D&C 88:45) Second, the moon receives her light from the sun, partakes fully of the glory which she receives from the sun, and passes on a portion of that light to the earth. The stars only rule when the sun and moon are both not there. Notice also how the sun is referred to as male and the moon as female. (D&C 88:45)

The analogy to the marriage and family relationship is at once obvious. When the father [the sun] is home, he presides. But in his absence the mother [the moon] presides, not the oldest member of the family [one of the stars], whether he holds the priesthood or not. (First Presidency statement printed in the Relief Society Manual, 1974-75, pp. 57-58. See also the MPSG, 1977-78, p. 28) The woman presides in the absence of her husband because she has entered into an order of the priesthood, through temple marriage, which gives her the right to preside and direct the affairs of the kingdom whenever the husband is not there.

Within any kingdom there is a king, queen and subjects. The queen always rules in the absence of the king, not one of the subjects. Also, the wife partakes of the glory, power, might and dominion of her husband, and inherits from him all that he receives from Heavenly Father. The difference in brightness between the sun and moon has nothing to do with the amount of glory which a husband and wife possess, because the woman inherits all that her husband receives. This is made possible because she was sealed to him in the new and everlasting covenant of marriage. Finally, only when both the father and the mother are absent from the home does the oldest priesthood bearer take care of things until they return.

The law of obedience, which applies equally to husband, wife and children, was given to mankind by God so that all would have a channel of revelation through which they could be guided while they lived in this world of spiritual darkness. If the man would be willing to obey the laws and commandments of God, and listen only to every word which proceeded forth from the mouth of God, and if the woman would listen only to her inspired husband, they would both be safely guided through the spiritual darkness of this world. A departure from God occurs when either the husband or the wife, or both, begin listening and heeding "strange" voices, voices other than the ones which they promised they would listen to.

Because of the darkness which is in the world, it was an act of great mercy and love on behalf of the Father to give his children this law. With it, they can travel safely through this underworld of danger without fear of getting lost. However, in order to be successful at this, the man must place his hand in the Lord's, and listen to, and obey only, his voice. He should develop an indwelling relationship with the spirit which will flow to the family. The wife must also be willing to place her hand in her husband's, listen only to his inspired voice, develop an indwelling relationship with the spirit, and be one with her husband. If they choose not to do this, and prefer to listen to voices other than those which are appointed for them to listen to (and the world is full of them), for any reason at all, it becomes a willful act of rebellion against God. When a person rebels against God he or she becomes a "law unto himself", selecting his or her own will in the place of God's. Such people will no doubt lose their way in this life and will eventually partake of misery and woe. (See D&C 88:34-35)

There are many voices in the world today, which are tempting and encouraging men and women to pay no heed to the word and spirit of God. Consequently, individuals are falling away into "forbidden paths" and are lost. (1 Nephi 8) The feminist movement, which advocates and works towards the overthrow and destruction of the family structure (although this is no openly advocated), is one of the most dangerous voices being heard today, and if heeded, will lead the person into forbidden paths. "That which breaketh a law, and abideth not by law, but seeketh to become a law unto itself, and willeth to abide in sin, and altogether abideth in sin, cannot be sanctified by law, neither by mercy, justice, nor judgment. Therefore, they must remain filthy still." (D&C 88:34-39)

4. Provide Temporally For The Family

Prior to being cast out of the garden of Eden, the Lord told Adam: "cursed shall be the ground for thy sake; in sorrow [Heb., travail, pain] shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also, and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field. By the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, until thou shalt return unto the ground---for thou shalt surely die---for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou wast, and unto dust shalt thou return." (Moses 4:23-25. See also Moses 6:59 where it states that a person is made of the dust through the birth process.)

Instead of bringing forth fruit spontaneously as it did before the fall, the earth would now only bring forth thorns and thistles.

After they were driven out of the garden, "Adam began to till the earth, and to have dominion over all the beasts of the field, and to eat his bread by the sweat of his brow, as I the Lord had commanded him. And Eve, also, his wife, did labor with him." (Moses 5:1) Since the fields in which they labored were probably near their home, Eve could help Adam as much as she was able. As the children came into the home, however, her labors must have been more confined to bearing and raising them. Both Adam and Eve took an active role in teaching their children. (Moses 5:12; 6:57-58) Their home and family was the center of their lives, not their fields. They wanted more than anything to return to the presence of God from whence they had fallen, and they worked towards that end. Adam tilled the ground to provide for the temporal necessities of his wife and family, not to make it the center of his life. Today, however, some brethren have made their jobs the center of their lives, and have become dazzled by fame and fortune, while their wives and children are widows and orphans emotionally and spiritually, left alone to fend for themselves.

Adam and Eve did not rely upon anyone else to provide for them temporally. Nor did they go their separate ways indepen- dently looking for wealth, fame or power. For them, there was no greater work than the work they did within their home for their family. They labored diligently and provided for all their physical and spiritual needs. Thiey set the proper example for their children in all generations. The question is not whether women are capable of outstanding performance in executive and labor positions, because they are, but rather it is a question of mission and priority. President N. Eldon Tanner said:

> We must never forget that one of woman's greatest privileges, blessings, and opportunities is to be a co-partner with God in bringing his spirit children into the world.
> It is a great concern to all who understand this glorious concept that Satan and his cohorts are using scientific arguments and nefarious propaganda to lure women away from their primary responsibilities as wives, mothers, and homemakers. We hear so much about emancipation, independence, sexual liberation, birth control, abortion, and other insidious propaganda belittling the role of motherhood, all of which is Satan's way of destroying woman, the home, and the family---the basic unit of society. (CR, October 1973, pp. 123-124)

This does not mean that mother and wives cannot develop their skills in all areas, culture, refinement, education, knowledge, perfection, etc. But there is a reason for all of this. President Spencer W. Kimball explained:

> I wish to say without equivocation that a woman will find no greater satisfaction and joy and peace and make no greater contribution to mankind than in being a wise and worthy woman and raising good children....We are interested in our sisters having everything that is good. We believe in having all these blessings--culture, refinement, education, knowledge, perfection--so that the mothers of our children may be able to rear and train them in righteousness. (Ensign/March 1975, p. 4)

Sometimes, however, women must unavoidably work, because they must support themselves and their children. But at the earliest possible moment they should return to the home and resume the most important role of bearing and rearing children.

5. Jointly Prayed Unto the Lord

After their expulsion from the garden of Eden, Adam built an altar and both "Adam and Eve, his wife, called upon the name of the Lord, and they heard the voice of the Lord from the way toward the Garden of Eden, speaking unto them, and they saw him not; for they were shut out of his presence." (Moses 5:4) Even though they were cast out of the Lord's presence, "Adam and Eve, his wife, ceased not to call upon God." (Moses 5:16)

Prayer was one of the essential elements of their lives. They jointly worked to come back into God's presence from whence they fell. It was not left up to just one or the other to do this. Adam and Eve formed the presidency of their home and together they called upon the Lord for the light and knowledge which they needed to govern their lives. By so doing they both heard the voice of the Lord speak to them.

6. Fulness of the Priesthood

The patriarchal family order, in its fulness, is always governed by a man and woman who have received the fulness of the priesthood. The patriarchal order is entered through eternal marriage, which is the first seal, but the fulfillment of the everlasting covenant which cannot be broken, and the reception of the fulness of the priesthood can only be received by an anointing and sealing which makes their calling and election sure, and is the second seal. (TPJS, pp. 321-323. See also William Clayton Journal, July 16, 1843; October 20, 1843; November 20, 1844; D&C 132:19, 26) Eternal marriage can properly be termed a "sealing" since the couple has sealed upon them the blessings of the fulness if they continue faithful. Once they are judged faithful, whether in this life or in the spirit world, they will inherit all that was pronounced upon them in temple marriage. These blessings are sealed upon the couple by virtue of the sealing power which Elijah restored. Such was the case with Adam and Eve. They held the fulness of the priesthood power and authority and governed their family through the patriarchal order. Because of it, they were able to administer "endless lives" to their righteous descendants.

The record states that "all things were confirmed unto Adam, by an holy ordinance" (Moses 5:59) and that Adam entered into "the order of him who was without beginning of days or end of years." (Moses 6:67) Today, that order is called the fulness of the priesthood, and can only be entered into by receiving the fulness of the ordinances of the temple. (Joseph Fielding Smith, IE (June 1970) 73:65-66) By it his faithful children were able to commune with, and see God for themselves. For example, the scriptures state that "God revealed himself unto Seth, and he rebelled not, but offered an acceptable sacrifice, like unto his brother Abel." (Moses 6:3) After Cain committed murder, the Lord cursed him, and "shut [him] out from the presence of the Lord." (Moses 5:41) Cain felt this was more than he could bear, and he said: "Behold thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the Lord, and from thy face shall I be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth." (Moses 5:39) Cain shed the "innocent blood" of his brother Abel and fell from "the presence of the Lord" and became a son of perdition. Enoch also lived in the days of Adam and Eve and held the fulness of the priesthood. He and his city walked and talked with God until they were translated off the earth. (Moses 7:18,21,69; JD 3:320)

7. Kept A Book of Remembrance

All the inspired sayings of Adam were kept in a book, which was used to teach his children how to read. In the book was a genealogy of the generations of the children of God: "And a book of remembrance was kept, in the which was recorded, in the language of Adam, for it was given unto as many as called upon God to write by the spirit of inspiration; And by them their children were taught to read and write, having a language which was pure and undefiled....Now this prophecy Adam spake, as he was moved upon by the Holy Ghost, and a genealogy was kept of the children of God. And this was the book of the generations of Adam." (Moses 6:5-8)

8. Taught Children the Gospel

Adam and Eve taught their children the plan of redemption from the fall and how they could, through obedience to the commandments and ordinances, come back into God's presence. "And Adam and Eve blessed the name of God, and they made all things known unto their sons and their daughters." (Moses 5:12) They taught "these things freely unto [their] children." (Moses 6:58) And "Behold, our father Adam taught these things, and many have believed and become the sons of God." (Moses 7:1) One of the greatest causes of apostasy among the children of Adam would have occurred had Adam and Eve not shared all that they had received from God with their children. As they received the blessings and covenants from God in the one hand, they would give them to their children through the other hand, the one hand receiving from God above, and the other hand dispensing to their posterity below.

Today, family home evenings, and other occasions provide excellent opportunities to teach all things unto our children, so that they can gain testimonies of the truth for themselves. Thus the great importance for parents to become knowledgeable about the gospel, in tune with the spirit, and obedient to the Lord and his servants, so as to teach their children properly.

9. Ancient Order of Patriarchal Blessings

Within the gospel context, a natural patriarch is a person who holds the Patriarchal Priesthood and is the natural, and/or sealed father of his posterity. On the other hand, an ordained patriarch is a person who has been ordained within the church to give blessings to those who are orphans, having no father who can bless them. In 1845, John Taylor explained the difference and relationship between the two:

> A Patriarch to the church is appointed to bless those who are orphans, or have no father in the church to bless them....But does not the Patriarch [to the church] stand in the same relationship to the church, as Adam did to his family, and as Abraham and Jacob did to theirs? No. This is another mistake which is made by our junior, and one that may be very easily made inadvertantly. Adam was the natural father of his posterity, who were his family and over whom he presided as patriarch, prophet, priest, and king. Both Abraham and Jacob stood in the same relationship to their families. But not so with Father Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, or William Smith. They were not the natural fathers of the church, and could not stand in the same capacity as Adam, Abraham, or Jacob; but inasmuch as there had been none to bless for genera- tions past, according to the ancient order, they were ordained and set apart for the purpose of conferring patriarchal blessings, to hold the keys of this priesthood, and unlock the door, that had long been closed upon the human family: that blessings might again be conferred according to the ancient order, and those who were orphans, or had no father to bless them, might receive it through a patriarch who should act as proxy for their father, and that fathers might again be enabled to act as patriarchs to their families, and bless their children. For like all other ordinances in the church, this had been neglected; and must needs be restored. (T&S, 6:921-922; June 1, 1845)

Eliza R. Snow, expressed this same idea by saying:

> With the restoration of the fullness of the gospel came also the ancient order of patriarchal blessings. Each father, holding the priesthood, stands as a patriarch, at the head of his family, with invested right and power to bless his household, and to predict concerning the future, on the heads of his children, as did Jacob of old.
> Inasmuch as many fathers have died without having conferred those blessings, God, in the order of his kingdom, has made provisions to supply the deficiency, by choosing men to officiate as patriarchs, whose province it is to bless the fatherless. Joseph Smith, Sr., was ordained to this office, and held the posi- tion of first patriarch in the church. (Women of Mormondom, p. 96; 1877 ed.)

John A. Widtsoe explained this concept by saying that "one holding the Patriarchal office [as an ordained patriarch within the church] does not stand as the head of any family (save his own) or as the head of the Church, or any branch thereof, but acts primarily as proxy for the fatherless and for those whose nearest male ancestors are not in the Church." (Priesthood & Church Government, p. 269)

How, within the gospel framework, does a father become a patriarch to his family? John Taylor taught:

> Every father, after he has received his patri- archal blessing, is a Patriarch to his own family; and has the right to confer patriarchal blessings upon his family; which blessings will be just as legal as those conferred by any Patriarch of the church: in fact it is his right; and a Patriarch in blessing his child- ren, can only bless as his mouth-piece. (T&S, 6:921; See also The Gospel Kingdom, p. 146)

Elder Taylor was apparently addressing himself to those who were already members of the church and who held the higher priesthood, since one cannot pronounce spiritual blessings upon the heads of others, as God's mouth-piece, without the Melchi- zedek Priesthood. (D&C 107:18) In the early days of the church many members of the church were endowed, married in the temple and held the fulness of the priesthood before they ever received their patriarchal blessings.

Daniel Tyler commented that "every faithful Elder in Israel who has received a patriarchal blessing by a legally authorized father in Israel, is, himself, by virtue of his blessing, a patriarch to his children, and without such blessing is not a recognized patriarch." (JI, May, 1880, p. 111; Article entitled "Temples") Here, brother Tyler indicates that "every faithful Elder" is "a patriarch to his children", showing that natural patriarchs must hold the priesthood.

To this idea, John A. Widtsoe added that "every man is a Patriarch who is the natural father or head of a family, if his children have been born to him under the bond of the Holy Priesthood. Therefore, each head of a properly organized family, being a Patriarch, may in his own right bless his posterity." (Priesthood & Church Government, p. 269)

Bruce R. McConkie echoed this idea by saying:

> In addition to ordained patriarchs, there are also natural patriarchs. Every holder of the higher priesthood who has entered into the patriarchal order of celestial marriage---thereby receiving for himself the blessings of the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob---is a natural patriarch to his posterity. (MD, p. 560; 558)

President Spencer W. Kimball also taught that a man becomes a patriarch to his family through temple marriage:

> Only through this power [Melchizedek Priesthood] does man "hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church," enabling him to receive "the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, to have the heavens opened" unto him (see D&C 107:18-19), enabling him to enter the new and everlasting covenant of marriage and to have his wife and children bound to him in an ever- lasting tie, enabling him to become a patriarch to his posterity forever. (Ensign/June 1975, p. 3)

What is a patriarch supposed to do in connection with his calling? John Taylor stated that patriarchs are to bless their children with patriarchal blessings according to the ancient order. The ancient order began with Adam, who, according to revelation, gathered...

> ...the residue of his posterity who were right-eous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-Ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing.
>
> And the Lord appeared unto them, and they rose up and blessed Adam, and called him Michael, the prince, the archangel.
>
> And the Lord administered comfort unto Adam, and said unto him: I have set thee to be at the head; a multitude of nations shall come of thee, and thou art a prince over them forever.

And Adam stood up in the midst of the congrega- tion; and, notwithstanding he was bowed down with age, being full of the Holy Ghost, predicted whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest genera- tion.

These things were all written in the book of Enoch, and are to be testified of in due time. (D&C 107:53-57)

This ancient order shows that Adam apparently gave several blessings to his children, for prior to his death he gave them his "last blessing." He also blessed several generations of children, not just his immediate children. Additionally, Adam prophesied "whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generation." As previously quoted, Eliza R. Snow stated that each father "stands as a patriarch...with invested right and power to bless his household, and to predict concerning the future, on the heads of his children, as did Jacob of old." (Women, p. 96). Finally, all these things were written down in a book. Patriarchal blessings given by natural fathers should be recorded in their own family records. Blessings given by ordained patriarchs are recorded and preserved in the church archives (DS 3:172)

In the restoration of all things, these same rights were restored to the earth. Every father who has entered the new and everlasting covenant of marriage, may bless his own children by the spirit, and prophesy upon their heads "whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generation", and record these sayings in the family records. This is according to the ancient order of things. In the last days an endowed father may even declare lineage if he is inspired to do so. "Certainly we should give new and additional emphasis to the role of the father", said the First Presidency, "in giving blessings to children in the family. We think we should generally leave to the ordained patriarchs in the stakes the responsibility of declaring lineage in connection with an official patriarchal blessing, but still we could leave unlocked the door so that any father who felt inspired to pronounce the lineage in connection with a father's blessing he was giving to his children should not be prevented from doing so." GHI, Number 21, 1976, p. 50; See also DS 3:172)

The privilege of being able to bless our posterity as Adam, Abraham and Jacob blessed theirs was lost to the world through apostacy. But in the latter-days, all the powers and blessings which rightfully belong to righteous fathers are being restored to them once again. Through the fulness of the temple ordinances men and women can once again obtain all the blessings of the fulness of the gospel that pertain to the same kind of family order which existed in the days of Adam and Eve and bless their children.

10. A Plurality of Wives

The fulness of the patriarchal order lived by Abraham included a plurality of wives. (D&C 132:34-37, 65; MD p. 219; JD 4:224, 13:200, 23:132) This law of eternal and plural marriage "was established in the earliest ages of the world's history" being "practised for two thousand five hundred years before the Law of Moses was given." (MS 22:498-499)

Though we have no direct scriptural references to Adam and Eve practicing this law, latter-day prophets have made state- ments to this effect. Brigham Young stated that polygamy had been practiced by Adam, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, David, Solomon, and others. (Deseret News, February 10, 1867) Joseph Smith may have taught that Adam had more than one wife. (JD 26:115-124) Heber C. Kimball said the garden of Eden "was occupied in the morn of creation by Adam and his associates who came with him for the express purpose of peopling this earth." (JD 10:235) And since the words "Adam" and "Eve" are priesthood titles given to the first man and woman of every earth, it is possible for several women to be an "Eve" on an earth. (Moses 1:34; JD

4:271; 8:243-4; 18:258-9) It was through this principle of eternal and plural marriage, that Abraham received the blessing that his seed would be as numberless as the stars in heaven, as the dust of the earth (Genesis 13:14-16; 15:5; 17:4; D&C 132:30), and as the sand upon the sea shore. (Genesis 22:17; JD 1:59-60; 4:224, 258-260) Those who have the power of eternal increase possess the power of "eternal lives", said Joseph F. Smith. (JD 20:26-31; also D&C 132:55) Those who do not receive this law enter into the "deaths", meaning they have no continuation of the seed (D&C 132:25). Although such power is promised to couples in the ordinance of temple marriage, it is not inherited by them until they have been sealed upon them by the Holy Spirit of Promise (D&C 132:19), for it is only when a couple holds the power of the fulness of the priesthood that they have the power of endless or eternal lives.

The law of plural marriage was revealed throughout time "for the express purpose of raising up to His name a royal Priesthood, a peculiar people," said Brigham Young. (JD 3:264-266) A "royal priesthood" has direct reference to kingly priesthood, or in other words, kings and priests. These royal families provide righteous lines through which the noble spirits of heaven may come forth. (Brigham Young, JD 4:55-57; JD 9:36-40; Heber C. Kimball, JD 5:89-92) It also eradicates jealousy and selfishness when practised in holiness before the Lord. (George Q. Cannon, JD 13:197-208) Because this law is so holy and pure (Heber C. Kimball, JD 11:210-213), "it is necessary that [it] should be practiced under the auspices and control of the Priesthood." (George Q. Cannon, JD 13:201) In fact, "it belongs to this Priesthood and to none other. We are not seeking to extend it to the world nor to introduce it to other people. It is confined to the Priesthood." (Charles W. Penrose, JD 25:228-229) If the law were taught to the world at large, and they accepted it, they could still not receive it until they had embraced the gospel and become members of the Church or Kingdom of God on earth. Consequently, the law was confined to those who were members, and to no one else.

This law was restored to the earth by the prophet Joseph Smith around 1831 (D&C 132) and was lived by the righteous and faithful saints until it was suspended in 1890. The reasons for it's suspension are clear. The saints had a problem with keeping the laws and commandments of God. In 1886 the Lord said to President John Taylor: "Have I not given my word in great plainness on this subject? Yet have not great numbers of my people been negligent in the observance of my laws and the keeping of my commandments, and yet have I borne with them these many years...." (Journal of John Taylor, September 27, 1886; See also Abraham H. Cannon Journal, March 29, 1892) In June of 1890, Apostle Abraham H. Cannon remarked that "it seems to me that Salt Lake City is becoming too much like Babylon, and the growing indifference of the Saints is indeed alarming." (Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol 12:207, June 30, 1890) After the manifesto was issued by President Woodruff, which ceased all plural marriages, Elder John H. Smith said: "It may be that the people are unworthy of the principle and hence the Lord has withdrawn it." (Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Wednesday, October 1, 1890) Then in 1901, President Joseph F. Smith stated that "it [plural marriage] was taken away from the people---like the law of consecration---because the saints rejected it." (William H. Smart Diary, 1901-1902 Book, p. 94, July 28, 1901)

The same revelation and power which restored the principle to the earth through Joseph Smith, also suspended it through President Wilford Woodruff in 1890. "Circumstances do not always place it in the power of man to enter into this covenant and these matters are left with the Lord to adjust...." said President Taylor. (Letter from President John Taylor dated January 19, 1883 to Mrs. Malinda J. Merrill; BYU Special Collections) Brigham Young had already explained that "a man may embrace the law of Celestial marriage [meaning plural marriage] in his heart & not take the second wife & be justified before the Lord." (JWW, September 24, 1871) Since 1890 we have lived in a day when the law is not required of the saints. Those who live this law do so without the sanction or approval of the Prophet or of the Lord. Groups have broken away from the church, claiming authority from John Taylor or others to live the law. But there is only one Prophet on earth who holds the fulness of the sealing keys at any given time. They cannot be held by more than one man at a time on the earth. And since the law was originally only given to the members of the church, all those who live the law and who are not members of the church, do so in violation to the will of God as revealed through his Prophet.

Will the Lord ever lift the suspension and restore the law? Yes, but the day and the hour is unknown. President Wilford Woodruff said: "The principle of plural marriage will yet be restored to this Church, but how or when I cannot say." (Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol 14:87, April 2, 1891) President Joseph F. Smith said that it would not "be restored until there is a people prepared to live [it]." (William H. Smart Diary, 1901-1902, p. 94, July 28, 1901) Since this law is directly connected with the building and redemption of Zion, it will only come when there are sufficient saints who are willing to keep all the commandments and covenants which they have made. Elder Bruce R. McConkie felt it would be restored after the beginning of the Millennium. (MD, p. 578)

Patriarchal Order, Apostasy and Restoration of the. After the days of Adam and Eve, there began to be kings and rulers instead of righteous fathers and mothers who governed the people, and soon the earth was filled with a diversity of types of kingdoms and governments. The patriarchal order was lost in apostacy and wickedness.

Whenever the gospel has been restored to the earth after an apostasy, the keys to restoring the patriarchal order have also been restored as well. This sacred governmental system, however, is never given in totality to the masses of the people. The more sacred portions of it are only given to the righteous who prove themselves worthy of the blessings, and are only administered in sacred places, set apart from the world. In olden times such places were mountain tops, groves, wildernesses and deserts--any place where the world was not. Today, those portions can only be received in temples. (DS 3:131-132, meaning the endowment, marriage sealing and fulness of the priesthood.) The temple is the only place on earth where men and women can go to have given to them all the powers, privileges and blessings that pertain to the same kind of family order that existed in the days of Adam and Eve, and to obtain in full the promise of all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

When this earth is finally celestialized, the government which will operate on it will be patriarchal, just as it was in the beginning of time with Adam and Eve.

Peace In This World. In a revelation to Joseph Smith the Lord said that an individual could obtain "peace in this world, and eternal life in the world to come". (D&C 59:23) The peace spoken of is a result of having been sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which promise and guarantee of eternal life is like an anchor to the soul in troubled times.

"He who obtains it [the promise of eternal life] will obtain an exaltation in the celestial kingdom of our Father in heaven....They are they who are the church of the Firstborn.... This gift of eternal life in the world to come may not, of course, be fully realized during earth life" said Elder Marion G. Romney. "An assurance that it will be obtained in the world to come may, however, be had in this world. As a matter of fact, the blessings of the celestial kingdom are promised only to those who have such an assurance....The Prophet Joseph taught that one so sealed [by the Holy Spirit of promise] would have within himself an assurance born of the spirit, that he would obtain eternal life in the world to come. He urgently and repeatedly admonished the Saints of his day to obtain such an assurance by making their calling and election sure. It is this assurance within a person which brings to him the peace in this world which will sustain him in every tribulation....These fruits of the gospel---assurance that we shall obtain eternal life, peace in this world sustained by such an assurance, and finally eternal life in the world to come---are within the reach of us all....Through self-discipline and devotion we must demonstrate to the Lord that we are willing to serve him under all circumstances. When we have done this, we shall receive an assurance that we shall have eternal life in the world to come. Then we shall have peace in this world". (Marion G. Romney, IE, [November 1949], pp. 719, 752, 754)

The Savior spoke of a peace that the world could not give. He said: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you". (John 14:27; also TPJS, p. 150)

Pentecost, Day of. Prior to the death of the Savior, the apostles had received all the ordinances of the gospel necessary for exaltation. They were no doubt baptized and received the Holy Ghost; they were ordained apostles within the Melchizedek Priesthood and received the keys of the kingdom (Matthew 10:1-10); they were endowed (Heber C. Kimball said: "When Jesus was upon the earth his time was spent in endowing the twelve apostles that they might do the things he had left undone and carry out his measures...."--T&S V [1 Nov 1844], p. 694. Also HC, VII, pp. 299-300, same date); and were married for eternity. Bruce R. McConkie said: "Paul himself was married. Of this there is no question. He had the sure promise of eternal life; his calling and election had been made sure (Teachings, p. 151)--which, according to God's eternal laws, could not have been unless he had first entered into the order of celestial marriage." (MD, p. 119) Peter, James and John were also sealed to eternal life by the more sure word and as kings and priests (2 Peter 1:19; Revelation 1:6; 5:10) and so by the same reasoning which Elder McConkie's gives, they would also have been married. Additionally, they each received the washing of the feet ordinance which made them clean "every whit" (John 13:1-10), afterwhich they received the fulness of the priesthood from the Savior, which fact Christ stated when he said: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit...that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it to you." (John 15:16) Similar language was used when Enoch, Moses and Nephi all received the sealing power. (Moses 1:25; 6:34; Helaman 10:4-6)

After ordaining them to the fulness of the priesthood, Christ explains that he must now leave them so that he can return as the Second Comforter, and so that the Holy Spirit of Promise can come to them as well (John 16). Christ then prays to the Father and thanks him for saving his apostles and for giving them to him. (John 17)

John admits they were anointed kings and priests unto God. (Revelation 1:6; 5:10; TPJS, p. 369) It was imperative that Christ give them the fulness of the priesthood and make them kings and priests, else the fulness would be lost again from the earth when he died. They had not yet received the anointing or endowment of the Holy Spirit of Promise, and so were commanded to tarry in Jerusalem until the day of Pentecost so as to receive it. (Luke 24:49) George Q. Cannon indicated that some or all of the twelve could have been anointed, possibly again, on the day of Pentecost. He said: "Prior to the completion of the [Nauvoo] Temple, he [Joseph Smith] took the Twelve and certain other men, who were chosen, and bestowed upon them a holy anointing, similar to that which was received on the day of Pentecost by the Twelve, who had been told to tarry at Jerusalem. This endowment was bestowed upon the chosen few whom Joseph anointed and ordained, giving unto them the keys of the holy Priesthood, the power and authority which he himself held...." (JD 13:49) John comments later that the "unction from the Holy One" did come, that it abode with them, and that it was "the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life." (1 John 2:20, 25-27)

On the day of Pentecost the Holy Ghost, acting in his different capacities, fell upon all different classes of people in an unusual manner, according to their level of spiritual development. First, as the testifier to those who were not members of the Church, testifying to them that what they were hearing was true. The Holy Ghost testifies to non-members of the truthfulness of the words which they have read or heard from a servant of God. (Moroni 10:4-5) Non-members of the church were present at this unusual outpouring of the spirit. (Acts 2:5-40) Secondly, as the first comforter to church members who were in attendance, giving them peace, comfort and joy and other manifestations. (Acts 2:1-2. See TPJS, p. 149-150 where Joseph stated the Holy Ghost was the first comforter to all those who have been baptized.) Lastly, the Holy Ghost was 'the holy anointing', functioning as the second comforter of promise to Peter and the other brethren who had been sealed to eternal life thereby making their calling and election sure. (Acts 2:1-4) The Holy Ghost had been working with the members of the church during the days of Christ as the first comforter, but not as the second comforter of promise. The day of Pentecost became a special outpouring of the spirit to all who were there.

In our own church history, a similar pentecostal occurrence was experienced by members of the church who were attending to ordinances in the Kirtland Temple. (HC 2:427-428; Biography and Family Record of Lorenzo Snow, by Eliza R. Snow Smith, pp. 11-14) At this Pentecostal experience were 416 official members, some of which had already been sealed to eternal life. So all three classes of people were affected: those who had been sealed up, others who had been baptized, washed and anointed only, and thirdly, "the people of the neighborhood came running together (hearing an unusual sound within, and seeing a bright light like a pillar of fire resting upon the Temple), and were astonished at what was taking place." (HC 2:428) Although all of the participants of this pentecostal experience had been baptized of water and Holy Ghost several years previous, they now enjoyed an unusual "baptism" or outpouring of the Holy Ghost. Some saw glorious visions, others beheld the face of the Savior, while others were ministered to by holy angels. (HC 2:428)

The comforter spoken of by John in chapter 14 of his record was the second comforter according to the Prophet Joseph. (TPJS, p. 150) In chapters 15 & 16, John records that this second comforter could not come to the apostles until the Savior went away, because he (Christ) was the second comforter. Also, the Spirit of Truth (or the Holy Spirit of Promise) would come and dwell within those who merited the second comforter level blessings. So on the day of Pentecost all were "baptized [or immersed] with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 1:5) according to their level of spiritual development. (Acts 2:1-47)

Priesthood, Aaronic Order of the. Concerning this priesthood, Joseph said that it consisted "of priests to administer in outward ordinances, [and that this priesthood is] made [or received] without an oath" (TPJS, p. 323) unlike the Melchizedek priesthod which is received with an oath. This priesthood "was never able to administer a Blessing but only to bind heavy burdens [the law of carnal commandments] which neither they nor their father [were] able to bear." (WJS, p. 245) It "consisted of cursings and carnal commandments and not of blessings and if the preisthood of this generation has no more power than that of Levi or Aron or of a Bishhoprick it administers no blessings but cursings for it was an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. I ask was there any sealing power attending this preisthood that would admit a man into the presence of God[?] Oh no...." (WJP, pp. 245-247. Misspellings in original)

At the direction of the Lord, Aaron and his sons presided over this lesser priesthood, and the tribe of Levi ministered under their direction in the tabernacle (equivalent of a temple today), among the tribes of Israel.

Those holding the Aaronic or Levitical priesthood wore special robes and clothing when they ministered in their priestly duties. Thus, not only was the Aaronic priesthood conferred upon them, they were also endowed within the Aaronic order, wore temple robes, and were enabled to minister in the ordinances of the Aaronic priesthood within the temple.

The keys and authority of this priesthood are held by the descendants of Aaron, for those who are literal descendants of Aaron "have a legal right to the bishopric, if they are the firstborn among the sons of Aaron; for the firstborn holds the right of presidency over this priesthood, and the keys or authority of the same. No man has a legal right to this office, to hold the keys of this priesthood, except he be a literal descendant and the firstborn of Aaron." (D&C 68:15-18) The keys of this priesthood would normally pass from father to son if the father was a descendant of Aaron. But where a literal descendant cannot be found, any high priest "may officiate in the office of bishop...provided he is called and set apart and ordained unto this power, under the hands of the First Presidency of the Melchizedek Priesthood." (D&C 68:19) Such a high priest must also receive the Melchizedek portion of the endowment as well. In the last days, the keys of this Aaronic priesthood are held by the presiding bishop of the church, who serves with counselors (DS 3:92-93), until a descendant of Aaron can be found who is worthy. Those youth who are ordained to the Aaronic priesthood today function in a portion of that order. After going to the temple and receiving the Aaronic order of the endowment they then receive the fulness of that order. At one time President Young wanted to give only the Aaronic portion of the endowment and then let the brethren prove themselves first before receiving any more. For one reason or another this never materialized. But the distinction and importance of both orders is important to understand. (JD 10:309) This Aaronic order also forms a part of the complete endowment which includes the Patriarchal and fulness orders.

This priesthood permitted the children of Israel to come to the veil of the temple, but it did not permit entrance therein. It provided for the ministry of angels, but they were unable to see God nor speak to him face to face.

Priesthood, Chronology of the Fulness of the. The following shows the chronology and relationship of the Melchizedek Priesthood and the fulness of the priesthood.

Chronological Sequence of Events
Relating to the Restoration and Bestowal of the Melchizedek Priesthood and the Fulness of the Priesthood Including the Sealing Power
In the Days of Christ

Mark 3:14 -- Christ chooses and ordains 12 men to be apostles. He gives them the Melchizedek Priesthood, but not the fulness of the priesthood which contains the sealing power. (See also Matthew 10:1-4; Luke 6:12-16) These scriptural quotations and the one that is often quoted in John 15:16 do not refer to the same ordination since they occur nearly 3 years apart.

Matthew 16:19 -- Christ promises the sealing power to Peter, but does not yet bestow it, because it has not yet been restored by Elijah on the Mount of Transfiguration.

Matthew 17:1-13 -- Christ receives the fulness of the Priesthood (which includes the keys of sealing power) while on the Mount of Transfiguration. (See WJS, pp. 246, 307.) Peter, James and John also receive the keys of the sealing power from Elijah while transfigured on the Mount (See TPJS, p. 158), but are not yet ordained kings and priests.

John 13:1-10 -- Christ washes the feet of his apostles making them clean every whit (v. 10), in preparation for the fulness. Judas also receives this ordinance and leaves right after. (John 13:1-30)

John 14:1-27 -- The Savior instructs the apostles on the second comforter and the Holy Spirit of Promise which will teach them all things and give them peace. (See also TPJS, p. 150)

John 15:12-16 -- Christ (anoints and) ordains his apostles to the fulness of the priesthood, making them kings and priests. Through this ordination they also receive the sealing power, for this power is inherent in the fulness of the priesthood. Matthew 18:18 mentions this same event only by saying that the sealing power was given. Note Matthew 18:18 follows the appearance of Elijah on the Mount where the fulness had been given to Christ and the 3 apostles. Although Peter, James and John received the keys of the sealing power while on the Mount, they had not, up until this time, been anointed kings and priests. These two scriptural passages (John 15:12-16 and Matthew 18:18) are the accounts of the Twelve being ordained to the fulness of the priesthood, not the Melchizedek Priesthood, which had been bestowed upon them some years before. (See #1 above)

John 15:26-16:7 -- Jesus tells his apostles that he must leave them so that the Holy Spirit of Promise can come, which will seal them up to eternal life by the Holy Spirit of Promise. The day of Pentecost was the day when this took place. (See Acts 1:4-8; 2:1-4; 1 John 2:20-27; D&C 88:1-5; See Pentecost, Day of)

John 17:1-26 -- In his great intercessory prayer, the Savior gives thanks unto the Father for giving the apostles to him--- "thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word....I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine....I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; that the scripture might be fulfilled."

2 Peter 1:19 -- Peter states that he and James and John also received a more sure word of prophecy which made their calling and election sure.

Revelation 1:6; 5:10 -- John here admits that he and others had been made kings and priests unto God. (See TPJS, p. 369) They had received the holy anointing (1 John 2:20) which sealed them up to eternal life (1 John 2:25) and which bestowed upon them the Second Comforter of Promise, which is the Holy Ghost operating in behalf of those who have been sealed up to eternal life. (1 John 2:27; See also D&C 88:1-5)

Chronological Sequence of Events Relating to the Restoration of the Aaronic & Melchizedek Priesthoods and the Fulness of the Priesthood Including the Sealing Power From 1829 to 1844

15 May 1829 -- John the Baptist appeared and conferred the Aaronic Priesthood upon Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery. (D&C 13; Joseph Smith-History 1:68-70)

June 1829 -- Peter, James and John returned to the earth and ordained Joseph and Oliver apostles, bestowing upon them the Melchizedek Priesthood, the keys of the kingdom of God, and the keys of the dispensation of the fulness of times. (MD pp. 571-572; D&C 128:20; 20:2-3; 27:12-13) No sealing power was bestowed by these three ancient apostles upon Joseph and Oliver even though they held that power.

November 1831 -- As early as this date the Lord had granted power for his "disciples" whom he had "chosen" to "seal both on earth and in heaven, the unbelieving and rebellious; Yea, verily, to seal them up unto the day when the wrath of God shall be poured out...." (D&C 1:4, 8-9) The Lord also gave power to seal individuals up to eternal life: "And as many as the Father shall bear record, to you shall be given power to seal them up unto eternal life." (D&C 68:12) Until the sealing power could be restored by Elijah, the Lord allowed this power to be used on a case by case basis, by revelation.

3 April 1836 -- Elijah appeared in the Kirtland Temple and conferred upon Joseph the keys of his dispensation (D&C 110:16; D&C 2) which included "the key of the revelations, ordinances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God..." (TPJS, p. 337) This authority holds the sealing power to bind as valid all ordinances through the Holy Spirit of promise by him who is anointed to hold this power on earth. (D&C 132:7) Although the sealing power had been restored, no one was anointed and ordained a king and priest by its power until September 1843.

5 April 1841 -- Joseph Bates Noble performs the first eternal marriage for Joseph Smith and Louisa Beaman. (HR 6:221) This shows that the ordinance of eternal marriage preceded the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood, demonstrating they are not the same.

4 May 1842 -- Joseph Smith bestows the Aaronic and Melchizedek portions of the endowment to nine men. (HC 5:1-2; TPJS, p. 237) When the endowment was received in connection with the everlasting covenant of marriage, the recipients thereby entered into the patriarchal order of the priesthood.

6 August 1843 -- Brigham Young states that no one in the Church has the fulness of the priesthood. (HC 5:527) Thus, even though the endowment had been given, and eternal & plural marriages performed, the fulness of the priesthood had not yet been given and kings and priests not yet ordained.

27 August 1843 -- The Prophet Joseph explains that an anointing and sealing in the forehead makes a person's calling and election sure as well as makes him a king and priest, hold- ing the fulness of the priesthood. (TPJS, pp. 321-323)

28 September 1843 -- Joseph and Emma receive the fulness of the priesthood. They are the first ones on earth to receive the fulness of the gospel blessings and the sealing power, and are made king and queen, priest and priestess. (Joseph Smith Diary, 28 Sep 1843; Historians Office Private Journal, 1858, kept by Wilford Woodruff, 26 February 1867)

22 November 1843 -- Brigham Young and wife Mary Ann were anointed to the fulness of the priesthood, Joseph and Hyrum officiating. (Joseph Smith Diary underdate; MS 37:66)

14 January 1844 -- Brigham Young and wife Mary Ann were re-anointed to the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, p. 158)

20 January 1844 -- Heber C. Kimball and wife Vilate received the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, p. 158)

21 January 1844 -- Parley P. Pratt received the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, pp. 158-159; JWW underdate)

25 January 1844 -- Orson Hyde received the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, p. 159)

26 January 1844 -- Orson Pratt received the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, p. 159)

27 January 1844 -- Willard Richards and wife Jenetta received the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, p. 159)

28 January 1844 -- Wilford Woodruff and wife Phoebe received the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, p. 159)

30 January 1844 -- John Taylor and wife Leonora received the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, p. 159; JWW underdate)

31 January 1844 -- George A. Smith and wife Bathsheba W. received the fulness of the priesthood. (MHBY, p. 159; Joseph Smith Diary; George A. Smith Diary underdate)

Priesthood, Fulness of the, Restored. In August of 1842, the Prophet Joseph Smith stated that this was the "dispensation of the fullness of the priesthood." (HC 5:139-140) This was significant in view of the fact that Joseph had already established several ordinances that were to be performed in a temple, but was now making reference to an ordinance that was to be in addition. The ordinance of washing of feet was revealed and administered in 1832-1833; washings and anointings were performed in 1836; the endowment was administered in May of 1842; eternal marriages were performed beginning the spring of 1841. The highest temple ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood was not administered until September, 1843. On June 11, 1843, Joseph again made reference to the fulness of the priesthood by stating that:

> ...the reason why the Jews were scattered and their House left unto them desolate was because they refused to be gathered that the fulness of the Priesthood might be revealed among them which never can be done but by the gathering of the people. (WJS, p. 215)

Joseph then said that:

> If a man gets a fullness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the command- ments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord....All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (TPJS, p. 308,309) The Savior fulfilled every law and received every ordinance of the house of the Lord, including the fulness of the priesthood which he received while on the Mount of Transfiguration (WJS, pp. 246, 307).

Joseph taught that by receiving the fulness of the priesthood, a man became an heir of God and a joint heir with Jesus Christ. This could only become possible by receiving all the ordinances of the house of the Lord. All who did not receive the fulness of the ordinances would come short of the fulness of the glory, if they did not lose the whole. Although the ordinance which bestowed the fulness of the priesthood had not yet been performed, Joseph was preparing the minds of the saints for it's eventuality.

On August 6, 1843, President Brigham Young remarked:

> ...that if any in the Church had the fullness of the Melchizedek Priesthood, he did not know it. For any person to have the fullness of that priesthood, he must be a king and priest. A person may have a portion of that priesthood, the same as governors or judges of England have power from the king to transact business; but that does not make them kings of England. A person may be anointed king and priest long before he receives his kingdom. (HC 5:527; also JWW, underdate)

Since the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood was not performed until September 28, 1843, Brigham Young was correct in saying that no one in the church had that fulness, including himself. No one up to this point had been anointed a king and priest and therefore no one held the fulness of the priesthood, even though the Prophet held the keys of the sealing power which Elijah restored. Here Brigham Young also explained that individuals who have not been anointed to the fulness could transact business, but the power to transact business did not give them the fulness.

In August of 1843, Joseph told the saints:

Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election sure. (TPJS, p. 321. See also Manuscript History of the Church, Ms/f/315/Book E-1, August 13, 1843 as well as Joseph Smith's Diary for the same date. This quote comes from Revelation 9:1-4. The sealing in the forehead, or on top of the head [See Franklin D. Richards entry, this date, as cited in WJS, p. 241], is the same anointing and sealing that was referred to by Joseph a few weeks later.)

Those who receive a sealing in their foreheads make their calling and election sure thereby. Since celestial marriages were not performed in that manner, this sealing was something in addition to that. On the 27th of August, Joseph gave a most remarkable discourse on the three grand orders of the priesthood and the mission of Elijah, explaining how the fulness of the priesthood ordinance would make of a man a king and a priest and consequently give him the sealing power. He also connected this ordinance with making your calling and election sure:

> Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. In fact, that Priesthood [meaning the fulness] is a perfect law of theocracy, and stands as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam.... (TPJS, p. 322)
> The anointing and sealing is to be called, elected and [the election] made sure. (TPJS, p. 323. Words in brackets added by President Spencer W. Kimball in the April 1978 General Conference. See The Ensign/May 1978, p. 48.)

On September 28, 1843, the Prophet Joseph and his wife Emma were anointed to the fulness of the priesthood. (WJS, p. 294, 303) Although Joseph was the senior apostle on earth and held the apostolic power as well as the sealing power of Elijah, he also had to receive all the ordinances and covenants of the fulness of the priesthood and become a king and priest himself. This was to be the first of many anointings and sealings that would follow. Hyrum Smith and his wife received this anointing on October 8th while Brigham Young and his wife received their anointings on November 22, 1843. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, M.A. Thesis, December 1982, by Andrew F. Ehat, p. 102.) President George A. Smith remarked that Joseph and Hyrum administered to Brigham Young the fulness of the priesthood ordinance. (See MS 37 [February 2, 1875]:66) Most of the other apostles and their wives received this ordinance during January of 1844 under the hand of Brigham Young, then President of the Twelve. (MHBY, pp. 158-159)

Under the direction of Joseph Smith, the ordinances of salvation and exaltation were placed in their proper order. The more sacred ordinances were given to the faithful saints only after they had dedicated the Nauvoo temple. In that temple, Brigham Young used the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood to seal individuals up to eternal life. After Joseph's death, Brigham Young continued to administer the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood, which became the main vehicle through which he and succeeding prophets sealed members of the church up unto eternal life. After the exodus west the fulness of the priesthood ordinance was administered again in 1863, and then more frequently in December of 1866.

These keys of sealing are very sacred and are held "active" only by the prophet, who is the senior apostle on earth. All other members of the Quorum of the Twelve hold them "dormant". Parley P. Pratt explained that this key of the sealing power is "the most sacred of all, and pertains exclusively to the first presidency of the church, without whose sanction and approval or authority, no sealing blessing shall be administered pertaining to things of the resurrection and the life to come." (MS 5 [March, 1845]:149-153) Bruce R. McConkie reiterated this important concept by saying: "The President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints holds the keys of salvation for all men now loving because he is the only one by whose authorization the sealing power of the priesthood can be used to seal men up to salvation and exaltation in the kingdom of God." (MD, p. 411)

Prior to his death, Joseph said: "I have been permitted to seal all the keys, powers, and Priesthood upon the heads of my brethren, the Twelve Apostles, that have ever been sealed upon my head by an Prophet, Apostle, or Messenger of Life and Salvation, and now I am free. I now say unto you, the Twelve Apostles, that I now roll off the responsibility and work of the Church and Kingdom of God upon your shoulders, and now you must round up your shoulders and bear off this Kingdom...." (Testimony of Wilford Woodruff, September 21, 1883. CHO/Ms/d/ 1352/Bx 45/fd 10) This they have done and are doing. They are the guardians of these most sacred keys because they (the keys) are they which seal individuals and families up to eternal life and which open the door to receive "the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, [and] to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant." (D&C 107:18-19) These keys enable a person to be spiritually redeemed from the fall of Adam and return once again to the presence of God, never more to go out. All who fight against those who hold the keys of life, fight against the Lamb of God.

Priesthood, Holy Order of the. To understand what the priesthood is, it is important to examine the writings of Joseph Smith as well as the revelations given to him which deal with this subject.

In March of 1835, the Prophet wrote by revelation: "There are, in the church, two priesthoods, namely, the Melchizedek and Aaronic, including the Levitical Priesthood. Why the first is called the Melchizedek Priesthood is because Melchizedek was such a great high priest. Before his day it was called the Holy Priesthood, after the Order of the Son of God. But out of respect or reverence to the name of the Supreme Being, to avoid the too frequent repetition of his name, they, the church, in ancient days, called that priesthood after Melchizedek, or the Melchizedek Priesthood." (D&C 107:1-4) In the latter days, Peter, James and John ordained Joseph and Oliver to the holy Apostleship which gave them the commission to build up the kingdom of God in all the world. By receiving the Melchizedek Priesthood, Joseph received a portion of the ancient order of the Son of God, but not the fulness. In April, 1836 Elijah the Prophet restored the keys and powers of the fulness of the priesthood, but it was not until September 1843 that Joseph actually exercised those keys and entered into the fulness of the ancient order of the priesthood after the order of the Son of God, as king and priest. (Franklin D. Richards, CR, pp. 28-32; MD, pp. 571-572; See Priesthood, Fulness of the, Restored)

President Ezra Taft Benson said that "Adam and his posterity were commanded by God to be baptized, to receive the Holy Ghost, and to enter into the order of the Son of God. (Moses 6:64-67) To enter into the order of the Son of God is the equivalent today of entering into the fullness of the Melchize- dek Priesthood, which is only received in the house of the Lord. Because Adam and Eve had complied with these requirements, God said to them, 'Thou art after the order of him who was without beginning of days or end of years, from all eternity to all eternity.'" (Moses 6:67; Ensign/August 1985, p. 8) Thus, it was only by being baptized, receiving the Holy Ghost, and receiving the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood, that Adam entered into the Order of the Son of God, and became a son of God himself. (Moses 6:68)

Anciently, those who entered this holy priesthood order were "called with a holy calling and [were] ordained [kings and priests] with a holy ordinance, and [took] upon them the high priesthood of the holy order, which calling, and ordinance and high priesthood, is without beginning or end, [and they] thus become high priests forever, after the order of the Son". (Alma 13:2-9) Not high priests in a church organization, but priests after the high priesthood order of the Son of God, meaning priests and kings.

Following the days of Adam, this priesthood was given to Enoch and so became known as the priesthood "after the order of Enoch." (D&C 76:57) The Lord also ordained Noah after this very order. (Moses 8:19 In the days of Melchizedek it was called after him because he "was such a great high priest", and because the church of his day desired "to avoid the too frequent repeti-tion of [Gods] name...." (D&C 107:2-4) and thus it was called the priesthood "after the order of Melchizedek." (D&C 76:57) "Now Melchizedek was a man of faith, who wrought (meaning: to form, fashion or make with great care.) righteousness...and thus, having been approved of God, he was ordained an high priest after the order of the covenant which God made with Enoch, it being after the order of the Son of God; which order came, not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God....And men having this faith, coming up unto this order of God, were translated and taken up into heaven. And now, Melchizedek was a priest of this order; therefore he obtained peace in Salem, and was called the Prince of peace. And his people wrought righteousness, and obtained heaven, and sought for the city of Enoch which God had before taken". (JST Genesis 14:26-28, 32-34; JST Hebrews 7:3) President John Taylor felt this verse would make it "seem that this people [of Salem] possessed the power of translation." (M&A, p. 85)

After Moses broke the first set of tablets, he went back up onto the mount, and the Lord said to him, "Hew thee two other tables of stone, like unto the first, and I will write upon them also, the words of the law, according as they were written at the first on the tables which thou brakest; but it shall not be according to the first, for I will take away the [fulness of the] priesthood out of their midst; therefore my holy order, and the ordinances thereof, shall not go before them; for my presence shall not go up in their midst, lest I destroy them." (JST Exodus 34:1) And "they shall not enter into my presence, into my rest, in the days of their pilgrimage." (JST Exodus 34:2) "That portion [of the priesthood] which brought Moses to speak with God face to face was taken away [meaning the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood], but that which brought the ministry of angels remained." (TPJS pp. 180-181) The priesthood of Aaron included both an ordination and an Aaronic endowment so as to function properly in the ordinances of the temple.

Alma called this priesthood God's "holy order, which was after the order of his Son" and the people of his day were "ordained unto the high priesthood of the holy order of God." This high priesthood was "after the order of his Son, which order...[is] without beginning of days or end of years, being prepared from eternity to all eternity." (Alma 13:1-2, 6-7) All those who were called after this holy priesthood order "were sanctified, and their garments were washed white through the blood of the Lamb. Now they, after being sanctified by the Holy Ghost [having received the holy anointing of the spirit], having their garments made white, being pure and spotless before God, could not look upon sin save it were with abhorrence; and there were many, exceedingly great many, who were made pure and entered into the rest of the Lord their God." (Alma 13:11-12) Entering into the rest of the Lord indicates the person has entered into "the fulness of his glory." (D&C 84:24; Hebrews 3:8-19) The word "righteousness" and phrase "rest of the Lord" are not states that can be achieved only by being baptized. These high and holy states can only be achieved by receiving the fulness of the priesthood and the anointing of the spirit. In October of 1841, the Prophet Joseph commented on the priesthood again by saying: "there are two priesthoods spoken of in the Scriptures, viz., the Melchizedek and the Aaronic or Levitical. Although there are two Priesthoods, yet the Melchizedek comprehends the Aaronic or Levitical Priesthood, and is the grand head, and holds the highest authority which pertains to the priesthood, and the keys of the Kingdom of God in all ages of the world to the latest posterity on the earth; and is the channel through which all knowledge, doctrine, the plan of salvation and every important matter is revealed from heaven." (TPJS, p. 166-167) There is little doubt that the "scriptures" which Joseph is referring to is Hebrews, chapter 7.

However, although "all Priesthood is Melchizedek,...there are different portions or degrees of it. That portion [or order] which brought Moses to speak with God face to face was taken away; but that [order] which brought the ministry of angels remained." (TPJS, p. 180) The fulness of the priesthood order allowed them to see and speak with God, while the fulness of the order of Aaron allowed the ministry of angels. Since the Aaronic order "remained", it demonstrates that the Aaronic order is comprehended by the fulness of the Melchizedek order.

The different portions, degrees or orders of the priest-hood are: the Aaronic, the Patriarchal and the fulness of the Melchizedek. Taking the book of Hebrews, chapter 7:1-12, as a text, the Prophet said: "there are three grand orders of priest-hood referred to here" by Paul, namely: the Aaronic (which includes the Levitical), the Patriarchal, and the fulness of the Melchizedek. (TPJS, p. 322-323) Within the church organization only two of these orders function---the Aaronic and the Melchizedek (D&C 107:1). The patriarchal order or portion of the priesthood "rightly belongs to the chosen seed, to whom the promises were made", and to whom this priesthood order will be given, thus it does not operate as an order within the church. Instead, the church was organized to build up and perfect the family or patriarchal order of the priesthood which will endure even after the church has fulfilled its vital mission. This is why temples are so important. Although the book of Hebrews, as well as Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith discuss these three orders of priesthood in descending order, they will be discussed here in ascending order, beginning with the Aaronic order of the priesthood. Paul the Apostle and the Prophet Joseph Smith spoke of these three orders of the priesthood in the very sequence in which they came to exist on earth. (See Hebrews 7; TPJS, pp. 322-323) The fulness of the priesthood, or ancient order, was the first to exist on earth with Adam; then the Patriarchal Priesthood Order was given to Abraham; finally the Aaronic order was given to Aaron and his family. In the last days these three orders were restored in reverse order. The Aaronic order was restored first (1829-1835), then the patriarchal (1836-1842) and then the fulness (1843-1844).

Priesthood, Melchizedek Order of the. Although Abraham entered into the patriarchal order of the priesthood by virtue of the eternal marriage covenant, he also wanted to receive "the keys of the kingdom of an endless life...." (TPJS, p. 322 Therefore, he sought for the fulness of the priesthood which Melchizedek held. Said he: "I sought for the blessings of the fathers, and the right whereunto I should be ordained to administer the same...." Consequently, Abraham "became a rightful heir, a High Priest, holding the right belonging to the fathers..." (Abraham 1:2-3) A "high priest" meaning a priest and king of the high priesthood, just as Enoch and Melchizedek were priests of the high priesthood.

Joseph explained that Abraham went to Melchizedek and "gave a tenth part of all his spoils and then received a blessing under the hands of Melchesideck even the last law or a fulness of the law or preisthood which constituted him a king and preist after the order of Melchesideck or an endless life." (WJS, p. 246. Words misspelled in original.) If a person desires to "attain to the keys of the kingdom of an endless life he must sacrifice all things. When God offers a blessing or knowledge to a man and he refuses to receive it he will be damned. The Israelites prayed that God would speak to Moses and not to them; In consequence of which he cursed them with a carnal law." Realizing these things, Abraham said to Melchizedek, "I believe all that thou hast taught me concerning the priesthood and the coming of the Son of Man; so Melchizedek ordained Abraham and sent him away. Abraham rejoiced, saying, Now I have a [fulness of the] priesthood." (TPJS, pp. 322-323. See also Genesis 14:18-21; JST Genesis 14:25-40.)

This fulness of the priesthood order is "without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like unto the Son of God, [who] abideth a priest [and king] continually." In other words, the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood holds power from the eternal God. It is not given through patriarchal descent; and it is as eternal as God himself, having neither beginning of days nor end of life. (TPJS, pp. 322-323, 27 August 1843; See also HC 5:554-556) The fulness of the priesthood was given only to the chosen seed. It was not given "by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God; And it was delivered unto men by the calling of his own voice, according to his own will..." (JST Genesis 14:28-29) The man who holds this priesthood is a "son of God", just as the Savior is the Son of God. And just as the Savior is a priest after this order (Hebrews 5:6; Psalms 110:4), so is every man who holds this priesthood. (JST Hebrews 7:3) In fact, the Lord has stated that "he makes them equal in power, and in might, and in dominion. (D&C 76:96; 88:107; DS 3:132)

By August 27, 1843, the Patriarchal priesthood was still the "greatest [priesthood order] yet experienced in this church." (Franklin D. Richards "Scriptural Items"; 27 August 1843; CHO; As quoted in WJS, Ehat/Cook, p. 245) However, on September 28, 1843, the fulness of the priesthood began to be administered once again to men and women on earth. Although Oliver Cowdery, Martin Harris, Sidney Rigdon and others received initiatory ordinances in the Kirtland temple, they were not among those who received the fulness of the priesthood thereby making their calling and election sure, because the fulness of the priesthood was not given until 1843. Oliver Cowdery was excommunicated in 1838 and Martin Harris was disaffected from the church during the same year. (Joseph Fielding Smith, Essentials in Church History, p. 173) Since the fulness of the priesthood was not administered until September of 1843, neither of them remained in the church long enough to obtain this blessing. Sidney Rigdon was not given this blessing by the Prophet Joseph, and was cut off from the church shortly after the martyrdom (Pres. George A. Smith, MS 37:66) Emma Smith received it with her husband September 28, 1843, but it was never ratified in any temple subsequent to this date. All those who received the fulness outside of the Nauvoo temple, later had the ordinance redone once the temple was dedicated.

Priesthood, Melchizedek, Relationship of to Sealing Power. In June of 1829, Peter, James and John appeared to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery and conferred upon them the Melchizedek Priest- hood. Elder McConkie states they received "1. The Melchizedek Priesthood; 2. The keys of the kingdom of God, including the great commission to preach the gospel in all the world; and 3. The keys of the dispensation of the fulness of times. (D&C 27:12-13; 128:20)" (MD pp. 571-572) Among the items listed here, the sealing power was not mentioned. Joseph and Oliver did not receive that power until 1836 in the Kirtland Temple.

With the Melchizedek Priesthood, Joseph was authorized to organize the Church and Kingdom of God on earth, and to estab- lish all the priesthood offices, for the offices come forth out of the priesthood. (The Forefather Quest, p. 12) So Joseph organized the church, and put into effect the commission to preach the gospel to all the world. "All that he did was valid

...but in order that the binding power should come which is recognized in the heavens, and by which we pass by the angels and the Gods to exaltation, it had to come from Elijah, who held that power upon the face of the earth...." (Joseph Fielding Smith, Elijah the Prophet, p. 36)

"The Priesthood revealed by Elijah was not that of the Aaronic nor the Melchizedek, because the first was bestowed by John the Baptist, and the second by Peter, James and John. What was the power of Priesthood given to Joseph and Oliver by Elijah? And why was he reserved for this important mission? The keys held by Elijah, and restored by him, were the keys of the sealing power of the Priesthood." (Saviors on Mount Zion, pp. 73-74) The sealing power is inherent within the fulness of the priesthood, and the fulness of the priesthood is only held by those who have been sealed in temple marriage and have subse- quently received a holy anointing and been ordained kings and priests. (TPJS, p. 322; MD p. 425; 119; The Principles and Practice of Genealogy, pp. 29-30; JD 13:49)

Priesthood, Oath and Covenant of the. In Section 84, the Lord reviewed how the fulness of the priesthood was brought to earth, and how it was passed from generation to generation. He stated that this priesthood would bring a person into the presence of God, that this blessing had been offered to the children of Israel, but they had rejected it. Therefore, the Lord took the fulness of the priesthood out of their midst and left the Aaronic order of that priesthood with them.

The oath and covenant of the priesthood deals directly with the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood. Those who are ordained to the priesthood within the church receive a portion of the Melchizedek Priesthood, as Brigham Young explained. (HC 5:527) But the fulness cannot be obtained outside of the temple and is administered by an anointing and ordination. (See Priest-hood, Fulness of the, Restored; and Priesthood, Melchizedek Order of the) With this in mind, we will now examine the verses which deal with the oath and covenant.

V. 33---"For whoso is faithful unto the obtaining these two priesthoods of which I have spoken..." meaning the fulness of the Aaronic and Melchizedek orders, "...and the magnifying their calling ..." meaning performing the duties assigned to those priesthoods by priesthood leaders, "...are sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies." (D&C 84:33)

V. 34---"They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron..." The Aaronic order of the priesthood was all that was given to the children of Israel. Aaron presided over that priesthood and Moses gave the laws from God. Those who enter this order today enter the same order that existed in their day, and are expected to magnify their callings within this priesthood as they are called upon. In this way they become the sons of Moses and of Aaron. This priesthood order is a portion of the fulness of the priesthood.

"...and the seed of Abraham..." Jehovah blessed Abraham that "as many as receive this Gospel shall be called after thy name, and shall be accounted thy seed, and shall rise up and bless thee, as their father..." (Abraham 2:8-11) Today, all those who join the church through baptism of water amd the Holy Ghost become the seed of Abraham. If the blood of the new convert is not of Abraham, the Holy Ghost will "purge out the old blood, and make him actually of the seed of Abraham." (TPJS, p. 150) Later, by entering the new and everlasting covenant of marriage, a husband and wife can receive the promise of all the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Those who enter this order of the priesthood enter the same order that Abraham belonged to before he received the fulness of the priesthood. They hold the same power that Abraham held in days of old and are counted as his seed.

"...and the church and kingdom, and the elect of God." After receiving the fulness of the Aaronic and patriarchal priesthoods (by receiving the endowment and temple marriage), the faithful person can then receive the fulness of the Melchizedek priesthood through an "anointing and sealing" which is subsequent to temple marriage. Such is not offered except to those who have been judged by God to have been true and faithful in all things. (D&C 105:35-36) These are they who have become members of the church of the Firstborn, the kingdom of God, and are called the elect of God. Such individuals have made their calling and election sure. (See Elect of God; Firstborn, Church of the; God, Kingdom of)

Vs. 35-37---"And also all they who receive this priesthood [meaning the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood] receive me, saith the Lord; For he that receiveth my servants receiveth me; And he that receiveth me receiveth my Father." Those who receive the fulness of the Melchizedek priesthood have power to approach the throne of grace (Hebrews 4:16), petition the heavens, and receive the Savior of the world as his second comforter. To his original twelve apostles, the Lord said: "He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me." (Matthew 10:40) The Savior promised: "If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." (John 14:23) The appearance spoken of here is a personal appearance, and does not mean that Christ will dwell within the heart. (D&C 130:3) Joseph Smith made it plain, that after a person has made his calling and election sure, "then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter..." (TPJS p. 150) which is Christ himself. He explained further that "when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even He will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the Kingdom of God...." (TPJS p. 151) It is important to note that following the visit of Christ to America, the people "had Christ for their shepherd; yea, they were led even by God the Father." (Mormon 5:17) This is no doubt about the level a person must be on in order for God the Father to teach the person of the covenant which he holds in reserve for the very faithful. (D&C 84:47-48) Therefore, those who receive the Lord's servants (which are his prophets and church leaders), will be enabled to receive him; and those who receive him will also receive the Father. The Savior said that "no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and they to whom the Son will reveal himself; they shall see the Father also." (JST Matthew 11:27)

V. 38---"And he that receiveth my Father receiveth my Father's kingdom; therefore all that my Father hath shall be given unto him." By receiving the fulness of the Melchizedek priesthood, and then receiving the Son and the Father, a priesthood holder will be given all that the Father has. This is according to the oath and covenant of the Father and is the promise of heirship to the priesthood holder. This is where the he becomes an heir of God as a son of God---a joint-heir with Christ who is the Son of God, who inherits all that the Father has. Thus, one could say that the oath and covenant of the priesthood is the oath and covenant of heirship. This revelation (D&C 84:33-39) establishes the terms and conditions which a priesthood holder must comply with so that he can come to be a recipient of all that the Father has.

Sons receive their inheritance from their father. Servants do not inherit anything. They are not guaranteed anything. They do not share in the wealth, glory and power of the master of the house, or of the king. Sons, on the other hand, inherit all that the father, or king possesses. Since Christ is the only Son who never strayed, he will inherit all that the father has. But through obedience to the laws and ordinances of the gospel, a faithful priesthood bearer will be able to advance from the tives Seminar, 3 April 1987) President N. Eldon Tanner stated that "priesthood correlation is to prepare for the second coming of Jesus Christ." (Priesthood Genealogy Committee Meeting minutes, January 1964) It was felt by some members, that the reason why the city of Enoch was translated was because they had the correlation program, and that this same program had been restored to the Latter-day Saints for the same purpose. ("Every Man In His Place...", BYU Six Stake Fireside Address, January 3, 1965, BYU Pub., pp. 10, 13)

Pure. (See Holy) The word pure is defined as being free from that which adulterates, taints or impairs. It is unmixed, clear. It is free of defects, perfect, faultless, blameless, and free from sin or guilt.

James taught the saints: "purify your hearts, ye double minded." (James 4:8) Purification of a person's heart causes his mind to become single to God. He eliminates the tendencies to want to be in the world and of God at the same time. He separates out the purity of godliness from the dross of the world. When a person's mind becomes single to God, then his heart becomes pure. "And blessed are all the pure in heart, for they shall see God." (3 Nephi 12:8. Compare D&C 88:68) It is in Zion where the pure in heart shall dwell." (D&C 97:21) Those who are not pure at the second coming shall not be able to abide the day. (D&C 38:8) The process of becoming pure begins at baptism and culminates when the person is pronounced free of all sin. Only those who are "purified and cleansed from all sin" are made "possessor of all things." "And if ye are purified and cleansed from all sin, ye shall ask whatsoever you will in the name of Jesus and it shall be done." (D&C 50:28-29)

Moroni taught the people to "cry mightily unto the Father in the name of Jesus, that perhaps ye may be found spotless, pure, fair, and white, having been cleansed by the blood of the Lamb, at that great and last day." (Mormon 9:6)

Redeemed, Doctrine of. After his rebirth experience, Alma the Younger stood upon his feet and stated: "I have repented of my sins, and have been redeemed of the Lord; behold I am born of the Spirit." He added that all must be born again, and thereby be "redeemed of God, becoming his sons and daughters" in order to inherit the kingdom of God. (Mosiah 27:24-26) There is more to being "redeemed of God, becoming his sons and daughters" than repentance and baptism.

In the gospel sense, redeem means "to ransom, to buy back or repurchase, to get back, to recover as by paying a fee, to rescue or liberate from captivity or bondage, to deliver or to save in any manner, to deliver from sin and its penalties, as by a sacrifice made for the sinner." (Webster's Dictionary, 2nd edition; pub. 1971, p. 1512) Christ paid the ransom price for all sinners who would repent and come unto him by accepting in full the gospel ordinances and covenants. Everyone will be resurrected and be given the blessing of immortality, or the power to live endlessly, but eternal life is only for those who receive and live the fulness of the gospel.

Before the fall of Adam, man dwelt in the presence of God. After the fall, man was shut out of his presence, both physic- ally and spiritually. It was the mission of Christ to rescue us from that fall and bring us back to God. In this way mankind would be redeemed from the fall. Thus, Christ is the Redeemer---the person who would redeem, or rescue mankind from the effects of the fall both physically & spiritually. (See Ephesians 1:7; 4:30; Hebrews 9:12; 2 Nephi 2:6; Mosiah 16:6; 18:2; Alma 11:41; 12:25; 3 Nephi 9:17; 9:21; D&C 88:16; 124:124) Although resur- rection is a free gift to all mankind, there will be a differ- ence in the glory that resurrected bodies will have. Physical redemption (or resurrection) is a free gift to all mankind, while spiritual redemption depends upon the faith and works of each person.

The reality of coming back into God's presence, thereby being spiritually redeemed, was taught by the Lord to the brother of Jared. After conversing with the brother of Jared through the veil, the Lord said to him, "because thou knowest these things ye are redeemed from the fall; therefore ye are brought back into my presence; therefore I show myself unto you." (Ether 3:13) It was because he was redeemed from the fall that the brother of Jared was able to come back into the Lord's presence.

In addition to being redeemed by God himself, redemption can also come by receiving all of the ordinances of the house of the Lord. President Brigham Young said:

> There will be hundreds of [temples] built and dedicated to the Lord. This [Salt Lake] Temple will be known as the first Temple built in the mountains by the Latter-day Saints. [Although it was not the first one completed, it was the first one they began working on.] And when the Millennium is over, and all the sons and daughters of Adam and Eve, down to the last of their posterity, who come with the reach of the clem- ency of the Gospel, have been redeemed in hundreds of Temples through the administration of their children as proxies for them, I want that Temple still to stand as a proud monument of the faith, perseverance and industry of the Saints of God in the mountains, in the nineteenth century. (JD 10:251)

President Joseph F. Smith received by revelation the fact that "the dead who repent will be redeemed, through obedience to the ordinances of the house of God." (D&C 138:58) The Prophet Joseph taught that the saints are to become saviors on Mount Zion by building temples "and going forth and receiving all the ordinances, baptisms, confirmation, washings, anointings, ordinations and sealing powers upon their heads, in behalf of all their progenitors who are dead, and redeem them that they may come forth in the first resurrection and be exalted to thrones of glory with them. (TPJS, p. 330) If the dead are redeemed through the ordinances of the temple, then so are the living.

The only way to fully be spiritually redeemed and come back into the presence of the Lord, like the brother of Jared, is to be promised exaltation and the blessings which are associated with it. Joseph Fielding Smith said: "Many places where you see the word redemption or where you see the word salvation it means exaltation, or in other words salvation in the kingdom of God" (DS 2:11) Therefore, it is essential to obtain all the ordinan- ces of the house of the Lord including temple marriage and the fulness of the priesthood, as well as press forward until the more sure word of prophecy is obtained.

Being redeemed of God relates directly with the concept of becoming a son or daughter of God. The path which leads to this high status of sonship with God first begins with being a child of Christ. The scriptures and writings of the Prophets point out that there is a difference between being a child of Christ and a child of God. (See Christ, Sons and Daughters of; God, Sons and Daughters of) Redemption, Plan of. The Prophet Joseph Smith once said that "happiness is the object and design of our existence and will be the end thereof if we pursue the path that leads to it." (TPJS, p. 255) This path is known as the plan of redemption. It's purpose is to bring mankind back into God's presence, thereby enabling him to partake of immortality and eternal life. True and lasting happiness is only found by following this path.

After they transgressed the law, the Lord cast Adam and Eve out of the Garden of Eden, or paradisiacal glory. They could no longer openly commune with their Maker, nor see him face to face as before. They were now in a fallen, telestial condition, and unless provisions were made to redeem them from this fall, mankind was doomed to the physical grave and to be eternally banished from the Lord's presence.

Because of the fall, man could not save himself. Therefore a Savior was provided to redeem him from that fall. As the Redeemer, Christ gave himself as a ransom so that all could receive a resurrection from the grave, thus overcoming the physical death. Additionally, the atonement of Christ made it possible for all mankind to be redeemed spiritually from the fall. "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." (1 Corinthians 15:22) This not only refers to physical life, but to spiritual as well.

Righteousness. Righteousness is the quality or condition of being without sin, or just. Christ said that he had not come to call the righteous, but the sinner to repentance. (Matthew 9:13) If a righteous person had sins, then he would be a sinner. Therefore, righteousness and wickedness are opposites. "And the righteous shall be gathered on my right hand unto eternal life; and the wicked on my left hand will I be ashamed to own before the Father." (D&C 29:27) The wicked "shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal." (Matthew 25:46)

At the crucifixion of the Savior it was a centurion who recognized that Christ "was a righteous man." (Luke 23:47) John said that he had "an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous." (1 John 2:1) It was by offering a more excellent sacrifice to God that Abel "obtained witness that he was righteous." (Hebrews 11:4) And the "effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." (James 5:16)

The righteous will inherit the kingdom of God (2 Nephi 9:18) and their names will be found written in the book of life. (Alma 5:58) It was Paul who said that there was a "crown of righteousness" laid up for him at the last day (2 Timothy 4:8) and the Lord has promised a "crown of eternal life" to all who work righteousness. (D&C 20:14) Those who complete the rebirth process of water and spirit, and are cleansed by blood, come to a state of righteousness and are redeemed of God. (Mosiah 27:25; Moses 6:59)

It was the Zion of Enoch that dwelt in righteousness (Moses 7:18) and in the last days the Lord will again "raise up unto [himself] a pure people, that will serve [him] in righteous- ness." (D&C 100:16) Those who are full of charity and virtue shall gain confidence "in the presence of God" and the "Holy Ghost shall be [their] constant companion and [their] scepter [shall be] an unchanging scepter of righteousness and truth." (D&C 121:45-46) When this earth becomes a glorified sphere it will become the home of the righteous. (D&C 88:16-26)

Those "who do hunger and thirst after righteousness...shall be filled with the Holy Ghost." (3 Nephi 12:6) And if a person will patiently "continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God...the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted." (TPJS, p. 150) He will finally make his calling and election sure and be classified among the righteous.

Thus the word "righteous", in the full sense, depicts a person who is clean every whit, and keeps all the commandments. Most members of the church are on the road to obtaining full and complete righteousness.

Sanctification. The word sanctification comes from the latin word sanctificatio and means to make holy; consecrated; set apart for sacred services. To sanctify means to make holy; specifically, (a) to make free from sin; to purify; (b) to set apart as holy; to consecrate. President Brigham Young said that sanctification "consists in overcoming every sin and bringing all into subjection to the law of Christ" (JD 10:173). Orson Pratt taught that Zion could only become great by becoming sanctified. He then asked: "When shall we begin, Latter-day Saints, to carry out the law of God, and enter upon the process necessary to our sanctification?" (JD 17:112-114).

Those who have become sanctified have separated themselves from all that is impure and are committed to living righteously. The Holy Ghost has purged them of their iniquity, or the effects of sin, and they are clean and holy. As a result their bodies become a "temple of God" where the spirit dwells. If a person who is clean and holy defiles himself again, "him shall God destroy; or the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." (1 Corinthians 3:16-17) The Lord will not dwell in unholy temples. (Mosiah 2:37) Thus Enoch spoke of becoming "sanctified from all sin" so that the person might have the Comforter and thereby "enjoy the words of eternal life in this world, and eternal life in the world to come, even immortal glory." (Moses 6:59-61)

Concerning sanctification, Alma said that all those who became priests after the order of his Son...

> ...were sanctified, and their garments were washed white through the blood of the Lamb.
> Now they, after being sanctified by the Holy Ghost, having their garments made white [clean from the blood of this generation], being pure and spotless before God [clean every whit], could not look upon sin save it were with abhorrence; and there were many, exceedingly great many, who were made pure and entered into the rest of the Lord their God [which rest is the fulness of his glory]. (Alma 13:2, 11-12 & D&C 84:24)

Moses wanted "to sanctify his people that they might behold the face of God" but because they hardened their hearts they were not allowed to enter his rest while in the wilderness. (D&C 84:23-24) In modern revelation the Lord explained that although there are many "called", only those who have been "chosen" will be sanctified." (D&C 105:35-36) And only after the saints have become sanctified will they be able to reclaim the lands of Jackson County. (D&C 105:30-31)

In 1832 the Lord told Joseph Smith and a small group of individuals that he had recorded their names "in the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world." And because of this they received a second comforter which "is the promise which I give unto you of eternal life, even the glory of the celestial kingdom; which glory is that of the church of the Firstborn, even of God, the holiest of all, through Jesus Christ his Son." (D&C 88:1-5)

Those who hold the Melchizedek Priesthood can only become sanctified by magnifying their callings in the priesthood. By so doing their bodies become renewed. (D&C 84:33) And just as individuals are sanctified, the earth will also follow the same pattern as man. When the earth has finally become immortal and has entered into its "eternal state", it will be classified as a "sanctified" orb. (D&C 77:1; 130:9)

In the scriptures, the Lord has commanded the saints to become sanctified: "Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts..." (1 Peter 3:15) "Sanctify yourselves and ye shall be endowed with power..." (D&C 43:16) "Therefore, sanctify yourselves that your minds become single to God, and the days will come that you shall see him; for he will unveil his face unto you..." (D&C 88:68)

Sanctification comes through the power of the Spirit from the Father. John spoke of those whom the Father hath sancti- fied (John 10:36) and Jude wrote his epistle "to them that are sanctified by God the Father." (Jude 1:1. See also Ezekiel 20:12) Christ prayed that the Father would sanctify those who "are not of the world" through the truth (John 17:16-17), and Paul talked of "salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth." (2 Thessalonians 2:13) Peter spoke to the elect who had been sanctified by the spirit, stating that they had a "lively hope...to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven" for them. (1 Peter 1:2-4) Those who are sanctified are to "take heed" lest they "fall from grace and depart from the living God." (D&C 20:32-34)

Moroni counseled the saints to "come unto Christ and be perfected in him, and deny yourselves of all ungodliness; and if ye shall deny yourselves of all ungodliness, and love God with all your might, mind and strength, then is his grace sufficient for you, that by his grace ye may be perfect in Christ....[and] if ye by the grace of God are perfect in Christ, and deny not his power, then are ye sanctified in Christ by the grace of God through the shedding of the blood of Christ, which is in the covenant of the Father unto the remission of your sins, that ye become holy, without spot." (Moroni 10:32-33)

Thus we see that sanctification is not something that occurs at baptism. Rather it is a state of holiness and cleanli-ness that is achieved only after righteous living, being clean- sed from all sins, and purified by the power of the Holy Ghost.

Sealing To Eternal Life. Within the gospel of Jesus Christ it is possible for a person to obtain a guarantee of eternal life---that he or she will be exalted in the celestial kingdom. Such a guarantee can be obtained by making one's calling and election sure to eternal life in either of two ways: (1) By receiving the more sure word of prophecy, or (2) by receiving the fulness of the priesthood through priesthood ordinance. Eternal life is obtained by living a righteous life, keeping all the covenants and commandments of God. The seal to eternal life is the fruit of such a life and is given to both the living and the dead who are worthy.

The concept of being sealed to eternal life was a doctrine that was taught and practiced early in the church. In the summer of 1828 the Lord revealed that he would gather his people if they would not harden their hearts, so that they might come and partake of the waters of life freely. (D&C 10:65-66) Both the tree of life and the waters of life are mentioned by John as existing in the presence of God. (Revelation 22:1-2; See also 1 Nephi 8)

In February 1829 the Lord spoke of the importance of serving the Lord with all ones' heart, might, mind, and strength, so "that ye may stand blameless before God at the last day." Since mankind is separated from God because of his sins, the Lord revealed how a person could "stand blameless" or sinless before him. Also emphasized was faith, hope and charity, and the development of the inner fruits of the spirit mentioned by Peter. (D&C 4:2-6) The Lord also added humility and diligence as being essential.

In March, 1829 the Lord promised Joseph that he would grant unto him eternal life, if he would be firm in keeping the commandments. (D&C 5:22) Then in April of this same year Joseph was told that if he would do good and be faithful to the end that he would receive the gift of salvation, stating "there is no gift greater than the gift of salvation." (D&C 6:13) At the end of the revelation, the Lord said to Joseph and Oliver: "Behold the wounds which pierced my side, and also the prints of the nails in my hands and feet; be faithful, keep my command- ments, and ye shall inherit the kingdom of heaven." (D&C 6:37) It is very possible that at this early date both brethren were allowed to view the wounds of the atonement through the urim and Thummim (Preface, D&C 6)

On May 15, 1829 Joseph and Oliver received the Aaronic Priesthood under the hands of John the Baptist. This was the beginning of the fulfillment of the promises and commands which Joseph had been receiving for the past several months. It was at this point that Joseph was baptized for the remission of his sins. Within a short period of time after this Joseph received the Melchizedek Priesthood under the hands of Peter, James and John. Although the exact date of the restoration of the Melchizedek Priesthood is not known, we do know that by April of 1830 Joseph had already been ordained an apostle. (D&C 20:2) So the higher priesthood would have been restored sometime prior to this. Bruce R. McConkie stated this priesthood was restored in June, 1829. (MD, pp. 571-572) It is important to remember here that Peter, James and John did not restore the sealing power. That was done by Elijah in 1836, but the restoration of the holy Melchizedek Priesthood was the first step in obtaining the fulness of the priesthood and being sealed to eternal life.

In September 1830, the Lord forgave the sins of Joseph Smith and other elders present. (D&C 29:3) Although Joseph and others had already been baptized for a remission of their sins, this event demonstrated that future sins still must be forgiven and that Christ can forgive all sins. It also emphasized the point that in order to enter the Lord's presence a person must be free of sin. Being clean and pure is essential to re-entering God's presence.

In December 1830 Joseph was told that he and others may become the "sons of God, even one in me as I am one in the Father, as the Father is one in me, that we may be one." (D&C 35:2) This is one of the early statements which deals with the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood and the more sure word of prophecy, for this is the way in which sons of God are created. (DS 2:37-42; D&C 76:58; Moses 6:67-68)

In a revelation given in January 1831, the Lord told Joseph that He was "in his midst" but that he could not see him. (D&C 38:7) A month later the saints were told to become clean before him, so as to purge out iniquity from among them that they might be a pure people. He desired to gather his people out from the nations of the earth, "as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings,.." so that he could bestow upon them "glory and honor and the riches of eternal life..." but they would not. (D&C 43:9-14, 24-25)

Finally, in 1831, individuals began to be sealed to eternal life. At a meeting early in February 1831, Joseph sealed several saints to eternal life, saying to the saints who had gathered that the Lord Jesus Christ was in their midst "and had given you all to me and commanded me to seal you up unto eternal life, that where he is you may be also, and if you are tempted of Satan, say, 'Get thee behind me, Satan; my salvation is secure.' (Journals & Memoirs of Mary E. Lightner, pp. 2-3; See also YWJ, December 1905, pp. 556-557)

It was in May 1831 that the saints of the Colesville Branch began to live the law of consecration that had been revealed by the Lord. (Ensign/January 1979, pp. 20, 23) Later, in the early summer of this year, these members were sealed up to eternal life. (JJK, underdate)

In August 1831 the Lord forgave the sins of the saints who had assembled (D&C 61:2), and stated that by preaching the word among the congregations of the wicked their garments could become spotless before him. (D&C 61:34) The Lord also forgave the sins of other individuals who bore their testimonies to the world. (D&C 62:3) The Lord not only emphasized that individuals must become clean from sin, but he also told the saints how to do it.

At the October 1831 General Conference of the Church, held in Ohio, Joseph Smith taught:

> ...the order of the priesthood is that they have power given them to seal up the saints unto eternal life. And said it was the privilege of every elder present to be ordained to the high priesthood [meaning, be ordained high priests].
>
> Bro. Daniel Hanton said that he had a long time since covenanted to do the will of God in all things and remarked that it was his desire to be sealed [up to eternal life] with the Holy Spirit of promise. [To be sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise is to be sealed up to eternal life. The terms are synonymous in this case. (See also D&C 124:124; 132:7, 19, 26; 76:52-53; Ephesians 1:13)]
>
> Bro. Joseph Smith, Jun. said...Until the Saints had perfect love they were liable to fall. When they had a testimony that their names were sealed in the Lamb's Book of Life, they had perfect love, and then it was impossible for false Christs to deceive them. (Record p. 11, October 25, 1831; JH under date; TPJS p. 9)

The high priesthood spoken of here by Joseph is the high priesthood which was after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of the covenant which God made with Enoch, which was after the order of the Son of God.

Although Joseph did not yet have this power of priest and king, he had learned of it initially in the Book of Mormon (Alma 13) and later during his revision of the Bible (JST Genesis 14). He was herein using familiar terminology to describe an order of priesthood which existed on earth but which had been lost due to wickedness, and which, up to this date, had not yet been restored to the earth.

Joseph's remark recorded here in the Far West Record does not change the basic overall practice of sealing individuals by the priesthood through revelation.

On October 25, 1831, Jared Carter was laboring in the vicinity of Benson, Vermont and stated that while praying with some of the saints "the spirit rested down upon us...and it appeared to me that the Church of Christ in the locality was sealed up to the Lord, and it was likewise made plain to me that every one of us present should meet again in Zion." (JH, September 27, 1832) Again, notice the spirit revealed this.

In November 1831 the saints were told they were not able to endure the presence of God, neither the presence of angels at this time. They were therefore to continue in patience until they became perfected. (D&C 67:10-14)

In a revelation given through the Prophet Joseph in November 1831, at the request of Orson Hyde, Luke S. Johnson, Lyman E. Johnson, and William E. McLellin, the Lord revealed to them that "of as many as the Father shall bear record, to you [meaning, to those individuals whose names are mentioned here in the revelation] shall be given power to seal them up unto eternal life." (D&C 68:7-12; HC 1:227-229) This was the basic pattern which Joseph had been following from the beginning. Since the sealing power of Elijah had not yet been restored, it required a special revelation by the spirit before a person or persons could be sealed up to eternal life. Some of these individuals mentioned in this revelation exercised this privilege, as will be seen later.

Additionally, these comments by the Lord also coincide with the Lord's statement in Section 1 of the Doctrine and Covenants wherein He said: "And verily I say unto you, that they [the chosen ones, v. 4] who go forth, bearing these tidings unto the inhabitants of the earth, to them is power given to seal both on earth and in heaven, the unbelieving and rebellious; Yea, verily, to seal them up unto the day when the wrath of God shall be poured out upon the wicked without measure." (D&C 1:8-9) Again, until the sealing power could be restored to the earth, the Lord was allowing the saints to perform sealings based upon special permission and revelation from him. This practice was not uncommon during the restoration. The Lord allowed baptisms for the dead outside of a temple until one could be built. He allowed the endowments to initially be given outside of a temple until Nauvoo could be finished. The same is true of the fulness of the priesthood. So it was not unusual for the Lord to grant permission for the saints to use the sealing power until he could send Elijah the Prophet, which would happen just as soon as the Kirtland temple was completed.

In December 1832, the Lord commanded the Prophet to organize a school of the prophets, and commanded the ordinance of washing of feet to be a part of that school. (D&C 88; HC 1:302) Although the Lord revealed that the ordinance of washing of feet was for the purpose of cleansing individuals from "the blood of this generation" (D&C 88:138-139), Joseph also used it as a means by which he sealed it's recipients up to eternal life. The school of the prophets assembled in conference on January 23, 1833, when:

> ...after much speaking, singing, praying and praising God, all in tongues, we proceeded to the washing of feet (according to the practice recorded in the 13th chapter of John's gospel), as commanded of the Lord. Each Elder washed his own feet first, after which I girded myself with a towel and washed the feet of all of them, wiping them with the towel with which I was girded....

> I then said to the Elders, As I have done so do ye; wash ye, therefore, one another's feet; and by the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation; but if any of them should sin wilfully after they were thus cleansed, and sealed up unto eternal life, they should be given over unto the buffetings of Satan until the day of redemption. (HC 1:323-324)

If a person sins willfully, as Sidney Rigdon did in 1844, he will be delivered over to the buffetings of satan and will stay there until he fully pays for his sins, which becomes his day of redemption or deliverance (D&C 132:26).

About two or three weeks after this initial organization of the school of the prophets both the Father and the Son appeared in one of their meetings. Zebedee Coltrin, who was a member of the early school of the prophets, remarked that after the opening of the school: "when we were all together, Joseph having given instructions, and while engaged in silent prayer, kneeling, with our hands uplifted each one praying in silence, no one whispered above his breath, a personage walked through the room from East to west, and Joseph asked if we saw him. I saw him and suppose the others did, and Joseph answered that is Jesus, the Son of God, our elder brother. Afterward Joseph told us to resume our former position in prayer, which we did. Another person came through; He was surrounded as with a flame of fire. He (Bro. C[oltrin].) experienced a sensation that it might destroy the tabernacle as it was of consuming fire of great brightness. The Prophet Joseph said this was the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. I saw Him. When asked about the kind of clothing the Father has on, Bro. Coltrin said; I did not discover His clothing for He was surrounded as with a flame of fire, which was so brilliant that I could not discover anything else but His person. I saw His hands, His legs, his feet, his eyes, nose, mouth, head and body in the shape and form of a perfect man. He sat in a chair as a man would sit in a chair, but this appearance was so grand and overwhelming that it seemed I should melt down in His presence, and the sensation was so powerful that it thrilled through my whole system and I felt it in the marrow of my bones. The Prophet Joseph said: Brethren now you are prepared to be the Apostles of Jesus Christ, for you have seen both the Father and the Son, and know that They exist and that They are two separate Personages." (Minutes) Those assembled had already been sealed up to eternal life in the January 23rd meeting, and were now participating in greater blessings and manifestations initiated by the Prophet Joseph.

In August 1833 while Orson Pratt and Lyman Johnson were ministering in the area of Charleston, Vermont, they met with the Church and with brethren from some of the other towns, and unitedly they called upon the Lord "and the Lord heard their prayers and moved upon his servant Lyman Johnson by the power of the Holy Ghost to seal them up unto eternal life. After this, the brethren arose one by one and said that they knew their names were sealed in the Lamb's Book of Life, and they did all bear this glorious testimony save two or three." (Pratt, August 26, 1833)

About 10 days later, Orson Pratt and Lyman Johnson sealed the members of the church at Bath, New Hampshire, Conn., to eternal life. (Pratt, September 8, 1833)

In December of this year, the Prophet and a number of the leading Elders of the Church assembled in the printing office which had just been built, at which time the office was dedica- ted by the Prophet Joseph Smith. At this meeting, Joseph blessed the members of his family, including his father and mother, and his brothers Hyrum and William. In the blessings they were told that they would have eternal life. (TPJS, pp. 38-41)

During this period of time in which saints were being sealed to eternal life, Joseph was also teaching the saints concerning membership in the church of the Firstborn and the importance of being worthy of a seat at the wedding feast. (TPJS, pp. 47-68)

In May 1834, members of Zion's Camp were all called together and were sealed up to eternal life. (McBride, Underdate)

In February 1835, Parley P. Pratt was ordained an apostle and was told: "Thy sins are forgiven, and thy name written in the Lamb's Book of Life." (HC, p. 192. Autobiography of Parley Parker Pratt, p. 119) The newly ordained quorum of the Twelve then received the charge to "never cease striving until you have seen God face to face. Strengthen your faith; cast off your doubts, your sins, and all your unbelief; and nothing can prevent you from coming to God." (HC 2:195-196) Although they had been ordained apostles, Oliver Cowdery instructed them that their ordination was not yet complete "til God has laid His hand upon you. We require as much to qualify us as did those who have gone before us".... (HC 2:196)

It is important to mention here that none of the sealings that had taken place so far had sealed up couples, as husband and wife, to eternal life. The sealings at this point were dir- ected at individuals, not families. The powers of Elijah which contained the "powers and endowments of the fulness of the priesthood" by which families could be sealed together, did not return until Elias and Elijah brought them back in 1836 at the Kirtland temple. (D&C 110:13-16; DS 3:127)

In April of 1836, Elijah the Prophet appeared in the Kirtland Temple and gave to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery the sealing power and revealed how it could be used to seal together individuals into families, and husbands and wives to eternal life. However, even though this power was restored in 1836, it was not until 1841 that the Prophet began sealing couples in eternal marriage, and 1843 when couples were ordained kings and priests, queens and priestesses.

Beginning in 1839, Joseph began using the term "making your caling and election sure" in connection with being sealed to eternal life. (TPJS, pp. 149-151) Prior to that time the concept of "calling and election" apparently did not exist in the minds of the saints as such, although being sealed up to eternal life did. But when the Prophet gave his discourses on the two comforters in 1839, he equated the concepts of being "sealed up to eternal life" and "making your calling and election sure" as being one and the same. Later, in 1843 Joseph also connected the phrase "calling and election" with the anointing and sealing to eternal life by ordinance. (TPJS, pp. 322-323)

By 1844, the saints had been involved in being sealed up to eternal life in a number of ways: (1) revelation from the spirit (D&C 68:12); (2) direct revelation to the person from God (the more sure word of prophecy); (3) the ordinance of the washing of feet; and (4) the fulness of the priesthood ordinance which was first administered in September, 1843.

Sealing Power. (See Priesthood, Power of the Fulness of the) The sealing power is inherent within the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and was restored to the earth by Elijah the Prophet in 1836. All those who receive the fulness of the priesthood also receive the sealing power. The Prophet holds the keys of the sealing power, and no one can use the power to seal without his authorization. (See Priesthood, Fulness of the, Restored) He authorizes sealers to act in his behalf in temples to seal couples and families together, both the living and the dead. But sealers only hold a portion of the full sealing power of Elijah.

In addition to being used to seal families together, the sealing power can also be used to control many things, including the elements. Every one who is "[anointed and] ordained after this order and calling should have [the sealing] power, by faith, to break mountains, to divide the earth, to break every band, to stand in the presence of God; to do all things according to his will, according to his command, subdue principalities and powers; and this by the will of the Son of God". (JST Genesis 14:26-35) Other scriptural accounts include the experience which Nephi had when, after having proven himself faithful in all things, the Lord said to him "I will bless thee forever; and I will make thee mighty in word and in deed, in faith and in works; yea, even that all things shall be done unto thee according to thy word, for thou shalt not ask that which is contrary to my will." (Helaman 10:5 (1-10)) The Lord trusted Nephi so implicitly that He granted His sealing power to him, and told him that whatever he did would be honored by God and would come to pass. Moses was given this same sealing power when the Lord said to him: "Blessed art thou, Moses, for I, the Almighty, have chosen thee, and thou shalt be made stronger than many waters; for they shall obey thy command as if thou wert God." (Moses 1:25) Enoch was told: "Behold my Spirit is upon you, wherefore all thy words will I justify; and the mountains shall flee before you, and the rivers shall turn from their course; and thou shalt abide in me, and I in you; therefore walk with me." (Moses 6:34) In fulfillment of this promise, Enoch "led the people of God, and their enemies can to battle against them; and he spake the word of the Lord, and the earth trembled, and the mountains fled, even according to his command; and the rivers of water were turned out of their course; and the roar of the lions was heard out of the wilderness; and all nations feared greatly, so powerful was the word of Enoch, and so great was the power of the language which God had given him." (Moses 7:13)

This same power is available to all the saints who become clean from all their sins and receive the fulness of the priest-hood. "All men who will, may receive salvation and exaltation and the sealing powers", said Joseph Fielding Smith. "We must receive covenants, sealings, the sealing power, and privileges which are obtained in the temple of the Lord, and then live in accordance with them'. (DS 2:122, 15) "The spirits of just men are made ministering servants to those who are sealed unto life eternal, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down". (HC 6:51-52) The saints are to become saviors on Mount Zion "by building their temples, erecting their baptismal fonts, and going forth and receiving all the ordinances, baptisms, confirmations, washings, anointings, ordinations and sealing powers upon their heads...." (TPJS, p. 330) Since the fulness of the priesthood cannot be obtained alone, faithful women can also hold the sealing power. Bruce R. McConkie taught: "An elect lady is a female member of the Church who has already received, or who through obedience is qualified to receive, the fulness of the gospel blessings. This includes temple endowments, celestial marriage, and the fulness of the sealing power." (MD, p. 217)

Unpardonable Sin. Joseph Smith defined the unpardonable sin at a General Conference on Sunday, April 7, 1844. He said:

> A man cannot commit the unpardonable sin after the dissolution of the body, and there is a way possible for escape.  The contention in heaven was---Jesus said there would be certain souls that would not be saved [sons of perdition]; and the devil said he could save them all....All sins shall be forgiven [if you have been sealed up by the Holy Spirit of Promise--D&C 132:19, 26], except the sin against the Holy Ghost; for Jesus will save all except the sons of perdition. What must a man do to commit the unpardonable sin? He must receive the Holy Ghost, have the heavens opened unto him, and know God, and then sin against Him. After a man sinned against the Holy Ghost, there is no repentance for him. ["For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame." (Hebrews 6:4-6.) Those who sin against the light and knowledge of the Holy Ghost may be said to crucify more than the body of our Lord, they crucify the Spirit.--Footnote.] He has got to say that the sun does not shine while he sees it; he has got to deny Jesus Christ when the heavens have been opened unto him, and to deny the plan of salvation with his eyes open to the truth of it; and from that time he begins to be an enemy. This is the case with many apostates of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

When a man begins to be an enemy to this work, he hunts me, he seeks to kill me, and never ceases to thirst for my blood. He gets the spirit of the devil--the same spirit that they had who crucified the Lord of Life---the same spirit that sins against the Holy Ghost. You cannot save such persons; you cannot bring them to repentance; they make open war, like the devil, and awful is the consequence. (TPJS, pp. 357-358; HC 6:313-315)

Not all members of the church are able to commit such a terrible sin because they have not received sufficient knowledge and experience in order to do so. They must first receive the more sure word of prophecy or the fulness of the priesthood. Only when a person has obtained a great amount of light and blessings, and has been sealed up to eternal life, can he then have the power to commit this unpardonable sin.

After quoting the Savior who said he had lost none except the son of perdition, President Brigham Young said: "Who is going away into everlasting punishment? They that reject the Gospel that sin against the spirit of truth, light and intelli- gence. Who can sin against this light? Those that have it can sin against it. Those that are acquainted with it. Who can sin the sin unto death? Those that have eternal life given to them, and they turn away from the holy commandments of the Lord, and crusify [sic] to themselves afresh the Son of God, shed innocent blood or consent thereto. The Lord will save all the rest." (CHO, Ms/d/1234/Box 49, fd. 8; Ms/f/219/Reel #82)

President George Q. Cannon taught that "a man must have sufficient knowledge to make him a God in order to be a devil. Lucifer had to be a great and a powerful being. He stood high in the presence of God, and his fall was greater than it would have been if he had occupied an inferior station. Therefore, the more we know concerning God, the more power and the more gifts we get from God, if they are abused, the greater will be our condemna- tion and the greater will be the depth to which we shall fall when we do fall." (MS 53:577-580)

On November 29, 1893, Apostle Abraham H. Cannon, son of President George Q. Cannon, stated the First Presidency had explained that only those "who receive a testimony of the Gospel---who receive the Holy Ghost, and the highest blessings of the Church [the fulness of the priesthood], and then willfully deny the light they have obtained" will become sons of perdition, having committed the unpardonable sin. (Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Wednesday, November 29, 1893) In 1926 President Heber J. Grant re-iterated this concept by saying: "The sons of perdition--a comparatively few--are those who deny God after they have known Him, and repudiated the Gospel of Christ after receiving the fulness thereof and tasting of its eternal powers and glories." (Letter dated 5 April 1926 to Mr. Joseph Morse) Thus a person cannot become a son of perdition until he has been sealed up to eternal life and has become a son of God.

Although brethren receive the Melchizedek priesthood and commit to magnify their callings, still, many of them do not live up to the possibilities of the oath and covenant. This does not qualify them, however, for the terrible penalty described in D&C 84:41 concerning the oath and covenant of the priesthood. Elder Marion G. Romney said:

Now, I do not think this means that all who fail to magnify their callings in the priesthood will have committed the unpardonable sin, but I do think that priesthood bearers who have entered into the covenants that we enter into---in the waters of baptism, in connection with the law of tithing, the Word of Wisdom, and the many other covenants we make---and then refuse to live up to these covenants will stand in jeopardy of losing the promise of eternal life. (Ensign/July 1972, p. 99; April Gen Conf, Priesthood Session; "The Covenant of the Priesthood")

Only when a person has come to the point in his life where he is worthy to continue his progression and receive the fulness of the priesthood blessings, will he be able to commit this sin. An understanding of the unpardonable sin, however, should not dissuade a person from striving to reach for perfection and to make his calling and election sure. By understanding this, he can always be on guard. President Cannon said that "there is glory and exaltation in proportion to faithfulness, to knowledge and to gifts and opportunities enjoyed." (MS 53:577-580; Gospel Truth, pp. 120-121) Where much is given, much is enjoyed as well as required.

Virgins, Parable of the Ten. This parable speaks in symbolic terms about saints who are members of the Lord's true church, and who are called to come forth and join with the bridegroom at the wedding feast. Since the parable is set in the backdrop of Jewish customs, it is important to mention how weddings were enacted in those days. According to Jewish custom, the bridegroom would always call for the bride to come to his home for the wedding feast. Since the weddings were held at night, the participants who were called to the feast, would have to carry lamps to guide their feet along the way. (DNTC 1:684)

The Savior begins this parable by stating that "before the Son of Man comes, the kingdom of heaven shall be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom." (JST Matthew 25:1) Five of the virgins were foolish because they took no oil with them, while the other five virgins were wise because they had oil for their lamps.

There are several important points here:

(1) Prior to the second coming of Christ, this parable will take place, and by the time he comes in his glory the parable will have been fulfilled. (D&C 45:56) (2) The word "virgin" means one who is pure, undefiled. Within the gospel context this is someone who has been born again and who has made the spiritual journey to purity and cleanliness. He is whole and complete spiritually, and is now awaiting the final sealing blessings. He is waiting to be called by the bridegroom to come and be sealed to him. There were ten of these virgins in the parable. They do not include all the members of the church, yet these virgins are members of the church. (DNTC 1:685)

(3) Those virgins who received the truth and who took the Holy Spirit for their guide, and have not been deceived, are those who were wise and had oil in their lamps. (D&C 45:57) The wise and foolish virgins will be intermingling until the second coming of Christ, when the final separation will take place. (D&C 63:53-54)

For some reason the bridegroom tarried longer than expected and so the virgins slumbered and slept. Then at midnight, the cry was made: "Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him." At the sound of this cry, all the virgins awoke and trimmed their lamps, but the foolish virgins found that their lamps were going out. (JST Matthew 25:8) When they discovered their dilemma they requested oil from the wise virgins. But being unable to give them any, they told the foolish virgins to go and get their own, which they did. In the meantime, the five wise virgins made their way to the wedding feast, the bridegroom came, "and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut." Later, the foolish virgins came to the door of the wedding feast and requested entrance. But the bridegroom said "I know you not", and did not open to them. (Matthew 25:5-12) Joseph rephrased this verse: "Verily I say unto you, Ye know me not" (JST Matthew 25:11).

When we apply this parable to our day we see some important doctrinal teachings. In 1831 the Lord made a call for the elect to go out and meet the bridegroom: "Yea, let the cry go forth among all people: Awake and arise and go forth to meet the Bridegroom; behold and lo, the Bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him. Prepare yourselves for the great day of the Lord. Watch, therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour." (D&C 133:10-11) So during the early years of the church, the call went out to prepare for the coming of the Lord, and the saints readied themselves. However, the Lord "delayed his coming; it was more distant than the early saints supposed; from evening to midnight there was no direct word from the bridal party." (DNTC 1:685) Thus, for many years the virgins within the church have been waiting patiently (slumbering), for the call to come to them so that they can make their way to the wedding chamber and there be sealed to the bridegroom.

Let us suppose for a moment, what would happen if the Prophet were to open the doors to the wedding chamber for one year only. During that year all virgins who have been wise, who have taken the Holy Spirit for their guide, and have not been deceived, are allowed entrance into the marriage. After that time period is over, the doors would be closed again. It would take at least one year for the foolish virgins to obtain their own oil of obedience to tithing, word of wisdom, magnifying callings and temple ordinances. But it will be too late for them, for the doors will be closed. The temple blessings are an important aspect of this parable because all who attend the feast must have on a wedding garment, or they will be cast out. (JST Matthew 22:12-14)

Although the foolish virgins were ready at the beginning, the delay in the coming of the bridegroom caused them to become less faithful, until they had very little oil, or Holy Spirit to guide them. Their oil was used up until there was no oil left in their lamps. Many strive to be worthy of eternal life and obtain a very favored status with God, but when the Son delays his coming, they become impatient, their faithfulness wavers, and their oil is not replenished.

To those foolish virgins who show up late to the wedding chamber, the Lord will say "I know you not." Why? Because they are not sealed to him---they knew him not. They do not belong to him. They are not his own. They have not been given to him by the Father. The harvest time came and passed, and they were unprepared. Perhaps the foolish virgins at the door will say to the bridegroom: "Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity." (Matthew 7:21-23) Elder McConkie suggested that the Savior might respond by saying: "Ye never knew me so fully as to be sealed up unto eternal life with your callings and elections made sure, and since you did not magnify your callings in the priesthood, you shall be cast out and be as though I never knew you." (DNTC 1:255)

The five wise virgins are "those who will be crowned as kings and queens and reign throughout eternity" said Lorenzo Snow. (Collected Discourses, p. 29) When will this take place? Over a period of time preceding the second coming.

The wedding chamber is a special room where a person is sealed up to eternal life. The wedding feast is the occasion at which the person is sealed to the bridegroom. The garners are the temples into which the wheat will be gathered to be crowned with eternal life. (D&C 101:65) Thus we find that redemption is only found by gathering to one of the stakes of Zion, and by subsequently receiving all the ordinances of the temple.

Wheat, Parable of the, and the Tares. The parable of the wheat and the tares deals directly with the gathering of Israel and their redemption. In 1832, the Lord revealed to Joseph Smith that:

...the angels are crying unto the Lord day and night, who are ready and waiting to be sent forth to reap down the fields. But the Lord saith unto them, pluck not up the tares while the blade is yet tender (for verily your faith is weak), lest you destroy the wheat also. Therefore, let the wheat and the tares grow together until the harvest is fully ripe; then ye shall first gather out the wheat from among the tares, and after the gathering of the wheat, behold and lo, the tares are bound in bundles, and the field remaineth to be burned. (D&C 86:5-7)

Concerning this scripture, the Prophet added:

Now we learn by this parable, not only the setting up of the Kingdom in the days of the Savior, which is represented by the good seed, which produced fruit, but also the corruptions of the Church, which are represented by the tares, which were sown by the enemy, which His disciples would fain have plucked up, or cleansed the Church of, if their views had been favored by the Savior. But He, knowing all things, says, Not so. As much as to say, your views are not correct, the Church is in its infancy, and if you take this rash step, you will destroy the wheat, or the Church, with the tares; therefore it is better to let them grow together until the harvest, or the end of the world, which means the destruction of the wicked, which is not yet fulfilled.... (TPJS, pp. 97-98)

Joseph continued to explain that "the harvest and the end of the world have an allusion directly to the human family in the last days, instead of the earth, as many have imagined.... [and that] the servants of God [will] go forth warning the nations, both priests and people, and as they harden their hearts and reject the light of truth, these being delivered over to the buffetings of Satan, and the law and the testimony being closed up, as it was in the case of the Jews, they are left in darkness, and delivered over unto the day of burning; thus being bound up by their creeds, and their bands being made strong by their priests....We understand that the work of gathering together of the wheat into barns, or garners, is to take place while the tares are being bound over, and preparing for the day of burning; that after the day of burnings, the righteous shall shine forth like the sun, in the Kingdom of their Father." (TPJS, p. 101)

In December of 1833, it was the Lord's desire that the harvest begin:

That the work of the gathering together of my saints may continue, that I may build them up unto my name upon holy places; for the time of harvest is come, and my word must needs be fulfilled.

Therefore, I must gather together my people, according to the parable of the wheat and the tares, that the wheat may be secured in the garners to possess eternal life, and be crowned with celestial glory, when I shall come in the kingdom of my Father to reward every man according as his work shall be;

While the tares shall be bound in bundles, and their bands made strong, that they may be burned with unquenchable fire.

Therefore, a commandment I give unto all the churches, that they shall continue to gather together unto the places which I have appointed. (D&C 101:64-67)

As the people of God gather together as commanded to the stakes of Zion, the Lord will secure the wheat (his faithful saints) into the garners (or temples) wherein they shall be crowned with celestial glory and obtain eternal life. Only through the ordinance of the fulness of the priesthood will a person be harvested as wheat. Up until that time, he is still a "tender shoot" and needs time to grow and develop.

The harvest of wheat also has a direct relationship to the parable of the ten virgins, where the faithful saints are sealed to the bridegroom.

Women, Responsibility of. Because the brethren have been called and ordained, by God, to bear the priesthood for the salvation of mankind, they are also, thereby, responsible for the blood and sins of the generation in which they live, and whom they are called upon to serve, from which they must become clean if they are to re-enter God's presence. (HC 1:322-334; 2:308-309, 422, 426; Heber C. Kimball Journal, December 21, 1845; MS 33:521; Minutes, Salt Lake City, pp. 23-24, 76, September 22, 1883; TPJS, p. 76; T&S 5:670)

The sisters on the other hand have not been ordained to the Melchizedek Priesthood and therefore do not have the charge to minister directly to the world. Their responsibility is to function as auxiliaries to the priesthood, aiding them in accomplishing their God-given responsibilities. In priesthood correlation, "all organizations and programs [are] to be correlated to the priesthood", said Elder Boyd K. Packer. (Regional Representatives Seminar, 3 April 1987) And so, because she does not have the priesthood given to her, she is not responsible for the sins of the world. President Young explained:

> Pertaining to his children on this earth, she [the woman] is not accountable for the sins that are in the world. God requires obedience from man, he is Lord of Creation, and at his hands the sins of the world will be required. (Discourse by Brigham Young, October 8, 1861; "A Few Words of Doctrine", pp. 3-4; Ms/d/1234/Box 49/fd 8/CHO)

Thus, although the sisters are accountable to the Priest- hood for the labors they perform, they are "not accountable for the sins that are in the world", and therefore they can be pronounced clean from it's blood. However, the brethren must continue to labor faithfully within the vineyard, proving their faithfulness, and waiting patiently until the voice of the Lord shall call them. (D&C 88:85)

The keys of the latter-day work are held by the prophet and emanate from him to all quorum presidents, stake presidents, and other priesthood brethren who are called to the work. Auxiliary organizations are all presided over by one holding priesthood keys of direction and auxiliary leaders receive their direction from that person who holds the keys. (DS 3:135) The word "helpmeet" (Genesis 2:18) has the same meaning of not being directly responsible for the sins within the family kingdom. The wife is an aid to her husband, to accomplish the priesthood duties and responsibilities which he has to perform in the family by reason of receiving the oath and covenant of the priesthood. He is "responsible for his own conduct, and that of his wife if he has one." (Amasa Lyman, Journal of Heber C. Kimball, 21 December 1845) "Every man in Israel is responsible in a certain degree for the conduct of his wives and children. He has covenanted that he will assume that responsibility; that is, he will assume the responsibility of the sins of his wives, if he fails to discharge his duties towards them in teaching and leading them in the ways of life and salvation." Apostle Erastus Snow, JD 5:289) Her assistance is important and essential in order for the husband to become clean. Once he is pronounced clean, they can then both receive the fulness if chosen and called up.

Zion. In the Hebrew the word Zion means "a hill". This hill was in Jerusalem and was the site of the temple and the royal residence of David and his successors. It is also considered to be the theocracy of God, and the heavenly city. (Websters Dictionary, p. 2125)

In LDS theology there are several meanings to the word Zion. First, the Lord revealed that "this is Zion--the pure in heart." (D&C 97:21) Second,

President Brigham Young stated that Zion is "where the organizations of the Church of God is." (JD 8:205) Third, Zion is "the whole of America...itself from north to south." (HC 6:318-319) Fourth, it was a holy city built by Enoch which by revelation was called "the City of Holiness even Zion." (Moses 7:19, 21) Fifth, it was one of the hills or mounts located in the old Jerusalem. Upon this hill rested the Tabernacle with the Ark of the Covenant. "In time, the city of Jerusalem became known as Zion and Mount Zion, and its inhabitants, sons and daughters of Zion. (Zion, p. 6) Lastly, the New Jerusalem which will be built in Jackson County, Missouri will be known as Zion. (D&C 45:65-71)

All of the above definitions deal with locations or cities, except for the first one. In expanding the first definition of the pure in heart, Zion has been defined as being "a society composed of families and individuals who have been spiritually born of God and have matured in the gospel to the point that the Lord can come and dwell with them. It is a family centered, covenant society of true saints, led by the Lord and his servants." (MPSG, 1978-79, pp. 181-182)

The first Zion ever to be built was called the city of holiness, or the city of Enoch. In the days of Enoch's ministry those who listened to his teachings were privileged to walk and talk with God, for "Enoch and all his people walked with God; and he dwelt in the midst of Zion". In this manner was Zion redeemed, and because of it's redemption it could no longer stay upon the earth which was full of wickedness, therefore the Lord took it "into his own bosom; and from thence went forth the saying, Zion is Fled." (Moses 7:69) There have been other Zion communities established through the ages of time. Melchizedek and his people wrought heaven and sought for the city of Enoch. The people who were established by Christ's apostles in the meridian of time had all things in common, indicating they were living the Zion law of consecration and stewardship. The Nephites also had a community which lived in peace, and partook of the heavenly gift for nearly 200 years following the visit of Christ to the Americas.

Zion is the kingdom of God of which Christ taught us to pray saying: "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven". (Matthew 6:10) To all the saints of the last days who strive to bring forth Zion, the Lord said: "Blessed are they who shall seek to bring forth my Zion at that day, for they shall have the gift and the power of the Holy Ghost; and if they endure unto the end they shall be lifted up at the last day, and shall be saved in the everlasting kingdom of the Lamb." (1 Nephi 13:37) Finally, the Lord has promised that "when men should keep all my commandments, Zion should again come on the earth, the city of Enoch which I have caught up unto myself. And this is mine everlasting covenant, that when thy posterity shall embrace the truth, and look upward, then shall Zion look downward, and all the heavens shall shake with gladness, and the earth shall tremble with joy; And the general assembly of the church of the first-born shall come down out of heaven, and possess the earth, and shall have place until the end come. And this is mine everlasting covenant, which I made with thy father Enoch." (JST Genesis 9:21-25) through obedience to the laws and ordinances of the gospel, a faithful priesthood bearer will be able to advance from the position of a "servant" to that of a "son", and thereby become an inheritor with Christ, a joint-heir, of all that the Father has.

V. 41---"But whoso breaketh this covenant after he hath received it, and altogether turneth therefrom, shall not have forgiveness of sins in this world nor in the world to come." Once a person has received and met the terms of the covenant by receiving the fulness of the priesthood and by having the heavens opened to him to where the Father and the Son appear and teach him of the covenant, and then altogether turns therefrom, he will become a son of perdition. (TPJS, p. 358) Only sons of God can become sons of perdition. (See Unpardonable Sin) Because of this, this verse does not apply to those who have only been ordained to the Melchizedek Priesthood and who have not yet received the fulness of that priesthood in the temple. Such individuals cannot commit the unpardonable sin. However, if they do not magnify their callings in the priesthood, they will never come to know the Father and the Son, and will therefore never be able to fulfill the terms of the oath and covenant of the priesthood. They will dwell in a kingdom of glory less than the celestial (D&C 76:79), but will not become sons of perdition. Only those who receive the fulness can commit the unpardonable sin and become sons of perdition thereby.

Priesthood, Patriarchal Order of the. The Patriarchal order of the Priesthood was named after Abraham, the father of the faithful. "Abraham's preisthood [order] was of greater power than Levi's..." (WJS, p. 245-247) It was "a more exalted power or preisthood [in that] he could talk and walk with God..." The keys of how to talk with God were handed down from the days of Adam to Abraham, who received them because of his faithfulness. (Facsimilie #1, & #2, Fig. 3) These same keys, blessings, and powers were restored to the prophet Joseph Smith in the Kirtland temple in 1836. (D&C 110) The keys of how to talk with God and were later incorporated into the endowment in Nauvoo. Abraham's patriarchal priesthood comprehended the Aaronic order, but did not hold the power after the order of the Son of God, which Melchizedek held. "The King of Shiloam (Salem) [Melchizedek] had power and authority over that of Abraham, holding the key and power of endless life." (TPJS, p. 322)

The patriarchal priesthood order is a family order, with each family presided over by a righteous man. It originally existed with Adam and was passed down to his righteous descen- dants. But Abraham's father was an idolatrous man and did not hold any priesthood. Consequently, Abraham had to look elsewhere for this priesthood and the blessings of the fathers. We are not told where Abraham received this order of Priesthood, but he may have received it from the Elias who appeared in the Kirtland Temple in 1836 and who restored "the dispensation of the gospel of Abraham, saying that in us and our seed all generations after us should be blessed." (D&C 110:12; DS 3:127) This Elias apparently held the keys of the dispensation of Abraham. (DS 3:127)

Abraham also received the promise that his seed would be as innumerable as the stars of heaven and as the sand on the seashore. This promise was obviously based upon the principle of eternal marriage since posterity cannot be obtained without a companion. Therefore, the Patriarchal Order of the Priesthood contained not only the keys of how to commune with God, but the blessings of eternal marriage as well. These blessings were all based upon Abraham's subsequent faithfulness since Abraham had not yet received the fulness of the priesthood order. The law of plural marriage was also given to Abraham and Sarah, and was fulfilled by her when she gave Hagar to Abraham so that he could raise up seed to fulfill the promise of God. The ordinances and covenants associated with this priesthood order established Abraham's patriarchal kingdom or government. The first seal of the priesthood is that which is placed upon a man and woman when they enter the everlasting covenant of marriage. (Joseph Smith, William Clayton Journal, October 20, 1843) That first seal establishes their kingdom.

However, the patriarchal order of the priesthood did not grant unto Abraham "the power of 'endless lives'", nor the power of endless or eternal life, nor did it give to him his inheritance (or mansion) nor the power to administer these blessings to others. (TPJS, p. 322) It only gave him the promise that these blessings would be his if he continued faithful. It wasn't until after Abraham was willing to offer Isaac that he obtained the highest order of the priesthood. Concerning this Joseph said: "The sacrifice required of Abraham in the offering up of Isaac, shows that if a man would attain to the keys of the kingdom of an endless life; he must sacrifice all things." (TPJS, p. 322) George Q. Cannon said God "required Abraham to submit to this trial because He intended to make him a king and a priest, to share with Himself the glory, power and dominion which He exercised." (CR, pp. 64-65; April General Conference, April 9, 1899) "Endless life" is obtained by receiving the fulness of the priesthood, which is the second seal, and grants unto the faithful husband and wife "their particular mansion" or inheritance. (Joseph Smith, William Clayton Journal, October 20, 1843)

Today the patriarchal order of the priesthood is entered through the new and everlasting covenant of marriage, which contains laws, rites and ordinances peculiar to itself, and those who enter this order promise to observe and keep them.

In addition to the covenant, special blessings pertaining to exaltation are pronounced upon the couple, based upon their faithfulness. If the couple proves to be true and faithful in all things, they will inherit these blessings in the fulness of the priesthood ordinance. Concerning this subject, Erastus Snow said:

> This new and everlasting covenant reveals unto us the keys of the Holy Priesthood and ordinances thereof. It is the grand keystone of the arch which the Lord is building in the earth. In other words, it is that which completes the exaltation and glory of the righteous who receive the everlasting Gospel, and without it they could not attain unto the eternal power and Godhead and the fulness of celestial glory. Now, many may enter into the glory of God, and become servants in the house of God and in the celestial kingdom of God, who are not able to abide this new and everlasting covenant; but as we are told in the Doctrine and Covenants, with them there is an end to their exaltation, but they enter not into the order of the Gods. They cannot progress through the ceaseless rounds of eternity except they abide in the covenant, and abide the law that governs it, and the Lord will not be mocked in these things. (JD 24:161)

It is important to add to this the concepts given in D&C 132, verses 19 and 26. Not only must a man "marry a wife by my word, which is my law, and by the new and everlasting covenant" but such an occurance must then be "sealed unto them by the Holy Spirit of promise, by him who is anointed, unto whom I have appointed this power and the keys of this priesthood" meaning, of course, the Prophet. The full state of matrimony and ever- lasting covenant can therefore be seen as having two parts. First, when a man and a woman are married according to the everlasting covenant, which is the first seal of the covenant, and second, when that marriage is sealed upon them by the Holy Spirit of promise with the Prophet of God performing or granting permission for the sealing to be done, which is the second seal. To show the relationship between eternal marriage and being sealed to eternal life, Joseph said "except a man and his wife enter into an everlasting covenant and be married for eternity while in this probation by the power and authority of the Holy Priesthood they will cease to increase when they die (ie. they will not have any children in the resurrection[)], but those who are married by the power & authority of the priesthood in this life & continue without committing the sin against the Holy Ghost [which can only be done after the couple has been sealed up to eternal life--D&C 132:19, 26] will continue to increase & have children in the celestial glory. The unpardonable sin is to shed innocent blood or be accessory thereto....He [Joseph] also said that in the celestial glory there was three heavens or degrees, and in order to obtain the highest a man must enter into this order of the priesthood and if he dont he cant obtain it. He may enter into the other but that is the end of his kingdom he cannot have increase." (William Clayton Journal, May 16, 1843) The everlasting covenant spoken of here by Joseph is not only eternal marriage, but it is the full seal of the everlasting covenant which is placed there by the Holy Spirit of promise, which seals the couple to eternal life and bestows upon them the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood. Because of the sacred nature of the keys and blessings of this order, Joseph instructed the saints to "go to and finish the temple, and God will fill it with power, and you will then receive more know- ledge concerning this priesthood." (TPJS, p. 323)

Priesthood, Power of the Fulness of the. Joseph Smith said: "Those holding the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God holding the keys of power and blessings. In fact, that priesthood is a perfect law of theocracy and stands as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam." Endless lives are administered, Joseph said, with an "everlast- ing covenant" by an "anointing and sealing" which "is to be called, elected and [the election] made sure." (TPJS, pp. 321, 323; Ensign/May 1978, p. 48)

In explaining the tremendous power which this order of the priesthood held, the scriptures record that God swore unto Enoch and unto his seed "that every one being ordained after this [holy] order and calling should have power, by faith, to break mountains, to divide the seas, to dry up waters, to turn them out of their course; to put at defiance the armies of nations, to divide the earth, to break every band, to stand in the pre- sence of God; to do all things according to his will, according to his command." (JST Genesis 14:30-31)

President John Taylor commented that those who held this order of the priesthood in olden times were enabled, by faith, to stop the mouths of lions, quench the violence of fire, divide the waters of the Red Sea, deliver themselves from the fiery furnace and from bonds and imprisonment. Because of this power they were preserved from boiling oil, caused prison walls to tumble, stilled the angry waves, raised the dead, cleansed the lepers, healed the sick, cast out devils and did many other mighty works. (M&A, pp. 85-88) This priesthood order also holds the power to seal up to eternal life, to deliver over to the buffetings of satan, (TPJS, p. 338) to administer endless lives to Adam and Eve's posterity (TPJS, p. 322), to seal together the living and the dead, (TPJS, pp. 330-331) "to have the heavens opened...to commune with the general assembly and church of the Firstborn, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the mediator of the new covenant." (D&C 107:19)

The powers of this order "include all the keys that belong to the holy priesthood on the earth, or were ever revealed to man in any dispensation, and which admit men and women within the veil. They enable them to pass by the angels and the gods, until they get into the presence of the Father and the Son. They make of them kings and priests, queens and priestesses to God, to rule and reign as such over their posterity and those who may be given to them by adoption, in the great jubilee of rest which is near at hand. It gives them the right to the tree of life, and the 'seal of the living God in their foreheads,' spoken of by John the revelator. No marvel, then, that the Lord requires sacred places for such great and glorious things--'the fullness of the holy priesthood' to be restored." (JI 15: [May 15, 1880] 111. Article entitled "Temples", written by Daniel Tyler)

Priesthood, Purpose of the Fulness of the. President Benson explained that "when our Heavenly Father placed Adam and Eve on this earth, He did so with the purpose in mind of teaching them how to regain His presence....The Prophet Joseph Smith said that Adam blessed his posterity because 'he wanted to bring them into the presence of God'.... (TPJS p. 159) How did Adam bring his descendants into the presence of the Lord? The answer: Adam and his descendants entered into the priesthood order of God. Today we would say they went to the House of the Lord and received their blessings....Adam followed this order and brought his posterity into the presence of God. He is the great example for us to follow. Enoch followed this pattern and brought the Saints of his day into the presence of God. Noah and his son Shem likewise followed the same pattern after the flood....Even though the Aaronic Priesthood and Melchizedek Priesthood had been restored to the earth, the Lord urged the Saints to build a temple to receive the keys by which this order of priesthood could be administered on the earth again, 'for there [was] not a place found on earth that he may come to and restore again that which was lost...even the fulness of the priesthood.'" (TPJS p. 308; Ensign/August 1985, pp. 8-10)

Priesthood, Responsibility of, Bearers. As servants of God, priesthood bearers are called to minister (1) to their own families, and (2) to the whole world. The first responsibility of a priesthood holder lies within his family. He is responsible to provide for their temporal and spiritual needs. One day he will give an accounting to the Lord as to the manner in which he has magnified and fulfilled his callings as husband and father. His wife will also stand as a witness before God as to the manner and faithfulness with which he performed his duties. (John 12:1-7) There are many vehicles through which a husband and father can fulfill his duties within the home, such as family home evening, family prayer, personal interviews, family activities, church attendance and activity. Love, kindness, and free agency should crown all his activities.

Additionally, the priesthood holder has the responsibility of ministering to individuals and families outside of his own, as his assignments might designate. Since the three-fold mission of the church is to (1) proclaim the gospel; (2) perfect the saints; and (3) redeem the dead, all priesthood holders will minister in these three areas of responsibility. Some serve as missionaries, others are home teachers, while others serve within temples.

The first great mission of the priesthood is to gather in Israel---to seek for the elect who have been scattered, and to bring them home to Zion. (D&C 29:7; 33:6) The gospel net goes into all the world and gathers into the church those who are desirous of returning to Father.

Secondly, the priesthood has the responsibility to perfect those who are brought into the church through the gospel net. This includes assisting them in obtaining all the ordinances of the temple. Paul taught that the church organization is neces- sary "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ." For how long? "[Un]til we all come in the unity of the faith [Zion--one heart and one mind], and of the knowledge of the Son of God [knowing the Son and the Father--John 17:3], unto a perfect man [calling and election is made sure], unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." (Ephesians 4:11-13)

Perfecting the saints includes inspiring family members to attend to all family and church duties. Priesthood quorums are to teach and train fathers concerning those things which are necessary to gain eternal life, including how to make one's calling and election sure, if the father and family are ready to pursue that area.

Lastly, the priesthood is charged with the responsibility of redeeming the dead, for without them, the sealing lines are incomplete. "The greatest responsibility in this world that God has laid upon us is to seek after our dead. The Apostle says, 'They without us cannot be made perfect.'" (TPJS, p. 356) Joseph said that "We cannot be perfect without the fathers, &c." (TPJS, p. 338) The saints will only become saviors on Mount Zion "by building their temples, erecting their baptismal fonts, and going forth and receiving all the ordinances, baptisms, confirmations, washings, anointings, ordinations and sealing powers upon their [own] heads, [and] in behalf of all their progenitors who are dead, and redeem them that they may come forth in the first resurrection and be exalted to thrones of glory with them; and herein is the chain that binds the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers, which fulfills the mission of Elijah." (TPJS, p. 330) Obviously we cannot perform the ordinances for our deceased ancestors if we have not received them first ourselves.

Prophets, Desire of all. All the prophets of God, from Adam to the modern days prophets, have desired to bring the saints into the presence of God. Joseph commented that "this is why Adam blessed his posterity; he wanted to bring them into the presence of God." (TPJS, p. 159)

Enoch learned "enough from Adam and his associates to know how to handle the elements, and those who would not listen to his teachings were so wicked that they were fit to be destroyed, and [Enoch] obtained power to take his portion of the earth and move out a little while, where he remains to this day." (JD 3:320) Enoch was able to develop a society of people who "walked with God" and with whom God could dwell. (Moses 7:69) They were known as "Zion" people because "they were of one heart and one mind, and dwelt in righteousness; and there was no poor among them." (Moses 7:18) A Zion society "is composed of families and individuals who have been spiritually born of God and have matured in the gospel to the point that the Lord can come and dwell with them. It is a family-centered, covenant society of true saints, 'the pure in heart,' led by the Lord and his servants." (MPSG, 1978-79, pp. 181-82)

After the translation of the city of Enoch, and before the flood, there were many faithful saints upon whom "the Holy Ghost fell...and they were caught up by the powers of heaven into Zion." (Moses 7:27)

After the flood, Melchizedek, who was the Presiding High Priest and King of Salem, instituted the same heavenly laws that Enoch used, and also organized a Zion society of redeemed saints. The scriptures record that Melchizedek "and his people wrought righteousness, and obtained heaven, and sought for the city of Enoch which God had before taken, separating it from the earth, having reserved it unto the latter days, or the end of the world." (JST Genesis 14:32-34) President John Taylor said "it would seem that this people [of Melchizedek] possessed the power of Translation, and that they 'obtained heaven, and sought for the city of Enoch which God had before taken,' or which was before translated." (M&A, p. 85)

Paul writes that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and their seed after them "looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." (Hebrews 11:5-10) They "sought for the city of Enoch which God had before taken." (JST Genesis 14:34) However, these "holy men found it not because of wickedness and abominations; and confessed they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth; but obtained a promise that they should find it and see it in their flesh." (D&C 45:11-14)

Moses desired to bring the children of Israel back into the Lord's presence. To this end "Moses plainly taught the children of Israel in the wilderness" all that was needed to re-enter the Lord's presence. He "sought diligently to sanctify his people that they might behold the face of God; but they hardened their hearts and could not endure his presence; therefore, the Lord in his wrath, for his anger was kindled against them, swore that they should not enter into his rest while in the wilderness, which rest is the fulness of his glory." (D&C 84:23-26) The Lord told Moses that "without the ordinances thereof, and the authority of the priesthood, the power of godliness is not manifest unto men in the flesh; For without this [the power of godliness] no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live (D&C 84:20-22). Because of this the Lord not only took Moses out of their midst, but also the higher temple ordinances which would have opened the door for the Israelites to commune with the Lord face to face. (JST Exodus 34:1-2)

When the Savior came into the world, he also desired to gather the people and make of them a Zion society wherein they could also partake of the powers of heaven. But because of their wickedness, he was unable to organize such a society, and so lamented:

> O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets and stonest them which are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! (Matthew 23:37)

Joseph Smith explained that this scriptural passage had reference to the gathering of Israel so that the Lord could bestow the fulness of the priesthood upon the Jews, but they refused. (HC 5:423) Consequently, the gospel went to the Gentiles. (TPJS, pp. 14-15)

In this last dispensation, with the restoration of all things, Joseph was commanded by the Lord to build up Zion. (D&C 21:7-8) In 1842 Joseph Smith stated that "the building up of Zion is a cause that has interested the people of God in every age" and "it is a theme upon which prophets, priests and kings have dwelt with peculiar delight", and that by building Zion and restoring to the earth the ancient blessings, powers, and glories which belonged to Zion, that it would "bring about the destruction of the powers of darkness, the renovation of the earth, the glory of God, and the salvation of the human family." (HC 4:609-610) It was the full intention of the Prophet to administer all the ordinances of redemption so that the faithful could again enter the Lord's presence while still in the flesh.

After the death of Joseph Smith, President Brigham Young and the saints went west into the mountains where it was his hope to build Zion as Enoch did of old. The principles, doctrines and ordinances which relate to a Zion society were instituted and lived by the saints. This included the full patriarchal order of marriage, consecration and stewardship, the law of adoption, the giving of fulness of the priesthood blessings, and other doctrines. However, by 1890, it was apparent that the saints had not lived up to their responsibil- ities in building Zion. This led President Joseph F. Smith to say in 1901, that the laws of plural marriage and consecration were taken away because of the wickedness of the people, "and neither would be restored until there is a people prepared to live them." (William H. Smart Diary, 1901-1902 Book, p. 94; July 28, 1901)

In an effort to return to the glory and redemption of Zion, President David O. McKay instituted the Priesthood Correlation Program. These "first years of correlation were concerned largely with organization, with programs, procedures, with committees, and councils and boards", said Boyd K. Packer. "It centered on planning. Now with...perilous days upon us, we must implement those plans. Providentially, we are prepared at least to a degree, to energize the consummate power of the holy priesthood to protect and perfect the Saints and bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man." (Regional Representa-
